A solid, business-like work, which is the proper description of Egypt As It Is, by J. C. McCoan (Cassell, Petter and Galpin), may have small claim to be included in the category of elegant literature and may run a risk of being lightly esteemed by the tens of thousands who read for sheer entertainment, but it will rejoice the hearts of the thousands who read for instruction, of the practical men and women who prefer facts to fancy, and statistical information to the most picturesque description. The book, from the point of view adopted by its author, is—or at any rate, has the appearance of being—exhaustive. As for the author's qualifications, he claims, and has good reason to claim, "an intimate acquaintance with Egypt," an acquaintance enjoyed "during a long residence in the Levant," and improved by "several lengthened visits to the country, made specially within the past three years to collect statistical and other information on the spot." So that he writes not only with authority, but with authority strengthened and refreshed by investigations conducted up to the latest date. The map, moreover, with which his volume is furnished was "taken from the most recent survey." It may surprise and even annoy some of his readers to find that he has said scarcely anything about the social life of Egypt; but, if they read his preface, they cannot deny that he gives them due warning, roundly asserting that that part of what might have been considered his duty has been done "once for all by Mr. Lane, whose vivid portraiture of the manners and customs of both Arab and Copt is as true still as it was forty years ago." He admits that "the spread of education and the influence of a much larger European society have effected a few changes," but he maintains that, on the whole, "the native private life of 1877 differs but little, if at all, from that of 1835, and in the 'Modern Egyptians' incomparably the best description of it is still to be found." And it must be confessed that, so far as "the social life of Egypt" can be observed by the host of travellers who, season after season, seek health or distraction in a trip up the Nile, we have had almost a surfeit of journals, and diaries, and sketches, and more pretentious publications, inasmuch that the apparition of anything similar is calculated to produce a feeling of nausea accompanied by a cold shudder. Having thus premised what readers are not to expect, we may lay before them a brief account of the treat which is in store for them, and for which, when they have taken their fill of it, they certainly ought to be truly thankful. The author, then, discourses of the territory, of the diverse populations, of the various aspects presented by cities, towns, and villages, of the relations between Egypt and the Porte, of the administration, of the finances, of the commerce, of the agriculture, of the public instruction, of the public works, including, of course, the Suez Canal, of the judicial reforms, of the manufacturing and other industries, of the slavery still existing in Egypt, of the fauna and flora, of the climate, and, lastly, of the Egyptian Soudan. To his text are added five appendices, having reference, respectively, to "the viceregal family," to "Egyptian currency, weights, and measures," to "Egyptian calendars," to "military grades and rates of pay," to the "cost of living in Egypt," to "Egyptian trade with Great Britain," to "Mr. Cave's report on the financial condition of Egypt," and to "the financial decrees" of May 2, May 7, and Nov. 18, 1876. And, to fitly finish off the work, there is an index, which enables one to pounce without difficulty upon any subject one may choose to select. The author does not find it easy to determine the exact limits of "the territory now subject to the Khedive;" but, as regards Egypt proper, he reckons the population at about 5,500,000, which gives some "484 inhabitants per square mile of its cultivable area; or, in other words, in ratio of population to arable surface Egypt ranks before Belgium, the most densely-peopled State of Europe." He holds that, though eight Egyptian towns, to wit, Cairo, Alexandria, Rosetta, Damietta, Port Said, El-Arish, Ismailia, and Suez, are "officially classed as cities," the latter term can be properly applied, in the European sense, only to the first two. But of the whole eight, as well as of several other towns, he gives a more or less complete account. He concludes his notice of the relations between Egypt and the Porte with a forecast, prophesying good for Egypt from the present Turco-Russian war, whatever may be the result. "If the Porte," he argues, "escapes heavy loss and humiliation, the Khedive will have earned the right to new concessions, tending to sever the few remaining fibres of the thread that still binds him to Stamboul; while in the worst event of Turkish dismemberment, he may safely count on emerging from the general wreck, piloted by British friendship, it may be into complete independence, or at worst—or best—exchanging the costly suzerainty of the Porte for the fostering and disinterested (sic) protection of Great Britain." He sums up the system of administration in a few words, a parody of a well-known saying: "L'état, c'est le Khédive." He does not, however, neglect to point out that there is already the "germ of an Egyptian Parliament," which appears to be gradually growing and blossoming into independence and usefulness. And he tells an anecdote which may be taken to heart by those whose impatience prevents them from making allowances for the Turkish Government and its difficulties in working Parliamentary institutions. The story runs in Cairo that "when the newly-chosen delegates came together the Minister of the Interior attempted to give them some rough notions of Parliamentary duty and organisation, and explained that they would be expected to frankly approve or disapprove the measures that should be laid before them. . . . God forbid," was the general answer, "that any of them should think of questioning anything the Effendina (Khedive) proposed!" And yet this servile body is learning by degrees to discharge its functions honestly. Nor, so far as one can see, is the lesson likely to be much harder for Turks than for Egyptians. The author discusses the Goschen-Joubert scheme in a manner which English bondholders will be best able to appreciate. He traces a steady growth in Egyptian trade, and he draws a hopeful picture of her agriculture. He considers "the educational level attained by Egypt" to be "respectable," though, in comparison with the European, it "is not, of course, a high one." In dealing with "the public works of Egypt," he asserts with good reason that they "are so numerous and important that a mere catalogue of those constructed during the present reign would go far to account for the recent great development of both its trade and its debt;" and of the Suez Canal he tells the history so plainly, succinctly, and comprehensively, that he accomplishes in a few pages what might have been expanded into a volume. It is not easy, however, to follow him when he arrives at the conclusion that the canal "represents a distinct and more or less permanent loss" to the country, especially when he remarks, in another passage, that "the political gains from it have been great, and material compensation is only deferred." One would say, on the contrary, that this is a case in which the loss is only apparent and temporary; for, although "seventy-six years," the interval after which "the whole property will lapse to the Government," are more than the age of a man, they are as nothing in the life of a nation "half as old as Time." He certainly uses the words "more or less permanent;" and that is, no doubt, an elastic phrase, but a little too suggestive of perpetuity. Besides, there is the chance that the property may be disposed of in the meantime, not, perhaps, to the immediate disadvantage of Egypt. The author considers that the grandest monument of Ismail's reign will be the spectacle expected to present itself in 1881, when, in consequence of judicial reforms, Egypt will stand out as "a unique example of a Mussulman State governed by a system of laws in harmony with modern civilisation, under the ægis of which all classes of its population will, for the first time, enjoy equal justice and protection from administrative abuse." The author devotes a chapter to the subject of slavery, of which he takes a somewhat cold-blooded, matter-of-fact, and even trader-like view, describing young women, who are bought and sold, in language which one would apply to an article of furniture. Nor, to speak from memory, does the generally rosy colour with which he touches up the subject harmonise with the horrible instances recorded but lately in a book called, if the title be rightly remembered, "The Cradle of the Blue Nile," by Mr. De Cosson (John Murray). As to the extinction of the traffic in slaves, he is not very sanguine, though he believes "that Gordon Pasha will do much towards minimising its attendant evils within the area of his effective authority." And on many other topics the author discourses freely; indeed, it is doubtful whether he has omitted to pass in review a single one among the "economical conditions of New Egypt." Even small matters do not escape his notice; he is thoughtful enough to give the proper pronunciation of Khedive, a word which few Englishmen are found to attack with any confidence. Suffice it to say, that the word is a dissyllable, and that a Frenchman would, by the light of nature, come very near to the right utterance.

A comparison of The Khedive's Egypt, by Edwin De Leon (Sampson Low and Co.) with Mr. McCoan's "Egypt As It Is" (Cassell, Petter, and Galpin) will reveal many points of difference. The former has a sub-title, "The Old House of Bondage Under New Masters," which at once proclaims the popular character of the work; while the latter, with its straightforward title and without any attempt at a striking sub-title, is evidently intended chiefly for serious, practical men of business. The former has illustrations to please the eye, but no map and no index; the latter has an admirable map and a most useful index, but no illustrations to please the eye, unless the specimens of draughtsmanship upon the cover should be denominated illustrations. The former commences with a cheery shout of "Eastward Ho!" and with a lively account of the voyage from Southampton to Port Said; the latter plunges at once into the middle of things, and has you engaged in Egyptian geography before you have read two pages. The former makes a great point of social life in Egypt, of personal portraiture, of picturesque scenes; the latter eschews such matters almost, but not quite, altogether. They both, of course, meet sometimes on the same ground; and though they may, on the whole, agree, there is occasionally so wide a divergence between them that the effect is quite staggering. In the statistics, for instance, connected with the Suez Canal, the discrepancy is almost incredible. Yet both authors can plead excellent opportunities for collecting information. Mr. De Leon, indeed, writes with all the prestige of an ex-agent and Consul-General in Egypt, and of one who, besides "his exceptional advantages of many years' residence" in the country, can boast of "his intimate public and private relations with the last three Rulers, including the present Khedive." For all this his figures differ to a startling extent from those of Mr. McCoan, as regards, at any rate, the number of ships and the tonnage passed through the Suez Canal. However, they both come to the same conclusion—that, "three fourths of the whole tonnage passing through the canal sails under the British flag." The apparently contradictory statements of tonnage might, perhaps, be reconciled; but as much cannot be said for the numbers of the vessels. And yet there surely ought to be, and are, official lists accessible, so that there should be no mistake at all about the computation. Nevertheless, the number of ships that passed through in 1876 is put at 1457 in one book and at 1395 in the other. And, oddly enough, the complication is made still worse by an evident misprint in one of the tables. Of course it is satisfactory, on the one hand, to have proof that the statistics were independently compiled; but, on the other, it is unsatisfactory to discover that the results do not tally. However, it is, after all, a question of no great moment to the English reader, who will be content to know that both computations redound to the honour and glory of England and to the credit of the canal. But there is diversity of opinion as well as of figures. Mr. De Leon asserts, p. 30, that "Egypt is sparsely populated, even for its area of already cultivable land," whereas Mr. McCoan, p. 37, states that "in ratio of population to arable surface Egypt ranks before Belgium, the most densely peopled State of Europe." When gentlemen who are apparently, by their antecedents and opportunities, equally entitled to respectful attention, differ so materially, there is nothing for it but to leave them to fight out their difference and the reader to pin his faith to whether of the twain he, on perusal of their works, judges most worthy of his confidence. Meanwhile we may proceed with our rapid survey of the narrative contained in Mr. De Leon's volume. His arrangement is not very methodical; and the way in which he hops from subject to subject, as a bee goes buzzing from flower to flower, is entertaining enough, but somewhat bewildering withal. He seems, moreover, to have intermingled his earlier and his later experiences and investigations without always employing a due amount of discrimination and modification. For example, he, at p. 237, states that "the taxes, too, are taken in kind, not in cash; so that the tax collector can levy an additional amount by his valuation of the crop;" whereas Mr. McCoan, at p. 122 of his volume, asserts that "the vicious Turkish system of collecting the land tax in kind" was abolished, save as a matter of mutual arrangement, in the time of Said Pasha. When discoursing of the Suez Canal, Mr. De Leon takes occasion to observe that, "when the gratitude or the means of the company shall prompt them to raise some memorial to the founders of the canal, alongside of that which shall commemorate the name and fame of Ferdinand de Lesseps—already so world wide in this connection—should be placed another of equal magnitude, to commemorate the services of S. S. Ruyssenaers, Consul-General of Holland, and first vice-president of the company, whose shrinking modesty has hitherto veiled from the public eye his claims to an almost equal paternity of the great enterprise, which without him might, and probably would, never have proved a success." This will probably be news to most people; but Mr. De Leon pledges his own knowledge as his authority. Of Cairo, old and new, he gossips agreeably; of the founder of "the present Egyptian dynasty," Mehemet Ali, of Ibrahim Pasha, of Abbas Pasha, of Said Pasha, and of the Khedive, Ismail Pasha, he gives sketches, enlivened by anecdotes; and to these sketches he adds others, portraying "some of the Khedive's native Ministers" and "scions of the Royal house of Mehemet Ali;" he draws portraits, from personal acquaintance, of the celebrated traveller Captain Burton, and of the no less, if not more, celebrated Colonel Gordon, known as "Chinese" Gordon; he touches upon the sport of "chasing the gazelle with hawk and hound over the desert;" and, in fact, though he does not fail to dwell upon many of the more important topics which form the staple of Mr. McCoan's work, he supplies all that variety of colouring and all that chit-chat which are so dear to the general reader, and which are, for the most part, designedly neglected in the pages of the other author. He, like Mr. McCoan, devotes one whole chapter to the Soudan; and to examine the two chapters side by side is enough to show the difference in the lines upon which the two authors have proceeded; Mr. De Leon being more concerned to show how, by whom and with what consequences the provinces of the Soudan were acquired, and Mr. McCoan to enumerate, with considerable detail, the physical aspect and productive capabilities of those provinces. As to the proposed and partially constructed Soudan Railway, it is treated of by Mr. De Leon in his chapter concerning the Soudan, but in Mr. McCoan's book it naturally, according to his plan of dividing his subjects, falls within the space occupied by the remarks upon "public works," and one would say that it would have with equal appropriateness found a place in the chapter which Mr. De Leon has headed "Improvements and Public Works in Egypt," for it is surely one of the most remarkable features of "the Khedive's Egypt" as distinguished from "the old house of bondage." This is, however, a mere matter of taste, and of very little consequence.

OBITUARY OF EMINENT PERSONS.

SIR ARUNDELL NEAVE, BART.

Sir Arundell Neave, fourth Baronet, of Dagnam Park, in the county of Essex, J.P. and D.L., formerly Captain 3rd Dragoon Guards, died on the 21st ult., at Llysdules, Anglesey. He was born June 5, 1829, the eldest son of Sir Richard Digby Neave, third Baronet, by the Hon. Mary Arundell, his wife, youngest daughter of James Everard, Lord Arundell of Wardour, and was educated at Eton. He succeeded to the title at the death of his father, March 10, 1868, and married, Sept. 26, 1871, the Hon. Gwyn Gertrude Hughes, only surviving child of William Lewis, first Lord Dinorben, by Gertrude, his second wife, sister of the Princess of Capua, and daughter of Grace Blakeney Smyth, Esq., of Ballynatra, and acquired with her a very considerable estate in Wales. He leaves issue Sir Thomas Lewis Hughes Neave, present Baronet, born June 26, 1874; Arundell, born July 2, 1875; and Mary Gertrude Catherine, born Sept. 24, 1872.

SIR MATTHEW WHITE RIDLEY, BART.

Sir Matthew White Ridley, fourth Baronet, of Heaton Hall, in the county of Northumberland, died on the 25th ult. at his seat, Blagdon, near Cramlington. He was born Sept. 9, 1807, the eldest son of Sir Matthew White Ridley, third Baronet, M.P., by Laura, his wife, youngest daughter of George Hawkins, Esq., and was consequently nephew of the late Right Hon. Nicholas William, Lord Colborne. He was educated at Westminster, and at Christ Church, Oxford, where he graduated in 1828. He succeeded his father in 1836, served as High Sheriff in 1841, and was M.P. for North Northumberland from 1859 to 1868. He married, Sept. 21, 1841, Cecilia Anne, eldest daughter of Sir James Parke, afterwards Lord Wensleydale, and by her (who died in 1845) had issue. The eldest son, the present Sir Matthew White Ridley, fifth Baronet, M.A., M.P. for North Northumberland, was born July 25, 1842, and is married to Mary Georgiana, eldest daughter of Sir Dudley Coutts Marjoribanks, Baronet of Guisachan.

SIR JAMES POWER, BART.

Sir James Power, second Baronet, of Edermine, in the county of Wexford, died at his seat, near Ennis-corthy, on the 30th ult. He was born Dec. 6, 1800, the only son of Sir John Power, of Roebuck House, in the county of Dublin, and Sampton, in the county of Wexford, on whom was conferred the dignity of Baronet in August, 1841. Sir James succeeded his father June 25, 1855, and served as High Sheriff for the city of Dublin in 1859, having previously been High Sheriff of the county of Wexford in 1851. He sat for several years in Parliament as member for that county—viz., from 1835 to 1847, and from 1865 to 1868. He married, Jan. 26, 1843, Jane Anna Eliza, daughter and coheir of the late John Hyacinth Talbot, Esq., of Ballytrent, in the county of Wexford, M.P. for New Ross, and had issue three sons and three daughters, the eldest son being now Sir John Talbot Power, third Baronet, born May 2, 1845, and married to Frances Emma, daughter of Captain Henry Seagrave, next brother of O'Neill Seagrave, Esq., of Kiltimon. Sir James Power had long ranked among the most eminent commercial men of the city of Dublin, and he was a considerable landed proprietor in the county of Wexford. He was a director of the Bank of Ireland, of the Patriotic Assurance Company, and of the Dublin and Wicklow Railway.

COLONEL R. W. BERNARD.

Colonel Richard Wellesley Bernard, Lieutenant-Colonel of the King's County Militia, Deputy-Ranger of the Curragh, and Chamberlain to his Grace the Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland, died suddenly on the 25th ult. He was born in 1822, the youngest son of the late Colonel Thomas Bernard, Esq., of Castle Bernard, M.P. for King's County, by Lady Catherine Henrietta Hely-Hutchinson, his wife, sister of the third Earl of Donoughmore. He married, in 1859, Ellen Georgina, widow of Colonel the Hon. Henry Handcock (killed at Sebastopol, Sept. 8, 1855) and eldest daughter of Lieutenant-Colonel Henry Williams, R.A. Long connected with the Court of Dublin, Colonel Bernard had filled the offices which he held with such urbanity and kindness of spirit that he had gained universal popularity and esteem.

The Act to enable the Metropolitan Board of Works to make new streets and street improvements, by which 10,129 of the labouring classes will be displaced, has been printed. The western improvements consist of a new street beginning at Regent-circus, Piccadilly, crossing Tichborne-street and Great Windmill-street to Rupert-street, Richmond-street, and King-street, ending with West-street; a new street, in continuation of the new street No. 1, to widen Dudley-street, along Broad-street; a new street across Bloomsbury-street, &c., terminating with Duke-street, St. George's, Bloomsbury; a new street from Regent-circus, widening Piccadilly on the north side, Coventry-street on the south side, and Prince's-street on the west side, and ending at Pantons-street, St. Martin's-in-the-Fields; also to widen Tichborne-street and Great Windmill-street. Further, a new street to be formed, beginning in Trafalgar-square at its south-east corner, to widen St. Martin's-place, thence by a short length of new street, beginning at Hemming's-row and ending at Castle-street, and widening the several streets, to terminate at Tottenham-court-road. The other improvements to be effected are in Gray's-inn-road, Kentish Town, Angel, Islington; Mare-street, Hackney; Tooley-street, Bermondsey-street (abandoned), Southwark Bridge-road, Jamaica-road, Camberwell and Peckham, and Deptford Bridge. There are provisions for the accommodation of the labouring classes displaced by the intended improvements. The compulsory purchase of the land must be within seven years, and the improvements are to be completed within ten years.

NEW MUSIC.

ASHDOWN and PARRY'S CATALOGUES

PART 1. PIANO, ORGAN, HARMONIUM.
PART 2. VOCAL.
PART 3. HARP, CONCERTINA.
PART 4. VIOLIN, VIOLONCELLO, ORCHESTRA, &c.
PART 5. FLUTE, CORNET, CLARINET, &c.
Sent gratis and post-free to any part of the world.
ASHDOWN and PARRY, Hanover-square, London.

SELECT PIANOFORTE PIECES of

STEPHEN HELLER.

An Autumn leaf (Romance, Op. 105, No. 5) ..	2 0
An Evening (Prelude, Op. 110, No. 10) ..	3 0
Andante (Prelude, Op. 81, No. 7) ..	3 0
Barcarolle (Prelude, Op. 81, No. 23) ..	3 0
Bercesse (Study, Op. 47, No. 19) ..	1 0
Chanson de Mal (Prelude, Op. 107) ..	1 0
Chant du Buisson (Op. 81, No. 16) ..	2 6
Chant du Soir (Study, Op. 46, No. 9) ..	1 0
Cradle Song (Chanson de Berceuse, Op. 73, No. 5) ..	3 0
Feuille d'Album (Study, Op. 16, No. 16) ..	2 0
Haïku du Chasseur (Dans les Bois, Op. 81, No. 5) ..	3 0
Huntman's Song (Chant du Chasseur, Op. 73, No. 1) ..	3 0
Jacuzzi (Study, Op. 80, No. 7) ..	2 6
L'Alouette (Study, Op. 46, No. 2) ..	1 0
La Truite (Caprice Brilliant on the Song of Schubert, Op. 53) ..	4 0
Liedchen (Study, Op. 46, No. 5) ..	1 0
On Song's Bright Pinions (Improvisation on Song of Mendelssohn, Op. 67) ..	4 0
Opaline (Study, Op. 46, No. 16) ..	1 0
Parting Song (Mendelssohn's Song transcribed) ..	3 0
Raveris au Bois (Study, Op. 46, No. 13) ..	1 0
The Watermill (Study, Op. 46, No. 20) ..	2 0
Un Rayon du Soleil (Study, Op. 46, No. 1) ..	1 0
Une Petite Feuille (Op. 110) ..	3 0
Une Petite Histoire (Study, Op. 125, No. 6) ..	1 0
Wanderstuden (Bébé's d'Artiste, Op. 80, No. 2) ..	3 0

The above pieces are among the most popular works of this renowned Composer. A complete Catalogue of his entire Works, Op. 1 to Op. 141, is now ready, and will be forwarded post-free (on application) to any part of the world.
London: ASHDOWN and PARRY, Hanover-square.

NEW DANCE MUSIC.

A SINGING QUADRILLE. By COTSFORD DICK. An ingenious and highly amusing quadrille, founded on nursery tunes, well but easily arranged, and ably illustrated. Likely to be very popular with young people in the forthcoming festive season.

L'ECLAIR. Galop. By COTSFORD DICK. A well-named and highly attractive dancing galop, not difficult to play. By J. PRIDHAM. "Quadrille on popular melody." By J. PRIDHAM. The melodies upon which this quadrille is founded are all of a character suited to its title; and we recommend the set as equally good for listening to and for dancing. Capably illustrated. 4s.—Vide The Queen, Lady's Newspaper. All the best of the season. Price 1s. 6d. per copy.
London: ROBERT COOK and Co.

PENNY READINGS.—POPULAR SONGS,

VOCAL DUETS, TRIOS, and QUARTETS (Part-Songs) selected from Messrs. Robert Cook and Co.'s Catalogue. This list may be had gratis and post-free on application to 6, New Burlington-street.

EASY MUSIC for SCHOOLS, Arranged and fingered for the Pianoforte.

Andre's Blossoms of Opera (25 numbers). 1s. each.
Smallwood's (Wm.) Little Buds (26 numbers). 1s. each.
Watson's (Michael) Little Fancies (25 numbers). Each 1s.
West's (G. F.) Rosebuds (15 favourite airs). 1s. each.
Bell's (Dewdrops) 25 popular themes. 1s. each.
Miller's Tunes for All Times (25 numbers). 1s. each.
G. F. West's Pupils' Daily Exercises. 4s.
All post-free at half price.
London: ROBERT COOK and Co., New Burlington-street.

POPULAR QUADRILLES for the Pianoforte, as Solos and Duets. 4s. each, post-free at half-price.

The United Service. F. Godfrey. A. Leduc.
The Osbornes. S. Glover. The Canary. B. Linter.
The Globe. S. Glover. The Goldfinch. B. Linter.
The Gipsy. S. Glover. The Garden Party. W. Small.
The Holiday. S. Glover. The Goodbye. S. Glover.
The True Friends. S. Glover. The Mollie. W. Smallwood.
The Fussey. A. Leduc.
London: ROBERT COOK and Co., New Burlington-street.

NEW WALTZ.—DER LETZTE KUSS

(The Last Kiss). By OTTO MULLER. Performed at the Promenade Concerts, Covent-Garden Theatre. This charming Waltz, by the Composer of the celebrated "Geliebte und Verloren" (Loved and Lost) Waltz, may be had of all Music-sellers. Solo or Duet, price 2s. net.—DUFF and STUART, 147, Oxford-st.

LOVED AND LOST (Geliebte und Verloren)

WALTZES. By OTTO MULLER (performed at the Promenade Concerts, Theatre Royal, Covent-Garden). These celebrated Waltzes may be had of all Music-sellers. Solo or Duet, 2s. net.—DUFF and STUART, 147, Oxford-st.

THE Popular Song, LOVED AND LOST.

The Words by Percy Fitzgerald, adapted to Muller's beautiful Waltz. "Geliebte und Verloren." Sold by every Music-seller in the United Kingdom. Post-free, 2s. net.—DUFF and STUART, 147, Oxford-st.

ONLY LOVE CAN TELL. Song. By

BERTHOLD TOURS. "Peculiarly fresh and charming, and will prove a great acquisition to sopranos and mezzo-sopranos."—Queen. This popular Song may be had of all Music-sellers. Post-free, 2s. net.—DUFF and STUART, 147, Oxford-st.

AIR DU DAUPHIN. Ancienne Danse de la Cour. By ROECKEL. For Piano Solo, Duet, Violin, Harmonium, Orchestra, Organ-Paraphrase, by W. T. Best. Each 15 stamps.—AUGENER and CO., 88, Newgate-street, E.C.

GAVOTTE DE LOUIS QUINZE. By

MAURICE LEE. Piano Solo, Duet, Violin, Orchestra, Organ Transcription, by F. E. Gladstone. 15 stamps each. AUGENER and CO., 88, Newgate-street, and Foubert's-place, W.

AUGENER and CO.'S UNIVERSAL

CIRCULATING MUSICAL LIBRARY is the largest in Europe. It contains 100,000 works. Annual Subscription, 5 guineas.—London: 81, Regent-street. Prospectuses gratis.

CHARLES HALLÉ'S PRACTICAL

PIANOFORTE SCHOOL. Second Edition. Tutor. FORTY-SEVEN, London and Manchester.

CHARLES HALLÉ'S NEW EDITION of POPULAR WORKS. For List of Pieces already published Catalogues will be forwarded, post-free, on application to FORTY-SEVEN, 27A, Regent-circus, Oxford-street, London; and Cross-street, South King-street, Manchester.

PIANOS for HIRE, 10s. per Month. Seven

Octaves. No hire charged if purchased at any time within the month. THOMAS OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street, London, W.

PIANOS, 17s. 6d. per Month, on the Three-

Years' System. Becomes the property of the hirer if the payments are kept up. Illustrated Catalogues, post-free, on application.—THOMAS OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street.

PIANO, $14. Seven-Octave PICCOLO

PIANOFORTE. Second-hand, in good condition, for ready money.—May be seen at 27, Baker-street, Portman-square.

MUSICAL-BOX DÉPÔT for NICOLE,

FRÈRES, celebrated Instruments. Boxes of exquisite tone, in rosewood cases, playing four airs, 4s. 4d. A choice assortment of Boxes, playing the most popular airs. Lists of tunes and prices gratis and post-free.—11 and 12, Cornhill, London.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.—PLATE-GLASS

MANUFACTORY to be SOLD. On FRIDAY, OCT. 13, at Half-past Ten a.m., there will be sold by Public Auction at AIX-LE-CHAPPELLE, at the instance of the Justice of the Peace, the extensive RHENISH PLATE-GLASS MANUFACTORY, situated at nine miles distant of Aix-le-Chapelle, in the districts of Herzogenrath and Merkscheid. This manufactory consists of several brick buildings with tiled roofs, and is lying in its own grounds of fourteen British acres. Its situation is very favorable, the chief materials, as sand, coals, sulphates, &c., being found at close proximity to the establishment, wherefrom the manufactured products are forwarded by rail to all countries. For further particulars apply to M. Theodore Theisen, Avocat, Rue St. Jacques 17, Aix-le-Chapelle.

AT PETER ROBINSON'S

WAREHOUSE FOR BLACK GOODS,

REGENT-STREET.

For TWO GUINEAS and up to FIVE.
CHOICE BLACK MATERIAL COSTUMES COMPLETE, in the New Style. (Princess Polonaise and Skirt). Patterns and Photos free.

URGENT MOURNING.

"ON RECEIPT OF LETTER

or TELEGRAM."
MOURNING GOODS will be forwarded to all parts of England, on application—no matter the distance—with an excellent fitting Dressmaker (if required), without extra charge.
PETER ROBINSON, 205, 206, 207, 208, Regent-street, London.

DEEP MOURNING ORDERS.

DRESSES, COATS, MANTLES, MILLINERY, and all made-up articles in the most appropriate and best styles, at the lowest possible cost. Dressmaking and Millinery, by clever and expert artists.

INEXPENSIVE MOURNING, as well as the Richest Qualities, can be supplied by PETER ROBINSON, upon the most advantageous terms, to Families. The Court and Family Mourning Warehouse, 205, 206, 207, 208, Regent-street, London.

BLACK SILKS.

PETER ROBINSON, of REGENT-STREET, has just completed some large Purchases from the Lyons Manufacture at great advantage, and can supply REALLY GOOD BLACK SILKS at 2s. 6d., 3s. 6d., 4s. 6d., 5s. 6d., 6s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 8s. 6d., 10s. 6d.

The EMPRESS BLACK SILK, at 2s. 6d. is specially recommended for good wear by the Manufacturer.

Also, DECOUVRE PURE BLACK SILK, which gives universal satisfaction, at 2s. 7s., and 8s. For Patterns, address PETER ROBINSON, REGENT-STREET, where the above can only be obtained.

BLACK SILK DRESS VELVETS.

Exceedingly good quality, at 7s. 6d., 8s. 6d., 9s. 6d., 10s. 6d., 11s. 6d.

A Special Bargain in Lyons Velvet, at 10s. 6d. Black Silk-Trimming Velvets, at 4s. 6d., 5s. 6d., 6s. 6d. At PETER ROBINSON, of REGENT-STREET, Nos. 205 to 208.

SUPERB NOVELTIES

at PETER ROBINSON'S, of REGENT-STREET. Just received, The New Silk Costumes, The New Material Costumes, The New Jacket and Mantles, The New Millinery, and other New Goods for the Autumn Season. Inspection invited.

A BLACK SILK COSTUME,

MADE OF RICH LYONS SILK, for 4s. and 5s.; formerly 6s. and 7s. for 7s.; formerly 8s. for 10s.; formerly 10s. for 12s. Perfectly new and trimmed by French Artists. Photographs and Patterns of the Silk free. Address—PETER ROBINSON, of REGENT-STREET, Nos. 205 to 208.

THE NEW CRAPE.

The Pure Silk Gordin Crap, for Widows and Families. Its advantages are—That it is made of Silk so pure that it will not crease when set upon, nor spot with rain. It is a richer black, free from dress and the gummed appearance so objectionable in other Crapes. The wear of every yard is guaranteed.

The Gordin Crap is a Specialty, and is to be obtained at PETER ROBINSON'S, of REGENT-STREET. THE MOURNING WAREHOUSE, Nos. 205 to 208. Excellent qualities at 4s. 6d., 5s. 6d., 6s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 8s. 6d. Patterns free.

FUR-LINED CLOAKS

at Summer Prices. Good quality Cloaks at 8s. 6d. and 9s. 6d.

SEMI-FITTING SEAL PALETOTS,

33 inches long, for 9s. 36 inches long, for 10s. At PETER ROBINSON'S, of REGENT-STREET.

NOTICE.—In reference to the above advertisements, it is important that letters should be clearly addressed to 205 to 208, REGENT-STREET.

SWAN and EDGAR beg to announce that they are now daily displaying in all departments, the absolute Novelties in LADIES' DRESSES for the approaching season. The prices marked will be found lower than any hitherto known for goods of such excellence. Special attention is called to a new stock of Black and Coloured SILKS, made for wear, at 3s. 11d., 4s. 11d., and 5s. 11d. A yard. An immense variety of Dress Materials in new textures, from 12s. 6d. a yard; patterns free. Selected Paris Styles in Costumes, Mantles, and Jackets for autumn wear. Designs and estimates on application. Piccadilly and Regent-street, London.

ROYAL ESTAMINE SERGES.—A Stock

of this beautiful warm material, in the new dark shades, now selling at 4s. 6d. per yard. Patterns free. JOHN HOOPER, 36, Oxford-street, W.

PRETTY FLOWERS.—Bridal, Bridesmaids,

and other Bouquets of the choicest flowers tastefully arranged, at very moderate prices. Wreaths and Crosses. Loose cut flowers forwarded to any part of London or to meet any train.—WILLIAM HOOPER, 36, Oxford-street, London, W.

JUDSON'S DYES.

Curtains, Tablecloths, Mantles, Scarves, Jackets, dyed in ten minutes in a pall of hot water. Twenty-four colours. Sixpence per Bottle, of Chemists and Stationers.

JUDSON'S DYES.—Willow Shavings,

Bone, Ivory, Feathers, Horsehair, Hemp, Jute, Horn completely dyed in ten minutes.

JUDSON'S DYES.—Silk, Wool, Feathers,

&c., are easily dyed without soiling the hands, in ten minutes. 6d. per Bottle, of Chemists and Stationers.

WRIGHT'S COAL-TAR SOAP

("SAPO CARBONIS DETERGENS"). Antiseptic, Detergent, Disinfectant. The most healthful, agreeable, and refreshing TOILET SOAP in the world. By its daily use, freedom from infectious diseases is secured; the complexion improved; pimples, blotches, and roughness removed; and the skin made clear, smooth, and lustrous.

"In our hands it has proved most effective in skin diseases."—The Lancet. "It is the only true antiseptic soap."—British Medical Journal. In Tablets, 6d. and 1s. each, of all Chemists. W. V. WRIGHT and CO., Southwark-street, London.

TAMAR INDIEN.—Owing to the marked success of this fruit-essence—so agreeable to take and universally prescribed by the Faculty, for constipation, headache, bile, hemorrhoids, &c.—Beware of imitations containing drastic irritants being foisted on the public. The genuine preparations bear the title "Tamar Indien." Price 2s. 6d. per Box.

SPECIAL NOTICE.—On MONDAY and

TUESDAY, OCT. 15 and 16, Messrs. OETZMANN and CO. will OFFER for SALE an immense Stock of FLANNELS, SHIRTS, and COLLARS, purchased for each during the recent depression, and which will be sold at much below their usual cost. Reduced Price-Lists will be sent post-free on application.—OETZMANN and CO., Complete House Furnishers, 67 to 79, HAMFSTEAD-ROAD, near Tottenham-court-road.

NOTICE.—CLEOPATRA TOILET

SERVICES.—Messrs. OETZMANN and CO. have COMPLETED ARRANGEMENTS at the York, affording GREATLY INCREASED FACILITIES for PRODUCING this SPECIALITY, and hope to keep pace with the demand, which they have hitherto been unable to do. Customers can now be supplied with any of the colours direct from Stock.—OETZMANN and CO., Complete House Furnishers, 67 to 79, HAMFSTEAD-ROAD. Descriptive Price-Lists post-free.

FURNISH THROUGHOUT.

OETZMANN & CO.,

67, 69, 71, 73, 77 & 79,

HAMPSTEAD-ROAD,

NEAR TOTTENHAM-COURT-ROAD.

FURNISH THROUGHOUT.

OETZMANN and CO., 67, 69, 71, 73, 77 and 79, Hampstead-road, near Tottenham-court-road. Cabinet Factory, Albion Works, Drummond-street. Bedding Factory, Eagle-place, London, N.W. Carpets, Furniture, Bedding, Drapery, Furnishings, Loomingery, China, Glass, Paper-Hangings, Pictures, Bronzes, Clocks, &c., and every other requisite for completely furnishing a house throughout.

THE IMMENSE RANGE OF PREMISES

formerly the EAGLE BREWERY having been REBUILT and ADDED to their SHOW-ROOMS, it is now one of the largest Furnishing Establishments in the world. Comparison of price and quality respectfully solicited before deciding elsewhere. OETZMANN and CO. are enabled to offer special advantages to Country Customers in delivery of Goods by their own large PAINTED VANS, and fixing in position by competent persons. Descriptive Catalogue, the best Furnishing Guide extant, post-free.—OETZMANN and CO.

DINING-ROOM SUITES.—OETZMANN

and CO.—Handsome Mahogany Dining-Room Suite, consisting of a Couch, Six Chairs, and two Easy-Chairs, well upholstered in best leather, price 20 guineas; superior ditto, in Oak or Spanish Mahogany, with handsome Lounges, Six Stuffed Back Chairs, and Two Easy-Chairs, upholstered in best leather and finished in a superior manner, price 28 guineas; handsome Early English and Medieval Dining-Room Suites in Oak, consisting of a large Divan Lounges, Six Chairs, and two noble Easy-Chairs, upholstered in best leather and finished in the best possible manner, price 35 guineas.—OETZMANN and CO.

THE SANDRINGHAM EASY-CHAIR,

full size, upholstered very soft and comfortable, suitable for any room, price 25s.; Lady's ditto, smaller size, 21s.; also the Sandringham Couch, upholstered very soft and comfortable, price 2 guineas. Everyone about to furnish should see these marvels of excellence and economy. Packed free and dispatched same day on receipt of order per post.

THE "NON-PAREIL" BED-ROOM

SUITE, complete, 64 guineas, superior to any hitherto produced at the price; is enamelled imitation of ambryna, satin-wood, or any other handsome woods; also enamelled in drab or white ground, decorated with fine lines, any colour. Ditto, but having a larger wardrobe, with silvered plate-glass in door, and a marble top to washstand, complete, 9 guineas. OETZMANN and CO.

ARTISTIC CANE WINDOW BLINDS

and SCREENS.—These fashionable Blinds can now be had from STOCK or MADE to ORDER in any size or design. Also Cane and Wicker Chairs, Ladies' Needlework Mounts, Flower Stands, &c., in colours or black and gold. Prices considerably below those usually charged for such goods. Illustrated Price-List post-free.—OETZMANN and CO.

CARPETS. FLOORCLOTH.

CARPETS. FLOORCLOTH.

CARPETS. FLOORCLOTH.

CARPETS. FLOORCLOTH.

ANGLO-TURKEY CARPETS.

OETZMANN and CO.—These superior Carpets, of which Messrs. OETZMANN and CO. have the exclusive sale, are of first-class Turkish manufacture, have all the style and appearance of real Turkish Carpets, at little more than the price of good Brussels, and are very durable. Price-List post-free on application. For the convenience of those residing at a distance, a large piece, showing the Border and Centre of Carpet, sent on receipt of 6s., which will be deducted from price of Carpet or returned upon return of pattern. Hearthrugs to match, 6s. long by 2 ft. 3 in. wide, 4s. 6d. OETZMANN and CO.

CARPET DEPARTMENT.—A quantity of ready-made Carpets will be cleared out at a bargain. Quotations forwarded per post upon receiving size and description required. Large-size Hearthrugs, 4s. 6d. each; super ditto, 8s. 11d.; Axminster ditto, 12s. 6d.; Best Axminster ditto, 16s. 6d.; price 21s. 6d. Floorcloth, at 6d. per yard. Patent Linoleum Floorcloth and Staircloth, from 10d. per yard. Hemp Dutch Carpet, yard wide, 8d. per yard; Large Kitchen Hearthrug, 3s. 6d.; Sheepskin Hearthrugs, from 15s. 6d. upwards; ditto Mats, from 2s.—OETZMANN and CO.

DOWN QUILTS.—OETZMANN and CO.'S

EDGED and ARCTIC DOWN QUILTS and CLOTHING combined, the greatest amount of warmth obtainable with the least possible weight, and are of the very best quality. Price-List post-free.—OETZMANN and CO.

CURTAIN DEPARTMENT.—Handsome

Damask and Rep Curtains, from 25s. per pair, the largest, cheapest, and best assortment in London; Grosgrain ditto, from 15s. per pair; Madrid striped ditto, all wool, 15s. per pair; Mullin and Lace Curtains, elegant designs, 3 yards long by 40 and 50 inches wide, 4s. 6d. per pair; worth 6s. 6d. per pair; with the all the long by 52 to 64 inches wide, 10s. 6d., worth 15s. 6d.; magnificent Guipure Lace Curtains, 4 yards long by 60 inches wide, 15s. 6d. per pair.—OETZMANN and CO.

FURNISHING IRONMONGERY

DEPARTMENT.—Strong Branded Fenders, from 1s. 6d. each; super ditto, 3s. 6d.; handsome Drawings, from 1s. 6d. each; top, 1s. 6d.; ditto, with polished steel mouldings, new design, from 12s. 6d. to 5 guineas; fire-irons, from 1s. 6d. per set; handsome ditto, 4s. 6d.; burnished steel ditto, from 7s. 6d. to 5 guineas; bar set; Japanese Oval Tea Trays, from 11s. 6d. per set of three, 1s. 2d. and 3d. each; handsome ditto, clasped pattern, gilt and enamelled, 7s. 6d. per set; elegant ditto, from 12s. 6d. to 5 guineas per set.—OETZMANN and CO.

CLEOPATRA TOILET SERVICE.

OETZMANN and CO.'S New Special Design, a beautiful Grecian shape, meets the great desideratum of art-manufactures—viz., the shape best adapted for the use required, combined with the most artistic design and decoration. Prices from 10s. 6d. per set. Descriptive Price-List post-free.

WEDDING PRESENTS.—USEFUL and ARTISTIC.—Intending Purchasers should inspect OETZMANN and CO.'S VAST DISPLAY of ELEGANT VASES, Lustres, Figures, Clocks, Bronzes, Pictures, Cut-Glass Decanters, Wines, Tumbler, &c.; Electro-Silver Plate and Table Cutlery, best quality, at lowest possible prices. Descriptive Catalogue post-free. Country orders taken from the Catalogue receive prompt and careful attention.

OETZMANN and CO., COMPLETE

HOUSE FURNISHERS, 67, 69, 71, 73, 77 and 79, Hampstead-road (three minutes' walk from Tottenham-court-road and Gower-street Station, Metropolitan Railway). Lowest prices consistent with guaranteed quality. Orders per post, large or small, receive prompt and faithful attention in the selection. Close at seven, and on Saturdays at Four o'clock. Descriptive Catalogue post-free.—OETZMANN and CO.

DESCRIPTIVE CATALOGUE,

THE BEST FURNISHING GUIDE

EXTANT.

POST-FREE.

OETZMANN & CO.,

HAMPSTEAD-ROAD.

"In point of fact, the mass of the London Water is drawn from sources which are contaminated by the most offensive of all impurities."—Times Leading Article, Monday, Aug. 13, 1877.

A POLLINARIS WATER.

"THE QUEEN OF TABLE WATERS." London Medical Record.

"The history of human sickness induced by water pollution, if it could be fully written, would be a very horrible and startling record."—Times Leading Article, Aug. 17, 1877.

A POLLINARIS WATER.

An eminent physician says:—"He who drinks Apollinaris will never be troubled with gout, rheumatism, or indigestion."—Morning Post.

"It is now demonstrated, beyond possibility of doubt, that the water supplied by the existing London companies is uniformly impure, and that, notwithstanding the exorbitant rates at which it is delivered, the quantity furnished is insufficient to meet the general wants of the community. The Thames and the Lea, at present the principal sources of supply, are well known to be extensively polluted with organic impurities from the sewage of towns and hamlets contiguous to their banks; and, although some improvement has been effected in this respect by the removal of the 'intakes' of the companies to greater distances from the metropolis, and by the adoption of more efficient methods of filtration, there is still ground for complaint that the quality of the water derived from the rivers mentioned is unfit for drinking and culinary purposes."—Daily Telegraph, Aug. 20, 1877.

A POLLINARIS WATER.

"Free from any organic or inorganic impurity."—Professor A. WAKLEY, Public Analyst, County of Buckingham.

"Again, London is wretchedly supplied with potable water. The statistics on this point are decisive, but the citizens of the capital do not need the evidence of statistics. They have much more direct proof of the nature and extent of the evil. All the world knows that unless London water is carefully filtered it cannot be safely consumed. It contains an alarming amount of organic

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS

REGISTERED AT THE GENERAL POST-OFFICE FOR TRANSMISSION ABROAD.

No. 1996.—VOL. LXXI.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1877.

WITH TWO SUPPLEMENTS } SIXPENCE.
By Post, 6^d.

Arrival of a Despatch on the Battle-Field.

Incident at the Battle of Kaceljevo: Saving a Brother's Life.

Meeting of Achmed Eyoub and Nedjib Pasha after the Battle of Kaceljevo.

Interrogating a Wounded Russian after the Battle of Kaceljevo.

WAR SKETCHES, BY ONE OF OUR SPECIAL ARTISTS.

BIRTHS.

On the 29th ult., at 7, Tivoli-terrace, Kingstown, Dublin, the wife of T. W. McLaughlin, Esq., of Valparaiso, Chile, of a son.
On Aug. 31, at Cuddalore, Madras Presidency, the wife of Octavius Butler Irvine, Madras Civil Service, of a daughter.
On the 4th inst., at Petworth, Lady Leonfield, of a son.
On the 9th inst., at Parndon Lodge, Harlow, Essex, the wife of Captain Bombulow Pearce, of a daughter.

MARRIAGES.

On the 10th inst., at West Derby parish church, by the Rev. Frederic Harke, Vicar of St. Stephen's, Canonbury, assisted by the Rev. Canon Stewart, Rector of the parish, Ellis Mather, Esq., of Finch House, West Derby, to Blanche, eldest daughter of Peter George Heyworth, Esq., of Yewtree, near Liverpool.

On the 8th inst., at the Pro-Cathedral, Kensington, by the Rev. Father Foley, assisted by the Rev. Fathers Palmer and Moore, J. W. O'Keefe, Esq., of Calcutta, to the Countess Mary (Minnie) Elizabeth, eldest daughter of Colonel Count Rivarola, late 67th Regiment, and granddaughter of the late General Count Sir Francis Rivarola, K.H.K., C.M.G., G.C.M.L., &c.

DEATHS.

On the 2nd inst., at Bayford Grange, Herts, Dame Charlotte Polo, relict of Sir William Templer Pole, of Shute House, Devon, and niece of the late John Farquhar, of Fonthill Abbey, Wilts, aged 91.
On the 29th ult., suddenly, at Weston-super-Mare, Lady Steele-Graves, of Mickleton Manor, Gloucestershire, in the 61st year of her age.

* The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, or Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING OCT. 20.

SUNDAY, Oct. 14.
Twentieth Sunday after Trinity. Moon's first quarter, 3.45 a.m. St. Paul's Cathedral, 10.30 a.m., Rev. Prebendary Kynaston; 3.15 p.m., Bishop, Claugton; 7 p.m., Rev. Prebendary Clarke, Vicar of St. Mary's, Taunton. Whitwell, closed. Savoy, closed.	Westminster Abbey, 10 a.m., Rev. Canon Farrar; 3 p.m., Rev. Canon Duckworth. St. James's, noon, Rev. Canon Duckworth. Temple Church, 11 a.m., Rev. Dr. Edersheim; 3 p.m., Rev. Alfred Ainger, the Reader.
MONDAY, Oct. 15.
Prince Alfred of Edinburgh born, 1874. Medical Society, 8.30 p.m.	Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, quarterly court, Freemasons' Hall, noon.
TUESDAY, Oct. 16.
Humane Society, committee, 4 p.m. Pathological Society, 8.30 p.m. Gresham Lectures, 6 p.m. (Dean Cowie on Geometry); and three following days.	Alexandra Palace Annual Poultry and Pigeon Show (three days). Races: Coventry, Croydon, Newcastle, Curragh.
WEDNESDAY, Oct. 17.
The Duchess of Edinburgh born, 1853. Fox-hunting begins.	Cryptogamic Society of Scotland, 10 a.m., annual conference, at Dundee (three days).
THURSDAY, Oct. 18.
St. Luke the Evangelist. Numismatic Society, 7 p.m.	Quebec Institute, 8 p.m. (Mr. C. J. Plumptre on Education).
FRIDAY, Oct. 19.
Society for the Propagation of the Gospel, 2 p.m.	Medical Microscopical Society, 8 p.m. Races: Northallerton.
SATURDAY, Oct. 20.
London Athletic Club, Stamford Bridge. Thames Sailing Club.	Royal General Theatrical Fund: morning performance at the Lyric Theatre.

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE NEW OBSERVATORY OF THE ROYAL SOCIETY.
Lat. 51° 28' 0" N.; Long. 0° 19' 47" W.; Height above Sea, 34 feet.

DAY.	DAILY MEANS OF				THERMOM.		WIND.
	Barometer Corrected.	Temperature of the Air.	Dew Point.	Relative Humidity.	Amount of Cloud.	Maximum, read at 10 p.m.	Minimum, read at 10 a.m.	General Direction.	Movement in 24 hours.	Rain in 24 hours, in inches.
Oct. 13.	30.083	45.2	39.3	82	2	57.9	33.5	N.W. N.E.	5.7	0.00
14.	30.191	44.8	41.4	88	6	59.2	32.7	N.E. E.	6.1	0.00
15.	30.450	47.5	42.1	83	3	60.9	36.7	E.	1.68	0.00
16.	30.598	47.0	40.0	78	2	59.3	37.6	E. N.E. N.W.	1.00	0.00
17.	30.385	45.2	44.3	97	1	55.1	35.9	N.W. N.W.	1.17	0.05
18.	30.150	48.1	37.0	68	7	54.0	43.8	N.W. N.	3.53	0.00
19.	30.284	45.5	36.6	78	5	53.8	39.9	N. N.W.	2.01	0.00

* Dew.

The following are the readings of the meteorological instruments for the above days, in order, at ten o'clock a.m.:-

Barometer (in inches) corrected	29.987	30.126	30.426	30.636	30.505	30.137	30.293
Temperature of Air	44.0	44.0	44.0	45.4	41.0	37.7	40.0
Temperature of Evaporation	43.0	43.0	43.0	42.0	41.4	47.0	44.0
Direction of Wind	N.W.	N.E.	E.	N.E.	N.W.	N.W.	N.W.

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE FOR THE WEEK ENDING OCT. 20.

Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m
2 30	2 40	2 51	3 03	3 15	3 27	3 40

ALBERT MEMORIAL COLLEGE, Framlingham, Suffolk.

The Public DISTRIBUTION OF PRIZES for the year 1877 will be made by the Hon. and Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of Norwich on THURSDAY, the 18th inst., in the COLLEGE DINING-HALL, at 12 o'clock. The Distribution of Prizes will be followed by the usual Concert by the College Choir at 4.30. All application for Tickets should be made without delay to the Head Master.

SMART'S WRITING INSTITUTION, 97b, Quadrant, Regent-street (entrance in Swallow-street). Open from Ten till Nine Daily. Persons of all ages received (privately), and taught at any time sitting, writing, and penmanship. Lessons one hour each. No classes. No extras. Improvement guaranteed in eight to twelve easy lessons. Separate rooms for Ladies.—Apply to Mr. Smart as above.

EXHIBITION GALLERY.—To Artists, Exhibitors, and others.—A well-frequented gallery, in the best position in London, the light perfect, AVAILABLE for a short period, on Moderate Terms, with competent assistance, and every facility for advantageously Exhibiting and Selling, or for subscribing and Publishing. Only Artists of recognised reputation, or their representatives, treated with.—Address, E. G., Messrs. Street Brothers, 5, Serle-street, W.C.

DORÉ'S GREAT WORKS, "THE BRAZEN SERPENT," "CHRIST LEAVING THE PRÆTORIUM," and "CHRIST ENTERING THE TEMPLE," each 35s. ft., with "Dream of Plato's Wife," Christian Martyrs, &c., at the DORE GALLERY, 33, New Bond-street, W. Daily, 10 to 6. 1s.

MASKELYNE and COOKE. Daily at Three and Eight o'clock. EGYPTIAN HALL, Piccadilly. Fifth year in London. The present programme embraces Psycho and Zee, the twin dramatic mysteries; the sensational scene, in exposure of so-called Spiritualism, in which Mr. Cooke floats about the room taking the cabinet with him—the most astounding feat ever accomplished; and many other illusory items of novel and original character. Such is the success of the entertainment that it is advisable to book seats in advance, for which there is no charge. Admission, 2s., 1s., 6d., 3d., 2d., 1d.

ST. JAMES'S HALL, PICCADILLY.

THE MOORE and BURGESS MINSTRELS will introduce an ENTIRELY NEW PROGRAMME. The whole of the songs contained in the first or musical portion of the Entertainment will be changed. New Dances, New Whimsicalities, and New Burlesque Sketches. The New Programme will be given EVERY NIGHT at EIGHT, and on MONDAYS, WEDNESDAYS, and SATURDAYS, at THREE and EIGHT.
Furniture, &c.: Sofa Stalls, 3s.; Area, 2s.; Gallery, 1s. Doors Open at 2.30 for the Day Performance; at 7.30 for the Evening Performance. No fees. Ladies can retain their bonnets in all parts of the Hall.

MR. and Mrs. GERMAN REED'S ENTERTAINMENT, A HAPPY BUNGALOW, AT THE SEA-SIDE, by Mr. Corney Grain; and No. 204. Morning Performances every Thursday and Saturday. Admission, 1s., 2s., 3s., 4s.—ST. GEORGE'S HALL, Langham-place.

Will be published on the 16th inst.,

PRICE ONE SHILLING (FREE BY POST 1s. 2d.),

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK

FOR 1878,

CONTAINING

SIX COLOURED PICTURES.

PRINTED BY LEIGHTON BROTHERS' CHROMATIC PROCESS.

TWELVE ILLUSTRATIONS OF THE WAR, FINE ART, &c.

TWELVE ENGRAVINGS AS HEADINGS TO THE CALENDAR.

ASTRONOMICAL DIAGRAM OF REMARKABLE PHENOMENA,

WITH EXPLANATORY NOTES.

The Royal Family of Great Britain; the Queen's Household; her Majesty's Ministers; Lists of Government Offices and Officers; Bank of England and London and Westminster Bankers; Law and University Terms; Fixed and Movable Festivals; Anniversaries; Acts of Parliament passed during the Session of 1877; Obituary of Eminent Persons; Christian, Jewish, and Mohammedan Calendars; Tables of Stamps, Taxes, and Government Duties; Times of High Water at London and Liverpool; Postal Regulations; Remarkable Occurrences, &c., 1877-78; Eclipses in the Year 1878; together with an amount of useful and valuable information, which has during the past thirty-two years made the ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK an acceptable and elegant companion to the library or drawing-room table.

The unprecedented demand for the ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK year after year stimulates the Proprietor to still greater exertions to secure for this Almanack a reception as favourable as that which has hitherto placed its circulation second only to that of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

The ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK is inclosed in an elegant cover, printed in Colours by the same process as the SIX COLOURED PLATES, and forms a charming and pleasing ornament to the drawing-room table.

The SHILLING ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK is published at the Office of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS, 198, Strand, and sold by all Booksellers and Newsagents.

Now ready,

THE ILLUSTRATED PENNY ALMANACK FOR 1878.

containing Twenty-Four Engravings from the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS—viz., Gates of Constantinople, Forts on the Bosphorus and the Black Sea, Old Modes of Locomotion, &c.; Tables of Stamps, Taxes, and Licenses; Eclipses, Remarkable Events, Post-Office Regulations, and a great variety of useful and interesting information. The Trade supplied by G. VICKERS, Angel-court (177), Strand; and H. WILLIAMS, Warwick-lane, Paternoster-row, London.

THEATRE ROYAL, DRURY LANE.—Sole Lessee and

Manager, F. B. Chatterton.—On MONDAY and during the Week, at Seven, SARAH'S YOUNG MAN; at Eight, ENGLAND IN THE TIME OF CHARLES II.—Messrs. S. Amery, J. Fernandez, W. Tertius, E. P. Edgar, Funnington, A. Glover, H. Colliard, &c. Messrs. Leighton, Gertrude Dor, A. Murray, D'Arcy, and Willis. At 10.15, THE CONSCRIPTION.—Messrs. C. Lanni and F. Sims, Miss Kate Hamilton, &c. Prices from 6d. to 25s. Box-Office open from Ten till Five Daily.

THE MOONSTONE, by Wilkie Collins, at 8.30. A New Drama, altered from the Novel. EVERY EVENING. Box-Office open daily from Eleven to Six. No booking fees.—OLYMPIC THEATRE.

MORNING PERFORMANCE OF THE MOONSTONE, by Special Request, on SATURDAY, OCT. 27, at 2.30. Box plan now open. ROYAL OLYMPIC THEATRE.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

LONDON: SATURDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1877.

The political contest in France—one, perhaps, of the most significant in regard to both her domestic and foreign policy that has occurred for the last half-century—will begin, and to all substantial ends will come to a close, to-morrow. The world will then know what is the present mind and will of France as to the basis upon which she desires to rest her civil institutions and her policy. Once already, and that not long since, the people of that country spoke with rare decision. By a large majority they elected to remain under a Republican form of Government, to be administered by Executive Officers loyally accepting the fiat of the Nation. Dissatisfied political parties, constituting a minority formidable for their social influence rather than for their numbers, persuaded the President of the Republic that the last Parliamentary Election was the result of a popular misapprehension; that the Chamber of Deputies was more radically disposed than were its constituents; that another trial would be followed by quite another verdict; and that for the sake of the safety, progress, and social order of France it was indispensable that Marshal MacMahon should demand the resignation of his Cabinet, should dissolve the Chamber which had supported it, and should once more appeal to universal suffrage to judge between the minority under his own patronage and the majority whom a moderate and conciliatory temper had followed the lead of his Ministers. Unfortunately, the soldier-statesman listened but too eagerly to their suggestions. On May 16 he announced his purpose, which the French people heard with as much astonishment as if they had seen a thunderbolt fall amongst them from a clear azure sky. For at that moment everything was going on calmly and prosperously. Trade and commerce, industry and National Finance, exhibited a smiling aspect. There was nothing to excite the alarm even of the most timid—no political cabals (at least, outside the Parliamentary arena), no secret or dangerous conspiracies, no popular clamours tending to subvert public authority, no serious difficulties to embarrass a peaceful foreign policy. It was not merely a day of hope, but a day of the partial realisation of hope; and it is probable that if the people of any other State of Europe had been called upon to point out the brightest instance among nations of the general success of self-government, France would have been named.

The abrupt disturbance of this tranquillity came from above. It came from men who seem to fear that the Republic was justifying its own being and was rapidly tending towards its own permanent establishment. It secured the co-operation of the Executive Power, and it presented to the world the strange spectacle of an Administrative revolt against the authority of the Nation, represented by the recently-elected House of the Legislature. It was uncalled for, unless intended to satisfy party and, we fear we must add, factious purposes. But, after all, it professed to be a frank appeal to the judgment of the French people. All subsequent events have proved that it was not what it professed to be. Its abruptness, the instant prorogation of Parliament, the postponement of a new general election to the extremest period which the law will sanction, the wholesale change of prefects, sub-prefects, and minor executive officers, the closing of obnoxious municipal bodies, the prosecution of no end of Liberal journals, the misapplication of colportage regulations, the establishment of a vast system of political espionage, and a large variety of repressive arrangements, clearly intended to gag the free expression of opinion and to intimidate electors, especially those of rural constituencies, into acquiescence with the views of the President Marshal and his Ministers, lead almost irresistibly to the conclusion that, if possible, whether by fair means or by foul, France shall be made to declare her distrust of Republican institutions and her confidence in the loyalty and wisdom of President MacMahon and of the De Broglie Cabinet. As far as foreigners are concerned, there needs not the eloquence of M. Gambetta to place in its true light the question which the constituencies of France will have to determine to-morrow; nor, we apprehend, is there much danger that in France itself the real point submitted for judgment will be overlooked or misunderstood.

The broad issue to be determined by the result of the morrow's Elections may be thus stated. The choice will be between Personal and Parliamentary Government. Whence is national authority to be derived—from an official or from the people who placed him in office? In what spirit is it to be exercised—to gratify the demands of a few men occupying a prominent station, or to subserve the common interests of the people defined and interpreted by themselves? Who is to be supreme—the self-constituted "saviours of society," or the community which they undertake to save? With what voice is law to speak to Frenchmen—that of the Nation, or that of the man or men whom the Nation has chosen to give effect to its will? This is the grand question to be decided by the Elections just about to come off. But it is not on any mere abstract question that judgment will be solicited, or the answer will be given to it. It is a question with which many and far-reaching practical consequences are intertwined. It is one of eventual peace or war. It is one involving religious liberty in all its most important phases. It is one intimately associated with the development of commercial enterprise, with the remunerative employment of industry, with the quiet progress of education under liberal auspices, and with the steady elevation or degradation of the French people as a civilised community. The stake to be played for is in value enormous—quite incalculable. And it depends very much upon how, by whom, and when, it is won, whether the position of France in Europe shall be peacefully maintained, or whether, being plunged into political confusion, she be doomed to encounter another half-century of ruinous and depressive disquietude.

It would be foolish to prophesy what will be the end of the pending electoral contest. On the one hand, the agents of the Government are taking all the means within their reach to obtain a National verdict adverse to the Republic; and, on the other, M. Gambetta makes the confident announcement that not only will the 363 Republican Members of the last Chamber be re-elected, but others will be sent to join them who will bring up their number to 400. This only will we remark. The "Radicals," as they are called, but who in reality would be classed by English politicians among ultra-Conservatives—should they succeed, as M. Gambetta gives out that they will, will have thoroughly deserved their success. Their patience under incessant provocation, their marvellous forbearance, their self-restraint, their calm but determined resolution uninterruptedly exercised for five months, have supplied ample evidence that the French people are quite as capable of self-government by means of Parliamentary Institutions as any people that can be named. We hope they will not be tried beyond their strength; that their decision, whatever it may be, legitimately deposited in the Ballot Urns, will be accepted by the President of the Republic; and that no illegal attempts will be made to substitute for the will of France, by a coup d'état, that of a minority practically opposed to it. The crisis is one of the gravest that can be imagined, and it ought to be morally impossible to postpone the solution of it beyond the General Election, or by any means to over-rule the popular voice legally expressed.

The Times states that Mr. Gladstone's intended visit to Ireland will be of a purely personal and private character.

Captain G. H. Parkin has been appointed Superintendent of Pembroke Dockyard, vice Hamilton, promoted.

Dr. Erasmus Wilson, who has provided the funds for bringing Cleopatra's Needle to England, has written to express a hope that the obelisk will be placed in Parliament-square.

The Marquis of Ripon spoke on Wednesday at the annual meeting of the Yorkshire Penny Bank, held at Sheffield, and warmly commended the practice of thrift by the working classes.

Mr. Walter, M.P., presided at a conference held at Reading on Monday in connection with the Church of England Temperance Society, to consider "The national intemperance, and the best means of checking it."

THE COURT.

The Queen entertained at dinner at Balmoral Castle on Wednesday week the Prince and Princess of Wales, the Marchioness Dowager of Ely, the Countess of Erroll, and the Lord Chancellor. The Hon. Lady Biddulph, Sir Allen Young, Colonel Teesdale, Mr. F. Knollys, the Rev. Mr. Dalton, and Dr. Proffit dined with the household, who were invited to join the Royal circle, with the other ladies and gentlemen, in the evening. The Right Hon. R. A. Cross and General Viscount Bridport left the castle. His Excellency the American Minister and Mrs. Pierpont came from Aberdeen the next day and lunched with the household, after which they were received by her Majesty. The Lord Chancellor left for London to attend a Cabinet Council. The Very Rev. Principal Tulloch arrived at the castle on Saturday last and, with the Lord Chancellor, dined with the Queen. Her Majesty and the members of the Royal family attended Divine service on Sunday at Crathie church. The Rev. Principal Tulloch officiated. Principal Tulloch dined with the Queen. Sir Thomas and the Hon. Lady Biddulph dined with her Majesty on Monday. The Queen has paid frequent visits to the Prince and Princess of Wales at Abergeldie, and, accompanied by Princess Beatrice, has made various excursions to the Lion's Fair and other picturesque localities. The Lord Chancellor has dined generally with her Majesty. Prince Leopold has dined with the Prince and Princess of Wales at Abergeldie.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

The Prince of Wales, with Princes Albert Victor and George of Wales, attended Divine service on Sunday at Crathie church. The Prince has enjoyed excellent sport in the Dean Forest. Yesterday week he killed six prime stags, and on Saturday last four fell to his gun, two falling to right and left barrels. There was to have been a stag-dance in the evening in front of Abergeldie Castle, but owing to the illness of Miss Knollys, who is suffering from typhoid fever, it was postponed by command of his Royal Highness. Dr. Clayton is at the castle in attendance upon Miss Knollys. The Princess of Wales has driven out with the Queen.

Prince Albert Victor and Prince George of Wales are expected to take their places on board the Britannia at Dartmouth next week. They are in No. 1 class (the lowest), and belong to the starboard watch. With the exception of having separate apartments, the Princes will be treated in every way like the other cadets.

Prince and Princess Christian of Schleswig-Holstein have been the guests of Earl and Countess Dudley at Black Mount, Scotland.

The Duke of Connaught arrived at Rossmore Castle, Monaghan, last week, on a visit to the Earl of Rossmore, after visiting the Earl of Breadalbane at Taymouth Castle. His Royal Highness travelled by the Glasgow mail-steamer Flame to Belfast, and proceeded thence by the ordinary nine a.m. train to Monaghan. Yesterday week the Duke inaugurated a drinking-fountain at Monaghan, which had been erected as a memorial of the late Lord Rossmore. The Duke has since been confined for a day or two to his room, in consequence of slight indisposition.

His Excellency Count Beust returned on Saturday last to the Austrian Embassy, to resume his diplomatic duties.

His Excellency the Danish Minister and Madame de Bülow have returned to town.

His Excellency the American Minister and Mrs. Pierpont have been the guests of the Earl and Countess of Strathmore at Glamis Castle.

General Meredith Read, American Minister at the Court of Athens, went out cub-hunting on Saturday last with Sir Watkin Williams Wynn. The meet was at Carden, and two foxes were killed and two run to earth. General Meredith Read left Wynnstown on Monday for Trentham, on a visit to the Duke of Sutherland.

METROPOLITAN NEWS.

The Masters of the City Guilds were entertained at dinner at the Mansion House on Wednesday by the Lord Mayor.

The School of Art, Science, and Literature for Ladies was opened at the Alexandra Palace on Monday.

The Thames overflowed its southern bank from Blackfriars Bridge to Westminster Bridge on Monday. Many houses were flooded, and traffic was in places suspended.

A further upward movement was made in the Bank rate on Thursday—namely, from 4 per cent, at which it was placed on the 4th inst., to 5 per cent.

About 5000 butchers and their relatives were present at an entertainment given to them by the Butchers' Trade Committee on Tuesday evening in the Metropolitan Tabernacle, Newington. The Rev. J. A. Spurgeon presided.

The gelada monkey, known to naturalists only from the description of Dr. Edward Rüppell, who travelled in Abyssinia and published a book in 1835, is now to be seen alive in England. Some specimens are at the Alexandra Palace.

We learn from the City Press that Mr. Henry Nicholson, Inspector and Surveyor of the Inland Revenue Department, Somerset House, has been elected Clerk to the Commissioners of Income Tax for the City, in place of Mr. Senior, deceased.

Sir Charles Reed, chairman of the London School Board presided last Monday evening over the public opening of a new school in Westcott-street, Southwark, with accommodation for 818 children. The cost of the building and site amounts to £14,060.

At a recent meeting of the Metropolitan Board of Works, Mr. Leslie moved a resolution in favour of that body considering the desirability of obtaining a supply of sea-water for fire-brigade purposes, for baths, and for watering the streets of London. After some discussion, this proposal was negatived by twenty-three votes to three.

The Lord Mayor distributed the prizes on Monday evening to the successful students in the educational classes of the Young Men's Christian Association, Aldersgate-street. The French prize was awarded to Mr. Dodd; German, to Mr. Tregaskis; English history, to Mr. C. W. Rowlandson; Latin, to Mr. J. Cameron; singing, to Mr. S. Williams; and Scripture knowledge, to Mr. Rebenlisch. A selection of music was given by the members of the singing class.

The weekly return of metropolitan pauperism shows that the total number of paupers at the end of the first week of October was 77,169, of whom 36,972 were in workhouses, and 40,197 received outdoor relief. Compared with the corresponding weeks in the years 1876, 1875, and 1874, these figures show a decrease of 1135, 4296, and 14,022 respectively. The number of vagrants relieved on the last day of the week was 816, of whom 528 were men, 225 women, and 63 children.

The Marylebone Vestry has authorised their surveyor to take steps for planting 176 plane-trees in Hamilton-terrace, St. John's-wood, towards the cost of which the inhabitants have raised £240. It is said that in two or three years' time this will be one of the finest avenues in London.—An application from Mrs. Whitton, of Well's-road, Regent's Park North, asking permission to plant lime-trees in Well's-road at her own expense, was granted.

A second public meeting was held on Tuesday at the Cannon-street Hotel, at which a petition praying for a commutation of the sentence upon the Penge prisoners, on the ground that the verdict was not supported by the evidence, was adopted. The meeting was largely attended.—Mr. J. Scarlett Campbell, a Judge of Appeal in India, taking the chair. Among the speakers were Mr. Sheridan, M.P., Dr. Forbes Winslow, and Dr. Bristowe.—The newspaper controversy upon the verdict continues with unabated vigour.

The Lord Mayor presided on Tuesday over a meeting of the committee appointed in February last to consider the position and prospects of the Crystal Palace. The report of the committee, which was adopted, expressed the opinion that the company possessed a most valuable property, and, while its educational and public advantages are great, with the Parliamentary powers now obtained, under able and judicious management, an amount of public usefulness far surpassing anything hitherto realised is still before the company.

At Wednesday's weekly meeting of the School Board for London—Sir Charles Reed presiding—the scheme of the school management committee for the instruction of pupil teachers and candidates at centres underwent another discussion, and the further consideration of the question was again adjourned. The vacancy in the representation of Westminster, caused by the death of Mr. Danby Seymour, was declared, and it was arranged to hold a special meeting for the election of a person to fill the vacancy on the 24th instant.

Dr. Frankland reports, as the result of his analysis of the waters supplied to the Metropolis and some of its suburbs during September, that the Thames waters furnished by the Chelsea, West Middlesex, Southwark, Grand Junction, and Lambeth Companies showed much greater pollution with organic matter than in July or August. The Grand Junction Company's water was turbid, from inefficient filtration. The proportion of organic impurity showed a marked excess in the Lambeth and Southwark Companies' waters. The Lea waters supplied by the New River and East London Companies were of superior quality, and had been efficiently filtered. The Kent and Colne Valley Companies and the Tottenham Local Board delivered deep well-water of excellent quality.

The repairs and improvement committee of Westminster Hospital have recently received the following contributions to their responsible undertaking, which is now nearly completed:—£210 from the Corporation of the city of London; a special legacy of £1000 from the residuary estate of the late Mr. James Graham, of 11, Cornwall-terrace, Regent's Park; and £500 from "A Friend of the Hospital." Upwards of one half the amount required has now been subscribed.—The North-Eastern Hospital for Children, Hackney-road, has received £1000 from the executors of the late Mr. James Graham. The executors state that the first distribution of the residue of his personal estate, amounting to £100,000, has been made to the various schools, hospitals, &c., selected by them in accordance with the provisions of his will.

A match was fired at Rainham on the 2nd inst., for the Inland Revenue Challenge Cup, between C company London Scottish and H company London Rifle Brigade (the holders), and resulted in favour of the latter by sixty-one points.—The Challenge Cup of the K Company, London Rifle Brigade, was competed for at Rainham on the 4th inst., when Sergeant Kitchingman was successful.—The annual prizes, given by the officers and gentlemen to the British Museum Rifle Association, were competed for at the South London Rifle Range, Nunhead, on Saturday last. The following were the principal winners:—Private Woolford, Silver Cup; Private Woolford, Champion Badge. Money prizes: Messrs. Woolford, Baxter, Clay, Waghorn, English, Mooney, Jeffrey, Tatnall, Harvey, Calver, Arlett, Baynes, Anderson, Lake, Paul, and Saunders.

The Coroner's inquiry into the death of Frederick John Chalkley, which occurred at the House of Detention (where the deceased was placed on the charge of having been concerned in the outrage and burglary at the house of Mr. Braham, in City-road, on the night of Sept. 8), was brought to a close on Friday, the 5th inst. The jury, after three-quarters of an hour's consideration, returned a verdict of "Accidental death," and said that Detective Allingham was much to blame in moving the deceased against the wishes of the hospital authorities, and that in future written authority should be obtained before the removal of any person charged with crime. The jury added an expression of opinion that the deceased was in no way connected with the burglary, and said they hoped the Treasury would give something towards the expense which his mother, a widow, had been put to. Mr. Braham said he would give the widow £10.

The address to the members of the Birkbeck Literary and Scientific Institution, upon the occasion of the opening of its fifty-fifth session, was given on Wednesday evening by Dr. W. B. Richardson, F.R.S., the subject selected being the Culture and Pursuit of a Literary Life.—The annual meeting of the College for Men and Women, Queen-square, Bloomsbury, was held there last Monday evening. Mr. Kegan Paul gave the opening address, and the other speakers were Mrs. William Grey, with the following teachers of the college—Professor Amos, Mr. Nesbitt, the Miss Drewrys, Professor Seeley, Mr. R. S. Poole, and others. The value of mixed education, of simple pass examinations, and the absence of prizes was strongly urged, and the special objects of the different classes explained. The annual report, read by Mrs. Malleon, the hon. sec., spoke hopefully of the state of the college, and drew attention to the lectures and discussions held on Saturdays.

There were 2420 births and 1308 deaths registered in London last week. Allowing for increase of population, the births exceeded by 75, whereas the deaths were 66 below, the average numbers in the corresponding week of the last ten years. The deaths from smallpox, which had been 10 and 13 in the two preceding weeks, further rose last week to 14, of which 10 were recorded in the Metropolitan Asylum Hospitals, and 4 in private dwellings. There were 23 deaths from measles, 38 from scarlet fever, 2 from diphtheria, 21 from whooping-cough, 19 from different forms of fever, and 36 from diarrhoea. Thus to the seven principal diseases of the zymotic class only 153 deaths were referred, against 226, 190, and 174 in the three preceding weeks. These 153 deaths were 121 below the corrected average number from the same diseases in the corresponding week of the last ten years, and were equal to an annual rate of 2.3 per 1000. In Greater London 2947 births and 1530 deaths were registered. The mean temperature of the air was 48.5 deg., or 5.2 deg. below the average. The duration of registered sunshine during the week was 33.3 hours out of the 80 hours that the sun was above the horizon.

THE LATE COLONEL ANDERSON, C.B.

The Australian papers of last July announced the death of this venerable gentleman, a veteran soldier and colonist of many years' standing, who was also the father of Colonel Acland Anderson, the officer commanding the volunteer forces in the province of Victoria. Colonel Joseph Anderson, who was eighty-eight years of age, had served throughout the great French war, at the battle of Maida, at Aboukir, and in the Peninsula, at Talavera, Busaco, and Fuentes d'Onor, in Guadalupe, and in Central India. He entered the Army in 1805 as an Ensign in the 78th Highlanders, but afterwards held commissions in the 24th Regiment, the York Chasseurs, and the 50th (Queen's Own), of which he became Lieutenant-Colonel. He distinguished himself by many acts of courage and military skill, and was severely wounded in the Gwalior campaign, while commanding a brigade in a charge against the enemy's guns. For this he received the bronze Star of India and was made a Companion of the Order of the Bath. He had also obtained by his previous services the rank of a Knight of the Royal Hanoverian Guelph Order; and he held the Peninsular war medal, with four clasps. Colonel Joseph Anderson, after forty years' service on full pay, retired from active duty in 1848, and settled in Australia, where he became the owner of lands and sheep on the Goulburn River. He was appointed a member of the old nominee Legislative Council of Victoria in 1852, and exerted himself to prevent the admission of convicts, and latterly of Chinese immigrants, into that province, as well as to provide for its military defences. His son, Colonel W. A. D. Anderson, is mentioned above; he has also left several daughters, married to gentlemen of good position in the colony. His funeral, in the St. Kilda Cemetery, near Melbourne, was conducted with military state and ceremony, the coffin borne upon a gun-carriage, with the Union Jack and his cocked-hat and sword; and his horse led behind it. Many officers and gentlemen of his acquaintance, with two of the Governor's Staff, followed it to the grave; the procession was filled by the different volunteer corps of Melbourne, Collingwood, St. Kilda, Richmond, and Emerald Hill; and, finally, the Victoria Artillery Volunteers fired a farewell volley over the grave. We give a Portrait of the deceased gentleman, from a photograph by Johnstone and O'Shanessy, of Melbourne.

H.M.S. IRIS.

ARMED DESPATCH-VESSEL.

This vessel is remarkable as being designed to be the fastest vessel of war in the world. That position is believed to have been held hitherto by H.M.S. Inconstant, a ship of 5780 tons displacement, and with engines of 7360-horse power. The Inconstant, when fully rigged, and having a displacement of 5330 tons, attained a mean speed on the measured mile of 16.513 knots.

The Iris, with engines expected to develop a power of 7000 horses, will have a load-displacement not exceeding 3700 tons. There ought therefore to be no difficulty in realising the promised speed of 17½ knots, or twenty statute miles an hour. This ship, too, will differ greatly from other fast seagoing vessels, by reason of her shortness in proportion to her breadth. She has only six and a half beams in her length, her length being 300 ft., and her breadth 46 ft. 1 in.

Unlike other fast vessels, she will be propelled by twin screws. Each of these screws has four blades, and the trial of the vessel on her passage round from Pembroke to Portsmouth has shown that with this arrangement the ship is able to withstand the strain of the engines, with very little vibration. The engines have not yet been worked to their full power, but there is every promise of great success in this respect. The main advantages of two screws in a ship of war are, however, other than this. They are, that the ship can still work and manoeuvre with one engine or one screw broken down; and can be steered, if both engines are intact, when the rudder is disabled; and, further, that the engines can be placed in separate engine-rooms shut off from each other by water-tight partitions, and that the power of the engines can be developed with a lighter draught of water.

The late firm of J. and W. Dudgeon, of Millwall, did much to introduce twin screws; and the late Captain Cowper Coles and Messrs. Laird introduced twin screws into the Captain with success. But the twin-screw engines of the Devastation, arranged by Mr. Reed and Mr. Wright, and made by John Penn and Sons, were the first great success, as compared with the single screw.

Since the Iris' trials, the Alexandra and Téméraire, masted ships, have given further illustration of the excellent steaming results of twin screws. The Alexandra, with twin screws, had a higher engine efficiency on her six-hours' trial, as well as on the measured mile, than had been obtained in the Hercules or Sultan with single screws; and the Téméraire, although only 285 ft. long, and with but a trifle more than 4½ beams in her length, gave on the measured-mile trial, when complete for sea, and at a speed of 14.651 knots, better indices of performance than had ever been obtained from the Hercules, Sultan, Alexandra, or Monarch.

The engines of the Iris are built by Messrs. Maudslay, Sons, and Field. The diameter of the low-pressure cylinders is 64 in. The working barrels of these cylinders are made of Whitworth fluid compressed steel. The screw shafts are made of the same material, and are forged hollow. It is intended to work the engines, when the highest speed is wanted, with steam at a pressure of 60 lb. to the square inch; but the engines can be worked, when there appears to be need for it, at not more than 6 lb. or 7 lb. pressure. The shells of the boilers are also made of steel, the same material as has been employed for the whole of the hull. This steel, which has given the very highest satisfaction, was manufactured at the Landore-Siemens works at Swansea, by the Siemens process.

There are two engine-rooms and two boiler-rooms, occupying together one half of the length of the ship. The weight of the machinery and fuel will equal nearly one half of the total displacement or weight of the ship.

The Iris is intended, as her designation implies, for despatch service in time of war—a service which she ought to perform without the slightest risk of hindrance from any other existing ship. She has the means of defending herself if she should be attacked, having an armament of ten light but long range and accurate shell guns, two of which are mounted upon the fore-castle and poop respectively.

The Iris and her companion vessel, the Mercury, are hardly likely to be surpassed in speed for some years at least. They are costly messengers, and require a very powerful war fleet as their Jupiter to justify their creation.

The Marquis of Salisbury opened on Wednesday a Convalescent Home which has been erected at Rawdon, a few miles from Bradford, by Mr. H. W. Ripley, M.P. On Thursday his Lordship was presented in the Corn Exchange, Bradford, with an address from the Chamber of Commerce in that town; and in the evening he addressed a political meeting in St. George's Hall.

1. Russian Tents.

2. Road to Biela.

THE RUSSIAN POSITION, FROM AN ADVANCED POST NEAR BIELA.

3. Village of Buzovotzka.

4. Bani z'a.

MARCH ON BIELA: A BREAK DOWN—ENGINEERS TO THE FRONT.

THE LATE LIEUT.-COLONEL JOSEPH ANDERSON, O.B., K.H.

BEFORE BIELA: NIGHT BEFORE BATTLE—CALLING TO PRAYER.

NEW DESPATCH VESSEL, H.M.S. IRIS, BUILT OF STEEL.

THE WAR.

Changes of military command, both on the Russian and on the Turkish side, have been announced, as if in reply to some recent conjectures about the probable suspension of active operations for this year's campaign. General Todleben, the renowned director of the fortifications and defences of Sebastopol, has taken charge of the approaches and advanced works for the renewed attack on Plevna. General Skobelev, who lately won high distinction by his capture of two of the Turkish redoubts, and by his share in the capture of Lovatz, is appointed to command the Sixteenth Army Division. Prince Imeritinsky, to whom, jointly with Skobelev, belongs the merit of those achievements, now becomes Chief of the Staff, in place of old General Nepokoitchitsky; and General Gourko, who led the bold though vain and useless raid across the Balkans, takes command of a large cavalry force on the roads westward of Plevna, by which it is hoped to cut off Osman Pasha's supplies. On the Turkish side, as we mentioned last week, considerable changes have been made. Mahomet Ali Pasha has been removed from his chief command of the Turkish army on the Lom, between Rustchuk and Shumla, and has been sent back to guard the Serbian and Bosnian frontiers. He is succeeded by Suleiman Pasha, who leaves the Shipka Pass and the Army of the Balkans to Raouf Pasha; but there is an enforced cessation of the sanguinary struggle there, owing to the fall of wintry snow.

The Russian Imperial Guard being now added to the forces of the Grand Duke Nicholas before Plevna, it is expected that renewed fighting will speedily take place in that quarter, and that the Roumanians will soon make another attempt on the second Gravitza redoubt, to which they have drawn their parallel lines of trenches as near as they can. We refer to the illustration, in our Supplement this week, from a sketch by Herr Schönberg, our Special Artist with the Roumanian army before Plevna. It presents a View of both the Turkish redoubts at Gravitza, with the right wing of Osman Pasha's defensive positions and the Roumanian approaches to them. Other sketches, by Mr. Melton Prior, our Special Artist with a division of the Turkish army between the Lom and the Jantra, furnish illustrations of the battle fought on the 14th ult. at Kaceljevo, and of the subsequent march in the direction of Biela. The Russian positions, however, near Biela, were found by Mahomet Ali Pasha rather too formidable, and he retired upon the Lom, for which act of discretion, it seems, he has been deprived of his Bulgarian command. We learn that the Turkish defence of Plevna has been strengthened by the junction of Chefket Pasha's forces with those of Osman Pasha, bringing a large amount of stores and ammunition. This was effected last Tuesday, in spite of an attempt to intercept them by a detachment of Russian cavalry, who were repulsed with much loss in a skirmish at Lukovitz.

Detachments of the Turkish garrison of Silistria occupy the island of Chicin, in the lake of Borcea on the Danube, where they are constructing fortifications. The Russians, on their part, are engaged in throwing a bridge with a fortified tête de pont over one of the arms of the Borcea lake, with the object of cannonading the Turkish position in Chicin. A large number of Russian troops have been sent to Kalarasch, and the Roumanian militia in the adjacent districts have received orders to hold themselves in readiness to prevent a possible Turkish landing from Silistria.

The head-quarters of the Grand Duke Nicholas are to be removed back to Sistova, while the Emperor Alexander proposes to sojourn during the winter at Bucharest, and the Empress will join him in the Roumanian capital. Military hospitals for ten thousand Russian sick and wounded are being erected on the banks of the Danube. The materials of the late Vienna Exhibition Palace are used for these temporary buildings. It is rumoured that the pontoon bridges at Sistova and Nicopolis are much damaged.

Although the participation of Serbia in the war is not looked for immediately, the military movement in the Principality is now in full train. The artillery is on its march from Branicevo to Veliki and Izvor. The formation of new batteries has also commenced, and single detachments of cavalry have already left for Krusevatz.

A brief account of the recent Turkish victories in Armenia, with a small map to aid its comprehension, will be found in our Supplement. Ahmed Moukhtar's official despatch, dated yesterday week, states that on that day "the bulk of the Russian forces left the heights of Kabak and fell back to the foot of Karatmol, abandoning their positions parallel with our line." He further says that "the losses of the enemy during the three days' battles at Yahnilar, Gulveren, and Aladjagh are estimated at 10,000 hors de combat. Ours are estimated at about 2000 men, including nine officers killed and six wounded. The Grand Duke Michael commanded in person. Providence has happily frustrated the formidable plans of our enemies." On the other hand, a Russian official despatch from Karajal, dated last Tuesday, states that, "in consequence of the actions on the 2nd and 3rd inst., and the new positions occupied by us, the enemy on Monday night abandoned most of his positions—Kizil-Tepe among others—and began to retreat. Our troops pursued the Turks energetically, and by nightfall occupied the line of Hadschiveli, Soubatan, and Gulveren." We must await further information to decide between these contradictory accounts.

Last Tuesday, at Constantinople, upon the occasion of the Feast of the Bairam, the Sultan transmitted to the commanders of the troops his congratulations and good wishes. His Majesty added that he hoped the war would soon be concluded to the advantage of Turkey, and that the soldiers would return from the seat of war to repair by labour the enormous losses sustained in the defence of the country.

The fourth annual provincial meeting of the Incorporated Law Society of England was begun in Bristol on Wednesday, under the presidency of Mr. Edward Frederick Burton, of London. There was a large attendance of the profession.

The Free Presbytery of Glasgow has resolved to recommend that ministers should call the attention of their flocks to the unusually favourable harvest season as a fit matter for thanksgiving; and it was suggested by the mover of the resolution that in connection with the subject the minds of the people should be directed to the atheistical teaching of those who are called distinguished men of science as to the operation of natural laws, and which is calculated to undermine the foundation of all religion.

The court of inquiry into the loss of the Avalanche and the Forest ended on Tuesday. The Commissioner and his assessors found that the captain of the Avalanche was partly to blame for the collision, and that Captain Lockhardt, the captain of the Forest, was much to blame for not having kept his eye on the light of the Avalanche. At the same time, in regard to the long services of Captain Lockhardt, to the way in which he had given his evidence, and his subsequent conduct, the Court was of opinion that, while not cancelling or suspending his certificate, he ought to be reprimanded for not having shown greater promptitude at the moment of collision.

RELIEF FOR VICTIMS OF THE WAR.

Mr. A. K. Lloyd, commissioner to the National Aid Society, writes to Colonel Loyd-Lindsay, giving an account of his operations at the seat of war. At Bucharest, he says, the hospitals require but little, oil and silk being the only thing not procurable on the spot. In the case of the Roumanians, private benevolence has found house room and medical attendance. The state of things at Fratesti is serious. "The Russians could not foresee," says Mr. Lloyd, "that Fratesti would be called upon to play any part in the service of the sick and wounded. If Rustchuk had fallen their depôt would have been Giurgevo; and, in fact, it was not till the Turkish shells threatened to set fire to that town that they made Fratesti the terminus for commissariat purposes of that line." The Princess of Roumania has had two barques specially fitted up, in which she receives thirty-six patients, selecting from the other hospitals the most serious cases, in order that they may have the quietude and fresh air of the neighbourhood outside the town. Mr. Lloyd mentions that the want of trained nurses in the hospitals is greatly felt.

Colonel Loyd-Lindsay, M.P., on behalf of the National Aid Society for Sick and Wounded, has placed the two ambulance-waggons presented by the French Government after the Franco-German war and twenty copies of the Red Cross book at the disposal of the Order of St. John, for use at the centres being established over England for relief of sufferers by accident and for instruction in sick-bearing drill and elementary surgery. Already, at Sevenoaks, Woolwich, and Worcester, depôts of ambulance material are being formed, and local committees are being organised.

We have received from the Central Committee of the Red Crescent Society a circular explaining its objects and imploring aid. This society, which is founded on the basis of the Geneva Convention, was started on the declaration of the present war for the relief of the wounded, and at the outset had very serious obstacles to overcome. At the present moment two hospitals, fitted up for more than 500 wounded, have been established, one on the banks of the Bosphorus, at the mouth of the Black Sea, and the other at Beylerbey, in the Royal Palace, which has been placed at the disposal of the society by the Sultan. Similar establishments have been opened at Varna, Adrianople, Rustchuk, Silistria, Rasgrad, and Shumla, which daily receive their quota of wounded. Five field ambulances, too, fully provided with all alleviating contrivances, follow the armies, and gather up and tend thousands of wounded previous to their being forwarded to the various hospitals of the Army and the Red Crescent. The committee are exceedingly grateful for the assistance they have already received from English benevolence, particularly the Red Cross Society and the Stafford House Committee; but still their anxiety to relieve suffering far exceeds their ability, and they make an earnest appeal for additional succour in money or in kind. The Ottoman Bank, London, will receive subscriptions.

The schooner yacht Constance, of 255 tons burden, belonging to Captain P. C. Lovett, of Luscombe-park, Buckinghamshire, which her owner has placed at the disposal of Lady Burdett-Coutts for the purposes of the Turkish Compassionate Fund, sailed from Southampton last Saturday for Constantinople, with a full cargo of miscellaneous goods, which she has shipped at that port. The Hampshire Independent of Saturday says:—"The main saloon—a capacious department, handsomely fitted—has been cleared of all its furniture and converted into a ship's hold; and this, as well as the space under the flooring and many of the cabins, is filled with substantial contributions to the fund. These gifts are of a most miscellaneous kind, and the parcels vary in weight from a couple of ounces to at least half a ton. The articles sent embrace quinine, drugs, pills, Etna lamps, flannels, calicoes, blankets, cotton prints, and hosiery, many kinds of patent foods, hammers and nails, 252 bottles of chlorodyne, a case of camphorina, mackintosh sheeting and other indiarubber goods, sewing-cotton, needles, bandages, a bandage machine, lint and old linen, and mufflers." Captain Lovett, who has had the yacht thoroughly refitted for this voyage at his own cost, and who also bears the expense of maintenance of ship and all on board while away, himself commands the Constance, assisted as sailing master by Captain John Pond, of Weymouth, and a crew of fifteen hands all told. Mr. Bartlett, a member of Keble College, Oxford, goes out in the Constance, at the Baroness's request, to act for her Ladyship, under Mr. Layard's directions, in the distribution of relief to the suffering non-combatants, for whom the proceeds of the fund are entirely intended.

In view of the pressing needs of the sick and wounded, as stated in letters from the Russian Red Cross Society, it was resolved, at a meeting recently held of the Sick and Wounded Russian Soldiers' Relief Fund, to solicit contributions of blankets, warm dressing-gowns, flannel vests, woollen stockings, lint, bandages, &c., which may be sent to No. 9, Great Winchester-street, E.C. (Mr. John Sands); Lady Lyett, Mrs. Hamilton Fletcher, Mrs. John Draper, Mrs. Honore Philbrick, and Miss de Winton having kindly undertaken the charge of their reception; and it was further resolved to solicit the co-operation of ladies in London and the provinces in this work. Mr. Lewis Farley reported that the Rev. Mr. Lamson had left London en route for the seat of war, taking with him a supply of money, blankets, flannel vests, woollen stockings, &c.; and that Dr. George H. Lamson had also left direct for Bucharest with a supply of medical stores and surgical instruments. The thanks of the committee were expressed to the London, Chatham, and Dover Railway Company, which had kindly consented to carry the stores at half rates as far as Vienna.

The Stafford House Committee have received further subscriptions from India, together with many letters expressing sympathy with the Turks. The following is an extract from one of these letters, written by an English resident in the Punjab:—"I hope to be able to send you £50 more in a few days. The interest the war is exciting among the upper classes of Mohammedans is intense. When they call little else is talked about; and many of them have the maps at their finger-ends."

Mr. Edwin H. Baverstock writes to the Times:—"Your special correspondent's interesting account of Lady Strangford's hospital work at Adrianople induces me, as a member of her British Hospital and Ambulance Fund Committee, to call attention to the fact that a most urgent telegram has been received from Lady Strangford requesting another thousand pounds to be forwarded. This, from lack of funds, it is impossible to do, and unless money comes in, and that speedily, the hospital must be closed. Lady Strangford left England in full faith that means would be forthcoming to sustain the hospital; she is there as 'the friend of the suffering'; and, as your correspondent witnesses, her patients are receiving a 'practical lesson in Christian charity.' She asks for help from those able and willing to give, and I do not believe she will ask in vain. Donations may be sent to the head office of the London and Westminster Bank, Lothbury; to its branch, St. James's-square, S.W.; to the account of Lady Strangford's British Hospital and Ambulance Fund; or to myself, 36, Queen-square, Bloomsbury."

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL NEWS.

FRANCE.

Marshal MacMahon on Thursday issued a new manifesto, in which he says the Constitutional Republic is not in danger, and the present Government is not under clerical influence, as is supposed. The present struggle in France is a battle between order and disorder. The President appeals to the French nation to answer to his call, and the Marshal says, placed by the Constitution in a situation that duty forbids him to abandon, he will maintain order and peace.

The electoral addresses of both the real and the nominal chiefs of the Opposition have been published.

M. Gambetta professes great confidence in the result of the elections. He says:—"My profound conviction, based on sure premises, allows me to declare without rashness a week before the voting that France, in spite of all the manoeuvres directed against the freedom of her votes, will repudiate the administrative pressure, will scorn the official candidature and its agents, and will thrust far from her Royalists, Cæsarists, Clericals, the knaves as well as the violent; she will condemn dictatorial policy, she will leave the Chief of the Executive Power, transformed into a plebiscitary candidate, no other alternative but to submit or resign; for as for ourselves, sure of the support of the country thus solemnly declared, we shall know how to cause its will to prevail over the opposition of a powerless and incorrigible minority. Without passion, without weakness, without vehemence, we will do our duty. The union of all good Frenchmen, Liberals, Republicans by conviction or by birth, labourers, peasants, bourgeois, the world of work and of thrift, will keep us discreet, and will render us invincible for the country and the Republic." Dispensing with the usual preliminary inquiry, in order to get the judgment of the Correctional Police before the day fixed for the election, the French Government have summoned M. Gambetta to appear before that tribunal on Friday, the 12th, to answer the charge of offending the Marshal by placarding the electoral address in the streets.

M. Jules Grévy, in his address—powerful in its judicious calmness of statement—refutes the various accusations brought against the late Chamber of Deputies, and compares the present league of dynastic parties to that of 1849. The league of the present day, he avers, wishes, as in 1849, to revise the Constitution, an impossibility with a Republican Chamber.

M. Gambetta addressed the electors of the twentieth arrondissement on Tuesday night in the American Circus, Château d'Eau. About 6000 persons attended by invitation, and M. Gambetta had an enthusiastic reception. He spoke for an hour and a quarter, enlarging during a great part of his speech on the benefits of universal suffrage, and attributing the quietness of the French people under the provocations which they are now suffering to its establishment. M. Gambetta continues to be confident in the result of the appeal to the nation.

The Duc de Broglie, addressing the Conservative committee on Wednesday, devoted himself to refuting the charges of M. Gambetta, asserting that the real issue lay between Radicalism and Conservatism. He declared that the President had no desire to destroy the Republic, and denied the accusations of clericalism brought against the Government.

M. de Fourtou has addressed a sharp circular to the prefects, directing them to take instant and stringent proceedings against what he calls the "agents of disorder," who continue to spread in the provinces—notwithstanding repeated disavowals on the part of the Head of the State—the idea that the Government is allowing itself to be so influenced by clericalism as to pursue a course of policy of a nature to compromise the maintenance of peace.

M. Louis Blanc addressed a meeting of his constituents in the fifth arrondissement on Sunday, and said that the enterprise of May 16 was the work of clericalism, which, if successful, would render that influence all powerful.

The manifesto of the Left groups in the Senate has been published. It urges the electors not to abstain from voting and not to be intimidated, and tells them that when they have spoken their word ought to be obeyed.

Hostile manifestations were made on the arrival of Prince Napoleon at Ajaccio to carry on his canvass. In consequence, the Prince has addressed a communication to the Minister of Justice complaining of the conduct of the police and the authorities.

The Government continues to prosecute persons for libelling either the Marshal or the Ministers, and two convictions of ex-deputies are reported. The manager of the now deceased Mot d'Ordre has been sentenced to fifteen months' imprisonment and a fine of £80, for insulting the Court of Appeal in Paris. The Bien Public has been fined £20 for reporting the second stage of the Gambetta prosecution.

The authorities have authorised the town of Chateaudun to incorporate the cross of the Legion of Honour with the town arms, in remembrance of the glorious resistance of 1870, and announced the favour beforehand to M. Pontalis, the official candidate.

HOLLAND.

The King on Wednesday received MM. Kappeynne and Van de Copello, the leaders of the United Liberal parties in the Second Chamber.

GERMANY.

Prince Bismarck left Berlin for Varzin on Monday, attended by Count Herbert.

The Prussian Cabinet held a sitting last Saturday, when proposals for carrying further the policy of internal administrative reform were brought under discussion.

AUSTRO-HUNGARY.

The Emperor of Austria left Vienna on Monday night for Hungary, where, according to now established custom, the Court will spend the remaining part of the autumn at the chateau of Gödölloe, and the early part of winter at the Royal residence in Buda. Count Andrássy also left on Monday night for Hungary, where he proposes to spend about a fortnight with his family at his country seat, and then probably establish himself at Buda until the meeting of the Delegations, which are to assemble this year in Vienna, probably towards the end of November.

In Monday's sitting of the Lower House of the Hungarian Diet an explanation was given on the part of the Government in regard to the police supervision to which the deputy Herr Helfy has been subjected. It was declared that none of the authorities had given orders for such supervision, and that the policeman on duty in Kisfaludy-street had entered Herr Helfy's house solely in consequence of a misunderstanding. After a protracted and heated discussion the House resolved by a large majority to pass to the order of the day, in accordance with a motion brought forward by the Government. On Wednesday Herr Helfy gave notice of a question asking if the Government were disposed to lay before the House a full and detailed account of the recent occurrences in Szelek.

GREECE.

The King has decided, in accord with the Ministry, to convoke the Chambers for the 22nd inst. His Majesty wishes the Cabinet, as at present constituted, to continue the transaction of affairs.

DENMARK.

The Supreme Court has acquitted MM. Hall and Worsade, former Ministers of Public Worship, of the charge brought against them by the Folkething of illegal proceedings in connection with the building of the new theatre. The State will bear the costs of the trial.

In the Folkething a motion, introduced by the leader of the Left, to refer the budget for the current financial year to a committee of fifteen, has been unanimously adopted.

AMERICA.

The New York Democratic Convention has adopted resolutions condemning the election of President Hayes as illegal; at the same time, the Convention approve the southern policy of the President.

The Democrats in Ohio have carried the State elections by a large majority, which is variously estimated from 10,000 to 25,000. In Iowa the Republicans have been successful, but their previous majority has been reduced.

Senator Patterson, of South Carolina, was arrested in Washington last Saturday on a warrant issued in compliance with a requisition from South Carolina, where he is indicted for felony against the State Government. Patterson, however, was subsequently bailed out on the Habeas Corpus Act till Oct. 17.

General Miles, who has been pursuing the Nez Percés Indians fleeing towards the Canadian border, came up with them on Sept. 30, and had a severe engagement. Seventeen of the Redskins, including the brother of their chief, Joseph, were killed and forty wounded, most of their horses being captured. Twenty-four of the soldiers were killed and forty-four wounded. The Indians have surrendered.

A tremendous storm, which raged along the Atlantic coast on Thursday and Friday, the 5th and 6th, wrecked many vessels, and caused great damage by freshets. The coasts were swept by hurricanes from Nova Scotia to Florida, and the storm was also severe on the lakes. Numerous railway disasters have also occurred in the middle States by the washing away of the rails, and over a hundred persons have been thus killed and injured. A portion of the iron railway bridge across the Missouri River at Atchison, at Kansas, was undermined by a freshet, and fell.

The London Gazette notifies that the Siamese Government has prohibited the export of rice from Sept. 23, to Sept. 13, 1878.

At Grahamstown experiments have been made which are said to prove that the coal from the Indive mines is equal in every respect to English.

It is announced in the Gazette that the Queen has appointed William Alexander George Young, Esq., C.M.G., to be Lieutenant-Governor of the Colony of British Guiana.

An earthquake shock was felt at Geneva on Monday morning. Clocks were stopped, bells were rung, buildings cracked, and the English and Russian churches were rather shaken.

The order of Jan. 27 last prohibiting the landing in Great Britain of cattle brought from a port or place in Belgium or the German Empire has been revoked by the Privy Council.

Cleopatra's Needle is threading its way safely towards our shores. The steamer Olga, with the Obelisk in tow, left Gibraltar on Monday in fine weather, and on Wednesday morning they were seen passing Cape St. Vincent.

Information has been received by telegraph of the safe arrival on the 3rd inst. of the ship Waitangi at her destination in New Zealand. This vessel was dispatched by Sir Julius Vogel, the Agent-General for New Zealand, with 258 emigrants for Canterbury, sailing from Plymouth on July 12.

Amended regulations for the open competition of July next for the Civil Service of India have been issued. At the final examination at the close of the second year of probation of the selected candidates under the new regulations, any one of the following additional subjects may be taken up—viz., botany, geology, and zoology, for which 350 marks will be allowed.

Lloyd's Shipping List states that two German steamers have reached Siberia by sea this year; and a sailing-vessel has made the passage from the mouth of the Jenissei to Norway laden with Siberian products. The Thames, Captain Wiggins, after wintering at Jenissei, grounded at the mouth of the river on starting, and has not yet been floated, though its cargo was thrown overboard, including, it is feared, the collection of Mr. Seeborn, who was a passenger.

Messrs. W. T. Weekes and Co. dispatched from Plymouth Sound on the 4th inst. two ships for the Australian Colonies. The first was Messrs. Devitt and Moore's ship Sabraon, 2131 tons (Captain Elmelle), for Melbourne; having on board 59 first and 36 second class passengers, in addition to a full general cargo. The second was Messrs. Shaw, Savill, and Co.'s ship Trevelyan, 1041 tons (Captain W. Edwards), for Sydney, with Government emigrants. She was chartered for this purpose by Mr. Forster, Agent-General for New South Wales, and takes out 67 married couples, 86 single men, 46 single women, 59 boys, 62 girls, and 26 infants.

A disastrous wreck occurred in July last on the coast of Chili. The Pacific Steam Navigation Company's vessel Eten struck upon a sunken rock at Ventura Point, 120 miles south of Coquimbo, and only thirty-five persons were saved out of 155. Painful rumours were circulated by the Chilean journals to the effect that Captain Chitfield, of H.M.S. Amethyst, had neglected to afford assistance; but from papers which the Admiralty have communicated to the press it appears that the allegation was groundless. The Amethyst was actually sent to give relief to the shipwrecked mariners, and it was only on finding that the sea was sweeping over the rock where the shipwrecked travellers had taken refuge, and that none of them remained on it, that the Amethyst returned from her errand of mercy.

The Gazette announces that the Queen has directed letters patent to be passed under the Great Seal granting the dignity of a knight of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland unto William Buell Richards, Esq., Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the Dominion of Canada; Antoine Aimé Dorion, Esq., Chief Justice of the Court of Queen's Bench for the Province of Quebec, in the Dominion of Canada; John Henry de Villiers, Esq., Chief Justice of the Supreme Court and Speaker of the Legislative Council of the colony of the Cape of Good Hope; David Tennant, Esq., Speaker of the Legislative Assembly of the colony of the Cape of Good Hope; George Wigram Allen, Esq., Speaker of the Legislative Assembly of the colony of New South Wales; and John Budd Phear, Esq., Chief Justice of the Island of Ceylon.

To mark a long and close connection with the borough of Saffron Walden, the Mayor, Mr. G. S. Gibson, has presented to the Corporation suitable plans and a cheque for £4000 for the erection of a new Townhall for municipal and educational purposes. Mr. Gibson, who is completing his second year of office as Mayor, has been connected with the town for more than half a century.

THE FAMINE IN INDIA.

Reports of a highly favourable nature have been received with regard to the harvest prospects of Southern India. Rain has begun to fall also throughout the North-West Provinces, Oude, the Central Province, Central India, Rajpootana, the Punjab, and parts of Bombay, and there is every sign of its continuance.

The following telegram from the Viceroy of India, dated Oct. 5, has been received at the India Office:—

Season telegram, Sept. 25 to Oct. 3. Madras.—Continuous good rain everywhere, except part of Coimbatore and Madura. Good freshes in rivers; crops thriving; north-east monsoon not yet appeared on coast. Works, 628,259, decrease 70,000; gratuitous 1,603,721, decrease 2000. Madras revised orders for administration relief issued Sept. 24. General, but slight, fall in prices; imports fully maintained. Bengal and Burmah daily grain dispatches to Madras ports 5454 tons, besides from Peninsular Railway 900. Railway working from Madras meagre.

Bombay.—No appreciable rain in Goojerat, where needed; rest of Presidency good general rain. Temple telegraphs: General situation markedly better. Works 219,910, decrease 23,000; gratuitous 163,008, increase 3000.

Mysore.—Good rain continues; crop prospect good; prices slightly cheaper; supply of sufficient railway imports; reduced people returned to field pursuits. Works 54,000, gratuitous 162,000. Deaths in Bangalore temporarily increased from rain. Famine Commissioner telegraphs that effect of putting paupers on works is marked improvement in health and spirits; they crowd to works.

North-West Provinces.—No rain save showers in Ghazepore; drought and heat continue; distress felt in Agra and Rohilkund divisions.

Condition in Oude less serious; prices stationary, but high; grain being imported from Nerbudda Valley; October rain would save spring crop; cloudy weather reported on 4th from several districts; relief work arrangements in forward state.

Punjab.—No rain save in Rawul Pindi and frontier; no improvement except Multan divisions; dear prices; distress not yet reported.

Rajpootana.—Partial showers in Ajmere and Marwar; no rain elsewhere; drought increasing in Eastern States; prices not yet excessive; relief works arranged on three sections of railway.

Indore.—No rain, except at Neemuch. Malwa crops beginning to wither; Gwalior condition bad. Great emigration from Northern and Eastern States southwards. Relief work open on three railway sections near Gwalior, Neemuch, and Rutlam.

Hyderabad.—Moderate showers; crop prospects favourable. Bengal.—Prospects good in Bengal Proper. Anxiety about South Behar, where rain holds off.

Burmah.—Prospects favourable; floods subsided; rice being replanted.

Assam.—Prospects good.

Central Provinces.—Protracted break in rains causes some loss of crop, and anxiety in rice-growing tracts; rabi (?) crops good. Large number of immigrants from Central India States, for whom relief works provided.

A telegram from Calcutta, dated Thursday, 1.9 p.m., received through Reuter's agency, says:—"A general and most favourable change has set in over Northern and Central India. From the 5th to the 9th inst. there has been excellent rain, extending to Patna and Nagpore in the south, to Jhelum in the north, and from Hurdul in Oude, in the east to Ajmir, and Goojerat in the west. The rainfall ranges from two to ten inches everywhere, and is not yet finished. Behar, Oude, the North-West Provinces, the Central Provinces, Berar, Goojerat, Rajpootana, the Central Indian States, and the Punjab all have the benefit of the rain. The weather and the crop prospects in Mysore, Bombay, and Madras continue favourable, and prices are falling. The autumn crops in Northern India, wherever surviving, and especially the irregular crops, will benefit greatly. Pasturage will soon be abundant, and the spring crop sowings will be safe. Emigrants from the threatened tracts are already returning home, and agriculture is active everywhere. All immediate apprehension of famine that was expected in Northern India next year has now passed away, though high prices and some pressure on the poor will remain until the spring crop is assured. Financial prospects are much improved by the change in the situation."

THE MANSION HOUSE FAMINE FUND.

A communication was received by the Lord Mayor on the 4th inst. from the Duke of Buckingham, Governor of Madras, expressing the heartfelt gratitude which pervades the minds of the natives of that presidency for the exertions being made in England on their behalf. The noble Duke adds that the emergency is indeed great, and remarks that if the people of England could imagine what their position would be if the quartern loaf ranged from 2s. 8d. upwards, and if, at the same time, there was an utter scarcity of everything with which food could be ordinarily supplemented, they would be able to form some idea of the scarcity which prevails in India, and the terrible position of the classes even above the poor labourers or cultivators. His Lordship also received a telegram from the Mayor of Sydney, stating that a public meeting would be held immediately to take steps for raising funds in aid of the sufferers from the famine. Among the donations received that day were—Birmingham (sixth instalment), £1000; Wigan (additional), £650; Cork, £500; Bath (fourth), £400; Wolverhampton (additional), £250; Banbury, £200; Carlisle (additional), £200; Lincoln (third), £200; Reading (second), £200; Guildford, £163; Chard, £137; South Molton, £120; Holmfirth (additional), £100; Stourbridge (third), £100; Portsmouth (additional), £100; Richmond, £100; Jersey (additional), £500; Ramsgate (third), £100; Chiswick, £120; Christ Church, Tunbridge Wells, £120; Ackworth parish church, £176; Bath Abbey, £124; St. Peter's, Bayswater, £183.

The Duke of Edinburgh has written a letter to the Lord Mayor (received on the 5th inst.) stating that he had been desired by the Commander-in-Chief of the Mediterranean fleet to transmit subscriptions raised at his Royal Highness's suggestion among the ships at Besika Bay for the Mansion House Indian Famine Relief Fund, and inclosing a cheque for £259. The subscriptions included £100 from the Duke of Edinburgh himself. The Duchess of Edinburgh has contributed £50 to the fund. The secretary of the Madras committee writes:—"I am directed by the committee to acknowledge their deep sense of the great kindness of the English people towards their suffering fellow-subjects in Southern India, and to inform you that the munificence exhibited has made a deep impression upon the minds of the natives of this country." The Mayor of Leeds sent a further remittance of £3000; and among the other donations from towns were the following:—Warwick (third instalment), £1000; Chester, £1000; Dudley, £250; Wilton (including £70 from the Earl and Countess of Pembroke), £170; Morpeth, £155; Dorchester, £150; Hawick, £150; Northallerton, £140; Hanley (sixth), £100; Oswestry, £175; Durham (second), £100; Southampton (twelfth), £100; Titchfield, £152; and York (additional), £100; the Armourers' and Braziers' Company contributed £105; Mr. J. Arthur James, £105. Among the church and chapel collections received were:—Westminster Abbey, £140; St. Mark's, Hamilton-terrace, £136; Wimborne Minster, £162; St. John's, Hove, £100; St. Mark's, Lewisham, £150; Christ Church, Lee, £139; and Mortlake church, with East Sheen, £117.

The sums received last Saturday included the following remittances from the provinces:—Preston, £2500; Newcastle-on-Tyne (fourth instalment), £1000; Dublin (fifteenth), £500; Exeter (fourth), £500; Hull (fifth), £500; Barrow-in-Furness, £500; Northampton (additional), £450; Cardiff, £500; Harwich, £207; Dewsbury (third), £150; Royton, £100; Hanley (seventh), £100; Colchester (fifth), £100; Ipswich (third), £100; Tipton (second), £100; Brighouse, £100; Burton-on-Trent, £100; Newcastle-under-Lyme (third), £100. The British residents at Stockholm contributed, through Mr. Watson, the Chargé-d'Affaires, £42; and a collection by the Rev. Dr. Forbes in the English church, Rue d'Aguesseau, Paris, realised £80. The proprietor of the Freemason newspaper sent £100. Among the church collections was Farringdon church, £111.

On Monday afternoon the Executive Committee met in the Venetian Parlour for the dispatch of business; the Lord Mayor presided. The fund was reported to amount to £340,000. At the last meeting the condition of the Hyderabad district was brought to the notice of the committee, and a special telegram offering assistance was dispatched to the British Resident. In reply, his Highness the Nizam conveyed his best thanks to the committee for their kind offer of aid, but stated that, owing to late rains, assistance was not urgently required at present in his territory, and there was no apprehension of an increase in the distress, although, if aid was really needed, he would not hesitate to apply for it. It was resolved to transmit a further sum of £50,000 to India, making £390,000 in all, and to inquire as to the distress in the North-West Provinces. A telegram was received stating that all the Mayors in the colony of Victoria were raising contributions in aid of the fund. The principal contributions from towns were:—Inverness, £350; Rotherham (additional), £300; Norwich (sixth), £300; Bedford, (second), £100; Tavistock (additional), £100; Kilkenny (third), £100; Devizes, £100; Llandudno, £170; Dublin (sixteenth), £500; York (additional), £300; Totnes, £102; and Folkestone, £100. The North and East Ridings of Yorkshire Freemasons' Provincial Grand Lodge sent £100. Among the principal church and chapel collections were—Christ Church, Crouch-end, £105; St. George's, Bickley, £101; St. Michael's, Highgate, £108; Craven-hill Congregational chapel, £100; Stroud parish church, £102; and Folkestone parish church, £101. In the box outside the Mansion House £29 was found.

The Lord Mayor received a telegram from the Madras Famine Relief Committee on Tuesday stating that the prospects of the Presidency were improving, and that, should the north-east monsoon prove good, the famine will end in four months. In the north-west prospects are so much improved that the scheme of railways which had been devised and the relief works have been abandoned. The fund at the close of the day amounted to £347,000. Of this, £300,000 has been already transmitted to India. The principal donations from towns paid in were the following:—Bristol (fourth instalment), £1000; Southport (additional), £250; Coventry (second instalment), £250; Runcorn (second instalment), £200; Reading (third), £200. The Provincial Grand Lodge of Freemasons of West Lancashire sent £200 through Lord Skelmersdale; the supreme council of the thirty-third degree of A. and A. Rite Freemasonry, £100; Mr. R. C. L. Bevan, £100. Upwards of 200 church collections were received, including Christ Church, North Brixton, and schools, £157 odd; St. George's, Bloomsbury, £125; Trinity Church, Weston-super-Mare, £159; the parish church, Cheltenham, 182; Foundling Hospital Chapel, £105. A telegram was received from the Mayor of Melbourne stating that £6000 had already been transmitted thence direct to Madras, and more would follow. An intimation was also received from the Jersey committee stating that £660 additional, making £1600 in all, would be forwarded by the next mail.

On Wednesday evening the fund amounted to over £354,000, of which about £8000 was received during the day. The Crown Prince and Princess of Germany contributed £100, and deputed Baron von der Brincken, the German Chargé-d'Affaires, to hand over their donation personally to the Lord Mayor, with an expression of their best wishes for the success of the fund. Among the principal donations were the following:—Huddersfield (third instalment), £800; Dublin (seventeenth), £500; Lewisham Congregational Church, £130; the Countess de Noailles, £100; New Malton (second), £100; Halifax (fifth), £500; City and County of Perth (third), £350; Wisbeach, £100; Teignmouth (additional), £100; per Messrs. Coutts and Co., £104; St. Paul's Cathedral Harvest Thanksgiving Service, £147; the Central Synagogue, £183; Knareborough, £127; Penzance, £100; Rochdale (third), £500; Tamworth (third), £100; Holy Trinity, Tunbridge Wells, £239; St. Jude's, Kensington, £231; and many more.

Last Sunday, in all the Roman Catholic churches and chapels of the archdiocese of Westminster, after the different masses, and at vespers in the evening, a pastoral letter was read from Cardinal Manning, calling the attention of his clergy and their flocks to the famine now spreading desolation in the Presidency of Madras, and desiring that on the following Sunday, in accordance with the arrangements which he had made, collections should be made in aid of the fund.

A meeting of the Bradford committee was held last Saturday in the Mayor's parlour at the Townhall. In the absence of the Mayor the Right Rev. Bishop Ryan, the Vicar, presided. The subscriptions in Bradford were stated to be £8921.

Last Saturday the Edinburgh committee reported that they had received £15,215 on behalf of the fund.

The Liverpool committee have remitted to Madras £20,000. The total amount of the Liverpool subscriptions is £26,000.

The Board of Inland Revenue have issued a circular letter to all the officers in their department inviting contributions for the Indian Famine Fund to be sent to them, to form a separate contribution, to be called the Inland Revenue Relief Fund.

An appeal is now being made to the commercial travellers, and a good result has already been effected.

The report of the Committee of Council on Education in Scotland for 1876-7, with appendix, has been issued.

The Mersey Dock Board have decided to seek powers to construct an overhead tramway along the line of docks.

The Town Council of Leicester has decided to purchase the waterworks of that town.

Mr. Mitchell Henry, M.P., has written disapproving of the proposed conference of the Home-Rule League and urging a conference of the Irish members.

1. Moukhtar Pasha, the Turkish Commander-in-Chief.

2. Turkish reinforcements going to the front.

3. Turkish infantry engaged.

4. Turkish battery on the Kizil-Tepe hill.

5. Russian

THE WAR IN ARMENIA: BATTLE

FROM A SKETCH BY ONE OF C

ishers. 6. Russian guns, about sixty in line. 7. Russian shells bursting. 8. Hill occupied by the Russians 9 and 10. Russian troops advancing. 11. Kurukdar hill.

OF KIZIL-TEPE, AUGUST 25.

R SPECIAL ARTISTS.

NATIONAL SPORTS.

A short and unsatisfactory summer has been succeeded by a seasonable and most enjoyable autumn, and never were visitors to the "back-end" meetings at Newmarket favoured with more perfect weather, while the sport provided for them has been very far above the average. A commencement on Monday told that we were rapidly approaching the close of the season, and that it was necessary to take advantage of nearly every day that remains. The first race of importance was a Post Sweepstakes over the T.Y.C., in which Clementine, Strathfleet, Fair Lyonese, and Malay took part. The first-named had only a slight call of Strathfleet in the betting, and ran so badly that her easy defeat of Childeric and a good field in the Champagne Stakes at Doncaster is more inexplicable than ever. The finish between the Duke of Westminster's filly and Fair Lyonesse was a pretty one; and, though the latter improved on her York form, she was beaten cleverly. Rifle, who has recently displayed unsuspected excellence, added the Burwell Stakes to his late victories, never giving Rosbach, who was attempting to concede 10 lb., much chance.

On Tuesday the Clearwell Stakes very nearly collapsed, as it was reduced to a match between Jannette and Insulaire, the former, with all sorts of odds laid on her, winning as she liked, and securing the stake for Lord Falmouth for the fourth year in succession. Not only has Jannette never been beaten, but she has never been made to gallop, and can certainly claim to be considered the crack two-year-old of the season. Twenty-five numbers were hoisted for the Cesarewitch, a number that is below the average, and, doubtless, the three public trials run by Hilarius (6 st. 5 lb.) frightened away a good many intending competitors. The son of Brown Bread naturally started favourite; but he had not much advantage over Prince George (7 st. 13 lb.), who has always been a great public fancy, and was constantly backed until the fall of the flag. Zucchero (6 st. 9 lb.) pressed them both very closely in the quotations; but a comparatively long price could be obtained about everything else. Great disappointment was felt when it was found that only seven of the competitors were saddled in the Birdcage; and even those who galloped down to the starting-post had little time to take stock of the others, as the field shot away, on very even terms, at the first attempt. Luckpenny made the running at a capital pace, and held the lead until reaching the T.Y.C. post, where Duchess of Cambridge (6 st. 5 lb.) and Zucchero went by him. The last-named pair were in trouble as soon as they had passed the Bushes, and retired, leaving Macaroon (6 st.) with the lead, which he retained until entering the Dip, where little Macdonald, who rode in most patient style, let out Hilarius, and he at once shot away from the rest, and won with ridiculous ease by four lengths from Macaroon, who beat Belphebe (7 st. 9 lb.) by a neck for second place. The last-mentioned ran exceedingly well, for no three-year-old could be expected to give 18 lb. and sex allowance to Hilarius, who palpably had the race in hand so far from home that the positions gained by the rest of the field go for little. We noted, however, that old Pageant (8 st. 9 lb.) always held a good place, and carried his heavy weight most gallantly. According to precedent, Hilarius was at once made first favourite for the Cambridgeshire, in which he will have 7 st. 7 lb. to carry, and is likely to find Manœuvre, who is weighted with 15 lb. less, a very dangerous antagonist. In the Royal Stakes, Lady Golightly made a fearful example of Norwich and Albert Edward, and thus thoroughly confirmed the excellence of Hilarius.

Though Wednesday was generally considered an "off" day, there were nevertheless two or three very interesting races. Foremost among these was the Select Stakes, decided over the R.M., for which Thunderstone, Jongleur, Verneuil, and Placida competed. After his clever defeat of Hilarius at the First October Meeting, backers naturally elected Thunderstone to the position of favourite, an honour of which he proved quite unworthy, being beaten at the Bushes; and, though the Oaks winner ran well, she had no chance with Jongleur, who appears to be better at a mile than over the longer courses to which he is accustomed. Tredegar, a son of Scottish Chief and Lady Morgan, who had never run previously, was generally considered a "good thing" for a Post Sweepstakes over the Breyth Stakes course, against Fair Lyonesse and Inval; but, after a desperate finish, the judge declared it a dead-heat between the three. As this was the last race of the day, the run-off had to take place almost immediately, when Tredegar won cleverly, Inval being second.

On Monday last R. W. Boyd, of Newcastle, and J. Higgins, of London, sculled from Putney to Mortlake for the championship of England. This was the third time the men have met in a match, and each had previously won once. The last occasion was on the Monday in the Derby week, when odds were laid on Higgins; but he proved utterly unable to get his boat through the rough water, and was defeated by a quarter of a mile. As there was a great deal of wind on Monday, and the Thames was once more like a little sea, a similar result was anticipated, and, in some cases, as much as 5 to 2 was laid upon the Northerner. Higgins, however, stripped in splendid condition; and, as his work was set much higher than on the previous occasion, he was able to clear his knees with ease, and got through the rough water in rare style. Higgins, having won the toss, chose the Middlesex side, which, being comparatively sheltered from the wind, gave him a great advantage. Notwithstanding this, Boyd was the first to show in front, and kept there until making the shoot to the Soap Works, where Higgins passed him. Boyd, however, soon came up again, and led by a few feet under Hammersmith Bridge, where our view of the race ended, as, owing to the exceptionally high tide, the bridge was impassable by steamers. We learn, however, that Boyd led until reaching the top of Chiswick Ait, where he was beaten, and Higgins, going away with ease, won by half a dozen lengths, in 24 min. 10 sec.

The London Athletic Club Autumn Meeting took place at Stamford-bridge on Saturday afternoon last. The feature of the meeting was unquestionably the brilliant performances of L. Junker, who gave no one the smallest chance in the 100-Yards Challenge Cup or the 150-Yards Handicap, and is probably the fastest amateur we have ever had in London. C. Hazen-Wood, the famous North Country runner, also put in an appearance, and won the Half-Mile Challenge Cup, doing the distance in 2 min. 2.5 sec. He runs in bad style, but is evidently an exceptionally good man; and a match between him and Elborough over this distance, which, we hear, is pretty sure to take place, should prove wonderfully exciting.

On the same afternoon W. Gale finished his marvellous performance of walking 1500 miles in 1000 consecutive hours, doing a mile and a half at the beginning of each hour. His last mile and a half occupied only 15 min. 52 sec., and he seemed little the worse for his exertions at the conclusion of his task. Gale has fairly eclipsed Captain Barclay's feat of endurance, and we trust that the testimonial which has been started for him will reach a substantial sum.

THE MAGAZINES.

Besides the continuations of "Erema" and "For Percival," in which latter fiction we seem to recognise a well-known hand, the Cornhill is strong in miscellaneous papers. Mr. Leslie Stephen contributes a sound and vigorous essay on Massinger; his criticism, however, may almost be condensed into the observation that Massinger represents the gradual departure of poetry from the Elizabethan drama. In every respect in which he differs for the worse from his great predecessors, he differs in so far as he is more distinctly prosaic, not merely in diction and versification, but in the entire texture of his intellect. The history and philosophy of the recent discovery of Mars's satellites are agreeably summarised for non-scientific readers; and a paper on the "Environ of London" is delightful reading from the mere enumeration of places calling up delightful associations in the minds of all. "Experiences of an Indian Famine" embody reminiscences of the dearth of 1869 in the Central Provinces, replete with valuable information and suggestions bearing on the present calamity. "Carving a Cocoa Nut" is a kind of æsthetic sermon, in which, in the guise of instruction for the performance of a simple operation, occasion is taken to instil sound principles on some of the fundamental questions of Art.

Macmillan is very strong this month. The most generally interesting portion of the contents will probably be the new instalment of "Young Musgrave," in which Mrs. Oliphant has developed a quite unusual degree of pathos and power. M. Thordén's account of the University of Upsala is also a most entertaining contribution, admirably written, and full of bright local colouring. Still higher interest attaches to a notice of a newly-discovered manuscript by the first Marquis of Halifax, the great statesman of the Revolution period. It consists of a number of anecdotes and memoranda respecting the leading personages of the day, arranged dictionary fashion under their names, and frequently of very great interest. Its genuineness seems unquestionable, and its value is only qualified by the doubt how far these records may be Halifax's own, or how far they are merely transcribed from the communications of others. The case is very fairly stated by the editor, the Hon. H. F. Elliot. Mr. Gladstone's "Dominions of Odysseus" is a contribution to the Homeric geography of Ithaca. The second part of Mr. Wallace's valuable discussion of the causes of colour deals with plants, pointing out how bright colours are advantageous to flowers, as promoting the visits of insects necessary for their fertilisation; while, where the scent of the flower is a sufficient guide to the insect, the colours are comparatively inconspicuous.

Fraser is rather heavy. "Austria, Germany, and the Eastern Question," "Moral Aspects of Political Economy," and "Australian Federation" are important subjects ably treated; but the treatment is not lively. An essay on "Clericality" conveys some useful cautions to the clergy against the assumption of that artificial manner which is certain to estrange lay sympathies. "Garibaldi in France" embodies reminiscences of the exploits of the Italian free corps in the Franco-German War, couched in a style suggestive rather of a frolic than of a serious business. The adventurers lacked neither bravery nor brains, and, under other circumstances, might have done exceedingly well, but were no match for the grim, methodical Prussians. Perhaps the most generally interesting contribution is an appropriate tribute to the memory of the late Mr. Longman.

In Blackwood we have to note the conclusion of "Pauline," which retains its merit to the last, and the spirited continuation of "Mine is Thine," enlivened by the introduction of a new character. There is a very good account of one of the least-known plays of Euripides, his "Helen." "American Diplomacy in the East" is a severe indictment of the conduct of the United States Minister at Constantinople, Mr. Schuyler, in connection with the Bulgarian massacres. It is rather curious that the Russians and the Turks should have been successively exasperated by the indiscretions of this enfant terrible of diplomacy. Mr. Theodore Martin's versions from Heine are respectable, which is perhaps as much as can be expected.

The Fortnightly Review has one article which will attract especial interest at this juncture, embodying the late Mr. Nassau Senior's notes of his conversations with M. Thiers, shortly after the coup d'état. They will hardly contribute to raise the character of the deceased statesman, the topics being such as bring into notice the least pardonable of his faults, his systematic subordination of principle to expediency. Mr. Senior, too, commits himself to the very un-English sentiment that a tranquil despotism is better than a stormy freedom. Mr. Lowe's impressive warning against a further lowering of the franchise would carry more weight if the writer's political career afforded any guarantee that he was in earnest with it, or meant to abide by it. Mr. Hutton's obituary notice of the late Mr. Bagehot is full of interest, though the writer hardly succeeds in the undoubtedly difficult task of expounding the secret of Mr. Bagehot's intellectual distinction. It is still more difficult to justify the claims of a painter to eminence when "the higher criticism" has reduced the number of his undoubted works to one, which Mr. Pater tells us is the case with Giorgione. A notice of M. Rénan's new work is chiefly remarkable for an attempt to show that the third Evangelist must have been familiar with the text of Josephus.

The most interesting paper in the Contemporary Review is Mr. Proctor's account of Dr. Draper's recent discovery of oxygen in the sun; the most important is perhaps Mr. George Howell's description of the regulations in various trades for the enlistment and management of apprentices. Mr. Howell laments the decay of the apprentice system, which he regards as essential to the maintenance of a high standard of work. Mr. Baring Gould's paper on early Christian Greek romances characterises many of these curious compositions, many of which have been officially recognised by the Church as authentic acts of saints and martyrs. One, the story of the Merchant and the Jew, is of singular beauty. Mr. Freeman's paper on British neutrality during the present war is rather absurd, to say the least of it. He taxes his country with sundry breaches of neutrality, while carefully explaining that he would think it exceedingly wrong to be neutral himself.

The Nineteenth Century has two dry but valuable essays by two peers, Lord Stratford de Redcliffe's on "International Relations," and Lord Blachford's on the "Integrity of the British Empire." The latter points out that every progress in a colony must necessarily be a step towards political dissociation from the mother country, although not necessarily injurious to national unity in the highest sense. Mr. Gladstone's essay on "The Colour Sense" is a contribution to the theory of its gradual development among mankind, a proposition which he principally supports by evidence of the extreme vagueness of the Homeric epithets denoting colour. Professor Colvin's hostility to architectural restoration goes to the length of contending that an ancient building had better fall into ruin than be rebuilt, which most people will consider a reductio ad absurdum. The most interesting section of the "Symposium" is Mr. Greg's grave and eloquent dissertation on the indifference to life which frequently accompanies advancing years.

The Atlantic Monthly contains a number of very readable papers, among which may particularly be noticed Mr. T. A. Trollope's "Night in St. Peter's," a vision of deceased Popes; Mr. Gilman's account of the work of the Early English Text Society; and a collection of "old-fashioned ghost-stories."

In the Gentleman's Magazine "Miss Misanthrope" is continued with Mr. Justin MacCarthy's accustomed vigour; and the extant information respecting anthropoid apes is ably popularised by Mr. Proctor. The "forgotten Turkish nation," whose history is recounted by Mr. Karl Blind, is the Khazar tribe, who were settled in Southern Russia during the eighth and ninth centuries, and eventually gave place to the Russians under the Scandinavian rulers by whom the empire of the latter was built up.

The Dublin University has a portrait and very full memoir of the Rev. Mr. Haweis, a continuation of the biographical sketch of Mortimer Collins, and a curious paper on the element of medical truth in some popular superstitious beliefs.

London Society challenges attention by the instalment of "Proud Maisie," the most powerfully-written part of the story hitherto; and a very good modernisation of a poem by King James I. of Scotland, "The King's Quair." The most interesting contribution to Belgravia is a paper by Mr. Proctor on the origin of the constellations, setting forth many ingenious reasons for holding the present groupings to have been made about 2170 B.C. The Argosy has a striking short story, entitled "Summoned to Save."

We have further to acknowledge the receipt of Tinsley's Magazine, the Month, Victoria Magazine, Churchman's Shilling Magazine, St. James's Magazine, Ladies' Treasury, Science Gossip, Englishwoman's Magazine, Young Englishwoman's Magazine, Charing-cross Magazine, Industrial Art, Men of Mark, Street Life in London, Picture Gallery, Cassell's Family Magazine; and monthly parts of All the Year Round, Chambers's Journal, Leisure Hour, the Quiver, Weekly Welcome, Golden Hours, Sunday Magazine, Sunday at Home, Day of Rest, Garden, Gardener's Magazine, and Engineering.

THE QUARTERLIES.

The October Quarterlies demand a due share of notice. The Church Quarterly is a fair mixture of theology and general literature; its appreciation of the latter being, indeed, strongly flavoured by its ecclesiastical sympathies. In an article called "The Romance of Modern Scepticism," George Eliot's novels are examined from an ethical point of view strictly in accordance with the established religious creed. The historical student will find the result of some interesting inquiries set forth in the paper on "John Wyclif at Oxford." There are two separate articles upon Confession in the English Church, one upon the Church of Ireland, and one upon the Church in the Colonies, besides other characteristic discussions of Church affairs. The Dissenting British Quarterly has several articles of historical criticism—one upon George Buchanan and Queen Mary of Scotland; one upon King René of Anjou, the last of princely troubadours; one upon the religious sects of the English Commonwealth. Two others, which have a certain degree of living political interest at the present day, relate to the Greek Revolution of fifty-five years ago, and to the social and administrative anarchy of Sicily, which has by no means ended with the Bourbon reign. The French romantic historian and rhapsodist, Jules Michelet, and the English literary opium-eater, De Quincey, are the subjects of two biographical essays. In the New Quarterly, Miss Helen Zimmern takes the lead, with a review of the life and poems of Leopardi, the Italian prophet of sentimental melancholy, who died forty years ago, an example of the unhappy moral and social influences of a past age. An essay towards the continuation of Lord Campbell's series of Lord Chancellors and Lord Chief Justices, since Lord Campbell's own tenure of those high offices, is contributed by the Rev. F. Arnold, but not in a pleasant tone. Mrs. Lynn Lynton furnishes a painful story entitled "Misericordia," the catastrophe of which resembles that of the drowning of a cruel husband in "Daniel Deronda." Solid utility is the recommendation of Mr. H. Evershed's article upon Scottish agricultural economy, and the improvements of Sir John Sinclair and others; and the same may be said of Mr. Joseph Parsloe on Railway Reform. An essay on Giotto, and "The Curé's Housekeeper," by F. E. Trollope, make up this number of the "New Quarterly." We have to speak also of the North American Review, in which there is one of Emerson's aphoristic discourses, pregnant with that ethical mysticism which is familiar to his disciples, but saying little more than was said by him and other moral philosophers a long time ago. General McClellan continues his rather dry and professorial review of the war in the East. Mr. Dion Bouicault again ventilates his managerial experiences and opinions concerning the decline of the Drama. Dr. Felix Adler's second article on the Reformed School of Judaism is highly interesting and encouraging; but the remaining articles, which treat chiefly of American politics, do not require our particular attention.

TRADE RETURNS FOR SEPTEMBER.

The accounts relating to the trade and navigation of the United Kingdom for the month of September have been issued from the Board of Trade.

The exports for the month were valued at £17,095,426, being a decline of nearly three quarters of a million compared with last year. For the nine months the total was £147,663,519, or four millions and a half less than in the corresponding period. The total value of the imports also show a decline, compared with September last year, of one million and three quarters, the value for last month being £28,234,769. For the nine months the total was £292,528,403, or about ten millions and a quarter more than in the corresponding nine months of last year.

With regard to the exports, cotton and linen manufactures show a slight increase, but the total value of iron and steel exported declined in the month from £1,934,244 to £1,722,492, there being an equivalent diminution in the quantities. The totals of silk and woollen manufactures both show a decline. Less gunpowder was exported in the month than in September last year, but the number of small firearms was 22,650, as against 19,223 in the preceding month. The total number exported since the commencement of the present year did not exceed 181,132. As regards the imports, the quantity of wheat exceeds by about one fourth the total of September in last year. Tea, coffee, and sugar also show a decline for the month; and in spirits and wine the decrease is considerable. The living animals imported last month numbered 120,000.

The National Life-Boat Institution has arranged to forward three fine new life-boats to be stationed on the Scotch coast. One is for Cruden Bay; another for Newburgh, on the shores of Aberdeenshire; and the third is for Port Patrick, on the coast of Wigtownshire.

MEMBERS OUT OF PARLIAMENT.

Sir Stafford Northcote, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, presided on Monday at the annual meeting of the members of the Exeter Chamber of Commerce, and, in moving the adoption of the report, made a speech, remarking upon the several topics of public interest which that document contained. The importance of the question of the bankruptcy laws could not be exaggerated. The Government were fully alive to this fact, and he thought it might fairly be hoped that the question would be settled in another year. It was necessary that some steps should be taken with regard to the existing system of postal notes, so as to make them more profitable to the Exchequer. As to the prospects of the revenue, he saw no reason to be doubtful of the realisation of the original estimates submitted to Parliament, nor could he see any cause for financial anxiety, provided no unforeseen great misfortune arose. He did not, however, deny that the present was a time of anxiety from both a commercial and a financial point of view. He attached great importance to the adherence of England to the principles of free trade.

The Solicitor-General was present at the annual meeting of the Launceston Agricultural Association on Tuesday, and responded to the toast of "The County and Borough Members." He expressed his belief that, if the agricultural interest had always put forward its claims to be considered, as the manufacturers of various products had done, it would have been ascertained before now that the land had been unduly burdened. He fully endorsed the views expressed by the Chancellor of the Exchequer at Exeter on the previous night, to the effect that the free trade policy of the country must not be reversed from any regard to the policy of other nations. Englishmen, he said, must be invited to consider the interests of their own country first.

At a luncheon which followed the opening a Convalescent Home at Rawdon, near Bradford, on Wednesday, Lord Salisbury briefly referred to the Eastern Question, and said there was not a member of the Government who was not prepared to do his utmost to stop a calamity which was one of the most grievous that had ever befallen the human race in our time. Adverting to Indian affairs, he remarked that the worst had now passed away, and there was an ample supply of money and food. The difficulty, however, was to bring the sufferers and the food together.

Lord George Hamilton, Under-Secretary of State for India, addressed a meeting of the Middlesex Agricultural Association at Staines. After brief allusions to the Irish obstructions in the House of Commons, and the war in the East, the noble Lord gave an outline history of the famine in India, its causes, its extent, and the means taken to meet the present emergency and to prevent the recurrence of a similar calamity. He paid an earnest tribute to the labours of the Indian civil service, and the administrative ability of the Viceroy and the Governors of the suffering Presidencies; and announced that the British Government had determined that no loss of life should occur through lack of supplies.

Colonel Loyd-Lindsay, Financial Secretary to the War Office, at the Royal East Berks Agricultural Society's dinner, held on Tuesday at Maidenhead, spoke upon the great improvements which had during recent years been effected in the condition of the soldier. In war, he said, there were two things to be accomplished—to shoot your enemy and to prevent your enemy shooting you; and the tools of the soldier were the spade for himself and the breechloader for his enemy. Ten minutes' spade work would generally give a regiment shelter from which the most daring and dashing enemy could not drive him. The Turks understood this, and if they would only stick to their spade-work tactics they might continue to hold in check all the power of Russia, including her Imperial Guards and all her reserves.

Mr. Walter, speaking at the same time, said it seemed to him that the main object of associations of that kind—namely, encouragement to the labourer and to the farmer—had long been fulfilled. The labourer really wanted no encouragement but that which his own services could command; and the farmer wanted no encouragement but that of his own skill. But societies of that kind were still useful as affording an outlet for that spirit of competition or combativeness which was inherent in the English nature, and also for encouraging improvement of implements, cottage industry, and horticulture.

Lord Barrington, Vice-Chamberlain, in addressing his constituents at Eye on Tuesday denied that the past Session was altogether unproductive. At the same time, he never remembered a more laborious Session. With regard to Russia and Turkey, he had no sympathy with either, as both had hitherto been despotic. Still, it must be remembered that the Turks had recently framed a Constitution, and endeavoured to establish a House of Representatives, and they ought to be granted a fair trial. The wish of the present Government as to the Eastern Question was to be entirely neutral.

Sir Henry James and Mr. Barclay, the members for Taunton, were present on Wednesday evening at a banquet given by the Mayor of that borough in honour of the recent incorporation of that town. Sir H. James said, with reference to the war, that it was beyond criticism to say what ought to be done. He felt that her Majesty's Government could do no more than preserve a strict policy of neutrality.

A Conservative gathering took place at Ironbridge, Shropshire, on Monday, when addresses were delivered by Mr. Staveley Hill and Mr. C. T. W. Forester. Mr. Hill condemned the present war as unjustifiable on the part of Russia, and said both sides had been guilty of gross outrages. Mr. Forester spoke highly of the manner in which the Liberal party had supported the Government in defeating the tactics of the obstructives.

Mr. Grant Duff, speaking on the Eastern Question at Elgin on Wednesday night, said that the choice appeared to him, as it did a year ago, to be between a pitching up in the nature of the amended status quo following a speedy peace, or the utter destruction of the power of the Porte in the Balkan peninsula, and an European Prince on the Bosphorus. With regard to Egypt, England should give her whole care to that country, taking good care that she should be paramount there.

The members for East Devon, Sir L. Palk and Sir J. Kennaway, spoke at an agricultural dinner at Sidmouth on Tuesday. Sir J. Kennaway, alluding to the war, said he hoped the country would urge on the Government to step in whenever an opportunity arose, and advocate peace, based on the happiness and good government of the desolated country. Sir Lawrence Palk dwelt on the labour question.

At a conference of Home-Rule members of Parliament held at Dublin on Tuesday Mr. Butt was re-established in his position as the acknowledged leader of the party in the House of Commons. Mr. Butt declined to pledge himself to any particular line of policy, or to define how far obstruction could be usefully carried, or when it should be used.

THE CHURCH.

PREFERMENTS AND APPOINTMENTS.

Cotter, Joseph Rogerson, to be Rector of St. Mary Magdalene's, Colchester. Duncombe, W. D. V., Custos of the College of Vicars Choral. Dunn, William; Vicar of St. Thomas's, Leeds. Haslewood, Thomas; Vicar of St. Edmund's, Gateshead. Ingle, S.; Vicar of Breendon-on-the-Hill, Ashby-de-la-Zouch. Kirk, William Boyton; Perpetual Curate of Holy Trinity, Birkenhead. Rose, Edward Henry; Perpetual Curate of Haalington, Chester. Welsh, Jeremiah Chaffers; Perpetual Curate of St. Mary's, Widnes, Lancaster.—Guardian.

Testimonials of respect have been presented to the Rev. T. W. Sewell and Mrs. Sewell, on their leaving Ravenfield.

In anticipation of the opening of the Church Congress, a public meeting, convened by the Free and Open Church Association, was held on Monday evening at Croydon, under the presidency of Earl Nelson, who contended that the work of the association was necessary to vindicate the claim of the Established Church to the title of "National." The movement had nothing to do with politics, either in the Church or the State. The Bishop of Chichester, Sir L. T. Stainer, and Colonel Childers were among the speakers, and resolutions in favour of the free system and of the weekly offertory were adopted.

The Bishop of Worcester on Monday consecrated a church which has been erected on the abbey ruins at Nuneaton.

Mr. Alfred Osmond, son of the late Mr. William Osmond, of Salisbury, has contributed £500 towards the restoration of the nave and north porch of the cathedral.

The Old Testament Revision Company concluded their forty-sixth session at the Jerusalem Chamber, on the 5th inst. The revision was continued as far as the end of Jonah.

On the 4th inst., the Archbishop of York consecrated a new parish church at Whorlton-in-Cleveland. The old church having fallen so utterly out of repair as to make its restoration almost impossible, has been partly taken down, while the chancel is used as a mortuary chapel. The new church has been erected upon another site, more accessible to the principal portion of the parishioners, the greater part of the cost being borne by the lord of the manor and patron of the living, the Marquis of Ailesbury. The new building has been designed by Mr. T. H. Wyatt, in the Early English style, some windows from the old church being introduced; it comprises a chancel with organ chamber and vestry, and a north aisle, and contains accommodation for about 300 people.

On Sunday, the 7th, the Church of the Holy Trinity, Meanwood, near Leeds, was reopened after having been closed for fourteen months for enlargement, during which time service was held in the schoolroom of the National School. The church, built in 1849, and consisting of nave and transepts and chancel, has been enlarged by the addition of a south aisle, and a considerable lengthening of the south transept, by which an increase of 116 sittings has been obtained. A four-light lancet window has been put in the west end. The work has been carried out by Mr. T. Moxon, according to plans prepared by Mr. J. M. Teale. The cost of these enlargements (about £2000) has been met by subscriptions, started by a gift of £1000 (since increased by an additional donation of £150) from Miss Beckett, of Somerby Park, the patron—niece to the Misses Beckett, of Meanwood Park, the original founders of the church.

Last Saturday afternoon the Bishop of Manchester laid the foundation-stone of the proposed new Church of St. Andrew, at Montone-lane, Eccles. In consequence of the overcrowded state of the parishes of Eccles and Patricroft, it has long been considered that a new church was needed in that neighbourhood. Accordingly a district, containing a population of about 4000 persons, was assigned to the intended new church, and for some months services have been held in Eccles parish church schools by the Rev. H. J. B. Armstrong, late Curate of St. Mary's, Sheffield, who has been appointed Curate of the future parish of St. Andrew. Through the exertions of the Vicar of Eccles, the Rev. H. P. Pitcairn, and a committee, about £6200 has been already promised or received, leaving £2800 still required to complete the church and parsonage. The church will be erected on a plot of land which has been given, at a cost of over £700, by Messrs. F. and J. C. Mather.

The Church Congress was opened at Croydon on Tuesday morning with Divine service in the parish church, when the sermon was preached by Canon Lightfoot. In the subsequent address, which was delivered by the Archbishop of Canterbury, he spoke first of the abstract uses of such gatherings; and then, referring to this particular Congress, his Grace pointed out that whether it should be a blessing or not depended on the manner in which it was conducted by all who should take part in its deliberations. No one had a right to attend a Church Congress who was not willing to give and take. This particular Congress had alike its difficulties and its helps. It had been the subject of much prayer. The English Church had always had its various phases of thought. Three very prominent and great names were attached to each—Andrewes, Hall, and Butler. Men of God of each school had been ready to feel for those of the other. While the Church slept there was no difficulty in keeping the peace, and when only one school of thought awoke there was little fear of collision. Some papers were afterwards read.—The first subject discussed on Wednesday was "The best means of promoting united action and mutual toleration between different schools of thought within the church." The question was argued by Canons Garbett, Carter, and Farrar. Discussions relating to paupers and truant children, charity organisation, and intemperance took place during the afternoon and evening. The subject set down for discussion on Thursday morning was "The readjustments, if any, desirable in the relations between Church and State," and papers relating to it were read by Canon Gregory, Canon Ryle, and Dr. A. T. Lee.

DIOCESAN CONFERENCES.

At the second meeting of the Bath and Wells Diocesan Conference, which was held on the 4th inst., the Bishop of the diocese exhorted his clergy to respect and obey the law in its judgments upon Church matters. On the burials question he expressed his opposition to Dissenters being buried in the churchyards of the Church from which they had dissented. A resolution in favour, generally, of the Ridsdale judgment was carried, there being only four dissentients.

The Oxford Diocesan Conference began on the 4th inst., under the presidency of the Bishop, and was largely attended. The whole day was occupied with the question of disestablishment, and the following resolution, proposed by Mr. Freemantle and seconded by Archdeacon Pott, was carried unanimously:—"That the severance of the present connection between the Church of England and the State would be highly detrimental, not only to the best interests of the nation, but also to the spiritual welfare of the Church, and is, therefore, much to be deprecated." At the sitting on the 5th the Right Hon. J. G. Hubbard, M.P., moved, and the Rev. Canon Butler seconded, a motion in favour of petitioning both Houses of Parliament to give proper constitutional weight to the voice of Convocation of the two provinces of the Church of England in all matters affecting the doctrine and ritual of the Church. The motion was carried with but a very few dissentients.

At the Lincoln Diocesan Conference on the 5th inst. the Bishop of Lincolne gave an address on the Burials Bill. It was a matter of astonishment to him that noble Lords like Lord Harrowby and some prelates who had lately been protesting against Ritualistic practices should now invite the Church of Rome to officiate in the churchyards of the Church of England.

A discussion took place at the Carlisle Diocesan Conference on the Burials Bill. Canon Knowles read a paper strongly resisting the demands of the Nonconformists. Mr. Allison moved that the resolution embodied in Lord Harrowby's amendment would be a satisfactory solution of the question. This motion was negatived, as was also an amendment modifying it by an addition, of which the Bishop of Carlisle had given notice, limiting the right of using service other than that of the Church to persons who had not the right of interment elsewhere. A resolution was carried advising the extension of cemeteries and approving the Bishop of Carlisle's clause.

UNIVERSITIES AND PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

OXFORD.

Dr. Sewell was on Tuesday re-elected Vice-Chancellor of the University for the ensuing year.

At Merton, Messrs. J. F. Charles, University College, London, A. L. H. French, Commoner of Merton (formerly of Winchester College), and J. L. Norton, College School, Taunton, have been elected to Postmasterships. Mr. French is a son of the newly-appointed Bishop of Lahore.

At Pembroke, Messrs. O'Connor, from Queen's College, Galway, Tuckwell, from Leeds Grammar School, and Thialeton, from Birkenhead School, have been elected to Classical Scholarships; and Mr. Webster, from the City of London School, to a Mathematical Scholarship. Scholarships have also been awarded to Messrs. Camberlay, from Haileybury College, and Woolrych, from Rossall School. Proxime accessit—Mr. Gaskell, University College, London.

CAMBRIDGE.

Last Saturday the Fellows of Trinity Hall met to elect a head to succeed Dr. Geldart; but they did not come to a decision. The Rev. H. Latham and Professor Fawcett, M.P. for Hackney, and Professor of Political Economy in the University, were nominated, and each received the same number of votes. The election has been deferred till Christmas. If the Fellows are not able to arrange the matter themselves the appointment will fall to the Chancellor.

At St. John's the following have been elected exhibitioners:—On the Duchess of Somerset's Foundation.—For Hereford School: J. B. Armstrong, R. Bullock-Webster, H. R. Browne. For Manchester School: J. R. Marsden, J. H. Whitehead. Lubton and Hebblethwaite Foundation.—For Sedburgh School: E. G. Punch, Harold Smith. The examination for Fellowships will commence on the 22nd inst.

The annual selection of Fellows at Trinity College resulted as follows:—J. C. Lewis, sixth wrangler; G. W. Balfour, fifth in the first class of the classical tripos; R. T. Glassbrook, fifth wrangler; and J. R. Langlaid, of St. John's College, first class in the natural science tripos.

Mr. W. J. Sell, B.A., Scholar of Christ's, has been appointed joint demonstrator of chemistry with Mr. Hicks.

A letter has been received from the Marquis of Salisbury informing the Vice-Chancellor that he has placed the University of Cambridge on the list of institutions in which selected candidates for the Indian Civil Service can reside during the period of special preparation for their duties.

The following gentlemen have been awarded certificates of proficiency in Sanitary Science at the examination recently held at Cambridge:—F. W. Barry, M.D.; J. Brown, M.D.; C. A. Cameron, F.R.C.S. (Ireland); A. H. Downes, M.D.; A. Ginders, M.D.; R. P. B. Taaf, M.D.; F. J. Thomson, M.R.C.S.; W. M. Thursfield, M.D.; J. M. Wilson, M.B.

Mr. J. Aiken, of Liverpool, who a few years ago gave a donation of £1000 to the Association for the Higher Education of Women at Cambridge, intends placing at the disposal of the association an exhibition of £30 for two years.

The thirteenth annual meeting of the Convocation of the Queen's University in Ireland was held on the 5th inst. in Dublin Castle, under the presidency of Sir Dominick Corrigan, Vice-Chancellor. The annual report stated that nothing had occurred during the past year to mar the peaceful and quiet progress of the educational pursuits of the University, and referred to the great necessity that now was manifested for the supply of central buildings for the University in the Irish metropolis, the arrangements just made by Government involving the holding of their examination in one end of their city and meetings of their governing bodies at the other end. The report was unanimously adopted, and it was urged by the speakers that a representation should be made to Government to have a grant in aid of the erection of necessary buildings.

Mr. S. Morley, M.P., presided last Monday night at the opening of the winter session of the City of London College, and delivered an address, in which he urged upon young men the importance of availing themselves of the advantages offered by such institutions, and especially recommended them to take up the study of modern languages.

The first of a course of ten lectures on the Method and Art of Teaching was recently given at the College of Preceptors, Queen-square, Bloomsbury, by Mr. J. G. Fitch, her Majesty's Inspector of Schools, and late Assistant-Commissioner under the Endowed Schools Act. The purpose of the lecture was to point out the qualifications which should be possessed by a skilled teacher, and the material resources with which he should be supplied in order to do justice to those qualifications.

The largest catch of mackerel known for years at Dawlish was made yesterday week, when it was computed that over 100,000 were taken.

It is announced that Messrs. C. Kegan Paul and Co. have purchased the publishing business of Messrs. Henry S. King and Co., of 65, Cornhill, and 1, Paternoster-square.

The annual session of the Baptist Union of Great Britain and Ireland has been held this week at Newport, Monmouthshire.

The new premises of the Liverpool Young Men's Christian Association, which have been erected at a cost of about £23,000, were opened on Wednesday afternoon by Lord Shaftesbury.

The officers and a deputation of the North London Railway staff have presented Mr. Mansel, the late general manager, with an illuminated address from the employees, and an elegantly-chased silver loving cup, suitably inscribed, from the officers, as marks of the respect and esteem in which he had been held by them during the fifteen years of his association with the company.

THE CIVIL WAR IN JAPAN: YEDO POLICEMEN GOING TO THE SEAT OF WAR IN SATSUMA.

THE NEW POST OFFICE, BOMBAY.

THE CIVIL WAR IN JAPAN.

Our well-known Artist and Correspondent at Yokohama, Mr. C. Wirgman, contributes a sketch of the appearance of a detachment of the Yedo policemen on their way to embark for the province of Satsuma, where the civil war has not yet been entirely suppressed. The rank and file of this contribution from the civil to the military force are not yet armed with more deadly weapons than their stout truncheons or quarter-staves; and their ordinary uniform of long-skirted overcoats, of a quite European pattern, seems more becoming to street than to field service. But they are good tall fellows, though one or two of them, being shortsighted and wearing spectacles, are likely to prove but indifferent marksmen with the rifle. It is nevertheless to be expected that they will make tolerably efficient soldiers, after due instruction by the drill-master, and will render useful service in the ensuing campaign.

ARCTIC RESEARCH.

It is the intention of Sir Allen Young, it is stated, to have the Pandora refitted, with a view to another start for the Arctic regions next spring. Sir Allen will most probably try the Spitzbergen route, in preference to Smith's Sound, which has now been so fully explored.

The Copenhagen correspondent of the Pall Mall Gazette, writing on the 2nd inst., says:—The celebrated Swedish explorer of the Arctic regions, Professor Nordenskiöld, has just handed in a plan of his intended journey next year round the world to the Swedish Government for its approval. Professor Nordenskiöld proposes to leave Sweden in July, 1878, in a steamer specially built for the purpose, which is to carry provisions for a period of two years at the utmost. The steamer is to be commanded by an officer of the Swedish navy, and is to have a crew of twenty-two men, if possible composed of volunteers in the Royal navy, as well as a doctor and a scientific staff of four or five persons. It is expected that Nova Zembla can be reached during the first half of August, and the mouth of the river Jemsöl a little later. The steamer is then to round the most northern point of Asia, called Tschieljuskun, and proceed to the Sound of Behring, which it is hoped may be reached before the end of September, and the expedition will then pass round the Chinese coasts, India, and through the Suez Canal, returning home through the Mediterranean.

BEFORE PLEVNA: ADVANCED ROUMANIAN OUTPOST.

NEW PUBLIC BUILDINGS, BOMBAY.

The stately and capacious building represented in our illustration has been erected by the Government of Bombay for the accommodation of post-office business in that important commercial city and Presidential capital. Another public edifice lately completed there, which also deserves our notice, is the Goculdas Tejpal Native Hospital. It has been constructed by the Government, at a cost of 367,000 rupees, for the relief of disease among the native population. Accommodation is provided for eighty-eight male and forty-four female patients, with a dispensary for out-patients, and all requisite offices. The building, designed by Colonel Fuller for the Public Works Department, is in the Early English Gothic style, and stands on the north side of the Esplanade. Bombay cannot, however, yet aspire to rival Calcutta in architectural pretensions.

The first distribution of prizes and certificates in connection with the new School of Science and Art at Brighton, which was opened in February last by Princess Louise, took place on the 4th inst., Dr. W. B. Carpenter handing the prizes and certificates to the successful students.

NEW BOOKS AND PUBLICATIONS.

SOCIETY FOR PROMOTING CHRISTIAN KNOWLEDGE.

NEW AND RECENT PUBLICATIONS.

NON-CHRISTIAN RELIGIOUS SYSTEMS.

BUDDHISM: being a Sketch of the Life and Teachings of Gautama, the Buddha. By T. W. RHYE DAVIES, of the Middle Temple. With Map. 2s. 6d.

HINDUISM. By MONIER WILLIAMS, M.A., D.C.L., &c. With Map. 2s. 6d.

ISLAM AND ITS FOUNDER. By J. W. H. STUART, B.A., Principal, La Martinière College, Lucknow. With Map. 2s. 6d.

THE HEATHEN WORLD AND ST. PAUL.

ST. PAUL IN GREECE. By the Rev. G. S. DAVIES, M.A., Charterhouse, Godalming. With Map. 2s.

ST. PAUL IN DAMASCUS AND ARABIA. By the Rev. GEORGE RAWLINSON, M.A. With Map. 2s.

ST. PAUL AT ROME. By the Very Rev. CHARLES MERIVALE, D.D., D.C.L., Dean of Ely. With Map. 2s.

ST. PAUL IN ASIA MINOR AND AT THE SYRIAN ANTIOCH. By the Rev. E. H. PLUMPTRE, D.D. With Map. 2s.

ANCIENT HISTORY FROM THE MONUMENTS.

BABYLONIA (THE HISTORY OF). By the late GEORGE SMITH, Esq. Edited by the Rev. A. H. SAYCE. 2s.

GREEK CITIES AND ISLANDS OF ASIA MINOR. By W. S. W. VAUX, M.A., F.R.S. 2s.

MANUALS OF ELEMENTARY SCIENCE.

THE SPECTROSCOPE AND ITS WORK. By RICHARD A. PROCTOR, Author of "Saturn and its System," "The Sun," "The Moon," &c. With Coloured Diagram of the Spectra, and many Illustrations. 1s.

SPECIFIC SUBJECTS.

NEW EDUCATIONAL CODE.

ALGEBRA. By W. H. H. HUDSON, M.A., Mathematical Lecturer and late Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge. 4d.

EUCLID. Books 1 and 2. Edited by W. H. H. HUDSON, M.A. 4d.

ELEMENTARY MECHANICS. By W. GARNETT, M.A., Fellow of St. John's College, and Demonstrator of Experimental Physics in the University of Cambridge. 4d.

PHYSICAL GEOGRAPHY. By T. G. BONNEY, M.A., F.G.S., Lecturer in Natural Science, Cambridge. 4d.

NEW SERIES OF TWELVE CHILDREN'S BOOKS. In large type, with numerous illustrations, 12s. pages, each 1s.

NATURAL HISTORY TOY-BOOKS. Imperial 8vo, each containing Ten Pictures Printed in Colours, with Descriptive Letterpress, Ornamental Paper Cover, 6d.

- No. 1.—WILD ANIMALS.
- No. 2.—SINGING BIRDS.
- No. 3.—BRITISH WILD BIRDS.
- No. 4.—SEASIDE BIRDS.
- No. 5.—BRITISH ANIMALS.
- No. 6.—FAVOURITE DOGS.

FIFTH CONTINENT (THE), with the Adjacent Islands. Being an Account of Australia, Tasmania, and New Guinea, with Statistical Information to the latest date. By CHARLES H. EDEN. With Map. 6s.

HORÆ PAULINÆ. By WILLIAM PALFREY, M.A. A New Edition, with Notes, Appendix, and Preface, by J. S. Howson, D.D., Dean of Chester. 3s.

ARGUMENT FROM PROPHECY (THE). By the Rev. BROWNLOW MAITLAND, M.A., Author of "Scepticism and Faith," &c. 1s. 6d.

DRIFTED AWAY. A Tale of Adventure. 2s. 6d.; bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s.

OUR VALLEY. By the Author of "The Children of Seelberg," &c. 2s. 6d.; bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s.

OWEN HARTLEY; or, Ups and Downs. A Tale of the Land and Sea. By WILLIAM H. O. KINGSTON, Esq. 2s. 6d.; bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s.

SHEPHERD OF ARDMUIR (THE). With Three Full-page Illustrations. 2s. 6d.; bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s.

SNOWBALL SOCIETY (THE): A Story for Children. By M. BRAMSTON. 2s. 6d.; bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s.

SNOW FORT AND THE FROZEN LAKE (THE); or, Christmas Holidays at Pond House. By EADYTH. 2s. 6d.; bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s.

GIRLS OF BREDON (THE); and Manor House Stories. By Mrs. STANLEY LEATHES. 2s.; bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s.

TWO VOYAGES, AND WHAT CAME OF THEM. By the Author of "Motherless Maggie," &c. 2s.; bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s.

THE GREAT CAPTAIN; an Eventful Chapter in Spanish History. By CLIVE R. BURKE, M.A. 2s.; bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s.

SEPPI. Adapted from the German of Franz Hoffman. By M. MONTGOMERIE CAMPBELL. 1s. 6d.; bevelled boards, gilt edges, 2s.

STORIES FROM ITALIAN HISTORY. By M. MONTGOMERIE CAMPBELL. 1s. 6d.; bevelled boards, gilt edges, 2s.

AN EVENTFUL NIGHT, AND WHAT CAME OF IT. Adapted from the German of Ernst Anoldt. 1s.; bevelled boards, gilt edges, 1s. 6d.

WALTER CAMPBELL; or, The Chorister's Reward. 1s.; bevelled boards, gilt edges, 1s. 6d.

CARDS FOR CHRISTIAN SEASONS, FRIENDLY GREETINGS, &c.

HAPPY GREETINGS. In a Packet containing Twelve Floral Cards printed in Colours, per Packet, 1s.

BIRTHDAY LETTER CARDS. In a Packet containing Three Cards printed in Colours, per Packet, 6d.

COMPLIMENTARY LETTER CARDS. Uniform with the Birthday Letter Cards. In a Packet containing Three Cards printed in Colours, per Packet, 6d.

London: 77, Great Queen-street, Lincoln's Inn-fields, W.C.; & Royal Exchange, E.C.; and 49, Piccadilly, W.

NEW BOOKS AND PUBLICATIONS.

THE NEW AND POPULAR NOVELS.

Now ready, at all the Libraries.

A JEWEL OF A GIRL. By the Author of "Queenie," &c. 3 vols. MAUD LESLIE. By Lady CHARLES THYNNE, Author of "Off the Line," &c. 2 vols.

TWO TALES OF MARRIED LIFE: HARD TO BEAR. By GEORGINA M. CRAIK; and A TRUE MAN, by M. C. STIRLING. 3 vols.

GLORY. By Mrs. G. LINNÆUS BANKS, Author of "The Manchester Man," 3 vols.

ONLY A LOVE STORY. By IZA DUFFUS HARDY, Author of "Glencairn," &c. 3 vols.

A THING OF BEAUTY. By Mrs. ALEXANDER FRASER, Author of "Her Plighted Troth," &c. 3 vols.

NEW VOLUME BY ROBERT BROWNING. Will be published on Monday, Oct. 15, 1877, 2s.

THE AGAMEMNON OF ÆSCHYLUS. Translated by ROBERT BROWNING. SMITH, ELDER, and Co., 15, Waterloo-place.

NEW NOVEL BY MR. R. D. BLACKMORE. Now ready, at all the Libraries.

EREMA; or, My Father's Sin. By R. D. BLACKMORE, Author of "Lorna Doone," "Alice Lorraine," &c. 3 vols.

NEW NOVEL, at all the Libraries. NEW NOVEL BY MISS BRAMSTON.

EM. By Miss BRAMSTON, Author of "The Cartridges," "Country Maidens," &c. One Volume. Price 10s. 6d.

PAINTING ON CHINA, EARTHENWARE, &c. Practical Lessons by Mme. la Baronne Delamardelle, Translated from the French by G. A. BOUVIER. Price 1s.; post-free, 1s. 1d.—LACROIX, BARNES, and Co., 60, Regent-st., London.

OUR EGYPTIAN OBELISK: CLEOPATRA'S NEEDLE. By ERASMUS WILSON, F.R.S. BRAIN and Co., 28, Paternoster-row; and of all Booksellers.

Price 6d. (or free by post 8d.). MADAME DEMOLEST'S

WHAT TO WEAR, AND HOW TO MAKE IT. Information on Dress and Dress-making. Contains nearly 500 Miniature Illustrations of Ladies' and Children's Fashions for Autumn and Winter, with full descriptions of Latest Styles, &c., including Materials, Trimmings, Walking and Outdoor Costumes, Dinner, Evening, and other Toilets, Jewellery, Lace, Collars, Millinery, and every new and desirable article connected with Ladies' and Children's Dress.

Just what every Lady, Milliner, Dressmaker, Draper, Warehouseman, and Outfitter wants to know about the Autumn and Winter Fashions. Sold by all Booksellers and Newsagents, and at every Railway Station.

WILLIAMS AND ROGERS NEWS COMPANY, General Agents for Demorest's Reliable Patterns, 11, Boulevard-street, London.

Price One Penny. ALL ENGAGED IN EDUCATION should read "VIVISECTION IN ITS MORAL AND EDUCATIONAL ASPECTS," by Mrs. GORDON, Author of "Home Life of Sir David Brewster," &c.

London: M. WALKER, 180, Brompton-road, S.W.

THE NEW FASHION BOOK. Autumn and Winter Seasons. Price One Shilling.

"The Fashion Book is well got up, and contains valuable information on all matters concerning Dress, Fabrics, Mantles, Millinery, &c. The Engravings, of which there are a great number, were executed in Paris, and will be found of considerable service to ladies, and to those who reside in the country especially, both with regard to special articles and general information."—Brighton Times.

"As usual, possesses features of special and seasonable interest, among which is what has hitherto been sought in vain—viz., the prices named of a great proportion of the articles mentioned and illustrated."—Morning Post.

"Contains a full description of the novelties in costumes, mantles, millinery, &c., suitable for the present season. The book contains a great variety of engravings, and its opportune publication will doubtless be of considerable service to ladies, enabling them to arrive at satisfactory conclusions in making their choice of fabrics for the autumn and winter season."—Court Journal.

DEBENHAM AND FREEBODY. Wigmore-street and Welbeck-street, London, W.

By Dr. BARR MEADOWS, Physician to the National Institution for the Deaf and Dumb. Seventh Edition, post-free, 32 stamps.

ERUPTIONS; their Rational Treatment. Remarks on the abuse of arsenic, mercury and other reputed specifics.—London: G. HILL, 104, Westminster Bridge-road.

Large 8vo, pp. 724, bound in cloth, 8s., post-free.

HOMŒOPATHIC DOMESTIC PHYSICIAN. By DR. PULTE and EPPS.

CONTENTS.—General Principles of Homœopathy.—Cutaneous Diseases.—Fever—Affections of the Mind—the Head—the Eyes—the Ears—the Nose—the Face, Lips, and Jaws—the Teeth, Gums, and Mouth—the Windpipe and Chest—the Stomach and Bowels—the Urinary and Genital Organs.—Diseases of Women.—Treatment of Children.—Anatomy and Physiology.—Hygiene and Hydropathy.—Materia Medica.—Domestic Surgery.—Medical and Surgical Appliances.—Dislocations and Luxations.—Fractures. A Chest of Medicines, Book enclosed, 43 10s. or 45 5s.

London: JAMES EVES and Co., 45, Threadneedle-street.

32mo, pp. 300, bound in cloth, 1s., or 14 stamps.

HOMŒOPATHIC FAMILY INSTRUCTOR. By RICHARD EPPS, M.D., M.R.C.S. This handbook describes and prescribes for a hundred diseases. James Epps and Co., No. 45, Threadneedle-st., and 170, Piccadilly.

CANCER—ITS CONSTITUTIONAL AND SUCCESSFUL TREATMENT. An Experience of Twenty-five Years. By the late Dr. J. PATTISON. Prefaced and Revised by J. M. MONROE PATTISON, M.D. (Univ. New York).—KEES and ASHVELL, 74, New Bond-street, London, W. Price One Shilling, post-free.

VITREMANIE.—An Easy Method of Decorating Windows in Churches, Public Buildings, and Private Houses equal to Real Stained Glass. Illustrated Handbook of Instructions, post-free, 1s. 2d. Particulars free.

London: J. BARNARD and SONS, 329, Oxford-street, W.

SCRAPS FOR SCREENS AND SCRAP-BOOKS. A Large Collection of Coloured Scraps of the best kind—Flowers, Figures, Birds, &c. 12 Sheets, 1s. 6d.

WM. BARNARD, 119, Edgware-road, London.

WHITE WOOD ARTICLES for Painting. Fern Painting, and Decalcomanie; Screens, Book-Covers, Glove, Knitting, and Handkerchief Boxes; Paper-Knives, Fans, &c. Price List post-free.

WM. BARNARD, 119, Edgware-road, London.

THE SOCIETY OF ARTS' ONE SHILLING MOIST-COLOUR BOX. Unadulterated pigments. Box in japanned tin.—Leicester, Barrie, and Co., 60, Regent-st., London; and local Artists' Colourmen and Stationers.

ASK your Stationer for PERRY and CO.'S 6d. Sample Box of 36 Selected Patterns of Steel Pens. Post-free for 6d. in stamps.

Wholesale, 19 and 20, Holborn Viaduct, London.

PERRY and CO.'S NEW PATENT ANTI-BLOTTING PEN, with Nickel Silver Points.—This is the latest improvement in steel pens, having all the requisites of a good pen, and being much more durable on account of the nickel point. Price 1s. per Box of three dozen, or 3s. 6d. per gross.

PERRY and CO. (Limited) are the largest PEN and PENCIL MAKERS in the world. They employ 1500 hands; cut up about four tons of steel, making 5,000,000 pens per week. Show-Rooms and Warehouses, 19 and 20, Holborn Viaduct, London.

PERRY and CO.'S NEW PATENT NICKEL SILVER PEN. No. 441, has all the flexible qualities which caused the old Double Patent Perryian Pen to maintain its reputation for Steel Pen Making, and is adapted with Nickel silver to prevent rust. Price 1s. per Box, or 3s. 6d. per gross.

STOCKS and SHARES, Telegraphs, Tramways, Railways, Banks, and other leading Securities. WILLIAM ABBOTT, 10, Tokenhouse-yard, London, E.C.

NEW MUSIC.

JOSEPH WILLIAMS'S LIST.

All Music post-free at half price.

POPULAR COMIC SONGS.

The Agreeable Young Man	Harry Clifton.
Don't be after ten	Harry Clifton.
Artful Joe	Geo. Leybourne.
Captain De Wellington Boots ..	Geo. Leybourne.
The Fairy Queen	Geo. Leybourne.
Father says I may	Geo. Leybourne.
Ephraim Fox	Henry Clark.
Glycerine	Walter Howard.
It's very aggravating	G. Hunt.
Keep it a secret	G. W. Moore.
Oh, Nicodemus	Fred Coyne.
Paddy's Dream	G. Ware.

All the above are illustrated; may be sung anywhere by anybody. Sent post-free, 18 stamps each.

POPULAR MOTTO SONGS.

Broken Down	Harry Clifton.
Pulling hard against the stream ..	Harry Clifton.
Seventy-two, and as hard as steel ..	Harry Clifton.
Shabby Gentle	Harry Clifton.
Wait for the turn of the tide	Harry Clifton.
Full sail and steam	Harry Clifton.
Out in the Green Field	Walter Field.
Shun the thing that's wrong, friend ..	Walter Field.

All the above are specially recommended, being full of point and entirely free from all vulgarity. Post-free, 18 stamps each.

HARRY HUNTER'S MOTTO SONGS.

Cheerily Ever	Nulli Secundus.
Keep a Good Heart	Take things as they are.
There's danger in delay	Jolly Good Humour.

Post-free, 18 stamps each.

HARRY HUNTER'S COMIC SONGS.

It hasn't happened yet	The Fancy Fair.
Cadging, I roam	Peter Perfect.
I saw Esau	I'm sorry I made the
Kiss and be friends	remark.
Ductor says I'm not to be worried ..

Post-free, 18 stamps each. A list of 80 Songs by Harry Hunter sent free on application.

HARRY HUNTER'S BANJO SONGS, as sung by Walter Howard with the greatest success at St. James's Hall.

Get Out. His name was Joshua. Poor Thing. Post-free, 18 stamps each. Note.—There is no restriction on these Songs.

HOW THAT POOR GIRL SUFFERED

FOR ME. New Song by HARRY HUNTER. Sung nightly by Walter Howard, and always encores. Illustrated with portrait of the singer in character. Post-free, 18 stamps.

H. WEIST HILL'S COMPOSITIONS.

Performed with great success at the Alexandra Palace. VALSES. Gertrude. 1s. 6d. Son Image. 2s. True Love. 2s. Gavotte, Madame de Pompadour (beautifully illustrated). 2s. Bash-Bash-Galop. 1s. 6d. Osmund's March. 1s. 6d. To Paris in Ten Hours Galop. 1s. 6d. Review.—"Marked by far more thought and musical ability than dance music usually is."

NEW SONG by FLORIAN PASCAL.

DAWN-SONG (Autumn), with English and Italian Words. Sung with the greatest success by Signor Giannini at Arli's Concerts. Post-free, 24 stamps. The special attention of Patrons is invited to this most artistic and effective Song. London: JOSEPH WILLIAMS, Berners-street; and Chispeide.

DANCING MADE EASY.—COULON'S

HANDBOOK OF DANCING is the most complete treatise on the subject, containing full descriptions of all dances, new and old, illustrated by upwards of forty Woodcuts. Price 1s.; post-free, 18 stamps.—A. HAMMOND and Co., 6, Vigo-street, W.

A FRAGMENT FROM MENDELSSOHN.

Arranged for the Pianoforte by C. A. CASPAR. 4s.; post-free, 24 stamps. London: Sole Publishers, ROBERT COCKS and Co.; and of all Musicians.

MUSIC FOR SCHOOLS FOR THE

PIANOFORTE. Clarke's Catechism, 1s. West's (G. F.) Teacher and Clarke's Elements of Harmony, 2s. Each. 4s. Sutton's Elements of the Theory of Music. 2s. West's (G. F.) Questions on the Theory of Music. 1s. West's (G. F.) The Pupil's Daily Exercises. 4s. Hamilton's Dictionary of 300 Musical Terms. 1s. London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.

HAMILTON'S MODERN INSTRUCTIONS

for the PIANOFORTE. 184th Edition.—This popular and standard book has been thoroughly modernised, and will now be found much more progressive. It begins at the lowest step of the ladder. Every little lesson has been carefully fingered and arranged, with view to the position of the hand, and in the order with reference to the keys. Solo duets have been added, and the part for the pupil placed over that for the teacher, in order further to explain the time-table. The improvement of the book will be found both practical and useful, and calculated to strengthen its position and increase its world-wide popularity. Post-free for 25 stamps.

London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.

POPULAR QUADRILLES for the Pianoforte, as Solo and Duets. 4s. each, post-free at half-price. The United Service. F. Goldrey. Pretty Polly. A. Ledue. The Osborne. S. Glover. The Canary. B. Linter. The Globe. S. Glover. The Goldfish. R. Linter. The Gipsy. S. Glover. The Garden Party. W. Smallwood. The Holiday. S. Glover. The True Friend. S. Glover. The Moelle. W. Smallwood. The Pussy. A. Ledue. London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.

THE SENTINEL'S MARCH. Composed

by JOHN PRIDHAM. For the Pianoforte. Finely illustrated Title. 4s.; post-free, 24 stamps. London: ROBERT COCKS and Co. Order everywhere.

THE SOLDIER'S DREAM. A Descriptive

Fantasia for the Pianoforte. By J. PRIDHAM. Illustrated Title. 4s.; post-free, 24 stamps. London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

THE SAILOR'S DREAM. A Descriptive

Fantasia for the Pianoforte. By J. PRIDHAM. Illustrated Title. 4s.; post-free, 24 stamps. London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.

LYSIS: Romaine for the Pianoforte.

Composed by W. S. ROCKSTRO. 4s.; post-free, 24 stamps. "A graceful melody, skillfully arranged, affording excellent practice for more advanced players."—Victorian Era.—London: Sole Publishers, ROBERT COCKS and Co., 6, New Burlington-street. Order everywhere.

NEW and POPULAR SONGS.

ALL FOR HER. No. 1 sop. No. 2 contralto. A. S. GATTY. MADEN MAY. Two keys. A. S. GATTY. Sung by Madame Cave-Ashdon.

BEFORE THE STORM. Baritone. A. S. GATTY. MEHA. No. 1 tenor, No. 2 baritone. V. CAPOUL. Sung by E. Capoul.

MY LOVE. Baritone. G. FOX. Sung by Wadmor. MY STAR. No. 1 contralto, No. 2 mezzo-sop. JULIA WOLFF.

LITTLE NANNIE. Soprano. JULIA WOLFF. Sung by Mrs. Wood. THE TROOPER'S DREAM. Baritone. JULIA WOLFF. Post-free, 24 stamps each.

Exoch and SONS, 19, Holles-street, W.

DUFF and STEWART'S LIST OF NEW and most SUCCESSFUL SONGS:—A Bird Sang in Hawthorn. Lord, who's in Immost Soul Tree (soprano). Hatton. 4s. Admuth (contralto). Hiller. 4s. Maiden Sat Alone One Day (mezzo-soprano). Smart. 4s. Angels are Watching (soprano). 4s. Only Love can Tell (soprano). 4s. Tons. 4s. O, That We Two were Maying (soprano). Gounod. 4s. O, While, Boy Come Home (mezzo-soprano). Virginia Gabriel. 4s. Rose Song, The (tenor). Balfe. 4s. Under the Lamplight (mezzo-soprano). Louisa Gray. 4s. When the Fairies are Asleep (mezzo-soprano). Lady Baker. 4s. Loved and Lost (mezzo-soprano). Müller. 4s.

Sold at half price, postage-free, 167, Oxford-street.

NEW MUSIC.

NOVELLO, EWER, and CO.'S MUSIC

PRIMERS. Edited by Dr. STAINER: 1. The Pianoforte (Second Edition, price 2s.), E. Pauer. 2. The Rudiments of Music (2nd Edition), W. H. Cummings. 3. The Organ (ready Oct. 15). Dr. Stainer. In preparation: 4. Harmonium, King Hall. 5. Singing, A. Handegger. 6. Pronunciation in Singing, A. J. Ellis, F.R.S. 7. Musical Forms, E. Pauer. 8. Harmony, Dr. Stainer. 9. Counterpoint, Dr. Bridge. 10. Fugue, J. Higgin. 11. History of Music, E. Pauer. 12. Scientific Basis of Music, Dr. Stone. 13. Church Choir Training, Rev. J. Troutbeck. 14. Plain Song, Rev. T. Helmore. 15. Instrumentation, E. Prout. 16. The Elements of the Beautiful in Music, E. Pauer.—(To be continued.)

Second Edition, price Two Shillings.

THE PIANOFORTE PRIMER. By ERNST PAUER (Principal Professor of the Pianoforte at the National Training School for Music). No. 1 of NOVELLO, EWER, and Co.'s Music Primers.

Ready on Oct. 15.

NEW MUSIC.

CHRISTMAS NUMBER OF

CHAPPELL'S MUSICAL MAGAZINE, containing the following Popular Dance Music:—
 Trial by Jury Lancers Charles D'Albert.
 Constantinople Quadrille Charles D'Albert.
 Die Fledermaus Johann Strauss.
 Les Lointains Emile Waldteufel.
 Maiden's Dream Edward Hoffman.
 The Schomberg Galop Charles D'Albert.
 Florentia Polka Charles D'Albert.
 Fizzicato Polka J. and J. Strauss.
 Forget-me-not Galop A. Hecker.
 And a New Quadrille.
MOLIE D'ALBERT, BY CHAS. D'ALBERT.
 Price One Shilling; post-free, 1s. 2d.
 CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

ARTHUR SULLIVAN'S NEW SONG.
THE DISTANT SHORE. New Song.
 By ARTHUR SULLIVAN. Sung by Mr. Edward Lloyd during his provincial tour. Price (in 8s. 6d., 7s., or 6s.) 2s. net.
 CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

MARCH OF THE PASHAS, for the Piano-forte. By JOHN PRIDHAM. Beautifully illustrated with Portraits of Mehmet Ali, Suleiman Pasha, and Robert Pasha. Price, post-free, 2s. net.
 CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE FANFARE POLKA. By CHARLES D'ALBERT. Illustrated. 1s. 6d. net; Orchestra, 2s.; Septet, 3s.
 CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHARLES D'ALBERT'S NEW DANCE MUSIC.
SWEETHEARTS. Waltz on Arthur Sullivan's popular Song. "One of the best waltzes ever written by the Net. above favourite Composer."
TRIAL BY JURY LANCERS, on Airs from Sullivan's popular Work 3 0
TRIAL BY JURY QUADRILLE 2 0
TRIAL BY JURY WALTZ 2 0
TRIAL BY JURY POLKA 2 0
INK GALOP 2 0
FLEUR DE THE QUADRILLE 2 0
PASCINATION VALSE a Trois Temps 2 0
SULTAN'S POLKA (New Edition) 1 6
 The above, arranged for Full Orchestra, 2s.; Septet, 2s. each.
 N.B. A Complete List of M. D'Albert's Popular Dance Music will be sent on application to
 CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S NEW SONGS.
SWEETHEARTS (sung by Mr. Edward Lloyd) 2s. net.
THOU ART PASSING HENOK 2s. net.
IF (sung by Mr. McGuckin) 2s. net.
THE CAPTIVE SKYLARK 2s. net.
THE SKYLARK FREE 2s. net.
ROCKS AND FLOWERS 2s. net.
OH! FOR THY WINGS 2s. net.
THE EVERLASTING SHORE 2s. net.
SWEETHEARTS 2s. net.
CHADLE SONG 2s. net.
THE LAST LETTER 2s. net.
WHEN THOU ART NIGH 2s. net.
I'LL BRING THREE SONGS OF 2s. net.
TRABY 2s. net.
THE FATE OF A ROSE 2s. net.
MY LOVER ACROSS THE 2s. net.
BLUE SEA 2s. net.
THE DAY MY LOVE WENT 2s. net.
MAYING 2s. net.
NOT FAR AWAY 2s. net.
 CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE ROWAN TREE, New Song, by M. W. BALFE, will be sung by Madame Antoinette Sterling during her tour in the provinces. Price 2s. net.
 CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

TRIAL BY JURY. Dramatic Cantata. Written by W. S. Gilbert. Composed by ARTHUR SULLIVAN. Now being performed with immense success at the Strand Theatre. Complete for Voice and Piano-forte. 2s. 6d. net.
TRIAL BY JURY. Piano-forte Solo. 2s. 6d. net.
THE JUDGE'S SONG. 2s. net.
THE LOVE-SICK BOY. Defendant's Song. 1s. 6d. net.
KUHLER'S FANTASIA. 2s. net.
SMALLWOOD'S FANTASIA (sassy). 1s. 6d. net.
 CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

L'ORGANISTE PRATIQUE.
 240 Easy Pieces for Organ or Harmonium, by J. LEYBACH. In 2 vols., price 6s. each net; or in eight parts, each 2s. net. The above will supply a want long felt by amateur performers on the organ or harmonium, as all the pieces are very pretty without being difficult.
 CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S THREE-YEARS' SYSTEM OF HIRE.

PIANOFORTES of every description by all the most celebrated makers from Two Guineas a Quarter.

HARMONIUMS by ALEXANDRE, from One Pound Five Shillings per Quarter.

SECOND-HAND PIANOFORTES, at Immense Reductions for Cash, or on the Three-Years' System.

CHAPPELL'S ENGLISH 20-GUINEA or SCHOOL-ROOM PIANOFORTE, with Check Action, in Canadian Walnut or Mahogany. This instrument combines good quality of tone and excellence of workmanship. Has a lovely touch, and is capable of enduring hard practice without going out of order. Owing to its size, it is admirably adapted for the boudoir or any room where space is an object. In Solid Oak or White Ash, 22 gs.; Rosewood or Walnut Case, 27 gs. 50, New Bond-street.

ASHDOWN and PARRY'S CATALOGUES OF MUSIC.
 PART 1. PIANO, ORGAN, HARMONIUM.
 PART 2. VOCAL.
 PART 3. HARP, CONCERTINA.
 PART 4. VIOLIN, VIOLONCELLO, ORCHESTRA, &c.
 PART 5. FLUTE, CORNET, CLARINET.
 Sent gratis and post-free to any part of the world.
 ASHDOWN and PARRY, Hanover-square, London.

SELECT PIANOFORTE PIECES of

STEPHEN HELLER.
 An Autumn Leaf (Romance, Op. 105, No. 3) 4 0
 An Evening Song (Prelude, Op. 110, No. 10) 3 0
 Aubade (Prelude, Op. 81, No. 7) 3 0
 Barcarolle (Prelude, Op. 81, No. 3) 3 0
 Bercouze (Study, Op. 47, No. 19) 1 0
 Chanson de Mal (Prelude, Op. 81, No. 17) 1 0
 Chant du Bercouze (Prelude, Op. 81, No. 15) 2 0
 Chant du Soir (Study, Op. 45, No. 9) 1 0
 Cradle Song (Chanson du Bercouze, Op. 73, No. 3) 3 0
 Feuillet d'Album (Study, Op. 16, No. 15) 2 0
 Huit de Chasse (Dans les Bois, Op. 86, No. 3) 3 0
 Huntsman's Song (Chant du Chasseur, Op. 73, No. 1) 3 0
 Jaguillet (Study, Op. 80, No. 7) 2 0
 L'Avalanche (Study, Op. 45, No. 2) 1 0
 La Truite (Caprice Brilliant on the Song of Schubert, Op. 38) 4 0
 Liedchen (Study, Op. 45, No. 8) 1 0
 On Song's Bright Pinnles (Improvisation on Song of Mendelssohn, Op. 67) 4 0
 Ondine (Study, Op. 45, No. 16) 1 0
 Parting Song (Mendelssohn's Song transcribed) 3 0
 Réverie au Bois (Study, Op. 45, No. 13) 1 0
 The Watermill (Study, Op. 45, No. 20) 2 0
 Un Bayon du Soleil (Study, Op. 45, No. 1) 1 0
 Une Petite Feuille (Op. 110) 3 0
 Une Petite Histoire (Study, Op. 125, No. 6) 1 0
 Wanderstuden (Réverie d'Artiste, Op. 80, No. 2) 3 0
 The above pieces are among the most popular works of this esteemed Composer. A complete Catalogue of his entire Works, Op. 1 to Op. 141, is now ready, and will be forwarded post-free (on application) to any part of the world.
 London: ASHDOWN and PARRY, Hanover-square.

AIR DU DAUPHIN. Ancienne Danse de la Cour. By ROECKEL. For Piano Solo, Duo, Violin, Harmonium, Orchestra, Organ-Paraphrase, by W. T. Best. Each 18 stamps.—AUGER and Co., 50, Newgate-street, E.C.

GAVOTTE DE LOUIS QUINZE. By MAURICE LEE. Piano Solo, Duo, Violin, Orchestra, Organ Transcription, by F. E. Gladstone. 18 stamps each. AUGER and Co., 50, Newgate-street; and Fubert's-place, W.

AUGENER and CO.'S UNIVERSAL CIRCULATING MUSICAL LIBRARY is the largest in Europe. It contains 100,000 distinct works. Annual Subscription, 5 guineas.—London: 81, Regent-street. Prospectus gratis.

NEW MUSIC.

Price 2s. 6d. each volume, paper; 4s., cloth, gift edges.
THE ROYAL SONG-BOOKS.
 RUBINSTEIN'S 20 SONGS.
 RUBINSTEIN'S 10 VOCAL DUETS.
 BEETHOVEN'S 75 SONGS.
 MENDELSSOHN'S 30 SONGS.
 SCHUMANN'S 75 SONGS.
THE SONGS OF GERMANY (100 Volkslieder).
 The above have all German and English words.
THE SONGS OF ENGLAND (100 Songs).
THE SONGS OF SCOTLAND (150 Songs).
THE SONGS OF IRELAND (100 Songs).
THE SONGS OF WALES (20 Songs).
 The above form a complete Collection of National Songs.
SACRED SONGS, ANCIENT AND MODERN (100 Songs).
HUMOROUS SONGS (72 New and Old Songs).
CHOICE DUETS FOR LADIES' VOICES (24 Duets).
 Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street, London; and all Musicellers and Booksellers.

Price One Shilling each.
BOOSEY'S MUSICAL INSTRUCTORS.
 Dr. CALLOOT'S GRAMMAR OF MUSIC.
 W. T. BEST'S FIRST ORGAN BOOK.
 J. W. ELLIOT'S NEW HARMONIUM TUTOR.
 HENNING'S FIRST BOOK FOR THE VIOLIN.
 CASE'S VIOLIN TUTOR.
 BRINLEY RICHARDS' FIRST LESSONS FOR THE PIANO.
 GEORGE MOUNT'S POPULAR PIANOFORTE TUTOR.
 DR. SPARK'S HANDY-BOOK OF CHORAL SINGING.
 BALFE'S BALLAD TUTOR.
 VACCAR'S SINGING METHOD, without Solfege.
 HATTON'S SINGING TUTOR FOR LADIES' VOICES.
 HATTON'S SINGING TUTOR FOR MEN'S VOICES.
 KAPPEY'S CLARINET TUTOR.
 EDWARD HOWELL'S FIRST BOOK FOR THE VIOLON-CELLO.
 R. S. PRATTEN'S FLUTE TUTOR.
 STANTON JONES'S CORNET TUTOR.
 CASE'S ENGLISH CONCERTINA TUTOR.
 Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street, W.

Price 1s. each Book.
BOOSEY'S CABINET CLASSICS.
 205. RUBINSTEIN'S ALBUM (11 best Pieces). 1s.
 206. RUBINSTEIN'S SIX PRELUDES. 1s.
 207. RUBINSTEIN'S SIX PRELUDES. 1s.
 208. BRAHMS' ALBUM (including 10 waltzes). 1s.
 209. RAFF'S ALBUM (6 best Pieces). 1s.
 30. HELLER'S ALBUM (12 Pieces). 1s.
 101. HELLER'S PETIT ALBUM (10 Pieces). 1s.
 102. HELLER'S BROKEN ALBUM (10 SCOTTAIRE. 1s.
 103. HELLER'S TWENTY-FOUR STUDES. 1s.
 104. SCHUMANN'S KINDERSCENEN, &c. 1s.
 105. SCHUMANN'S FIRST ALBUM FOR YOUTH. 1s.
 106. SCHUMANN'S SECOND ALBUM FOR YOUTH. 1s.
 107. SCHUMANN'S THIRD ALBUM FOR YOUTH. 1s.
 108. CHOPIN'S WALTZES, complete. 1s.
 109. CHOPIN'S MAZURKAS, complete. 1s.
 110. CHOPIN'S NOCTURNES, complete. 1s.
 111. CHOPIN'S TWENTY-FIVE PRELUDES. 1s.
 112. FIELD'S TEN NOCTURNES (all the best). 1s.
 113. MENDELSSOHN'S SONGS WITHOUT WORDS (Six books). 1s.
 114. BEETHOVEN'S WALTZ ALBUM (45 waltzes). 1s.
 Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

NEW SONGS.

THE KING'S HIGHWAY. MOLLOY'S.
 Last and best Song. Sung by Frederic everywhere with a double encore.—Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

AT LAST. By COWEN. Miss Anna Williams will sing "At Last" throughout Madame Trebell's Tour in October and November.
 Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

THE OLD SAILOR WIFE. By MOLLOY.
 Sung by Madame Antoinette Sterling every night at Mr. Lloyd's Provincial Concerts.—Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

FAIR IS MY LOVE. By HATTON.
 Sung by Mr. Santley at all Mr. Pyatt's Concerts.
 Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

WHEN THE HEART IS YOUNG. By DUDLEY BUCK. Sung by Mrs. Osgood every night on Mr. Pyatt's Tour.
 Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

THE OLD-FASHIONED WAY. By Madame SAINTON-DOLBY. Sung by Mr. Edward Lloyd every night on his Tour in October and November.
 Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

POPULAR SONGS.

SONGS by HAMILTON AIDÉ.
 Remember or Forget. The Fisher. Maid I Love is Six Years Old. Let me Dream of Happy Days. Brown Eyes, or Blue Eyes.
 Price 2s. each, net.—Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

SONGS by ALFRED SCOTT GATTY.
 Rothsay Bay. O'er the Sea. Hay is in the Mow. One, Morning, oh! so early. Apart.
 Price 2s. each, net.—Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

SONGS by ARTHUR SULLIVAN.
 The Lost Chord. Let me Dream Again. Living Poems. Sleep, my Love, Sleep. Golden Days. Looking Back.
 Price 2s. each, net.—Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

SONGS by F. H. COWEN.
 It was a Dream. Almost. Spinning. Marguerite.
 Price 2s. each, net.—Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

SONGS by DOLORES.
 Destiny. The Fairies. Clear and Cool. Seaweed.
 Price 2s. each, net.—Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

SONGS by PINSUTI.
 Still Waters Run Deep. As You Like It. All the World's a Stage.
 Price 2s. each, net.—Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

NANCY LEE WALTZ. On the Celebrated Song. The Waltz of the Season.

NANCY LEE WALTZ. Price 2s. net.
 Solo and Duo; Septet, 1s.; Orchestra, 2s.
 Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

New Cantata for Amateur Societies.
THE SONG OF THE MONTHS. Cantata, by FRANCIS HOWELL. Composed of "The Land of Promise" containing twelve numbers illustrating the months of the year. Price 2s. 6d. complete. Separate parts for the chorus, price 6d. each voice. The band parts may also be had.
 Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

W. T. BEST'S FIRST ORGAN BOOK.
 Forty pages, music and text. An Elementary and Practical Guide for Organists. Third day price 1s.
 Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

HANDY-BOOK FOR CHORAL SOCIETIES.
 By Dr. SPARK. Price 1s. A complete Guide for the Study and Practice of Part Music, including 108 Exercises, Part-Songs, Rounds, &c. (56 pages).
 Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

THE CHORALIST. Twelve Anthems and Second Part-Songs by ARTHUR SULLIVAN have been added to this popular series, which now contains 224 Numbers, price One Penny each. Specimen for one stamp.
 Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

With fifteen Illustrations, price 2s. 6d.
LILLIE'S FIRST MUSIC-BOOK. 64 pages music and text. "The most admirable tutor extant for the Pianoforte."—Somerset Herald.
 Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

Beautifully Illustrated in Colours, price 1s.
LILLIE'S SONG-BOOK. A complete Collection of Juvenile Vocal Music, containing fifty youthful Songs, including all the most favourite ditties with the original words, in addition to several new Songs composed expressly for this Work.—Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

BACH'S PASSION MUSIC (S. Matthew). Translated by John Oxenford. Complete, price 1s. 6d. With the view of assisting the congregation in taking a part in the performance of this work, the publishers have issued the Music of the chorales, with the whole of the text, in a separate volume, price 1s. 6d.
 "The English translation is as masterly as it is close to the original. It surpasses anything else in the way that we possess."—Musical World.
 Boosey and Co.'s Edition must be ordered.—235, Regent-street.

NEW MUSIC.

Just published.
KING HENRY'S SONG. By ARTHUR SULLIVAN. Introduced in the revival of "Henry VIII." Price 1s. Half price.
 METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London.

Just published.
BEDOUIIN LOVE SONG. Composed by CERO PINSUTI. Sung by Signor Foll with great success. Price 6s.; post-free, 3s. stamps.
 London: METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, W.

Just published.
A CROSS THE FAR BLUE HILLS. MARIE. New Song. By JACQUES BLUMENTHAL. Words by E. Weatherly. Price 4s.; post-free, 2s. stamps.
 London: METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, W.

THE FIRE KING.—THE PAST IS BUT A TROUBLED DREAM. Sung by Mr. Edward Lloyd. Also, TO ARMS! TO ARMS! War Song. Price 4s. each. Half price.—METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London.

SEA NYMPHS. The New Operetta. By LEOCOO (now being represented at the Folly Theatre). The Libretto (written by H. E. Farnie) and the Music complete, with 11 stage directions, published at 2s. 6d., post-free, in Metzler and Co.'s Edition of Comic Opera.
 METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

WHISPERING KISSES. The New Song. By E. JONAS (from the popular French play, "Bébé"). Is sung by Miss Violet Cameron in "The Cuckoo" at the Folly Theatre with the greatest possible success, and is nightly encored. Post-free, 18 stamps.
 METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

SUNG BY MR. BASTON MCGUCKIN.
MINE OWN. A New Song. By H. GADSBY. Words by F. E. Weatherly. Price 1s.; post-free, half-price.
 METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

SUNG BY MADAME LIEBHART.
FAR FROM HOME. New Song. By G. B. ALLEN. Words by Edward Oxenford. Sung with the greatest success at Madame Liebhart's Concerts. Price 4s.; post-free, half price.
 METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

EDITH'S SONG. From Tennyson's "Harold." Set to Music by ODOARDO BARBI. Post-free, 24 stamps.
 METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

A WINTER'S TALE. From Tennyson's "Harold." "Two young lovers in wintry weather." Set to Music by ODOARDO BARBI. Post-free, 24 stamps.
 METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

WAR SONGS OF THE EAST. By H. B. FARNIE. In handsome cover, price 1s.; post-free, 13 stamps.
 METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

Ready this day.
THE CLANG VAISE (The Clang of the Wooden Shoon) on Molloy's popular Song. Arranged by CHARLES GODFREY. Price 4s.; post-free, 24 stamps.
 London: METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, W.

LA SERENADE. Waltz. By METRA. A most attractive and popular waltz. Solo or Duo. Post-free, 24 stamps.
 METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

LA VAGUE. Waltz. By METRA. Solo or Duo. Post-free, 24 stamps.
 METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

W. SMALLWOOD'S NEW PIECES for PIANOFORTE. Illustrated Thirteens. CRYSTAL DROPPERS. AVELETTE. Gondola Song. FAIRY DREAMS. Post-free, 18 stamps each.
 METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

MASON and HAMLIN'S ORGANS. Now ready. New Illustrated Book. Post-free.
 METZLER and Co., Sole Agents, Great Marlborough-street, W.

MASON and HAMLIN'S ORGANS. New Style 235. Nine Stops. Viola Dolce, Seraphone, &c. Price 28 gs.
 METZLER and Co., Sole Agents, Great Marlborough-street, W.

MASON and HAMLIN'S ORGANS. New Style 312. Ten Stops. With Octave-Coupler and Sub-Bass. Price 40 gs.
 METZLER and Co., Sole Agents, Great Marlborough-street, W.

LANGTON WILLIAMS'S NEWEST SONGS. A BIRDIE'S LIFE (Song Valse). NEVER PARTED ("A Vocal Gem"). W. WILLIAMS and Co., 221, Tottenham-court-road.

JULIA WOOLF'S NEW SONGS. A GREAT SECRET. Words by F. E. Weatherly. Esq. THE BEE AND THE ROSE. Words by Agnes Trevor. "There is an irresistible charm of melody in both these songs."—Daily News. Post-free, 24 stamps.—B. WILLIAMS, 60, Paternoster-row.

GESTHOLEN KUSSE (Stolen Kisses) WALTZ. By HANS WALDENFELT. "One of the most popular waltzes of the season, which promises to be almost as great as that of the 'Blue Danube Waltz.'—'Graphic,' Oct. 4. Wood and Co., 8, Gt. Marlborough-street; and all Musicellers.

OSMAN PASHA MARCH. By ADOLPH MEYER. "Very creditable to its composer, and worthy of the attention of military and civil bands."—'Graphic,' Oct. 4. Wood and Co., 8, Gt. Marlborough-street; and all Musicellers.

CHARLES HALLÉ'S PRACTICAL PIANOFORTE SCHOOL. Section 1.—No. 1. Pianoforte Tutor. FOSTER BROTHERS, London and Manchester.

CHARLES HALLÉ'S NEW EDITION OF POPULAR WORKS. For List of Pieces already published Catalogues will be forwarded, post-free, on application to FOSTER BROTHERS, 272a, Regent-circus, Oxford-street, London; and Cross-street, South King-street, Manchester.

W. MORLEY, Jun.'s, New Publications. THE LITTLE FLOWER GIRL. By W. C. LEVEY. THE MILL MAID. By W. C. LEVEY. Post-free, 1s. 6d. each.—W. MORLEY, Jun., 70, Upper-street, N.

THE FOUR MARIES. Old Ballad, as sung in Mr. Kennedy's Entertainment in St. James's Hall. Post-free for 18 stamps, from METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, or C. JEFFERY, Berners-street, London.

SECONDHAND PIANOS.—BOOSEY and CO. have a large Stock of Instruments by all the great Makers, which they offer, according to their custom on the close of the season, at greatly reduced prices. The majority of these Pianos have been hired for one season only, and are as good as new.—Sole address, 235, Regent-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S BRASS INSTRUMENTS FOR AMATEURS. THE DISTIN CELEBRATED LIGHT VALVE CORNETS, 7 and 9 gs., are the best Cornets manufactured. THE DISTIN MINIATURE CORNET-A-PISTONS, 9 gs. THE DISTIN BALLAD HORN in C, 9 gs. THE DISTIN DRAG AND POST HORNS and BAND INSTRUMENTS at all prices.

THE DISTIN MONTHLY BRASS BAND JOURNAL, 10s. 6d. per annum.
 The above instruments were exhibited by Boosey and Co., at the Philadelphia Exhibition, and were awarded a Prize Medal "For power and good quality of tone, fine workmanship." Estimates for Bands of all sizes, also illustrations and prices, to be had of the sole manufacturers, BOOSEY and CO., 235, Regent-street, London.

SPECIAL NOTICE.—On MONDAY and TUESDAY, OCT. 15 and 16, Messrs. OETZMANN and CO., will OFFER for SALE an immense Stock of PLAIN, PATTERN, and CALICOES, purchased for cash during the usual depression, and which will be sold off much below their usual cost. Reduced Prices will be sent post-free on application. OETZMANN and CO., Complete House Furnishers, 67 to 79, HAMPSTEAD-ROAD, near Tottenham-court-road.

FURNISH THROUGHOUT.
OETZMANN & CO.,
 67, 69, 71, 73, 77 & 79,
 HAMPSTEAD-ROAD,
 NEAR TOTTENHAM-COURT-ROAD.

FURNISH THROUGHOUT.
 OETZMANN and CO., 67, 69, 71, 73, 77, and 79, Hampstead-road, near Tottenham-court-road, with the Cabinet Factory, Albion Works, Drummond Bedding Factory, Eagle-place, London, N.W. Carpets, Furniture, Bedding, Drapery, Furnishings, Ironmongery, China, Glass, Paper-Hangings, Bronzes, Clocks, &c., and every other requisite for completely furnishing a house throughout.

THE IMMENSE RANGE OF PREMISES formerly the EAGLE BREWERY having been REBUILT and ADDED to their SHOW-ROOMS, it is now one of the largest Furnishing Establishments in the world. Comparison of price and quality respectfully solicited before special advantages to Country Customers in delivery of Goods by their own large PANTHOON VANS, and fixing in position by competent persons. Descriptive Catalogue, the best Furnishing Guide extant, post-free.—OETZMANN and CO.

READY MONEY versus CREDIT or BOOKING.—Messrs. OETZMANN and CO.'s business is conducted on the co-operative system of small profits and cash payments, with the extra advantages of centralised management and personal proprietary supervision, the public receiving all the benefit of the co-operative system, and the inherent trouble and charge of co-operative stores will be found lower than those charged at co-operative stores. This system offers great advantage to those in a position to pay ready money.

CABINET and UPHOLSTERY DEPARTMENT.—Elegant Drawing-room Suites, Handsomely carved Italian Walnut Wood, upholstered in rich Worsted Damask, from 8 guineas; ditto, in the same style, upholstered in 60 guineas; elegant Black and Gold Suites, from 12 guineas; superior ditto, from 18 to 20 guineas; Solid Mahogany Dining-room Suites, 8 guineas; ditto, in the same style, upholstered in 12 guineas; ditto, in the same style, upholstered in 12 guineas; Dining Table, 3 guineas.—OETZMANN and CO.

OETZMANN and CO.'S BED-ROOM SUITES.—One of the largest and best assortments in the kingdom to select from, displayed in Show-rooms 228 ft. long, with Bedsteads and Bedding fitted up for inspection. Bed-rooms Suite, consisting of Wardrobe, Chest of Drawers, Washstand, Toilet Table and Glass, Towel Rater, Three Chairs, and Pedestal Cupboard, from 64 guineas, complete. Some new and elegant designs at 15, 18 and 21 guineas. Large and handsomely decorated Bed-rooms Suite in satin, plush, and other woods, at 25, 30, 40, and 75 guineas; also in black and gold, 60 guineas upwards.

OETZMANN'S PATENT PALLIO. MATTRESS supercedes the use of the old rigid palliase; is more cleanly, healthy, and elastic; combines the advantages of a mattress and palliase; the cost of the palliase is 10s. 6d. upwards. See page 123 in "Guide to House Furnishing." Sent post-free on application.—OETZMANN and CO.

ARTISTIC CANE WINDOW BLINDS and SCREENS.—These fashionable blinds can now be had from stock or made to order in any size or design; also Cane and Wicker Chairs, Ladies' Needlework Mounts, Flower Stands, &c., in colours or black. Prices considerably below those usually charged for these goods. Illustrated Price-List post-free. OETZMANN and CO.

PAPERHANGINGS.—OETZMANN and CO.—PAPERHANGINGS at WHOLESALE PRICES. A great saving in price. All the new patterns are now on view at the Show-Rooms.—OETZMANN and CO.

ANGLO-TURKEY CARPETS. OETZMANN and CO. These superior Carpets, of which Messrs. OETZMANN and CO. have the exclusive sale, are of first-class British manufacture, have all the style and appearance of real Turkey Carpets, at little more than the price of good Brussels,

Digitized by Google

CLOSE OF THE BATTLE OF KACELJEVO: F

FROM A SKETCH BY ONE

NAL CHARGE OF THE TURKISH CAVALRY.
OUR SPECIAL ARTISTS.

WAR SKETCHES, BY ONE OF OUR SPECIAL ARTISTS.

BEFORE BIELA: WAITING FOR THE ENEMY.

TURKISH ATTACK, FRIDAY EVENING, SEPTEMBER 7.

BETWEEN THE LOM AND JANTRA.

The recent operations of Mahomet Ali Pasha's army, between the river Lom and the river Jantra, against the army of the Cesarevitch resting on Biela, are fully illustrated by the sketches of our Special Artist, Mr. Melton Prior, who accompanies the division of the Turkish army under Nedjib Pasha. He has more especially supplied the sketches of the important actions that took place at Karahassankoi, at Sinankeui, and at Kaceljevo (or Kazelevo) which have repeatedly been described. Several of the Engravings in this week's publication represent the stirring incidents of the battle of Kaceljevo, fought on the 5th ult., when the Russians were driven back from the Lom, and were forced to retire upon the Jantra; and the conflict of the 14th at Sinankoi, or Sinankeui, related in Mr. Prior's letter which was printed in our last. The following letter of the Times Correspondent, dated the 17th, may serve to explain the general bearings of this movement on the part of Mahomet Ali Pasha, who seems, however, to have found himself under the necessity of retiring upon the Lom, and who has since been deprived of his command in Bulgaria for an imputed failure to execute the plan of his campaign:—

"The operations on the Lom, commenced by the Commander-in-Chief of the Turkish army, led to the battle of Karahassankoi on the 30th ult., and to that of Kazelevo on the 5th inst. These two Turkish victories caused the Russians to abandon the right bank of the Lom, and there soon also followed a general retrograde movement of the Russian forces from the left bank towards the Jantra. By the 7th all the important Russian positions on the other side of the Lom, opposite Kazelevo and at Popkoi, were voluntarily abandoned, and it seemed the intention of the enemy to concentrate the forces at his disposal in this quarter of the seat of war at Biela. The corps commanded by Achmet Eyoub Pasha was stationed at Kazelevo; that under Prince Hassan on the line between Karahassankoi and Saruasufar, his advanced posts taking up ground on the left bank of the Lom. Before, however, proceeding to more detailed description of these operations I may enumerate the advantages accruing to the Turkish army from their possession of the line of this river. First, there is the acquisition by the Turks of a very considerable tract of country which had been in part actually occupied, in part constantly menaced, by the enemy. Secondly, the success at Karahassankoi secured to the Turks a position of the greatest consequence for the protection of Rasgrad and Eski Djuma. Thirdly, the possibility was created of pushing operations as far as the Jantra. Lastly, there must not be left out of account the gain to the morale of the Ottoman troops from this victory.

"But this closes the list of advantages falling to the Turks from these two victories. The position at Kazelevo was, from a tactical point of view, not so good as that at Rasgrad, and co-operation between the two corps under Prince Hassan and Achmet Eyoub Pasha became decidedly more difficult. To judge from the general position of our forces on the 7th, I do not believe it was the intention of the Turkish commanders to push operations towards the Jantra. They seemed disposed to rest satisfied for the present with the partial advantages they had gained, and which were rather moral than military, and wait composedly for a more favourable opportunity to resume the offensive. This policy, however, was suddenly changed by intelligence which Mehemet Ali received of the dangerous situation in which Osman Pasha found himself after the occupation of Lovatz by the Russians. The latter had cut off communication with Osman Pasha, and were aiming by means of a victorious attack on Plevna to precipitate a Turkish disaster. This crisis at once suggested to the Turks a concentrated advance of the forces on the Lom line in the direction of Biela, in order to divert the enemy's strength from the line of Lovatz-Plevna, and consequently relieve the threatened army. The best measures were at once adopted in Constantinople to give speedy succour to the distressed corps. Twenty battalions were directed to Orhanieh, whither Cheket Pasha, who had just arrived at Shumla with thirteen battalions from Soukhoun Kaleh, was also dispatched to take command of the relief corps. On account of the defective communications, however, and the known dilatoriness of the Turks, it is very questionable whether the relief corps will be able to reach Plevna and give the needed succour before the Russians have become masters of the place or inflicted some crushing disaster on the Turks there. To assist, therefore, in the deliverance of Osman Pasha from the above predicament, to divert a part of the enemy's strength from Plevna, and, if possible, by a decisive victory to re-establish the good fortune of the Turks, Mehemet Ali resolved to push his operations from the Lom towards the Jantra.

"The plan of the forward movement was:—The corps commanded by Prince Hassan and Achmet Eyoub Pasha were to march in the direction of Cerkovna and Osikova, there form a junction, and then proceed to operate against Biela. The advance accordingly began on the 12th, the corps under Prince Hassan taking the way of Popkoi, Kopace, and Vodica. On the 13th the advance guard reached Kopace, and on the other side of that place encountered four of the enemy's battalions, occupying the heights to the north. A short but violent engagement ensued between the advance guards of the two bodies, Circassians and Cossacks taking a part in it. On the evening of the same day the corps encamped between Vodica and Kopace, occupying the plateau to the north and the heights to the south of Kopace, the head-quarters being to the west of the latter place, and the advance guard being pushed forward to within three miles of Vodica.

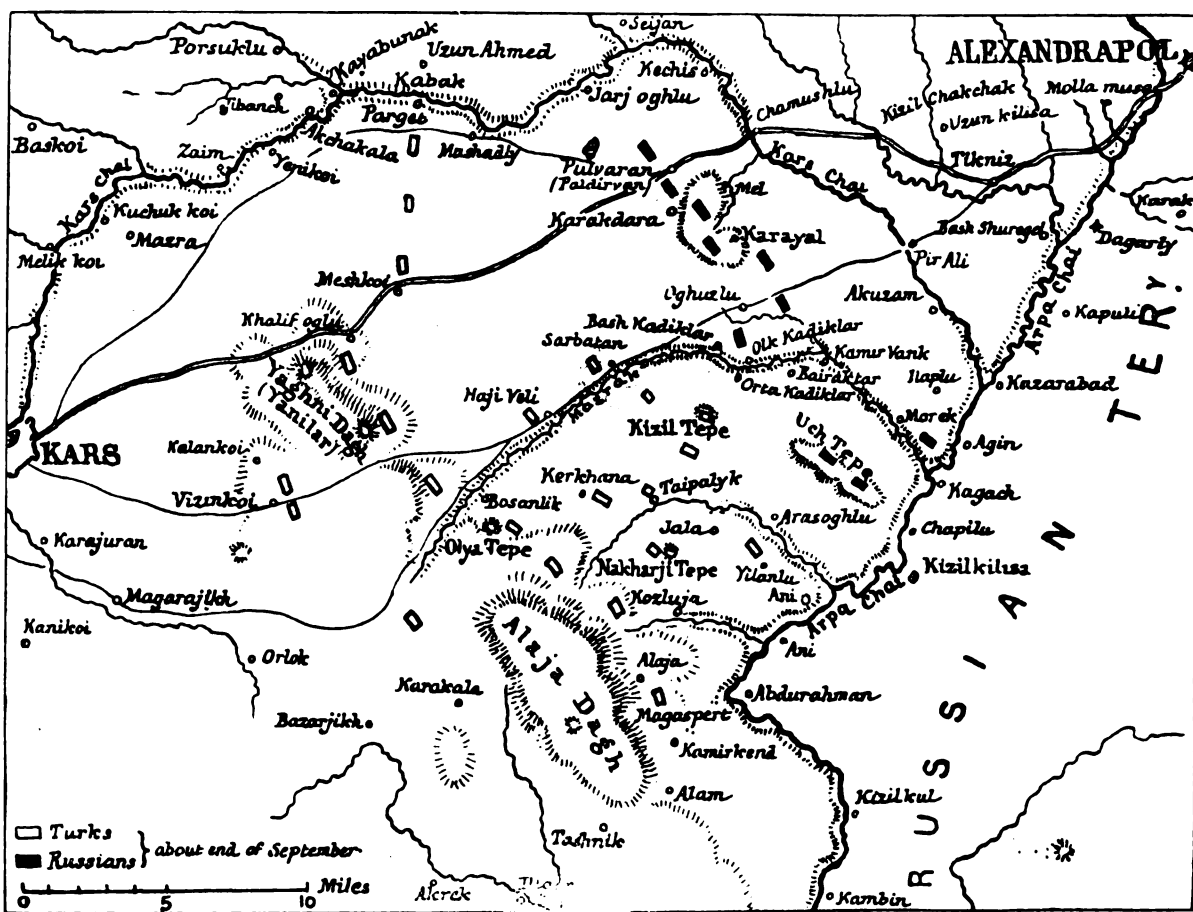

"The corps commanded by Achmet Eyoub Pasha also began its march on the 12th, the main body going by way of Orendzik and Jenidzei. To cover the right flank of this corps, the division under Asov Pasha, consisting of eighteen battalions, was dispatched by way of Stroko to Sinankoi, there to take up a position. On the 13th the bulk of Achmet Eyoub Pasha's corps entered Jenidzei, and soon effected a junction with the troops of Prince Hassan, occupying the plateau to the north of Vodica. At Sinankoi, on the 13th, the division under Asov Pasha encountered the enemy in comparatively weak numbers, and after a short engagement repulsed him. On the 14th the main army remained in position, only making a slight redistribution of their forces. The same day, about noon, Asov Pasha's division, stationed at Sinankoi, was attacked by a large detachment of the 12th Russian Corps. A furious engagement ensued, lasting six hours, and resulting in a somewhat disorderly retreat by the Russians across the Banicka Lom. Asov Pasha, too, up till to-day, has maintained the positions he won. In the course of the 14th there were numerous trifling engagements between reconnoitring bodies along the whole front, these encounters being mainly caused on the part of the Russians by the endeavour to re-establish the feeling with the enemy which they had partly lost by their retreat from the Upper Lom and Kazelevo, consequent upon their defeat at the latter place. After six p.m. of the 14th four battalions marching from Cerkovna made an attack on the Turkish outposts to the west of Vodica. Several Turkish battalions went out against them, and an angry infantry contest arose, lasting almost till midnight, when the Russians retreated. The Turks lost 150 wounded, but the number of their dead was not ascertained. In all directions throughout the night of the 14th and 15th skirmishing went on among the outposts, without, however, assuming anywhere serious proportions.

"Since yesterday all has been perfectly quiet, and the Turkish Army is stationed in the position above described, which it is still further strengthening by earthworks. Reconnaissances, in which the Commander-in-Chief takes an active part, are frequently made, and by them it has been ascertained that one division of the 12th Russian Corps is posted at Botinka, the other division probably holding a post of observation further to the north, towards Rustchuk. The 13th Corps covers the front of Biela, ranged along a line between Golbunar and Koprivca. One division of the 11th Corps is posted at Cairkoi, the second division at Ceserevo being employed to guard Osman Bazar. In case, therefore, of an attack on Biela, the Russians can at once bring up for its defence two corps, and yet have one division left to observe Rustchuk and another to guard Osman Bazar. In these circumstances it would be inadvisable for the Turks to attack Biela, which is, moreover, well fortified. It is true that a commander of energy and talent might prove equal to all these difficulties if he had the support of an army more fitted for offensive operations than the Turkish army can presume to be. Things, however, being as they are, it is the duty of the head of the army to renounce for the present all idea of an attack on Biela. This, of course, suggests the question whether the whole forward movement of the Turks was not a mistake, and whether it would not have been more to their purpose to abide in their old positions. This question, I think, would have had to be answered in the affirmative had it not appeared possible that recent offensive operations of the Turks on the Jantra would engross the attention of forces which otherwise might have been sent forward to help in crushing Osman Pasha at Plevna."

PLAN OF THE CAMPAIGN IN ARMENIA.

The Sketch Map given below illustrates the battles recently fought between Kars and Erzeroum. It must be remembered

THE WAR: MAP OF THE RECENT BATTLES NEAR KARS.

Dagh, owing, it is said, to want of water. The Turks attacked the Russian centre, but were repulsed. After this, on the following day, no operations of importance took place; but in the evening the Russians withdrew most of their forces from Parget, on the Kars river, only leaving there an advanced guard of six battalions.

Our Special Artist, Mr. Bell, supplies a complete illustration of the battle at Kizil-Tepe on Aug. 25, which forms the subject of our two-page Engraving in this week's Number.

Kuo-Ta-Jin, the Ambassador Extraordinary from the Emperor of China, has replied to an address sent to him from a meeting representing the Society of Friends held in London about a month ago. It principally relates to the suppression of the opium traffic, as to which he thinks that further discussion will become inevitable, owing to the intention of the Shanghai Chamber of Commerce to protest against the ratification of the Chefoo Convention, and he suggests that that body should be dissuaded from such a step.

Sir Hardinge Giffard, the Solicitor-General, gave a lecture on Egypt at the Launceston Mechanics' Institute on Monday evening. Egypt, he said, had been for ages the highway of commerce between the East and the West. It had possessed laws and had cultivated peaceful arts whilst surrounding nations had been at war. As to the future of that country, he expressed a belief that if some agreement could be come to amongst the Powers which would banish thoughts of civilising people by force, and try to do it by reason, there would then be hopes of Egypt again taking her place amongst the nations.

General Grant paid a semi-official visit to Southampton last Saturday, and was received by the Mayor and Corporation, having on their robes of office. The party drove through the town and round its outskirts. In accordance with General Grant's expressed wish, the proceedings did not partake of the character of a public demonstration. A considerable crowd, however, assembled outside of the hotel, and as a compliment to the distinguished guest a salute was fired from the Platform Battery, and the bells of the church of Holyrood were rung. In many parts of the town the American national flag was displayed.—General and Mrs. Grant arrived at Torquay on that on Aug. 18 the Russians left their encampments at Kadiklar and Kurukdara, and formed in line of battle extending from Parget, on the Kars river, to the Uch Tepe, near the Arpa Chai. They advanced with forty-five battalions, ten regiments of cavalry, and 112 guns. On the left they captured Kerkhana and Taipalyk, but failed in their attack upon the Nakharji Tepe. On the right they advanced against Vizinkoi and the Yaghni Dag, or Yanilar; but, having captured Sarbatan, they failed to make any further progress, and retired in good order to their encampments. The advanced camps, at Parget and Ani, were evacuated in consequence of this engagement. An illustration of this battle will be found in our Paper of the 29th ult. On Aug. 24 the Russians were seen to concentrate the whole of their forces near Kurukdara, leaving only a small force on the Kizil-Tepe. The Turks, availing themselves of this indiscretion, attacked the latter place during the dawn of the 25th, and captured it. The Russians were unable to recover this position; and, after some severe fighting at Sarbatan and Uch Tepe, they retired. This engagement was described in our Paper of last week. On or about the 15th ult. the Turks reinforced their left wing, and occupied Parget, on the Kars river. Their positions were then approximately those shown upon our present Map. The third and most important battle began on the 1st inst. with a skirmish near the Arpa Chai, in which the Russians are said to have been worsted. On the 2nd inst. the Russian General made a serious attempt to cut off the Turks from Kars. At break of day the Russians captured the Great Yaghni Dag (Yanilar), but their attempt on the Little Yaghni failed. They appear also to have occupied Parget and Akchakala, on the Kars river. On their right flank the Turks not only resisted the attack of the Russians, but drove the enemy back as far as the Arpa Chai. The Russians state their losses on this day at sixty-nine officers and 3000 men killed and wounded, whilst the Turks assert that their enemy lost 5000 men, and in another account that they found 5000 dead upon the field of battle. Next day (Wednesday week) there was but little fighting on the Russian left; the Russians retained their positions; but on Thursday week the battle recommenced. During the night the Russians voluntarily evacuated their positions on the Great Yaghni

Monday evening; they are the guests of Mr. A. D. Jessup, of New York.—The visit of General Grant to Birmingham has been fixed for the 16th and 17th inst. A committee has been formed to give the General a suitable reception, and on the 17th a public dinner to welcome him will take place at the Townhall.

The Countess of Leven's residence, Roehampton House, Roehampton, was entered and robbed on the night of the 5th inst, while the members of the household were assembled at prayers in the dining-room. One of the servants went to a bed-room, and, finding the door locked from the inside, her suspicion was aroused, and she gave an alarm. It was then found that the bed-room window had been entered by means of a ladder, and jewellery and money—in notes—taken to the value of about £60.

A harvest thanksgiving service was held in Kilsallaghan church, diocese of Dublin, last Sunday, and an appropriate sermon was preached by the Rev. Canon Twigg, A.M., Vicar of the united parishes of Swords and Kilsallaghan; text, St. John xii. 24, and a collection was made for the Indian Famine Relief Fund. The church was tastefully decorated with harvest products, and hymns suitable to the occasion were sung. The parish of Kilsallaghan, the church of which is one of the smallest in Ireland, was the first benefice held by the venerated Bishop of Cork, now the oldest Bishop of the Irish Church; and during his incumbency his son, now Bishop of Ossory, was born in the Vicarage of Kilsallaghan.

Last Saturday afternoon the memorial to the well-known Lancashire author and politician, Mr. Samuel Bamford, the author of "Passages from the Life of a Radical," at the cemetery, adjoining the old parish church, Middleton, near Manchester, was unveiled in the presence of thousands of spectators. The memorial consists of an obelisk 25 feet high. It bears a medallion of the deceased, and an inscription relating to the prominent part he took in the advocacy of civil and religious liberty, Free Trade, and Parliamentary reform. A large number of the local notabilities were present. Mr. J. T. Hibbert, M.P. for Oldham, addressed the meeting and adverted strongly to the useful career of Mr. Bamford in the various spheres to which he devoted himself.

MUSIC.

The twenty-second season of Saturday afternoon concerts at the Crystal Palace began well last week, when the programme was of strong and varied interest. The concert opened with Weber's romantic overture to "Oberon" and closed with that to Auber's last opera but one, "Le Premier Jour de Bonheur," a work containing much graceful music, although of a slighter nature than the composer's earlier productions. The central orchestral piece was Beethoven's first symphony (in C major), in which there is much of the melodic charm of Mozart's style. Sir Julius Benedict's pianoforte concerto in E flat was brilliantly played by Madame Arabella Goddard, for whom this fine work was specially composed, and by whom it had previously been performed at the Crystal Palace. A specialty in Saturday's programme was the music composed by Mr. Arthur Sullivan for Shakespeare's "Henry the Eighth," and given, on this occasion, for the first time in London. It consists of an imposing pageant march, a very characteristic song and chorus, a graceful dance movement, and some "slow water music." There is much character and effective instrumental writing in this incidental music, which was composed for the revival of the play by Mr. Calvert, at Manchester; Mr. Sullivan's music for "The Merchant of Venice" having been produced under similar circumstances. Each of the pieces given on Saturday was much applauded, particularly the song and chorus to words alleged to be by King Henry VIII. This is one of the best of the numbers, and pleased so greatly as to command an immediate encore. The remainder of Saturday's programme consisted of Senta's ballade (from Wagner's "Flying Dutchman") and lieder by Chopin and Kirchner, well sung by Madame Sophie Löwe; and Schumann's chorus, "Gipsy Life," effectively rendered by the Crystal Palace choir. Mr. Manns was, as usual, warmly applauded on reappearing at the conductor's desk. The second concert takes place to-day (Saturday), when the programme will include Max Bruch's violin concerto (played by Señor Sarasate), and his prelude to "Loreley" (both conducted by the composer), Cherubini's overture to "Anacreon," and that by Mendelssohn entitled "A Calm Sea and Prosperous Voyage," and Haydn's symphony in B flat.

This week's programmes of the Covent Garden Promenade Concerts have comprised a Sterndale Bennett night, on Wednesday, and another ballad night, announced for yesterday (Friday) evening.

The Crystal Palace performances of operas in English this week have comprised "Faust" on Tuesday, for the benefit of Mr. H. Corri, and "Norma" on Thursday, for the benefit of Madame Ida Gillies Corri.

The Monday Popular Concerts will be resumed on Nov. 12.

The Borough of Hackney Choral Association will begin a new season on Nov. 12, with Mr. E. Prout as conductor—this being the second year of his appointment to the office. As before, the arrangements will include the engagement of a complete orchestra, and the works to be performed will be chiefly of the classical school.

The fourth series of the Glasgow "Choral and Orchestral Concerts" will take place in the newly-erected halls next month, in December, and January, beginning on Nov. 15. A full orchestra has been engaged, with Mr. J. T. Carodus as leading violinist; and the chorus, of about 400 voices, will again be under the direction of Mr. H. A. Lambeth—Dr. Hans von Bülow having been engaged as orchestral conductor. During the series of concerts Professor Macfarren's cantata "The Lady of the Lake" (expressly composed for them) will be produced. Among other features of the programme will be "The Messiah," "Elijah," and Beethoven's "Choral Fantasia." There will be nine performances, three of which will be choral and six orchestral.

It is said that Messrs. Novello, Ewer, and Co.—the eminent music-publishers—propose founding a musical scholarship at the National Training School for Music, South Kensington; and a similar scholarship at the Royal Academy of Music, Tottenham-street, Hanover-square.

The Rev. W. D. V. Duncombe, M.A., Minor Canon of Hereford Cathedral, has been appointed Custos of the College of Vicars Choral in the cathedral, in succession to the late Rev. Custos Goss.

THE LATE MDLLE. TITIENS.

As briefly recorded last week, Mdlle. Titiens died on the 3rd inst. She manifested remarkable vocal powers at a very early age. After pursuing her musical studies at Vienna, she returned to Hamburg, where she made her stage debut in 1849 as Lucrezia Borgia. She afterwards appeared at Frankfurt; and then at Vienna, as Donna Anna, in 1856. Her growing success and renown led to her engagement in London, where she made her first appearance at Her Majesty's Theatre in 1858 as Valentina in "Les Huguenots." From that time until May, this year, Mdlle. Titiens maintained a special position by her admirable performances in heroic and tragic opera. From the destruction of Her Majesty's Theatre by fire in 1867, Mdlle. Titiens still remained a member of Mr. Mapleson's establishment, during the seasons of his occupation of Drury-Lane Theatre, and again on his occupancy of the new building in the Haymarket which replaced the one that was burnt. Only a few appearances were made there by Mdlle. Titiens, when the necessity for a severe surgical operation disabled her from following her career, which has now, unhappily, terminated by a premature death, for the singer was in the plenitude of her powers. Not only on the stage, but also as a concert-singer and in oratorio, Mdlle. Titiens occupied the highest rank. With but few exceptions, including a visit to America, her career was pursued in this country. As we remarked in our summary of this year's season at Her Majesty's Theatre, in commenting on Mdlle. Titiens's illness, she was as much liked and esteemed personally as she was admired for her exceptional qualities as an artist. As a representative of the heroines of romantic and tragic opera, her death leaves a void which can scarcely be filled, and her loss will be deeply and widely lamented from feelings of personal esteem.—Mdlle. Titiens was buried on Monday, in the cemetery at Kensal-green. The funeral procession comprised six mourning coaches and a large number of private carriages, including one sent by command of the Queen. Near the grave there was a large assemblage of notable persons of the musical and dramatic professions.

An open competition for thirty situations as assistant of excise in the Inland Revenue Department will be held by the Civil Service Commission in London, Edinburgh, Dublin, Liverpool, Bristol, Plymouth, Leeds, Birmingham, Norwich, Glasgow, Dundee, Aberdeen, Cork, Galway, Belfast, Omagh, and Limerick, on Dec. 13 and 14 next. The limits of age for candidates are nineteen and twenty-two. Second-class assistants of excise receive a salary of £60 per annum, with an additional allowance of 2s. per diem when actively employed. They are eligible for promotion to higher situations.

THEATRES.

HAYMARKET.

No human action is governed by a single motive. More than one concurs in producing the simplest determination of the mind. It is impossible to secure purity and singleness of impulse for the most ordinary effort of selection either of end or means. Thus, in the sublimest exhibition of the affections, there is an alloy which qualifies the fine gold of sentiment, and worldly interests enter into the calculations of the least selfish. Nor does the perplexity stop there; for, in the choice of motives, the individual will predominate, and lends the weight to the one impulse that enables it to guide the conduct. Mr. W. S. Gilbert has placed on the stage of this theatre a comedy, entitled "Engaged," showing how, among well-intentioned and respectable people, they are led by vulgar motives and sordid interests, even when designing to show themselves at their best as generous and loving, and even pious characters. But in the treatment of his subject he commits a serious error. Instead of showing how inferior motives interfere with and qualify the noblest intentions, he sacrifices the latter entirely to the former, and makes the only real impulse to consist in selfishness, and reduces the loftier to a merely negative position. His virtuous people, accordingly, are all hypocrites; their aims are uniformly ignoble, while their professions are exaggerated pretensions. We have, consequently, no sympathy for any of the characters in Mr. Gilbert's so-called "comedy," and even in the "farical" element which it also claims we lack that geniality without which farce is a sterile absurdity. The proper title of Mr. Gilbert's work would be a satire; but even then it would exceed the truth, and show no "soul of goodness in things evil." The satirist has no right to belie humanity, and, instead of correcting certain faults or frailties, to condemn it altogether as wholly despicable and bad. All classes, according to Mr. Gilbert, are saturated with the same vice, and an inherent villany levels them equally in the same degradation. The Scottish peasant affects a pathos which he does not feel, and his lassie an attachment which she is ready to discard in presence of a better offer. The former is willing to sell her to a rival for "two pounds," and the latter to exchange him for a stranger with a fortune. Yet she describes herself as "vera guid," as well as "vera beautiful," and therefore entitled to make the most of her qualities in the matrimonial market. Angus Macalaster, her lowland admirer, while maintaining a decent exterior, is capable of extraordinary baseness. He manages so to practise on the railway lines to Gretna that they continually upset the trains, without doing serious damage to the passengers, in order that they may be compelled to find refuge in a widow's cottage for a time, and bring the custom on which she thrives. The heroine, too, rejoicing in the aristocratic name of Belinda Treherne (Miss Marion Terry), in the midst of her heroic protestations of "an imperishable love," all at once descends from her stilts to inquire into the gentleman's income, and, finding it uncertain, defers her answer sine die. Meantime, she practises with a man of property, Mr. Cheviot Hill (Mr. George Honey), who, for a purpose, acknowledges her to be his wife before two witnesses, and thus, according to Scottish law, becomes her husband. Out of this absurd situation, which closes the first act, the plot is subsequently evolved, consisting, in fact, simply of hypothetical perplexities, and not any real imbroglio. A doubt is raised whether the acknowledgment took place on Scottish soil, the cottage being situated on border-land, and this serves to drag out the two final acts; the question being settled by the discovery that the garden is in Scotland, though the hut itself is in England. The lady gladly seizes on the fact that they were married in the garden, and thus secures her selfish aim. The lady has other lovers, who contribute to the broad fun of the piece, which throughout provokes vehement laughter, mingled with some resentment on account of the satire concealed in its ridiculous argument. We could have wished that Mr. Gilbert had treated us with a genuine comedy, in which there had been less burlesque and more of true dramatic life and character. We confess that to us the piece is unsatisfactory, and leaves behind a disagreeable impression.

COURT.

This theatre distinguished itself on Saturday by producing a posthumous work of the late Lord Lytton. The author, it appears, left the drama in an unfinished state; but, with the consent of the present Lord Lytton, Mr. Charles Coghlan has been permitted to write a fifth act, completing the production. It is entitled "The House of Darnley," not the famous Scotch family, but a city firm, the hero being a commercial speculator who has succeeded, and values himself on being a prosperous man of business. He has a friend, named Mainwaring, who, in his blunt way, is always contriving some good; he has also a dangerous acquaintance, Sir Francis Marsden, who has designs upon his wife. Then there is Lord Fitzhollow, her father, with other minor persons, "whereof here needs no account." The action opens with a statement of Marsden's designs on Lady Juliet, and then proceeds with Darnley himself and his clerk, Parsons, who cautions his principal against imprudent speculation, and his friend Mainwaring, who warns him of his wife's danger. The best scene in the play is one in the second act, where Darnley, in the presence of his wife, tells a parable which includes a portrait of the seducer, and then, putting on his hat, with a knowing wink at his wife, leaves the parties together. His confidence, however, is not quite justified by the event, and his contempt not without a perilous ingredient. Lady Juliet suspects him of an intrigue with a lady dwelling in St. John's-wood, and deserts him just as ruin falls upon his house, but returns to him as soon as news of his misfortune reaches her unwilling ears. So far, Lord Lytton's portion of the story extends: the winding-up was an easy task. The performance has been eminently successful.

GLOBE.

A new piece was introduced to the public at a morning performance last Saturday, entitled "Two Hundred a Year." Such is the income supposed to be possessed by a man about town, who schemes to marry a lady of great expectations. A woman of the world endeavours to make a mere convenience of him; but is thwarted by the fact that her fortune is doubtful. Ultimately, she makes herself content with the small income of her husband, and is rewarded for her acquiescence by the recovery of the will on which her own depended. The affair is a trifle, a comedietta, written by Mr. A. F. Pinero, which merits the success it achieved.

A special morning performance, in aid of the Royal General Theatrical Fund, is announced to take place at this theatre next Saturday, Oct. 20. An appropriate address, written by Mr. Clement Scott, will be delivered by Mrs. Stirling; and among other items in the programme will be a recitation by Mr. Hermann Vezin, and Morton's comedy, "Speed the Plough." The comedy, which has not been played for twenty years, has been specially revised by Messrs. Arthur Matheson and Edward Righton; and the cast will include Miss Litton, Mrs. Stephens, Messrs. W. Farnen, Ryder, Warner, Righton, Billington, J. Clarke, E. Terry, Lionel Brough, David James, and Thomas Thorne.

Under the patronage of the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress, a special morning performance will take place at the Strand on Saturday, the 27th inst., in aid of the Indian Famine Fund, when the members of the company will give their services.

Mr. O. O. Flower, of Stratford-on-Avon, who has already subscribed liberally towards the Shakespeare Memorial, now offers a further donation of £4000, provided a similar amount be subscribed by the public.

THE SANITARY CONGRESS AT LEAMINGTON.

The Congress was resumed on the 4th inst. by Dr. G. Wilson, medical officer for Mid-Warwickshire, reading a paper on the Past History and Future Prospects of Sanitary Science. He traced the recurring epidemics and famines of the middle ages to the unsanitary condition which everywhere prevailed, sewerage and water supply being wholly neglected, food coarse, and unsuitable intoxicating drinks generally used, and personal and domestic cleanliness unknown. As triumphs of sanitary science, he pointed to the virtual extinction of various epidemic diseases that were formerly widespread, and, passing to the future, urged that others might be as completely mastered. The death-rate throughout the country was one third beyond what it should be, representing 115,000 needless deaths annually. A second section sat at the Townhall, presided over by Mr. Chadwick. Dr. Moffat recommended that furniture and skirting boards should be regularly polished with beeswax and turpentine, because of their ozonic properties, and that juniper-trees, which emitted turpentine, should be planted around cesspools and other offensive places. Mr. Baldwin Latham dealt with subterranean water and disease. His deductions were that cholera, dysentery, enteric fever, and diarrhoea prevail most when subterranean water supplies reached their lowest level, whilst phthisis decreased with perfect drainage. A third section at the Pump-Room was presided over by Dr. Richardson. Surgeon-Major Chaumot, of Netley, speaking on climate and disease, showed that, excepting malaria, hygiene was much more important than locality, and that Indian mortality, though still far too high, had been reduced one half. Dr. Bartlett, treating of water for domestic use, pointed out that germs and spores were detected by microscopic examination in chemically satisfactory water, but which induced pyrosis and other derangements of the stomach. His deduction, therefore, was that water should be microscopically examined as well as chemically analysed. Miss Rose Adams, secretary of the London Ladies' Sanitary Association, contributed and read a paper on woman's work in relation to sanitary sciences. She urged that woman could best teach sanitary truths at home amongst women and children.

Next day the President, Dr. Richardson, occupied the chair, and announced that a cordial invitation had been received from the Mayor and Corporation of Stafford to hold the next conference of the institute there; but, as he knew there was also an invitation on the way from Maidstone, he suggested that the selection of the next place of meeting should be referred to the council in London. This suggestion met with the approval of the meeting, and was adopted. The event of the day was Dr. Brudenell Carter's address on Present Possibilities of Sanitary Science, which created almost as great an impression as the President's opening address. Having likened persons living in an unsanitary state to animals shut up in a close cage, which in the course of time would destroy each other, he referred to the plague and the black death, and said they were clearly owing to the filthy houses and habits of our ancestors, the floors being strewn with rushes, which were never removed, but merely covered with another layer, and all manner of filth was allowed to accumulate underneath. There were in the present day seven principal types of communicable disease—smallpox, measles, scarlet fever, diphtheria, whooping-cough, fever, and diarrhoea, which annually destroyed in England 100,000 lives. It was known of some of them, and more than surmised with regard to all, that they were produced or propagated solely by means of filth or imperfect nuisance removal. He thought that what they were fairly entitled to ask of the Legislature was that where the introduction of disease had been traced to a certain channel that channel should be effectually closed for the future. It had been shown that one tenth of the blindness in Ireland was occasioned by smallpox, scarlet fever, measles, and fever. If the evils he had attempted to describe were to fall for the first time on a community paying due heed to sanitary regulations, they would surely be deemed so terrible that no sacrifice would be thought too great to remove them. It was only the influence of habit that led to their being regarded with indifference. In conclusion, he alluded to party politics, which had been such a great hindrance in the way of sanitary reform, and at whose shrine the lives of the people of England had been offered up. If such a transformation were possible, he hoped some professional politician of the present day would undergo development into a statesman; and he might thus be able to aspire to the highest rank of statesmanship and to enter upon a comparatively untrodden career. Such a man, of adequate culture and capacity, would be able to write his name on the pages of history as the greatest benefactor of mankind. The address, which was frequently applauded, was acknowledged by a special vote of thanks, on the motion of the Hon. and Rev. J. W. Leigh, seconded by Dr. Edgchill. A section also sat at the Townhall. Two papers were read on the treatment of town sewage, the second being an explanation of the interception process practised at Birmingham; and Dr. Stevenson, of Paddington, read one on the public conveyance of the infected sick. A fourth paper, by Dr. Russell, of Edinburgh, pointed out how the ignorance of builders and plumbers of the laws of health led them to render houses unhealthy by the way they were constructed and work and repairs were executed. A third section met in the Pump-Rooms in the afternoon. Dr. Baly, the medical officer of Leamington, read a paper on the sanitary condition of the borough, describing its complete system of sewerage, its perfect new water supply, its thorough system of scavenging, and, as a consequence, its low death-rate. Mr. W. Eassie, C.E., the secretary of the Cremation Society, London, exhibited working models and drawings sent from Padua, Milan, and Dresden, illustrating the process of cremation and burial, and delivered a brief address explanatory of both. Several other papers of minor interest were read. In the evening the members dined together at the Regent Hotel.

Excursions were made last Saturday to places of interest in the locality.

An excellent portrait of Mdlle. Titiens has been lithographed and published by Messrs. Maclure and Macdonald, of Queen Victoria-street.

1. Gravitza Main Redoubt, captured by the Roumanians, Sept. 11.

2. Second Gravitza Redoubt, still besieged by Roumanians.

3. Another Turkish Redoubt.

4. Roumanian

THE WAR: THE GRAVITZA REDOUBT, AND RIGHT

FROM A SKETCH BY ONE

Artillery. 5. Turkish Artillery. 6. Dust thrown up by exploding shells. 7. Rifle-pits on the slope where the Roumanians advanced to assault the Second Redoubt.

VIEWING OF THE TURKISH POSITION AT PLEVNA.

OUR SPECIAL ARTISTS.

ECHOES OF THE WEEK.

Next Monday will be, both from a political and a social point of view, a terribly eventful day; and people are looking for it as anxiously as, a generation since, we looked for Monday, the Tenth of April, 1848. By next Monday the result of the French elections will be known; and the fate of the four miserable wretches now under sentence of death in Maidstone Gaol must, one way or the other, be decided. Although the destinies of a neighbouring nation and the chances of European peace or war during many years to come hang on the votes which on Sunday will be cast into the electoral urns by the French people, public opinion in England is much more excited about the sentence in the Penge murder case than by the struggle between the French Republicans and Marshal MacMahon. Even so, in 1815, did the brilliant star of Waterloo for a moment pale in the lurid glare of the controversy as to the guilt or innocence of Eliza Fenning. That unfortunate servant-girl was hanged for poisoning a whole family with arsenic. That she was not guilty of the crime for which she suffered death is now generally acknowledged. Nor was Jonathan Bradford guilty—albeit his intent had been a murderous one. Nor was Ambrose Gwynneth—although he was lucky enough to come to life again after he had been hanged in chains; and, after a long lapse of years, established his innocence in the light of day.

Of course we have been reminded of all these historic instances, and of a great many more, as bearing upon the case of the Stauntons and Alice Rhodes; but I fail to see that they have any kind of similarity with it. If, however, you will glance at a strangely and deeply interesting book called "Female Life in Prison, by a Prison Matron," published some fifteen years since by Messrs. Sampson Low, you will find a story which will at once remind you of the Penge "Mystery." I have not the book before me; but I remember that the cause célèbre in question was that of a mother and daughter, both ignorant peasants, who were convicted of manslaughter by starving the younger daughter of the prisoner. It was shown that the deceased was set to the work of making pillow-lace; that she frequently failed in the accomplishment of her task, and that she was deprived of food, as a punishment—such, at least, was the theory of the prosecution—for her negligence. In particular, for two days immediately preceding her death she had gone without nourishment; and the Crown strongly insisted, as a proof of the duress exercised towards her, on the circumstance that on her deathbed she had been heard to pray fervently to Heaven that she might be able to do her pillow-lace.

The mother and daughter were sentenced to a term of penal servitude; and in due time they were removed to Millbank, and came under the observation of the Prison Matron, who describes them as a dull, frigid, unimpressible pair. So impassible, indeed, were they, that when, after a year or two, as a reward for good behaviour, they were allowed to be in association for a few minutes, the only greeting of the mother to the daughter was, "Well, Elizabeth!" and of the latter to her parent, "Well, mother!" The Matron expressed her firm belief that these women were wholly innocent of the offence for which they were punished. The husband of the former and father of the latter was a shepherd, the whole family were miserably poor; and long after the conviction it was ascertained that at the very time of the youngest daughter's death the entire household was literally without bread. The two prisoners mainly owed their sentence to their own dull apathy and taciturnity. They had not had courage, or sense enough, to tell their story even to their own counsel; so the prosecution had things altogether its own way. Silence, you will admit, may be, upon occasion, anything but golden. All readers of Victor Hugo's great romance will remember the judicial misfortunes that befell poor Quasimodo because he was deaf. The Judges were incensed by his surdity; so the unhappy hunchback got scourged, and was set in the pillory.

Enough of these horrors; but until the momentous Monday is over the Penge murderers will be tossed on the universal tongue. The dismal business seems temporarily to have thrown the entire public mind into a morbid state. The polished and philosophical Spectator publishes, and the grave and lofty Times copies, a long and hideously repulsive article called "The Black Museum," giving a detailed account of a number of nasty things appertaining to crime and criminals which are preserved in an upper room at the police headquarters in Scotland-yard; and one of the most fashionable shop windows in Regent-street is full of the cartes de visite of the Penge convicts and of the four detectives who are awaiting their trial. Decidedly the wind has set in the direction of Tyburn and Botany Bay, or the modern equivalents for those erst famous points of the criminal compass.

I have been reading Lord Ronald Gower's address at the Social Science Congress recently held at Aberdeen, and over the Fine-Art Section of which his Lordship so ably presided. The address, which was scarcely mentioned (owing to the surpassing interest of the Tyburn and Botany Bay matters) by the London papers, is, to my thinking, an admirable one. Lord Ronald sensibly left controversy on art-topics to the speakers who were to follow him, and confined himself to giving an eloquent and lucid résumé of the history and progress of the art of portraiture in Scotland, especially with reference to Aberdeen, whence have come many of the most gifted painters and sculptors of whom Caledonia can boast.

Naturally, the accomplished President had a good deal to say about Ramsay, George the Third's favourite painter, and whom Lord Ronald somewhat disparagingly (and quite justly) qualified as a kind of eighteenth-century Winterhalter. The artist's father, Allan Ramsay, wig-maker, bookseller, and poet, had nevertheless a much higher opinion of his son's talent. In my commonplace book 'I light upon the following letter, dated Edinburgh, May 10, 1736, written by the author of the "Gentle Shepherd" to Mr. Smibert, "an eminent painter and intimate friend." "My Son Allan," writes the old gentleman, "has been pursuing your science since he was a dozen years old—was with Mr. Hyffidg, at London, for some time, about two years ago—has been since at home, painting here like a Raphael—sets out for the seat of the beast, beyond the Alps, within a month hence—to be away about two years. I'm sicer to part with him, but canna stem the current which flows from the advice of his patrons and his own inclination." Allan did wisely in not stemming the current, for the younger Ramsay, although he did not paint precisely "like a Raphael," made a large fortune by his art.

Mem: Who was Mr. Smibert, that eminent painter, and who was Mr. Hyffidg, of London? My commonplace book says nothing about them, and I have no other books by me save Don Quixote and the Faerie Queene. Why? Because I have no home (they are whitewashing my Lare and staining my Penates oak colour); and I have come, for lack of a domicile, to Brighton. Everybody should come to Brighton just now. We are having the most delightful "Indian Summer" weather that you can conceive. Lord Beaconsfield is here; and in another week I will wager that the Premier will look blooming and feel himself a boy again. George the Fourth is here. I saw him this morning trotting across the Steyne, in a curly brown wig, a real beaver hat, and a claret-coloured surcoat with a velvet collar. If it was not his Majesty, the ancient buck whom I met was certainly an admirably well-preserved relic of the Georgian era. In any case, I should advise you to come to Brighton. The cheese-takes at Mutton's and the old port at the Old Ship are as excellent as ever; and the young ladies from the "Colleges" and "Seminaries," celebrated by Mr. Ashby Sterry in his poem of "Two and Two," look even more sylph-like and more bewitching than they were wont. Come to Brighton, by all means. Herr Kuhe is giving his concerts; and the fly-drivers and Bath-chair men are civil and obliging. Come to Brighton, for fresh figs (was their cultivation introduced into Sussex by some of the Spanish waifs and strays cast ashore here after the dispersion of the Spanish Armada?) are ripe and cheap; the bathing season is not yet over; there is no mud; there are no fogs; there is nothing the matter with the gas, or the water, or the drainage, or the subterranean telegraph wires; there are no beggars by day nor burglars by night to make life burdensome to you, and—aha!—there are no printers' devils. Knock and ring, my young friends, as loudly and as persistently as you please at my door in London. Sit on the doorstep till your hair grows out of your caps, and your toes grow through your boots. I am at Brighton, and defy you. If they would only suppress the Electric Telegraph for awhile and limit the postal deliveries to one a day, the measure of my felicity would be complete.

About William Blake, "Pictor Ignotus," painter, engraver, poet, theologian, and madman, an amazing amount of more or less eloquent nonsense has within these latter days been written. The poor crazy man of genius who wrote the beautiful verses on "The Tiger" and on "The Little Lamb," and who drew the Ghost of a Flea, and many more wild things, has served a number of clever literary gentlemen merely as a peg on which to hang long-winded rhapsodies of criticism on their contemporaries and on themselves. Infinitely preferring deeds to words, I rejoice to see the noble etchings by Mr. W. Bell Scott from paintings and drawings by Blake, which have just been published in a handsome folio by Messrs. Chatto and Windus. The explanatory text is as discriminative as the etchings are artistic. Blake himself was a pupil of the famous engraver Basire; but until the appearance of Mr. Bell Scott's folio I can remember no worthy interpreter on copper of the "Pictor Ignotus," with the exception of Schiavonetti, who engraved Blake's outline illustrations to Blair's "Grave." Among Mr. Scott's etchings the masterpiece is, to my mind, that of the Nativity. Both in needle-work and biting-in it is worthy of Rembrandt. There are other plates which remind you vaguely, but irresistibly, of the famous Spaniard, Francisco Goya y Lucientes. What was the motto prefixed by Goya to his most mysterious aquatints? "El sueño de la razon produce monstruos." Slumbering reason engenders monsters. The epigraph might with advantage be applied to many of Blake's productions. This is flat heresy, the clever literary gentlemen will tell me, I daresay. I cannot help it. I was always a heretic, and had I lived in Torquemada's time that orthodox official would have roasted me, to a certainty.

G. A. S.

The Birmingham School Board has resolved that a memorial should be presented to the Educational Department to take steps for obtaining a Royal Commission to consider the present conditions of spelling in the English language, and the possibility of adopting some measure of reform.

A large and influential meeting was held at Dundee yesterday week, at which Provost Robertson presented the Rev. George Gillfillan with an elegant cabinet and a cheque for £1000, subscribed by his admirers in all parts of the world. The interest of the money is to be applied to support two scholarships for poor students.

The Tunbridge Wells Agricultural Show was held yesterday week, in splendid weather. Amongst the principal prize-takers were the Marquis of Abergavenny, Marchioness Camden, and Messrs. E. and A. Stanford, who took the two challenge cups, which they had won for three consecutive years, for the best Sussex bull and horse, and the champion cup for the best yearling heifer.

Commander William Dawson, of the Royal Navy, writing on behalf of the Missions to Seamen Society, of which he is the secretary, says:—"Within the present year 3080 disused prayer-books, 6895 hymn-books, and 63,000 old books, magazines, periodical papers, &c., have been put on board merchant-ships by the Missions to Seamen chaplains and readers. As our supply is exhausted, would you allow me to say how thankful we should be if your readers would send their disused books, magazines, and pictorial papers in boxes, hampers, sacks, or parcels, by rail or parcel delivery to the Missions to Seamen Society, 11, Buckingham-street, Strand, London, W.C., where book notices for church boards can be had."

Lord Winmarleigh formally presented to the Mayor and Corporation of Warrington on the 4th inst. Mr. Warrington Wood's colossal statue of "St. Michael Overcoming Satan," which has been subscribed for at a cost of 1000 guineas, as a monument of this sculptor's genius in his native town. The occasion was also taken to open an art-gallery that has been erected to receive the statue, which is regarded as Mr. Wood's masterpiece. At the same time Mr. Robson, of Lymm, presented the valuable collection of oil paintings collected by his brother. This collection includes works of Titian, Correggio, Murillo, Gainsborough, and Reynolds. At a luncheon which followed, Lord Winmarleigh, Sir Gilbert Greenall, M.P., Colonel Blackburne, M.P., Mr. Rylands, M.P., and other gentlemen addressed the assembly.

The re-survey of the city of Edinburgh, which was begun in December last by the Ordnance Survey Department, has been completed, in so far as the outdoor work is concerned. The last survey of the city was made in 1851, and great changes have taken place since then. Some idea of these alterations and additions may be formed from the fact that, whereas in 1851 the population numbered 132,977, and the value of real property was estimated at £657,665, the population now numbers 196,979, and the value of the real property is set down at £1,468,941. The actual extent of ground surveyed at this time measures about three miles and a half from east to west, and four and a half from north to south—that area including the whole of Edinburgh, and its suburbs of Grange, Morning-side, Newington, &c., as well as Leith, Newhaven, Trinity, and Granton. Lieutenant Kirkwood has had the direction of the staff engaged on the work, which, on an average, has numbered nine men. The cost of the survey, which will be about £1100, is to be defrayed by the Edinburgh and Leith Corporations, the parochial boards and gas companies of the two cities, and other public bodies interested, according to a scale of per-centages which has been arranged.

OBITUARY OF EMINENT PERSONS.

THE EARL OF ST. GERMANS.

The Right Hon. Sir Edward Granville Eliot, G.C.B., P.C., LL.D., Earl of St. Germans and Baron Eliot of St. Germans, in the county of Cornwall, died on the 7th inst. His Lordship was born Aug. 29, 1798, the only son of William, second Earl of St. Germans, by his first wife, Lady Georgiana Augusta Leveson-Gower, fourth daughter of Granville, first Marquis of Stafford (father of the first Duke of Sutherland). He was educated at Westminster, and at Christ Church, Oxford. Prior to his accession to the Peerage (Jan. 19, 1845) he sat in Parliament for Liskeard, 1824 to 1832, and for East Cornwall from 1837 to 1845. He was Secretary of Legation at Madrid, 1824 to 1833, and a Lord of the Treasury, 1827 to 1832. In 1835, being then Lord Eliot, he went as Envoy to Spain, and concluded the famous "Eliot Convention." In 1841 he was made Chief Secretary for Ireland, and, in 1845, Postmaster-General. From December, 1852, to March, 1855, he was Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, and twice—viz., 1857 to 1858 and 1859 to 1866—Lord Steward of the Household. This high-minded and accomplished nobleman thus filled several important offices of the State, and, in each, rendered good service to his country. The fairness and ability with which he administered the government of Ireland during his Viceroyalty, and the genial courtesy which characterised his Court at Dublin Castle, gained for him the honour and esteem of all parties. He was essentially a gentleman. The Earl married, Sept. 2, 1824, Lady Jemima Cornwallis, third daughter and coheir of Charles, second and last Marquis Cornwallis, by the Lady Louisa Gordon, his wife, daughter and coheir of Alexander, fourth Duke of Gordon, Knt., and leaves surviving issue one daughter, Lady Louisa Ponsonby, and three sons, of whom the eldest, William Gordon Cornwallis, now fourth Earl of St. Germans, was summoned to the House of Lords in his father's barony of Eliot in 1870: he was born in 1829, and was formerly M.P. for Devonport, and previously in the Diplomatic service.

SIR C. H. RUMBOLD, BART.

Sir Charles Hale Rumbold, seventh Baronet, who died at the Cape of Good Hope on Aug. 28 last, was born in 1822, the fourth son of Sir William Rumbold, third Baronet, by Henrietta Elizabeth, his wife, second daughter and eventual heiress of Thomas Boothby, Lord Ranelagh, and succeeded to the baronetcy on the death of his nephew in June last, only two months prior to his decease. Sir Charles was Assistant-Superintendent of Stores at the Cape. He was never married; and the title devolves on his next brother, now Sir Horace Rumbold, eighth Baronet, Minister Resident and Consul-General at Chili, who was born in 1829, and married, in 1867, Caroline, daughter of George Harrington, Esq., of Washington, U.S., by whom (who died in 1872) he has three sons.

MAJOR-GENERAL BARROW.

Major-General Lousada Barrow, C.B., late Chief Commissioner of Oude, died on Monday last at his residence at Ryde, Isle of Wight. He obtained his first commission in the spring of 1836, and since then had been in constant active service. He formerly belonged to the Madras Cavalry, and was appointed to the Staff Corps in February, 1861. He served in the Southern Mahratta country in 1844-5, and throughout the Indian Mutiny, being engaged in many actions, and was present at the siege and final capture of Lucknow. His name had been frequently favourably mentioned, and he obtained the special notice of the Commander-in-Chief and the Governor-General, besides receiving the brevets of Major and Lieutenant-Colonel. For his services in the field he was in 1858 nominated a Companion of the Order of the Bath. In December, 1864, he was nominated Commissioner of Lucknow Division, and was appointed Chief Commissioner of Oude in January, 1871. He became Captain in 1849, Major in 1861, Lieutenant-Colonel in 1863, Colonel in 1865, and Major-General in 1870.

The deaths have also been announced of—

George Gillman, banker, of Portsmouth, on the 29th ult., at Southsea, Hants, aged seventy-four.

Percival Wormald, Esq., on the 29th ult., at Gomersal, Yorkshire, in his seventy-third year.

The Rev. John Sloper, on the 1st inst., at West Woodhay House, Berks, in his eightieth year.

The Rev. Charles Ffennell M'Carthy, D.D., Rector of St. Werburgh's, Dublin, on the 6th inst., suddenly.

Helen Stewart, Lady Kirkpatrick, widow of Sir Charles Sharpe Kirkpatrick, Bart., of Closeburn, N.B., on the 29th ult., aged sixty-two.

Major-General Arnold E. Burmester, C.B., late 59th Regiment, which he commanded at the capture of Canton, on the 3rd inst., aged sixty-five.

Charles Sergison Smith, Esq., of Consall Hall, Staffordshire, formerly of the 1st Dragoon Guards, on the 29th ult., at his seat near Leek, in his seventy-fourth year.

William Henshaw, Esq., Mus.D., for fifty years organist of Durham Cathedral, on the 30th ult., aged eighty-six, surviving his wife only three months.

John Davies, Esq., of Marrington Hall, Chirbury, Salop, J.P., lord of the manor of Marrington, on the 28th ult., at 63, Oxford-terrace, Hyde Park, aged fifty-six.

Colonel Evan Morgan, of St. Helen's, Swansea, late Captain R.A., Lieutenant-Colonel Glamorganshire Artillery Militia, and J.P. and D.L. for that county, on the 3rd inst., aged eighty-three.

Thomas Tucker Edwardes, Esq., fourth son of the late William Tucker Edwardes, Esq., of Sealy House, in the county of Pembroke, on the 3rd inst., at his residence, Cleddon Lodge, in that county, aged sixty.

Colonel Henry Creed, late Bombay Horse Artillery, Colonel of the 1st Middlesex Artillery Volunteers, and Colonel Commandant 1st Middlesex Administrative Brigade, on the 3rd inst., aged sixty-five.

Major-General Frederick Marow Eardley-Wilmot, R.A., F.R.S., on the 30th ult., at Foxhills, near Chertsey, aged sixty-five. He was the second son of Sir John Eardley-Wilnot, first Baronet. Among the promotions gazetted on the 2nd inst., two days after his death, was that of Major-General Eardley-Wilmot, to the rank of Lieutenant-General.

Dame Charlotte Pole, relict of Sir William Temple Pole, Bart., of Shute House, Devon, and niece of the late John Farguhar, Esq., of Fonthill Abbey, Wilts, on the 2nd inst., at Bayford Grange, Herts, in her ninety-first year.

Elizabeth Ann, Lady Steele-Graves, of Mickleton Manor, Gloucestershire, on the 29th ult., suddenly, at Weston-super-Mare. Her Ladyship was the eldest daughter and coheir of the late John Graves, Esq., of Mickleton Manor, and was married, in 1838, to Sir John Maxwell Steele-Graves, Bart., who died Sept. 25, 1872.

Hon. Charles Skeffington Clements, brother and heir-presumptive of the Earl of Leitrim, on the 29th ult., at Mortimer, aged seventy. He was the third son of Nathaniel, second Earl of Leitrim, K.P., by Mary, his wife, eldest daughter and coheir of William Birmingham, Esq., of Ross Hill, in the county of Galway. From 1838 to 1846 he was one of the Assistant Poor Law Commissioners in Ireland, and from 1847 to 1852 M.P. for the county of Leitrim.

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

The will of the late Miss Frances Dealtry, of Bryanston-square, eldest daughter of the late Henry Dealtry, Esq., of the Crown Office, in the Temple, has been proved, and the effects sworn under £120,000. After bequeathing legacies of £2000 each to several of her relatives, also legacies of £100 each to various friends, and providing for her servants, including a bequest of £500 to Mr. Reynolds, she directs £50 to be distributed among her gardeners and labourers on her Bolnere estate, in Sussex; £50 to the poor of Cuckfield; and £50 to the poor of Hayward's-heath. The testatrix gives to her first cousin, Mr. Henry Woodcock, of Wigan, banker, the option of taking her estate and residence at Bolnere, and devises to Mr. Edmund Barlow her farms in Yorkshire. The residue of her personal estate is directed to be divided into seven equal shares between her cousin, Mr. Henry Woodcock, Mrs. Park, and the children of her deceased cousins, John and Edward Woodcock, and of the late Mrs. Thicknesse, Mrs. Farrington, and Mrs. Leader. To each of her executors, Mr. Henry Woodcock, Mr. Edmund Barlow, and Mr. George Dashwood, she bequeaths £100.

The will (dated July 13, 1870) of the Rev. Thomas Oliver Goodchild, Rector of St. John at Hackney, who died on the 5th ult. at Folkestone, was proved on the 25th ult. by the Rev. Charles Perring, and Philip Peter Perring Goodchild, the son, the acting executors, the personal estate being sworn under £80,000. The testator leaves to his wife, Mrs. Ellen Goodchild, £500, all his household furniture, plate, pictures, and effects, horses, and carriages, together with an annuity of £1200 for life, the capital sum producing which she has power given her to appoint among their children or issue on her decease; the testator also gives her an absolute power of appointment on the happening of the same event over £5000; to each of his executors he leaves £50; to his said son, all his real estate and two fifths of the residue of his personalty; and one fifth of such residue to each of his three daughters, Mrs. Blanche Frances Kingsford, Mrs. Rosalie Ellen Stollerfoht, and Mrs. Emma Claudine Cheston.

The will and codicil (dated Jan. 22, 1863, and March 8, 1873) of Mr. John Halsey Law, barrister-at-law, and Fellow of King's College, Cambridge, who died on July 3 last, at No. 2, Cintra-terrace, Cambridge, were proved in London on the 27th ult. by William Law, the brother, the sole executor, the personal estate being sworn under £35,000. The testator bequeaths to his niece and godchild, Florence Elizabeth Law, £500; to his friend Thomas Brackelbank, the Bursar of King's College, £600, free of duty; to the Provost and scholars of King's, Cambridge, the annuity to which he is entitled charged on their farm at Barton Manor, for the purposes of the chapel fund, and a few other legacies. The residue of his real and personal estate he gives to his said brother.

The will (executed Dec. 1, 1868) of the Rev. Augustus Cooper, late of Upper Norwood, who died on Aug. 22 last, was proved on the 2nd inst. by the Rev. Augustus Cooper, the son, and Miss Jane Cooper, the daughter, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £20,000. With the exception of a legacy to his sister, the testator leaves all his property upon trust for his eight children.

The will (dated Nov. 30, 1852) of Sir Thomas Davies Lloyd, Bart., late of Bronwydd Llandysil, Cardiganshire, who died on July 21 last, was proved on the 1st inst. by Sir Martineau Owen Mowbray Lloyd, Bart., the son, the personal estate being sworn under £10,000. The testator appoints his son residuary legatee.

The will (dated July 31, 1871) of the Right Hon. Paget Standish O'Grady, Viscount Guilmore and Baron O'Grady, late of Rock Barton, in the county of Limerick, who died on July 29 last, at Parson's-green, Fulham, was proved on the 24th ult. by Osbell Willoughby Baker, the sole executor, the personal estate being sworn under £3000. The testator leaves all his property, real and personal, to his wife, the Viscountess Guilmore.

Mr. Arthur Wood, surgeon, of Kirbymoorside, has been elected Coroner for the North Riding of Yorkshire, in the room of the late Mr. J. Ness, who died suddenly at Plymouth during the meeting of the British Association.

The annual choral festival of the Brighton Sunday School Union took place on Tuesday night at the Dome. The principal feature was a chorus of 600 voices selected from the various schools in the union.

The Leith Town Council are about to undertake a scheme for the improvement of one of the old parts of the town, which includes an area inhabited by about 7000 persons. The first outlay is estimated at £274,000, and after re-sale it is expected that the net cost to the town will be £100,000.

At a meeting of the directors of the Dundee Royal Lunatic Asylum on the 5th inst. the architects (Messrs. Edward and Robertson) were instructed to take in tenders for the erection of the new asylum at Westgreen, Lochec. The new building is to cost about £50,000.

The Duke of Cambridge, accompanied by members of the Horse Guards Staff, reviewed about 9000 men in the Long Valley, Aldershot, on Tuesday morning. His Royal Highness also saw the troops go through the new formation for attack of a division, under General Steele, commander of the Aldershot forces. There were also present upwards of 2000 horses and forty-six guns.

The parishioners of Harrow have decided, by a large majority, to have a school board.—The Glasgow School Board has rejected by eight votes to three a proposal to abolish the use of the shorter catechism in the board schools.—At the last sitting of the Stratford Bench of magistrates, twenty-eight parents were fined for neglecting to send their children to school.

CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

All communications relating to this department of the Paper should be addressed to the Editor, and have the word "Chess" written on the envelope.

T. E. H. (Lincoln).—You appear to have set up the problem incorrectly. In your analysis you give Q P takes Kt for Black, but there is no Knight on the square of the Q P.

S. B. (Macon, U.S.).—We are much obliged for the games. We know nothing of the circumstances attending the suspension of the chess magazine in question.

J. K. (Norwich).—We have forwarded your letter to the author, but as he resides in Japan some time must elapse before a reply can be received from him.

N. R. (Freckenham).—We are heartily obliged for your courtesy, but we only accept contributions that are intended for the entertainment of our readers.

H. B. G. (Clement's Inn).—La Strategie can be obtained from Bartles and Lowell, 14, Great Marlborough-street, London. The annual subscription is 30s.

E. E. (Leeds).—The problem is quite correct. See solution below.

PROBLEMS received from W. T. Aman, H. A. Nesbit, and W. F. Pettit.

CORRECT SOLUTIONS OF PROBLEM No. 1752 received from D. H. R. G. N. P. V. W. and L. L. Z.

CORRECT SOLUTIONS OF PROBLEM No. 1753 received from H. Beumann, Emilie Frau, Edith E. H. Wood, B. Lewy, W. F. Payne, Murdo Macrae, Baz, Woulfield, D. H. J. Thureby, E. Burkhard, and F. O. Egger.

CORRECT SOLUTIONS OF PROBLEM No. 1754 received from H. B. Three Castles, Copiapino, Hereward, R. Brough, J. F. Spiers, S. Adams, Black Knight, A. Scott, W. Nelson, W. Cowell, Simpkins, J. Wontack, E. Worsley, C. R. E. J. Lyndford, F. W. S. R. Schofield, L. L. Z. Hampton, T. R. Young, B. R. Stone, Queen of Connaught, G. Footbrooke, S. Western, W. T. Hope, Queen of Connaught, F. G. V. W. C. Dutton, G. Reeves, L. Burnett, E. Emond, J. Williams, Paul's Root, N. Powell, Tippet, W. Alston, S. Threlfall, N. E. D. J. King, R. Burgher, D. Leslie, A. R. G. Harrobian, J. S. W. St. J. E. A. Mackenzie, M. Whiteley, N. Brock, Americana, Triton, O. Wood, B. Lewy, W. S. B. G. H. V. E. H. H. V. W. P. Welch, J. R. Olorenshaw, Only Jones, Frank Thurston, W. F. Payne, H. M. Pridoux, Baz, W. H. W. R. D. Skure, Dr. F. St. T. E. Hughes, E. P. Villamy, Barcardine, J. Keeble, E. L. G. W. Leeson, Carl Amant, D. H. J. Thureby, J. Bowden, J. E. McF. E. Burkhard, F. O. Egger, Diego Ernst, W. T. Aman, S. R. of Leeds, A. Elmsker, B. Champneys, W. F. Pettit, Woolwich Chess Club, C. Blythe, O. F. Johnson, and N. Rumbelow.

CORRECT SOLUTIONS OF ENIGMA No. 12 received from H. Beumann, Murdo Macrae, J. Wontack, No. 14 from M. Rawlings, W. C. Dutton, St. J. E. and N. Brock. The Woolwich Chess Club has overlooked the best defence to the proposed line of play.

•• We propose publishing next week solutions of all the enigmas, except that of No. 14, which we shall hold over for a month.

WHITE. BLACK. WHITE. BLACK.
1. R to Q B 4th. Any move. 2. Mates accordingly.

PROBLEM No. 1756.

By C. M. BAXTER (Dundee).

BLACK.

WHITE.

White to play, and mate in four moves.

CHESS IN AMERICA.

The following pair of interesting games occurred in a match played recently between Messrs. OCHARD and WURM, two of the strongest players in the Southern States of America. The match was won by Mr. Wurm, with a score of eleven games to ten.—(The Two Knights' Defence.)

WHITE (Mr. W.) BLACK (Mr. O.)
1. P to K 4th P to K 4th
2. Kt to K B 3rd Kt to Q B 3rd
3. B to B 4th Kt to K B 3rd
4. P to Q 4th

We prefer the attack springing from Kt to Kt 4th, although the move in the text finds favour with many strong players.

4. P takes P P takes P
5. P to K 5th Kt to Q 4th
6. B to Kt 5th P to K 5th
7. Kt takes P B to Q 2nd
8. Kt takes Kt P takes Kt
9. B to Q 3rd B to Q B 4th
10. Castles Q to R 5th

This counter-attack is altogether premature, and results only in developing the adversary's game.

11. Q to K sq Kt to Kt 4th
12. B to K 3rd P to Kt 5th
13. Kt to Q 2nd B to Q 5th
14. B takes Kt Q takes B
15. Q to K 4th B to Q 2nd and White mates in three moves.

Between the same Players.—(Philidor's Defence.)

WHITE (Mr. O.) BLACK (Mr. W.)
1. P to K 4th P to K 4th
2. Kt to K B 3rd P to Q 3rd
3. P to Q 4th P takes P
4. Q takes P B to Q 2nd
5. B to Q B 4th

This is perhaps White's best continuation in reply to Black's last move.

6. Q to K 3rd Kt to Q B 3rd
7. B to K 3rd Kt to B 3rd
8. B to Q 2nd Castles
9. B to R 3rd B to K 3rd
10. B to Q 3rd Kt to Q 2nd

If B to K 3rd, White can exchange Bishops and then play Kt to Kt 4th, and if B to K 2nd, he can play Q to Kt 3rd, as recommended by the late Herr Lowenthal.

7. P to K R 3rd B to K 2nd
8. B to Q 2nd Castles
9. B to R 3rd B to K 3rd
10. B to Q 3rd Kt to Q 2nd

ENIGMA No. 16.

By A. MICHAEL, Birmingham.

White: K at Q 6th, Q at Q Kt 2nd, R at K Kt 8th, Kt at Q B square, B at K R 3rd; P at Q 4th, Q B 2nd, and Q Kt 6th.
Black: K at K B 3rd; P at K B 2nd, Q 4th, and Q B 6th.
White to play, and mate in two moves.

CHESS INTELLIGENCE.

The annual meeting of the City of London Chess Club was held on Wednesday evening last, Mr. H. F. Gastineau, the president of the club, in the chair, when proposals were adopted for the organisation of a handicap tourney of the members, and the arrangement of a series of consultation games between the best English players. The club, we are glad to learn, is in a flourishing condition, and its twenty-sixth season opens with every prospect of sustained prosperity. During the proceedings the compliment of honorary membership was conferred upon Messrs. Burn, Harwitz, Mayall, and Duffy.

The annual meeting of the Falkirk Chess Club was held on Monday last, when the accounts, which show a fair surplus, were duly audited and passed. Mr. John Aikens, of Gartcows, was again elected president of the club; and the other office-bearers for the current session are Messrs. James Wyse and David Wyse, vice-presidents, Mr. A. B. Stark, treasurer, and Mr. John Beby, honorary secretary. This flourishing chess club was established in 1863, and every succeeding year has witnessed its increased usefulness and prosperity. Besides chess, draughts and whist are practised by the members; and as the club-room is well supplied with the leading periodicals, any one indisposed to engage in play can pass the evening in reading.

LIBRARIANS IN CONGRESS.

The Conference of Librarians at the London Institution, the opening of which was reported last week, was resumed on the 4th inst., under the presidency of Professor the Abbate Mondino, of the Biblioteca Nazionale, Palermo. Among the members present were Dr. Cox, of the Bodleian Library, Oxford; Sir Redmond Barry, Public Library of Victoria (Melbourne); Baron de Watteville, Paris; Sir W. Stirling Maxwell; Professor Justin Winsor, Harvard University; Mr. Lloyd P. Smith, Philadelphia; Mr. W. H. Poole, Chicago; Mr. Melvil Dewey, Amherst College Library, Massachusetts; M. le Comte de Marsy, Compiègne; Mr. Bullen and Mr. Garnett, British Museum; Mr. Overall, Guildhall Library; Mr. E. B. Nicholson, London Institution, and many others.

The first paper was read by Mr. Richard Garnett, superintendent of the Reading-Room, British Museum. It explained the principles of classifying books on the shelves at the British Museum, as organised by the late Mr. Thomas Watts. The explanations, though technical, were thoroughly appreciated by the audience, and the conclusion of the paper was greeted with great applause. The President explained the system in use at Palermo; but the most important observations called forth by Mr. Garnett's paper were from Professor Winsor, who explained the decimal system used at Harvard College; and from Mr. Melvil Dewey, assistant librarian at Amherst College, U.S.A., who has devised an excellent system of classification on the shelves, in contradistinction to that by catalogue. The decimal system is also the basis of his classification; but, instead of numbering the shelves, Mr. Dewey numbers the subjects, and thus obviates the necessity of shifting books and re-classifying the shelves every few years as new works appear. The whole range of human knowledge he divides into nine subjects, numbered from one to nine, and these again into nine divisions and the divisions into nine sections. In the sections the individual books are numbered from 1 to the last published in numerical order, and he also employs a digit to indicate the size of volume. Thus, natural science is numbered 5, and a scientific work may be indicated by the number 513, followed by 213 in figures of smaller type.

In the evening the librarians attending the Conference were entertained at dinner by the Lord Mayor at the Mansion House—Sir C. Reed and several members of the School Board for London, with many other guests, being present.

The last morning sitting, on the 5th inst., opened with the discussion of a number of practical points of library management, those chiefly dwelt upon being the age at which readers should be admitted, and the hours and days during which libraries should be open. The chair was occupied by Mr. W. H. Poole, of the Public Library, Chicago, and the following gentlemen took part in the discussion:—Sir Redmond Barry, Professor the Abbate Mondino, Professor Justin Winsor, Mr. S. S. Green (Public Library, Worcester, Mass.), Mr. Martineau (British Museum), Mr. Cornelius Walford, Mr. Vickers (Cincinnati), Mr. Palmow (Public Library, Oxford), and the secretary, Mr. E. B. Nicholson. In America generally there is no limit of age, and several speakers expressed the pleasure they had in frequently receiving readers of ten and twelve. Mr. Vickers said their library in Cincinnati is open from eight a.m. to ten p.m. during every one of the 365 days of the year, without intermission; and on Sundays they have an average of more than 1000 readers, most of whom would, in his opinion, have been doing much worse had the library not been open to them. The balance of home opinion was against opening on Sundays; but those who advocated a restriction of age were in a minority. Professor Mondino stated that in Italy, by decree of the Minister of Education, persons under eighteen, if members of a public school, must have the permission of the principal before being admitted as readers, and a list of books read by them had to be furnished. Mr. Overall said that at the Corporation Library the limit was sixteen, but boys of fourteen might be admitted by special permission. The further discussion was suspended until after the reading of the papers, the first on the list being by Mr. B. R. Wheatley, librarian of the Royal Medical and Chirurgical Society, London, who described the library under his charge as one of 30,000 books, a completed section of a class containing nearly a million. He attributed the loss of books, which was serious in lending libraries, to carelessness and to their being lent again to friends. They found a large proportion of their missing books, sometimes after long periods. He had known books travel to the antipodes, and find their way back to the library at last. Sir Redmond Barry read the next paper, which consisted of a description of the system of circulating libraries in operation at Melbourne, which differed greatly, he believed, from the usual methods adopted here. In Victoria books were lent in considerable numbers, and for long periods, and they were sent by rail or steamer to the smaller libraries and book societies in distant towns without charge, except a small one for compilation. He recommended this plan to the great libraries here in connection with universities and colleges, in aid of villages and towns throughout the kingdom. After the reading of a paper on the Means of Obtaining the Books Required, by Mr. James Matthews (Public Library, Newport, Monmouth), the discussion was resumed.

In the afternoon some of the chief West-End libraries were visited; and the final sitting of the Conference took place in the evening, when it was resolved to form a Library Association of the United Kingdom.

This being the first conference of the kind held in this country, the objects sent to the exhibition were not numerous. They were all useful, however, and had a direct practical bearing upon the objects of the Conference. They were so many expedients for saving time, labour, space, and expense in the arrangement and distribution of books.

M. Raphael Tuck, the art-publisher, 177, City-road, has published a large and elaborate photograph after the picture by Sichel, of the "Last Moments of Mary Queen of Scots."

The Right Hon. the Speaker presided last Monday at Lewes at a meeting of the Newhaven Harbour Commissioners, when the officials of the Brighton Railway Company submitted elaborate plans for the enlargement and improvement of Newhaven Harbour and the construction of a large dock. The cost of the proposed works is estimated at £300,000.

On Monday the new dock constructed at Fleetwood under the direction of Sir John Hawkshaw was opened amid great rejoicings. It has cost £300,000, and covers, with the quays, an area of sixty-five acres, the dock itself being 1000 feet long and 400 feet broad. Beyond it there is a timber pond fifteen acres in extent. The town was decorated with a profusion of flags, and the shipping and steamers in dock were gay with bunting. At noon the timber-laden ship Armstrong was towed into dock by a steamer, amidst cheers and salutes, and the chairman of the Lancashire and Yorkshire Railway Company declared that the dock henceforth will be called the Wyre Dock, and will be open to the commerce of the world. Subsequently the directors and shareholders, with some leading North-of-England merchants, were entertained at a banquet; Sir John Hawkshaw, Lord Houghton, and others being amongst the speakers.

BANK OF NEW ZEALAND

(Incorporated by Act of General Assembly, July 29, 1861).
Bankers to the New Zealand Government.
Paid-up Capital, £750,000. Reserve Fund, £750,000.

DIRECTORS.
J. LOGAN CAMPBELL, Esq., President.
George B. Owen, Esq., W. L. Taylor, Esq.,
Alfred Cox, Esq., M.G.A. James Watt, Esq.,
Samuel Browning, Esq. Hon. Jas. Williamson, M.L.C.

LONDON BOARD.
The Right Hon. Sir James Ferguson, Bart., K.O.M.G.
Archd. Hamilton, Esq. Thomas Russell, Esq., C.M.G.
A. J. Mundella, Esq., M.P.

Head Office—Auckland.

BRANCHES AND AGENCIES.
In Australia—Melbourne, Sydney, and Newcastle.
In Fiji—Lorika.
In New Zealand—Auckland, Blenheim, Christchurch, Dunedin, Wellington, Napier, Nelson, New Plymouth, Invercargill, Pictou, and at seventy-seven other towns and places throughout the Colony.
The Bank grants Drafts on all their Branches and Agencies, and transacts every description of banking business connected with New Zealand, Australia, and Fiji on the most favourable terms.
The London Office RECEIVES DEPOSITS of £20 and upwards for fixed periods of two to five years, bearing interest at 5 per cent per annum. The rate for shorter periods can be ascertained on application at the Office of the Bank.
F. LAING, Esq., Managing Director.
No. 1, Queen Victoria-street, Mansion House, E.C.

THE GRANVILLE, ST. LAWRENCE-ON-SEA, near Ramsgate.

Billiard-Room. Board, with attendance, in the Grand Gothic Dining-Hall, 12s. per day.—Address, THE MANAGER.

THE GRAND HOTEL, LONDON.

The extensive building, now in course of erection on the site of the historical mansion of the Dukes of Northumberland, at the corner of Northumberland-avenue, Trafalgar-square, will, when completed, be OPENED as a FIRST-CLASS HOTEL.
Messrs. Gordon and Co., Proprietors.

KINAHAN'S LL WHISKY.

UNIVERSALLY RECOMMENDED BY THE MEDICAL PROFESSION. A pure old spirit, mild, mellow, delicious, and most wholesome. Dr. Hassall says:—"The samples were soft and mellow to the taste, aromatic and pleasant to the smell. The whisky is pure, well matured, and of very excellent quality."

LORNE "THE PERFECTION OF WHISKY."

UNRIVALLED FOR "TODDY."
Wholesale of the Sole Proprietors: GREENLEES BROTHERS, 1, Gresham-buildings, E.C. Distilleries, Argyleshire.

NATURAL MINERAL WATERS OF VICHY.

Property of the French Government.
CELESTINE—The water of this spring is very agreeable, sparkling, and slightly acidulated. Remedy for Complaints of the Kidneys, Gravel, Gout, Diabetes, Rheumatism, &c.
HAUTERIVE—This spring contains a greater quantity of carbonic acid, and is especially recommended as a table water.
GRANDE-GRILLE—For Complaints of the Liver and Biliary Organs, Indigestion, &c.
HOPITAL—For Stomach Complaints, &c.
VICHY WATERS are pleasant to the taste, and may be drunk pure or mixed with wine or spirits.
CAUTION.—See that the name of the particular water required is on the capsule.
Sold by all Chemists, Wine and Mineral Water Merchants, Price One Shilling per Bottle.

COCKS'S READING SAUCE

is the best and most economical Sauce ever manufactured FOR FISH, ENRICHING SOUPS, GRAVIES, &c.
It only requires a trial to convince the purchaser of its excellence.

CAUTION.—The genuine is protected by Trade Mark—viz., CHARLES COCKS'S Signature on a white ground across the Reading Arms.

LEA and PERRINS' SAUCE, which are calculated to deceive the Public, Lea and Perrins have adopted a NEW LABEL, bearing their Signature, "LEA and PERRINS" which signature is placed on every bottle of WORCESTERSHIRE SAUCE, and without which none is genuine. Sold wholesale by the Proprietors, Worcester; Crosse and Blackwell, London; and Export Oilmen generally. Retail, by Dealers in Sauces throughout the World.

LIEBIG COMPANY'S EXTRACT OF MEAT.

FINEST MEAT-FLAVOURING STOCK FOR SOUPS, MADE DISHES, AND SAUCES.

LIEBIG COMPANY'S EXTRACT OF MEAT.

CAUTION.—Genuine only with the facsimile of Baron Liebig's Signature in Blue Ink across label.

LIEBIG COMPANY'S EXTRACT OF MEAT.

CAUTION.—Genuine only with the facsimile of Baron Liebig's Signature in Blue Ink across label.

HORNIMAN'S TEA for Forty Years has commanded a large sale, because it can always be relied on for strength, flavour, and cheapness. It is the best tea imported. Sold only in Packets.

SCHWEITZER'S COCOATINA.

Anti-Dyspeptic Cocoa or Chocolate Powder.
Guaranteed Pure Soluble Cocoa, with excess of Fat extracted. Four times the strength of Cocoa Thickened yet Weakened with Arrowroot, Starch, &c.

The faculty pronounce it the most nutritious, perfectly digestible Beverage for "BREAKFAST, LUNCHEON, or SUPPER." Keeps in all Climates. Requires no Cooking. A teaspoonful to Breakfast Cup, costing less than a halfpenny. Samples gratis.

In Air-Tight Tins, at 1s. 6d., 3s., &c., by Chemists and Grocers.
H. SCHWEITZER and CO., 10, Adam-street, London, W.C.

AMERICAN CENTENNIAL PRIZE MEDAL.

FRY'S CARACAS COCOA.

Its pure flavour, delicate aroma, and invigorating qualities have established its position as a first-class dietetic article.

FRY'S CARACAS COCOA.

"The Caracas Cocoa of such choice quality."—Food, Water, and Air (Dr. Hassall).
"A most delicious and valuable article."—Standard.

FRY'S EXTRACT OF COCOA,

"than which, if properly prepared, there is no nicer or more wholesome preparation of Cocoa."—Food, Water, and Air. Edited by Dr. Hassall.

TENTH INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION awarded to J. S. FRY and SON.

EPPS'S COCOA.

FOR THE NURSERY, THE SICK-ROOM, AND THE FAMILY TABLE.

BROWN and POLSON'S CORN FLOUR

HAS BECOME A WORLD-WIDE NECESSARY.

THE ESSEX FLOUR and GRAIN

COMPANY, Liverpool-road, London, N., supply the best goods only.—Whites, for Pastry, 10s. 6d. per bushel; House-holds, for Bread, 10s. 6d. per bushel; for Brown Bread, 9s. 4d.; Coarse Scotch Oatmeal, 2s. 2d. per 14 lb.; Fine, 3s. 4d.; American Hominy, 4s.; Barley, 5s. 4d. per bushel, or 2s. 6d. per sack; Buck-wheat, Indian Corn, and Barley Meal, 5s. per bushel, or 18s. per sack; Oats, 4s. per bushel; Crushed Oats, 3s. 6d. per bushel, 1s. 6d. per sack; Middlings, 3s. 4d. per bushel; Ground Pollard, 1s. 6d.; Peas, 7s. 6d.; Chick Beans, 8s.; Split Peas, 2s. 6d. and 3s. per peck. Meat Biscuits, 20s. per cwt. Lentil Flour, for invalids, in tins, 1 lb. size, 1s. and 7lb. size, 6s. All other kinds of Grain and Seed. Special prices for large quantities. Orders and cheques to be made in favour of G. Young.

AT PETER ROBINSON'S

WAREHOUSE FOR BLACK GOODS, REGENT-STREET.

For TWO GUINEAS and up to FIVE CHOICE BLACK MATERIAL COSTUMES COMPLETE, in the latest Style (Princess Polonaise and Skirt). Patterns and Photos free.

URGENT MOURNING. "ON RECEIPT OF LETTER or TELEGRAM."

MOURNING GOODS will be forwarded to all parts of England, on approval—no matter the distance—with an excellent fitting Dressmaker (if required), without extra charge.

PETER ROBINSON, 226, 228, 230, 232, Regent-street, London.

DEEP MOURNING ORDERS.

DRESSES, Costumes, Mantles, Millinery, and all made-up articles, in the most appropriate and best styles, at the lowest possible cost. Dressmaking and Millinery, by clever and expert artists.

INEXPENSIVE MOURNING, as well

as the Richest Qualities, can be supplied by PETER ROBINSON, upon the most advantageous terms, to Families. The Court and Family Mourning Warehouse, 226, 228, 230, 232, Regent-street, London.

BLACK SILKS.—Excellent Value.

PETER ROBINSON, of REGENT-STREET.

An immense purchase just completed in Lyons, from the well-known houses of Messrs. Bonnet, Ponsard, Crosat, &c.

500 Pieces at 2s. 6d.
100 Pieces at 3s. 6d.; extra value.
200 Pieces at 4s. 6d.; really worth 7s.
100 Pieces at 5s. 6d.; cheap at 8s. 6d.
And prices ranging up to 10s. 6d.

Patterns free.

PETER ROBINSON'S BLACK SILK WAREHOUSE, REGENT-STREET, Nos. 226 to 232.

BLACK SILK DRESS VELVETS.

Exceedingly good qualities, at 7s. 6d., 8s. 6d., 10s. 6d., 12s. 6d., 14s. 6d.

A Special Bargain in Lyons Velvet, at 10s. 6d.

Black Silk-Trimming Velvets, at 6s. 6d., 8s. 6d., 10s. 6d., 12s. 6d., 14s. 6d.

As PETER ROBINSON'S, of REGENT-STREET, Nos. 226 to 232.

FOR SIX GUINEAS.

A BLACK SILK COSTUME,

Made of Rich Lyons Silk, with Velvet Garniture.

Exquisitely cut and fashioned. Copies of expensive Paris Models. Photos free.

PETER ROBINSON, of REGENT-STREET.

REMARKABLY CHEAP.

For One Guinea, A Black Quilted SATIN PETTICOAT.

For Two Guineas, A Black Silk TRAINED SKIRT.

As PETER ROBINSON'S, of REGENT-STREET.

FOR TWO GUINEAS, and up to Seven,

Costumes in New Black Materials, in various fashionable styles, at PETER ROBINSON'S, of REGENT-STREET.

EVENING DRESSES, at One Guinea.

Black Brussels Net, at 2s. 6d. Tulle (condition keeping), 50s. Grenadine, 50s. 6d.

New Styles, which are elegantly trimmed. Illustrations free.

THE NEW CRAPE.

The Pure Silk Gordan Crape, for Widows and Families.

Its advantages are—that it is made of Silk so pure that it is not crossed when set upon, not spot with rain.

It is a richer black, free from dress and the gummed appearance so objectionable in other Crape. The wear of every yard is guaranteed.

The Gordan Crape is a Speciality, only to be obtained at PETER ROBINSON'S, of REGENT-STREET.

The MOURNING WAREHOUSE, Nos. 226 to 232. Excellent qualities at 4s. 6d., 5s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 9s. 6d. Patterns free.

FUR-LINED CLOAKS

at Summer Prices. Good useful Cloaks at 60s. 6d. and 34 gs.

SEMI-FITTING SEAL PALETOTS,

33 inches long, for 9 gs. 38 inches long, for 10 gs.

As PETER ROBINSON'S, of REGENT-STREET.

NOTICE.—In reference to the above advertisements, it is intimated that all orders should be clearly addressed to 226 to 232, REGENT-STREET.

ROYAL DEVONSHIRE SERGES.

woven from pure Wool, for LADIES' DRESSES, in Navy or Dark Indigo Blue, Black, Dark Browns, Prune, and other soft colours.

price 1s. 11d., 2s. 6d., 3s. 11d. per yard.

For CHILDREN a lower quality is made, very strong, at 1s. 6d. per yard.

For BOYS' HATS and Hosiery, milled, price, 6d. in wide, 3s. 6d. per yard.

Books of Patterns sent post-free by SPEARMAN and SPEARMAN, Devonshire Serge Factors, Plymouth.

The ROYAL DEVONSHIRE SERGE is the only true Yachting Serge.

See Water cannot injure it. Any Length is Cut by the Factors, who arrange to pay the carriage of all Parcels above Two Pounds in value to and so far as London.

SWAN and EDGAR beg to announce that they are now daily displaying, in all departments, the choicest Novelties in LADIES' DRESS for the approaching season.

The prices marked will be found lower than any hitherto known for goods of such excellence. Special attention is called to a new stock of Black and Coloured SILKS, made for wear, at 3s. 11d., 4s. 11d., and 5s. 11d. a yard.

An immense variety of Dress Materials in new textures, from 12d. a yard; patterns free. Selected Paris Styles in Costumes, Mantles, and Jackets for autumn wear. Designs and estimates on application. Piccadilly and Regent-street, London.

WEDDING TROUSSEAUX,

£20, £30, and £100. LAYETTES, £5, £10, and £20. INDIAN OUTFIT, £25.

Illustrated Catalogue post-free. Mrs. ADDLEY BOURNE, 37, Piccadilly.

SWANBILL CEINTURE CORSET (Regd.).

An admirable combination of Ceinture and Corset of novel and ingenious manufacture, combining the advantages of both Stay and Joan of Arc Belt. While imparting a graceful symmetry and elegance to the figure, it affords a degree of comfort to the wearer not to be derived from an ordinary Corset. 16in. deep, 21s.; hand-made, 42s.

Send size of waist with P.O. order. Sous la direction d'une corsetière Parisienne.

Mrs. ADDLEY BOURNE, Ladies' Outfitter, &c., 37, Piccadilly (opposite St. James's Church), London; and at 78 Rue St. Lazare, Paris.

WOOLLEN CLOTHS.—Waterproof

Tweeds, Matelassé Cloth, Sealings, Fur Beavers, and other materials for Ladies' Jackets; also every kind of Woollen Goods for Gentlemen's and Boys' wear.

C. MERRING and CO., Woollen Warehouse, 111 and 112, Hatton-garden, Holborn-circus, London.

DR. DUNBAR'S ALKARAM, or

ANTI-CATARRH SMELLING BOTTLE.

THE ONLY CURE for

COLDS and

SORE THROATS,

BY INHALATION.

ALKARAM, if inhaled on the first symptoms of cold, will at once arrest them; and even when a cold has been neglected and become severe, it will give immediate relief, and generally cure in one day.

ALKARAM contains no narcotic, and never produces any unpleasant effects. All those who dread the usual remedies for Colds, which almost always contain morphia or chloral, may safely avail themselves of this innocent and pleasant remedy. It acts as a slight caustic, but gives no pain; on the contrary, the smell is agreeable and reviving.

ALKARAM may be safely used by Children, as will be seen from the following Testimonial:—

"46, Grosvenor-road, Highbury. 'Sir,—I have just obtained a bottle of your excellent and unrivalled Cure for Colds. I have tried at over 200 chemists for an effective cure, but never found one till I obtained your Alkaram, for which I thank you heartily. 'I am, Sir, yours, &c., 'CYRIL DAVENPORT.'"

"Sandgate-road, Folkestone, Jan. 4, 1874.

"Dear Sir,—Your Alkaram is certainly a great boon, and seems to have a wonderful effect in cases of Hay-Fever and Cold in the Head. It should prove more and more valuable during the winter months, when colds are so general. 'Yours truly, 'A. W. POTLAND, F.R.S.'"

"35, Baker-street, May 10, 1875.

"Agents for India—Messrs. Smith Stanistreet, and Co., Calcutta.

Agents for Australia—Messrs. Elliott Brothers, Sydney; and Messrs. Hemmons, Laws, and Co., Melbourne.

Address Dr. DUNBAR, care of Messrs. F. Newbery and Sons, 57, Newgate-street, London, E.C.

DR. DE JONGH'S (KNIGHT OF THE LEGION OF HONOUR, KNIGHT OF THE ORDER OF LEOPOLD OF BELGIUM) LIGHT-BROWN COD-LIVER OIL.

Proved by twenty-five years' medical experience to be THE PUREST.

THE MOST PALATABLE.

THE MOST EASILY DIGESTED.

THE MOST RAPIDLY EFFICACIOUS.

DR. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD-LIVER OIL.

THE ONLY KIND which produces the full curative effects in CONSUMPTION AND DISEASES OF THE CHEST, THROAT AFFECTIONS, GENERAL DEBILITY, WASTING DISEASES OF CHILDREN, RICKETS, AND ALL SCROFULOUS DISORDERS.

SELECT MEDICAL OPINIONS.

SIR G. DUNCAN GIBB, Bart., M.D., Physician to the Westminster Hospital.

"The value of Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD-LIVER OIL as a therapeutic agent in a number of diseases, chiefly of an exhaustive character, has been admitted by the world of medicine; but, in addition, I have found it a remedy of great power in the treatment of many Affections of the Throat and Larynx, especially in Consumption of the latter, where it will sustain life when everything else fails."

DR. SINCLAIR COHILL, Physician Royal National Hospital for Consumption, Ventnor.

"I have convinced myself that in Tubercular and the various forms of Strumous Disease, Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD-LIVER OIL possesses greater therapeutic efficacy than any other Cod-Liver Oil with which I am acquainted. Dr. DE JONGH'S OIL is now the only Cod-Liver Oil used in the Royal National Hospital for Consumption and Diseases of the Chest."

LENNOX BROWNE, Esq., F.R.C.S.E., Senior Surgeon Central London Throat and Ear Hospital.

"The action of Dr. de Jongh's Light-Brown Cod-Liver Oil has proved, in my own experience, particularly valuable, not only in those diseases for which it was originally employed, but also in many cases of weakness of the Singing and Speaking Voice, dependent on bronchial or laryngeal irritation, and in all forms of Strumous Enlargement of Glands, and Discharges from the Ear."

DR. PROSSER JAMES, Lecturer on Materia Medica, London Hospital.

"DR. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD-LIVER OIL contains the whole of the active ingredients of the remedy, and is easily digested. Hence its value, not only in Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, but in a great number of cases to which the Profession is extending its use."

DR. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD-LIVER OIL is sold only in capsuled IMPERIAL Half-Pint, 2s. 6d.; Pint, 4s. 6d.; Quart, 8s.; by all respectable Chemists and Druggists throughout the world.

SOLE CONSIGNERS, ANSAR, HARFORD, and CO., 77, STRAND, LONDON.

THROAT IRRITATION.

EPH'S GLYCERINE JUJUBES.

Sold only in Boxes, 6d. and 1s., labelled JAMES EPH'S and CO., HOMOEOPATHIC CHEMISTS, 48, Threadneedle-street; and 170, Piccadilly.

FITS.—EPILEPTIC FITS or FALLING SICKNESS.—A certain method of cure has been discovered for this distressing complaint by a physician who is desirous that all sufferers may benefit from this providential discovery; it is never known to fail, and will cure the most hopeless case after all other means have been tried. Full particulars will be sent by post to any person free of charge.—Address:—MR. WILLIAMS, 16, Oxford-terrace, Hyde Park, London.

MRS. S. A. ALLEN'S

WORLD'S HAIR RESTORER.

IT CANNOT FAIL TO RESTORE

GREY HAIR TO ITS YOUTHFUL COLOUR, GLOSS, AND BEAUTY. WHEN THE HAIR TURNS GREY, LOSES ITS LUSTRE, AND FALLS OUT, IT SIMPLY REQUIRES NOURISHMENT. MRS. S. A. ALLEN'S TONIC ACTION, STRENGTHENS AND INVIGORATES THE HAIR, AND, BY THE OPERATION OF NATURAL CAUSES, GREY OR WHITE HAIR IS QUICKLY RESTORED TO ITS YOUTHFUL COLOUR, GLOSS, AND BEAUTY. IT WILL STOP ITS FALLING, AND INDUCE A HEALTHY AND MOST LUXURIOUS GROWTH. USE NO OTHER PREPARATION WITH IT, NOT EVEN OIL OR POMADE, OR ZYLO-BALSAM.

CAUTION!!—The Genuine only in Pink Wrappers.

Sold by all Chemists, Perfumers, and Dealers in Toilet Articles.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

Mrs. S. A. ALLEN manufactures two entirely distinct Preparations for the Hair. One or the other is suited to every condition of the Human Hair. Both are never required at one time. For details as to each preparation, kindly read above and below this paragraph. Readers can easily determine which of the two they require.

MRS. S. A. ALLEN'S ZYLO-BALSAM.

For the Growth and Preservation of the Hair. A cooling transparent liquid, entirely vegetable, without sediment.

A SIMPLE TONIC AND DRESSING

OF INESTIMABLE VALUE TO BOTH SEXES THE FAVOURITE WITH THE YOUNG AND ALL THOSE WHO HAVE NO GREY HAIR. PRE-MATURE LOSS OF THE HAIR, SO COMMON IN THESE DAYS, MAY BE ENTIRELY PREVENTED BY THE USE OF ZYLO-BALSAM. PROMPT RELIEF IN THOUSANDS OF CASES HAS BEEN AFFORDED WHERE THE HAIR HAS BEEN COMING OUT IN HANDFULS. IT PROMOTES A HEALTHY AND VIGOROUS GROWTH. HAIR DRESSED WITH ZYLO-BALSAM IS ALWAYS CLEAN, FREE FROM DANDRUFF, AND WITH THAT BEAUTIFUL GLOSS ONLY SEEN IN HEALTHY HAIR. IT IS DELIGHTFULLY FRAGRANT. NO OIL OR POMADE SHOULD BE USED WITH IT.

CAUTION!!—The Genuine only in Blush Grey Wrappers.

Sold by all Chemists, Perfumers, and Dealers in Toilet Articles.

GOLDEN STAR BAY-LEAF WATER.

Triple distilled from the fresh leaves of the Bay Tree (Myrica Ascria).

For the Toilet, Nursery, and Bath.

A few drops on a sponge or towel moistened with water, and the face and hands bathed with it, is very beneficial to the skin, removing all roughness. Most highly recommended to apply after shaving. A small quantity in the bath gives a delightful aroma, and it has most remarkable cleansing properties. Particularly adapted to the bathing of infants and young children. Most grateful to invalids and all who suffer from headache from mental labour or fatigue. Buy only the genuine Golden Star Bay-Leaf Water, sold in three sizes Toilet Bottles, 2s. 6d., 6s., 12s., by Chemists and Perfumers, or on receipt of stamps from the Wholesale Depot, 114 and 116, Southampton-row, London.

ROWLANDS' ODONTO

has been proved, by its unparalleled success of seventy years, to be the best Dentifrice for procuring White and Sound Teeth. Healthy Gums, and Fragrant Breath, being perfectly free from all deleterious and acid compounds, which give a temporary whiteness to the teeth, but ultimately ruin the enamel. Sold by Chemists and Perfumers. Price 2s. 6d. Take no Odonto but Rowlands'.

WRIGHT'S COAL-TAR SOAP

("SAPO CARBONIS DETERGENS").

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS

REGISTERED AT THE GENERAL POST-OFFICE FOR TRANSMISSION ABROAD.

No. 1997.—VOL. LXXI.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 20, 1877.

WITH TWO SUPPLEMENTS } SIXPENCE.
By Post, 6d.

THE WAR: BEFORE PLEVNA—ROUMANIANS MAKING TRENCHES UP TO THE SECOND GRAVITZA REDOUBT.
FROM A SKETCH BY ONE OF OUR SPECIAL ARTISTS.

BIRTHS.

On the 9th inst., at Speechley Park, Worcester, Viscountess Campden, of a daughter.
On the 10th inst., at The Ryes, Sudbury, Suffolk, Lady Florence Barnardiston, of a daughter.
On the 13th inst., at Gedling Rectory, Nottingham, the Hon. Mrs. Orlando Forester, of a son.
On the 15th inst., at Sotterley Hall, Suffolk, Lady Constance Barne, of a son.

MARRIAGES.

On the 11th inst., at Ingoldsby, by the Rev. Thomas Tyers, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, William Henry Vallack-Tom, of Cawsand, Plymouth, Captain R.M.L.I., to Nora Catherine, eldest daughter of the Rev. James Hildyard, Rector of Ingoldsby, Lincolnshire.
On the 6th inst., at Buenos Ayres, by the Rev. Dr. Smith, M.D., Alex., eldest son of the late Edmund Mackinlay, Esq., of Liverpool, to Rosita, only daughter of Otto Beumberg, Esq., of Paris.
On the 18th ult., at St. James's Church, Warrenton, Virginia, U.S., by the Rector, the Rev. J. S. Lindsay, Edward Wade, of Springfield, Fauquier County, Va., third son of Colonel Wade, C.B., of Hawxwell Hall, Bedale, Yorkshire, to Evelyn, eldest daughter of William Ashteton, of Rock Spring, Fauquier County, and granddaughter of the late Richard Ashteton, J.P., D.L., of Limefield, Bury, Lancashire.

DEATHS.

On the 14th inst., at 4, Manon-place, the Lady Frederick Beauclerk, aged 61.
On the 17th inst., at Hampstead, Charlotte Sarah, the wife of John Fish Pownall, of 63, Russell-square, and Lincoln's-inn, aged 63.
On the 18th inst., at Langley Lodge, Gerrard's Cross, Bucks, suddenly, Seraphina, the beloved wife of Mr. John Bramley-Moore.

* * The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, or Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING OCT. 27.

SUNDAY, Oct. 21.
Twenty-first Sunday after Trinity.	Westminster Abbey, 10 a.m., Rev. G. H. Connor, Vicar of Newport and Chaplain to the Queen; 8 p.m., Rev. Canon Duckworth.
Battle of Trafalgar, 1805.	St. Paul's Cathedral, 10.30 a.m., Rev. J. H. Coward, Minor Canon; 8.15 p.m., Bishop Cloughton; 7 p.m., Rev. R. M. Grier, Vicar of Bugeley.
Whitehall, closed.	Savoy, closed.
MONDAY, Oct. 22.
Full Moon, 7.31 a.m.	Medical Society, 8.30 p.m.
TUESDAY, Oct. 23.
Bristol Cathedral, opening of the new nave, sermon by the Bishop.	Yorkshire College, Leeds, foundation of new buildings to be laid by the Archbishop of York.
Gresham Lectures, 6 p.m. (Dr. J. T. Abdy on Law); and three following days.	Medical and Chirurgical Society, 8.30 p.m.
	West London Scientific Association, 8 p.m. (Rev. Professor G. Henslow, the President, on Climbing Plants; Mr. H. J. Johnstone Lavis on a Tour in the South of France).
WEDNESDAY, Oct. 24.
Long Vacation ends.	Oxford Poultry and Pigeon Show.
	Pharmaceutical Society, election of annuitants, noon.
THURSDAY, Oct. 25.
Battle of Agincourt, 1415.	Battle of Balacava ("Charge of the Six Hundred"), 1854.
	Idiot's Asylum, Earlswood, elections, Cannon-street Hotel, noon.
	Toxophilite Society, extra target.
FRIDAY, Oct. 26.
Architectural Association, conversation, 8 p.m.	Clinical Society, 8.30 p.m.
	Quekett Microscopical Club, 8 p.m.
SATURDAY, Oct. 27.
London Athletic Club, Stamford Bridge.

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE NEW OBSERVATORY OF THE ROYAL SOCIETY.
Lat. 51° 28' 6" N.; Long. 0° 18' 47" W.; Height above Sea, 34 feet.

DAY.	DAILY MEANS OF					THERMOM.		WIND.		General Direction.	Movement in 24 hours, read at 10 a.m. next morning.	Rain in 24 hours, read at 10 a.m. next morning.
	Barometer Corrected.	Temperature of the Air.	Dew Point.	Relative Humidity.	Amount of Cloud.	Maximum, read at 10 a.m.	Minimum, read at 10 p.m.
October	Inches.	° F.	° F.	%		° F.	° F.
10	30.014	46.7	41.8	84	10	52.3	36.4	ENE. SW.	175	0.215
11	29.913	50.4	37.9	65	6	54.3	47.8	XW. W. SW.	283	0.000
12	29.958	49.4	38.4	68	5	55.8	43.5	WSW. W. WSW.	213	1.115
13	29.852	54.7	49.6	84	10	59.0	46.8	SW. SSW.	451	0.000
14	29.878	60.1	49.8	71	11	65.2	53.8	SSW. S.	440	0.010
15	29.852	46.7	35.6	68	7	64.6	45.2	SW. WSW.	570	0.005
16	30.151	42.5	36.5	81	8	49.2	37.0	SW. W. WNW.	270	0.050

The following are the readings of the meteorological instruments for the above days, in order, at ten o'clock a.m. :-
Barometer (in inches) corrected .. 30.120 .. 29.925 .. 29.930 .. 29.846 .. 29.785 .. 30.074
Temperature of Air .. 46.7° .. 51.7° .. 51.6° .. 57.2° .. 59.2° .. 49.1°
Temperature of Water .. 44.9° .. 53.6° .. 53.6° .. 64.1° .. 65.5° .. 63.7°
Temperature of Evaporation .. 44.9° .. 53.6° .. 53.6° .. 64.1° .. 65.5° .. 63.7°
Direction of Wind .. SW. WSW. W. SW. SSW. WSW.

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE FOR THE WEEK ENDING OCTOBER 27.

Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m
1 14	1 20	1 45	1 59	2 14	2 29	2 44
1 14	1 20	1 45	1 59	2 14	2 29	2 44

THEATRE ROYAL, DRURY LANE.—EVERY EVENING,
at Eight, AMY ROBERTS, Mesdames J. Fernandez, W. Terries, E. F. Edgar, A. Glover, Linham, Douglas, F. Meland, Brooker, G. Weston, Edmond, Morris, H. Vaughan; Messieurs Willes, Harriet Convey, E. Stuart, Adair, D'Arcy, Vincent, &c. Preceded by SARAH'S YOUNG MAN. To conclude with THE CONSCRIPTION. Prices from 6d. to 25s. Doors open at 6.30; commence at 7. Box-Office open from Ten till Five Daily.

THE MOONSTONE, by Wilkie Collins. A New Drama, altered from the Novel. EVERY EVENING, at 8.30. Box-Office open daily from Eleven to Five. No booking fees.—OLYMPIC THEATRE.

MORNING PERFORMANCE OF THE MOONSTONE, on SATURDAY, OCT. 27, at 2.30. Box plan now open, OLYMPIC THEATRE.

MASKELYNE and COOKE. Daily at Three and Eight o'clock. EGYPTIAN HALL, Piccadilly. Fifth year in London. The present programme embraces Psycho and Zoo, the twin automatic mysteries; the sensational dance, in exposure of so-called Spiritualism, in which Mr. Cooke floats about the room taking the cadging of him—the most astounding feat ever accomplished; and many other illusory means of novel and original character. Such is the success of the entertainment that it is advisable to book seats in advance, for which there is no charge. Admission, 3s., 2s., 1s.

MR. and Mrs. GERMAN REED'S ENTERTAINMENT, A HAPPY BUNGALOW, AT THE SEA-SIDE, by Mr. Conroy Grain; and No. 204, Every Evening, except Thursday and Saturday, at Eight; every Thursday and Saturday, at Three. Admission, 1s., 2s., 3s., 4s.—ST. GEORGE'S HALL, Langham-place.

ST. JAMES'S HALL, PICCADILLY.

THE MOORE and BURGESS MINSTRELS will introduce an ENTIRELY NEW PROGRAMME. The whole of the songs contained in the first or musical portion of the Entertainment will be changed. New Dances, New Whimsicalities, and New Burlesque Sketches. The New Programme will be given.

EVERY NIGHT AT EIGHT, and on MONDAYS, WEDNESDAYS, and SATURDAYS, at THREE and EIGHT.
Fautouille, 3s.; Sofa Stalls, 2s.; Area, 1s.; Gallery, 1d. Doors Open at 2.30 for the Day Performance; at 7.30 for the Evening Performance. No fees. Ladies can retain their bonnets in all parts of the Hall.

ENGLAND v. MEXICO.—AGRICULTURAL HALL. THURSDAY, FRIDAY, and SATURDAY, NOV. 8, 9, and 10. RIDING-MATCH EXTRAORDINARY for Fifty Consecutive Hours, between LEON, the Mexican Champion Rider of the World, on his famous Mustang "Ton," and F. G. NEWBOLD, the Yorkshire Amateur, on the Thoroughbred Hunter "Fleecem," for £200 a side and a Cup. Admission, One Shilling. Commence on Thursday, at Nine p.m. Finish on Saturday, at Eleven p.m.

Now Ready,

PRICE ONE SHILLING (FREE BY POST 1s. 2½d.).

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK

FOR 1878,

CONTAINING

SIX COLOURED PICTURES.

PRINTED BY LEIGHTON BROTHERS' CHROMATOPROCESS.

TWELVE ILLUSTRATIONS OF THE WAR, FINE ART, &c.

TWELVE ENGRAVINGS AS HEADINGS TO THE CALENDAR.

ASTRONOMICAL DIAGRAMS OF REMARKABLE PHENOMENA,

WITH EXPLANATORY NOTES.

The Royal Family of Great Britain; the Queen's Household; her Majesty's Ministers; Lists of Government Offices and Officers; Bank of England and London and Westminster Bankers; Law and University Terms; Fixed and Movable Festivals; Anniversaries; Acts of Parliament passed during the Session of 1877; Obituary of Eminent Persons; Christian, Jewish, and Mohammedan Calendars; Tables of Stamps, Taxes, and Government Duties; Times of High Water at London and Liverpool; Postal Regulations; Remarkable Occurrences, &c., 1877-78; Eclipses in the Year 1878; together with an amount of useful and valuable information, which has during the past thirty-two years made the ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK an acceptable and elegant companion to the library or drawing-room table.

The unprecedented demand for the ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK year after year stimulates the Proprietor to still greater exertions to secure for this Almanack a reception as favourable as that which has hitherto placed its circulation second only to that of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

The ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK is inclosed in an elegant cover, printed in Colours by the same process as the SIX COLOURED PLATES, and forms a charming and pleasing ornament to the drawing-room table.

The SHILLING ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK is published at the Office of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS, 138, Strand, and sold by all Booksellers and Newsagents.

Now Ready,

THE ILLUSTRATED PENNY ALMANACK for 1878.

containing Twenty-Four Engravings from the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS—viz. Gates of Constantinople, Ports on the Bosphorus and the Black Sea, Old Modes of Locomotion, &c.; Tables of Stamps, Taxes, and Licenses; Eclipses, Remarkable Events, Post-Office Regulations, and a great variety of useful and interesting information. The Trade supplied by G. VICKERS, Angel-court (172), Strand; and H. Williams, Warwick-lane, Paternoster-row London.

DORÉ'S GREAT WORKS, "THE BRAZEN SERPENT," "CHRIST LEAVING THE PRÆTORIUM," and "CHRIST ENTERING THE TEMPLE," each 32ft. by 22ft.; with "Dream of Pilate's Wife," "Christian Martyrs," &c., at the DORE GALLERY, 35, New Bond-street, W. Daily, 10 to 6. 1s.

CRYSTAL PALACE PICTURE-GALLERY.—Open all the year round for the RECEPTION and SALE of PICTURES by the British and Foreign Schools. For Particulars apply to Mr. C. W. WASS.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

LONDON: SATURDAY, OCTOBER 20, 1877.

Marshal MacMahon has got his answer from the Electorate of France—an unwelcome one to him and to the political parties which he chose to represent, but a clear and decisive one, not to be regarded as having been given this time under the influence of misapprehension. "Choose," said the Marshal in effect, "choose between me and the Republic; between Personal and Parliamentary Government; between the tastes, sympathies, purposes, and policy of the Chief of the Executive Power and those of the Chamber of Deputies dissolved last May." The issue submitted could not be mistaken; as a matter of fact, it can scarcely be said to have been veiled, however thinly, by the authority submitting it. The response has been by a majority of some 120 elections condemnatory of the course pursued by the President of the Republic. The opinion and the will of France, after a struggle of unsurpassed severity, have been constitutionally recorded in favour of Republican Institutions. The voting Power of the Government, it is true, has been somewhat increased. That of the Republicans has been somewhat curtailed. But the majority of the latter is large enough to dominate the proceedings of the Chamber of Deputies, not on one question only, but on all questions that may be brought before it.

The coalition of Monarchists may affect to see in the present result a justification of the course they have pursued during the last five months, and a ground of excuse for persisting in that course. The "Radicals," they say, have received an effectual check, because their estimate of strength before the Elections has not been numerically sustained. The pretence proves to be hollow at a single tap. In the first place, a majority of upwards of a hundred is quite as effective as one of much larger proportions (and perhaps may be even more safe) for the permanent establishment of Republican Institutions. The loss of a few seats will serve to give cohesion and to increase caution in the Party which has had to bear it. In the next place, it has to be borne in mind that the Electorate of France have very decisively replied to Marshal MacMahon's appeal under an adverse administrative pressure quite unparalleled even in the days of the Second Empire. The expedients which the Government, and even the President himself, were not ashamed to resort to for the purpose of influencing the result were most outrageous, manifestly unfair, and, if not altogether illegal, were yet in spirit grossly unconstitutional. All conceivable impediments were thrown in the way of Republican candidates. Every sort of license was allowed to those nominated as sanctioned by the President. So far as violence was resorted to, with a view to coerce public opinion, it was resorted to only by those in authority. So far as injustice had to be borne and forbearance to be exercised in the face of multiplied provocations, they were exhibited only by Republican candidates. Now an answer given under such circumstances was, to a considerable extent, an answer given in duress. Even the torture of the screw turned upon France without mercy has proved unavailing to extort from her a verdict differing in our from that which she would have returned under perfect liberty of choice. It is a little less voluminous, but it is not at all less resolute and unwavering. It has been given under a threat, but it has been given quietly and firmly. There have been no electoral disturbances. There has been scarcely a scuffle. The process of voting has been carried on under the eye of the gendarmes, and France, consciously impressed with the solemnity of the occasion and of the responsibility attaching to her behaviour in connection with it, has proclaimed to herself, to Europe, and to the world, that she desires and will have a Conservative Republic.

Now, who is to gainsay her in the actualisation of her purpose? Who is the Marshal that he should set his voice against hers? Nobody disputes his honesty, as no one seems to deny his political ignorance. But to whom is he honest? and of what is he specially ignorant? He may be honest to his own faith, such as it is. He may be honest—in intention, at least—to the coalition behind him. He is evidently ignorant of the duties of the position in which the Constitution has placed him. Nay, he seems to know very little, if anything, of the relative weight of his official authority or his personal influence. He does not perceive that the clothes of Napoleon III. are too big for him. He bears himself with the air of a heaven-born Dictator. He speaks as if he had a commission to sway the destiny of France by enacting the part of a "saviour of society." All this might be excusable before the Election. The illusion he cherished might then have some colour of reason in it, or at least of plausibility. But, now that the French people have spoken in response to the invitation foisted upon them by his Government, it is impossible that he can avoid the alternative of "resignation or submission." We decline to believe that he will do so until we see it. We cannot even yet realise as a fact that such egotism is possible, or such infatuation capable of being displayed. The ridiculousness of it is quite sufficient for Frenchmen to laugh it down. If it only shows itself (as we trust it will not do), it can only be met by an outburst of contempt.

But France has not even yet said her final say on the question submitted to her. The Municipal Elections are close at hand, and the members of the Conseils Généraux and Conseils d'Arrondissements will take some part in the election of that third part of the Senate which will legally vacate office within a short period. What if it should happen, as it seems not unlikely to happen, that the Republicans should obtain a majority in that Legislative Assembly! What if M. de Fourtoul's defeat in the Parliamentary Election should be closely followed by a defeat in the Municipal Elections. The bare prospect of such an event will surely serve to impose upon Marshal MacMahon something like political caution. He will not surely set up his will against the concurrent will of both Houses of Parliament, for in such case he would have no alternative but to rest exclusively upon the support of the Army, and to venture on a coup d'état. It may be confidently surmised that he will do nothing of the kind. His personal character forbids the supposition. But, even if such were not the case, it is far from certain that his would be a name to conjure with, even as it regards the troops, when the choice came to be submitted, by his own wrong-headedness, too, between loyalty to him as a military chief and obedience to the laws of the country. It is questionable how far the French Army would implicitly follow him. As M. Thiers predicted in his Testamentary Address, the rejection of the voice of France in the matter of self-government would land the Executive in Civil War. We will not, however, contemplate such a lamentable catastrophe. We believe that many of the Coalitionists would stop short of this issue. But, whatever may be the ultimate resolution of the De Broglie Cabinet in face of the defeat inflicted upon them by the General Election, it is to be earnestly hoped that the Republicans will continue to stand upon the ground of moderation and forbearance to which they have kept hitherto with such admirable patience. The destinies of France are in their hands. They have only "in quietness to possess their souls" to ensure victory for their principles.

Mr. Gladstone arrived on Wednesday evening at Kingstown, near Dublin, a very few persons being present at the landing-place at the moment. He was recognised by a newsvendor, who said in a strong voice, "Welcome to Ireland, Mr. Gladstone," and this salutation was acknowledged by the raising of his hat and the reply, "I thank you!" Mr. Gladstone, who was accompanied by Mrs. and Miss Gladstone and Mr. Spencer Lyttelton, was received by Lord Meath, to whose seat, at Kilraddery, the party proceeded.—In answer to an invitation to attend a meeting of the Dublin Philosophical Society, during his visit to Ireland, Mr. Gladstone regrets his inability to attend, and says he must return before the first week in November.

The Duke of Westminster opened a bazaar at Manchester on Tuesday on behalf of the Church of England Temperance Society for the Northern Province. Speaking at the opening ceremony, his Grace said the evidence given before the Committee of the House of Lords on the subject of intemperance did not enable them to judge whether drunkenness was on the increase or not; but there was no doubt that, though the number of licensed houses had not increased, the facilities and accommodation for drinking had considerably increased in large towns, where the old inn had in many instances given place to the vault and the gin palace. With regard to the much-abused grocers' licenses, he said it was difficult, if not impossible, to prove that any mischief had resulted from them.

THE COURT.

The Queen, Princess Beatrice, and Prince Leopold attended Divine service on Sunday at Crathie church. The Rev. Dr. Lees, of Abbey Church, Paisley, officiated. The Prince and Princess of Wales, with their sons Prince Albert Victor and George, lunched with her Majesty at Balmoral Castle. Dr. Lees dined with the Queen. Her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Beatrice, went to the Glassalt Shiel on Tuesday. The Queen has paid constant visits to Abergeldie Castle to inquire into the condition of Miss Knollys; and, with Princess Beatrice, her Majesty has taken her usual daily exercise. The Queen, as well as the Prince and Princess of Wales, has made various inquiries by telegraph as to the condition of the Countess of Airlie, who is suffering from typhoid fever at Cortachy Castle. Her Majesty, with the various members of the Royal family, has also been constant in her inquiries as to the progress of Lady Mary Shelley since her dangerous accident at Denham. Prince Leopold has dined with the Prince and Princess of Wales at Abergeldie Castle. The Lord Chancellor left Balmoral on Saturday last. The weather is very cold, and snow is lying two inches deep on Deeside.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

The Prince of Wales was present on Wednesday week at a deer drive given by Colonel Farquharson in Invercauld Forest. As the stags passed the rendezvous five stags fell before the rifles of the Royal party. The Prince shot a Royal stag the previous day, and Captain Allen Young, of the Pandora, shot two other fine stags. In the evening the Prince and Princess walked from Abergeldie Castle to the deer larder, to see the stags by torchlight. The Prince, accompanied by Princes Albert Victor and George of Wales, left the castle on Monday for London, arriving at Clarence House, St. James's, on Tuesday. His Royal Highness left Paddington on Thursday morning for Dartmouth, in order to take his son Prince George to the Britannia training-ship. The Princess of Wales remains with her daughters at Abergeldie. Miss Knollys is still under the constant attendance of Dr. Clayton, at Abergeldie.

Prince and Princess Christian of Schleswig-Holstein have returned to Cumberland Lodge, Windsor Park, from visiting the Earl and Countess of Dudley at Blackmount, Lord Dudley's shooting-quarters in the Highlands.

Princess Louise of Lorne and the Marquis of Lorne have consented to be present at the opening of the Glasgow public halls, which takes place on Nov. 13.

The Duke and Duchess of Teck, travelling incognito as Count and Countess of Holstein, arrived in Brussels on Wednesday week, and were met at the station by Mr. Savile Lumley, the English Minister. They stayed at the Hotel Bellevue, where they were visited in the course of the day by the King and Queen, and in the evening dined with their Majesties at the palace. The Duke and Duchess arrived at White Lodge, Richmond Park, on Saturday last from Brussels.

The Grand Duke of Mecklenburg-Strelitz returned to St. James's Palace on Monday, from the Granville Hotel, Ramsgate.

The Lord Lieutenant returned yesterday week to the Vice-regal Lodge from Scotland.

His Excellency Count Beust left the Austrian Embassy, Belgrave-square, on Saturday last for Brighton.

The American Minister and Mrs. Pierrepont have returned to their residence in Cavendish-square from a visit to the Marquis and Marchioness of Ripon at Studley Hall. His Excellency has forwarded his resignation to Washington, to take effect on Dec. 1 next.

The Duke of Westminster and Lord Robert Grosvenor have arrived at Eaton Hall, Cheshire, from Reay Forest, N.B. The Duchess and Lady Beatrice Grosvenor have also left the Duke's shooting-quarters for the south.

The Duke of Sutherland has left town for Dunrobin Castle. The Duchess has left Stafford House for Torquay.

The Duke of Manchester has arrived at Kimbolton Castle from Tandragee Castle, Armagh.

The Marchioness of Salisbury has arrived at Hatfield House, from Châlet Cecil, near Dieppe. The Marquis has returned to Hatfield from Yorkshire.

The Countess of Courtown has arrived in Eaton-square from Cannes.

The Marchioness of Lansdowne has arrived at Bowood from visiting the Duke and Duchess of Abercorn.

The Earl of Beaconsfield has arrived at Woburn Abbey, on a visit to the Duke and Duchess of Bedford.

General and Mrs. Grant and Mrs. Sartoris have arrived in London, and have taken up their residence at the Bristol Hotel, Burlington-gardens.

The Dean of Westminster has arrived in town from the Continent.

FASHIONABLE MARRIAGES.

The marriage of Mr. Charles Lutyens, eldest son of Mr. C. B. Lutyens, of Onslow-square, and Miss Beatrice Talbot Airey, second daughter of Mr. Julian Airey, of Frogmal Hall, Hampstead, and niece of General Lord Airey, G.C.B., was solemnised on Tuesday at St. John's Church, Hampstead. The bride, who was given away by her father, was attended to the altar by eight bridesmaids—namely, Miss Talbot Airey and Miss Violet Airey (her sisters), the Misses Bromley Davenport, Miss Mary and Miss Aileen Lutyens (sisters of the bridegroom), Miss Courtenay, and Miss Stackpool. The bride's dress was composed of white satin and brocade, trimmed with Brussels lace, and over a wreath of orange-blossoms was a veil of the same lace. Her jewels included a pearl necklace with diamond and ruby pendant, the gift of Mr. and Mrs. Bromley Davenport. The bridesmaids wore princess dresses of pale blue cashmere, with fichus and cuffs of white muslin and lace, and white Rubens hats and feathers. Each wore a silver Normandy cross, the gift of the bridegroom. The bridegroom was accompanied by his brother, Mr. John Gallwey Lutyens, R.E., who officiated as best man. The religious ceremony was performed by the Rev. Henry Eliot Henry Stapleton, M.A., Rector of Mere-worth, Kent, cousin of the bride, assisted by the Rev. Meyrick John Sutton, M.A., Chaplain of the Mercers' Company and Curate of St. John's. After the ceremony the wedding party breakfasted with Mr. and Mrs. Airey at Frogmal Hall. The bride and bridegroom left for Baginton Hall, Mr. W. Bromley Davenport's seat, near Coventry, to spend the honeymoon.

On Monday last, at the Russian church, Paris, the marriage of Mr. Pericles Valaority, son of Sir Spiridon Valaority, with Miss Henrietta Scaramanga, daughter of Mr. John P. Scaramanga, was celebrated according to the Greek rite.

The marriage of the Duke of Norfolk and Lady Flora Hastings will be solemnised on Wednesday, Nov. 21, at the Oratory, Brompton. The ceremony will be conducted with remarkable pomp and splendour. It is several hundred years since a Duke of Norfolk was married as a Duke, and it is stated that it will be the first time on which the nuptials of an Earl Marshal of England has been celebrated.

MEMBERS OUT OF PARLIAMENT.

Lord John Manners was present on Tuesday night at a Conservative banquet held at Ipswich, and responded to the toast of "Her Majesty's Ministers." Lord John commented upon the domestic and foreign policy of the Government, expressing the belief that it had met the expectations of the people. He observed that he had not been astonished at the defeat of the Russians by the Turks; and as to the steps which should be taken to stop the present awful struggle, he said that, as Great Britain was the first to express a decided opinion that the war was unnecessary and uncalled for, so now the Government would take the first opportunity of interfering with a view to terminate the conflict upon a basis satisfactory to the military sentiment of the contending parties, and equitable and just in the interests of Europe at large. Lord John Manners then adverted to the colonial policy of the Government and other topics.

Speaking at Poole the same night, at the opening of the new Liberal Hall, the Hon. E. Ashley referred to the Penge murder, and said that, had the bill he intended again bringing forward next Session, with respect to prisoners being allowed to give evidence in criminal prosecutions, been law, the examination of the four prisoners would have enabled the Judge, jury, and the nation to form a far better opinion of the truth. He should bring this case forward in support of his bill next Session. Referring to the Eastern Question, he said that, if what Lord Salisbury had said at Bradford with respect to the policy of England was true, the Government had misled the Turks. It was perfectly clear that, whatever the Government might have meant, they had caused Turkey to believe that when the first guns were fired they would bring allies on her side, and thus induce the Turk to refuse the terms of the European Conference. It was certain that, if the Turk proved the conqueror, a pressure of force must be used to ensure the reforms of her Government and protection of her Christian subjects, as she was powerless herself to make the slightest reform. He hoped the Government would consider the question when the time came, not by counteracting European unity of action, but in trying to put a stop to the crying evils and disastrous bloodshed which had resulted from Turkish misgovernment.

At a banquet of the Stamford and District Licensed Victuallers' Association the same evening Sir John Hay, in replying for the Navy, expressed the opinion that if Hobart Pasha had not a fleet in the Black Sea, the Russians would now have been at Constantinople; but, as he predicted a year ago, they had only crossed the Balkans, and he was glad to say were going back again. The right hon. gentleman, alluding to grocers' licenses, prophesied their probable revocation after the inquiry of the Royal Commission in Scotland.

Sir H. Selwyn-Ibbetson presided the same day at an agricultural gathering at Hatfield Broad Oak, and, with reference to the war in the East, said that the English people, in the enjoyment of the blessings of peace, might well thank God that they were preserved from the necessity of using our Army or Navy in such a war. With regard to agriculture, he told his hearers that it was the right arm of England, and as such they were bound, one and all, to keep it going. In addressing the grand jury at the Essex Quarter Sessions on Wednesday, Sir H. Selwyn-Ibbetson alluded to the Acts passed in the late Session in reference to prisons and the fees of justices' clerks. Setting aside altogether the financial merits of the measure transferring the prisons from particular localities to the Crown, he looked upon it as a most valuable one, and hoped to see it aid in the diminution of crime throughout the country. By it the classification of sentences and of prisoners would be for the future carried out properly, and industrial training would be taught systematically in far more instances than was possible under the present system; and we might hope, by giving prisoners an occupation to rely upon after leaving gaol, that they would turn into honest citizens instead of again resorting to crime.

Lord Hartington on Wednesday laid the foundation-stone of a public hall to be erected in memory of George Stephenson at Chesterfield. The hall will cost £13,000, and is to be used for scientific and educational purposes. The ceremony was conducted with Masonic honours, and a procession of Freemasons, civic authorities, and literary societies preceded the stone-laying, which was witnessed by several thousand persons. A banquet followed, at which Lord Hartington, referring to the enormous revenue derived from railways, and the benefit conferred on the country through Stephenson, expressed the opinion that he was deserving of a national and not a merely local memorial. With regard to the war, he considered it a reflection on the science of statesmanship that the Powers had not been able to prevent it. Speeches were likewise delivered by Lord Edward Cavendish, Sir H. M. Jackson, Professor Stuart, Sir H. Verney, Bart., Admiral F. Egerton, and others.

Serjeant Simon addressed his constituents the same day at Dewsbury. He reviewed the work of the past Session; and, referring to the famine in India, said our Government ought to make future famines impossible by forming irrigation works. Touching on the war, he strongly condemned the aggressive policy of Russia.

Sir Tollemache Sinclair has decided to retain his seat for the county of Caithness until the dissolution of the present Parliament, when he intends to retire from public life.

Mr. John Bright has consented to preside at a meeting in Rochdale on Nov. 7, at which Mr. Chamberlain, M.P., will deliver a political address.

Mr. Gathorne Hardy has promised to open the Conservative Club at Bradford in November.

THE SEVERE GALE.

Last Sunday night there sprang up a gale, which was not only felt severely in London and throughout the United Kingdom, but which also raged round the coast and in the Bay of Biscay. So high did the seas run off Cape Finisterre on Sunday night (as reported by the captain of the steam-ship Olga, which reached Falmouth on Wednesday evening) that the Cleopatra cylinder-ship had to be cast off by the Olga, which had towed it from Alexandria. We learn that the voyage was of the most uneventful nature until the Olga arrived off Cape Finisterre at five last Saturday evening. Next morning a violent squall arose, increasing to a furious gale. The sea rose with great rapidity; but the Cleopatra, which contained the obelisk, behaved admirably, shipping no heavy water. On Sunday evening, with falling barometer, the wind veered to westward, the sea becoming so turbulent and dangerous that the Cleopatra was hoisted to. At six in the evening a tremendous sea threw the Cleopatra on her beam ends. The mast was then cut away, and every effort made to right her, but without success. Signals of distress were made by the Cleopatra, and at ten o'clock, the wind having abated, six men from the Olga pluckily went to the rescue. They succeeded in reaching the Cleopatra, but before they could render any assistance their boat was swept away and seen no more. The Olga went on an unsuccessful search for the men, and then returned to where the Cleopatra had been cut adrift, the Maltese crew of the Cleopatra having been previously saved by a boat being hauled to her from the Olga by means of a rope. The search for the valuable treasure (vainer, one would think, than the proverbially vain search for a needle in a bundle of hay) was continued for some time; but after several hours of profitless drifting about, further hope was abandoned. The loss of Cleopatra's Needle was, however, but temporary. We are glad to learn that the Fitzmaurice steamer, from Middlesburg for Valencia, fell in with and recovered the cylinder vessel ninety miles north of Ferrol. We gave a drawing last spring of the cigar-shaped vessel, designed by Mr. John Dixon to bring Cleopatra's Needle from Alexandria to England, the cost being defrayed through the public spirit of Dr. Erasmus Wilson. This cylindrical vessel was built round the obelisk; and the Cleopatra, freighted with the Needle, was rolled into the sea, and left for England on an unlucky day (from a sailor's point of view); namely, on a Friday, Sept. 21 last, in tow of the Olga.

By the same violent storm, in the towns roofs, chimneys, and walls were blown down or damaged; and in the country districts agricultural produce was destroyed, thousands of trees were uprooted or blown down, trains delayed, and telegraphic communication in many cases stopped. A report from Greenwich Observatory states that the gale attained its greatest force at a quarter past two on Monday morning, when a pressure of 23 lb. on the square foot was registered. The direction, till nine o'clock, was from S. to S.W., afterwards W.S.W. and W. One of the anemometers of the Radcliffe Observatory at Oxford was rendered useless. At Bristol the roof of the observatory, Clifton Down, was torn off, the velocity of the wind being estimated at about seventy miles per hour, or 30 lb. on the square foot. At Leamington the exhibition of the Sanitary Institution was unroofed, and the exhibitors had hurriedly to remove their goods. Part of the wall of the new Borough Hall at Stafford was blown down, the wreck falling on three houses at the back of the hall. These were greatly damaged, but the inmates escaped with a few bruises and cuts. Much damage has been done in the neighbourhood of Weymouth, houses being unroofed and trees, walls, and ricks blown down. At Liskeard a chimney fell through the roof of the house upon a bed occupied by a stonemason named Scantelbury and his wife. The man escaped with some serious cuts and contusions, but the woman's chest was crushed in, and she died almost immediately. At Tydwardeth two ladies had the bed in which they were sleeping broken in two by a chimney, which blocked up the door, and they had to be rescued through the window, happily uninjured. At Crewkerne the chimney of a manufactory fell upon a cottage, and crushed to death an old man, his two grandchildren, and a young man lodger. A postmistress at Penhoe, near Exeter, was killed by a similar accident. A signal-post fell across the railway near Slough, and caused a collision, which was, however, not serious.

Several vessels were driven ashore. At Hull, two coasting-vessels sank in the roads. A French fishing-boat, the Jeanne Alice Isnigny, was washed ashore at Portland bottom upwards; and much damage was done to the large fleet of fishing boats on the beach. The steamer Rothesay became a total wreck about a cable's length west of Newstone Rocks, near Plymouth; the crew was saved. The barque R. H. Jones, of Newport, is believed to have attempted to anchor outside the breakwater, but was driven over, and sank below the low-water chain-cables across the breakwater. All hands were drowned. A body, believed to be that of the captain, J. Roberts, was picked up. A Spanish schooner was driven ashore in Bigbury Bay. The captain was drowned, but the mate and six other men were saved. Devonport Dockyard suffered severely, the public establishments being unroofed, and portions of the premises themselves being carried away. At Penzance heavy seas broke upon the Promenade, and threatened the communication between the town and Newlyn. The Eastern Telegraph Company, which has its station at Porthenow, had its communications interrupted. Wherever the full blast of the gale was felt all vegetation is blackened as if by fire. Liverpool reports a host of shipping accidents. The ship Sarah, belonging to Yarmouth, N.S., was driven ashore on the Middle Mouse, on the Welsh coast. The perilous position of the vessel and crew became known to the life-boat men at Amlwch, and a boat quickly put off from the station to their rescue, succeeding in taking the whole of the crew from the stranded ship and landing them at Amlwch. Shortly afterwards the steam-tug Great Western discovered the vessel derelict. A portion of the tug-boat's crew were placed on board the Sarah, and she was towed safely into the Mersey, having a breach in her bottom. During the gale on Monday a vessel drove on the Middle Mouse Rocks, Anglesey. On observing her perilous position, the Ashtonian life-boat, stationed at that place, promptly proceeded to her, and was instrumental in saving the shipwrecked crew. The Teignmouth life-boat Cerina, belonging to the National Life-Boat Institution, was called out last Sunday evening to the assistance of some fishing-boats which had been overtaken by a very heavy sea, and were unable to cross the bar and obtain the shelter of the harbour, the wind blowing very strong at the time from the south-west. Fortunately, the life-boat was enabled to bring the endangered fishermen, ten in number, safely ashore.

A terrific south-westerly gale, accompanied by heavy showers of sleet and rain, swept over the north-east of Scotland on Saturday. Two wrecks occurred at the mouth of the Firth of Forth. The schooner Marens Minde, of Svenborg, Denmark, Frederick Wulff, master, went ashore near Burntisland on Saturday. One of the crew, Genis Andersen, in stepping from the ship to the boat, was swept away and drowned. On Sunday afternoon the schooner Marchioness of Londonderry, Captain Gaskin, also went ashore near Burntisland. She was laden with iron from Sweden. The crew were saved. A sad accident occurred at Dunbar in connection with the life-boat practice on Saturday afternoon. The boat capsized; and Harkiss, the coxswain, and Clements, were drowned.

During the storms of the past and present years the National Life-Boat Institution has contributed to the saving of 1255 lives from various shipwrecks, and forty vessels from destruction. It has also expended £55,991 in the same period on its 267 life-boat establishments. Need we add that contributions may be sent to the secretary, Richard Lewis, Esq., at the institution, 14, John-street, Adelphi, London?

Mr. Thomas Calthorpe Blofeld, of the South-Eastern Circuit, has been appointed Recorder of Ipswich, in the room of Mr. Cooper, deceased.

The monument which was erected in 1876 to the late Lord Colonsay, in the island of Colonsay, on the west coast of Scotland, was destroyed by lightning on Thursday night, the 11th inst, the same night on which Inverary Castle was set on fire. The monument was built in the form of an obelisk, and stood thirty feet high.

THE WAR: TURKISH ARMY ON THE ROAD TO BIELA.

WAITING FOR ORDERS TO ADVANCE.
FROM A SKETCH BY ONE OF OUR SPECIAL ARTISTS.

RETURNING FROM THE BATTLE-FIELD: WOUNDED SOLDIERS SALUTING THE GENERAL.
FROM A SKETCH BY ONE OF OUR SPECIAL ARTISTS.

THE WAR, FROM SKETCHES BY OUR SPECIAL ARTISTS WITH THE TURKISH ARMY.

TURKISH IRREGULARS FORCING THEIR WAY INTO AN INN AT BASGRAD.

A SKETCH OF OSMAN PASHA.

SPOILS OF THE SLAIN: CIRCASSIANS IN RUSSIAN DRESSES.

SOLDIERS GRINDING CORN IN CAMP AT THE FRONT

FIRE IN CAMP AT THE VILLAGE OF SINANKUI.

THE WAR.

The Turkish army in Asia has this week suffered a complete defeat; and the Russians in Bulgaria seem to be about to make another formidable attack on Osman Pasha's fortified positions at Plevna. It will depend on the result of this attack whether there is next to be a suspension of active operations for the season, with the Russian head-quarters moved back to Sistova, or whether Timova and the road to the Balkans is to be occupied in full force. There is, indeed, another military agency to be reckoned with; that of Suleiman Pasha, now commanding the Turkish army on the Lom, who may not choose to leave the Czarevitch undisturbed at Biela, covering the Sistova passage of the Danube. Our illustrations, from Mr. Melton Prior's sketches, of the Turkish march towards Biela, after the victories of Sinankui and Kaceljevo, show that a movement in advance was actually begun, which, in fact, compelled the Russians to fall back on the Jantra; but Mahomet Ali Pasha had not sufficient force, in his own judgment, to attack the positions of his enemy there. Of more urgent importance at this moment are the approaches of the allied Russian and Roumanian army to a renewed attack on the second Gravitza redoubt, the key of the Turkish defensive positions at Plevna. The sketches of Herr Schönbeger, who was at the Roumanian head-quarters, represent the unsuccessful assault upon that redoubt by the 15th Dorobanzer regiment on the 16th ult., and the nocturnal scene of Roumanians digging the parallel lines of trenches to cover their future approach. They have now got within forty yards of the redoubt still held by the Turks. The allied army before Plevna consists of the Second, Third, and Fourth Divisions, with eighty guns and four regiments of cavalry. These last, with two batteries, are attached to eight Cossack regiments, and are employed on the extreme right wing, under General Gourko, to prevent the communication of Osman Pasha with Widdin. The Fourth Division has its outposts in the advanced line from the Gravitza redoubt along the trenches which run for about two kilometres northward from that point. Its reserve is encamped in the valley behind these positions. Further to the north and north-west is stationed the Third Division, under the command of Colonel Angelescu, and along the plateau which stretches eastward behind these is the camp of the Second Division, in the centre of which is the present head-quarters of General Cernat, the commander under the Prince, and former Minister of War. A line of field telegraph runs along the whole line from Poreidin, where Prince Charles of Roumania, with General Zotow, has at present established his head-quarters.

A correspondent from Plevna writes:—"I was astonished at the coolness with which the Roumanian soldiers worked in these trenches, within a few yards of the Turkish works, from which every now and then a perfect hailstorm of bullets rattled against the gabions. The parallels are being made by the Roumanians, and, with the exception of a battalion of Russians in the third line, the redoubt is also manned by them. I cannot speak of the preparations for attack within the works, but it will be enough to say that the Roumanians have reason to be confident that they will carry the Turkish redoubt when the order shall be given. The Turks have also a suspicion that their means of defence may prove insufficient, for they have already withdrawn all artillery from their redoubt. But the task before the Roumanians is far from over when they have taken the second Gravitza redoubt. There lies about a mile behind it a second Turkish earthwork, which seems quite as formidable as both the Gravitza redoubts. A covered trench connects this work with the second Gravitza redoubt, and by this means the garrison in this latter is relieved and reinforced without risk. This second work is called the Bucora redoubt; it appears on about the same level as Gravitza. Under shelter of an angle of the Gravitza redoubt I had a good opportunity of examining it through a field-glass. It is well provided with artillery, and the works seem of enormous strength. It is about 2½ kilometres distant from the nearest Russian batteries, and can only be approached across a flat bare surface, 1000 yards distant from the nearest of the enemy's trenches. The experiences of Sept. 11 are a sufficient security that such another assault will not be lightly made. Then the Gravitza redoubt, which is now held by Roumanians, was 1000 yards distant from their nearest position; and yesterday I met in the tent of General Cernat a sub-lieutenant who had just received the Cross of Stanislaus. He was the only surviving officer of this battalion, and 500 from the 800 men who attempted the rush across that fatal 1000 yards never returned. It is probable that after the capture of the second Gravitza redoubt the Roumanians will advance their works by a system of parallel trenches against the Bucora redoubt. To our right, still looking towards Plevna, the line of Roumanian trenches extends for several kilometres in a north-westerly direction. These trenches will be advanced about a kilometre after the capture of the Gravitza redoubt, the new line of trenches being already finished."

Despite the apparent insufficiency of means at their disposal to carry out their programme of surrounding and ultimately capturing Plevna, we are assured that the Czar, the Grand Dukes, and their officers at head-quarters are cheerfully confident of success. The forces of the Czar at present in Bulgaria do not number more than 170,000 men—110,000 before Plevna, 30,000 on the Lom and Jantra Lines, and 30,000, more or less, occupied in holding the Shipka Pass. At Plevna, more particularly, the attacking force, including the Guard and the Roumanians, has now been brought up to about 110,000 effectives, with 640 guns, to resist which Osman Pasha has 55,000 men and 160 cannon behind earthworks. The Imperial Guard Corps is destined to complete the force with which the Grand Duke proposes to invest Plevna and to destroy or capture Osman Pasha's whole army. Vast numbers of horses as well as of oxen have succumbed during the late wet weather; but the men, both Russians and Roumanians, have stood rain and cold better than had been expected.

Advices from Shumla state that Suleiman Pasha is only prevented from assuming the offensive by the impracticable condition of the roads. On Tuesday a strong reconnaissance of Turkish cavalry proceeded from Kadikoi to cross the Lom. It retired after a slight skirmish, having ascertained that the ground on the opposite side is still unfit for the movement of a large body of troops. In Constantinople it is anticipated that if Suleiman Pasha is obliged to remain idle, he will shortly be attacked by the Czarevitch with the object of forcing him to retreat on Shumla and again surrounding Rustchuk. There is no further news of importance from the Lom.

The Russian victories of last Sunday and Monday in the Armenian campaign seem to be almost decisive, not indeed of the fate of Kars, which may still defy capture throughout the winter, but of the active operations this year in the open field. The following is the Russian official account, dated last Tuesday:—

"The column of General Lazareff, which was operating with the object of outflanking the Turks, occupied the heights of Orlok on Sunday, driving out the Turkish troops, and compelling them to fall back in the direction of Kars and Vizinkoi. As by this movement part of the enemy's army was already turned, it was decided to make a general attack upon the positions of Ahmed Mukhtar Pasha, of which the fortified hill of Evlias formed the key. On Monday morning, therefore, after preparing the way by a very well directed cannonade, we commenced a general attack. In the afternoon General Heimann with the Erivan, Grusien, and Pjatiporsk regiments, and a battalion of riflemen, made a brilliant attack upon Mount Evlias, which he succeeded in carrying. By the Russian occupation of this position Ahmed Mukhtar Pasha's army was cut in two. That part of his army which retreated in the direction of Kars was attacked by the troops under General Lazareff, and subsequently pursued by General Heimann. Towards five o'clock in the afternoon it was completely beaten and dispersed, losing an enormous number killed, several thousand prisoners, and four guns. At the same time, the three Turkish divisions which had remained on the Turkish right flank were entirely surrounded and driven out of their positions on the Aladja Dagh, with great loss, and at eight o'clock in the evening were compelled to surrender. Among the numerous prisoners taken were seven Pashas. We also captured thirty-two guns and an immense quantity of war material. Ahmed Mukhtar fled to Kars. Our losses, relatively speaking, were not large."

The following despatch has been received from Ahmed Mukhtar Pasha, dated on Monday, from Kars:—"This morning we took steps to establish ourselves on the Kars road. The enemy debouched at Hadji Vali and attacked Evlias Tépé, which was defended by three guns and four battalions of infantry. A simultaneous assault was made on our centre, near Boulantik, which, though reinforced by a battalion detached from the wings, was compelled, after being exposed for four hours to incessant assaults and to the overwhelming fire of a large number of guns, to retreat, leaving Evlias Tépé in the hands of the enemy. The Russians then occupied in succession all the strategic points in the direction of Kars, whither we withdrew with one division to prepare our revenge. A second division, including the corps commanded by Achid, Omar, Kiazim, Moussa, and Cheket Pashas, continues to hold the positions we selected on the Karadja Dagh. The present situation is attributed to the following causes:—The large reinforcements received by the enemy, the fact that they were able to place in position 200 guns served by skilled artillerymen, and the absence of several of our superior officers, who have been either killed or wounded in the recent engagements. On the side of the enemy, a regiment and a half of cavalry and four battalions of infantry were totally destroyed. We have 800 hors de combat."

A telegram published at St. Petersburg gives the details of the blowing up of a three-masted Turkish monitor at the mouth of the Sulina. The explosion was effected by torpedoes, laid on the night of the 8th and 9th inst.

Every Russian soldier actually present at the seat of war will, according to the terms of a decree just issued by the Emperor, be capable of promotion to an officer's rank for distinguished military service. Further advancement will be dependent on their successfully passing the usual examinations.

OSMAN PASHA.

The most distinguished, for ability and efficiency, of the Turkish Generals in Europe, the hitherto invincible defender of Plevna, is the subject of a Sketch by one of our Correspondents at the War. Osman Pasha is a native of Armasia, in Asia Minor, born in 1832-3, and educated in the Military School of Constantinople. He has never been in any country of Europe except European Turkey, but speak French. He is tall, of spare figure, and somewhat delicate in health; but active and intelligent, and attentive to his duties. He inquires personally into every detail of his army and its tactics, directing the mode in which they are to be executed. He has most urbane and agreeable manners, and is a favourite with his friends and intimate acquaintances. A correspondent of the Daily Telegraph, who was lately at Plevna, is full of admiration for Ghazi Osman. He says that he really cannot find words to express the demeanour of this remarkable man:—

"Looking after everything himself, for he trusts to nobody, even the supplies of ammunition, the commissariat stores, and the medicines; receiving telegrams and messages from every part of the field continually, and while engaged in trying to out-manceuvre a numerous and wily enemy, he sat on a little stool, with a lead-pencil behind his ear sometimes, and sometimes stuck under the edge of his fez, with his field-glasses in his hand and a cigarette in his mouth, as cool and collected as though he had been listening to a lecture on the Arctic regions with physical illustrations. I could not but admire Osman commanding nearly 60,000 men in a most complex situation; he never for an instant spoke or acted hastily, maintaining his extraordinary coolness throughout the thirteen hours of the battle without an instant's change. Ready with a little joke now and then, always thoughtful, even to the point of sending to me and M. Victor Louie a cup of coffee at four o'clock in the afternoon when we breakfasted, Osman Pasha furnishes a very good reason for the fear in which the Russians held him."

The first stone of the Metropolitan Christian Union Buildings, to be erected on the site of the old Metropolitan Hall in Abbey-street, Dublin, was laid on Tuesday by Colonel Sanderson, D.L.

At a meeting of the committee of the Clio training-ship recently held, the Duke of Westminster gave a donation of £1000 towards the expenses, and Mr. Albert Wood, of Penarth, Conway, a second donation of £100. Mr. Lampert, of Penmaenmawr, also promised to double his donation, provided a certain number of others would follow his example.

A meeting of the governors of the Cotton Districts Convalescent Fund was held in Manchester on Monday: Lord Derby presided. Sir U. Kay-Shuttleworth, Bart., M.P., was elected a co-optative governor, in place of his late father. The question of contributing to the Indian Famine Relief Fund, which was expected to occupy the attention of the governors, did not arise. The funds cannot, it seems, be devoted to such a purpose without the sanction of the Court of Chancery. After the meeting Lord Derby, Lord Wimmarleigh, Mr. H. Birley, M.P., and Mr. J. W. Maclure took luncheon together at the Conservative Club.

The thirty-eighth autumnal meeting of the Congregational Union of England and Wales was begun on Tuesday morning at Leicester. The chair was occupied by Mr. Henry Richard, M.P., the President of the Union, who gave a long address on the Application of Christianity to Politics. Mr. Richard argued that if the Christian Church had done its duty such a war as that now raging in Eastern Europe would have been impossible. The session was resumed and concluded on Wednesday. In the afternoon there were sectional meetings on the improvement of the college system of the body and the best way of promoting preaching tours; and in the evening there were several public meetings, the most important being a meeting of working men in the Temperance Hall.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL NEWS.

FRANCE.

The electoral conflict awaited with so much anxiety has ended in a drawn battle, or nearly so. Neither the Ministry nor the Opposition have seen their expectations realised. M. de Fourtou's prediction that the Government would obtain a majority has been falsified; whilst, contrary to M. Gambetta's anticipation, the famous 363, instead of gaining some forty adherents, have lost about that number of their members. Still, Marshal MacMahon and his Ministers may be said to have suffered a grave defeat. They put forward 506 official candidates, and the country rejected 307; so that their appeal to the constituency may be said to have been treated with contumely. M. Gambetta was returned unopposed in Belleville. The Duc Decazes, who has been defeated at Libourne, has succeeded in the constituency of Puget-Théniers, in the department of the Alpes Maritimes. In the list of those who have failed occur the names of the Duc de Mouchy and the Vicomte de Tocqueville. Another of the shipwrecked in this election is M. Emile Ollivier, who retired before the poll, leaving as a last word a protest against the candidate of personal power, curious as emanating from a Minister of the Second Empire. Prince Napoleon has been thrown out at Ajaccio by M. Haussmann.

The Senatorial Left, in a communication to the Press, says, that after the general elections, by which France has solemnly condemned the policy of May 16, it is desirable to sum up the precise results. The document analyses the returns, and concludes that out of a Chamber of 533 there will be 335 Republicans against, at the maximum, 198 official candidates. These it divides into 90 Bonapartists, 40 Legitimists, and 68 ranging under the vague denomination of Conservative, for want of any rational classification. It is already evident, therefore, that the new Chamber is very nearly a reproduction of the old. A slight change of figures susceptible of augmentation after the verification of powers makes no practical difference. The Republic will have a solid, resolute, compact majority of nearly 140.

Marshal MacMahon is advised by some of the Conservative newspapers to change his Ministers; but it is reported that they have no idea of resigning, nor has the President any idea of separating himself from them. It is said that the Left have resolved to invalidate all the elections of official candidates, and to adopt other sweeping measures, including a refusal to vote the Budget until a strong Republican Ministry be formed.

Madame Thiers has addressed a letter to the President of the Council General of the Hérault thanking them for an address of condolence. All her husband's sentiments and acts, she says, were consecrated to the restoration and prosperity of his country. Proud of the confidence which he had inspired, he nobly descended from the post of power to which, but for death, he would later have doubtless been recalled by the great majority of the nation, which recognised in him the liberator of its territory, the restorer of its finances, and the able and prudent leader of its fortunes.

M. Gambetta has again been sentenced to three months' imprisonment, and a fine of 4000f., for libelling the Marshal and his Ministers. This new judgment arose out of the recent electoral address of the Republican leader.

It is said that the health of M. Louis Blanc, which has been in a failing state for some time, is now so seriously impaired as to cause great anxiety to his friends. He is sixty-four years of age.

HOLLAND.

M. Kappeyne van de Copello was summoned by the King on Wednesday to form a Cabinet, and accepted the task.

The Dutch-Indian Budget for 1878 was submitted to the bureaux of the Second Chamber on the 11th inst. The great majority of those present recommended the Government to strike out all articles respecting the construction of new railways, as being prejudicial to the decision taken in the Chamber relative to contracts with railway companies in the Dutch Indies. The Government was also advised to erase all clauses touching the proposal to issue a loan to be charged to the Indian Budget. The proposal to tax Europeans in the Dutch-Indian Colonies was generally approved.

GERMANY.

The Crown Prince represented his father at the inauguration, on the 9th inst., of a statue of Frederick the Great at Marienburg, in the West Prussian province. Five years ago the Emperor laid the foundation-stone of the monument, which is erected to commemorate the incorporation, a century ago, by the great King, of the district which now constitutes Western Prussia—an act which, to use the language of the address of the Town Council, "restored to German life a land that for three hundred years had been subjected to foreign poverty and darkness, and planted therein the fresh tree of Christian faith and German cultivation."

The political crisis in Prussia has ended. The Emperor refuses to accept the resignation of Count Eulenburg, the Minister of the Interior, but has granted him leave of absence for some time. During the interval his place will be filled by Dr. Friedenthal, the Minister of Agriculture.

Professor Helmholtz was installed on Monday as Rector of the University of Berlin. In his speech on the occasion he reviewed the position of the Universities in the Middle Ages, and remarked with regard to Oxford and Cambridge that they have changed the least since then, even in things where change would have been very necessary. He recommended, however, the imitation of these old English Universities in two things—in the perfection of the art of expressing thought, and in the care for the physical development of the students, whose athletics are far preferable to the German fencing and gymnastic exercises.

A German correspondent of the Pall Mall Gazette writes that Baron von Tauchnitz, of Leipzig, has obtained his exequatur as English Consul-General for the Kingdom of Saxony and the Saxon Duchies.

AUSTRO-HUNGARY.

In Tuesday's sitting of the Lower House of the Hungarian Diet Herr Nemeth questioned the Government as to an allegation that the Government tolerated the transport of war material destined for the Russian army, while, on the other hand, they had taken strong measures in relation to the recent events in the Szekler district. Herr Tisza, the Minister President, in reply, declared that, so far as was known, no arms had been transported through Hungary either for the Russians or for the Turks. The measures which the Government has taken in the Szekler district for the self-defence of the State must be respected by everybody in all parts. The Minister for War proceeded to Transylvania to furnish the Government with authentic information regarding what had passed, but nobody had been invested with special powers, nor had any commissioner been appointed. The Minister next pointed to the articles which had been published in Hungarian newspapers, in which it was openly said that the people would hasten to the assistance of the Turks. He cited the case of Herr Miletics to prove that the present action of the Government was dictated by the simplest feelings of justice. In reply to another deputy, who had demanded the liberation of the persons arrested, Herr Tisza declined to accede to this demand, as such a proceeding would be contrary to the laws. The House resolved by an overwhelming majority to take cognisance of the Minister's answer.

GREECE.

The King and Queen left Athens for Thebes on Wednesday on a visit to the army. Some interesting manoeuvres are expected. The correspondent of the Daily News says that the visit has no political meaning. Another despatch says that the Government are going to spend 26,000,000*fr.* on naval armaments; the work is to be done in a foreign dockyard. The Ministerial journals express indignation at the massacre and acts of brigandage alleged to have been perpetrated by Turkish soldiers in the frontier provinces.

AMERICA.

Congress met on Monday for an Extraordinary Session. The principal business transacted was the organisation of the House of Representatives. Mr. Samuel J. Randall (Democrat) was elected Speaker, receiving 143 votes to 132 given for Mr. James A. Garfield (Republican).

President Hayes's Message was presented on Tuesday. The Message, which is short, commences by stating that Congress adjourned without making appropriations for the army, and that an extra Session was therefore necessary. The President suggests the propriety of making appropriations for the present maximum strength of the army—25,000 men. Estimates will also be submitted for the navy, and some other deficiencies. The Message then invites legislation to enable the people of the United States to participate in the Paris Exhibition of 1878. It says that the Department of State had received official advice of the strong desire of France that the United States should be represented at the Exhibition, and the President felt that the prompt action of Congress in accepting the invitation was of so much interest to the people of the United States, and so suitable to the cordial relations of the two Governments, that the subject might properly be presented this Session. The Message further recommends an appropriation to meet the expenses of sending a commissioner to the International Prison Congress at Stockholm. In conclusion, the President states that he will defer until the regular Session all reference to other subjects of public interest.

In the Senate on Tuesday Mr. Edwards made a motion for the appointment of a Select Committee for the purpose of reviewing the laws now in force for ascertaining and declaring the result of the Presidential election.

Mr. John M. Harlan, of Kentucky, has been nominated to the vacant judgeship of the Supreme Court.

CANADA.

The harvest this year, though late, is said to be exceptionally plentiful, and the Toronto Monetary Times estimates that the crops have yielded 30,000,000 bushels of wheat, 10,000,000 of barley, and 48,000,000 of various other cereals.

BRAZIL.

The Emperor has closed the Session of the Legislature. In his speech on the occasion, his Majesty thanked the Chambers for the measures they had passed, and stated that the Budget was in equilibrium. Alluding to his recent tour in Europe, the Emperor expressed his thanks for the cordial welcome extended to him in the various States which he had visited.

AUSTRALIA.

A telegram from Sydney, dated the 11th inst., informs us that the New South Wales Parliament has been dissolved by the Governor, the Ministry retaining office pending the result of the new elections.

Sir Arthur Blyth, the Agent-General for South Australia, has received a telegram from the Government at Adelaide, dated the 5th inst., stating that Sir William Jervois had been sworn in as Governor on the 2nd inst. Fine rains had fallen throughout the colony, and the harvest prospects were excellent. The emigrant-ships Forfarshire and Oaklands had arrived safely, and all the emigrants had found employment. The last returns show an increase in the revenue.

The Melbourne correspondent of the Times states that the Assembly of the Church of England for the diocese of Melbourne has held its first session under the new Bishop. No business was done beyond choosing a site for the cathedral, which will be built on the Eastern Hill, if land there can be exchanged for the present cathedral reserve.

NEW ZEALAND.

From Wellington we hear that the Legislative Assembly has passed a vote of want of confidence in the Ministry, and that they have in consequence resigned.

The Congregation of Rites at Rome has refused the demand for the beatification of Joan of Arc.

The number of medical students at the German Universities amounted in the last summer term to 5043. Vienna comes first, with 750, and Rostock last, with 36.

The Swedish Government has invited the other Governments to send delegates to an international congress for prison reform, which is to be held at Stockholm next August.

Immediate steps are being taken by the Foreign Office to carry out the powers conferred upon England for the suppression of the slave trade under the convention recently entered into with Egypt.

As a result of the meeting of the International Postal Commission at Madrid, the Spanish post-office authorities have been convinced that the numerous losses of letters recently were due to robberies committed in Spain. Some of the thieves have been prosecuted, and the authorities have promised to important reforms to prevent such losses in future.

The Scottish Lassie, Cap ain Le Couteur, chartered by the Agent-General for South Australia, Sir Arthur Blyth, left Portsmouth yesterday week for Port Adelaide with 273 emigrants, among whom were fifty-six single female domestic servants. The barque Gauntlet, 669 tons, Captain Lucas, sailed from Gravesend on Saturday, bound for Brisbane, Queensland, having on board eighty-nine single men, sixty-four single women, sixty-four married people, forty-five children between the ages of twelve and one, and twelve infants; making a total of 274 souls. A telegram has been received announcing the safe arrival at Rockhampton of the Fritz Reuter, and of the Humboldt, at Brisbane, both emigrant-ships from Hamburg. Information has also been received by telegraph of the arrival of the ship James Nicol Fleming at her destination in New Zealand. This vessel was dispatched by Sir Julius Vogel, the Agent-General for New Zealand, with 248 emigrants for Otago, sailing from the Clyde on July 14 last.

Rewards were presented at a large meeting held at Portland on Tuesday night to the fourteen brave men who aided in the rescue of the survivors of the Avalanche and Forest. Each man received from the Board of Trade £5, and £130 collected by the Rector was also divided amongst them.

The Extra Supplement.

"LOST!"

The picture by Miss Osborn, which has been engraved for this week's Extra Supplement, will appeal to the kindly sentiment of tenderness for innocent childhood, while the grace of womanly care for such a helpless little one is personified in the two good Sisters of Charity, about to take the forlorn street wanderer home in safety. It is only needful for that purpose that they should find out where the child's home is; and we suppose there is some difficulty in extracting the information from this very small girl, who has got astray in the maze of city thoroughfares which she never traversed before. Up some obscure court or alley, perhaps, in a distant quarter of the town, a weeping mother and several crying brothers and sisters are just now plunged in doleful lamentations for the unhappy fate of this dear little creature, "Lost!" It is a frequent occurrence in London, as many of our readers can attest from their own experience; and the same thing must often happen in foreign towns, as in that French or Belgian scene depicted by the artist of this picture. The policeman or sergent-de-ville, as the case may be, is likely to be able to render useful assistance, and the best course is to apply to him without delay, in order that the strayed child may be restored to its parents, who will probably report their loss at the nearest police station.

METROPOLITAN NEWS.

The annual exhibition of the Photographic Society of Great Britain, now open in Pall-mall East, affords incontestable evidence of the state of excellence to which photography has reached.

A general quarterly meeting of the Royal Naval Benevolent Society was held at Willis's Rooms on Monday, under the presidency of Admiral George Goldsmith, C.B., when grants to the amount of £514 were awarded to applicants.

Commemorative of the birthday of Father Mathew, a great meeting of the members of the Catholic Total Abstinence League of the Cross was held at Exeter Hall on Monday, under the presidency of Cardinal Manning. Resolutions advocating the temperance cause were adopted.

The Metropolitan Board of Works, in conformity with a resolution passed at their last meeting, have instituted proceedings against the Commercial Gas Company for supplying to the public gas of a lower standard of purity than that demanded by the Gas Act of 1875.

The award of the arbitrators in the matter of Dr. Barnardo's institutions, which was signed a day or two ago, sets forth a judgment to the effect that the institutions are useful and deserve public support, although there have been irregularities in their management, on which the arbitrators have thought it their duty to animadvert.

An industrial exhibition, the contents of which were contributed by the scholars of the Lambeth Auxiliary Sunday School Union, was opened at the Metropolitan Tabernacle on Tuesday by Sir Charles Reed, chairman of the School Board for London, who congratulated the committee and the children upon the success of the efforts which had been made.

At the ordinary general meeting of the proprietors of the Emma Mining Company, which was held on Tuesday, the report gave a history of past legal proceedings by and against the undertaking. Mr. Macdougall, the chairman, stated that the concern was no longer a mining but a "lawing" company. They were doing their best, under the advice of most able counsel. The report was adopted.

A cat show—the ninth annual one—has been held this week at the Crystal Palace, including choice specimens of Persian, Angora, Manx, tortoiseshell, blue, grey, tabby, and other kinds; while at the Alexandra Palace there has been a pigeon and poultry show—most of the classes being well represented, the offer of prizes in money and cups to the value of £700 having induced some of the first fanciers in England to send birds.

The weekly return of metropolitan pauperism shows that the total number of paupers at the end of the second week of October was 77,067, of whom 37,393 were in workhouses and 39,674 received outdoor relief. Compared with the corresponding weeks in the years 1876, 1875, and 1874, these figures show a decrease of 692, 3644, and 13,959 respectively. The number of vagrants relieved on the last day of the week was 890, of whom 572 were men, 257 women, and 61 children under the age of sixteen.

At the last meeting of the Seamen's Hospital (Dreadnought), Greenwich, it was reported that 590 seamen from British and foreign ships had been admitted as in-patients during the past quarter: of these 118 came from London, 28 from Liverpool, 25 from Glasgow, 21 from North and South Shields, 19 from Hull, 28 from the colonies, 149 foreign seamen, and 202 from other ports in Great Britain and Ireland. The balance-sheet for the quarter ending Sept. 30 presented a deficiency of £863.

The proprietors of the Crystal Palace held their first ordinary general meeting on Wednesday, under the Companies Act of this year. A report was presented explaining that by the Act of last Session the constitution of the company was changed, the charter and deed of settlement were annulled, and the company was now incorporated in perpetuity. Mr. T. Hughes, the chairman, gave further explanation of the scheme of reconstruction, and, after a discussion, the report was adopted. It recommends the payment of a dividend of one per cent on the Ordinary Stock.

A Court of Aldermen was held at Guildhall on Tuesday for the purpose of considering the question of admitting Sir John Bennett as member for the ward of Cheap, to which he was recently elected for the third time. Resolutions in favour of the veto of the Court were handed in, and received on behalf of the Vintners' and Haberdashers' Companies, and a petition signed by eight of the electors, was presented against the election. The petitioners relied for their case on the resolution of the Court of Aldermen that Sir John Bennett was unfit for the office, but offered to produce evidence in its support if called on to do so. Sir John Bennett's solicitor read a document expressing Sir John's intention to abide by the decision of the Court, and admitting their right of veto; but he made no compact, and was prepared to meet any charges if preferred. The solicitor further pleaded Sir John's claim to admission to the Court, and urged that, while the Court had power to reject him, it would not be wise to exercise it. Counsel having then been heard on behalf of the petitioners, the Recorder read the resolutions agreed to by the Court, which reaffirmed Sir John Bennett's unfitness for the office of alderman, and the determination of the Court not to admit him. The Court then adjourned till next Tuesday, when they will proceed themselves to elect a representative for the ward.

At the weekly meeting of the School Board for London on Wednesday—Sir Charles Reed presiding—Mrs. Westlake called attention to the educational wants of the metropolis as regards scholarships and exhibitions, and moved that the common seal of the board be attached to a memorial which she submitted on the subject to the Attorney-General. After a discussion, the memorial was, on the suggestion of Mr. G. Potter, referred to the Educational Endowments Committee. The debate on the School Management Committee's scheme respecting the teaching at centres of pupil teachers and candidates was resumed and again adjourned.

The Lord Mayor and Sheriffs of London have accepted an invitation from the Mayor of Brighton (Mr. Alderman Charles Lamb) to visit that town to-day, the 20th inst. The visit will be a state one upon this occasion; the Lord Mayor and Sheriffs being accompanied by their officials, suite, and servants. A special train has been ordered to convey the party from London-bridge, and upon its arrival at Brighton the Lord Mayor and Sheriffs will be received at the railway station by the Mayor of Brighton and members of the Town Council. After a brief ceremony connected with the formal opening of a new and improved approach road to the station made by the railway company, the Lord Mayor, Sheriffs, and party will visit the Aquarium, and afterwards take luncheon with the Mayor of Brighton at the Royal Pavilion, and will return to town by a special train in the evening.

The prizes awarded by the Turners' Company for turning in ivory, pottery, stone, jet, and in steel, brass, and gold (for horological purposes), were distributed to the successful competitors by the Lord Mayor at the Mansion House on the 12th inst., in the presence of the Lady Mayoress and a numerous assembly. The first in ivory was handed to Mr. John Hegley; the first in pottery, with the freedom of the Turners' Company, to Mr. E. Bryon; the first in stone and jet, with the freedom of the company, to Mr. J. Nankervis; and the first for work in steel, brass, or gold, with the freedom of the company, to Mr. C. Crisp, whose specimens were pronounced to be in perfect style. Votes of thanks to Baroness Burdett-Coutts, to the judges, Mr. Richard Loveland Loyeland (Master of the Turners' Company), and to the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress, brought the proceedings to a conclusion.

There were 2392 births and 1321 deaths registered in London last week. Allowing for increase of population, the births exceeded by 24, whereas the deaths were 89 below, the average numbers in the corresponding week of the last ten years. The deaths from smallpox, which had been 10, 13, and 14 in the three preceding weeks, were again 14 last week, of which 11 were recorded in the Metropolitan Asylum Hospitals and 3 in private dwellings. The number of smallpox patients in the Metropolitan Asylum Hospitals, which in the twenty preceding weeks had steadily declined from 964 to 137, rose last week to 145; and the new cases admitted during the week further increased 45, from 25 and 28 in the two previous weeks. There were 33 deaths from measles, 50 from scarlet fever, 11 from diphtheria, 10 from whooping-cough, 29 from different forms of fever, and 48 from diarrhoea; thus to the seven principal diseases of the zymotic class 195 deaths were referred, against numbers declining from 226 to 153 in the four preceding weeks. These 195 deaths were 77 below the corrected average number from the same diseases in the corresponding week of the last ten years. In Greater London 2895 births and 1568 deaths were registered. In the Outer Ring 2 fatal cases of smallpox and 5 of scarlet fever occurred at West Ham; scarlet fever also caused 3 deaths at Bexley, 2 at Croydon, and 2 at Edmonton. The mean temperature was 48.1 deg., or 3.5 deg. below the average. The duration of registered sunshine during the week was 18 hours out of the 76.9 hours that the sun was above the horizon.

The winter session of the College for Working Women, in Fitzroy-street, opened on Monday.—There was a meeting of the friends of the college last Saturday. The chair was occupied by Dr. John Storror, the chairman of the committee, who, in opening the proceedings, said this was the third session of the college, and its career up to the present time had been singularly prosperous. He found that the number who were present at the last term of the session of 1876 was 127, and that the number present for the last session of 1877 was 1837. Referring to the certificates of the Society of Arts, he urged all to become candidates for them, and said that special classes had been formed for preparing young women for the examinations. He then spoke of the establishment of a branch of the National Penny Bank in connection with the college, and urged the importance of education in thrift. Dr. Storror afterwards distributed the certificates of the Society of Arts to the successful candidates. Professor Morley then addressed the students, and in the course of his observations spoke of the vital importance and the necessity of education. A good elementary education was still very scarce, but he had no doubt that the Board schools would make this difficulty less, and that a good elementary education would be made far more easy of acquisition. There was no idea of social distinction, in the ordinary conventional form, in the college; all came to do their best, to live true lives, and to get the armour which would enable them to fight the battle of life. He concluded by speaking of the great value of these colleges for working men and working women.

At the meeting of the Lancaster Town Council on Wednesday a letter was read by Mr. Alderman Williamson asking the Corporation to sell him about forty acres of Lancaster Moor, and undertaking to lay out upon it £10,000, for the purpose of converting it into a public park.

Lady Miller on Tuesday laid the foundation-stone of the new harbour works at Burnmouth, Berwickshire. The cost of the works will be defrayed by the fishermen of Burnmouth, who have subscribed £2000, by a grant of £2000 from the Fishery Board of Scotland, and by subscriptions from the county nobility and gentry.

Great destitution prevails in Liverpool amongst the skilled labourers, arising out of the depression of trade. A meeting of the men was held on Wednesday, when it was stated that of cotton-porters alone from 3000 to 4000 were out of employment. A deputation was appointed to wait upon the president of the Cotton Brokers' Association for help in their distress.

A new free library at Wigan was handed over to the town on Tuesday. The building has been erected at the sole expense of Mr. Thomas Taylor, cotton-spinner, Wigan, at a cost of £10,000; and the late Dr. Winnord, of Wigan, by his will bequeathed £13,000 for the purpose of providing the books. The Free Libraries Act has been adopted, to enable the town to maintain the institution.

The four convicts under sentence of death for the Penge murder were respited last Saturday evening. The decision of the Home Secretary was based upon a report from Mr. Justice Hawkins, who stated that, having consulted with Lords Justices Bramwell and Brett and Mr. Justice Lush upon the memorial presented to the Home Office by Sir William Jenner, he thought the capital sentence might be remitted.

THE WAR: BEFORE PLEVNA.—UNSUCCESSFUL ATTACK OF THE 15TH DOROBANZER REGIMENT (ROUMANIANS) ON THE SECOND GRAVITZA REDOUBT.
FROM A SKETCH BY ONE OF OUR SPECIAL ARTISTS.

THE WAR: DOCTORS AT WORK ON THE FIELD OF BATTLE AT SINANKEUL.
FROM A SKETCH BY ONE OF OUR SPECIAL ARTISTS WITH THE TURKISH ARMY.

ECHOES OF THE WEEK.

I remarked last week that by the ensuing Monday the result of the elections in France would be known, and that the fate of the four convicts then under sentence of death in Maidstone Gaol would, one way or the other, be decided. I set the watch of my forecast a little too slow in one instance and a little too fast in the other. The fate of the Penge Convicts was decided on Saturday evening, when the Governor of Maidstone Gaol received an intimation from the Home Secretary that, after mature deliberation and consultation with sundry learned Judges and eminent experts, it had been deemed fit to advise Her Majesty to respite the four prisoners. A reprieve will doubtless follow the respite; and Mr. Cross will further exercise his sagacity in apportioning the degrees of commuted punishment to be inflicted on these four people. And then, I sincerely hope, we shall hear no more of this most horrible case; unless, indeed, the Government be moved by the vociferous clamour of "the people who write to the papers" to grant the Maidstone prisoners a free pardon, on the ground of their having treated the unhappy Mrs. Harriet Staunton "not wisely but too well."

With respect to the equally momentous but less repulsive case of the French elections, my prophetic time-keeper was full forty-eight hours too fast. The substantial result of the polling was not known, in London at least, until Wednesday, and even now second ballotings and disputed returns may delay for some time to come the declaration of the grand aggregate. In the tremendous game of politics which has been fought the Republicans have won the odd trick; but otherwise "honours" are divided. Other games, however, must be played; and who is ultimately to be proclaimed winner of the rubber it would be vain to prophesy. Much safer would it be to predict that, in the interval between the surcease of the Penge discussion and the beginning of the trial of the Four Detectives and a Solicitor, the Sea Serpent will make his appearance somewhere on the North-East Coast of Scotland. The late terrible gales should have brought him to the surface by now; and as I observe that our old, old friend, the field of indubitable "mummy wheat," has once more turned up in the columns of the daily papers, the Sea Serpent is, to my thinking, bound to follow suit, and that without delay. Noblesse oblige. After the reptile should come the shower of frogs; the red rain; the French war-steamer taking soundings in Bantry Bay; the cat discovered in a gas-pipe, and the curious instance of longevity in an owl; and after these the Deluge: I mean the trial of the Detectives, which threatens to be as protracted as the trial of Warren Hastings.

I am obliged to a courteous correspondent at Brighton, who has enlightened me with respect to that eminent painter Mr. Smibert, concerning whom I made some inquiries last week, in speaking of the Allan Ramsays, père et fils. Mr. Smibert, it seems, was originally a house-painter in Edinburgh; but, being both clever and ambitious, he went to Italy (probably aided by a patron—there are no patrons nowadays, more's the pity); returned to his native land; flourished there for some years as an artist of repute; emigrated to America; and died at Boston, in New England, in 1751. I wonder whether Mr. John Singleton Copley—who was the father of the famous Lord Lyndhurst, and who was not only a distinguished painter but an American loyalist—ever met Smibert. Concerning Mr. Hyflidg, the artist who was Ramsay's teacher in London, my obliging correspondent cannot give me any information.

Those wicked, wicked Russians! If the Turk be "unspeakable," as some of his enemies declare him to be, surely the Muscovite (from a pro-Turk point of view) must be a great deal more than unutterable. The last item in the catalogue of Slavonic crime brought under the notice of an appreciative British public is the desperate drunkenness of the Russian army. "A Military Correspondent" writes to the Pall Mall Gazette that it is not at all uncommon to see Russian soldiers lying dead drunk in the streets of Moscow, Pezma (where is Pezma?), and other large towns in the interior; and that, although this unseemly spectacle is not so often witnessed in St. Petersburg, "the officers there are very frequently intoxicated; and in the Guard regiments an officer who can drink three or four bottles of champagne at a sitting is considered rather a hero than otherwise." The impartial military correspondent concludes by declaring that it is a fact well known to the medical profession that there are more cases of delirium tremens in the Czar's dominions than in any other country in the world.

I was not aware until I had read this curious statement that any statistics of the international prevalence of delirium tremens had ever been published; nor did I know that it was possible to ascertain such statistics: seeing that del. trem. is not a disease of which the sufferer necessarily dies, and that when a man has really got the malady he does not usually go and proclaim the fact to the nearest medical man. If the "Military Correspondent" had told us that there were more certified cases of delirium tremens treated among Russian soldiers than in any other army in the world he would have raised a point susceptible of being argued; but I should feel inclined, myself, to doubt the fact. The Russians, like the rest of the northern races, are not a sober people. There is an amazing quantity of bad vodka drunk in the dominions of the Czar, just as there is a more amazing quantity of bad gin and whisky drunk in England, Ireland, and Scotland. I know Russia and the Russians pretty well; still, neither when I was there twenty years ago, nor when I repeated my journey last winter, did I ever see any soldiers lying drunk in the streets of Moscow or any other large town in the interior. On the other hand, I have (unless these old eyes deceive me) frequently seen in English garrison towns, between eight and nine p.m., the picket going its rounds to pick up drunken soldiers. As for St. Petersburg, there is a good deal of champagne drinking there; and the sparkling vintage (which costs about fifteen shillings a bottle) is very nice. In 1856-7 I had the honour to be intimate with numerous dashing young gentlemen who were ensigns and lieutenants in the Imperial Russian Guard. In 1876-7 I found many of my former acquaintances transformed into Colonels and Generals; but I did not hear that any of them had suffered from delirium tremens. If they had been so afflicted they "kept it dark," possibly.

Mem: If you want to be horrified with accounts of the influence of alcohol upon military men, ask the captain of any Messageries steamer plying between Algiers, Oran, Nemours, Bona, and Toulon how many gallant officers in the last stage of physical and mental collapse from the excessive drinking of absinthe he brings home every year to die in hospitals or maisons de santé. "La fée aux yeux verts" immolates a larger number of victims than does "Heidseck with the white seal."

Our dinner-tables want reforming. So declares "As You Like It" in the Times. For my part, I think it is the dinners themselves that need reformation, and that, looking at the present appalling scarcity of competent female cooks, it is about time to think of importing a strong contingent of "coloured persons" from the States, or, better still, of Chinamen (who are much prized in Australia for their culinary talents), to take the command of our kitchens. There has just been published an admirable culinary manual called "Every-Day Meals," by Mary Hooper, the authoress of the well-known works "Little Dinners" and "Cookery for Invalids;" but will Mrs. or Miss Hooper be kind enough to tell me how am I to find a cook who for reasonable wages will dress my "Every-day meals" and "Little Dinners" and make nice things for me when I am sick? Did you ever have a "temporary cook" strongly recommended to you by your tradespeople? I have had one lately at Brighton. From the aspect and flavour of the viands prepared by this young person (I should say young lady, perhaps, for she was dressed in the first style of fashion) I am led to believe that she must have blacklead the leg of mutton, "accommodated" the fish with candle-grease sauce, and sprinkled the vegetables with a subtle combination of small coals and powdered Bath-brick. I dismissed her, with my blessing, and am contemplating a diet of Australian tinned meats, Crosse and Blackwell's preserved soups, and hydraulically pressed vegetables. These viands I can cook myself.

The "dinner-table Reform" advocated by "As You Like It" is to the effect that guests at grand banquets who do not (for reasons sanitary or conscientious) drink wine, should be able when the butler whispers confidentially, "Champagne or 'Ock," be able to reply, "No, thank you. I will take a glass of milk, or some barley-water, or some draught lemonade, or a cup of tea or coffee." But why not water? you may ask. "As You Like It" maintains that the water served at London dinner-tables is "indifferent." Altogether, I look upon the suggestion as in some respects a most sensible one; but to the tea and coffee during dinner I distinctly and dyspeptically demur. They give you tea and coffee at dinner at out-of-the-way American tables d'hôte, and sometimes in private life; and I remember with a shudder a dinner I once partook of at a small town in the State of Massachusetts. The day was Sunday; the hour was twelve, noon; and the repast was composed of pork and beans, Indian meal pudding, green "corn," and hot tea. I was very ill after that, and did not recover until I had got back to the Brevoort House, New York, the restaurant of which palatial establishment is one of the best in the whole civilised world.

Mem: Why don't people drink cider at dinner? It would do no harm to those who don't drink wine and who can't drink beer, and who have their doubts as to the purity of the contents of the water-decanter. We should be able to make superb cider, and we probably do so; but the beverage is not fashionable, and by the masses it is usually consumed at precisely the period when it should be best left alone—I mean at the height of summer. G. A. S.

THE CHURCH

PREFEMENTS AND APPOINTMENTS.

Aldersay, John, to be Perpetual Curate of Hilton and Murton, near Appleby.
Barham, William; Vicar of Friday Bridge.
Barton, J.; Vicar of Trinity Parish, Cambridge.
Beaton, Leonard Bruce; Rector of St. Margaret's, Canterbury.
Blomfield, Charles; Vicar of Ponsbury, Cumberland.
Brown, J. H.; Rector of Oughtibridge.
Browne, R.; Rector of St. Clement's, Ipswich.
Cassell, Henry Theodore; Perpetual Curate of Church Griseley.
Chilman, W. G.; Vicar of Wharfedale with Wharfedale-Street.
Chippendale, William; Vicar of Tilton.
Clarke, John; Vicar of Burton Fleming with Fordon.
Crossfield, Thomas; Vicar of Highley, Salop.
Davies, John Hugh; Vicar of Bishop Burton.
Elwell, Henry; Perpetual Curate of St. Mary Magdalene's, Harlow.
Field, Arthur Thomas; Perpetual Curate of Holbrook.
Gardner, J. L.; Vicar of Weald, Sevenoaks.
Gaudy, James Hunter; Rector of Chesterton-with-Haddon.
Gillman, John; Chaplain to the Marquis of Anglesey.
Hall, E. V.; Minor Canon, Sacrist, and Precentor of Worcester Cathedral.
Hall, Frederick Dickinson; Vicar of Uxton.
Harding, George Rogers; Rector of Crux Easton.
Haydon, G. P.; Vicar of Hatfield-with-Stainforth.
Heaps, J. W.; Vicar of Bransdale-with-Farnedale.
Horne, W.; Rector of Christ Church, Silloth.
Humphreys, Alfred Edward; Perpetual Curate of St. Matthew's, Cambridge.
Jennett, J. F.; Curate of Tring; Vicar of Feltham, Middlesex.
Jackson, W. Vincent; Surrogate for the Diocese of Lincoln.
Lawrence, Thomas Joseph; Vicar of East Hatley and Rector of Tadlow.
Macdonald, Henry Victor; Perpetual Curate of Cheadle Hulme, Chester.
McDonnell, Patrick George; Rector of Cosgrove.
Mangan, William Reazon; Chaplain of Loughborough Union Workhouse.
Mitchell, Thomas; Vicar of Great Tew, Oxon.
Moffat, Bowland Garrard; Vicar of Friston-with-Snape, Suffolk.
Moore, Cecil Gurdon; Vicar of Kerssey.
Norris, J. P.; Vicar of St. Mary Redcliffe, Bristol.
Pearson, Alfred; Curate of Knaresborough; Rector of St. Ebbe's, Oxford.
Richardson, John Gray; Perpetual Curate of St. Michael's, Cambridge.
Robson, Canon; Vicar of Christ Church, Cloughton, Birkenhead.
Slipper, William Armine; Vicar of Tuttington, Norfolk.
Smallwood, Warren Charles; Perpetual Curate of Nether Whitley, Chester.
Sumner, Charles Cecil; Perpetual Curate of Wisbech chapel-of-ease.
Tuson, Henry; Rector of Southminster St. James's, Suffolk.
Tucker, John Rule; Rector of Frenze, Norfolk.
Twamley, James; Rector of Goxhill, Hull.
Veysey, Arthur; Chaplain to the Messrs' Company and Mercers' Chapel.
Washington, M.; Incumbent of St. Thomas's, Douglas, Isle of Man.
Wilson, James Alder; Vicar of Loversall, near Doncaster.
Winter, John; Rural Dean Weston Deanery.
Wray, H.; Vicar of Holt, near Wrexham, Denbighshire.—Guardian.

Last Saturday the Bishop of Manchester consecrated the new Church of St. Chrysostom, Rusholme. It will accommodate about 600 worshippers, and it has cost nearly £13,000.

On the 11th inst. the Bishop of Durham consecrated a new church for the parish of St. Thomas, South Shields, which has cost £8000, and will accommodate 500 persons.

The Rev. David Erskine Holland, on his resigning the curacy of Greenwich, has been presented with a gold watch and chain and a purse of sovereigns.

The Archbishop of York reopened the Church of St. John, Balby, near Doncaster, on Monday. The church has been enlarged to meet the wants of the increased population.

The Revisers of the Authorised Version of the New Testament met on Tuesday in the Jerusalem Chamber for their seventy-third session, and carried on their revision into the 26th chapter of the Acts of the Apostles.

On Thursday morning the Church of All Hallows the Great and Less, Thames-street, which has been closed for some time for cleaning and painting, was reopened. The Lord Mayor, Sheriffs, and some common councilmen attended in state.

The Guardian says a telegram has been received to the effect that Bishop Mylne, of Bombay, is compelled by ill-health to leave India. He does not propose to come to England, but hopes to reinstate his health by a visit to the south of Europe.

The ancient church of Dunnington (a village of considerable population, about four miles eastward of York), after being closed for restoration, was reopened on Tuesday. The cost of the restoration has been £1200. The outlay will be defrayed by the Vicar (the Rev. Canon Randolph), who is being assisted by some of his personal friends and parishioners.

The church of Langham, Suffolk, was reopened by the Bishop of Ely on Sunday, the 7th inst., the chancel having been restored by the Rector, and the nave entirely rebuilt by Mrs. Wilson, of Stowlangtoft and Langham. One of the notable features of this church is an exquisitely carved rood-screen, which was erected a few years before the Reformation, and which is in good preservation.

The Bishop of Ely, speaking at Cambridge on Wednesday morning, referred to the great importance of Sunday-school work. He could not help feeling convinced that we were on the road to a general system of national secular education, and the Church should accept the gracious interval to prepare for that period by framing a system of catechetical schools that would take up religious education when the State should drop it. He advocated gradation Sunday-school literature.

The Church of St. Andrew, Barnham, near Bury, was reopened on the 12th inst. by the Bishop of Ely, after a thorough restoration, which has been effected under the direction of Messrs. Satchell and Edwards. The beautifully carved ancient rood-screen has been left untouched. Two new stained windows have been placed in the chancel: one of them in memory of the late Rector, the Rev. James Edwards, and his wife, by the present Rector, the Rev. A. W. Edwards, and members of his family.

The Church of St. Ann, Sutton Bonington, has been reopened after a thorough restoration, at the joint expense of the Paget family and the Rector and his friends, under the superintendence of Mr. Edwin Dolby. The chancel has been re-seated in solid English oak, the windows filled with stained glass, and a re-dos of white Carrara marble, representing the Last Supper, has been presented. The whole has been done in a most thorough manner, at a cost of £700. The Bishop of Nottingham preached at the opening service.

St. Luke's Day seems a favourite festival for cathedral reopenings. Last year Durham was thrown open on that day, and this year the restoration of the nave of Exeter Cathedral drew a vast concourse of clergy and laity in the ancient building. Thursday began with an early celebration of holy communion. The Bishops of Winchester and Oxford were the preachers, and five other bishops—those of Exeter, Truro, Salisbury, and Bath and Wells, and Bishop Tozer, took part in the ceremonies. About 300 surpliced clergy were in the procession which opened the morning service. The whole of the cathedral was filled with worshippers. The Mayor and Corporation, city magistrates, &c., attended in state. After service advantage was taken of the occasion to present to the Bishop of Exeter a pastoral staff, which had been subscribed by the diocese. The presentation was made at the palace by the Earl of Devon. The services were continued on Friday. The entire cost of the works has been £40,000. The sculpture has been as far as possible restored. Most liberal donations have been given towards the restoration, and the cathedral body have contributed largely, especially Chancellor Harrington, who has given several thousand pounds.

Among the subjects discussed at the Church Congress at Croydon, on the 11th inst., was the general question of the observance of the Lord's Day, and especially the opening of museums on Sundays; but by far the most engrossing topic of the day was the relations subsisting between Church and State, which was debated with much interest.—The work of the Congress was brought to a close yesterday week. The principal questions discussed were the relations between the Establishment and Nonconformists during the present century, and the employment of the lay element in parochial work. In the debate on the first subject there was a general recognition of the assistance which Nonconformists had given to the spread of religion, and the arguments went to show that by a judicious revision of the Church system a vast absorption of Dissenters might take place. The speakers included Mr. T. Hughes, Q.C., who suggested such a revision of the Prayer Book, especially of the Thirty-nine Articles and the Rubric, as to make the Church in fact what she is in name—national. Lord Hatherley, at the sectional meeting, advocated the employment of the lay element in parochial affairs. He regarded the neglect of this as a defect in the parochial organisation of the Establishment. A conversation was held in the evening, when the Archbishop of Canterbury summed up the results of the Congress, which were, on the whole, satisfactory to Churchmen.—On Saturday there was a service in the parish church; after which, on the invitation of the Archbishop of Canterbury, a number of the members of the Congress paid a visit to Addington.

THE UNIVERSITIES AND PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

OXFORD.

The Rev. T. R. Magrath, M.A., has been selected Provost of Queen's College—Dr. Jackson, the Provost, having asked leave to resign on account of ill-health. Mr. Magrath was the Senior Proctor of the last academical year.

Mr. A. Macdonnell, of Christ Church, has been elected to the first Chinese scholarship instituted in this University.

The following gentlemen have been elected to fellowships at Magdalen:—To an open classical fellowship, Mr. Thomas Herbert Warren, B.A., late scholar of Balliol College; to clerical fellowships (mathematical), Mr. Thomas Robert Terry, M.A., of Trinity College, Cambridge; and (classical) Mr. Thomas Field, scholar of Corpus Christi College. The following gentlemen have been elected to academical clerkships:—Mr. Andrews, of Elm-grove, Salisbury, and of King's School, Peterborough; Mr. Philpot, of Chewton Mendip, Bath; and Mr. Barber, of St. Barnabas Vicarage, South Lambeth.

The Natural Science Post-mastership at Merton has been awarded to Mr. E. T. Milner, of Manchester Grammar School.

Mr. F. M. May, from Marlborough College, has been elected to a scholarship at St. Edmund's Hall; proximo accessit, Mr. A. Johnson, from Bedford Grammar School.

The following gentlemen have been elected to the vacancies at Jesus:—King Charles I.: Mr. John Pepin. Mathematical: Mr. David Davies. Science: Mr. William Williams. Classical: Mr. John Hughes Rees, Mr. John Lloyd Williams, Mr. Charles Harrison Davies, and Mr. David Richards.

Mr. Thomas Whitaker, of the Royal College of Science, Dublin, has been elected to a Natural Science Scholarship at Exeter; and Mr. R. T. Kindersley, of Clifton College, has been elected to the How Exhibition at the same society.

The following elections have been made at Lincoln to Classical Scholarships:—1, Head, P. R., unattached student; 2, Althaus, J. F., University College, London; 3, Stowell, H. A., Kepton School; 4, Winton, L. H., Hurstpoint; 5, King, J. E., Clifton College; 6, Moscardi, W., Somersetshire College, Bath. To the Tatham Scholarship, Gaskell, G. E. P., University College, London.

CAMBRIDGE.

Mr. R. T. Caldwell, M.A., Corpus, has been appointed Deputy Proctor, in the absence of Mr. G. F. Browne, M.A., the Senior Proctor; and, on the recommendation of the Board of Medical Studies, Mr. E. M. Balfour, M.A., Fellow of Trinity, has been approved as a teacher of Physiology; and Mr. Vines, B.A., Christ's, as a teacher of Botany.

The Commemoration of Benefactors will take place on Sunday morning next, when the sermon will be preached by the Rev. E. H. Perowne, D.D., of Corpus Christi College, the Lady Margaret preacher.

The thirteenth annual meeting of the Queen's University in Ireland was held in Dublin Castle on the 12th, for the purpose of conferring degrees. The Duke of Leinster, the Chancellor, read the report, which stated that during the past year 831 students were taught in the Queen's Colleges, of whom 208 were members of the Protestant Episcopal Church of Ireland, 214 Roman Catholics, 325 Presbyterians, and 84 of other denominations; 237 students attended lectures in the faculty of arts, 527 in that of medicine, 32 in the faculty of law, and 45 in the department of engineering. Sir Michael H. Beach pledged the Government afresh to the maintenance of the colleges, and hoped a building suitable to the Queen's University of Ireland would soon be erected. He said Mr. Osborne Morgan and Dr. Allman, who had recently visited the colleges, were surprised at the excellence of the teaching and the admirable professorate.

Professor John H. Balfour, M.D., has, the Scotsman understands, resigned the Deanship of the Medical Faculty of the Edinburgh University.—Mr. Thomas Annandale, who was assistant to the late Professor Syme, has been appointed to the chair of clinical surgery in this University, vacant by the removal of Mr. Lister to King's College, London.

The council of the University College of Wales has issued a statement of the second (1876-7) of the three years' subscriptions and congregational collections in aid of the Temporary Sustentation Fund. The council had asked for £2000 per year for three years. The first year's subscription and collection realised £3138, and those of the second year £2752. The falling off in the total of the second year is attributed to the depression in the industries and trade, especially of South Wales. Collections will be made on Sunday, the 28th inst., and the house-to-house collections in the course of November and December. The college is prospering, and the number of students is well maintained. The Government has not given any answer to the application for an annual grant.

The Council of King's College, London, have established a chair of "Logic and Mental Philosophy," and have invited the Rev. H. W. Watkins, M.A., to be the first Professor. Mr. Watkins is an honorary Fellow of the college, and was formerly a scholar of Balliol College, Oxford.

The annual meeting of the Students' Christian Association, University College, London, was held on Tuesday evening, at the Vestry Hall, St. George's, Bloomsbury. Professor Wilson Fox, M.D., F.R.S., presided. Addresses were delivered by the chairman, the Rev. Dr. Stebbing, Professor Sheldon Amos, Dr. Roberts, and Messrs. Barker and Pearce Gould.

The following have been elected to Entrance Scholarships at Rossall:—Seniors: A. C. Wratishaw, R. H. Law, T. Wareing. Juniors: T. Moreton (late of the Rev. J. C. C. Phipon's, Arnold House, Chester), H. B. Bather, R. Prowde, G. A. Williams, H. M. E. Price (of Blackheath Proprietary School), C. E. Jones, and J. M. Hamilton.

The Rev. Arthur H. Dyke Acland, M.A., Head Master of the Oxford Military College, has resigned his appointment, and the Rev. James White, M.A., instructor in mathematics in the Royal Military Academy, Woolwich, and Incumbent of Holy Trinity (the Royal Arsenal) church, Woolwich, Fellow of the Mathematical Society of London, &c., will succeed him. The assistant masters have followed the example of their chief by resigning.

The Prince of Wales has offered an annual prize to the Snettisham Grammar School, near Sandringham, Norfolk. This school, founded by Anthony Hall in 1708, was reopened in September, 1875, under a new scheme of the Endowed Schools Commissioners, when the Rev. F. W. H. Palmer, M.A., Oxford, was appointed to the head mastership.

On the 4th inst., in the presence of a very large assembly, including the High Sheriff of the county, Mr. J. Whitwell, M.P., and others, the new schools, Head Master's house, &c., at Heversham, were formally opened. This old school, which, among its many and distinguished alumni in the last 120 years, reckons no less than one senior and four second Wranglers, including Dr. Whewell, the late Master of Trinity College, Cambridge, and Dr. Watson, formerly Bishop of Llandaff, has of late so largely increased in numbers that the necessity of providing much more extensive boarding accommodation has forced itself upon the governing body. To meet the increased demand on the school, £8000 has been spent on the Head Master's house, schools, class-rooms, &c.

Of the eight exhibitions lately offered for competition by the council of Lichfield Theological College, seven have been awarded by the examiners to the following:—Sturges, Ruddock, Bond, Hombersley, Taylor, Smith, Watling. Mr. Sturges and Mr. Ruddock are already students at the college.

Sir Thomas D. Acland, M.P., in distributing the prizes gained at the Bath centre of the Oxford Local Examinations on the 11th, said he looked forward to a more perfect system of examination throughout the country, when it was ripe for it. He hoped the day would come when all public schools would be subjected to public examinations, and when a certificate or diploma would be required of all teachers occupying positions in any sense public.

A public meeting was held in St. Mary's School, Whitechapel, last Monday, in promotion of the scheme of the London Society for the Extension of University Teaching in the Tower Hamlets. The chair was taken by Mr. Hughes.

The Bishop of Norwich distributed the prizes at the Albert Memorial College, Framlingham, on Thursday last.

The trustees of the British Museum have bought the manuscript scores of the two oratorios "Palestine" and the "Captivity of Judah," by the late William Crotch, Mus. Doc.

A meeting was held in Dundee on Monday evening at which it was resolved to start a subscription for the erection of a statue to Burns in that town.

Sir Charles Reed on Saturday last presided over an aggregate meeting of Sunday School delegates from all parts of Scotland, in Glasgow, the Lord Provost and the Lord Dean of Guild being among the speakers.

Lord Lyttelton presided last Tuesday night at the distribution of Queen's prizes in Wolverhampton to students connected with the free library classes. In the course of his address his Lordship insisted on the necessity of such classes as addenda to elementary education. Boys of fourteen, if they had great aptitude for learning, had also an equal capacity for forgetting. It was therefore necessary to lay hold of them and to cement their knowledge, as it were. He advocated the establishment of circulating libraries in connection with central free libraries.

NOVELS.

Action above everything is what many readers of novels desire, and such readers will not find their wishes fulfilled in Carita, by Mrs. Oliphant (Smith, Elder, and Co.), a novel in three volumes, wherein action is somewhat conspicuous by absence, although twaddle, unfortunately, is not. The latter is, no doubt, a vile phrase to use in the case of so distinguished a writer, but it must stand. If even Homer sometimes nodded, the best of modern novelists may sometimes descend to twaddle. Of course, in the present instance, a very superior kind of twaddle is intended, a twaddle such as certain persons under certain circumstances might go so far as to say that they enjoyed. At the opening of the tale it excites expectations or misgivings, according to the different views of different readers, which are not destined to be realised. As early as the eleventh page of the first volume an old maiden lady, of whom it may be said that "all the wickedness of the world is print" to her, mysteriously observes that "there's the seventh commandment to be thought of," an observation which will make lovers of the sensational prick up their ears; but nothing particular comes of it; and, before we have got far into the heart of the story there is a conversation between a husband and wife in which the latter, plainly suspecting that she is about to be the victim of cancer, tries to extort from the former a promise that, if her suspicions should prove to be well founded, he will, not to put too fine a point upon it, murder her. This conversation, with the proposition urged, and certainly not rejected, in the course of it, cannot fail to set agog all those for whom the horrible has an irresistible fascination; but, in this case again, nothing particular comes of it. Something comes of it, no doubt; just enough to lay the author open to a charge of having trodden upon very dangerous ground, and of having raised, without settling, a very delicate and difficult question, but not enough to satisfy the longings of those who yearn after horrors or to create any very startling situation. Or, if the startling situation may be said to have been created, it leads to the tamest possible consequences. Tameless, indeed, is chief among the characteristics of the novel. The plot is of the most meagre description, and it is spun out wearily, drearily, to the utmost limits of prolixity. Pretty scenes there are, but they are few and far between. The personages are exceedingly well sketched, with here and there a touch of humour; but, on the whole, they are colourless and uninteresting. The heroine herself is merely a bud of promise, exciting hopes which are not fulfilled, never getting beyond the stage of "going to begin;" and as for her three lovers, an inclination to "knock all their heads together" is the feeling they will most probably produce in the reader's breast. The novel may or may not have been written with a purpose; but it is just possible that the author had in view a double purpose: to show that a Platonic friendship is feasible and even desirable, under certain circumstances, between a man and woman of middle age, and to suggest that, in the case of so hopeless and awful a disease as cancer, the victim, before the inevitable suffering and loathsomeness have set in, should be allowed to depart this life without any close inquiry, on the part of doctors or of the law, into the means whereby the departure was accomplished. Some such object, at any rate, is to be surmised from a perusal of the novel; and, whether the author really had it in view or not, it obviously involves considerations of serious magnitude from the religious, moral, and social point of view. What is a mere act of kindness towards the individual may be fraught with the most dangerous consequences towards the community; and it is very perilous doctrine to teach or to imply that a medical man is ever justified in preventing an inquest which he is perfectly aware ought to take place. If we have been severe in our judgment on this tale, it must be borne in mind that the author has herself supplied, in previous works, the high standard by which she is now measured.

Quentin Matsys and Dick Whittington, and the manner in which they climbed the ladder of fame, doubtless suggested to Mr. John Saunders the theme of his latest story, in one volume, Jasper Deane: Wood Carver of St. Paul's (Low and Co.). Reprinted from Good Words, "Jasper Deane" is a gem of a tale, sparkling with every good quality: pure, fresh, and polished. Or it may be described as a perfect vignette of town and country in the days when Charles II. was King, when Sir Christopher Wren was rebuilding St. Paul's, having as his right hand Grinling Gibbons to suggest the ornamentation worthy the grand cathedral. We have cameo portraits of the two latter celebrities in the course of the novelette, which relates how young Jasper, having provoked the jealousy of his master by the genius he has shown in restoring the elaborately-carved church doors of St. Stephen's, Chelmsbury, is thrown upon the world, and eventually wins fortune. Love inspires him. Like another Whittington, he resolves to try his luck in London, but not before he has had a sweet interview with his sweetheart, May: "From the shadow his eyes could not avoid again going to the face it played on, and contrasting the sweet, sunny strength of May's character with its occasional aspect of fair, rustic fragility, and of a timid something that at first seemed weakness, but that was only a God-fearing caution of the world and the world's ways, reminding him now of a snowdrop in stormy winter weather, a-tremble for its purity, and now of a cluster of May's namesake blossom, disturbed and doubtful of its strength to resist the rising breeze." When his troubles seem greatest in London, and poverty has almost crushed him, and his enemy, Mr. Trimmer, appears to be triumphant, Jasper is befriended by the generous hand of Grinling Gibbons. A happy thought recalls to mind the shadow on her face of "May's namesake blossom," and he carves a fairy wreath of may as the crown of an exquisite image of his love in wood, which bears off the palm at an exhibition in St. Paul's, and so is the means of making him "happy ever after." We have devoted to this notice of "Jasper Deane" space which we could hardly spare, because the short story is charmingly told by Mr. John Saunders, and repays perusal far more than do the majority of three-volume novels.

If Mr. Gladstone, during his visit to Ireland, should fall in with as frank and chatty a driver of a mail-car as the Saxon hero of The Honourable Miss Ferrard (Bentley and Son) did, he cannot fail to acquire a store of information racy of the soil. Mr. Satterthwaite (what a barbarous name for a hero!) is made to cross St. George's Channel to serve as a peg on which the author of "Hogan, M.P.," may hang a wearisome number of platitudes on the social and political condition of Ireland, these rhetorical garments taking the form of a series of "Mangnall's Questions" and answers between Mr. Satterthwaite and a fair neighbour named Reully. It is true he is captivated, and would win the hand of the wild but beautiful heroine, after whom the three volumes are named; and the most readable chapters are devoted to the narration of the hand-to-mouth lives led by the ruined Lord Darraghmore, his morose and unruly sons, and this high-spirited daughter of his, Helena, who ultimately mates, not with the Englishman, but with her more congenial lover, Devereux. But, justice done to a clever sketch of character here and there, and some commendably fresh and bright descriptions of scenery, it must be confessed that there is in "The Honourable Miss Ferrard" an intolerable deal of dry political argument to eke out an inadequate plot. On the other hand, we cannot thank Messrs. Bentley and Son too much for setting other publishers the good example of publishing the novel with the leaves cut.

NATIONAL SPORTS.

The character of the sport provided at the Second October Meeting was well sustained until the finish; indeed, the Thursday's card was about the best that we have ever seen at Newmarket. The Newmarket Oaks was generally regarded as a match between Belphebe and Lady Golightly; and, though the former had proved much the better of the pair in the One Thousand, Oaks, and Coronation Stakes, yet Lord Falmouth's filly has shown such wonderfully improved form of late that she had nearly as many friends as her opponent. It is probable that Belphebe had not recovered from the effects of her severe race in the Cesarewitch, as she was in trouble a long way from home, and Lady Golightly had little difficulty in disposing of Verdurette. It has been contended that the poor running of Belphebe takes all the gilt off the Cesarewitch victory of Hilarius; but we consider that the result of this race proves him to be even better than was generally supposed, for it must not be forgotten that he beat Lady Golightly cleverly in a two-mile race during the first October week. There were twenty runners for the Middle Park Plate; but betting did not take a very wide range, as Athol Lad, the own brother to Prince Charlie, was so much fancied, that at the finish as little as 7 to 4 was freely accepted about him. At 5 to 1, Beauclerc, the crack of the north, had a strong following; but Maximilian, the 4100-guinea yearling of last season, who had never run previously, retired to 10 to 1, after being backed at half those odds. Lady of Mercia, one of Lord Falmouth's grand team of two-year-olds, also made her debut; but the report that she was superior to Redwing did not find general credence, and nothing else was backed with any spirit. Athol Lad gave a good deal of trouble at the post, but at last the flag fell to a beautiful start. They ran in line for fully a hundred yards before Wild Darell forged ahead and made the running at a rattling pace, the colt by Scottish Chief—Katie, Athol Lad, Birdie, and Beauclerc being the most prominent of the remainder. Before reaching the Bushes, Maximilian was in hopeless difficulties, and dropped into the extreme rear; and, as soon as he began to ascend the hill, Athol Lad was in trouble, and commenced to roll all over the course. This left Beauclerc with the lead, and though the Katie colt made a grand effort from the distance, and gradually crept up to the leader, he could never quite catch him, and was beaten by half a length. Three lengths off, Pilgrimage was third, and then came Lady of Mercia, Clémentine, and Athol Lad, in the order named. The winner had only run twice previously, and had proved successful on each occasion; but there was nothing of any note behind him, while he appeared to have some little trouble in shaking off the very moderate Cavour through the mud at York. He is a grandly bred colt, being by Rosicrucian—Bonny Bell, and Mr. Perkins, his owner, gave 2200 gs. for a yearling sister to him at Doncaster. Lady of Mercia is a very mean-looking filly, and, though Athol Lad is quite as big and lengthy as Prince Charlie, he is by no means so muscular or well put together, and his roaring propensities told with fatal effect as soon as he commenced the final ascent. Though the Champion Stakes was generally regarded as a mere match between Springfield and Silvio, yet six others, including Thunderstone, Hesper, and Zucchero, came to the post. Over-night odds had been laid on Mr. Houldsworth's grand four-year-old; but, as it was generally reported that he was slightly amiss, 11 to 8 could be obtained against him at the start, the same odds being freely accepted about Silvio. Great Tom made the running at his best pace to serve the Derby winner; and, when he was beaten at the Bushes Hill, Silvio went on at his best pace, and he and Springfield came right away from the others; the three-year-old held the lead until about 200 yards from home, but for the last quarter of a mile it was quite clear that Springfield had the race in hand, as he was treading Silvio's heels off, and, coming away without the slightest effort, won with consummate ease by a length. The merit of this performance is most apparent when it is compared with the famous match between Lowlander and Galopin. Lowlander, a year older than Springfield, utterly failed to concede 12 lb. to Galopin; indeed, it was clear that about 5 lb. would have brought them together. Springfield gave exactly the same weight to Silvio, and, from the ridiculous ease with which he won, another 10 lb. would not have stopped him. Both races were run at exactly the same time of year; and though we imagine no one will contend that Silvio is quite the same class as was Galopin, yet he cannot be 16 lb. inferior to him.

The everlasting Ecossais began the Friday's programme by winning a Welter Handicap, from a large field, with 10 st. 7 lb. on his back; Childeric had no trouble in securing the Prendergast Stakes, conceding 6 lb. to his two opponents, Oasis and Inval, who ran a dead-heat a length behind him; and of course E. Pomic and Augusta had no chance against Hampton in the Queen's Plate. Odds were laid on Lady Golightly for the Newmarket Derby, in which Jongleur was asked to give her 11 lb., a task which naturally proved too much for him; indeed, Shillelagh, in the receipt of 7 lb., beat the French crack by a head for second place, after a tremendous race home. Shillelagh is now the property of Count Festetic, and on this form should have a fair chance for the Cambridgeshire; but he is, unfortunately, one of the most uncertain animals in training.

We have barely space left to report that Newcastle and Croydon meetings took place on Tuesday and Wednesday, and that the week closed, for racing events, with Sandown Park.

There was a large attendance of coursers from all parts of the three kingdoms at the opening of the Lurgan Open Coursing Meeting on Tuesday. Hares were abundant, and an excellent day's sport was provided.

On Friday week a swimming-match of 1000 yards was decided, at the Lambeth Baths, between J. B. Johnson, of Leeds, and W. Beckwith, of London, the latter receiving a start of twenty yards. For the first two lengths Beckwith gained slightly, and, though Johnson then began slowly to decrease the distance between them, he could never catch the younger, and was beaten by ten yards in 15 min. 33 sec., the fastest time on record. Beckwith surprised even his warmest admirers by his fine style and pace, and proved himself a nimble son of a nimble sire.

Mr. Massey, who has for many years acted as chairman at the Anglesey Quarter Sessions, on Tuesday announced his resignation, he being about to reside abroad. A vote of thanks was passed to Mr. Massey for his services.

THE CHIEF JUSTICE OF CANADA.

The Hon. Sir William Buell Richards, who has just been knighted by her Majesty the Queen, is Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the Dominion of Canada. He is a Canadian by birth, having first seen the light in the picturesque town of Brockville, in the present province of Ontario, on May 2, 1815. He, too, like several of his contemporaries, comes of good loyalist stock, being eldest son of the late Stephen Richards, Esq., by Phoebe, daughter of Mr. William Buell, an officer in the "King's Rangers," of American revolutionary fame. After being educated at the Johnstown District Grammar School, and at Potsdam Academy, New York, he was called to the Bar of Upper Canada in Michaelmas Term, 1837. He soon entered on an extensive and varied practice. In 1849 he was elected a Benchman of the Law Society, and in 1850 the late Mr. Robert Baldwin, the Attorney-General for Upper Canada, advanced him, with nine other gentlemen (one of whom subsequently reached the Bench) to the dignity of a silk gown. In January, 1848, the future Chief Justice entered the Canadian Legislative Assembly, as member for Leeds, after an arduous contest; and this seat he continued to hold during his active political life. In October, 1851, on the retirement of Mr. Baldwin, he accepted the Attorney-Generalship of Upper Canada, in the Liberal Administration of Sir Francis Hincks; but, in June, 1853, he succeeded the late Mr. Justice Sullivan, as a Puisne Judge of the Court of Common Pleas. Ten years later he was advanced to the Chief Justiceship of the same Court; and, in November, 1868, he was appointed Chief Justice of the Province of Ontario. In October, 1875, upon the organisation of the Supreme Court of the Dominion, Sir William Richards was offered, and accepted, the highest judicial office in Canada—that of Chief Justice of the newly-constituted Supreme Court. Previously to this appointment, he had acted as Commissioner on behalf of Ontario, in the determining of the North-Western Boundary of that Province. Again, more recently, in 1876, he discharged the duties of deputy to the Governor-General, during the absence from the Dominion capital of the Earl of Dufferin. Chief Justice Richards is esteemed a man of profound legal knowledge and sagacity; a Judge whose decisions, always clear and perspicuous, have seldom or never been reversed on appeal. His two brothers, the Hon. Stephen Richards, Q.C., Treasurer of the Law Society of Ontario, and the Hon. Albert Norton Richards, Q.C., Lieutenant-Governor of British Columbia, are able and experienced public men.

SIR W. B. RICHARDS, CHIEF JUSTICE OF CANADA.

The Portrait is from a photograph by Notman and Fraser, of Toronto.

OUR SPECIAL ARTISTS AT THE WAR.

The scenes delineated on this page may be regarded as practical exemplifications of the personal experiences of our Special Artists, in Bulgaria and in Armenia, following the movements of contending foreign armies, in order to furnish illustrations of the present war to the Journal which has engaged their services for that purpose. In the remote highlands of Western Asia, along the mountain roads from Trebizond to Erzeroum, and thence to the renowned fortress of Kars, and farther eastward, almost to the Georgian frontier, the Illustrated London News has been represented by its own skilful and diligent emissaries, whose presence was often hailed by the unsophisticated natives of that rough country with a curious expression of respectful wonder. Both in that half-barbarous region of Asiatic Turkey, and in the Danubian Provinces, on the banks of the great river, or its tributaries, the Lom, the Jantra, and the Vid, whose waters have been so freely mingled with blood, and in the rugged defiles of the Balkans and on the Roumelian plain beyond, our indefatigable Artists, quitting for a season the comfort and safety of their English homes, have shared the hardships of campaigning life with the military multitudes there gathered around the standards of the Sultan

THE WAR: SALUTING THE "ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS" IN ASIA MINOR.
FROM A SKETCH BY ONE OF OUR SPECIAL ARTISTS.THE WAR: NEWSPAPER CORRESPONDENTS' HUTS AT KACILJEVO.
FROM A SKETCH BY ONE OF OUR SPECIAL ARTISTS.

and of the Czar. A specimen of the sort of accommodation they have cheerfully put up with, scarcely imagined by many of "the gentlemen of England who live at home at ease," is shown in Mr. Melton Prior's sketch of the construction of huts on the battle-field of Kaciljevo for the extemporised lodgings of several newspaper correspondents, himself included. It will be convenient here briefly to set forth the particular directions in which our different Special Artists have respectively travelled and laboured, with the dates of their employment hitherto since the outbreak of the war, so that our readers may know to whose industry, next to the enterprise of the Proprietors of this Journal, they are indebted for the abundant pictorial illustrations that have already been given by us of these striking passages in the history of the times. It was the insurrection of Herzegovina, in the summer of 1875, quickly spreading to the adjacent province of Bosnia, that became the occasion of this momentous conflict between Russia, as champion of the Slavonic race and Greek Christian Church in Eastern Europe, and the Mohammedan rulers of that part of the world. Our series of Illustrations of the subject began in September, 1875, with sketches contributed by an eminent French scholar and historical writer, M. Charles Yriarte, who had been visiting those provinces, as well as Dalmatia, in pursuit of his literary researches concerning the old Venetian dominion of the Adriatic, when the Herzegovinian revolt broke out. The warlike Prince and people of Montenegro, on one side, and the Principality of Serbia, on the other side, though bound in nominal allegiance to the Sultan, were sure to espouse the cause of their co-religionists and Slavonic brethren. Anticipating, therefore, from the outset, a more important and extensive contest, we sent out Mr. Melton Prior, our tried

THE WAR: THREE BASHI-BAZOUK PRISONERS ON THEIR WAY TO NICOPOLIS.
FROM A SKETCH BY ONE OF OUR SPECIAL ARTISTS.

and efficient Special Artist of the Ashantee War, to this new field of action. He spent part of the autumn and winter months of 1875 at the wild camps of those valiant highlanders Peko Paulovitch and Socica, dodging the Turks about Piva, around Lipnik and Gatschko, meeting them now and then in fierce little frays, where no quarter was asked or given. It was not till the midsummer of last year that Serbia declared war against Turkey; and Mr. Melton Prior was at Belgrade in time to witness the earliest military preparations. The task, however, of furnishing Illustrations of that campaign, on the Servian side, was committed to another artist, Mr. Chantrey Corbould, while Mr. Prior betook himself to Constantinople. With the Turkish army, in its advance from Adrianople and Sophia up the Timok and Morava valleys, and all those movements resulting in the capture of Alexinatz, the Servians getting rather the worst of it, we had a Special Artist, the late Count Carriero, who kept us very well supplied. The proceedings at the metropolis of the Turkish Empire, the institution of the new Government there, and the Conferences of the European Powers, were productive of some Illustrations, to which Mr. Prior added his interesting views of the Bosphorus and the Dardanelles, and the ancient capital of the Eastern world. But in the spring of the present year, despite all the well-meant efforts of pacification, diplomatic controversy was exchanged for downright military force, and the Russian armies marched once more across the Pruth, ostensibly to redress the grievances of Bulgarian and other Christian subjects of Turkey. The Illustrated London News lost not a day in sending its own well-qualified servants to the scene of this grand, though sad and shocking, international conflict in the East. Mr. Prior, already familiar with Turkey and its people, undertook the duty of illustrating the operations of the Ottoman Army in Bulgaria. He arrived at Rustchuk about the end of April, with credentials to Abdul Kerim Pasha, the Commander-in-Chief, and he has since continued, except during two or three weeks of illness, to furnish sketches of the most important Turkish movements north of the Balkans. A Viennese Artist, Herr Johann Schönberg, well accredited to the Russian General Staff, was at the same time engaged for the service of this Journal with the invading army. He was in Moldavia at the beginning of May, and sent us sketches, which were engraved, of the very first encounters on the Danube, between Galatz and Braila, and of the Russian army crossing the Danube late in June; immediately after which he accompanied the Russian Army Corps of General Zimmermann into the Dobrudzha. In the meantime, without delay or hesitation, we had dispatched from London, solely and exclusively for the service of this Journal, three more English Artists, Mr. Bell, Mr. Irving Montagu, and Mr. E. Matthew Hale. The first-named "Special," proceeding direct to Constantinople, speedily found his way into Asia Minor, where he joined the army of Ahmed Moukhtar Pasha, witnessed the battles on the road between Erzeroum and Kars, and was present at the raising of the siege of Kars in the first week of July. Mr. Irving Montagu, who had likewise got a personal introduction to the Turkish naval and military authorities, sojourned for a time at Varna, which was the scene of great bustle in warlike preparations. He afterwards proceeded by sea to Armenia, where many of his sketches, with those of Mr. Bell, served to present a most complete series of pictures of travel and warfare in Asiatic Turkey. The other Special Artist just named, Mr. Hale, was enabled, after much delay and difficulty with the Russian military officials at Bucharest, to join the expedition of General Gourko across the Balkans. He was at Kazanlik towards the end of July, at Eski Sagra and Yeni Sagra, but retreated, with General Gourko, before the advancing superior force of Suleiman Pasha. We were thenceforward assisted by a volunteer private Correspondent—namely, Captain Gambier, R.N., the author of some remarkable letters in the Times—with a few Illustrations of the frightful massacres perpetrated in the towns and villages of the Balkans and of the subsequent desperate struggle in the Shipka Pass. Meantime the campaign in Bulgaria had assumed a more definite shape, as the defensive position of Osman Pasha at Plevna, and the movements of Mahomet Ali Pasha on the Lom, obliged the Grand Duke Nicholas, with the Csesarevitch in command of the forces around Biela, to operate on both flanks of the Russian main line of advance. It was by this time apparent that no successful movement could be made from the Dobrudzha, as the impregnable fortresses of Shumla and Varna, behind those of Rustchuk and Silistria, constituted a barrier which the invader could not pass. Herr Schönberg was therefore directed to shift his sphere of action to the allied Russian and Roumanian camp before Plevna. He had not, of course, been able to contribute any Illustrations of the earlier conflicts at that place; but we had fortunately received from Herr Szathmari, an artist belonging to the Court of Prince Charles of Roumania, a spirited sketch of the battle of July 31 at Plevna, so disastrous for the Russians, which appeared in a large Engraving published on Aug. 18. The renewed attack on Plevna, in September, the capture of the redoubts on the 11th ult., with the Roumanian operations on the hill of Gravitza, and their movements up the river Vid, have been fully illustrated by Herr Schönberg, from his own sketches on the spot. Mr. Prior has meanwhile accompanied the Turkish army on the Lom, witnessing the engagements of Karahassankoi, Sinankeui, and Kaceljevo, of which he has sent us many graphic and animated sketches. We have much satisfaction in announcing that a selection of original Sketches of the War, by the Special Artists of the Illustrated London News, will shortly be placed on view at the Royal Aquarium, Westminster, by an arrangement with the directors of that institution. These sketches are truthful and lifelike representations of some of the most extraordinary scenes of recent history, to which the public mind has been directed with greater intensity than to any preceding war between foreign nations at a distance from England. They will certainly attract the earnest attention of a great number of visitors to the Royal Aquarium in the ensuing winter season.

THE FAMINE IN INDIA: NATIVES WAITING FOR RELIEF AT BANGALORE.

Under the direction of the Trades' Guild of Learning, the first of a course of twelve lectures on Life and Health was delivered last Monday evening in the Townhall, Shoreditch, by Dr. B. W. Richardson, F.R.S.

THE INDIAN FAMINE.

We are happy to learn from recent telegrams that there is now a definite prospect of the end of this dreadful visitation. The whole aspect of affairs throughout the drought-stricken Provinces has been changed by a general rainfall during the last week. There is already cold weather, and cultivation is now secured throughout the Punjab, the North-West, Oude, the Central Provinces, Central India, and Behar. It has been roughly estimated that the week's rain will save the Government four millions sterling. From Madras, also, favourable rain is reported in all the districts, and agricultural operations are in full progress, while grain prices are falling. The total number on the relief works in Madras is 587,228, showing a decrease from the previous week of 41,031. The total number gratuitously relieved is 153,125, being a decrease of 72,466. In Mysore the crops are flourishing and prices are falling. The number on the relief works there is 69,693. The number of those gratuitously relieved in Mysore is 126,204, the decrease of these being 25,688. It is anticipated that, if the north-east monsoon is favourable, the famine pressure will be over in February. In the city of Madras rice has fallen twenty per cent, and the importation trade, therefore, stopped for the present. A letter describes the sight in Madras Roads of fifteen large steamers and more than twenty large ships, all discharging rice. The pier is covered with bags, and the beach for at least two miles is one gigantic warehouse of that grain, with stacks of bags 15 ft. high ranged along the shore. The noise and confusion are marvellous, and thefts are committed in the most barefaced manner, people at every turn making holes in the bags and deliberately carrying off rice. The fall of prices threatens to paralyse the rice trade, and will probably hit speculators very hard; but when the rice already imported shall have been taken up the market will probably right itself. The supply, which had been diverted from the Northern Provinces by the prospect of famine, will now be sent back into its old channel.

It may be well to warn the English public—though there is every prospect of the Madras famine terminating by February—that a vast amount of misery will still be endured, and the need of alleviation is as pressing as ever. It is most desirable that the flow of charity should not cease through a mistaken notion. Reports from Madras speak in the highest terms of the wise and provident distribution of the famine fund. We are indebted to an officer of one of her Majesty's regiments now stationed at Bangalore for an illustration of rice at the great relief camp there, in which about four thousand of these poor people are collected to live on the bounty of Government.

THE MANSION HOUSE FAMINE FUND.

The Committee have been strongly urged by the authorities in Madras not to relax their exertions to obtain additional money, for in the event even of an abundant fall of rain during the approaching monsoon period, and a concurrence of the most favourable events, the pinch of famine must, it is stated, affect some millions of people in India for four months at least, and longer in all likelihood.

The following sums were received at the close of last week:—Sir Charles Reed, chairman of the London School Board, forwarded £558, being the result of the voluntary subscriptions started among the teachers and children in all the board schools of the metropolis. Among the donations from the provinces were:—Aberdeen County and City (additional, making £2500), £1000; Keighley (fourth instalment), £250; Walsall (second), £200; Battle, £169; Chatham, £150; Scarborough (fifth), £112; West Bromwich (fifth), £100; Guisborough, £100; Sudbury, £100; Loughton (fourth), £100; Deal, £100; Stourbridge (fifth), £100; Canterbury (fifth), £100; Dublin (eighteenth), £500; Jersey (additional), £650; Stockton (third), £100; Stockport (second), £750; Shrewsbury (sixth), £250; Isle of Man (additional), £200; Whitehaven, £225; Butterworth, near Rochdale, £177; Hereford (second), £100; Hanley (eighth), £100; Newport, Mon. (third), £100; Birmingham (seventh), £1000; Gloucester (second), £250; Rotherham (making £850 in all), £250; Carlisle (additional), £200; Cleckheaton, £200; the Proprietors of the Morning Advertiser, £105; the Brewers' Company, £100; Barrow-in-Furness (second), £100; Colchester (sixth), £100; Luton (second), £100; Colonel and Mrs. W. E. Evans, £100. There was paid in the largest church collection yet received in aid of the fund—namely, £461 from the congregation of Holy Trinity Church, Paddington, of which the Rev. Daniel Moore, the golden lecturer, is the Rector. Wrexall church, £132; St. Augustine's, Highbury, £142; St. James's, Kidbrook, £110; Newark, £201. The Chamber of Commerce at Havre have voted 1500 francs towards the fund; and the Congregation of the Propaganda Fide at Rome have sent 25,000fr. for the relief of the sufferers.

The committee met on Monday, under the presidency of the Lord Mayor. It was stated that the contributions amounted to £375,000, the Lord Mayor remarking that he hoped to see it reach £500,000. A telegram from the Madras Relief Committee was read stating that sixty-eight sub-committees and agencies were in operation, and that the mortality returns from August would show an increase over those of July. It was unanimously resolved to transmit an additional £50,000, making £350,000 forwarded to the Madras Relief Committee, together with an intimation that the committee had decided to keep open the fund so long as the public enabled them to render effectual aid. Belfast sent an additional donation of £500; Dublin (nineteenth), £500; Norwich (seventh), £300; Sutton Coldfield, £267; Keighley (fifth), £250; Truro, £170; Hawick, £150; Dover (additional), £133; South Shields, £124; Peterborough, £100; Hertford, £100; Bedford, £100; Maidstone, £100; Melton Mowbray, £150; and Rothsay and Dute, £100. Messrs. Keen, Robinson, Belville, and Co. contributed £100, and Mrs. Chaplin, £100. Among the churches and chapels were St. John's-wood Presbyterian Church, £117; Marylebone Presbyterian Church, £133; St. Stephen's, Canonbury, £100; Christ Church, Streatham, £146.

The Lord Mayor on Tuesday received a telegram from the Madras Committee, stating the proportionate allotments of the fund among the various districts. The Viceroy has the telegram adds, given 1000 rupees to the fund. Among the provincial contributions were the following:—Dundee (third instalment), £1000; Wakefield (third donation), £500; Mansfield and district, £200; Whitehaven (second), £200; Southampton (thirteenth), £100; Torquay (fourth), £100; Gainsborough, £200. About 250 donations were received from churches and chapels, including the Metropolitan Tabernacle, per Mr. C. H. Spurgeon, £270; Beddington Church, £112; St. Mark's and St. Andrew's, Surbiton, £202.

On Wednesday the county of Warwick forwarded a further instalment of £1000 to the Lord Mayor, and among the other donations from the provinces were:—Bridgnorth, £535; Kendal (third instalment), £500; Dublin (twentieth), £500; Bridgwater, £150; Matlock, £331; Saffron Walden, £104; Blairgowrie and district, £200; Staines, £165; Fenton, £100; Burslem (second), £100. The first colonial remittance of importance arrived in the shape of £200 from Otago. The Union Bank of Australia contributed £200; the Commercial Union Assurance Company, £105; the Bank of Australasia, £105; the English, Scottish, &c., Chartered Bank, £100; Cambridge University (additional), £100. A large number of additional church and chapel collections were received, including St. Paul's, Beckenham, £134.

The committee of the Liverpool Indian Famine Relief Fund have remitted £7000 further to Madras, making £27,000 sent out altogether. The fund now amounts to £26,200.

BUILDING SOCIETIES.

A return, obtained by Mr. Holms, M.P., of the building societies incorporated to the end of last year has been issued.

In England and Wales 637 societies are returned, but of these only 461 furnished accounts, seven of them, however, not stating the annual income, and six not giving accounts of liabilities and assets. The total receipts of these societies during the last financial year were £12,030,630. The liabilities of the societies to the holders of subscription or uncompleted shares amounted to £7,973,958; of completed or realised shares, £2,985,861; and of preference shares, £1,959,480. To depositors and other creditors was owing a sum of £6,030,381, and the balance of unappropriated property (in 349 societies) was £474,658. The balance due to the societies on mortgage securities was £18,481,339; the amount invested in other securities and cash, £935,102; and the balance deficient in seventy-one societies was £7900. Twenty-one Scotch societies are mentioned, but the returns furnished are very incomplete.

Thirteen Irish societies are also mentioned, in one of which the liabilities are not stated. In the other twelve cases the liabilities to holders of uncompleted subscription shares amount to £35,244; and to holders of completed or realised shares £318,831. The liabilities to depositors and creditors are given at £216,232; and the balance of unappropriated profit at £13,864. The balance due on mortgage securities, not including prospective interest, was £565,964; and the amount invested in cash and other securities, £35,263.

A note appended to the return states that much difficulty has been experienced in ascertaining the particulars, in consequence of the great variety of forms in which societies draw up their balance-sheets.

General Grant has visited Birmingham this week. On Tuesday he was presented with addresses on behalf of the Corporation, the working classes, and the Peace and Arbitration Union. In reply to the latter, General Grant said that, although he had followed a military career during the greater part of his life, there had never been a day when he was not in favour of peace upon honourable terms. He had always advocated the principles of peace, and nothing would afford him greater happiness than to know that in some future day all civilised nations of the earth would agree to some sort of congress that would take cognisance of international difficulties, and whose decision would be final. On Wednesday, after visiting the principal factories in Birmingham, General Grant was entertained at a banquet, at which Mr. Chamberlain, M.P., proposed his health. The distinguished guest, in replying, reverted to the topic of free trade, hinting that when America had her manufactures established like England she might, probably be as great a free-trade country. On the occasion of the visit of General Grant to the Guildhall he was presented by the Corporation of the City of London with the freedom of the City, which was, as usual, to be included in a gold basket. The making of this was intrusted to Mr. Benson, who has completed his work. It is oblong in form, and composed entirely of pure gold enriched with enamel, and supported at the four corners by the American eagle. On the front panel is chased in bold relief a view of the Capitol at Washington, with pendants of the ex-President's monogram and the Lord Mayor's coat of arms. The reverse panel bears a similarly wrought view of the Guildhall. At the ends of the box are finely modelled figures representing the city of London and the United States; and on the cover are cornucopia springing from the four corners, typical of the fertility and prosperity of the American continent; whilst the City arms appropriately surmount the whole.

NEW BOOKS AND PUBLICATIONS.

A MAN OF OTHER DAYS: Recollections of the Marquis de Beaumont. Edited, from the French, by CHARLOTTE M. YONGE, Author of "The Heir of Redcliffe," &c. 2 vols. 21s. H. and A. Blackett, Publishers, 13, Great Marlborough-street.

NEW NOVELS AT ALL LIBRARIES.

THE BLUE STOCKING. By Mrs. ANNIE EDWARDS.
AN EVERY-DAY HEROINE. By ALBERT D. VANDAM.
UNDER A CHARM. Second Edition. By ERNEST WILSON.
WON! Second Edition. By the Author of "Jennie of the Prince's."
THE HON. MISS FERRARD. By the Author of "Hogan."
GABRIEL'S APPOINTMENT. By ANNA H. DEURY.
RICHARD BENTLEY and SON, New Durling-street.

THE NEW FASHION BOOK.

Autumn and Winter Seasons. Price One Shilling.
The Fashion Book is well got up, and contains valuable information on all matters concerning Dress, Fabrics, Mantles, Millinery, &c. The Linings, of which there are a great number, were executed in Paris, and will be found of considerable service to ladies, and to those who reside in the country especially, both with regard to special articles and general information. It contains a full description of the novelties in costumes, mantles, millinery, &c., suitable for the present season. The book contains a great variety of engravings, and its opportune publication will doubtless be of considerable service to ladies, enabling them to arrive at a satisfactory conclusion in making their choice of fabrics for the autumn and winter season. Court Journal.

DREXHAM and FERRIS, Wigmore-street and Whitechapel, London, W.

WHAT TO WEAR, AND HOW TO MAKE IT.

Information on Dress and Dress-making. Contains nearly 500 Miniature Illustrations of Ladies' and Children's Fashions for Autumn and Winter, with full descriptions of Latest Styles, &c., including Materials, Trimmings, Walking and Outdoor Costumes, Dinner, Evening, and other Toilets, Jewellery, Lace, Corsets, Millinery, and every new and desirable article connected with Ladies' and Children's Dress. Just what every Lady, Milliner, Dressmaker, Draper, Warehouseman, and Outfitter wants to know about the Autumn and Winter Fashions. Sold by all Booksellers and Newsagents, and at every Railway Station.

WILLIAMS and ROGERS NEWS COMPANY, General Agents for Demore's Reliable Patterns, 11, Boulevard-street, London.

PAINTING ON CHINA, EARTHENWARE, &c.

Practical Lessons by Mme. la Baronne Delamarcelle, Translated from the French by G. A. Bouvier. Price 1s.; post-free, 1s. 1d.—Lecroix, BARRIS, and Co., 60, Regent-st., London.

By Dr. BARR MEADOWS, Physician to the National Institution for Diseases of the Skin.

SEVENTH EDITION, post-free, 3s. stamps.
ERUPTIONS; their Rational Treatment. Remarks on the abuse of arsenic, mercury and other reputed specifics.—London: G. HILL, 154, Westminster Bridge-rd.

Just published, post-free, 2 stamps.

DYSPEPSIA AND THE SEVERER FORMS OF INDIGESTION. A small Pamphlet on these distressing complaints, and the complete cure, by RICHARD KING, Esq., Surgeon, R.N., 23, Warwick-street, Rugby.

HOMEOPATHIC TREATMENT, pp. 10, 15, or 13 stamps.

DISEASES OF INFANTS AND CHILDREN. By Drs. WILLIAMSON and EPPS. Describes fully and prescribes clearly for each disease.
DISEASES OF WOMEN. Same Authors and price.
JAMES EPPS and Co., 4, Threadneedle-st.; and 170, Piccadilly.

THE SOCIETY OF ARTS' ONE SHILLING MOIST-COLOUR BOX.

Unadulterated pigments. Box in japanned tin.—Lechertier, Barbe, and Co., 60, Regent-st., London; and local Artists' Colourmen and Stationers.

VITREMANIE.—An Easy Method of Decorating Windows in Churches, Public Buildings, and Private Houses, by Real Stained Glass. Illustrated Handbook of Instructions, post-free, 1s. 2d. Particulars free. London: J. BARNARD and SONS, 339, Oxford-street, W.

CHEAPEST HOUSE IN LONDON FOR ENGRAVINGS. GEO. REES.

CHROMOS. GEO. REES.

OLIOGRAPHS. GEO. REES.

BEAUTIFULLY-FRAMED PICTURES, from 10s. to £10. Shippers and the Trade supplied.—GEO. REES, 29, Charing-cross. Wholesale Depot—41, 42, 43, Russell-street, Covent-garden. Catalogue, three stamps.

WHITE WOOD ARTICLES, for PAINTING, FEIN PRINTING, and Decalcomanie. Hand Screens, Book Covers, Glove, Knitting, and other Boxes; Paper Knaves, Fans, &c. Priced List on application.

WM. BARNARD, 119, Edgware-road, London.

SCRAPS FOR SCREENS AND SCRAP

BOOKS.
In IMMENSE VARIETY.
Flowers, Figures, Fruit, Birds, and Landscapes, coloured, from 1s. per sheet; 12 sheets, assorted, 10s. 6d.
WM. BARNARD, 119, Edgware-road, London.

COLLECTIONS OF PHOTOGRAPHS,

PRINTS, &c. arranged.—MARION and CO., 22 and 23, Soho-square, undertake to put into order collections of Photographs, Prints, &c., to make them into convenient volumes for reference, to frame them for the Library or dining-room, or to portfolio them with partitions in order to keep countries separate. Patent Portfolios, folding into small space. Portraits enlarged, framed, and matted. Estimates given for work in general.

WOOD-CUTTING FOR AMATEURS.—No

previous knowledge required. Thousands of pretty things in cut Wood, Baskets, Stands for Flowers, &c., Candelabras, Pipe Cases, &c., can be cut by LORIN'S WOOD-CUTTING Machine. Everything complete. Drawings, saws, &c., from 2s. Wholesale and Retail, to be had at the Manufacturer's, JACQUES LORIN FILS, 3, Rue de la Fidélité, Paris. Catalogue free on application.

THE MOST LAUGHABLE THING ON

EARTH.—New Far-lap-humour. 30/60 Transformations of Wit and Humour. Post-free for 14 stamps. Endless amusement.—H. G. CLARKE and Co., 2, Garrick-street, Covent-garden.

THE LOVE CHASE.—The Merriest Game

out for any number of Players. 24 Engravings. Post-free for 14 stamps.—H. G. CLARKE and Co., 2, Garrick-street, Covent-garden.

THE KENSINGTON SCHOOL of ART-TECHNOLOGY will be a GREAT ADVANCE. A Course of Four Lessons given in a description of Fancy Needlework for the quality, as used by the School, 1s. 6d. per dozen. All materials equally low. 40, High-street, Kensington.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

The ANNUAL EXAMINATION for ENTRANCE EXHIBITIONS and SCHOLARSHIPS will be held on DEC. 20 and 21.

WRITING, BOOK-KEEPING, &c.

Persons of any age, however led their writing, may, in Eight Easy Lessons, acquire permanently an elegant and flowing style of penmanship, adapted either to professional pursuits or private correspondence. Book-keeping by double entry, as practised in the Government, Banking, and Mercantile Offices, Arithmetic, shorthand, &c.—Apply to Mr. W. SMART, at his sole Institution, 97a, Quadrant, Regent-street.

EVANS'S, COVENT GARDEN.—NOTICE.

On and after MONDAY, OCT. 22, the Cafe part of the celebrated CONCERT and SPIRIT ROOMS will be thrown OPEN for the reception of LADIES. Evans's Choir of 125. Every Evening, and the best comic talent. Suppers after the theatre.

CHESS.—An experienced Player Teaches a few PUPILS privately at their own homes. The first principles of the game inculcated, and its resources illustrated by examples from the best masters. The foundation of a good style effectually laid. Terms, 2s. 6d. per Lesson at residence in the West-End or on North London or in the Railways. The best references permitted. Addressee, Alexander, Post Office, Camden-station.

MOST IMPORTANT and ENLARGED

DRAWING OF PRIZES with the Security of the Government of Hamburg. £10,418 (10m. 8s. 2d.) in Gold, most positively be won in a few months. The highest prize is amounting to £10,750 (10m. 7s. 5d.) in the most favourable circumstance.

The following is a list of the other Prizes:—
1 Prize of	£12,500	= £12,500
1 Ditto of	6,250	= 6,250
1 Ditto of	4,000	= 4,000
1 Ditto of	3,000	= 3,000
1 Ditto of	2,500	= 2,500
1 Ditto of	2,000	= 2,000
1 Ditto of	1,800	= 1,800
3 Ditto of	1,500	= 4,500
3 Ditto of	1,200	= 3,600
3 Ditto of	1,000	= 3,000
7 Ditto of	750	= 5,250
21 Ditto of	500	= 10,500
27 Ditto of	250	= 6,750
22 Ditto of	200	= 4,400, &c.

The terms as fixed by the Government are as follow:—

1s. 6d. 2s. 1s. 6d. 1s. 6d.

All orders including the amount, and directed to the under-mentioned firm, to N.W. 15 next, will receive the prizes and last attention, even to the most distant foreign countries.

Payments may be made in inland and foreign postage-stamps.

Each participant will receive an Original Government Allotment, provided with the Government seal, together with the official Prospectus; and, after the drawing, the Government List of Prizes. The payment of the Prizes will be made within eight days after the drawing, under the Government security.

The Drawing will take place under the official control of the State.

Applications to the above Drawing are respectfully solicited by DAVID KAUFMANN, Central Bureau, Welkerstrasse 6, Hamburg.

THE GRAND HOTEL, LONDON.

The extensive building, now in course of erection on the site of the historical mansion of the Duke of Northumberland, at the corner of Northumberland-avenue, Trafalgar-square, will, when completed, be OPENED as a FIRST-CLASS HOTEL. Messrs. GOSNOLD and CO., Proprietors.

THE GRANVILLE, ST. LAWRENCE-ON-SEA, near Ramsgate.—Baths, Theatre, Concerts, Billiard, and other amusements, with a view to the Grand Gothic Dining-Hall, 12s. per day.—Address, THE MANAGER.

THE SPECIALITE SAUMUR

CHAMPAGNE.

This innocent and refreshing Wine, far superior and totally different to the ordinary Saumur champagne, is much in vogue. The "Medical Examiner" writes:—"Precisely the wine that is wanted for invalids and the public." It is the same price as the celebrated "Specialite" Sherry, free from acidity and least 30s. per dozen, upon the cash system, carriage paid.

FELTOW and SONS, Sole Importers and Importers, Albemarle-street, W.; and 8, Upper-court, E.C.

LIQUEUR

GINGER BRANDY.

An Elegant and Digestive Cordial, much appreciated by Sportsmen, Tourists, and Travellers, being invaluable for Cases of Cholera, Nature and Indigestion. In square Bottles and Yellow Glass Cases, bearing trade mark, "A Negro's Head." 6s. per case.—26 and 27, 11th

HENRY BRETT and CO. (Holborn, London).

KINAHAN'S LL WHISKY.

UNIVERSALLY RECOMMENDED BY THE MEDICAL PROFESSION. A pure old spirit, mild, mellow, delicious, and most wholesome. Dr. Hassall says:—"The samples were soft and mellow to the taste, aromatic and ethereal to the smell. The whisky is pure, well matured, and of very excellent quality."

LORNE

"THE PERFECTION OF WHISKY."

HIGHLAND UNRIVALLED WHISKY. FOR "TODDY."

Wholesale of the Sole Proprietors, GREENLEIGH BROTHERS, 1, Grosvenor-buildings, E.C. Distillers, Argyle-shire.

PARIS.—EPPS'S COCOA.

Dépôt—A. Delafosse, 64, Faubourg St. Honoré. Each packet is labelled.

JAMES EPPS and CO., HOMEOPATHIC CHEMISTS.

NEW YORK.—EPPS'S COCOA.

New York Dépôt—Smith and Vanderhook Park-place. Each packet is labelled.

JAMES EPPS and CO., HOMEOPATHIC CHEMISTS.

EPPS'S

GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.

C O C O A.

JAMES EPPS and CO., HOMEOPATHIC CHEMISTS.

AMERICAN INTERNATIONAL PRIZE MEDAL.

FRY'S CARACAS COCOA.

Its pure flavor, delicate aroma, and invigorating qualities have established its position as a first-class dietetic article.

FRY'S CARACAS COCOA.

"The Caracas Cocoa of such choice quality."—Food, Water, and Air (Dr. Hassall).

"A most delicious and valuable article."—Standard.

FRY'S EXTRACT OF COCOA,

"than which, if properly prepared, there is no other or more wholesome preparation of Cocoa."—Food, Water, and Air.

Edited by Dr. Hassall.

TENTH INTERNATIONAL MEDAL awarded to J. S. FRY and SON.

THE ESSEX FLOUR and GRAIN

COMPANY, Liverpool-rod, London, N., supply the best goods only:—Whites, for Pastry, 10s. 4d. per bushel; House-holds, for Bread, 10s.; Wheat Meal, for Brown Bread, 8s. 4d.; Coarse Scotch Oatmeal, 3s. 2d. per 14lb.; fine, 3s. 4d.; American Hominy, 4s.; Barley, 6s. 4d. per bushel, or 2s. 6d. per sack; Buckwheat, Indian Corn, and Barley Meal, 6s. per bushel, or 18s. per sack; Oats, 4s. per bushel; Crushed Oats, 3s. 4d. per bushel; 12s. 6d. per sack; Middlings, 2s. 4d. per bushel; Ground Potatoes, 1s. 6d.; Peas, 7s. 6d.; Tick Beans, 8s.; Split Peas, 2s. 6d. and 3s. per peck. Meat Biscuits, 2s. per cwt. Lentils, 4s. per bushel, in tins, 1 lb. size, 1s. and 7lb. 6s. All other kinds of Grain and Seed. Special prices for larger quantities. Orders and cheques to be made in favour of G. Young.

FOR THE NURSERY, THE SICK-ROOM, AND THE FAMILY TABLE.

BROWN and POLSON'S

CORN FLOUR

HAS BECOME A WORLD-WIDE NECESSARY.

HOOPING-COUGH.—ROCHE'S HERBAL

EMBRICATION.—The celebrated Effectual Cure without internal medicine. Sole Wholesale Agent, EDWARD 137, Queen Victoria-street (late of 35, Abchurch-lane), London. Sold by most Chemists. Price 6s. per Bottle.

FASHIONS FOR THE WINTER OF 1877.
PETER ROBINSON, OXFORD-STREET, LONDON, W.
A LARGE PURCHASE OF NEW COLOURED SILKS,
 at 3s. 6d., 3s. 11d., and 4s. 4d. per yard; also, richer quality, at 5s. 3d., usually sold at 7s. 6d. per yard. 200 shades to select from. Patterns free.

ONE THOUSAND PIECES OF
BLACK GROS GRAINS.
 This extensive purchase comprises Silks of the best and most reliable makes, and are specially recommended. Prices 2s. 6d., 3s. 5d., and 3s. 9d. per yard. Also richer goods, from 4s. 6d. to 10s. 6d. Patterns free from PETER ROBINSON, 108 to 106, Oxford-street, W.

COLOURED GENOA VELVETS,
 to match every silk, short pile, well covered, suitable for gowns, 6s. 11d. per yard. Any length cut. A special purchase of Black Lyons Velvet, all silk, at 5s. 11d. per yard. Patterns free from PETER ROBINSON, OXFORD-STREET.

COLOURED SILK COSTUMES,
 of the latest designs and most fashionable description, in all the new Coloured Silks, commencing at 4s. 6d. Patterns of the Silks and Engravings post-free.

BLACK SILK COSTUMES,
 made from the new Paris Models in eight different styles of the most approved designs, as shown in engravings. Price, with bodice complete, 4s. 6d. Patterns of the Silks and Fashion-Plates post-free from PETER ROBINSON, OXFORD-STREET, LONDON, W.

NEW AND ELEGANT DESIGNS IN WINTER COSTUMES.
 Cashmere and Silk Costumes, 4s. 6d. Specialties in Costumes, suitable for travelling, promenade, and indoor wear, 3s. 6d. to 7s. 6d. Rich Velvet Velveteen Costumes, 3s. 6d. to 7s. 6d. Illustrations and Patterns Materials post-free.

IMPORTANT TO LADIES REQUIRING
MADE BALL AND WEDDING DRESSES.
 Now ready, several thousand charming Dresses in White, Black, and all Colours, from 12s. 6d. to 10s. 6d. The "Dora," a favourite dress in Trianon, any colour, profusely trimmed with ruffles and ample train, 1 guinea. A substantial box included. A pretty Brussels Net Dress, in White, Black, and all Colours, for 2s. 6d., with material for bodice. The styles of the above, with many others, can be seen in the New Book of Engravings, which is sent post-free on application to PETER ROBINSON, Oxford-street, London, W.

PETER ROBINSON, OXFORD-ST. W., having concluded the purchase of large quantities of SEAL FUR SKINS and Squirrel Furs, they are now on sale, as quoted below:—Russian Seal Fur Jackets, loose shapes, 2s. 10d. to 10s. 6d. Dressed, fitting shapes, 3s. 10d. to 10s. 6d. South Sea Seal, loose shapes, 2s. 6d. to 4s. 6d.

THE LATEST PRODUCTIONS IN
MANTLES AND PALETOTS.
 Cashmere Circulars, lined Fur, 3 to 5s. 6d. Cashmere Paletots, lined Fur, 3s. 6d. to 8s. 6d. Silk Circulars, lined Fur, 3s. 6d. to 5s. 6d. Silk Paletots, lined Fur, 6s. 15d. to 10s. 6d.

THE NEW DIAGONAL
CLOTH PALETOTS, 2 gs. to 5 gs.
 The New Beaver Cloth Paletots, 2s. 6d. to 5s. 6d. New Ulster Mantles, 17s. 6d. to 22s. 6d. Waterproof Mantles and Ulsters, 17s. 6d. to 42s. 6d. PETER ROBINSON, 108 to 106, Oxford-street, London, W.

A LARGE COLLECTION OF NOVELTIES FOR WINTER DRESSES,
 in every variety of Fabric and Shade of Colour, from 12s. 6d. to 42s. 6d. the Full Dress. Patterns free.

IN 62 NEW SHADES OF COLOUR.
CASHMERE DE PARIS.
 This elegant material is all wool, beautifully soft, and richer in its colourings than any article previously introduced. 48 inches wide, 2s. 11d. and 3s. 6d. per yard. Patterns free. PETER ROBINSON, OXFORD-STREET, LONDON, W.

VERY FASHIONABLE THIS SEASON.
CASHMERE MERINOES, all Wool.
 This most useful material can be had in every new Shade of Brown, Vert Butteille, Prune, &c., from 2s. 6d. to 2s. 11d. per yard, 48 in. wide. Patterns free.

A NEW FABRIC FOR PALETOTS, &c.
POIL DE CHAMEAU (Registered).
 This elegant Fabric, though very warm, is remarkably light and soft, and can be had in choice shades of Fawn, Drab, Grey, Light Brown, &c., 54 in. wide, from 5s. 6d. per yard.

A VARIETY OF NEW MATERIALS FOR WARM WINTER PETTICOATS, including a large assortment of Silk-striped Cloth Skirtings, Severable Fells, plain Colours, new striped Cashmere, &c., from 2s. 11d. to 5s. 6d. per yard. Patterns free.

NOW ON SALE AT HALF PRICE.
1000 UNMADE PALETOTS (Black), richly embroidered on very fine Cashmere or Diagonal Cloth. Full size and Newest Shape, from 22s. 6d. to 42s. 6d. each; formerly 3 gs. to 4 gs.

IN WHITE, BLACK, AND ALL NEW COLOURS.
VELVET-FINISHED VELVETEENS,
 beautifully soft, rich, and very wide. This charming fabric can be had in Black, from 2s. 6d. to 5s. 6d. per yard, and in 35 choice Shades of Colour at 3s. 6d. per yard. Patterns free. PETER ROBINSON, OXFORD-STREET, LONDON, W.

G A S K and G A S K.
 NEW VIGONA CLOTH, 2 1/2 yd. per yard, in New Autumn Shades; also, fine FRENCH CASHMERE 2s. 11d., double width; and the fashionable SNOWFLAKE CLOTH, 1 1/2 yd., with a large collection of NEW DRESS FABRICS, from 10d. to 3s. 6d. per yard.

PATTERNS FREE.
 Oxford-street and Wells-street.
NEW AUTUMN COSTUMES, made of the fashionable Foreign and English Fabrics from novel and elegant Paris Models, 4s. 6d. to 10s. 6d. per yard. Also, RICH BLACK SILK COSTUMES, exceptionally good, 4s. 6d. SILK COSTUME SKIRTS, 2s. 6d.; with a vast variety of new Costumes of all kinds equally cheap.

G A S K and G A S K.
 New Lyons Silks, Blacks and Colours, still cheaper. The best makes of BLACK SILKS, recommended for wear, and every shade of Colour, in all qualities, 3s. 6d. to 7s. 9d. per yard. NEW FANCY SILKS. PATTERNS FREE. 88, 90, 92, 94, Oxford-street; 1, 3, 5, 7, Wells-street, London.

NICHOLSON'S NEW COSTUMES.
 Seven Prize Medals.
700 ILLUSTRATIONS
 of the
NEWEST COSTUMES, PALETOTS,
 JACKETS, &c., with prices of the Patterns, cut in Paper, post-free.

1000 PATTERNS OF NEW SILKS,
 POST-FREE.
1000 PATTERNS OF NEW DRESS
 FABRICS, POST-FREE.
 D. NICHOLSON and CO.,
 30 to 33, ST. PAUL'S CHURCHYARD, LONDON.

HALLING, PEARCE, and STONE invite attention to a COSTUME designated THE NORFOLK, which they have arranged for this season as a specialty in utility and price. It will be found admirably adapted to country wear, being equally suitable for walking and driving, as also for yachting and travelling. It is warm, comfortable, and convenient, and capable of resisting ordinary autumn and winter weather without the encumbrance of wraps. The price of the "Norfolk Costume" is 4s. 6d., and it is made in bronze, myrtle, brown, two shades of navy blue, and black.
 Waterloo House, 14, Pall-mall East, and Cockspur-street.

SPECIAL INFORMATION.—New Pattern
 Black SILK COSTUMES, trimmed handsomely with velvet and other fashionable garnitures, at 6s. 6d. each Costume, including 3s. 6d. of Silk for making a Bodice.

SPECIAL INFORMATION.—FASHIONS for AUTUMN.—Messrs. JAY have received from Paris some beautiful specimens of French art and ingenuity, in a variety of Mantles so diversified in style, texture, and material as almost to constitute a new class in lady's costume.

BLACK SILKS, manufactured by Messrs.
 Bonnet, of Lyons.—These Silks are SOLD on most advantageous terms by Messrs. JAY, and silks manufactured by Messrs. Bonnet can be more fully relied upon for wear than any other description of Black Silks.

SEALSKIN and FUR-LINED MANTLES.
 Purchasers may rest assured that they have, by buying early, the first choice of the best furs and patterns, and can now get them at a Cheaper Cost at JAY'S.
 THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
 Regent-street, W.

BLACK SILKS EXTRAORDINARY.
 10,000 yards of Highest Lyons Black Silks. The cheapest ever offered, 1s. 11d., 2s. 11d., 3s. 11d., 4s. 11d., and 6s. 11d. yard. Patterns free. BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

SILKS—SILKS—SILKS.
 The cheapest and best Black, Coloured, Fancy, and Japanese Plain and Figured Silks, from 2s. 6d. Full Dress. Patterns free. BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

NOTICE.—Engravings Free.—Ladies' height of Fashion in Paletots, Ulsters, Jackets, Cloaks, and Costumes viz.: Paletots, from 21s.; Ulsters, 11s. 6d.; the Acme Jacket, 18s. 6d.; the Marvel Costume, 22s. 6d.; also Costume Jackets and other Made-Up Articles at the lowest remunerative prices. BAKER and CRISP'S, Regent-street, London.

SERGES! SERGES!
 Patterns post-free. All the New Colours and Makes in Wool Serges, from 6d. per yard. Patterns free. BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

AUTUMN DRESS FABRICS.
 All the New Snowflake Tweeds, Camelhair Cloths, Foulle Serges, Cashmere, Veilings, Twilled Flannels, Batiste, and other new fabrics, in all the latest styles. Satin Cloths, Saxony Wools (very soft), satin Cloth Skirtings, and all other New Costume Cloths, from 6d. to 2s. 6d. yard. Patterns free. BAKER and CRISP.

HIMALAYAN and FRENCH
CASHMERE and MERINOS.
 1000 pieces, consisting of all the New and Useful Colours for Autumn Wear, also all the Fine Light Colours for Walking, Dinner, or Wedding Costumes, from 12s. 6d. Full Dress. Patterns free.—198, Regent-street.

SPECIALITY.—VELVETEENS EXTRAORDINARY.
 The Rich Lyons Joulekin Silk Velveteens in Black, from 17s. 6d. Dress. In all the New Colours, from 2s. 11d. the yard. Patterns free. BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

A BEAUTIFUL COMPLEXION, with soft and lustrous skin, also Teeth of pearl-like whiteness, and fragrant Breath, assured by using DR. DURAND'S HEALTH SOAP and DENTIFRICE. 6d. per Tablet, 6s. per box of 12.—MARTIN and CO., 3, Paradise-road, London, S.W.; or of any Chemist.

SHIRTS.—FORD'S EUREKA.—"The most perfect fitting made."—Observer. Gentlemen desirous of purchasing shirts of the best quality should try Ford's Eureka. 30s., 40s., 50s., half dozen.

ÆGIDIUS.—A New ELASTIC OVER-
 SHIRT, as warm as wool, as soft as silk. It will entirely dispense with the ever-shaking coloured flannel. 13s. 6d. to 15s. 6d. each. Patterns of material and self-measure free by post.—FORD and CO., 41 and 43, Foulney, London.

HENRY GLAVE'S
 NEW SILK PATTERNS are now ready. The Princess Black silk, at 4s. 6d. make of The Princess Black silk, at 6s. 6d. extreme The Princess Black silk, at 8s. 6d. richness. BLACK SILKS, 1s. 6d. to 10s. 6d. the yard. The Queen's Black silk, at 7s. 11d. superb The Queen's Black silk, at 8s. 11d. goods and The Queen's Black silk, at 9s. 11d. elegant wear. A special Parcel of Coloured silks, 2s. 11d. a yard. Coloured Gros Grain silks, 2s. 11d., 3s. 11d., 4s. 11d., and 5s. 11d. the yard. Floral Silks for Trimmings, 2s. 6d. Japanese Figures, 1s. 3d. The Velvet and Velveteen Stock is now complete. A special Lot of Cashmere Velveteens, 1s. 11d., and Colours at 2s. 10d. a yard. 624, 535, 638, and 637, New Oxford-street.

HENRY GLAVE'S
 GRAND EXHIBITION OF COSTUMES. At the Grand Autumn Exhibition and Costume Contest just concluded at the Alexandra Palace we exhibited upwards of Fifty very superior Ladies' and Children's French Model Costumes, and many new things in Mantles, Jackets, Bonnets, &c., which obtained 30 prizes and many honourable mentions for style and cheapness. Patterns of material, Photographs, Instructions for Self-Measurement, and other particulars, sent post-free. 624, 635, 638, and 637, New Oxford-street.

MADAME ELLIOT'S Stylish PALETOTS.
 Mantles, Jackets, from 3s., trimmed fur, and also the new clear de lune trimming. Also, very stylish Princess Dresses and Polonaises, beautiful quality Black Cashmere, from 42s.; elegant Bonnets and Hats, from 18s. 6d.; specialty in French Corsets, from 10s. 6d. Madame E. especially recommends the Curves Corset, with Jean d'Arc Belt, wonderfully adapted for ladies inclined to embonpoint. Price from 21s. to 42s. To prevent delay and inconvenience send size of waist and post-office order to 8, Great Portland-street (four doors from Oxford-street).

"WEAR-RESISTING" (Regis.)
BOYS' SUITS.
SAMUEL BROTHERS.
 Suit for a Boy 5 ft. 8 in. in height, O Class, 21s.; D Class, 31s. Prices varying according to height. Patterns, &c., post-free. SAMUEL BROTHERS, 55 and 57, Ludgate-hill.

WOOLLEN CLOTHS.—Waterproof
 Tweeds, Matelasse Cloths, Sealskins, Fur Boaters, and other materials for Ladies' Jackets; also every kind of Woolen Goods for Gentlemen's and Boys' wear. C. MEKING and CO., Woolen Warehouse, 111 and 112, Abchurch-lane, Holborn-circus, London.

TRAVELLING BAGS.
 Write for their "Catalogue (Illustrated)." MAPPIN and WEBB, 76, 77, & 78, OXFORD-STREET, } London. W.: 2, QUEEN VICTORIA-STREET, CITY.

ROUND SHOULDERS and STOOPING
 HABITS Cured by DR. CHANDLER'S CHEST-EXPANDING BRACE for both sexes. It assists growth, and produces a handsome figure. 10s. 6d. each.—22, Berners-st. Illustrations sent.

LADIES' ELASTIC SUPPORTING
 BANDS for use before and after Accomplishment. Instructions for measurement and prices on application to POPE and PLANTE, 4, Waterloo-place, Pall-mall, London.

ELECTRICITY IS LIFE.
PULVERMACHERS' "GALVANISM,"
 NATURE'S CHIEF RESTORER OF EXHAUSTED VITAL ENERGY. In this Pamphlet the most reliable proofs are given of the vast and wonderful curative powers of Pulvermacher's Patent Galvanic Chain Bands, Belts, &c., in Rheumatic, Nervous, and Functional Disorders. Sent post-free for three stamps, on application to J. L. PULVERMACHERS' GALVANIC ESTABLISHMENT, 126, REGENT-STREET, LONDON, W.

MUSICAL-BOX DÉPÔTS, 56, Cheapside, and 22, Ludgate-hill, London.—Nicole's celebrated Musical Boxes, playing best secular and sacred music. Prices, 21s. to £28. 8s. 6d. Boxes from 18s. to 25s. Largest Stock in London. Catalogue gratis and post-free. Apply to WALKER & McCULLOCH, as above.

MAPLE and CO.,
145, TOTTENHAM-COURT-ROAD,
LONDON, MANUFACTURERS
of
FIRST-CLASS
FURNITURE.

FURNITURE. FURNITURE.
FURNITURE. FURNITURE.
NEW ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE
 POST-FREE.

FURNITURE.—MAPLE & CO.—Families who study economy with dignity and elegance should visit this establishment before giving their orders. A House of any size furnished complete from stock in three days. An illustrated Catalogue post-free. 145, 146, 147, 148, and 149, Tottenham-court-road, London.

MAPLE and CO.
145, TOTTENHAM-COURT-ROAD,
IMPORTER of FOREIGN CARPETS.

THE LARGEST STOCK of
ORIENTAL CARPETS IN EUROPE.
PERSIAN and TURKISH CARPETS.

OVER 2000 DAGHESTAN and
BOVENACK CARPETS just received from Constantinople. These goods have been bought by agents especially dispatched by Messrs. MAPLE and CO., for cash, and are of great rarity, some being very handsome old prayer rugs, which have been made over 100 years. The prices are wonderfully low; in fact, one third of that usually asked for these carpets. 145, 146, 147, Tottenham-court-road, London.

JOHN MORTLOCK
 begs to call attention to the
"EVERY-DAY" DINNER SERVICES,
 complete for 12 Persons, £4 15s.
 Colours are India-China, &c.
 The Pottery is of the best quality, and is made at 30 and 31, Orchard-street, Portman-square, W.

GARDNERS' TOUGHENED GLASS and INSTRUCTIBLE DINNER WARE, the glass direct from De la Bache's Manufactory. Wholesale Price-Liste free on application.—Gardners', Glass and China Manufacturers, 423 and 424, West Strand, Charing-cross.

GARDNERS' NEW DINNER SERVICES in price, complete for 12 persons:—
 The Osborne, in pink or green £3 5 0
 The Glasgow, in all colours 3 15 0
 The Bramble, in all colours 4 4 0
 The One Thousand and Two 5 5 0
 The One Thousand and Two A 5 5 0
 The Japanese Bamboo 5 5 0
 Colours of Drawings post-free.—GARDNERS', Glass and China Manufacturers, 423 and 424, West Strand, Charing-cross.

DEANE and CO.'S London KITCHENERS.
 Deane and Co.'s manufactory, supply, and fix complete. Cooking Apparatus, Kitchens, Baths, Hot-Water Circulation, Bath Fittings, Gas-Lighting Stoves, &c. Estimates free. London Pattern London Pattern Farnley's (Cheap Close Fire, Open Fire, Kitcheners, 4 ft. .. £13 10 0 4 ft. 6 in. £16 10 0 5 ft. 0 in. £19 0 0 5 ft. 6 in. £21 0 0 6 ft. 0 in. £23 0 0 6 ft. 6 in. £25 0 0 7 ft. 0 in. £27 0 0 7 ft. 6 in. £29 0 0 8 ft. 0 in. £31 0 0 8 ft. 6 in. £33 0 0 9 ft. 0 in. £35 0 0 9 ft. 6 in. £37 0 0 10 ft. 0 in. £39 0 0 10 ft. 6 in. £41 0 0 11 ft. 0 in. £43 0 0 11 ft. 6 in. £45 0 0 12 ft. 0 in. £47 0 0 12 ft. 6 in. £49 0 0 13 ft. 0 in. £51 0 0 13 ft. 6 in. £53 0 0 14 ft. 0 in. £55 0 0 14 ft. 6 in. £57 0 0 15 ft. 0 in. £59 0 0 15 ft. 6 in. £61 0 0 16 ft. 0 in. £63 0 0 16 ft. 6 in. £65 0 0 17 ft. 0 in. £67 0 0 17 ft. 6 in. £69 0 0 18 ft. 0 in. £71 0 0 18 ft. 6 in. £73 0 0 19 ft. 0 in. £75 0 0 19 ft. 6 in. £77 0 0 20 ft. 0 in. £79 0 0 20 ft. 6 in. £81 0 0 21 ft. 0 in. £83 0 0 21 ft. 6 in. £85 0 0 22 ft. 0 in. £87 0 0 22 ft. 6 in. £89 0 0 23 ft. 0 in. £91 0 0 23 ft. 6 in. £93 0 0 24 ft. 0 in. £95 0 0 24 ft. 6 in. £97 0 0 25 ft. 0 in. £99 0 0 25 ft. 6 in. £101 0 0 26 ft. 0 in. £103 0 0 26 ft. 6 in. £105 0 0 27 ft. 0 in. £107 0 0 27 ft. 6 in. £109 0 0 28 ft. 0 in. £111 0 0 28 ft. 6 in. £113 0 0 29 ft. 0 in. £115 0 0 29 ft. 6 in. £117 0 0 30 ft. 0 in. £119 0 0 30 ft. 6 in. £121 0 0 31 ft. 0 in. £123 0 0 31 ft. 6 in. £125 0 0 32 ft. 0 in. £127 0 0 32 ft. 6 in. £129 0 0 33 ft. 0 in. £131 0 0 33 ft. 6 in. £133 0 0 34 ft. 0 in. £135 0 0 34 ft. 6 in. £137 0 0 35 ft. 0 in. £139 0 0 35 ft. 6 in. £141 0 0 36 ft. 0 in. £143 0 0 36 ft. 6 in. £145 0 0 37 ft. 0 in. £147 0 0 37 ft. 6 in. £149 0 0 38 ft. 0 in. £151 0 0 38 ft. 6 in. £153 0 0 39 ft. 0 in. £155 0 0 39 ft. 6 in. £157 0 0 40 ft. 0 in. £159 0 0 40 ft. 6 in. £161 0 0 41 ft. 0 in. £163 0 0 41 ft. 6 in. £165 0 0 42 ft. 0 in. £167 0 0 42 ft. 6 in. £169 0 0 43 ft. 0 in. £171 0 0 43 ft. 6 in. £173 0 0 44 ft. 0 in. £175 0 0 44 ft. 6 in. £177 0 0 45 ft. 0 in. £179 0 0 45 ft. 6 in. £181 0 0 46 ft. 0 in. £183 0 0 46 ft. 6 in. £185 0 0 47 ft. 0 in. £187 0 0 47 ft. 6 in. £189 0 0 48 ft. 0 in. £191 0 0 48 ft. 6 in. £193 0 0 49 ft. 0 in. £195 0 0 49 ft. 6 in. £197 0 0 50 ft. 0 in. £199 0 0 50 ft. 6 in. £201 0 0 51 ft. 0 in. £203 0 0 51 ft. 6 in. £205 0 0 52 ft. 0 in. £207 0 0 52 ft. 6 in. £209 0 0 53 ft. 0 in. £211 0 0 53 ft. 6 in. £213 0 0 54 ft. 0 in. £215 0 0 54 ft. 6 in. £217 0 0 55 ft. 0 in. £219 0 0 55 ft. 6 in. £221 0 0 56 ft. 0 in. £223 0 0 56 ft. 6 in. £225 0 0 57 ft. 0 in. £227 0 0 57 ft. 6 in. £229 0 0 58 ft. 0 in. £231 0 0 58 ft. 6 in. £233 0 0 59 ft. 0 in. £235 0 0 59 ft. 6 in. £237 0 0 60 ft. 0 in. £239 0 0 60 ft. 6 in. £241 0 0 61 ft. 0 in. £243 0 0 61 ft. 6 in. £245 0 0 62 ft. 0 in. £247 0 0 62 ft. 6 in. £249 0 0 63 ft. 0 in. £251 0 0 63 ft. 6 in. £253 0 0 64 ft. 0 in. £255 0 0 64 ft. 6 in. £257 0 0 65 ft. 0 in. £259 0 0 65 ft. 6 in. £261 0 0 66 ft. 0 in. £263 0 0 66 ft. 6 in. £265 0 0 67 ft. 0 in. £267 0 0 67 ft. 6 in. £269 0 0 68 ft. 0 in. £271 0 0 68 ft. 6 in. £273 0 0 69 ft. 0 in. £275 0 0 69 ft. 6 in. £277 0 0 70 ft. 0 in. £279 0 0 70 ft. 6 in. £281 0 0 71 ft. 0 in. £283 0 0 71 ft. 6 in. £285 0 0 72 ft. 0 in. £287 0 0 72 ft. 6 in. £289 0 0 73 ft. 0 in. £291 0 0 73 ft. 6 in. £293 0 0 74 ft. 0 in. £295 0 0 74 ft. 6 in. £297 0 0 75 ft. 0 in. £299 0 0 75 ft. 6 in. £301 0 0 76 ft. 0 in. £303 0 0 76 ft. 6 in. £305 0 0 77 ft. 0 in. £307 0 0 77 ft. 6 in. £309 0 0 78 ft. 0 in. £311 0 0 78 ft. 6 in. £313 0 0 79 ft. 0 in. £315 0 0 79 ft. 6 in. £317 0 0 80 ft. 0 in. £319 0 0 80 ft. 6 in. £321 0 0 81 ft. 0 in. £323 0 0 81 ft. 6 in. £325 0 0 82 ft. 0 in. £327 0 0 82 ft. 6 in. £329 0 0 83 ft. 0 in. £331 0 0 83 ft. 6 in. £333 0 0 84 ft. 0 in. £335 0 0 84 ft. 6 in. £337 0 0 85 ft. 0 in. £339 0 0 85 ft. 6 in. £341 0 0 86 ft. 0 in. £343 0 0 86 ft. 6 in. £345 0 0 87 ft. 0 in. £347 0 0 87 ft. 6 in. £349 0 0 88 ft. 0 in. £351 0 0 88 ft. 6 in. £353 0 0 89 ft. 0 in. £355 0 0 89 ft. 6 in. £357 0 0 90 ft. 0 in. £359 0 0 90 ft. 6 in. £361 0 0 91 ft. 0 in. £363 0 0 91 ft. 6 in. £365 0 0 92 ft. 0 in. £367 0 0 92 ft. 6 in. £369 0 0 93 ft. 0 in. £371 0 0 93 ft. 6 in. £373 0 0 94 ft. 0 in. £375 0 0 94 ft. 6 in. £377 0 0 95 ft. 0 in. £379 0 0 95 ft. 6 in. £381 0 0 96 ft. 0 in. £383 0 0 96 ft. 6 in. £385 0 0 97 ft. 0 in. £387 0 0 97 ft. 6 in. £389 0 0 98 ft. 0 in. £391 0 0 98 ft. 6 in. £393 0 0 99 ft. 0 in. £395 0 0 99 ft. 6 in. £397 0 0 100 ft. 0 in. £399 0 0 100 ft. 6 in. £401 0 0 101 ft. 0 in. £403 0 0 101 ft. 6 in. £405 0 0 102 ft. 0 in. £407 0 0 102 ft. 6 in. £409 0 0 103 ft. 0 in. £411 0 0 103 ft. 6 in. £413 0 0 104 ft. 0 in. £415 0 0 104 ft. 6 in. £417 0 0 105 ft. 0 in. £419 0 0 105 ft. 6 in. £421 0 0 106 ft. 0 in. £423 0 0 106 ft. 6 in. £425 0 0 107 ft. 0 in. £427 0 0 107 ft. 6 in. £429 0 0 108 ft. 0 in. £431 0 0 108 ft. 6 in. £433 0 0 109 ft. 0 in. £435 0 0 109 ft. 6 in. £437 0 0 110 ft. 0 in. £439 0 0 110 ft. 6 in. £441 0 0 111 ft. 0 in. £443 0 0 111 ft. 6 in. £445 0 0 112 ft. 0 in. £447 0 0 112 ft. 6 in. £449 0 0 113 ft. 0 in. £451 0 0 113 ft. 6 in. £453 0 0 114 ft. 0 in. £455 0 0 114 ft. 6 in. £457 0 0 115 ft. 0 in. £459 0 0 115 ft. 6 in. £461 0 0 116 ft. 0 in. £463 0 0 116 ft. 6 in. £465 0 0 117 ft. 0 in. £467 0 0 117 ft. 6 in. £469 0 0 118 ft. 0 in. £471 0 0 118 ft. 6 in. £473 0 0 119 ft. 0 in. £475 0 0 119 ft. 6 in. £477 0 0 120 ft. 0 in. £479 0 0 120 ft. 6 in. £481 0 0 121 ft. 0 in. £483 0 0 121 ft. 6 in. £485 0 0 122 ft. 0 in. £487 0 0 122 ft. 6 in. £489 0 0 123 ft. 0 in. £491 0 0 123 ft. 6 in. £493 0 0 124 ft. 0 in. £495 0 0 124 ft. 6 in. £497 0 0 125 ft. 0 in. £499 0 0 125 ft. 6 in. £501 0 0 126 ft. 0 in. £503 0 0 126 ft. 6 in. £505 0 0 127 ft. 0 in. £507 0 0 127 ft. 6 in. £509 0 0 128 ft. 0 in. £511 0 0 128 ft. 6 in. £513 0 0 129 ft. 0 in. £515 0 0 129 ft. 6 in. £517 0 0 130 ft. 0 in. £519 0 0 130 ft. 6 in. £521 0 0 131 ft. 0 in. £523 0 0 131 ft. 6 in. £525 0 0 132

NEW MUSIC.

CHRISTMAS NUMBER OF CHAPPELL'S MUSICAL MAGAZINE, containing the following Popular Dance Music:—
 Trial by Jury Lancers Charles D'Albert.
 Constantine Quadrille Charles D'Albert.
 Die Flodermans Waltz Johann Strauss.
 Les Lointains Waltz Emile Waldteufel.
 Maiden's Dream Waltz Edward Hoffman.
 The Schomberg Galop Charles D'Albert.
 Florentia Polka Charles D'Albert.
 Pizzicato Polka J. and J. Strauss.
 Forget-me-not Galop A. Hecker.
 And a New Quadrille.

MOLLIE DARLING, by CHAS. D'ALBERT.
 Price One Shilling; post-free, 1s. 2d.
 CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

ARTHUR SULLIVAN'S NEW SONG.
THE DISTANT SHORE. New Song.
 By ARTHUR SULLIVAN. Sung by Mr. Edward Lloyd during his provincial tour. Price (in E flat, F, or G), 2s. net.
 CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE ROWAN TREE, New Song, by
 M. W. BALFE, will be sung by Madame Antoinette Sterling during her tour in the provinces. Price 2s. net.
 CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

REMINISCENCES OF ENGLAND,
 IRELAND, and SCOTLAND.—Selections of National Airs, as played by all the Military Bands in Her Majesty's service. Arranged for the Violin by FRED GODFREY, B.M. Coldstream Guards. Price 2s. each net.
 CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

MARCH OF THE PASHAS, for the Pianoforte. By JOHN PRIDHAM. Beautifully illustrated with Portraits of Mehmet Ali, Suliman Pasha, and Robert Pasha. Price, post-free, 2s. net.
 CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE FANFARE POLKA, by CHARLES
 D'ALBERT. Illustrated. 1s. 6d. net; Orchestra, 2s.; Septet, 2s.
 CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHARLES D'ALBERT'S NEW DANCE
 MUSIC.
SWEETHEARTS. Waltz on Arthur Sullivan's popular Song. "One of the best waltzes ever written by the Net. above favourite Composer." 2 0
TRIAL BY JURY LANCERS, on Airs from Sullivan's popular Work 2 0
TRIAL BY JURY QUADRILLE 2 0
TRIAL BY JURY WALTZ 2 0
TRIAL BY JURY POLKA 2 0
RINK GALOP 1 6
 The above, arranged for Full Orchestra, 2s.; Septet, 2s. each. N.B. A Complete List of M. D'Albert's Popular Dance Music will be sent on application to CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S NEW SONGS.
SWEETHEARTS (sung by Mr. Edward Lloyd) 2s. net.
THOU'ST PASTORAL HENCE, (sung by Mr. Santley) 2s. net.
IF (sung by B. Metcalf) 2s. net.
THE CAPTIVE SKYLARK 2s. net.
THE SKYLARK PRELUDE 2s. net.
BOOKS AND FLOWERS 2s. net.
OH! FOR THY WINGS 2s. net.
THE EVERLASTING SHORE 2s. net.
THE LAST LETTER 2s. net.
WHEN THOU ART NIGH 2s. net.
I'LL SING THREE SONGS OF
ADAM 2s. net.
THE FATE OF A ROSE 2s. net.
MY LOVER ACROSS THE
BLUE SEA 2s. net.
THE DAY MY LOVE WENT
MAYING 2s. net.
NOT FAR AWAY 2s. net.
 CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

TRIAL BY JURY. Dramatic Cantata.
 Written by W. S. Gilbert. Composed by ARTHUR SULLIVAN. Now being performed with immense success at the Strand Theatre (Complete for Voice and Piano). 2s. 6d. net. TRIAL BY JURY. Cantata Solo. 2s. 6d. net.
THE JUDGE'S SONG. 2s. net.
THE LOVE-SICK BOY. Defendant's Song. 1s. 6d. net.
KUHN'S FANTASIA. 2s. net.
SMALLWOOD'S FANTASIA (easy). 1s. 6d. net.
 CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

L'ORGANISTE PRATIQUE.
 240 Easy Pieces for Organ or Harmonium, by J. LEYBACH. In 2 vols., price 6s. each net; or in right parts, each 2s. net. The above will supply a want long by amateur performers on the organ or harmonium, as all the pieces are very pretty without being difficult.
 CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S THREE-YEARS' SYSTEM OF HIRE.

PIANOFORTES of every description by all the most celebrated makers from Two Guinea's a Quarter.

HARMONIUMS by ALEXANDRE, from One Pound Five Shillings per Quarter.

SECOND-HAND PIANOFORTES, at immense Reductions for Cash, or on the Three-Years' System.

CHAPPELL'S ENGLISH 20-GUINEA or SCHOOL-ROOM PIANOFORTE, with Check Action, in Canadian Walnut or Mahogany. This instrument combines good quality, tone and excellence of workmanship. Has a lovely touch, and is capable of enduring hard practice without going out of order. Owing to its size, it is admirably adapted for the boudoir or any room where space is an object. In Solid Oak or White Ash, 22s.; Rosewood or Walnut Case, 27s. 6d.
 CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

ASHDOWN and PARRY'S CATALOGUES
 of MUSIC.
 PART 1. PIANO, ORGAN, HARMONIUM.
 PART 2. VOCAL.
 PART 3. HARP, CONCERTINA.
 PART 4. VIOLIN, VIOLA, CELLO, ORCHESTRA, &c.
 PART 5. FLUTE, CORNET, CLARINET, &c.
 Sent gratis and post-free to any part of the world.
 Ashdown and Parry, Hanover-square, London.

THE LORD BRINGS BACK HIS OWN.
 New Sacred Song. By Sir JULIUS HENEDICT. Price 4s. Ashdown and Parry, Hanover-square.

MARRIOTT'S NAVAL QUADRILLE.
 A new and extremely effective Set on popular Nautical Melodies. Price 4s.
 London: Ashdown and Parry.

MARRIOTT'S MILITARY QUADRILLE.
 Just published. A remarkably attractive and vigorous Set, on popular martial Airs. Price 4s.
 London: Ashdown and Parry.

CHRISTMAS TIME. A New Set of Lancers Quadrilles on old English Melodies. By W. G. LEVEY.
 "Well-chosen tunes, and excellent for dancing."
 London: Ashdown and Parry, Hanover-square.

ASHDOWN and PARRY'S MUSICAL
 PUBLICATIONS are to be had of every Musician and Bookseller in Great Britain, Ireland, the Colonies, and India, or will be sent direct post-free at half the market price (except works and cheap vocal part-music excepted) to any part of the world on receipt of remittance or satisfactory reference.
 London: Ashdown and Parry, Hanover-square.

NEW AND POPULAR SONGS.
ALL FOR HER. No. 1 sop., No. 2 contralto. A. S. GATTY. MAIDEN MAY. Two keys. A. S. GATTY. Sung by Madame Cava Ashdown.
BEFORE THE STORM. Baritone. A. S. GATTY. MEHA. No. 1 tenor, No. 2 baritone. V. CAPOUL. Sung by M. Capoul.
BE MY LOVE. Baritone. G. FOX. Sung by Wadmore.
MY TAB. No. 1 contralto, No. 2 mezzo-sop. JULIA WOLFF.
LITTLE NANNIE. Soprano. JULIA WOLFF. Sung by Mrs. Ogden.
THE TROOPER'S DREAM. Baritone. JULIA WOLFF. Post-free, 24 stamps each.
 KNOX and Sons, 19, Holles-street, W.

NEW MUSIC.

Price 2s. 6d. each volume, paper: 4s., cloth, gilt edges.
THE ROYAL SONG-BOOKS.
RUBINSTEIN'S 20 SONGS.
RUBINSTEIN'S 12 VOCAL DUETS.
BEETHOVEN'S 78 SONGS.
MENDLSOHN'S 60 SONGS.
SCHUMANN'S 75 SONGS.
 The above have all German and English words.
THE SONGS OF GERMANY (100 Volkslieder).
THE SONGS OF ENGLAND (100 Songs).
THE SONGS OF SCOTLAND (100 Songs).
THE SONGS OF IRELAND (100 Songs).
THE SONGS OF WALES (60 Songs).
 The above form a complete Collection of National Songs.
SACRED SONGS, ANCIENT AND MODERN (100 Songs).
HUMOROUS SONGS (75 New and Old Songs).
CHOICE DUETS FOR LADIES' VOICES (24 Duets).
 Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street, London; and all Music-sellers and Booksellers.

Price One Shilling each.
BOOSEY'S MUSICAL INSTRUCTORS.
 Dr. CALLOOT'S GRAMMAR OF MUSIC.
 W. T. BEST'S FIRST ORGAN BOOK.
 J. W. ELLIOT'S FIRST HARMONIUM TUTOR.
 HENNING'S FIRST BOOK FOR THE VIOLIN.
 CASE'S VIOLIN TUTOR.
 BRINLEY RICHARDS' FIRST LESSONS FOR THE PIANO.
 GEORGE MONTAGU'S POPULAR PIANOFORTE TUTOR.
 DR. SPARE'S FIRST BOOK OF CHORAL SINGING.
 BALFE'S BALLAD TUTOR.
 VACCAR'S SINGING METHOD, without Solfege.
 HATTON'S SINGING TUTOR FOR LADIES' VOICES.
 HATTON'S SINGING TUTOR FOR MEN'S VOICES.
 KAPPEY'S CLARINET TUTOR.
 EDWARD HOWELL'S FIRST BOOK FOR THE VIOLONCELLO.
 R. S. PEARCE'S FLUTE TUTOR.
 STANTON JONES'S CORNET TUTOR.
 CASE'S ENGLISH CONCERTINA TUTOR.
 Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street, W.

Price 1s. each Book.
BOOSEY'S CABINET CLASSICS.
 26. RUBINSTEIN'S ALBUM (11 best Pieces). 1s.
 27. RUBINSTEIN'S SIX STUDIES. 1s.
 28. RUBINSTEIN'S SIX PRELUDES. 1s.
 29. BRAHMS' ALBUM (including 16 waltzes). 1s.
 30. RAFF'S ALBUM (6 best pieces). 1s.
 31. HELLER'S ALBUM (12 pieces). 1s.
 32. HELLER'S PETIT ALBUM (10 pieces). 1s.
 33. HELLER'S PROMENADES D'UN SOLITAIRE. 1s.
 34. HELLER'S TWENTY-FOUR STUDIES. 1s.
 35. SCHUMANN'S KINDERSCENEN, &c. 1s.
 36. SCHUMANN'S SECOND ALBUM FOR YOUTH. 1s.
 37. SCHUMANN'S THIRD ALBUM FOR YOUTH. 1s.
 38. CHOPIN'S WALTZES, complete. 1s.
 39. CHOPIN'S NOCTURNES, complete. 1s.
 40. CHOPIN'S TWENTY-FIVE PRELUDES. 1s.
 41. FIELD'S TEN NOCTURNES (all the best). 1s.
 42-55. MENDELSSOHN'S SONGS WITHOUT WORDS (Six sets).
 114. BEETHOVEN'S WALTZ ALBUM (45 waltzes).
 Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

BOOSEY'S SHILLING BALLAD BOOKS,
 in the MUSICAL CABINET.
 Santley's 10 New Songs. A. S. GATTY'S 12 Ballads.
 Santley and Foll's 22 Songs. Clara's 12 Ballads.
 Arthur Sullivan's 10 Songs. Virginia Gabriel's 10 Songs.
 Hatton's 10 New Songs. Dolores's 12 Songs.
 Longfellow and Balfe's 10 Songs. Gounod's 10 Songs.
 Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

Price 1s. each.
BOOSEY'S CABINET OPERAS for PIANOFORTE Solo.
 Ballo in Maschera. Lohegrin (2s.).
 Barbiere. Lucia.
 Brigands. Lucresia Borgia.
 Capri. Madama Angot.
 Dame Blanche. Martha.
 Dinorah (2s.). Masanillo.
 Domino Noir. Norma.
 Don Juan. Nozze di Figaro.
 Don Pasquale. Ozeron.
 Ernani. Pricholo.
 Fanciulla del Telegi. Rigoletto.
 Figlia del Reggimento. Robert le Diable.
 Flauto Magico. Semiramide.
 Flying Dutchman (2s.). Sonnambula.
 Fra Diavolo. Tannhauser (2s.).
 Freischutz. Traviata.
 Genevieve de Brabant. Veuve Siciliennes (2s.).
 Huguenots (2s.). William Tell.
 Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

NEW SONGS.

THE KING'S HIGHWAY. MOLLOY'S
 last and best Song. Sung by Frederic everywhere with a double encore.—Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

AT LAST. By COWEN. Miss Anna
 Williams will sing "At Last" throughout Madame Trebelli's Tour, in October and November.
 Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

THE OLD SAILOR WIFE. BY MOLLOY.
 Sung by Madame Antoinette Sterling every night at Mr. Lloyd's Provincial Concerts.—Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

THE OLD-FASHIONED WAY. By
 Madame SAINTON-DOLBY. Sung by Mr. Edward Lloyd every night on his Tournee in October and November.
 Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

POPULAR SONGS.

SONGS by HAMILTON AIDÉ.
 Remember or Forget. The Fisher.
 Spanish Boat Song. Maid I Love is Six Years Old.
 Let me Dream of Happy Days. Brown Eyes, or Blue Eyes.
 Price 2s. each, net.—Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

SONGS by ALFRED SCOTT GATTY.
 Bothey Bay. One, Morning, oh! so early.
 Old Sweet Mary. The Departure.
 Hay is in the Mow. April.
 Price 2s. each, net.—Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

SONGS by ARTHUR SULLIVAN.
 The Lost Chord. Let me Dream Again.
 Living Poems. Sleep, my Love, Sleep.
 Golden Days. Looking Back.
 Price 2s. each, net.—Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

SONGS by F. H. COWEN.
 It was a Dream. Almost.
 Spinning. Marguerite.
 Price 2s. each, net.—Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

SONGS by DOLORES.
 Destiny. The Fairies.
 Clear and Cool. Seaweed.
 Price 2s. each, net.—Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

SONGS by PINSUTI.
 Still Waters Run Deep. As You Like It.
 All the World's a Stage.
 Price 2s. each, net.—Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

Price 2s. each, net.
SANTLEY'S POPULAR SONGS.
 LILLY. THE VAGABOND.
 FAIRY IS MY LOVE. THE YEOMAN'S WEDDING.
 Also SANTLEY'S NEW SONG-BOOK, in the MUSICAL CABINET (170), containing Ten Songs published in no other work. Price 1s.—Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

STRAUSS'S DANCE BOOKS in BOOSEY'S
 MUSICAL CABINET. Each Number beautifully illustrated in Colours, forming an elegant Gift-book. Price 1s.
 167. WEINER BLUT, DOCTRINE, Wein, Wein und Gessang.
 Ball Promessen, Lillen Kranze, and Feische Geister Waltzes.
 157. THREAND AND ONE NIGHTS, Telegram, and four other Waltzes.
 161. BEAUTIFUL DANUBE, Good Old Times, Wiener Kinder, and three other Waltzes.
 Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

NANCY LEE WALTZ. On the Celebrated
 Song. The Waltz of the Season.

NANCY LEE WALTZ. Price 2s. net.
 Solo and Duet; Septet; Orchestra, 2s.
 Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

New Cantata for Amateur Societies.
THE SONG OF THE MONTHS. Cantata, by FRANCIS HOWELL, Composer of "The Land of Promise." Containing twelve numbers, illustrating the months of the year. Price 2s. 6d. complete. Separate parts for the chorus, price 6d. each. The band parts may also be had.
 Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

NEW MUSIC.

W. T. BEST'S FIRST ORGAN BOOK.
 Forty pages, music size. An Elementary and Practical Guide for Organ Students. This day, price 1s.
 Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

HANDY-BOOK FOR CHORAL SOCIETIES.
 By Dr. SPARE. Price 1s. A complete Guide for the Study and Practice of Part Music, including 125 Exercises, Part Songs, Rounds, &c. (66 pages).
 Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

THE CHORALIST. Twelve Anthems and Sacred Part-Songs by ARTHUR SULLIVAN have been added to this popular series, which now contains 224 Numbers, price One Penny each. Specimen for one stamp.
 Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

With fifteen Illustrations, price 2s. 6d.,
LILLIE'S FIRST MUSIC-BOOK. 64
 pages music size. "The most admirable tutor extant for the Pianoforte."—Herald.
 Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

Beautifully illustrated in Colours, price 1s.,
LILLIE'S SONG-BOOK. A complete
 Collection of Juvenile Vocal Music, containing many original words, in addition to several new songs composed expressly for this work.—Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

Ready this day,
THE CLANG VALSE (The Clang of the Wooden Shoe) on Molloy's popular Song. Arran by CHARLES GODFREY. Price 4s.; post-free, 4s. stamps. This charming Waltz will be performed for the first time in public by the Band of the Royal Horse Guards at the County Ball, Bury St. Edmunds, Oct. 25.
 London: METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, W.

Just published,
KING HENRY'S SONG. By ARTHUR
 SULLIVAN. Introduced in the revival of "Henry VIII."
 Price 4s. Half price.
 METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London.

Just published,
BEDOUIN LOVE SONG. Composed by
 CIBO PINSUTI. Sung by Signor Foll with great success. Price 4s.; post-free, 4s. stamps.
 London: METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, W.

Just published,
ACROSS THE FAR BLUE HILLS,
 MARIE. New Song. By JACQUES BLEUTHAL.
 Words by E. Weatherly. Price 4s.; post-free, 4s. stamps.
 London: METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, W.

THE FIRE KING.—THE PAST IS BUT
 A TROUBLED DREAM.—Song by Mr. Edward Lloyd. Also, TO ARMS! TO ARMS! War Song. Price 4s. each. Half price.—METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London.

SEA NYMPHS. The New Operetta. By
 LECOCQ (now being represented at the Folly Theatre). The Libretto (written by H. B. Farnie) and the Music complete, with all stage directions, published at 2s. 6d., post-free, in Metzler and Co.'s Edition of Comic Operas.
 METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

WHISPERING KISSES. The New Song.
 By E. JONAS (from the popular French play, "Bébé"). Is sung by Miss Violet Cameron in "The Crook" at the Folly Theatre with the greatest possible success, and is nightly encored. Post-free, 18 stamps.
 METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

SUNG BY MR. MARTON MCGUCKIN.
MINE OWN. A New Song, in C, E, and F. By H. GADSBY. Words by F. E. Weatherly. Price 4s.; post-free, half-price.
 METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

SUNG BY MADAME LIEBHART.
FAR FROM HOME. New Song. By
 G. B. ALLEN. Words by Edward Oxenford. Sung with the greatest success at Madame Liebhart's Concerts. Post-free, 18 stamps.
 METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

EDITH'S SONG. From Tennyson's
 "Harold." Set to Music by ODOARDO BARRI. Post-free, 24 stamps.
 METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

A WINTER'S TALE. From Tennyson's
 "Harold." "Two young lovers in wintry weather." Set to Music by ODOARDO BARRI. Post-free, 24 stamps.
 METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

WAR SONGS OF THE EAST. By
 H. B. FARNIE. In handsome cover, price 1s.; post-free, 1s. stamps.
 METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

LA SERENADE. Waltz. By METRA.
 Solo or Duet. Post-free, 24 stamps.
 METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

LA VAGUE. Waltz. By METRA.
 Solo or Duet. Post-free, 24 stamps.
 METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

W. SMALLWOOD'S NEW PIECES for PIANOFORTE. Illustrated Titlepages.
 CRYSTAL DEWDROPS.
 AVELETTE. Gondola Song.
 FAIRY DREAMS.
 Post-free, 18 stamps each.
 METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

MASON and HAMLIN'S ORGANS.
 Now ready.
 New Illustrated Book.
 Post-free.
 METZLER and Co., Sole Agents, Great Marlborough-street, W.

MASON and HAMLIN'S ORGANS.
 New Style 235. Nine Stops.
 Viola Dulce, Seraphine, &c.
 Price 28.
 METZLER and Co., Sole Agents, Great Marlborough-street, W.

MASON and HAMLIN'S ORGANS.
 New Style 312. Ten Stops.
 With Octave Coupler and Sub-Bass.
 Price 40s.
 METZLER and Co., Sole Agents, Great Marlborough-street, W.

THE BAND OF THE ROYAL HORSE
 GUARDS will perform the following Dance Music at the County Ball, Oct. 25, Bury St. Edmunds, under the direction of Mr. Charles Godfrey:
 The Clang Waltz (Molloy's popular Melodies). 4s.
 The Princess Toto Waltz. Godfrey. 4s.
 Roseline Waltz. Godfrey. 4s.
 Serenade Waltz. E. Metra. 4s.
 Sea Nymphs Quadrille. Godfrey. 4s.
 Royal Edinburgh Lancers. Godfrey. 4s.
 Garden Party Polka. Godfrey. 4s.
 METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London.

SECONDHAND PIANOS.—BOOSEY and
 CO. have a large Stock of Instruments by all the great Makers, which they offer, according to their custom on the close of the season, at greatly reduced prices. The majority of these Pianos have been hired for one season only, and are as good as new.—Sole address, 235, Regent-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S BRASS
 INSTRUMENTS FOR AMATEURS.
 THE DISTIN CORNET, from £3 10s.
 THE DISTIN CELEBRATED LIGHT VALVE CORNETS, 7 and 9 s., are the best Cornets manufactured.
 THE DISTIN MINATURE CORNET—A-PISTONS, 9 s.
 THE DISTIN BALLAD HORN in C, 9 s.
 THE DISTIN DRAG and POST HORNS and BAND INSTRUMENTS at all prices.
 THE DISTIN MONTHLY BRASS BAND JOURNAL, 10s. 6d. annum.
 The above instruments were exhibited by Boosey and Co., at the Philadelphia Exhibition, and were awarded a Prize Medal.
 "For power and good quality of tone, fine workmanship." Estimates for Bands of all sizes also illustrated and prices, to be had of the sole manufacturers, BOOSEY and CO., 235, Regent-street, London.

SPECIAL NOTICE.—On MONDAY and
 TUESDAY, OCT. 22 and 23, Messrs. OETZMANN and CO. will offer for SALE an immense Stock of CARPETS and RUGS of every description; also a quantity of BORDERED CARPET COVERS, just purchased for cash under special circumstances, and which will be sold off at prices much below their usual cost. Reduced Price-Lists, with size and description, will be sent post-free on application.—OETZMANN and CO., Complete House-Furnishers, 67 to 79, Hampstead-road (near Tottenham-court-road).

NOTICE.—The New IRIDESCENT
 GLASS.—This beautiful prismatic glass can now be obtained at OETZMANN and CO.'S in a great variety of articles, useful and ornamental. Also the best quality in De la Bastie's Tinted Glass.—OETZMANN and CO., Complete House-Furnishers, 67 to 79, HAMPSTEAD-ROAD (near Tottenham-court-road).

FURNISH THROUGHOUT.
OETZMANN & CO.,
 67, 69, 71, 73, 77 & 79,
 HAMPSTEAD-ROAD,
 NEAR TOTTENHAM-COURT-ROAD.

FURNISH THROUGHOUT.
 OETZMANN and CO., 67, 69, 71, 73, 77 and 79, Hampstead-road, near Tottenham-court-road. Cabinet Factory, All-iron Works, Brunswick-street; Bedding Factory, Eagle-place, London, N.W. Carpets, Furniture, Bedding, Drapery, Furnishings, Ironmongery, China, Glass, Paper-Hangings, Pictures, Bronzes, Clocks, &c., and every other requisite for completely furnishing a house throughout.

THE IMMENSE RANGE OF PREMISES
 formerly the EAGLE BREWERY having been REBUILT and ADDED to their SHOW-ROOMS, it is now one of the largest Furnishing Establishments in the world. Comparison of price and quality respectfully solicited before deciding elsewhere. OETZMANN and CO. are enabled to offer special advantages to Country Customers in delivery of Goods by their own large PANTHEONIC VANS, and fixing in position by competent persons. Descriptive Catalogue, the best Furnishing Guide extant, post-free.—OETZMANN and CO.

THE SANDRINGHAM EASY-CHAIR,
 full size, upholstered very soft and comfortable, suitable for any room, price 25s.; Lady's ditto, smaller size, 21s.; also the Sandringham Couch, upholstered very soft and comfortable, price 2 guineas. Everyone about to furnish should see these marvels of excellence and economy. Packed free and dispatched same day on receipt of order per post.—OETZMANN and CO.

DRAWING-ROOM SUITES.
 OETZMANN and CO.—Elegant Drawing-Room Suites, richly-carved Italian Walnut Wood, upholstered very soft and comfortable, in best Rep., consisting of a Couch, two Easy-Chairs, and six Chairs, price 15 guineas; ditto, very handsome design, upholstered in rich Pekinade, made and finished in superior style, 20 guineas; ditto, very elegant design, richly upholstered in finest satin, and finished in the best possible manner, 33 guineas. Also a variety of other Drawing-Room Suites, in Black and Gold, Early English, and other designs.
 OETZMANN and CO.

FURNITURE.
FURNITURE.
FURNITURE.
FURNITURE.

LINOLEUM.—OETZMANN and CO.
 LINOLEUM.—Warm, soft, carpet-like in appearance, and very durable. All the new PRIZE DESIGNS are now in Stock. A visit of inspection solicited. Prices reduced, those usually charged for this favourite floor covering. The Trade supplied.
 OETZMANN and CO.

TURKEY CARPETS.—CLEARANCE
 SALE.—OETZMANN and CO.—A quantity of Turkey, Indian, Persian, Jubbulpore, Masanipatan, Farahan, Khorasan, Serabend, Kaula, Ghionies, and Kashmir Carpets and Rugs, clearing out at greatly reduced prices, ranging from 15s. 6d. to 60 guineas. Detailed Price-List, with sizes and description, sent, post-free, on application. Prices will be found much below those usually charged for a quantity of Indian Rugs, 15s. 6d. each; some very handsome ditto at 35s. to 45s.—OETZMANN and CO.

EVERYONE SHOULD SEE the large,
 handsome AXMINSTER HEARTH RUGS that OETZMANN and CO. are now selling at 9s. 11d. each; usual price 15s. 6d. There is nothing sold that can be compared with these for quality and cheapness. An immense variety of designs and Colours to suit every pattern in Carpets. A visit of inspection solicited.—OETZMANN and CO.

ARTISTIC FURNISHING.—OETZMANN
 and CO. are introducing a variety of Elegant Persian and Indian Designs in Rugs and Mats, to meet the requirement for Artistic Furnishing, at moderate cost. Large Rugs (excellent copies of real Persian and Indian) from 10s. each. A visit of inspection solicited.—OETZMANN and CO.

DOWN QUILTS.—OETZMANN and CO.'S
 EIDER and ARCTIC DOWN QUILTS and CLOTHING combine the greatest amount of warmth attainable with the least possible weight, and are of the very best quality. Price-Lists post-free.—OETZMANN and CO.

VIEW of the COLLIERY.

BRINGING UP THE DEAD

IDENTIFICATION of the DEAD.

THE COLLIERY EXPLOSION AT WIGAN.

NEW MUSIC.

CHRISTMAS NUMBER OF CHAPPELL'S MUSICAL MAGAZINE, containing the following Popular Dance Music:—
 Trial by Jury Lancers Charles D'Albert.
 Constantinople Quadrille Charles D'Albert.
 Die Fledermaus Waltz Charles D'Albert.
 Les Lointains Waltz Charles D'Albert.
 Maiden's Dream Waltz Charles D'Albert.
 The Schomberg Galop Charles D'Albert.
 Floretta Polka Charles D'Albert.
 Pizzicato Polka Charles D'Albert.
 Forget-me-not Galop Charles D'Albert.
 And a New Quadrille.
MOLLIE DARLING, by CHAS. D'ALBERT.
 Price One Shilling; post-free, 1s. 2d.
 CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

ARTHUR SULLIVAN'S NEW SONG.
THE DISTANT SHORE. New Song.
 By ARTHUR SULLIVAN. Song by Mr. Edward Lloyd during his provincial tour. Price (in E flat, F, or G), 2s. net.
 CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE ROWAN TREE, New Song, by M. W. BALFE will be sung by Madame Antoinette Sterling during her tour in the provinces. Price 2s. net.
 CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

REMINISCENCES OF ENGLAND, (IRELAND, and SCOTLAND.—Selections of National Airs, as played by all the Military Bands in her Majesty's service. Arranged for the Piano by FRED GODFREY, B.M. Goldstream Guards. Price 2s. each net.
 CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

MARCH OF THE PASHAS, for the Piano. By JOHN FRIDMAN. Beautifully illustrated with Portraits of Mehmet Ali, Sulaiman Pasha, and Hadrat Pasha. Price, post-free, 2s. net.
 CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE FANFARE POLKA. By CHARLES D'ALBERT. Illustrated. 1s. 6d. net; Orchestra, 2s.; Septet, 3s.
 CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHARLES D'ALBERT'S NEW DANCE MUSIC.
SWEETHEARTS. Waltz on Arthur Sullivan's popular Song. "One of the last waltzes ever written by the Net. above favourite Composer." 2s. 0
TRIAL BY JURY LANCERS, on Airs from Sullivan's popular Work 2s. 0
TRIAL BY JURY QUADRILLE 2s. 0
TRIAL BY JURY WALTZ 2s. 0
TRIAL BY JURY POLKA 2s. 0
HINK GALOP 2s. 0
 The above, arranged for Full Orchestra, 3s. Septet, 2s. each.
 N.B. A complete List of M. D'Albert's Popular Dance Music will be sent on application to
 CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S NEW SONGS.
SWEETHEARTS (sung by Mr. Edward Lloyd) 2s. net.
THOU'ST PASSING HENCE 2s. net.
IF (sung by H. Medhurst) 2s. net.
THE CAPTIVE SKYLARK 2s. net.
THE SKYLARK FREE 2s. net.
BOOKS AND FLOWERS 2s. net.
OH! FOR THY WINGS 2s. net.
THE EVERLASTING SHORE 2s. net.
CHABLE SONG 2s. net.
WHEN THOU ART NIGH 2s. net.
I'LL SING THREE SONGS OF 2s. net.
ARABY 2s. net.
THE FATE OF A ROSE 2s. net.
MY LOVER ACROSS THE 2s. net.
BLUE SEA 2s. net.
THE DAY MY LOVE WENT 2s. net.
MAYING 2s. net.
NOT FAR AWAY 2s. net.
 CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

TRIAL BY JURY. Dramatic Cantata. Written by W. S. Gilbert. Composed by ARTHUR SULLIVAN. Now being performed with immense success at the Strand Theatre. Complete for Voice and Piano. 2s. 6d. net. TRIAL BY JURY. Piano-forte Solo. 2s. 6d. net.
THE JUNGLE SONG. 2s. net.
THE LOVE-SICK BOY. Defendant's Song. 1s. 6d. net.
KUHE'S FANTASIA. 2s. net.
SMALLWOOD'S FANTASIA (easy). 1s. 6d. net.
 CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

L'ORGANISTE PRATIQUE.
 240 Easy Pieces for Organ or Harmonium, by J. LEYBACH, in 2 vols., price 6s. each net; or in eight parts, each 2s. net. The above will supply a want long felt by amateur performers on the organ or harmonium, as all the pieces are very pretty without being difficult.
 CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S THREE-YEARS' SYSTEM OF HIRE.

PIANOFORTES of every description by all the most celebrated makers from Two Guinea's a Quarter.

HARMONIUMS by ALEXANDRE, from One Pound Five Shillings per Quarter.

SECOND-HAND PIANOFORTES, at immense Reductions for Cash, or on the Three-Years' System.

CHAPPELL'S ENGLISH 20-GUINEA OR SCHOOL-ROOM PIANOFORTE, with Check Action, in Canadian Walnut or Mahogany. This instrument combines good quality of tone and excellence of workmanship. Has a lovely touch, and is capable of enduring hard practice without going out of order. Owing to its size, it is admirably adapted for the boudoir or any room where space is an object. In Solid Oak or White Ash, 24 gs.; Rosewood or Walnut Case, 27 gs.
 50, New Bond-street.

ASHDOWN and PARRY'S CATALOGUES of MUSIC.
PART 1. PIANO, ORGAN, HARMONIUM.
PART 2. VOCAL.
PART 3. HARP, CONCERTINA.
PART 4. VIOLIN, VIOLONCELLO, ORCHESTRA, &c.
PART 5. PIANOFORTE, CLARINET, &c.
 Sent gratis and post-free to any part of the world.
 ASHDOWN and PARRY, Hanover-square, London.

THE LORD SKYLARK BACK HIS OWN.
 New Sacred Song. By Sir JULIUS BENEDICT. Price 2s. ASHDOWN and PARRY, Hanover-square.

MARRIOTT'S NAVAL QUADRILLE.
 A new and extremely effective Set on popular Nautical Melodies. Price 4s.
 London: ASHDOWN and PARRY.

MARRIOTT'S MILITARY QUADRILLE.
 Just published. A remarkably attractive and vigorous set, on popular martial airs. Price 4s.
 London: ASHDOWN and PARRY.

CHRISTMAS TIME. A New Set of Lancers Quadrilles on old English Melodies. By W. C. LEVEY.
 "Well-chosen tunes, and excellent for dancing."
 London: ASHDOWN and PARRY, Hanover-square.

ASHDOWN and PARRY'S MUSICAL PUBLICATIONS are to be had of every Musician and Bookseller in Great Britain, Ireland, the Colonies, and India, or will be sent direct post-free at half the marked price (bound works and cheap vocal parts excepted) to any part of the world on receipt of remittance or satisfactory reference.
 London: ASHDOWN and PARRY, Hanover-square.

NEW AND POPULAR SONGS.
ALL FOR HER. No. 1 sop., No. 2 contralto. A. S. GATTY. MAIDEN FAIR. Two keys. A. S. GATTY. Song by Madame Cave-Ashdon.
BEFORE THE STORM. Baritone. A. S. GATTY. MILHA. No. 1 tenor, No. 2 baritone. V. CAPOUL. Sung by M. Capoul.
BE MY LOVE. Baritone. G. FOX. Sung by Wadmore.
MY STAB. No. 1 contralto, No. 2 mezzo-sop. JULIA WOLF.
LITTLE NANNIE. Soprano. JULIA WOLF. Sung by Mrs. Osgood.
THE TROOPER'S DREAM. Baritone. JULIA WOLF. Price 2s. net.
 ASHDOWN and PARRY, 19, Holles-street, W.

NEW MUSIC.

THE ROYAL SONG-BOOKS.
 Price 2s. 6d. each volume, paper; 4s. cloth, gilt edges.
RUBINSTEIN'S 60 SONGS.
RUBINSTEIN'S 18 VOCELS DUETS.
BEETHOVEN'S 78 SONGS.
MEYER'S 78 SONGS.
SCHUMANN'S 78 SONGS.
THE SONGS OF GERMANY (100 Volkslieder).
THE SONGS OF ENGLAND (100 Songs).
THE SONGS OF SCOTLAND (100 Songs).
THE SONGS OF IRELAND (100 Songs).
THE SONGS OF WALES (60 Songs).
 The above form a complete Collection of National Songs. SACRED SONGS, ANCIENT AND MODERN (100 Songs). HUMOROUS SONGS (71 New and Old Songs). CHOICE DUETS FOR LADIES' VOICES (24 Duets).
 Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street, London; and all Music-sellers and Booksellers.

BOOSEY'S MUSICAL INSTRUCTORS.
 Price One Shilling each.
DR. CALLOOT'S GRAMMAR OF MUSIC.
W. T. BEST'S FIRST ORGAN BOOK.
J. W. ELLIOTT'S NEW HARMONY TUTOR.
HENNING'S FIRST BOOK FOR THE VIOLIN.
CASE'S VIOLIN TUTOR.
BRINLEY RICHARDS' FIRST LESSONS FOR THE PIANO.
GEORGE MOUNTAIN'S POPULAR PIANOFORTE TUTOR.
DR. SPARK'S HANDY BOOK OF CHORAL SINGING.
BALFE'S BALLAD TUTOR.
VACCA'S SINGING METHOD, without Solifery.
HATTON'S SINGING TUTOR FOR LADIES' VOICES.
HATTON'S SINGING TUTOR FOR MEN'S VOICES.
KAPPEY'S CLARINET TUTOR.
EDWARD HOWELL'S FIRST BOOK FOR THE VIOLONCELLO.
R. S. PRATTEN'S FLUTE TUTOR.
STANTON JONES'S CORNET TUTOR.
CASE'S ENGLISH CONCERTINA TUTOR.
 Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street, W.

BOOSEY'S CABINET CLASSICS.
 Price 1s. each Book.
235. RUBINSTEIN'S ALBUM (1 best Pieces). 1s.
236. RUBINSTEIN'S SIX STUDIES. 1s.
237. RUBINSTEIN'S SIX PRELUDES. 1s.
238. BRAHMS' ALBUM (including 16 waltzes). 1s.
239. RAFF'S ALBUM (6 best pieces). 1s.
240. HELLER'S ALBUM (10 pieces). 1s.
241. HELLER'S PETIT ALBUM (10 pieces). 1s.
242. HELLER'S PHOTOMANES D'UN SOLITAIRE. 1s.
243. HELLER'S TWENTY-FOUR STUDIES. 1s.
244. SCHUMANN'S KINDERSCENEN. 1s.
245. SCHUMANN'S SECOND ALBUM FOR YOUTH. 1s.
246. SCHUMANN'S THIRD ALBUM FOR YOUTH. 1s.
247. CHOPIN'S WALTZES, complete. 1s.
248. CHOPIN'S MAZURKAS, complete. 1s.
249. CHOPIN'S NOCTURNES, complete. 1s.
250. CHOPIN'S TWENTY-FIVE PRELUDES. 1s.
251. FIELD'S TEN NOCTURNES (all the best). 1s.
252. MEYER'S SONGS WITHOUT WORDS (Six Books). 1s.
253. BEETHOVEN'S WALTZ ALBUM (45 waltzes). 1s.
 Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

BOOSEY'S SHILLING BALLAD BOOKS,
 In the MUSICAL CABINET.
Santley's 10 New Songs. 1s.
Santley and Felt's 22 Songs. 1s.
Arthur Sullivan's 10 Songs. 1s.
Hatton's 10 New Songs. 1s.
Longfellow and Balfe's 10 Songs. 1s.
Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

BOOSEY'S CABINET OPERAS for PIANOFORTE SOLO.
 Ballio in Maschera. Lohengrin (2s.).
 Barbiere. Lucia.
 Briganda. Lucrèce Borgia.
 Crown Diamond. Madama Angot.
 Dame Blanche. Martha.
 Dinorah (2s.). Masetto.
 Domino Noir. Norma.
 Don Juan. Nozze di Figaro.
 Don Pasquale. Oberon.
 Ernani. Pichello.
 Favorita. Rigoletto.
 Fidelity. Rolero le Diable.
 Figlia del Reggimento. Sembrando.
 Flauto Magico. Sonnambula.
 Flying Dutchman (2s.). Tannhauser (2s.).
 Fra Diavolo. Traviata.
 Freischütz. Trovatore.
 Genevieve de Brabant. Vêpres Siciliennes (2s.).
 Grand Duchess. William Tell.
 Huguenots (2s.). Zampa.
 Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

NEW SONGS.

THE KING'S HIGHWAY. MOLLOY'S
 last and best Song. Sung by Frederic everywhere with a double encore.—Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

AT LAST. By COWEN. Miss Anna Williams will sing "At Last" throughout Madame Trebelli's Tour, in October and November.
 Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

THE OLD SAILOR WIFE. By MOLLOY.
 Sung by Madame Antoinette Sterling every night at Mr. Lloyd's Provincial Concerts.—Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

THE OLD-FASHIONED WAY. By Madame SAINTON-DOLBY. Sung by Mr. Edward Lloyd every night on his Tournee in October and November.
 Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

POPULAR SONGS.

SONGS by HAMILTON AIDÉ.
 Remember or Forget. The Fisher.
 Spanish Boat Song. Maid I Love is Six Years Old.
 Let me Dream of Happy Days. Brown Eyes, or Blue Eyes.
 Price 2s. each, net.—Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

SONGS by ALFRED SCOTT GATTY.
 Rothery Hay. One Morning, oh! so early.
 Old Sweet Story. The Departure.
 Hay is in the Mow. Apart.
 Price 2s. each, net.—Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

SONGS by ARTHUR SULLIVAN.
 The Lost Chord. Let me Dream Again.
 Living Poems. Sleep, my Love, Sleep.
 Golden Days. Lemniscata.
 Price 2s. each, net.—Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

SONGS by F. H. COWEN.
 It was a Dream. Almost.
 Spinning. Marguerite.
 Price 2s. each, net.—Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

SONGS by DOLORES.
 Destiny. The Fairies.
 Clear and Cool. Beweeld.
 Price 2s. each, net.—Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

SONGS by PINSUTI.
 Still Waters Run Deep. As You Like It.
 All the World's a Stage.
 Price 2s. each, net.—Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

SANTLEY'S POPULAR SONGS.
FAIR IS MY LOVE. THE VAGABOND.
FAIR IS MY LOVE. THE YEOMAN'S WEDDING.
 Also SANTLEY'S NEW SONG-BOOK, in the MUSICAL CABINET (170), containing Ten Songs published in no other work. Price 1s.—Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

STRAUSS'S DANCE BOOKS in BOOSEY'S MUSICAL CABINET. Each Number beautifully illustrated in Colours, forming an elegant Gift-Book. Price 1s.
167. WEINER BLUT DOCTRINEN. Wein, Wein und Gesang.
168. PROMESSEN. Lillien Kranz, and Fische Geister.
169. THE HUSBAND AND ONE NIGHTS. Telegram, and four other Waltzes.
170. BEAUTIFUL DANUBE. Good Old Times, Wiener Kinder, and three other Waltzes.
 Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

NANCY LEE WALTZ. On the Celebrated Song. The Waltz of the Season.
NANCY LEE WALTZ. Price 2s. net.
 Solo and Duet; Septet, 1s.; Orchestra, 2s.
 Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

THE SONG OF THE MONTHS. Cantata, by FRANCIS HOWELL, Composer of "The Land of Promise." Containing twelve numbers, illustrating the months of the year. Price 2s. 6d. each. Separate parts for the chorus, price 1d. each voice. The band parts may also be had.
 Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

NEW MUSIC.

W. T. BEST'S FIRST ORGAN BOOK.
 Forty pages, music size. An Elementary and Practical Guide for Organ Students. Price 1s.
 Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

HANDY-BOOK FOR CHORAL SOCIETIES.
 By Dr. SPARK. Price 1s. A complete Guide for the Study and Practice of Part Music, including 138 Exercises, Part-Songs, Rounds, &c. (88 pages).
 Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

THE CHORALIST. Twelve Anthems and Sacred Part-Songs by ARTHUR SULLIVAN have been added to the CHORALIST, which now contains 224 Numbers, price One Penny each. Specimen for one stamp.
 Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

With fifteen Illustrations, price 2s. 6d.,
LILLIE'S FIRST MUSIC-BOOK. 64 pages music size. "The most admirable tutor extant for the Piano-forte."—Somerset Herald.
 Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

Beautifully Illustrated in Colours, price 1s.,
LILLIE'S SONG-BOOK. A complete Collection of Juvenile Vocal Music, containing fifty youthful songs, including all the most favourite ditties with the original words, in addition to several new Songs composed expressly for this Work.—Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

Ready this day.
THE CLANG VAISE (The Clang of the Wooden Sheen) on Molloy's popular Song. Arran by CHARLES D'ALBERT. Price 1s. post-free, 2s. stamps. This charming Waltz will be performed for the first time in public by the Band of the Royal Horse Guards at the County Ball, Bury St. Edmunds, Oct. 25.
 London: METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, W.

Just published.
KING HENRY'S SONG. By ARTHUR SULLIVAN. Introduced in the revival of "Henry VIII."
 METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London.

Just published.
BEDOQUIN LOVE SONG. Composed by GIRO PINSUTI. Sung by Signor Foll with great success.
 Price 4s.; post-free, 2s. stamps.
 London: METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, W.

Just published.
ACROSS THE FAR BLUE HILLS. MARIE. New Song. By JACQUES BLUMENTHAL. Words by H. Weatherly. Price 4s.; post-free, 2s. stamps.
 London: METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, W.

THE FIRE KING.—THE PAST IS BUT A TROUBLED DREAM. Song by Mr. Edward Lloyd. Also, TO ARMS! TO ARMS! War Song. Price 4s. each. Half price.—METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London.

SEA NYMPHS. The New Operetta. By LECOCQ (now being represented at the Folly Theatre). The Libretto (written by H. B. Farnie) and the Music complete, with all stage directions, published at 2s. 6d., post-free, in Metzler and Co.'s Edition of Comic Operas.
 METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

WHISPERING KISSES. The New Song. By E. JONAS (from the popular French play, "Bébé"). Is sung by Miss Violet Cameron. "The Creole" at the Folly Theatre with the greatest possible success, and is nightly encored. Post-free, 18 stamps.
 METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

MINE OWN. A New Song, in C, E, and F. By H. GADSBY; Words by F. E. Weatherly. Price 4s.; post-free, 2s. stamps.
 METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

FAR FROM HOME. New Song. By G. B. ALLEN. Words by Edward Oxenford. Sung with the greatest success at Madame Liebhart's Concerts. Price 4s.; post-free, half price.
 METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

EDITH'S SONG. From Tennyson's "Harold." Set to Music by ODOARDO BARRI. Post-free, 2s. stamps.
 METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

A WINTER'S TALE. From Tennyson's "Harold." "Two young lovers in wintry weather." Set to Music by ODOARDO BARRI. 2s. stamps.
 METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

WAR SONGS OF THE EAST. By H. D. FARNIE. In handsome cover, price 1s.; post-free, 13 stamps.
 METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

LA SERENADE. Waltz. By METRA. A most attractive and popular waltz. Solo or Duet. Post-free, 2s. stamps.
 METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

LA VAGUE. Waltz. By METRA. Solo or Duet. Post-free, 2s. stamps.
 METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

W. SMALLWOOD'S NEW PIECES for PIANOFORTE. Illustrated Titles.
CRYSTAL DEW DROPS.
AVEILITE. Gondola Song.
FAIRY DREAMS.
 Post-free, 18 stamps each.
 METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

MASON and HAMLIN'S ORGANS.
 Now ready.
 New Illustrated Book.
 Post-free.
 METZLER and Co., Sole Agents, Great Marlborough-street, W.

MASON and HAMLIN'S ORGANS.
 New Style 235. Nine Stops.
 Viola Dolce, Seraphine, &c.
 Price 28 gs.
 METZLER and Co., Sole Agents, Great Marlborough-street, W.

MASON and HAMLIN'S ORGANS.
 New Style 312. Ten Stops.
 With Octave Coupler and Sub-Bass.
 METZLER and Co., Sole Agents, Great Marlborough-street, W.

THE BAND of the ROYAL HORSE GUARDS will perform the following Dance Music at the County Ball, Oct. 25, Bury St. Edmunds, under the direction of Mr. Charles Godfrey:—
 The Clang Waltz (Molloy's popular Melodies). 4s.
 The Princess Tuko Waltz. Godfrey. 4s.
 Rosaline Waltz. Godfrey. 4s.
 Sérénade Waltz. O. Metra. 4s.
 Sea Nymphs Quadrille. Godfrey. 4s.
 Garden Party Polka. Godfrey. 4s.
 Post-free, 24 stamps.
 METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London.

SECONDHAND PIANOS.—BOOSEY and CO. have a large Stock of Instruments by all the great Makers, which they offer, according to their custom on the close of the season, at greatly reduced prices. The majority of these Pianos have been hired for one season only, and are as good as new.—Sole address, 235, Regent-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S BRASS INSTRUMENTS FOR AMATEURS.
THE DISTIN CORNET, from 53 10s.
THE DISTIN CELEBRATED EIGHT VALVE CORNETS. 7s. and 9s. are the best Cornets manufactured.
THE DISTIN MINIATURE CORNET-A-PISTONS, 9 gs.
THE DISTIN BALLAD HORN in C, 9 gs.
THE DISTIN DRAG AND POST HORNS and BAND INSTRUMENTS all prices.
THE DISTIN MONTHLY BRASS BAND JOURNAL, 10s. 6d. per annum.
 The above instruments were exhibited by Boosey and Co., at the Philadelphia Exhibition, and were awarded a Prize Medal "For power and good quality of tone, fine workmanship." Estimates for Bands of all sizes, also illustrations and prices, to be had of the sole manufacturers, BOOSEY and CO., 235, Regent-street, London.

SPECIAL NOTICE.—On MONDAY and TUESDAY, OCT. 22 and 23, Messrs. OETZMANN and CO. will offer for SALE an immense Stock of CARPETS and RUGS of every description; also a quantity of BORDERED CARPET OVERTS, just purchased for cash under specially advantageous circumstances, and which will be sold off at prices much below their usual cost. Reduced Price-Lists, with size and description, will be sent post-free on application.—OETZMANN and CO., Complete House-Furnishers, 67 to 79, Hampstead-road (near Tottenham-court-road).

NOTICE.—The New IRIDESCENT GLASS.—This beautiful prismatic glass can now be obtained at OETZMANN and CO.'S in a great variety of articles, useful and ornamental. Also the best quality in De la Bastie's Toughened Glass.—OETZMANN and CO., Complete House-Furnishers, 67 to 79, HAMPSTEAD-ROAD (near Tottenham-court-road).

FURNISH THROUGHOUT.
OETZMANN & CO.,
 67, 69, 71, 73, 77 & 79,
 HAMPSTEAD-ROAD,
 NEAR TOTTENHAM-COURT-ROAD.

FURNISH THROUGHOUT.
 OETZMANN and CO., 67, 69, 71, 73, 77 and 79, Hampstead-road, near Tottenham-court-road. Cabinet, Factory, Allsort Works, Great Portland-street; Bedding Factory, Eagle-place, London, N.W. Carpets, Furniture, Bedding, Drapery, Furnishing Ironmongery, China, Glass, Paper-Hangings, Pictures, Bronzes, Clocks, &c., and every other requisite for completely furnishing a house throughout.

THE IMMENSE RANGE OF PREMISES formerly the EARLE BREWERY having been REBUILT and ADDED to the SHOW-ROOM it is now one of the largest Furnishing Establishments in the world. Comparison of price and quality respectfully solicited before deciding elsewhere. OETZMANN and CO. are enabled to offer special advantages to Country Customers in delivery of Goods by their own large PANTHECON VANS, and fixing in position by competent persons. Descriptive Catalogue, the best Furnishing Guide extant, post-free.—OETZMANN and CO.

THE SANDRINGHAM EASY-CHAIR, full size, upholstered very soft and comfortable, suitable for any room, price 25s.; Lady's ditto, smaller size, 21s.; also the Sandringham Couch, upholstered very soft and comfortable, price 2 guineas. Everyone about to furnish should see these marvels of excellence and economy. Packed free and dispatched same day on receipt of order per post.—OETZMANN and CO.

DRAWING-ROOM SUITES.
 OETZMANN and CO.—Elegant Drawing-Room Suite, richly-carved Italian Walnut Wood; upholstered very soft and comfortable, in best Rep., consisting of a Couch, two Easy-Chairs, and six Chairs, price 15 guineas; ditto, very handsome design, upholstered in rich Pekinade, made and fitted in superior style, 20 guineas; ditto, very elegant design, richly upholstered in finest satin, and finished in the best possible manner, 33 guineas. Also a variety of other Drawing-Room Suites, in Black and Gold, Early English, and other designs.
 OETZMANN and CO.

CARPETS. FURNITURE.
CARPETS. FURNITURE.
CARPETS. FURNITURE.
CARPETS. FURNITURE.

LINOLEUM.—OETZMANN and CO.
 LINOLEUM.—Warm, soft, carpet-like in appearance, and very durable. All the NEW PRIZE DESIGNS are now in Stock. A visit of inspection highly recommended. Those usually charged for this favourite floor covering. The Trade supplied.
 OETZMANN and CO.

TURKEY CARPETS.—CLEARANCE
 SALE.—OETZMANN and CO.—A quantity of Turkey, Indian, Persian, Jubalpor, Masalapatam, Farahan, Rhoosani, Serabend, Kouti, Ghindies, and Kelm Carpets and Rugs, clearing out at greatly reduced prices, ranging from 15s. 6d. to 80 guineas. A detailed Price-List, with sizes and description, sent, post-free, on application. Prices will be found much below those usually charged. A quantity of Indian Rugs, 15s. 6d. each; some very handsome ditto at 35s. to 45s.—OETZMANN and CO.

EVERYONE SHOULD SEE the large, handsome AXMINSTER HEARTH RUGS that OETZMANN and CO. are now selling at 9s. 11d. each; usual price 15s. 6d. There is nothing sold that can be compared with these in quality and cheapness. An immense variety of Designs and Colours to suit every pattern in Carpets. A visit of inspection solicited.—OETZMANN and CO.

ARTISTIC FURNISHING.—OETZMANN and CO. are introducing a variety of Elegant Persian and Indian Designs in Rugs and Mats, to meet the requirement for Artistic Furnishing at moderate cost. Large Rugs (excellent copies of real Persian and Indian) from 10s. each. A visit of inspection solicited.—OETZMANN and CO.

DOWN QUILTS.—OETZMANN and CO.'S EIDER and ARCTIC DOWN QUILTS and CLOTHING combine the greatest amount of warmth attainable with the least possible weight, and are of the very best quality. Price-Lists post-free.—OETZMANN and CO.

MADRID STRIPED CURTAINS, all Wool, 3 yards long by 48 inches wide, 15s. per pair; 34 yards

VIEW of the COLLIERY.

BRINGING UP THE DEAD

IDENTIFICATION of the DEAD.

THE COLLIERY EXPLOSION AT WIGAN.

THE COLLIERY DISASTER AT WIGAN.

On Thursday week, at the Pemberton Collieries, near Wigan, belonging to Messrs. Jonathan Blundell and Son, there was a terrible explosion of "firedamp" gas, by which thirty or forty men were killed; and three of the colliery managers or officers, Messrs. Watkin, Cooke, and Laverick, lost their lives, an hour afterwards, by suffocation from the "after-damp," while bravely attempting to save others. These collieries are situated a short distance from the Pemberton station on the Liverpool portion of the Lancashire and Yorkshire Railway, a mile and a half from Wigan. The King Pit, where the explosion occurred, is one of two, which were opened in 1867 with the object of winning the Wigan seams—the King coal and Cannel seams, the Orrell 5 ft., and the 4 ft. or Arley seam. The shafts are 640 yards deep, the downcast being called the Queen pit and the upcast the King pit. The former is 17 ft. 4 in. in diameter at the top and 16 ft. at the bottom; the latter 19 ft. 4 in. at the top and 18 ft. at the bottom; the difference in the diameter being for the purpose of admitting tubing, in case the water from the Pemberton seams should make its way into the workings. The shafts are lined throughout with massive fire-clay quarles, and down each side run pairs of railway metals, which are gripped by slides fixed on the cages. These hold six tubs each, and are made entirely of steel, to which, no doubt, is owing the fact that this terrible explosion has not caused more damage to the shaft. From the upcast shaft the 4 ft. seam is won at a distance of 270 yards, the 9 ft. seam at 300 yards, and the King coal and cannel at 384 yards, while from the other shaft the Orrell 4 ft. and 5 ft. seams are won. There is, however, communication between both shafts in each mine, for the purpose of ventilation, by means of a large Guibal fan 46 ft. in diameter and 15 ft. in width, driven by two engines, one of which is capable of doing the work in case of emergency, and is calculated to produce 225,000 cubic feet of air per minute. The upcast shaft is covered at the top with a scaffold, and the air enters the fan by means of a large culvert. At the top of the drift, between the fan and the drift, there is an escape chimney, provided with four large doors, so that, in case of an explosion, the blast passes through without injuring the fan. It was here, on Thursday week, that there was the first intimation on the surface of something having gone wrong in the workings. A cloud of dust and smoke, shortly after one o'clock, told those near that a terrible explosion must have happened. A knocking was also heard from below. The cage was quickly lowered. It was then found there had been a fearful blast in the 9-ft. seam. The few living men and boys were at once brought up to the surface. An exploring party was immediately formed, consisting of Mr. Watkin, manager; Mr. Cooke, certificated manager; Mr. R. Laverick, underlooker at the King pit; Messrs. Crossley and A. E. Wood, surveyors; George Ashurst, Joseph Simpkin, W. Stephens, underlooker, and several other officials. All the men in the other seams, to the number of 600, were wound to the surface, and the work stopped. A first examination from the downcast shaft showed that progress by that means was impossible; the air doors and bratticing being blown down and the ventilation interrupted, and the exploration stopped by after-damp. A descent of the upcast shaft was then made, and it was then found that the worst fears had been realised. The terrible force of the explosion prevented the party proceeding far into the works. The main air-way between the two shafts was cleared, and a fresh supply of pure air sent along it; but the after-damp in the workings was so powerful as to prevent any lengthened stay there. The roads were also blocked up by broken tubs, doors, and falls of coal. Despite the untiring exertions of the explorers, little or no progress was made. Soon after two o'clock, Messrs. Watkin, Cooke, and Laverick went forward in hope of saving some of the men, leaving Messrs. Crossley, Wood, Ashurst, and others behind. After waiting for some time the party who remained behind became alarmed, not hearing from their leaders who had gone forward. It was thereupon determined that a search be made, and they started for that purpose. On reaching a jig brow, about 200 yards from the mouth of the workings, and 100 yards from the main air-way, they were horrified to find the managers lying there in an unconscious state. Mr. Cooke lay foremost, and the other two a short distance behind. All had fallen with their faces in the direction of the shaft. This evidently showed they had been endeavouring to make their way back, having met the after-damp, and trying to regain the pure air. The bodies were carried to the main air road, and word was sent to the surface for medical help. Mr. Barnish, of Wigan, and Messrs. Johnstone and Hartley, of Pemberton, surgeons, volunteered to go down. They were lowered into the mine and taken to the spot where the three gentlemen were lying. The surgeons were of opinion that death had taken place; but they set to work, hoping against hope, and for two hours were unceasing in their endeavours to restore life. Artificial respiration was resorted to—all, however, without effect; and at last their verdict had to be given that all was over. Crowds of people on the surface eagerly watched for intelligence from below, but the sad tidings were not communicated to them until about half-past five. The lifeless body of Mr. Cooke was brought out of the pit and removed to his home, a short distance from the colliery. It was rumoured that Mr. Watkin and Mr. Laverick were also killed, and this was found to be true. Their dead bodies were brought up out of the pit half an hour afterwards, and placed in the cabin on the upper stage. The melancholy story was quickly passed from one to another, and a gloom overspread the whole company and the whole district. So long a time had passed that there was little hope that men in the mine could be recovered alive, but it was scarcely thought that three such valuable lives would have been sacrificed. The workmen seemed paralysed; word was sent for some of the principal engineers in the district to come and assist the explorers. Mr. George Holland, of the Winstanley Collieries, went to the assistance of the other explorers. The first batch brought from the 9-ft. mine consisted of Joseph and Peter Heaton, hookers-on, E. Cannon, William Greaves, William Murray, and James Allerton, all lads employed as pony-drivers. All were more or less suffering from the effects of the after-damp; Cannon was badly burnt, and Allerton was burnt and shaken. The latter seems to have had a marvellous escape. He was blown out of the workings into the shaft, and was driven with great force against some woodwork in the pit. Fortunately, by some means his arm became entangled, and he was found suspended over the pit, hanging only by his wrist. Two lads, fourteen years of age, who were a few yards from the shaft at the time of the explosion, were blown out of the workings and thrown down the shaft, a distance of 340 yards. They were, of course, at once killed. Peter Heaton had a narrow escape. He was near the pit-eye, but a full tub of coal was overturned on him by the force of the blast, and he was thus saved from a similar fate. All the lights were blown out, and Heaton, being near the signalling apparatus, immediately "knocked" to the surface. The sad death of Mr. Watkin has caused a profound sensation in the town. He had recently been placed on the Commission of the Peace for the borough; he had for the last two years been chairman of the Pemberton local board, and was identified with several of the local institutions. He was a native of Durham, but has resided for the last thirteen years in the district. He leaves a widow, but no children. Mr. Cooke leaves a widow and seven daughters, and Mr. Laverick a family of four. The number killed is estimated at forty. An inquest has been opened by the local coroner.

NEW BOOKS.

The circumstances of the moment are such that the chief interest of Transcaucasia and Ararat, by James Bryce (Macmillan and Co.), is likely to be found in the last chapter, in which the author indulges in "some political reflections," makes some remarks upon the "difficulties of Russia in working her Asiatic territories," gives his "impressions of Turkey," commits himself to the assertion that "the Turkish Government is dying," and discourses about "British interests," about "India and the Suez Canal," about the "influence of England in the East," about "feelings towards England," and about "her true policy." Yet the rest of the book is in reality of much greater and more prominent interest. The volume contains "notes of a vacation tour in the autumn of 1876;" and those notes, taken as they were by an earnest and intelligent traveller, filled with the spirit of anxious inquiry rather than of mere curiosity, and endowed with the excellent gift of expressing himself attractively as well as lucidly and forcibly with pen, ink, and paper, will preserve their charm when the fever of political excitement is over. Readers will lift their eyes to the mountains and yearn for all the information they can gain about Ararat, when the flood of war has subsided, and the dove with the olive-leaf has once more found rest for the sole of her foot. For it is of Ararat in particular that the author desired to give an account when he undertook to "print a narrative of what he saw." He commences by rubbing a little of the gilt off the gingerbread at the fair of Nijni Novgorod, which, it appears, is no longer what it was twenty years ago. From Nijni we start; and, with entertaining gossip about the Volga, its scenery, its steamers, its navigation, and its trade, are carried along till we see the towers of Kazan, to which famous city we pay a flying visit. At Saratof we quit steamer and travel by rail to the foot of the Caucasus, beguiling the way with pleasant talk about points of similarity and of contrast between Russia and the United States, about the natural features of the steppe through which we hurry, about the sea of Azof which we approach, about the wine of the Don, which we cross, and about the steppe-fires which we see from time to time, until, eighteen hours or so after we have left Rostof, we descry "a huge mass of high land." This is the Caucasus; a chain of mountains well deserving of the many pages devoted to the description of it and to the discussion of its historical importance, the people which inhabit it, and kindred questions. In due time we arrive at Tiflis, the capital of what is called Transcaucasia, "a convenient general name for the countries lying between the Black Sea, the Caspian, and the Caucasus, which make up the dominions of the Czar in Western Asia." Hence we are carried on through Armenia, to Ararat, or rather to the Ararats, for there are two, the Great and the Little—the former being 17,000 ft., and the latter 12,840 ft. above the sea-level. After a great deal of learned dissertation and of agreeable chatter about the mountain or mountains, the author takes us with him to the top of the higher, expatiates upon the view, moralises a little, and probably makes up his mind on certain points which he had to consider before he could accept the illustration representing "Great and Little Ararat from the North-East," on the frontispiece of his book. He gets us safely down from the heights; and in a day or two we find ourselves "at the Armenian monastery of Etchmiadzin," where we are "presented to the Archimandrite who rules that illustrious house," and who, with a sweet smile of the incredulity which becomes so venerable and sedentary a dignitary, replies to our interpreter's remark that we have been up to the top of Ararat, "No, that cannot be. No one has ever been there. It is impossible." The Archimandrite had evidently never heard, or had serenely disbelieved all he had heard, about the ascents achieved by Dr. Parrot, and Herr Abich, and General Chodzko, and several Englishmen, ascents which our author notices in some detail. At Etchmiadzin the author takes the opportunity of discoursing, at some length and to much purpose, about the Armenian people; and, before we leave Armenia, he says a few words about the Kurds. Having delivered himself of his sentiments, he conducts us, on our backward journey, from Erivan, which is about thirteen miles from Etchmiadzin, to Tiflis; thence to Gori, Poti, and Constantinople. Of Constantinople he speaks in a spirit of aesthetic enthusiasm; and, although he is clearly no friend to the Turk, he puts in a curious sort of plea for the preservation of the Turkish dominion. "Modern improvement," he says, dilating upon the wonders of the city, "has not yet laid its destroying finger on this accumulated wealth of beauty, the gift of many ages and races, as it too surely will when the Turkish dominion ends." And he adds: "If ever a war is undertaken on behalf of Constantinople, let us understand that it is not for the sake of the Turks, but for aesthetic reasons only: to preserve the loveliness of a city that is unique in the world and could never be replaced." That would be going to war "for an idea" with a vengeance. Of course the author is not serious; but the opinions of a gentleman who is so liable to be run away with by his love for the picturesque are not likely to have much weight when he comes to his last chapter with "some political reflections." As a narrator of what he saw and heard upon his travels, and as a communicator of what he has read, as regards history, biography, antiquities, exploration, and the like, he is charming; and it is in that capacity, or in those capacities, after all, that he chiefly challenges public attention.

A map and an index would have been valuable additions to the contents of the two volumes, entitled The Sea of Mountains, by Molyneux St. John (Hurst and Blackett), for the former would have enabled a reader to get a clear idea, at a glance, of the route taken by Lord Dufferin, during his tour through British Columbia in 1876, and the latter would have supplied a reader with the means of referring at once to the pages where important matters were likely to be found, without the necessity of wading through a mass of that vulgar gossip and of those semi-facetious sketches with which the correspondents of newspapers are wont to eke out their letters, and in which, to judge from the two volumes under consideration, the colonial correspondent surpasses, as regards quantity but not quality, his prototype of the mother country. In the absence, however, of both map and index, the two volumes produce a sense of bewilderment, as we are hurried about from one strange place to another, and a feeling of irritation, as we endeavour to pick out the needle of interest from amidst the hay of triviality. The history of the volumes is as follows:—The author, as special correspondent of the Toronto Globe, accompanied Lord and Lady Dufferin on their tour through British Columbia; wrote letters, "on board of steamers, railway cars, and similar inconvenient places, and concerning places and topics which in some instances could not, from the nature of the travels, be thoroughly examined or investigated," for the instruction and entertainment of the aforesaid newspaper's readers; subsequently threw those letters, or the greater portion of them, somewhat altered, into the form of chapters; and out of the chapters made two volumes. The title is borrowed; it is considered "most applicable," and was first "given to the Province of British Columbia by an eminent Canadian statesman during a debate in the House of Commons." Only "a few of the least reasonable persons in British Columbia took exception to the epithet." The author claims, with great modesty, "one merit only" for his work—namely, that, by a perusal of it, "some knowledge of the persons and places of which Lord Dufferin makes mention" in a speech delivered at Victoria, Vancouver Island, and occupying about seventy pages of the second volume, will have been acquired; and so modest a claim may be cheerfully allowed. It may even be added that readers to whom anecdotes and chit-chat are as the breath of their nostrils will find ample gratification, whether the author be discoursing about localities or personages, about Britishers, colonists, Yankees, Indians, or Chinamen; though the searchers after the solid and the practical may grumble that they have to go through a great deal for a very little. Everybody, at any rate, will be glad to know that Lord and Lady Dufferin enjoyed their trip, were well received, and, in all probability, timed their visit so seasonably as to throw oil on troubled waters. It is satisfactory also to learn that by "the correspondents who accompanied the Governor-General the city of Victoria will long be remembered as the far-off home of kindness and hospitality;" for there is no knowing what a grateful Canada may do to prove her appreciation of the attention shown to her newspaper correspondents.

Patience and perseverance, those excellent qualities, more praised than practised, may carry a reader triumphantly through Foreign Policy: England and the Eastern Question, by the Right Hon. Lord Robert Montagu, M.P. (Chapman and Hall); but it is only fair to state that a double portion of those qualities will be required by anybody who attacks the volume in any but a controversial spirit. That spirit will keep a man from succumbing under any amount of dogmatic assertion, any heap of accumulated facts, any quantity of stale repetition, any agglomeration of wild criticism and wilder schemes. The volume concludes with a prayer, which, though it may suffer from comparison with the simple outpourings of our early divines, and even with the more pretentious but less expressive compositions of our modern archbishops, is full of fervour and so far intelligible that it seems to represent the author as looking forward to the millennium or the end of the world as the only satisfactory solution of the Eastern and most other questions. The author, it must be admitted, appears to have studied the Eastern and many other questions, more or less connected together, with great attention, to have formed his own opinion about them, and to make many true, as well as questionable, remarks about nations, moral persons, rulers, different kinds of power, the aims of States, alliances, international law, treaties, the policy of non-intervention, and so on; but, on the whole, his views have an air of transcendentalism and impracticability, and it is by no means easy to fit together his various pieces of dissertation so as to form a continuous system, applicable to the present situation of affairs. What is plain is that he considers the world to be in a bad way; that he agrees with nobody as to the course adopted in respect of the Turkish business; that he looks upon Turkey as an injured country, so far as the behaviour of the Powers is concerned; and that he regards Russia as Anti-Christ. If he be not misunderstood, he holds that things are tending towards a universal dominion, centred in one person, who must be either the Czar or the Pope; and he adjures us earnestly to choose the latter. His meaning may have been mistaken, but his own words are these:—"That the possibility of maintaining things as they are has passed away, I quite allow. That some centre of unity or supreme Government must be acknowledged, I admit. The question is, which do you prefer—the Church or a Committee of Diplomats; Law, or Lawlessness; Liberty, or Caesarism? If we are to look to the universal Church to harmonise or federate all nations of the earth, then we must find that Church under the government of one who is the principle of unity, the centre of action, the supreme interpreter of the moral law." And that the noble author means the Pope is made certain from the contents of a foot-note. It is to be hoped that the progress of the unhappy war now being waged has relieved, for a time at least, the noble author's apprehensions of Russia as an invading Power.

What is sad is generally interesting; and, according to the late Lord Macaulay, "there is no sadder spot on earth" than the little cemetery of which the history is to be found among the pages of The Chapel in the Tower: by Doyno C. Bell, F.S.A. (John Murray), a volume containing "notices of the historic persons buried in the chapel of St. Peter ad Vincula, in the Tower of London; with an account of the discovery of the supposed remains of Queen Anne Boleyn." And now that the Tower has been thrown open more freely to the public, and that the public seem to take a correspondingly wider interest in the place, there would seem to be an unusually good opportunity for such a work. It is to be feared, however, that the volume, desirable as it is on all accounts, for the amount of its information, the labour and care with which it has been compiled, the authority upon which it rests, and the illustrations with which it is fortified and beautified, is likely to be beyond the means of all but the affluent. There are the circulating libraries, no doubt; and there are libraries and institutes, whereby expensive books may be brought, at small cost, within nearly everybody's reach; but the book in question is just one of those which it is not sufficient to read once for all, but which it is advisable to have always at hand for the sake of reference and for the refreshment of memory. The arrangement of the work is as follows. First of all there is a short history of the chapel; then there is an account of "the restorations in 1876-77," followed by a description of the monuments, together with extracts from the burial register. Then come biographical notices, to the number of thirty-four, of remarkable persons buried in the chapel, from Gerald Fitzgerald, Earl of Kildare, in 1534, to the well-remembered Simon, Lord Fraser of Lovat, in 1747. There is a large illustration representing the scene at the double execution, in 1746, which is alluded to in the lines—

Pitied by gentle minds Kilmarnock died,
The brave, Balmerino, are on thy side.

And the written narrative is on a scale commensurate with the size of the pictorial representation. There are two appendices, one giving the "pedigree of the house of Norfolk and Arundel," and the other having reference to the "Baga de Secretis," or "pouches containing the legal records of the Court of the King's Bench," the discovery whereof has thrown much light upon the whole question of Queen Anne Boleyn's trial. The volume is finished off with an index, a most useful accessory in the case of such a work. The compiler evidently had his heart in his task, and, as he had the best possible means of prosecuting it, there is every reason to believe that it has been performed completely. As regards the remains supposed to be those of Queen Anne Boleyn, they were examined by Dr. Mout, who supplied the following memorandum:—"The bones found in the place where Queen Anne Boleyn is said to have been buried are certainly those of a female in the prime of life, are perfectly consolidated and symmetrical, and belong to the same person. . . . The remains of the vertebrae, and the bones of the lower limbs, indicate a well-formed woman of middle height, with a short and slender neck. . . . They are all consistent with the published descriptions of the Queen, and the bones of the skull might well belong to the person portrayed in the painting by Holbein, in the collection of the Earl of Warwick." If this be considered enough for identification, it is unnecessary to say that there is no occasion to weigh the two traditions of which one places the unhappy Queen's bones under a black marble slab in Norfolk, and the other under the like covering in Essex. In conclusion, it may be observed that the volume contains a record bearing upon the disputed question of centenarianism; for among the extracts from the burial register of St. Peter's is found the name of "John Tudor, an ancient Briton, who had been a warder in the Tower upwards of sixty years," and who appears to have been buried there in 1758, "aged 107 years."

MUSIC.

CRYSTAL PALACE.

The second of the new series of concerts (on Saturday last) included the co-operation of Herr Max Bruch as conductor of two pieces of his own composition—the prelude to his opera "Loreley," and his first concerto for violin. The concerto has several times been heard in this country, having been first introduced at a concert of the Philharmonic Society, in 1868, by Herr Straus. On Saturday it was performed by Señor Sarasate, a Spanish violinist, who was first heard in England at a Philharmonic concert in 1874. Since then he has gained in style and executive finish, and his performance on Saturday (for the first time at the Crystal Palace) was of a very high order of excellence in every respect. Besides the concerto, Señor Sarasate played the prelude, minuet, and moto perpetuo from Joachim Raff's "Suite" for violin (with orchestra), his execution of the last of these movements having been a wondrous display of continuous rapid passage-playing. In each of his performances the violinist was enthusiastically applauded.

The orchestral prelude already named belongs to a grand romantic opera, composed to the libretto with which Mendelssohn was occupied at the time of his death, the music of several portions having been completed by him; the finale to the first act being a splendid piece of elaborate dramatic writing that affords ample proof of the great loss to the lyric stage caused by the non-completion of the opera by Mendelssohn; this being one of many projected grand works which, had a few more years of life been granted to the composer, would have swelled the already long list of his compositions. Herr Max Bruch's "Loreley" has obtained much success in Germany. Of the opera itself it is, of course, impossible to judge from the orchestral introduction, heard for the first time in England on Saturday. The piece contains some skilful orchestral writing, and is full of a melodious calmness that is pleasing, although not characterised by any special originality.

The other orchestral pieces at Saturday's concert were Cherubini's elaborate overture to the ballet opera "Anacreon;" that by Mendelssohn, entitled "A Calm Sea and Prosperous Voyage;" and Haydn's bright and melodious symphony in B flat (No. 9 of the Salomon set)—all superbly played by the excellent band of the Crystal Palace.

Vocal pieces were given with much effect by Madame Nouver and Mr. Barton McGuckin, the former of whom sang Haydn's "With verdure clad" and Cherubini's "Ave Maria" (this with the fine clarinet obbligato of Mr. Clinton); to the gentleman having been assigned Handel's air, "Love in her eyes," and Schumann's "Ich grolle nicht," and Mendelssohn's "O Jugend," in their respective English versions, "I will not grieve," and "Of all the pretty darlings." At the concert of to-day (Saturday) a manuscript symphony in B flat, by Schubert, is to be brought forward for the first time here; and Señor Sarasate is to play Mendelssohn's concerto.

This week's programmes of the Covent Garden Promenade Concerts have included a Gounod night, on Monday; a Wagner night, on Wednesday; and a ballad night, on Friday.

Her Majesty's Theatre is to reopen on Nov. 5—again under Mr. Mapleson's management—for a series of performances of Italian opera.

Mr. Carl Rosa's Opera Company, having gratified Glasgow, Aberdeen, and Dundee with a series of English Opera performances of rare excellence, began a brief season of nine nights at the Edinburgh Theatre Royal, on Monday last, with "Maritana," the rendering of which is warmly commended by the Scotsman. The Carl Rosa Opera Company does not return to town till after Christmas, but it is some consolation to know that the extended provincial tour of Mr. Rosa will have brought his company as near perfection as may be by the time his Adelphi season begins.

The Sacred Harmonic Society will open its forty-sixth season on Nov. 23 with a performance of Mendelssohn's "St. Paul." During the season the music of Rossini's "Mosé in Egitto" is to be given; the other works announced being Handel's "Judas Maccabæus" and "The Messiah," Haydn's "Creation," Mendelssohn's "Elijah," Crotch's "Palestine," Costa's "Naaman," and Macfarren's "St. John the Baptist." Mr. Santley is engaged for eight of the concerts; the other solo vocalists announced being Mesdames Lemmens-Sherington, Edith Wynne, Patey, and Poole; Mrs. Osgood, Madame Blanche Cole, Misses Julia Elton, Anna Williams, Jessie Jones, and Katherine Penna; Mr. Vernon Rigby, Mr. Edward Lloyd, Mr. Cummings, Herr Henschel, and Mr. Lewis Thomas.

A series of concerts is to be given in the Townhall, Newcastle-on-Tyne, throughout the week beginning Nov. 5, in aid of the infirmary in that town. Madame Edith Wynne, Madame Patey, Signor Poli, and many other noted vocalists, have been engaged; and the band and chorus will consist of 250 performers.

THEATRES.

GAIETY.

To the many versions and burlesques of the Faust romance, Mr. H. J. Byron has fearlessly added another, which was produced last Saturday, under the title of "Little Doctor Faust; or, The Gaiety, not the Goethe Version." The writer has been singularly successful in his adaptation, and supplied his audience with numberless motives for mirth. His adaptation includes some changes. Martha becomes the proprietress of a young ladies' finishing establishment, and Margaret is a school-girl. Mephistopheles is also modified, and the dialogue teems with allusions to present times. Songs are frequent, some of them very good, but others recalling music-hall atrocities, and a few of questionable taste. Mr. Byron has determined to succeed anyhow, and seems to think that in the moral world of burlesque the end justifies the means. Nor has the management been slack in seconding the author's efforts. The costumes are gorgeous and remarkably picturesque. Faust and Valentine are habited in the most eccentric of dresses. The outline of the opera is closely followed, and travestied with skill, showing the ridiculous side of the legend. Old Faust and young Faust have two representatives, Mr. Soutar and Miss Nelly Farrer. Valentine is represented by Mr. Royce, and Mephistopheles, as showman at a fair, by Mr. Edward Terry. Miss Vaughan as Margaret and Miss Amalia as Martha are exactly suited to their parts, and dance well. Altogether, the new burlesque has proved so thoroughly successful that it must be pronounced a triumph.

Lecocq's comic opera, "Le Marjolaine," adapted from the French by Mr. Sutherland Edwards, has served for the re-opening of the New Royalty—Miss Kate Santley sustaining the rôle of the heroine, and Mr. Lionel Brough being also in the cast.

Madame St. Claire, on the occasion of her benefit at the Park Theatre on Monday, was Romeo to the Juliet of Miss Blanche Lucan; and "Romeo and Juliet" has been performed during the week.

THE POLYTECHNIC.

The management of this place of instruction and amusement are taking steps in the right direction. They are not permitting the latter to impair the vitality and influence of the former. The improved scientific tendency of the business is evident, and the intelligent public as evidently respond to the higher aims of the conductors. Professor E. V. Gardiner gives a chemical lecture, entitled "Death in the Tumbler," which is remarkably interesting. Mr. J. L. King lectures on "Torpedo Warfare," and affords to the audience a very complete history of the invention, together with the means of defending vessels against its insidious approaches. Its effects are illustrated by dissolving views and mechanical arrangements. Lord Derby's translation of Homer's "Iliad" is used by Mr. Lin Rayne in his account of the Siege of Troy, which is accompanied by scenic tableaux. Mr. Rayne's recitals have great merit. His excerpts comprise a description of the departure of the Grecian army for Troy, the quarrel between Agamemnon and Achilles, the fight between Menelaus and Paris, the combat between Achilles and Hector, the death of Priam, and the destruction of Troy by fire. Such an entertainment is of a superior kind, and should command extensive support.

THE VOLUNTEERS.

The members of A (Captain Crossman's) company, 3rd City of London, recently competed for their annual (company) prizes, with the following result:—The first money prize, company badge, and challenge cup, presented by W. Crossman, Esq., won by Lance-Corporal Bennett; second money prize and challenge cup, presented by Lieutenant F. Pontifex, by Private Cubitt; third prize, by Private Crappell; fourth, by Staff-Sergeant Clifford; fifth, by Private Allen; and sixth, by Private G. Redgrave. The prizes for members who had never won prizes were taken by Privates Pond, Cole, Marsh, and Matthews.

The Standard reports the following prize-meetings, which have recently taken place:—

The regimental prize-meeting of the Queen's (Westminster) has been brought to a close. Private T. V. Hinde is the champion shot for the year. The prize-winners in the first series were—£6, Corporal E. Holton; £5, Sergeant C. Brookling; £4, Private T. Wilson; £3 each, Lieutenant R. Payne, Private T. P. Collings, and Sergeant C. Webb; £2 each, Corporal H. B. Wilson, and Private T. V. Hinde; £1 each, Private W. Vicars, and Private G. Parkinson. In the second series the winners were:—Colour-Sergeant C. J. Livett; £4, Private H. Walkley; £3, Corporal F. J. Barnes; £2, Private W. E. Vallatt; £1 each, Corporal C. Raynor, Privates G. Falt, G. F. Wright, J. Linter, and J. Palmer. Third Series—£4, Private T. Coulthard; £3, Private F. Herbercq; £2 each, Private C. A. Currie and Private R. Kidman; £1 10s., Private C. Pipe; £1 each, Privates F. C. Moore, J. Miles, T. Jones, W. Hogarth, and J. Lethelby.

The annual competition for the Broadwood Challenge Cup between the several companies of the Queen's (Westminster) resulted in the challenge cup and first prize falling to I company, C company taking the second prize.

The sergeants of the Scots' Guards and the members of the South London Rifle Club fired a match upon the Nunhead range, the regulars using the Martini-Henry and the volunteers the Snider rifle. The day was very windy, giving a great advantage to the small bore. The regulars won by 39 points, the full scores being:—Scots' Guards, 683; South London Rifle Club, 644 points. Drill-Sergeant Carruthers won the cup presented to the best shot of the winning team.

On another day the members of the South London Rifle Club held their usual competition at Queen's ranges, when the highest scorers were:—Private Webb, Artists'; Sergeant Butcher, 23rd Surrey; Captain Sweeting, 23rd Surrey; Captain Knight, 46th Middlesex; Private L. H. Thomas, 19th Middlesex; Sergeant Hancock, 36th Middlesex; Captain Bearne, 46th Middlesex; Private Reid, 23rd Surrey; Private C. Brown, 19th Surrey; Private C. F. Lowe, Queen's (Westminster); and Private W. C. Nash, 13th Kent. Range prizes were taken as follow:—200 Yards: Private F. Jones, 23rd Surrey; Private C. F. Lowe, Queen's (Westminster); Private C. Brown, 19th Surrey; and Mr. Poulter, South London Rifle Club. 500 Yards: Sergeant J. A. Smith, 10th Surrey; Private T. Hollis, 3rd Kent; and Captain Knight, 46th Middlesex. 600 Yards: Private C. Brown, 19th Surrey, and Private T. Hollis, 3rd Kent.

The D and E companies of the London Rifle Brigade held their annual prize-competitions, with the following results:—D Company Challenge Cup (finally) and £7 7s., Private M'Dougall; £6 6s., Captain Earl Waldegrave; £5 5s., Private Green; £4 4s., Sergeant Bing, £3 13s. 6d., Private Ashby; £2 12s. 6d., Private Lintott; £2 2s., Private Merry; £2 2s., Sergeant Merritt; £2 2s., Colour-Sergeant Rogers. Prize for those who had attended the camp of instruction, value £2 2s., won by Captain Earl Waldegrave. The final competition for a challenge cup, to be competed for during the year under handicap conditions, also took place, and Private Lintott was the winner. E company, first series: £7, Sergeant M'Alpin; £6, Private Saw; £5 each, Private Quirk and Colour-Sergeant M'Nish; £4, Sergeant Osborne; £3, Private Atterbury; £2, Sergeant Alabuster; and £1, Private Harvey. Second series: £5, Private Young; £3 each, Private Colgate, Sergeant Meadoway, and Private Williams; £2 each, Private Latham, Lieutenant Franklin, Corporal Storton, and Private Butler; £1, Private Hodges. Third series: Private Cheverton, Private Collins, and Private Parnham.

THE RUSSIAN IMPERIAL GUARD.

One of the sketches by Herr Schönberg, our Special Artist with the allied Russian and Roumanian Armies in Bulgaria, represents the Imperial Guard just arrived from Russia, and marching through the streets of Bucharest. This fine corps d'élite of the Russian Army, whose immediate commander is the Grand Duke Nicholas, consists of infantry, cavalry, artillery, and engineers, numbering in all some 60,000 men. The Infantry of the Guard are formed into three divisions, each containing four regiments. The first division consists of the Preobrajensk, Semenov, Ismailov, and Poltava regiments; the second, of the Moscow, Paulovak, Finland, and Grenadier regiments; and the third, of the Lithuanian, Smolensk, St. Petersburg, and Volhynian regiments. Each of these regiments consists of three battalions, and each battalion is composed of four companies of the Line and one company of rifles, making a total strength of 41,558 men. In addition, there is a brigade of Rifles of the Guard of four battalions, numbering about 4000 men. The cavalry consists of two divisions. In the first are comprised the Regiment of Gentlemen of the Guard, the Horse Guards, two regiments of Cuirassiers, and three regiments of Cossacks. The second division contains a regiment of Horse Grenadiers, another of Dragoons, two of Lancers, and two of Hussars, making a total of 9432 men and 6342 horses. The Artillery is divided into three brigades, each consisting of one 9-pounder battery, two 4-pounder batteries, and a battery of mitrailleuses. There is also a brigade of Horse Artillery, composed of five batteries of 4-pounders, one battery being manned by Don Cossacks. The total numbers of the Artillery of the Guard are 4630 men, 3338 horses, 104 guns, and 24 mitrailleuses. The battalion of Sappers of the Guard consists of 1213 men of all ranks.

The Guards are in receipt of somewhat more pay than the Infantry of the Line. A private in the former receives 13s. 0½d. per annum, or about four ninths of a penny per day, while his less fortunate comrade in the Line receives only 8s. 8d. In war time, however, or on the march, and during manoeuvres, increased pay is given, amounting to about 50 per cent more than the ordinary pay. The Guards also receive certain advantages in the shape of extra clothing which are not enjoyed by the Line. The uniform is dark green, the tunic turned back in front, like our Lancer tunics; the facings are red in the first and second divisions of infantry, and yellow in the third. A peculiar custom obtains of distributing large sums of money among the men of the Guards on the Emperor's birthday and certain other festivals. Officers as well as men share in this distribution; but no officer is allowed to receive more than 120 roubles (£17 from this source in the year. The pay of the officers is very small to our English notions. A General of the Guard in war time receives only £446 15s.; a Colonel, £181 2s.; a Captain, £140; and a Lieutenant, £96 12s.; and in time of peace these rates are reduced 33 per cent. An officer, as a rule, provides his own rations in time of war; but when this cannot be done general officers commanding may order rations to be supplied gratuitously in kind. The officer is then entitled to the same ration as a private soldier—about half a pound of meat, a third of a pint of brandy, two pounds of flour, a quarter of a pound of peeled barley, and some salt; but a small additional allowance of meat and brandy is granted to the officer. Officers' pay is supposed to be issued quarterly in arrears, and is liable to a deduction of 2½ per cent as a subscription to the sick fund, which gives officers the right to be attended gratuitously in the Imperial hospitals, and 2½ per cent towards the pension fund.

OBITUARY.

Lieutenant-General Thomas Crombie, Colonel of the 96th Foot, on the 14th inst.

Thomas Forsayeth, Esq., Q.C., Recorder of Cork, on the 13th inst., aged seventy-nine.

Dr. Frederick Davis, F.R.C.S., of 124, Gower-street, London, on the 7th inst., at Ryde, Isle of Wight.

Commander John Sanders, R.N., on the 11th inst., at Lansdowne-place, Blackheath, in his eighty-second year.

The Rev. Christopher Robert Harrison, B.C.L., Vicar of North Curry, Taunton, on the 1st inst., at the Rectory, Bultih, Breconshire, aged sixty.

Colonel Ferrars Loftus, late Grenadier Guards, Honorary Colonel 3rd West York Militia, on the 9th inst., at Tynningham, aged seventy-nine.

Captain Herbert William Paterson, 2nd West India Regiment, younger son of the late Colonel James Paterson, on the 2nd inst., at Ventnor, aged thirty-one, from the effects of disease contracted in the Ashantee campaign.

Lieutenant-General George Twemlow, Royal (late Bengal) Artillery, on the 2nd inst., at his residence, Poyle Lodge, Guildford, in his eighty-second year. He saw much active service in India.

Edward Barrington, Esq., of Fassaroe, Bray, in the county of Wicklow, J.P., a leading citizen of Dublin, aged eighty-one. He was father of Sir John Barrington, a member of the Town Council, and, in 1865, Lord Mayor of Dublin.

The Rev. Edward Bushby, B.D., Senior Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge, and Vicar of Impington, formerly of Bothel, in the county of Cumberland, on the 8th inst., at Cambridge, in his eighty-fourth year.

Octavia, Lady Ramsay, wife of Sir Alexander Entwistle Ramsay, Bart., of Balmain, in the county of Kincardine, and youngest daughter of Thomas Haugh, Esq., of Elm Hall, near Liverpool, on the 1st inst., at Sandfield House, Waterloo, Liverpool, aged thirty-nine.

Lieutenant-Colonel William James Yonge, late 60th Rifles, on Aug. 28, at Jullundur, Punjab, aged seventy-five. He was the eldest son of the late Colonel Henry Yonge, of Caynton, Shropshire, served throughout the Punjab campaign 1848-9, was present at Mooltan and Goojerat, and had received a medal and two clasps.

We are desired to state that Lieutenant Julian Henry Layard, whose death was announced in our Obituary column on the 6th inst., was the nephew of Mr. Layard, H.B.M. Ambassador at Constantinople.

At a vestry meeting held at Esher on the 12th inst. an address of thanks to the Queen was unanimously adopted for the drinking-fountain lately erected by her Majesty's command.

We have received from Messrs. Mullord Brothers, of Hoxton, some novelties in fancy stationery especially adapted for use in the winter season.

Messrs. Cox and Son have successfully cast the bronze statue of Dr. Livingstone from the model by Mr. J. Mossman, of Glasgow, in which city it will shortly be erected. The bronze statue, ten feet high, of Adam Black, cast by the same firm from a model by Mr. J. Hutchinson, of Edinburgh, has been forwarded to Edinburgh, where it will be shortly placed in position and unveiled.

THE WAR: RUSSIAN IMPERIAL GUARD PASSING THROUGH BUCHAREST.
FROM A SKETCH BY ONE OF OUR SPECIAL ARTISTS.

LOST.

FROM THE PICTURE BY MISS OSBORN.

THE FRENCH ELECTIONS: DISTRIBUTING VOTING-PAPERS.

THE FIRE AT INVERARY CASTLE.

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

The will and codicil (dated July 22, 1861, and Sept. 8, 1873) of the Right Hon. George Ward Hunt, P.C., First Lord of the Admiralty, late of Wadenhoe, Northamptonshire, who died at Homburg on July 29 last were proved on the 6th inst. by Mrs. Alice Hunt, the widow, the sole executrix, the personal estate being sworn under £16,000. The testator leaves to his wife £500, his horses and carriages, and the interest of £20,000, charged upon his real estate, for life; she is also to have his mansion house at Wadenhoe until the marriage of his eldest son, and then a residence at Oundle; to his son Walter Robert, a cottage at Sunningdale, Berks; to his son Allen Thomas, a cottage at Market Harborough; and memorial gifts to all his children; to the servants at yearly wages who have been three years in his service at his decease one year's wages. Testator's eldest son, George Eden Hunt, takes the settled estates under the entail, and the residue of the personal estate is settled upon trusts similar to the uses declared of the real estate.

The will and codicil (both dated May 19, 1877) of Mr. Henry Alworth Merewether, Q.C., late of Bowden Hill, in the parish of Lacock, Wilts, who died on Aug. 29 last, were proved on the 28th ult. by Frederick Hastings Goldney and Miss Eveline Maria Merewether, the daughter, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £70,000. The testator makes bequests to several of his children, and the residue of his real and personal estate is left upon trust for his said daughter for life, to the intent that she shall provide a home and maintenance for her unmarried sisters, and on her death such residue is to be divided between all his children.

The will (dated April 15, 1864) of Mr. Adolphus Piggot, late of Muldon, Essex, merchant, who died on March 22 last, was proved on the 1st inst. by Mrs. Ellen Piggot, the widow, and John Sampson Piggot and Joseph Allen Piggot, the brothers, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £25,000. The testator bequeaths to his wife £300 and all his furniture and effects, and the income of £10,000 for life or widowhood. The rest of his property he gives to his two children, Joseph Alfred and Ellen Elizabeth.

The will (dated Jan. 5, 1877) of Mr. Charles Stewart Hawthorne, late of Westmoreland-villa, Pembroke-square, who died on the 2nd ult., was proved on the 24th ult. by Miss Mary Stewart Massey, the daughter, the acting executrix, the personal estate being sworn under £20,000. Subject to a few legacies, the testator leaves his property upon trust for his said daughter.

In the abstract of the late Viscount Guillemore's will, given last week, the name of the executor was misprinted. The will was proved by Orbell Willoughby Oakes, sole executor.

The Times' Liverpool correspondent states that the personality of the late Mr. Nathaniel Caine, iron-merchant, of that town, has been sworn under £500,000. The testator has left to his widow a legacy of £500 and an annuity of £1500, in addition to the provision made for her by their marriage settlement. He has also left her a life interest in all his real and leasehold estates in Broughton-in-Furness. To each of his four daughters he has left a legacy of £1000, payable at once, and a further sum of £25,000 each, to be increased to £30,000 on the death of his widow. He has left his mining shares among his children in certain proportions, and has made a provision for his sister, Mary Layborn. He has left to certain poor people, to be selected by the Rev. H. Stowell Brown, £100; to the poor of the Myrtle-street chapel, £100; to the deacons of this chapel, £100; to be employed in sending poor people to convalescent homes; and, after certain legacies and annuities to his servants, he has left the residue of his property equally among his three sons.

THE FIRE AT INVERARY CASTLE.

The famous historic mansion of the ancient "McCallum More," or head of the Clan Campbell, who was during several past centuries the feudal Lord of the West Highlands, has been partly destroyed by fire. The Duke of Argyll's position now, as one of the great Scottish nobles and landed proprietors, and father-in-law to Princess Louise, is sufficiently dignified, but we cannot think of Inverary Castle without being reminded of the almost princely power there exercised by his ancestors before the Revolution of 1688; and Sir Walter Scott's "Legend of Montrose" contains a picture not easily matched of one of these local despots, in that seat of semi-independent rule and pride of place. It stands at the head of Loch Fyne, and at the mouth of the small river Aray, which is joined by the Shiray at the foot of a picturesque wooded hill, of conical shape, called Dunaquoich. The castle was rebuilt in 1748 by Archibald, then Duke of Argyll, on the site of the old castle inhabited by the Marquis or Earl of Argyll in preceding ages. Its general aspect is imposing, with the embattled walls and towers of grey slate, surrounded or backed with dark woods rising up the hillside; but there was no architectural beauty or grandeur in it; nor was the interior very splendid, compared with the grand houses of English nobility. The fire which has now destroyed its central tower and great hall broke out early in the morning of yesterday week (Friday). A fisherman, going to his boat in Inverary harbour, saw the light of a fire in some of the lofty windows, and presently flames burst from the top of the tower. The alarm was given, and all the family and servants in the castle were safely got out, including the Duke and Duchess of Argyll, Princess Louise, and the Marquis of Lorne. Lord Lorne, after seeing all the ladies conveyed to the Argyll Arms, returned to the burning castle, and assisted in removing some of the more valuable effects. The fire-engine belonging to his Grace was brought up, and a stream of water was directed upon the building. Fortunately, the walls of the staircase and galleries leading to the different parts of the house were of solid masonry and very thick; and the fire was, by ceaseless watchfulness and great labour, kept out of the wings by means of patent extinguishers placed in the doorways. The most valuable paintings, furniture, and books were saved from the fire, though some of them were much injured by the water. On Saturday morning, about eight o'clock, nothing remained of the central tower but a few smouldering beams near the top. The whole of the valuable decorations of the fine hall have been destroyed, including many articles of vertu and others of great antiquity. A fine organ that stood in the north gallery was reduced to ashes, and about 200 flintlock muskets that had been used at Culloden by the Argylls, Fenbibles, as well as the well-worn colours of the 91st Highlanders, now the "Princess Louise's Own," were destroyed. The valuable tapestry in the principal drawing-room is much injured by having been hurriedly torn down when that part of the building seemed in immediate danger; and many precious heirlooms are lost for ever. The Duke and his family go to another house belonging to him, Roseneath Castle, on the Firth of Clyde. The Duke is of opinion that the building was set on fire by lightning, a loud peal of thunder having awakened him shortly before the alarm of fire was given.

CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

All communications relating to this department of the Paper should be addressed to the Editor, and have the word "Chess" written on the envelope.

J. A. W. (Edinburgh).—We are obliged for the problems. Two of the last batch have been played, the others are still in hand.
Q. J. S. (Bolton).—One of your problems can be solved by 1. Kt P takes B, K to K 4th; 2. R to Q 8th, and mate follows on the third move.
W. M. A. (Chichester).—There is a dual solution to your problem. After Black plays 1. K takes Kt, White can continue with B to Kt 6th, or B to Q 7th.
J. W. (St. John's, N.B.).—Your solution of No. 1751 has come to hand too late for acknowledgment in the usual place. It is correct.
E. L. G. (Blackwater).—We hope you will look again at No. 1755. The position is worthy of prolonged study.
A. M. (Moscow).—The game shall appear shortly. Many thanks for the last budget.
CONCISE SOLUTIONS OF PROBLEM No. 1753 received from Farley Mechanics' Institute, L. Mabbly, F. W. Hadden, J. G. Finch, and W. Leeson.
CONCISE SOLUTIONS OF PROBLEM No. 1754 received from A. A. Middleton, Penistone, Worsley, J. W. Brown, Farley Mechanics' Institute, Jane N. of Utrecht, J. de Honsteyn, M. Marrae, S. A. Sille, Edith E. H. Wood, F. W. Hadden, Emile Frau, Maurice T. de Burgh, and J. G. Finch.
CONCISE SOLUTIONS OF PROBLEM No. 1755 received from H. B. H. A. N. W. S. B. Hereward, W. P. Aman, L. W. Cowell, L. B. R. J. Lyford, M. Bess, Harrobian, J. F. Spillers, A. Mackenzie, G. Reeves, Robin Gray, M. Whiteley, G. Schofield, G. Wright, L. Burnett, T. W. H. C. E. N. Powell, M. R. Thayer, G. T. Greenbank, G. Elmaker, G. S. Cox, N. Franklin, R. Hutchinson, W. K. H. P. Hampton, W. Nelson, R. T. King, N. H. Hastings, M. Rawlings, W. C. Dutton, T. Edgar, Leonora and Leon, R. Roughhead, H. Standfield, H. B. G. B. Parkinson, Tippet, G. Fookbrooke, H. Burgher, Mechanic, F. Wharton, Only Jones, D. Leslie, T. R. V. Paul's Boast, Long Stop, O. D. T. S. Adams, Con. St. E. F. G. V. J. Wontons, Black Knight, N. Brock, S. B. of Leeds, E. W. Robson, R. Halliwell, N. E. D. W. Lee, Triton, E. Benoud, J. G. M. Simpkins, American, S. H. Stone, S. Western, L. of Truro, W. V. Pettit, L. W. H. M. Pridmore, Norman Rumbelow, T. E. Hughes, W. H. W. S. A. Sille, Dr. F. St. J. G. Finch, G. H. V. E. H. H. V. J. Bowden, S. Johnson, T. Elder, C. Blythe, W. Cooper, and A. Wood.
CONCISE SOLUTIONS OF ENIGMA No. 12 received from Farley Mechanics' Institute: No. 12 from H. B. H. A. N. Worsley, Hereward, W. P. Aman, H. M. Pridmore, Norman Rumbelow, W. H. W. Cowell, F. W. Hadden, W. S. B. A. Wood, A. A. Q. L. G. W. Leeson, R. Ingersoll, W. Alston, C. S. Cox, H. Brewster, C. Danagh, M. R. Thayer, G. Sharnwood, S. Dimmick, J. W. Cooper, O. Johnson, B. Champneys, T. Elder, M. Meredith, G. T. J. S. Selby, J. Reed, E. Lewis, Queen of Connaught, American, Leonora and Leon, and J. W. Fletcher.

SOLUTION OF PROBLEM No. 1754.

WHITE. BLACK. 1. Q to Kt 4th. Any move. 2. Mates accordingly.

PROBLEM No. 1757.

By G. J. SLATER.

BLACK.

WHITE.

White to play, and mate in three moves.

CHESS IN LONDON.

A Game played recently between Mr. J. H. BLACKBURN and an AMATEUR. (Allgaier Gambit.)

WHITE (Mr. B.) BLACK (Mr. E.)
1. P to K 4th P to K 4th
2. P to K B 4th P takes P
3. Kt to K B 3rd P to K Kt 4th
4. P to K R 4th P to Kt 6th
5. Kt to K 6th Kt to K B 3rd
6. Kt takes Kt P Kt takes P
7. P to Q 4th
In this form of the Allgaier Gambit the usual move here is P to Q 3rd, and the continuation results in giving White an inferior opening. The move in the text, however, has been played with uniform success by Mr. Blackburn in offhand games like the present.
7. Kt to Kt 6th
8. B takes P Kt takes R
9. B to Kt 5th B to K 2nd
10. Q to K 2nd P to K R 3rd
Necessary to prevent 11. Kt to Bth (ch) and 12. B to K 6th. Mate.
11. Q to K 5th P to K B 3rd
12. Kt takes B (ch) K to B sq
13. Kt to Q 6th B takes B
P takes B offers no better resource.

CHESS IN RUSSIA.

The following Gamelet was played recently in Moscow. The termination will be found interesting. (Kisselitzky Gambit.)

WHITE (Herr Sythoff). BLACK (Mr. Maude).
1. P to K 4th P to K 4th
2. P to K B 4th P takes P
3. Kt to K B 3rd P to K Kt 4th
4. P to K R 4th P to Kt 6th
5. Kt to K 6th B to K 2nd
6. Q takes P
The proper move here is, of course, Kt takes Kt P. In drawing from the beaten path White gets involved in difficulties.
6. P to Q 3rd
7. Q to Kt 7th B takes P (ch)
8. K to Q sq P takes Kt
9. Q takes R B to Kt 5th (ch)
10. B to K 2nd Q to Kt 4th
11. Kt to K B 3rd Kt to Q B 3rd
12. Q takes R P Kt to R 3rd
Black finishes the game without the loss of a single move.
17. Q to K 3rd P takes Kt (ch)
18. Q takes P Q takes R (ch)
19. K to K 2nd B to Kt 4th (ch)
20. Q to K 3rd
If he had played K to B 3rd, Black mates in two moves.
20. Q takes Q (ch)
21. K to Q sq Q to Kt 6th (ch)
22. K to K 2nd Kt to Q 5th. Mate.

SOLUTIONS OF ENIGMAS.

No. 1.—1. Kt takes P, and mates next move.
No. 2.—1. Kt to Q 5th, and mates next move. White can also play, 1. Q to K B 7th.
No. 3.—1. K to Q Kt 3rd, followed by Kt to R 2nd, and mates next move.
No. 4.—1. Kt to Q 6th (ch), R takes B; 2. Kt to B 7th, and mates next move.
No. 5.—1. R to K 3rd, and mates next move.
(By an oversight the progressive numbers six and seven were omitted.)
No. 6.—1. Kt to Q B 3rd, P to B 4th; 2. Q to Q B 4th, and mates next move.
No. 7.—1. Kt to Q 7th, and mates next move.
No. 8.—1. Kt to Kt 3rd, Pawn moves; 2. R to Q 2nd, P takes B; 3. P to Q 4th. Mate.
No. 9.—1. Kt to Q 4th, K to K 6th; 2. R to K 6th (ch), &c.
No. 10.—1. Kt to K 6th, K to Q 4th; 2. Kt to K 3rd; and 3. B mates.
No. 11.—1. Q to K B 2nd, B to Kt 7th; 2. P to Q 4th (ch), P takes P; 3. Q to Q 4th. Mate.

CHESS INTELLIGENCE.

From the annual report of the Bristol and Clifton Chess Association we learn that the silver cup presented for competition by the Rev. J. Greene has been won a second time by Mr. E. Thorold, who thus becomes entitled to hold it absolutely. Miss Judge and Mr. Perry have yet to play off a tie for second honours. There were eighteen entries for the club handicap, and the five prizes fell to the Rev. J. Greene and Messrs. Hunt, Hall, Southby, and Horlor, in the order named.

LITTLE PEOPLE.

It is so nearly impossible to be impartial on any subject, that it would be an excellent thing if everyone would, before beginning an argument, acknowledge, both to himself and to his opponent, on which side were his sympathies, his prepossessions. It is, of course, evident in two minutes what a man's prejudices are; but if he does not admit that he is prejudiced, one can hardly assume the fact and argue from it—cannot say, for example, in discussing the irrepressible Eastern Question: "You are evidently unable to realise that a Russian (or a Turk, as the case may be) can have any redeeming qualities at all: has not this your prepossession coloured the facts you have just stated?" In other words, must not your facts be of very doubtful value, and your opinion nearly worthless?

It is a sad reflection, but most people's opinions on most subjects are very nearly worthless, simply because they cannot bring themselves to see that their opinions are worth no more than those of any other individual. The emphasis on ordinary man lays on the words "I think" is ridiculous: one obviates the horrible law of politeness which forbids one to ask the question—which really might do him some good—What on earth it matters what he thinks? (To evade this law, and be personal for a moment: you, intelligent reader, have many beliefs, opinions, prejudices—to which your next-door neighbour could oppose as large a set, entirely differing from them. You see his errors of judgment, but do you suppose that he does not see yours—that you have none for him to see? What reason have you, then, for supposing that what you think is nearer the truth than what he thinks? In a word, what does it matter what either of you thinks?)

This preliminary matter is intended to introduce a double confession of prejudice, which may qualify the valuelessness of the following remarks on little people and on little peoples—small individuals and small nations. The present writer feels that he has an instinctive preference for large men and women, to which may be contrasted his impression that States, and even cities, have a tendency to grow much too big. That there is a great deal to be said against both these views he is perfectly aware; and it is perhaps only because he feels this, and is therefore not quite so strongly prejudiced as usual on this particular subject, that he has made this confession. That he is prejudiced in matters of politics, religion—or the Eastern Question—he would, he feels, be the last to admit.

With regard to small individuals. There is one entirely new argument to be brought forward in favour of high stature and largeness of limb. The other day, in going over a building very insufficiently known to Londoners—the Tower—I was greatly struck by a remark made (in a glorious brogue) by one of the Beefeaters: that the size of most of the suits of armour there preserved was a pretty satisfactory proof that we were growing larger instead of smaller—that, in fact, there were not many giants in the period vaguely defined as "those days." Well, there are surely very few people who have read history with any attention, who will say with Elijah that we are "no better than our fathers." We are most distinctly better than our ancestors of five hundred years ago; and we are bigger than they were. A larger average of size here accompanies a higher average of goodness. Logically, then, there is a presumption that the average large man is better than the average small one; though of course it is always possible that there are other and stronger presumptions for the opposite theory. The fact that the lowest races of men—bushmen, and such people—are the smallest, may also go for something.

To examine the special qualities of large men and small. I imagine that it will be generally allowed that little men are quicker, and are more excitable than big ones—as a rule; and though quickness has of course its merits, and slowness its faults, experience proves (does it not?) that there is much more harm, and less good, done by overhaste than by over-deliberation. To do what has been left undone is only a single process; to undo what has been wrongly done, and do it afresh rightly, is a double one. Impetuosity is a dangerous quality, and it is so very often accompanied by (fault number two of little men) conceit; which is surely, if not the most unpardonable of sins, the most unendurable of failings. That big men have their characteristic faults, everyone admits: these are want of energy, possibly dulness, and an indolent contempt for other people. That these failings are serious is evident enough; and it is possible that they are even more against a man's "getting on in the world" than the faults of little people; but they are less offensive, and, as I have said, less dangerous than their opposites. Then, there is generally so much more dignity about a big man—there must be; and want of dignity is, in some sort, want of manliness—the worst of wants, except want of humanity.

Coming to examples, one has either too much or too little evidence. Among absolutely first-rate men there have probably been but few giants or dwarfs; and, on the other hand, the number of great men whose size we know pretty exactly is really too large to make it worth while to count them, and it is, at all events, not certainly known that there is any great majority for one side or the other. In the present day, the big men have, perhaps, the best of it; the most famous man of the age—Bismarck—is on their side; though the one rival he has just lost—the petit bourgeois, Thiers—was very tiny.

A word or two about small nations—a subject to which everyone's attention has been drawn lately by sympathy for the poor little States crushed in between those two big neighbours, Russia and Turkey. Serbia, Roumania, Montenegro: if these plucky little peoples were made genuinely independent, would it be for their good, and for the good of Europe? Have small States generally done as well as, or better than, large ones? Are their populations generally more free, more intelligent, and more equal?

The great example of little Athens prompts us to say yes. Nothing like the history of that wonderful State has ever been known in the world—except, our national vanity makes us add, the history of larger, but still little, England. Look at the marvellous Athenian culture, its high average and its unsurpassed exceptions: what have we even now to equal it? Of course, it was crushed by larger barbarous nations, but that was because they were too big, not too small. Then take Roumania, a little country which has made enormous strides during thirty years of peace: it is hardly too high a compliment to call it a coming Belgium—a quiet agricultural country, that does its best in every way to improve itself. The largest building in Bucharest is the mass of schools of all the professions—a thing which we have not in London; one of the principal journals is printed in French, and there were, till the war, no less than two thousand Roumanian students in Paris; and, even in Paris, Roumanians are famed for their politeness—though not for their honesty. Oppressed nations are the same everywhere and always; tyranny makes liars—but freedom, and the civilisation they so evidently love, will cure them.

Poor little peoples! Let us hope their troubles will soon be over, and they will rival the fame of noble Holland, and unconquered Switzerland, and unequalled Athens.

NEW MUSIC.

NOVELLO, EWER, and CO.'S MUSIC PRIMERS. Edited by Dr. STAINER. 1. The Piano-forte (Second Edition, price 2s.). 2. The Rudiments of Music in the Piano. 3. The Organ (ready Oct. 15). Dr. Stainer. In preparation: 4. Harmonium, King Hall. 5. Singing, A. Handegger. 6. Pronunciation in Singing, A. J. Ellis. 7. Musical Forms, E. Pauer. 8. Harmony, Dr. Stainer. 9. Counterpoint, Dr. Bridge. 10. Fugue, J. Higgin. 11. History of Music, E. Pauer. 12. Scientific Basis of Music, Dr. Stone. 13. Church Choir Training, Rev. J. Troutbeck. 14. Plain Song, Rev. J. Helmore. 15. Instrumentation, E. Proust. 16. The Elements of the Beautiful in Music, E. Pauer. (To be continued.)

Second Edition, price Two Shillings.
THE PIANOFORTE PRIMER. By ERNST PAUER (Principal Professor of the Piano-forte at the National Training School for Music). No. 1 of NOVELLO, EWER, and Co.'s Music Primers.

Now ready, price 2s.
THE ORGAN PRIMER. By Dr. STAINER. No. 3 of NOVELLO, EWER, and Co.'s Music Primers.

In the Press.
THE RUDIMENTS OF MUSIC PRIMER. By W. H. CUMMINGS. No. 2 of NOVELLO, EWER, and Co.'s Music Primers.

Second Edition, price Two Shillings.
CATHEDRAL PSALTER CHANTS. Edited by Rev. S. FLOOD JONES, M.A.; JAMES TURLER; Rev. J. TROUTBECK, M.A.; Dr. J. STAINER, and JOSEPH BARNEY.

LIEDER OHNE WORTE. Eight Books. 4s. complete.

MENDELSSOHN. — LIEDER OHNE WORTE (Songs Without Words). The best and ONLY COMPLETE EDITION, containing the Seventh and Eighth Books. Folio, handsomely bound, gilt edges, 12s.; octavo, handsomely bound, 6s.; paper covers, 4s. Order Novello's Edition.

RUBINSTEIN'S EIGHTEEN TWO-PART SONGS. With German and English Words. The English Version by Madame NATALIA MACFARREN. Octavo, paper covers, 2s. 6d.; handsomely bound, 4s. 6d.

SCHUMANN'S VOCAL ALBUM. containing Thirty Songs, with English and German Words. By ROBERT SCHUMANN. Paper covers, 2s. 6d.; handsomely bound, 4s. 6d.

SCHUMANN'S PIANOFORTE ALBUM for YOUNG PIANISTS, containing Fifty-Six Short Pieces. By ROBERT SCHUMANN (Op. 68 and Op. 105). Paper covers, 2s. 6d.; handsomely bound, 4s. 6d.

GERMAN VOLKSLIEDER ALBUM. containing Forty Songs, with the Original German Words, and an English version by John Ozenford. Paper covers, 2s. 6d.; handsomely bound, 4s. 6d. London: NOVELLO, EWER, and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.; and 50 and 51, Queen-street, E.C.

BEETHOVEN'S SIX FAVOURITE WALTZES for the PIANOFORTE. Edited and fingered by GEORGE FREDERICK WEST. 3s. each. Mozart's favourite Waltzes, Nos. 1, 2, and 3, carefully and effectively arranged by Geo. F. West, 3s. each, post-free at half price. "In these days, when many people like to lay hands on little works by great men, these well-arranged trifles will doubtless be highly acceptable."—Vide Midland Counties Herald. London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

ANGELS' VISITS. Song. Written by Mrs. Aylmer; Music by FRANK ABT. 3s.; post-free at half price. Also, by the same distinguished composer, two new Vocal Duets for soprano and contralto—i.e., "City Bells" and "Summer Rain." 4s.; post-free, 2s. stamps each. London: Sole Publishers, ROBERT COCKS and Co.

NEW SONGS. By BERTHOLD TOURS. A Message to Heaven. 3s. The King and the Shadow. 3s. My Little Picture. 3s. A Little Bird's Story. 4s. All post-free at half price. London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.

COME UNTO ME. Sacred Song. Written by W. H. Bellamy, Esq.; Music by Miss M. LINDSAY (Mrs. Worthington Bliss). Finely Illustrated Title, 4s.; post-free, 3s. stamps. The melody is graceful and flowing, and beautifully adapted to the words. Glasgow News. London: Sole Publishers, ROBERT COCKS and Co.

WHEN THE SHIP COMES HOME. Song. By Miss M. LINDSAY (Mrs. J. W. Bliss). 4s.; free by post for 2s. stamps. "This little gem of the season bids fair to become a second 'Far Away,' by the same talented composer."—Vide Brighton Times. A Little Bird's Story. 4s. Brinley Richards. 4s.; post-free at half price. London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

THE SENSATIONAL DRAWING-ROOM PIANOFORTE PIECE, the MUSICAL BOX, No. 1. By I. LIEBIG. 4s.; free by post for 2s. stamps. Always among "An agreeable and clever piece, which is very popular among amateurs."—Vide Musical World. London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

SO FAR AWAY. Song. By J. ROECKEL, and one of his happiest efforts. Also his new Song, "Unforgotten Days." Each post-free for 1s. stamp. London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.

NEWEST SONGS, issued by ROBERT COCKS and Co., all post-free at half price:
I Awake and Dream. Song. J. S. Far Away. J. L. Roedel. Blumenthal. 3s.
Summer Rain. Vocal Duet. F. H. P. Danko. 3s.
The Village Queen. Song. Ch. Schreiber. 3s.
The City Bells. Vocal Duet. F. H. P. Danko. 3s.
The Cuckoo's Concert. Song. H. P. Danko. 3s.
Spring Morning. Song. F. H. P. Danko. 3s.
Biddy Malone. Irish Ballad. W. O. Russell. 3s.
London: 4, New Burlington-street.

Full music size.—"A marvel of cheapness."
MORLEY'S MARCH ALBUM. Price 1s. A valuable Collection of celebrated Marches by Handel, Mozart, Rossini, Weber, Schumann, and others (correct and perfect). The Volume, post-free, 12 stamps. Sole Publisher, W. MORLEY, Junr., 70, Upper-street, N.

A GREAT SECRET. Words by F. E. Weatherly, Esq. THE BEE and THE ROSE. Words by Agnes Trevor. "There is an irresistible charm of melody in both these songs."—Daily News. Post-free, 2s. stamps.—B. WILLIAMS, 60, Paternoster-row.

BAISER DE PRINTEMPS. LAMOTHE'S loveliest and most popular Waltz, played with greatest success at all Cote and Casino's engagements, and by all the Regimental Bands of the Service and Volunteers. 2s. net. CUNNINGHAM BOOSEY and Co., and all Musicellers.

A. S. GATTY'S BEST SONGS. A DAISY SONG. 2s. each. TRUE TILL DEATH. Sung by Madame Cave-Ashton. Edited by Mr. Maybrick. CUNNINGHAM BOOSEY and Co., and all Musicellers.

NEW SONGS by ROBERT STANLEY. Dear little Flowers. 3s. Ending. When love's glow hath gone by. Price 2s. each net.—CHAMBER and Co., 201, Regent-street.

THE FOUR MARIES. Old Ballad, as sung in Mr. Kennedy's Entertainment in St. James's Hall. Post-free for 1s. stamps, from MATHIAS SIMPSON and Co., Dundee, or C. JEFFERY, Berners-street, London.

CHARLES HALLÉ'S PRACTICAL PIANOFORTE SCHOOL. Section I.—No. 1. Pianoforte Tutor. FORTY-SEVEN BROTHERS, London and Manchester.

CHARLES HALLÉ'S NEW EDITION OF POPULAR WORKS. For List of Pieces already published Catalogues will be forwarded, post-free, on application to FORTY-SEVEN BROTHERS, 272A, Regent-street, Oxford-street, London; and Cross-street, South King-street, Manchester.

NEW MUSIC.

POPULAR WALTZES. Easily arranged, without octaves, for the Piano. By JULES ROCHARD. Geliebte und Verloren (Loved Doctrines). Strauss. and Lost). Müller. Morgenblau. Strauss. Reve d'Amour. Lamotha. Thousand and One Nights. Strauss. Manolo. Waldfest. Strauss. Beautiful Danube. Strauss. Post-free, 1s. each.—DUFFY and STANLEY, 147, Oxford-street.

NEW WALTZ. — DER LETZTE KUSS (The Last Kiss). By OTTO MÜLLER. Performed at the Promenade Concerts, Covent-Garden Theatre. This charming Waltz, by the Composer of the celebrated "Geliebte und Verloren" (Loved and Lost) Waltz, may be had of all Musicellers. Solo or Duet, price 2s. net.—DUFFY and STANLEY, 147, Oxford-street.

LOVED AND LOST (Geliebt und Verloren) WALTZES. By OTTO MÜLLER (performed at the Promenade Concerts, Covent-Garden Theatre). These celebrated Waltzes may be had of all Musicellers. Solo or Duet, 2s. net.—DUFFY and STANLEY, 147, Oxford-street, W.

THE Popular Song, LOVED AND LOST. The World's Percy Fitzgerald, adapted to Müller's beautiful Waltz, "Geliebte und Verloren." Sold by every Musiceller in the United Kingdom. Post-free, 2s. DUFFY and STANLEY, 147, Oxford-street.

AIR DU DAUPHIN. Ancienne Danse de la Cour. By ROECKEL. For Piano Solo, Duet, Violin, Harmonium, Orchestra, Organ-Paraphrase, by W. T. Best. Each 18 stamps.—AUGENER and Co., 85, Newgate-street; and Foubert's-place, W.

GAVOTTE DE LOUIS QUINZE. By MAURICE LEE. Piano Solo, Duet, Violin, Orchestra, Organ Transcription, by F. E. Gladstone. 18 stamps each. AUGENER and Co., 85, Newgate-street; and Foubert's-place, W.

AUGENER and CO.'S UNIVERSAL CIRCULATING MUSICAL LIBRARY is the largest in Europe. It contains 100,000 distinct works. Annual Subscription, 3 guineas.—London: 81, Regent-street. Prospectuses gratis.

PIANOFORTES for HIRE or for SALE, from 25s. upwards.—JOHN BROADWOOD and SONS, No. 38, Great Finsbury-street, Golden-square, W. Manufacture. No. 45, Horseferry-road, Westminster.

BUTLER'S MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS. Violins, Concertinas, Harmoniums, Flutes, Clarinets, Flageoles, Guitars, Banjos, Accordions, Flutinas, Cornets, Saxhorns, Drums, and Musical Instruments of every description. Largest assortment in the Kingdom. BUTLER'S Manufactory, 20, Haymarket, London. Illustrated Catalogue, post-free.

P. J. SMITH AND SONS' IRON-STRUTTED PIANOS. "The best and most substantial instrument produced." 9, CONDUIT-STREET, REGENT-STREET, W.

PIANOS for HIRE, 10s. per Month. Seven octaves. No hire charged if purchased at any time within six months. THOMAS OETZMANN and CO., 37, Baker-street, London, W.

PIANOS, 17s. 6d. per Month, on the Three-Years' System. Becomes the property of the hirer if the payments are kept up. Illustrated Catalogues, post-free, on application.—THOMAS OETZMANN and CO., 37, Baker-street.

PIANO, £14. Seven-Octave PICCOLO PIANOFORTE, Second-hand, in good condition, for ready money.—May be seen at 37, Baker-street, Portman-square.

MUSICAL-BOX DÉPÔT for NICOLE, FRÈRES, celebrated Instruments. Boxes of exquisite tone, in renewed cases, playing four airs, 4s. 4d. A choice assortment of boxes, playing the most popular airs. Lists of tunes and prices gratis and post-free.—11 and 12, Cornhill, London.

WALKER'S CRYSTAL CASE WATCHES are superseding all others. Prize Medals—London, 1862; Paris, 1867. Silver Watches, from 4s. 4d.; Gold, from 4s. 6d. Price-Lists sent free.—48, Cornhill; 220, Regent-street; and 75, Strand.

£10. BENNETT'S WATCHES. In return for a £10 Note, free and safe per post, one of BENNETT'S LADY'S GOLD WATCHES, perfect for time, beauty, and workmanship, with keyless action, air-tight, damp-tight, and dust-tight.—48, Cheapside, London. Good Chains at manufacturers' prices. P.O. to John Bennett, BENNETT, 48 and 49, Cheapside.

THE BEST ENGLISH WATCHES. GOLDSMITH'S ALLIANCE, Limited, request the attention of Purchasers to their PATENT LEVER WATCHES, which, being manufactured on the Premises, are confidently recommended for accuracy and durability.

Prices of Silver Watches.
Patent Lever Watch, jewelled, enamel dial, and seconds £4 14 6
Ditto, jewelled in four holes, and capped .. 8 8 0
Ditto, the finest quality, jewelled in six holes .. 8 8 0
Silver Watches in Hunting Cases, 10s. 6d. extra.
Gold Watches.—Size for Ladies.
Patent Lever Watch, with gold dial, jewelled .. 11 11 0
Ditto, with richly engraved case .. 12 12 0
Ditto, with very strong case, and jewelled in four holes 14 14 0
Gold Watches.—Size for Gentlemen.
Patent Lever Watch, jewelled, seconds, and capped .. 13 13 0
Ditto, jewelled in six holes, and gold case .. 18 18 0
Gold Watches in Hunting Cases, 4s. 3s. extra.
List of prices, with remarks on watches, gratis and post-free. The Goldsmiths' Alliance (Limited), 11 and 12, Cornhill, London.

MAPPIN and WEBB, MANUFACTURERS, Mansion House-Buildings, City, London. The Highest Quality at Lowest Prices.

MAPPIN and WEBB'S TABLE CUTLERY—BEST QUALITY, DOUBLE SHEAR STEEL. Table. Dessert. Carver.
3½-inch Ivory, per doz. .. 15s. 0d. 11s. 0d. 7s. 0d.
3½-inch Ivory, balance, per doz. .. 15s. 0d. 11s. 0d. 7s. 0d.
3½-inch Ivory, balance, per doz. .. 22s. 0d. 15s. 0d. 10s. 0d.
3½-inch Ivory, point, per doz. .. 22s. 0d. 15s. 0d. 10s. 0d.
4-inch fine Ivory, per doz. .. 24s. 0d. 16s. 0d. 10s. 0d.
Oak boxes always kept ready in stock. Illustrated Catalogues post-free.

MAPPIN and WEBB, MANUFACTURERS, 76, 77, and 78, Old Broad-street, West End, London. The Highest Quality at Lowest Prices.

NOTICE.—Manufacture of SPOONS and FORKS. Messrs. ELKINGTON and CO. beg to announce that, having succeeded in carrying out several important improvements in the above manufacture, they are now enabled to offer their guaranteed qualities at such prices as, while fully maintaining their high quality, place them within the reach of all classes. Approved Illustrated Price-Lists can be had on application. Address—ELKINGTON and CO., LONDON—22, Regent-street, W.

LIVERPOOL—25, Church-street, E.C. MANCHESTER—St. Ann's-square; or to the Manufactory, NEWHALL-STREET, BIRMINGHAM.

NOTICE. CLEARANCE SALE OF CHINA, EARTHENWARE, and GLASS, commencing OCT. 8.

Messrs. DAVENPORT and CO. beg to inform their friends and the public generally that they intend disposing of the whole of their Surplus Stock of China, Earthenware, and Glass, on their Premises, 52, Fleet-street, London, and 30, Cannon-place, Liverpool, at a reduction of 25 per cent discount off usual prices. Commencing Oct. 8, 1877.

NOTICE OF REMOVAL. MESSENGER and SONS, Manufacturers of CHANDELIERs, Gaslights, and Lamps of every description, beg to give notice of their REMOVAL from 73, Hatton-garden, to 64, HOLBORN VIADUCT, London.

GASELIERS, in Crystal, Glass, Ormolu, or Bronze, Medialiv Fittings, &c. A large assortment always on view. Every article marked with plain figures. D. HULETT and CO., Manufacturers, 55 and 56, High Holborn.

LEWIN CRAWCOUR and CO.'S complete ILLUSTRATED FURNITURE CATALOGUE new and enlarged Edition, gratis and post-free contains nearly 400 Designs of useful, artistic, and well-selected Furniture, and also Estimates for completely Furnishing any class of House. Orders for completely Furnishing in any part of England, upon cash terms, are delivered, fitted, and fixed, inclusive. 71, 73, and 75, Brompton-road, London.

AT PETER ROBINSON'S

WAREHOUSE FOR BLACK GOODS,

REGENT-STREET.

For TWO GUINEAS and up to FIVE, CHOICE BLACK MATERIAL COSTUMES COMPLETE, in the New Style. (Princess Polonaise and Skirt). Patterns and Photos free.

URGENT MOURNING. "ON RECEIPT OF LETTER or TELEGRAM," MOURNING GOODS will be forwarded to all parts of England, on application—no matter the distance—with an excellent fitting Dressmaker (if required), without extra charge. PETER ROBINSON, 236, 238, 240, 242, Regent-street, London.

DEEP MOURNING ORDERS. DRESSES, Costumes, Mantles, Millinery, and all made-up articles, in the most appropriate and best styles, at the lowest possible cost. Dressmaking and Millinery, by clever and expert artists.

INEXPENSIVE MOURNING, as well as the Richest Qualities, can be supplied by PETER ROBINSON, upon the most advantageous terms, to Families. The Court and Family Mourning Warehouse, 236, 238, 240, 242, Regent-street, London.

BLACK SILKS.—Excellent Value. PETER ROBINSON, of REGENT-STREET. An immense purchase just completed in Lyons, from the well-known houses of Messrs. Bonnet, Ponsou, Crosat, &c.

600 Pieces at 2s. 6d.
120 Pieces at 3s. 6d.; extra wide.
200 Pieces at 4s. 0d.; really worth 7s.
180 Pieces at 5s. 0d.; cheap at 6s. 6d.
And prices ranging up to 10s. 6d.
PETER ROBINSON'S BLACK SILK WAREHOUSE, REGENT-STREET, Nos. 236 to 242.

BLACK SILK DRESS VELVETS. Exceedingly good quality, at 7s. 6d., 8s. 6d., 10s. 6d., 12s. 6d., 15s. 6d.

A Special Bargain in Lyons Velvet, at 10s. 6d. Black Silk-Trimmed Velvets, at 4s. 6d., 5s. 6d., 6s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 8s. 6d., 9s. 6d., 10s. 6d., 11s. 6d., 12s. 6d., 13s. 6d., 14s. 6d., 15s. 6d. At PETER ROBINSON'S, of REGENT-STREET, Nos. 236 to 242.

FOR SIX GUINEAS. A BLACK SILK COSTUME, Made of Rich Lyons Silk, with Velvet Garniture. Exquisitely cut and fashioned. Copies of expensive Paris Models. PETER ROBINSON, of REGENT-STREET.

REMARKABLY CHEAP. For One Guinea, A Black Quilted SATIN PETTICOAT. For 2½ Guineas, A Black Silk TRAINED SKIRT. At PETER ROBINSON'S, of REGENT-STREET.

FOR TWO GUINEAS, and up to Seven, Costumes in New Black Materials, in various fashionable Styles, at PETER ROBINSON'S, of REGENT-STREET.

EVENING DRESSES, at One Guinea. Black Brussels Net, at 2s. 6d. Full (condition keeping), 50s. Grenadine, 32s. 6d. New Styles, well cut, and elegantly trimmed. Illustrations free.

THE NEW CRAPE. The Pure Silk Gordan Crape, for Widows and Families. Its advantages are—that it is made of Silk so pure that it will not crease when set upon, nor spot with rain. It is a richer black, free from dress and the gummy appearance so objectionable in other Crapes. The wear of every yard is guaranteed. The Gordan Crape is a Speciality, only to be obtained at PETER ROBINSON'S, of REGENT-STREET. The MOURNING WAREHOUSE, Nos. 236 to 242. Excellent qualities at 4s. 6d., 5s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 8s. 6d. Patterns free.

FUR-LINED CLOAKS at Summer Prices. Good useful Cloaks at 6s. 6d. and 3s. 6d.

SEMI-FITTING SEAL PALETOTS, 33 inches long, for 9s. 35 inches long, for 10s. 6d. At PETER ROBINSON'S, of REGENT-STREET.

NOTICE.—In reference to the above advertisements, it is important that letters should be clearly addressed to 236 to 242, REGENT-STREET.

EGERTON BURNETT'S ROYAL WELLINGTON SERGES. "The Court Circular," "The Queen," "Myra's Journal," &c., unanimously testify to the superiority of Egerton Burnett's Serges as far exceed the material for ladies' wear. EGERTON BURNETT, Wellington, Somerset, respectfully calls attention to these advertisements. He has repeatedly had the honour of supplying them direct to the ROYAL FAMILY, and orders are daily arriving from all parts of the Kingdom. Being woven from the finest wools, and of a permanent patency, which neither rain nor salt water can affect, they surpass all others in appearance and durability. Prices from 1s. 2½d. to the finest at 4s. 6d. per yard. E. B.'s New HAND-MADE VIOGNE CACHEMIENNE and ROULE SERGES are most fashionable. A SPECIAL STUNNING MAKE IS MADE FOR BOYS AND GENTLEMEN'S SUITS, 54 in., from 3s. 9d. per yard. Pattern-books of the various makes and shades sent free by post, and carriage is paid to Bristol or London on parcels over £2. Goods packed for exportation.

EGERTON BURNETT, WELLINGTON, SOMERSET. SWAN and EDGAR are showing the choicest Paris styles in Costumes and Mantles for Autumn wear; also Sealskin Paletots, the new shape, made from selected skins, commencing at 8 guineas. Designs and prices 1s. free.

SWAN and EDGAR are offering a Stock of Black Silks made expressly for wear at 3s. 11d., 4s. 11d., 5s. 11d., and 7s. 6d. a yard. New Dress Materials for Autumn. Patterns free. Piccadilly, and Regent-street, London.

ROYAL ESTAMINE SERGES.—A Stock of this beautiful warm material, in the new dark shades, now selling at 4s. 11d. per yard. Patterns free. JOHN HOOPER, 52, Oxford-street, W.

WEDDING TROUSSEAUX, £20, £30, and £100. LAYETTES, £5, £10, and £20. INDIAN OUTFIT, £25. Illustrated Price-List post-free. Mrs. ADDLEY BOURNE, 37, Piccadilly.

SWANBILL CEINTURE CORSET (Regd.). An admirable combination of Ceinture and Corset of novel and ingenious manufacture, combining the advantages of both and giving the most perfect support. The corset is made of play and Joan of Arc Belt. While imparting a graceful symmetry and elegance to the figure, it affords a degree of comfort to the wearer not to be derived from an ordinary Corset. 10 in. deep, 2½ in. high, made of 100 per cent. pure silk. Send size of waist with P.O. order. Sous la direction d'une couturière Parisienne. Mrs. ADDLEY BOURNE, Ladies' Outfitter, &c., 37, Piccadilly (opposite St. James's Church), London; and 25 Rue St. Lazare, Paris.

HUNYADI JANOS.

BARON LIEBIG

AFFIRMS that its richness in aperient salts surpasses that of all other known waters.—Lancet.

HUNYADI JANOS. "The most certain and the most comfortable of all aperient waters, specially indicated in constiveness, in portal congestion, with tendency to hemorrhoids, and in sluggish conditions of the liver."—John Macpherson, M.D., Inspector-General of Hospitals, Author of "Baths and Wells of Europe."

HUNYADI JANOS. APERIENT NATURAL MINERAL WATER.

MOST VALUABLE and PALATABLE. Prof. MacNamara, Royal College of Surgeons, Ireland.

MOST AGREEABLE, SAFE, and EFFICACIOUS.—British Medical Journal.

HUNYADI JANOS. Highly efficacious, not only as an ordinary aperient, but also in cases of habitual constipation.—Dr. Roberts, University College Hospital.

PREFERRED to PULLNA and FRIEDRICHSHALL.—Prof. Atkin, F.R.S., Royal Victoria Hospital, Army Medical School, Netley.

HUNYADI JANOS SUPERSEDES PILLS, DRAUGHTS, and CASTOR OIL.

HUNYADI JANOS, HIGHLY BENE-FICIAL IN BILIOUS ATTACKS.—Dr. Silver, Charing-cross Hospital.

HUNYADI JANOS. "As a laxative I prefer the Hunyadi Janos to any and every other mineral water, and for the following reasons:—

The dose is small.
The taste is not unpleasant.
It acts promptly.
It does not oppress the stomach.
It does not grip.
And it is efficient.
IT IS INVALUABLE FOR LYING-IN WOMEN, as an ordinary nursing aperient, and in diseases of women.—Dr. J. Marion Sims, Hon. Fellow of the Obstetrical Society of England, &c.

USES of the HUNYADI JANOS:

THE HUNYADI JANOS WATERS are used with excellent results according to the most eminent authorities:—1. As a safe, ordinary, and gentle aperient; 2. for habitual constipation; 3. by persons inclined to inflammation, congestion, and gouty disorder; 4. in chronic affections of the organs of respiration and circulation; 5. in organic diseases resulting from fatty degeneration; 6. against undue deposition of fat in general; 7. against hemorrhoids; 8. during pregnancy and in many female diseases; 9. in bilious attacks and disorders of the liver; 10. the evil consequences of indigestion and diet.

HUNYADI JANOS.—THE BEST NATURAL APERIENT.

HUNYADI JANOS, MORE PLEASANT than its RIVALS; while its EFFICACY as a PURGATIVE corresponds to

ITS UNUSUAL CHYMICAL COMPOSITION.—Dr. T. L. Brunt, F.R.S., Lecturer on Materia Medica, St. Bartholomew's Hospital; Examiner in the University of London.

HUNYADI JANOS.—For ordinary aperient purposes a half wine-glassful of the HUNYADI WATER may be taken at bed-time, or a wine-glassful taken in the morning fasting. It is most efficacious when warmed to a temperature not below 60 deg., or mixed with an equal quantity of hot water.

MAY be ordered of all CHYMISTS and MINERAL WATER DEALERS. In original Bottles, price 2s. and 1s. 6d.

DIGESTIVE LOZENGES OF VICHY.

Manufactured from the Salts extracted from the Mineral Waters.

The Vichy Lozenges should be taken by those persons whose digestion is difficult, pain ul, or laborious. In cases of slow or difficult digestion, a few of the Lozenges should be taken before each repast. The Lozenges are flavoured with peppermint, lemon, vanilla, rose, orange-flowers, or anisette. In Boxes, at 1s. and 2s. each. VICHY SALTS FOR BATHS. VICHY SALT FOR BATHS. In Packets, for One Bath, 1s. 6d. each. VICHY BABLEY-SUGAR. An excellent Digestive Lozenge. In Boxes, 1s. 6d., 2s. 6d., and 3s. 6d.

All these Preparations are guaranteed by the French Government. Sold by all respectable Chemists.

LAXORA LOZENGES.—This Preparation will be found the most valuable remedy for Constipation, Sluggishness of the Stomach, Bile, Headache, and especially useful for Children and Ladies.

The "Lancet," June 9, 1877, reports:—"We have no hesitation in recommending this preparation. It is a great improvement on the preparations in common use for the same purpose, and will be really valuable in families."

"Medical Press and Circular," April 11, 1877:—"The Laxora Lozenges can be safely recommended. C. E. C. Titchborne, Ph.D.—'The Laxora Lozenges are efficacious, and nicely made.' Each Box contains Eight Lozenges, and sold, 1s. 1½d., by all Chemists and Druggists; Wholesale, 82, Southwark-street, London.

DR. LELIEVRE'S ICELAND MOSS POULTICE, superior to all (patented), is exempt from all the inconveniences inseparable from Poulitices made with Linseed or Bread. These apply the Linen, leading, &c., dry up on the edges, rapidly ferment, giving a most unpleasant odour, and no dependence can be placed on the quality and freshness of the liniment used. Poulitices are instantaneous, for it is ready in a few seconds. Sold retail by all Chemists.

Wholesale, BIGGILL and CO., 82, Southwark-street, London.

CONSUMPTION! CONSUMPTION! SILPHIUM CYRENAICUM

(this celebrated plant of the Ancients) has now been acknowledged by the principal celebrities of the French Faculty to be the only cure for Consumption and all affections of the Lungs, Asthma, Bronchitis, &c. Its effect is magical, and the cure certain. To be obtained from all Chemists, and all druggists, full instructions, &c. Wholesale from London Patent Medicine House.

NEURALGIC gels instant relief in TIO DOLOREUX, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Toothache, Rheumatism, Gout, and all Nerve and Local Pains.—Mr. Edgar, 11, Lighthouse, Island of Lewis, thus writes to Sir James Matheson:—"Mrs. Edgar cannot express her thanks to Lady Mallison

THE FRENCH ELECTIONS: A SKETCH ON THE BOULEVARD MONTMARTRE, OCT. 15, MIDNIGHT—"UNE FAUSSE JOIE."

Sunday last was the appointed day of voting throughout France for the members of the new Legislative Assembly, in the general election demanded by President Marshal MacMahon's struggle with the Republican majority for the possession of supreme power. The result, with regard to the relative Parliamentary strength of the contending parties, must be examined in a separate article of political comment. But the above sketch represents a scene of popular excitement and premature exultation, aroused by a false report of the rejection of M. de Fourtou, the Minister of the Interior, in the election for a provincial constituency. We here add some particulars of the method of election, as we believe that our illustration of the distribution of voting-tickets to working-class electors at the door of one of the municipal offices in Paris, will be regarded with some interest upon this occasion. The Constitution of the existing Republic declares all Frenchmen to be electors—the richest as well as the poorest, prince and peasant, middle class and working man. It is to the Republic of 1848 that France owes this law of universal suffrage. Anyone may become an elector on completing twenty-one years of age, but he can only vote on condition of having been duly enrolled on the list of voters prepared annually between Jan. 1 and March 31 in all the communes. This right of enrolment accrues from a residence of six months, at least, in any one commune. No one can vote except in the commune where he is enrolled. Every elector is entitled to have and examine the list of voters. The Maire must not object to or prevent this; by doing so he would be guilty of an excess of power, which might forthwith be laid before the Conseil d'Etat, as well as the Prefect and the Minister of the Interior. The ballot lasts one day, opening at eight a.m. and closing at six p.m. The polling is held in the chief town of the commune, generally at the Mairie. The doors being opened, a committee is constituted to survey the process of voting, consisting of a president, four assessors, and a secretary. The Mayor may ex officio be president, but he can appoint a substitute. The assessors are chosen from among the Municipal Councillors able to read and write—failing these, the oldest two and the youngest two electors. The president selects his secretary; but the latter has no deliberative voice. Three members of the committee, at least, must always be present. The police arrangements of the proceedings are left with the president alone. A copy of the list of voters must be exposed to view at the place of polling, but the display of any other document whatever is expressly forbidden. The voting-papers are to be prepared beforehand outside the polling-booth. They are to be written either by the elector himself or by a third person, and they may be either in manuscript or printed. The voting-ticket is to be written or printed on white paper, and must not bear any outside sign or mark whereby it could be recognised. The voting-paper is delivered by the elector to the polling president, whose duty it is to deposit the same in the urn, without attempting to unfold it or to ascertain the name inside. The municipal authorities must make such arrangements as will give the electors the greatest facilities for getting into the place of polling. Each candidate, having an equal right to support his nomination, must be allowed freely to distribute his voting-papers. The Mayors must not accord to the distributors of the papers of a particular candidate a privileged place in the approaches to the polling-booth. Distributors of voting-papers must not stand in the voting-room, but they may stand near the door. Every agent of the public or municipal authorities is absolutely prohibited, on pain of being fined from 16f. to 300f., from distributing in any place whatever electoral documents, declarations of political opinions, circulars, or candidates' voting-papers. Immediately after the close of the poll the electoral urn is opened. The Committee then selects from among the electors present a couple of returning officers, one of whom reads aloud each voting-paper, while another marks, on lists prepared for the purpose, the names written on each ticket. The result of the poll is made public immediately after the counting of the votes. In order to facilitate supervision of the counting, the tables on which the voting-papers are disposed must be placed in such a way that the electors can easily walk round them. When the counting is finished, the secretary announces in a loud voice the result of the poll, and then he reads a minute of the proceedings, in which he must, on the demand of any of the electors, insert all their protests and claims.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS

REGISTERED AT THE GENERAL POST-OFFICE FOR TRANSMISSION ABROAD.

No. 1998.—VOL. LXXI.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 27, 1877.

WITH TWO SUPPLEMENTS } SIXPENCE.
By Post, 6½d.

ABANDONMENT OF CLEOPATRA'S NEEDLE IN THE BAY OF DISCAY, AT DAYBREAK. OCT. 15.
FROM A SKETCH SUPPLIED BY CAPTAIN CARTER, OF THE CLEOPATRA.

BIRTHS.

On the 19th inst., Lady Catherine Milnes Gaskell, of a son.
On the 16th inst., Viscountess Helmsley, of a daughter.
On Aug. 13, at Dunmore, Orford, Victoria, Mrs. Fairie, of a daughter.

MARRIAGES.

On the 18th inst., at the parish church of Bowdon, Cheshire, by the Rev. Arthur Gore, Vicar, and Canon of Chester, Francis Hicks, of Plymouth, merchant, and of Burrington Park, near Plymouth, to Grace Caroline, daughter of the late James Black, Esq., of Buenos Ayres.
On the 17th inst., at Brooklyn, U.S.A., by the Rev. C. C. Hall, Thomas Benjamin, eldest son of the late Edward Bowring, Esq., of East Moulsey, Surrey, to Annie Kinsman, third daughter of James How, Esq., of Brooklyn, U.S.A.
On the 29th ult., at St. George's Chapel, Lisbon, by the Rev. T. Godfrey P. Pope, Oswald B. Ivens, of Lisbon, to Antonia Quiles y Perez, daughter of the late Senor Dn. Manoel Quiles, of Madrid.
On the 20th inst., at Sutton Montis, Somerset, by the Rev. R. Blake Poole, George Reid, of Oporto, to Alice Georgina, daughter of the late Rev. E. Whiteley, Rector of Sutton Montis.

DEATHS.

On the 24th ult., at Middleton Lodge, Belleville, Ontario, Harriet Alice, second daughter of the late William Randolph Eppes, Esq., Deputy Commissary-General, in her 86th year.
On the 20th inst., Anne, widow of the Rev. John Holmes, of Gaudy Hall, Norfolk, aged 83 years.
On the 20th inst., at Seascale, Ann Eliza, wife of John Lindow, Esq., of Ehen Hall, Cumberland, aged 68 years.
On the 19th inst., at Ashted Park, Surrey, the Honourable Mrs. Mary Greville Howard, in the 93rd year of her age.

* The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, or Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING NOV. 3.

SUNDAY, Oct. 28.

Twenty-second Sunday after Trinity. St. James's, noon, Rev. William St. Simon and St. Jude, Apostles. Rowe Jolley, Vicar of St. John's, Birkbeck, closed.
C. E. Wright, Minister of Grosvenor Chapel, 3.15 p.m., Bishop (Cloughton); 7 p.m., Rev. W. Boyd Carpenter.
Westminster Abbey, 10 a.m. and 3 p.m., Rev. Canon Duckworth. Whitehall, closed.

MONDAY, Oct. 29.

Hare-hunting begins. Industrial Home for Reformation of Moon's last quarter, 9.21 p.m. Female Drunkards, meeting at the Mansion House, 2.30 p.m.
Accession of Albert, King of Saxony, 1873. Musical Association, annual meeting, 4 p.m.

TUESDAY, Oct. 30.

For Indian Relief Fund: Reading by Miss Amy Sedgwick, Music, &c., Mansion House, 4 p.m.
Southwell Agric. Show. Gresham Lectures, 6 p.m. (Rev. E. Ledger on Astronomy); and three following days.
Races: Brighton, Worcester.

WEDNESDAY, Oct. 31.

Louis I., King of Portugal, born, 1838. Ross Sixth Annual Poultry, Pigeon, and Dog Show (two days).

THURSDAY, Nov. 1.

All Saints' Day. Westminster Abbey, 7.30 p.m., Special Musical Service for Working-Men's Club; sermon by Dean Stanley.
Reedham Orphan Asylum, foundation to be laid of Aveling Memorial Church, 1 p.m.
Psychological Society, 8.30 p.m. (Mr. Serjeant Cox on the question, "Has Man a Soul?")
Linnæan Society, 8 p.m. (Dr. G. King on the Source of the Winged Caramon of Nepal; papers by Captain W. Armit, Rev. G. Henslow, and Mr. E. J. Miers).
Chemical Society, 8 p.m. (Mr. W. H. Perkin on some Hydro-Carbons obtained from the Homologues of Anomalous Acid, &c.; Mr. M. M. Muir on Estimating Bismuth volumetrically).
Bristol, Clifton, and West of England Dog Show (four days).

FRIDAY, Nov. 2.

All Souls' Day. Philological Society, 8 p.m. (Captain Michaelmas Law Sittings begin. Governor's Benevolent Institution, general court, elections, Willis's Rooms, noon (the Earl of Harrowby in the chair).
Archæological Institute, 4 p.m. For Indian Famine Relief Fund: (Commander Cheyne on a New Expedition to the North Pole), Cannon-street Hotel, 8 p.m.

SATURDAY, Nov. 3.

Physical Society, 8 p.m. (Professor Arton and Perry on Ice as an Electrolyte).
Organ Recital Bow and Bromley Institute, Mr. F. G. Ogbourne at 8. Mr. W. Leighton Jordan's Lecture on the Winds, Ocean Currents, &c., Willis's Rooms, 8 p.m.
London Athletic Club, Stamford Bridge.

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE KEW OBSERVATORY OF THE ROYAL SOCIETY.
Lat. 51° 28' N.; Long. 0° 18' 47' W.; Height above Sea, 34 feet.

DAY.	DAILY MEANS OF					THERMOM.		WIND.		Miles.	In.
	Barometer Corrected.	Temperature of the Air.	Dew Point.	Relative Humidity.	Amount of Cloud.	Maximum.	Minimum.	General Direction.	Movement in 24 hours, read at 10 p.m.
October	Inches.	°	°	°	0-10	°	°
17	30.324	41.3	31.5	71	4	52.0	33.5	WSW. WNW. NW.	184	0.000
18	30.309	36.7	30.1	79	2	49.8	28.5	WSW. W.	90	0.000
19	30.307	45.5	37.3	63	9	53.8	29.5	W. SW.	151	0.000
20	30.086	48.8	40.0	74	4	59.1	39.7	SW.	160	0.000
21	29.834	51.4	45.0	80	0	55.4	43.5	S. SSW.	343	0.040
22	29.740	53.7	49.7	88	8	59.8	49.0	SW. WSW.	342	1.150
23	29.384	47.3	47.3	100	8	56.0	38.7	WSW. SSW. SW.	238	0.210

The following are the readings of the meteorological instruments for the above days, in order, at ten o'clock a.m. :—
Barometer (in inches) corrected ... 30.347 30.303 30.238 30.133 29.906 29.800 29.510
Temperature of Air ... 46.0° 34.3° 40.2° 40.2° 39.9° 39.9° 31.1°
Temperature of Evaporation ... 41.1° 31.9° 38.3° 47.1° 47.9° 48.2° 50.9°
Direction of Wind ... W. W. W. W. SW. SW. SSW.

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE FOR THE WEEK ENDING NOVEMBER 3.

Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m
12 13	12 37	12 58	1 12	1 23	1 31	1 41
5 12	5 37	5 58	6 12	6 23	6 31	6 41

DORÉ'S GREAT WORKS, "THE BRAZEN SERPENT," "CHRIST LEAVING THE PRÆTORIUM," and "CHRIST ENTERING THE TEMPLE," each 25 ft. by 22 ft.; with "Dream of Pilate's Wife," "Christian Martyrs," &c., at the DORÉ GALLERY, 25, New Bond-street, W. Daily, 10 to 6. Is.

CRYSTAL PALACE PICTURE-GALLERY.—Open all the year round for the RECEPTION and SALE of PICTURES by the British and Foreign Schools. For Particulars apply to Mr. G. W. Wase.

THE ANNUAL WINTER EXHIBITION of HIGH-CLASS PICTURES is NOW OPEN at ARTHUR TOOTH'S GALLERY, 5, Haymarket (opposite Her Majesty's Theatre), from Ten till Seven o'clock. Admission, One Shilling, including Catalogue.

ST. JAMES'S HALL, PICCADILLY.

THE MOORE and BURGESS MINSTRELS will introduce an ENTIRELY NEW PROGRAMME. The whole of the songs contained in the first or musical portion of the Entertainment will be changed. New Dances, New Vocalists, and New Burlesque Sketches. The New Programme will be given EVERY NIGHT at EIGHT, and on MONDAYS, WEDNESDAYS, and SATURDAYS, at THREE and EIGHT.

Particulars, &c.: Sofa Stalls, &c.; Area, &c.; Gallery, Is. Doors Open at 2.30 for the Day Performance; at 7.30 for the Evening Performance. No fees. Ladies can retain their bonnets in all parts of the Hall.

MR. WALTER BACHE'S PIANOFORTE RECITAL (Sixth Season), on MONDAY, NOV. 5, at ST. JAMES'S HALL, at Half-past Three. Vocalist, Mr. Bentley. Accompanist, Mr. Zerlini. Stalls, &c.; Balcony, &c.; Admission, Is.—Stanley Lucas, Weber, and Co., 24, New Bond-street; Chappell's; usual Agents; and Austin's, St. James's Hall.

Now Ready,

PRICE ONE SHILLING (FREE BY POST, 1s. 2½d.).

THE

ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK

FOR 1878,

CONTAINING

SIX COLOURED PICTURES,

PRINTED BY LEIGHTON BROTHERS' CHROMATIC PROCESS.

TWELVE ILLUSTRATIONS OF THE WAR, FINE ART, &c.

TWELVE ENGRAVINGS AS HEADINGS TO THE CALENDAR.

ASTRONOMICAL DIAGRAM OF REMARKABLE PHENOMENA,

WITH EXPLANATORY NOTES.

The Royal Family of Great Britain; the Queen's Household; her Majesty's Ministers; Lists of Government Offices and Officers; Bank of England and London and Westminster Bankers; Law and University Terms; Fixed and Movable Festivals; Anniversaries; Acts of Parliament passed during the Session of 1877; Obituary of Eminent Persons; Christian, Jewish, and Mohammedan Calendars; Tables of Stamps, Taxes, and Government Duties; Times of High Water at London and Liverpool; Postal Regulations; Remarkable Occurrences, &c., 1877-78; Eclipses in the Year 1878; together with an amount of useful and valuable information, which has during the past thirty-two years made the ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK an acceptable and elegant companion to the library or drawing-room table.

The unprecedented demand for the ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK year after year stimulates the Proprietor to still greater exertions to secure for this Almanack a reception as favourable as that which has hitherto placed its circulation second only to that of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

The ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK is enclosed in an elegant cover, printed in Colours by the same process as the SIX COLOURED PLATES, and forms a charming and pleasing ornament to the drawing-room table.

The SHILLING ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK is published at the Office of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS, 198, Strand, and sold by all Book-sellers and Newsagents.

Now Ready,

THE ILLUSTRATED PENNY ALMANACK for 1878.

Containing Twenty-Four Engravings from the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS, and Gates of Constantinople, Ports on the Bosphorus and the Black Sea, Old Modes of Locomotion, &c.; Tables of Stamps, Taxes, and Licenses; Eclipses, Remarkable Events, Post-Office Regulations, and a great variety of Useful and Interesting Information. Price from 6d. to 25s. Doors open at 6.30; commence at 7. Box-Office open from Ten till Five Daily.

THEATRE ROYAL, DRURY LANE.—EVERY EVENING, at Eight, AMY ROBART, Messrs. J. Fernandez, W. Terrie, E. F. Edgar, A. Glover, Lingham, Douglas, F. Moreland, Brooke, G. Weston, Lilford, Morris, H. Vaughan; McManis Wiles, Harriet Coveney, E. Stuart, Adair, D'Arcy, Vincent, &c. Preceded by SAHARI'S YOUNG MAN. To conclude with THE COUSINSHIP. Prices from 6d. to 25s. Doors open at 6.30; commence at 7. Box-Office open from Ten till Five Daily.

THE MOONSTONE, by Wilkie Collins. A New Drama, altered from the Novel. EVERY EVENING at 8.30. Box-Office open daily from Eleven to Five. No booking fees.—OLYMPIC THEATRE.

MORNING PERFORMANCE OF THE MOONSTONE, on SATURDAY, OCT. 27, at 2.30. Box plan now open, OLYMPIC THEATRE.

MASKELYNE and COOKE. Daily at Three and Eight o'clock. EGYPTIAN HALL, Piccadilly. Fifth year in London. The present programme embraces Psycho and Zet, the twin, automatic myriads; the anecdotal scene, in exposure of so-called Spiritualism, in which Mr. Cooke flirts about the room taking the cabin with him—the most astounding feat ever accomplished; and many other illusory items of novel and original character. Such is the success of the entertainment that it is advisable to book seats in advance, for which there is no charge. Admission, 4s., 3s., 2s., 1s. W. Hoxton, Manager.

MR. and MRS. GERMAN REED'S ENTERTAINMENT, A HAPPY BUNGALOW, AT THE SEASIDE, by Mr. Corney Grain; and No. 204, Every Evening, except Thursday and Saturday, at Eight; every Thursday and Saturday, at Three. Admission, 1s., 2s., 3s., 4s.—ST. GEORGE'S HALL, Langham-place.

EVANS'S, COVENT-GARDEN.—NOTICE.—These celebrated Supper-Rooms are now open for the reception of Ladies. Evans's Choir of Boys, specially trained by and under the direction of Mr. F. Jonghmann; and the best available Comic talent. Suppers after the Theatre.—Proprietor, J. B. Anon.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

LONDON: SATURDAY, OCTOBER 27, 1877.

The tremendous gale which swept across these Islands on Sunday night and Monday morning last has prepared our minds to look with more than common interest into the annual Wreck Register recently issued for the year commencing on the 1st of July, 1875, and ending on the 30th of June, 1876. Accompanied, as that document usually has been, with a Wreck Chart for the same year, showing the spots off the British coasts upon which Wrecks and Casualties have occurred during the twelve months reported on, it is unquestionably a publication but too well fitted to inspire melancholy reflections. Although we gladly admit that the increased losses and disasters now brought under notice are due—in part, at least—to the mention in the Board of Trade returns of a considerable number of casualties which would not have been thought, some time back, of sufficient importance to be included in them, we fear that the conclusion drawn from them is undeniable that accidents at sea are yearly increasing in number. For example—the total number of wrecks, casualties, and collisions, in or near the waters of the United Kingdom, during the year 1875-6 is given in the Wreck Register as 3757, being 167 in excess of the number reported in the foregoing year. We are bound to add that this is not an increment of an isolated character. Almost every successive year the like phenomenon is exhibited, the figures representing shipping disasters off our coasts being constantly augmented. Of course, this is due, in part, to the greater extent of the mercantile fleet employed, and, in part, also, to the more frequent and violent atmospheric disturbances that may have occurred. But, on the whole, it will have to be admitted, we think, that much of the excess to be deplored must be attributed to the operation of causes which technical care and skill might well have prevented.

We shall not attempt any minute analysis of the statistical information contained in the Wreck Register for 1875-6, nor, indeed, is it necessary to the main purpose we have in view. It will suffice to present our readers with some of the more general groups of facts relating to the subject. We observe that of the number of wrecks, casualties, and collisions recorded in the present Register, comprising, as we have already intimated, a total of 3757, 502 were cases involving "total loss," 1076 were described as "serious casualties," and 2179 "minor accidents." Altogether 4554 vessels, representing a tonnage of 1,028,000 tons, were involved in these disasters, inasmuch as in cases of collisions two or more ships were necessarily involved in one casualty. Of these 4554 ships, 3602 are known to have belonged to Great Britain and its dependencies, with British certificates of registry; 152 (including five of her Majesty's ships) were British vessels not registered under the Merchant Shipping Act; 720 are known to have been ships belonging to foreign countries and States; the country and employment of the remaining 80 ships included in the Record of which we are speaking are unknown. Of the British ships, 2678 were employed in the British Coasting Trade, and 1076 in the (Oversea) Foreign and Coasting Trade. Of the total number of wrecks, 775 were collisions, and of the remaining 2982, 425 resulted in total loss, 851 resulted in serious damage, and 1706 were minor accidents. The total losses are thus described as to their causes: 176 happened when the wind was at the force of a gale, and are classed in the returns as having been caused by "stress of weather;" 111 are ascribed to inattention, carelessness, or neglect, 29 arose from defects in the ship or in her equipments; and of these 29 no fewer than 19 appear to have foundered from unseaworthiness. Of the total losses, 64 appear to have arisen from various other causes, and of the remainder (34 of which were missing vessels) the cause of loss is unknown. Glancing next at the 851 casualties resulting in serious damage but not total loss, and setting aside collisions, 357 happened when the wind was at the force of a gale, 202 were due to carelessness, 94 from defects in the ship or her equipments, and the rest from various and unknown causes. We need not pursue the analysis further. We shall only add that during the past year 345 smacks and other fishing-vessels were wrecked or disabled on our coasts. The localities of the wrecks are thus given:—East Coast, 2119; South, 427; West, 822; North and West of Scotland, 83; Irish Coast, 275; Isle of Man, 12; Lundy Island, 12; and Scilly Isles, 7. The winds most fatal to shipping during the past ten years have been westerly, and the most destructive have been winds from the south-west. The total number of lives lost was 778—148 less than those lost in the previous year.

The most cursory glance at even this sketchy outline of statistical facts will show that there is some cause at work in the management of our Mercantile Marine to which a very large proportion of our shipping disasters must be ascribed, but which cannot be set down as "inevitable." We should be sorry to cast any reflection upon ship-owners, as a class. All dangerous industrial enterprises tend to beget an habitual want of precaution, too frequently fatal, at some time or other, to life and property. But it can scarcely be held creditable to the class of men engaged in navigating our trading craft along the Coasts of the United Kingdom that so extensive a proportion of the accidents which occur to them should happen, not because the elements are unkind, but because human conduct is so thoughtless. Our Tars, perhaps, are their own worst enemies. Too many of them, incapacitated by intemperance, expose the property of others and their own lives to perils as superfluous as they are destructive. It is earnestly to be hoped that education will gradually form in them other habits, and that both at sea and on shore the rough work of the world may be done with as thoughtful a care as the safer and more congenial employments which minister to the wants of society.

The denser the darkness the brighter the light that gleams through it. We have seen the gloomier side of the picture; let us now turn to the brighter. We are told that, while 778 lives were lost, not fewer than 4358 lives were saved, from the wrecks that occurred in 1875-6. Our coasts appear to be lined with apparatus suitably fitted up and managed for the rescue of mariners in their hour of distress. Prominent among them are the Stations of the NATIONAL LIFE-BOAT INSTITUTION. The Wreck Chart brings this fact under notice at a glance. The geographical outline of the coast—of the Eastern Coast especially—is marked with a red spot wherever this noble Institution has a boat, and it is gratifying to observe how, wherever wrecks are most frequent (marked in the Chart by a black dot) they are faced by an almost continuous line of red, indicating the presence of Life-Boat Stations. At each of them the co-operation of local committees and sturdy boatmen is secured, and each is closely looked after by three Inspectors of Life-Boats, with a view to obtain as complete a system and as perfect efficiency as possible. 267 life-boats are thus brought under the management of the Institution. £8000 were expended in the year 1875-6 to volunteer crews going afloat in these boats for saving life or for quarterly exercise. Such noble efforts, and the invaluable results they have succeeded in accomplishing, as we are informed they have, have won the thorough appreciation, not only of Englishmen, but also of English-speaking people throughout Europe and the world. It is, perhaps, one of the most valuable, if not the most valuable, of our Benevolent Institutions. Dependent as it is for its resources upon the voluntary contributions of the public, it should not, and we are confident it will not, appeal in vain for that measure of help which will enable it to pursue and to extend its career of usefulness on a scale commensurate with the demands of the noble mission it has undertaken. None, surely, who contemplate the perils to which our sailors are at all times exposed, who know the terrible straits to which they are oftentimes reduced, or the inestimable worth of the service which they render to their country, can fail to take a lively interest in an Institution so fraught with blessings to our seafaring community. Its plea is irresistible; its success should make all of us proud; its work is one to which, in some shape or other, we should all be eager to lend a helping hand.

THE COURT.

The Queen, accompanied by Princess Beatrice, returned to Balmoral Castle yesterday week from the Glassalt Shiel. The Princess of Wales, with Princesses Louise Victoria and Maude of Wales, lunched with her Majesty on Saturday last. The Duke of Richmond and Gordon arrived at the castle as Minister in attendance, and dined with the Queen. On Sunday her Majesty, and Princess Beatrice and the Princess of Wales, with her three daughters, who came from Abergeldie, attended Divine service, performed at Balmoral by the Rev. A. Campbell, of Crathie. The Marquis of Hertford, Lieutenant-General Ponsonby, Mr. Charles L. Peel, and Dr. Royle arrived at the castle on Monday. The Queen received at dinner the Duke of Richmond and Gordon, the Marquis of Hertford, and Mr. Charles L. Peel, and Sir Thomas and the Hon. Lady Biddulph. The Hon. Alexander Yorke left the castle.

The Queen held a Council at Balmoral on Tuesday, at which were present Prince Leopold, the Lord President, and the Lord Chamberlain. Mr. Charles L. Peel was Clerk of the Council. The Duke of Richmond and Gordon and the Hon. Lady Biddulph dined with her Majesty. The Queen, accompanied by the members of the Royal family, has taken her usual daily drives. Messengers travel several times a day between Balmoral and Abergeldie to make inquiry on behalf of her Majesty as to the state of Miss Knollys.

The Queen has been graciously pleased to appoint the Earl of Mount-Edgumbe to be her Majesty's Lord Lieutenant and Custos Rotulorum of the county of Cornwall, in the room of Lord Vivian, who has resigned.

The Countess of Erroll and the Hon. Mary Pitt have left, and Lady Churchill and the Hon. Amy Lambert have arrived, at the castle. A detachment of the 21st Fusiliers, under command of Brevet-Major Bainbridge, has taken the place of the 79th Highlanders as a guard of honour to the Queen.

The Princess of Wales frequently visits her Majesty. Her Royal Highness is assiduous in her attention to Miss Knollys. Dr. Robertson has arrived at Abergeldie Castle on a visit to the Princess.

The Duchess of Edinburgh arrived at Marseilles on Wednesday, and was received by the Duke of Edinburgh, the English Consul, and the authorities. Her Royal Highness was escorted on board the Osborne by a guard of honour. The Duchess sailed in the evening for Malta.

Prince and Princess Christian of Schleswig-Holstein were present at a harvest-thanksgiving service held at the Royal Chapel by Cumberland Lodge, Windsor Great Park, on Sunday last. The church was tastefully decorated. The Rev. Arthur Robins, of Windsor, officiated.

Princess Louise of Lorne, the Duke and Duchess of Argyll, the Marquis of Lorne, and the other members of the Ducal family, left Inverary in the yacht Columba yesterday week for Roseneath.

His Excellency Count Münster, accompanied by Countess Marie Münster, has arrived at the German Embassy, Carlton House-terrace, from the Continent.

His Excellency the French Ambassador and the Marquise d'Harcourt have left the French Embassy for Paris.

His Excellency the Belgian Minister and Baroness Solvyns have returned to Groevenor-gardens from Brighton.

His Excellency the Danish Minister and Madame de Bülow have left town on a visit to Earl and Countess Delawarr, at Buckhurst, Tunbridge-wells.

His Excellency the Netherlands Minister returned to town on Saturday last from visiting Lord and Lady Egerton of Tatton, at Tatton Park, Knutsford.

His Excellency the Lord Lieutenant and the Duchess of Marlborough, accompanied by Ladies Georgiana and Sarah Spencer Churchill, left Dublin on Monday for Westport House, Westport, the residence of the Marquis of Sligo. The Lord Lieutenant was received at Westport by a deputation of the town commissioners, after which their Graces, accompanied by Lord John Browne, proceeded to the mansion.

General and Mrs. Grant and their son left Charing-cross station by special train on Wednesday for Paris.

The coming of age of the Hon. Pauly Hastings, second son of Mr. Abney Hastings and the late Countess of Loudoun, was celebrated on Saturday last at Donington Park.

Lord Justice Amphlett has resigned his position as one of the Judges of the Intermediate Court of Appeal, in consequence of ill-health.

Great rejoicings have taken place at Bromyard on the occasion of the opening of a line of railway from Worcester, which was projected sixteen years ago, but which, owing to various causes, has been delayed in completion.

We learn from the Renfrewshire Independent that the handsome fountain which has been erected at "The Bonnie Wee Well on the Breist o' the Brae," near Paisley, to the memory of Hugh Macdonald, author of "Rambles Round Glasgow," &c., was dedicated on the 13th inst., with much ceremony.

The whole-length portrait of the Mayor of Wigan (Walter Mayhew, Esq.), subscribed for in commemoration of the opening of the new Market Hall, which Captain Mercier was selected to paint, and which is pronounced an admirable likeness, is to be unveiled on Tuesday next, the 30th inst.

During the past week several meetings have been held throughout the country at which public men have expressed their opinions on public affairs—education, the crisis in France, the Eastern Question, and the famine in India being the chief topics discussed.

Mr. W. E. Forster presided on Tuesday evening at a soirée of the Huddersfield Mechanics' Institute, and, in his remarks upon education, advocated the communication of instruction in matters above the elements of learning by the medium of the reading books in elementary schools.

On Wednesday the Mayor of Maidstone drove the first pile of a new bridge to be constructed across the Medway in that town. The Mayor of Rochester assisting in the ceremony. The bridge will cost £32,000, half of which sum is to be contributed by the Rochester Bridge Wardens. Subsequently the Mayor of Maidstone entertained a large company at luncheon.

METROPOLITAN NEWS.

The Company of Merchant Taylors have given £21 in aid of the funds of the Royal Albert Orphan Asylum.

An extensive enlargement of St. Peter's Schools, Great Windmill-street (built in 1871) has been completed.

A fête of a popular character took place at the Alexandra Palace on Wednesday, to celebrate the charge of the Light Brigade at Balaklava.

The prizes at the North London and Hackney School of Art were distributed on Monday evening by the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress.

Lord Calthorpe, a member of the committee of management of the Hospital for Diseases of the Throat, has accepted the office of president, vice the Marquis of Bute, resigned.

Mr. Harvie Farquhar, the honorary treasurer of the Victoria Hospital, Queen's-road, Chelsea, has given £1000 towards the £4000 required for the purchase of land adjoining the Gough House site.

Two persons were burned to death on Tuesday by a fire at a house in the Mile-end-road. The family consisted of Mr. and Mrs. Way and their six sons and daughters. One of the sons was a cripple, and the father, in an ineffectual attempt to save him, lost his life.

Sir Edmund Hay Currie on Tuesday evening distributed the Queen's prizes, certificates, and amount of scholarships gained at the recent examinations of the Science and Art Department to the successful students of the Old Ford-road School of Science and Art, Bow.

On Tuesday evening the forty-ninth anniversary of the Butchers' Charitable Institution was celebrated at the Freemasons' Tavern, under the presidency of Mr. E. W. Williams, who was supported by the Lord Mayor. The subscriptions amounted to about £1000.

On Wednesday evening the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress entertained at the Mansion House the members of the Metropolitan Board of Works and the representatives of the metropolis in Parliament. The toast of the House of Commons was acknowledged by Mr. Lowe, and that of the Board of Works by Sir J. McGarel Hogg, M.P., chairman of that body.

The following is the number of paupers (exclusive of lunatics in asylums and vagrants) on the last day of the third week of October, 1877:—Indoor, adults and children, 37,747; outdoor, adults, 25,169; children, 11,972—making the total of both indoor and outdoor paupers 74,888. The corresponding total in 1876 was 78,072; in 1875, 81,725; and in 1874, 90,463. The total number of vagrants relieved in the metropolis on the last day of the third week of October, 1877, was 841, of whom 530 were men, 240 women, and 65 children.

The foundation-stone of a new wing to the Warehousemen and Clerks' Schools for Orphan and Necessitous Children, Caterham, was laid last Saturday by Mrs. Charles Leaf, in the presence of a large assembly of ladies and gentlemen. The new wing, when completed, will afford accommodation for one hundred children, raising the total number provided for to 250. The cost of the new wing will be £8000, of which £4000 has been already subscribed. At the luncheon Mr. Holms, M.P., presided, and the Archbishop of Canterbury was present.

Mr. Deputy Breffitt, late ex-Sheriff of London, was on Tuesday, at a special meeting of the Court of Aldermen, elected an Alderman for the Ward of Cheap, instead of Sir John Bennett, whom the Court refused to receive, though he has been thrice returned by the electors of the ward. Mr. Alderman Breffitt took his seat for the first time as a magistrate at the Mansion House on Wednesday, and assisted Sir Robert Carden in the disposal of the business. The Lord Mayor has issued his precept for the election of a common councilman for the ward of Dowgate, in the room of Alderman Breffitt.

The following is to be the route of the civic procession on Lord Mayor's Day, Nov. 9 next, as far as at present arranged by the committee, viz.:—Leaving Guildhall, to proceed through King-street, Cheapside, St. Martin's-le-Grand, Aldersgate-street, Barbican, Chiswell-street, Finsbury-square, Worship-street, Norton-folgate, Bishopsgate-street, Gracechurch-street, Cannon-street, St. Paul's-churchyard, Ludgate-hill, Fleet-street, Strand, to Westminster; returning by the Thames Embankment. The route is much longer than usual, but custom makes it necessary to perambulate the wards of the Lord Mayor Elect and the Sheriffs, which happen this year to lie in parts of the City widely apart. Contrary to usage, however, the procession will not pass the Mansion House.

The annual return of the number of gentlemen pursuing their professional studies at the eleven recognised metropolitan hospitals during the present session has been compiled for Mr. Charles Hawkins, F.R.C.S., the Government Inspector of the London Anatomical School. There is a considerable increase over the number of last year. St. Bartholomew's Hospital, as usual, takes the lead with the large number of 394, including 194 freshmen; followed by Guy's Hospital, with a total of 338, including 112 new entries; University College 269, new entries 64; St. Thomas's Hospital 187, new entries 52; St. George's Hospital 128, new entries 35; the London Hospital 123, new entries 46; King's College Hospital 115, new entries 40; the Middlesex Hospital 112, new entries 35; St. Mary's Hospital 102, new entries 35; the Charing-cross Hospital 82, new entries 29; and the Westminster Hospital 29, including 9 new entries; making a total of 1879, against 1125 in 1876. The new entries alone this session amount to 597. It is stated that there is also a great increase in the provincial schools.

The October session of the Central Criminal Court was opened on Monday. William Sharp, a clerk in the Brighton post-office, who was about to be married, pleaded guilty to a charge of stealing a £50 note from a letter, and was sentenced to five years' penal servitude. Two young men, nineteen years of age, named Thomas Hyslope and John Denham, described as journeymen bakers, were on Tuesday convicted of having been concerned in a highway robbery on Blackheath in May last. The prisoners, who were strongly recommended to mercy by the jury on account of their youth, were each sentenced to seven years' penal servitude. The trial of the four detectives and a solicitor, charged with conspiring to defeat the ends of justice in relation to the case of the Comtesse de Gorcourt, who was swindled out of £10,000, was begun on Wednesday. The indictment consists of 220 counts; there are 110 witnesses for the prosecution, and a large number for the defence. It is expected that the trial will occupy at least three weeks. The indictment against Swindhurst, the secretary, and Baxter Langley, the chairman, of the Artisans' and Labourers' Dwellings Company, and Saffery, an estate agent and auctioneer, on a charge of conspiring together to defraud the company of a large sum of money, came on for trial, and on Thursday evening the jury found all the prisoners guilty upon the count of conspiracy, and Langley and Swindhurst guilty on the statutory counts. Saffery was recommended to mercy. Sentence was deferred, pending the consideration of a reserved point.

The Hon. George C. Brodrick was, at Wednesday's meeting of the School Board for London, presided over by Sir Charles Reed, unanimously elected one of the representatives for Westminster, in place of the late Mr. Danby Seymour. The debate on the scheme of the School Management Committee respecting the instruction of pupil teachers and candidates at centres was again resumed and adjourned. Sir Charles Reed announced that over £500 had been collected by the children of the schools in halfpennies and pennies, with the greatest goodwill, for the Indian Famine Relief Fund.

The schedule of prizes of the Smithfield Club Show has been issued. The entries close on Nov. 1. For the Devon breed, in five classes, £220 is offered, and the same amount is distributed to Herefords and shorthorns. In the Sussex section of cattle there are also five classes, but the sum here is limited to £175 in all. For Scotch Highland cattle £85 is offered, and £85 for Scotch polled steers or oxen. Two premiums are to be awarded to Welsh runts, of the value of £15 and £10 respectively. There are three classes of cross breeds, which are often one of the most instructive features of the show, as they exhibit the power of particular breeds in crossing. The money awards for these are £135. The sum of £60 is offered for animals not coming under the above category. The distinct classes of sheep recognised in the schedule are twelve, and they are equally well treated in regard to prize-money. It is possible, according to the list of prizes, special awards, and cups, that the best ox or steer in the show may win £220; the best heifer or cow, £215; the best pen of sheep, £90; and the best pen of pigs, £25.

There were 2527 births and 1403 deaths registered in London last week. Allowing for increase of population, the births exceeded by 103, whereas the deaths were 48 below, the average numbers in the corresponding week of the last ten years. The deaths included 8 from smallpox, 36 from measles, 68 from scarlet fever, 9 from diphtheria, 21 from whooping-cough, 47 from different forms of fever, and 25 from diarrhoea. The deaths referred to fever rose from 19 and 29 in the two preceding weeks, and the 47 deaths last week exceeded the number returned in any week since October, 1873, and were 10 above the corrected weekly average; 5 were fatal cases of typhus, 36 of enteric fever, and 6 of simple continued fever. The number of smallpox patients in the Metropolitan Asylum Hospitals, which had been 137 and 144 at the end of the two preceding weeks, further rose to 153 last week; the new cases admitted during the week were 42, against 28 and 41 in the two previous weeks. The deaths referred to diseases of the respiratory organs, which had steadily increased during the seven preceding weeks from 108 to 259, further rose to 297 last week, and exceeded the corrected weekly average by 45; 178 resulting from bronchitis, and 89 from pneumonia. The death of a leather-dresser on the 13th inst., in Guy's Hospital, was referred to hydrophobia. This is the thirteenth fatal case of hydrophobia which has been registered in London since the beginning of this year, whereas only six were recorded during the year 1876. The mean temperature was 46.7 deg., and 3.1 deg. below the average. The duration of registered sunshine was 35 hours, the sun being above the horizon 73 hours.

MR. GLADSTONE IN IRELAND.

Accompanied by Mrs. Gladstone and the Hon. Mr. Spencer Lyttelton, Mr. Gladstone went to Dublin on Saturday last. They visited Christ Church, which is in course of restoration, the Synod House, and the cathedral, where they were met by the Countess of Meath. The party afterwards drove, heartily greeted by the crowd, to the Viceregal Lodge, and, having lunched with the Lord Lieutenant, returned to Kilruddery. On Sunday afternoon Mrs. and Miss Gladstone attended divine service in St. Patrick's Cathedral. Mr. Gladstone visited Trinity College, Dublin, on Monday, and was conducted over the buildings by the Provost and officials. A crowd of students who had assembled loudly cheered Mr. Gladstone, and called for a speech. He for some time resisted their appeals, but at length he addressed the students briefly from the steps of the museum building, and expressed the great pleasure which he had experienced in his visit to Ireland, and his gratification at having seen their famous University. Mr. Gladstone took luncheon with the Provost and the Fellows, and afterwards visited the Bank of Ireland, the Royal Irish Academy, and St. Patrick's Cathedral. On Tuesday Mr. Gladstone visited the Lesser Sugarloaf Mountain, and walked about the neighbourhood. Accompanied by his daughter and nephew, Lord Meath, Judge Keogh, and Judge Lawson, Mr. Gladstone on Wednesday afternoon visited Kilkenny Hill, in the neighbourhood of Bray. All the places of interest in the locality, including the Druid Circle, the ruined church, and the monument erected to the memory of the young Duke of Dorset, were inspected by the party. On Thursday he was to leave Kilruddery for the seat of Earl Fitzwilliam, at Coolatlin. On the 29th Mr. Gladstone will go to Powerscourt; on Nov. 1 to Charleville, Lord Monck's seat; and subsequently, between the 1st and 6th of that month, he will visit the Duke of Leinster at Carton. He is engaged on the 6th to dine with the Provost and Fellows of Trinity College.

In declining an invitation from Major Crawford, brother of Mr. Shurman Crawford, M.P., to visit the North of Ireland, Mr. Gladstone says that, after much consideration, he has come to the conclusion that in the present state of Irish opinion he should do best to keep silent on public affairs.

The inspection by the Lords of the Admiralty was concluded at Chatham on the 19th inst. Their Lordships expressed their entire satisfaction, and the dockyard employés are to be granted a holiday. A banquet was given in the evening by their Lordships, on board the Enchantress, to Vice-Admiral Sir W. King Hall, Commander-in-Chief at the Nore, Admiral Fellows, Lieutenant-General Erskine, and other officers.

The October Number of the Quarterly Review contains two of those half-statistical, half-anecdotic, descriptive articles, upon subjects of common social and domestic economy, which have long been a peculiarly agreeable feature of the Quarterly. The subject of one is "Carriages, Roads, and Coaches," that of the other is "Lobster, Crab, and Oyster Fisheries." An essay on "The three extreme ideals, Caesarism, Romanism, and Socialism," appears to us crude and forced in its view of their analogy with one another, but the idea is not original, or very novel, and many thinkers have found it based on superficial points of resemblance. The biographical notice of the late French Constitutional politician Odilon Barrot is much more instructive; it is followed by an historical disquisition on the Mongols of Central Asia. Little need be said of the purely literary criticisms, which treat of some recent Italian poets, or versifying declaimers, and of Mr. Alfred Austin's social satires in verse. "The New Republic and Modern Philosophers" is a favourable review of that clever book which lately caricatured, in imaginary dialogues, the style and opinions of several well-known contemporary teachers. The reviewer himself takes whip in hand to flog them as severely as he can, but he is a clumsy performer in that line.

WAR SKETCHES, BY OUR SPECIAL ARTISTS.

THE PRINCESS OF ROUMANIA'S HOSPITAL AT BUCHAREST:—TWO OF OUR ARTISTS VISITING THE HOSPITAL.

ROUMANIAN WAR HOSPITALS.

Two of our Special Artists at the War, Herr Schönberg and Mr. Irving Montagu, have together visited the military Hospital at Bucharest which has been established and is managed and personally superintended by the Princess of Roumania. Her Serene Highness Elizabeth, wife of Prince Charles of Hohenzollern, the reigning Sovereign of that country and commander of its army in the field, is a German lady, a daughter of the late Prince Hermann of Wied, and is in the thirty-fourth year of her age. She is greatly beloved and revered by the Roumanian people; and her self-denying efforts and labours to mitigate the sufferings of the wounded soldiers brought to the capital have increased their admiration for her. In the preceding one of our Artists' two Sketches of this Hospital she is represented in the act of graciously receiving their visit, accompanied by two ladies of her household, and by the Dutch Consul at Bucharest, who stands behind the small table at the left hand of the Princess. Several of the patients, lying in their beds to the right and left, one taking a few spoonfuls of broth from the nurse's hand, show the reality of the humane work carried on in this institution. The exterior of the large house in which it is located is shown in the other Illustration. With reference to other arrangements lately made in Roumania, not by the Russian military authorities, but chiefly by local and voluntary efforts, to relieve the sick and wounded of the army, we take the following extract from the letter of a correspondent of one of the London daily papers:—

"On Saturday last, in company with Colonel Mansfield, her Majesty's Diplomatic Agent, and Prince Alexander Stirbey—who has organised at his own expense a hospital upon his estate, about nine miles from Bucharest—I visited several of the Roumanian hospitals within the precincts of the capital. I am rejoiced to be able to testify to the general excellence of the arrangements made for the accommodation, nourishment, and treatment of the wounded. Roumania is exceptionally well off for hospitals, owing to the generosity of the great boyars of past generations, who founded and handsomely endowed a large number of these institutions. As the Roumanian Government has nothing to do with them except exercising merely nominal inspection and supervision of them, they are for the most part admirably managed and made really to do the work for which they were intended by their beneficent founders. A model example of these noble monuments to Roumanian public spirit and private benevolence, which offer to every Government institution of the kind the contrast of order to disorder, intelligence to stupidity, and thriftiness to extravagance, is the Brankovano Hospital, founded and endowed by a former head of the princely Brankovano family, once a power in the Principalities. The hospital is, in fact, a palace; the wards are salons and reception-rooms; a regular annual income, settled upon the hospital for all time by its founder, ensures the presence of a staff of surgeons and attendants fully capable of fulfilling the requirements of all the patients for whom there is accommodation space, and keeps up the supplies of stores, medicines, and surgical appliances to such a standard that the hospital can never be taken by surprise, or found lacking in any of its appliances, however severe or sudden the call made upon its resources. We went over the establishment with the resident manager, who took us through every ward and office, even to the kitchens; and the result of our exceptionally careful and minute inspection was that we agreed in pronouncing the organisation and arrangements of the Brankovano Hospital to be equal in every respect to those of the most highly perfected institutions ejusdem generis in Paris, Berlin, and Vienna. The most rigorous cleanliness prevailed throughout every department of the hospital. The Roumanian soldier is as obedient to orders, submissive, and humble to those set in authority over him in the hospital as in the field. Poor fellows! I found them, one and all, entirely resigned to their fate, and genuinely grateful for the kindness and attention shown them by every person connected with the hospital—as, indeed, well they might be. Several of them were married men and fathers of families, who had not received the least scrap of home news for many weeks past. They bore their pain uncomplainingly; I did not hear one man groaning or complaining in the whole building.

THE PRINCESS OF ROUMANIA'S HOSPITAL AT BUCHAREST.

THE FIRE AT INVERARY CASTLE: THE GREAT HALL.

"We subsequently visited the military hospital and the infirmary extemporised at the Ecole Militaire, in the latter of which the nursing is performed with great courage and tenderness by ladies of Bucharest society. It would be incorrect to state that either of the last-named establishments compare with the Brankovano Hospital either as to the completeness or intrinsic excellence of their organisation and appliances; nor did the wounded men present an equally healthy and well-fed appearance to that which had so much impressed us in the Brankovano patients. But, on the whole, both establishments were up to the average of military hospitals in war time, and the men who have been lucky enough to obtain admission to them may thank God for their good fortune. There were few very bad cases in either, and even they seemed to be doing pretty well; but all the men looked terribly 'pulled,' and the surgeons of the day told us that their actual physical privations had told more heavily upon their constitutions than pain or loss of blood. Many were positively emaciated from sheer want of food; and I have no doubt, from what the men themselves told me, that dozens of their own comrades, and hundreds of the Russian wounded, have died on the other side of the river from very starvation.

"Words fail to convey any adequate apprehension of the frightful condition of the field hospitals, or of the horrors to which the wounded are subjected in removal to the frontier, owing to the periodical 'clearings out' rendered inevitable by the constant arrival from the front of fresh convoys of bullock-carts, containing untended, half-starved, miserable victims of the war. At Frateshti alone lie 7000 wounded men, the greater number on the wet ground, without even a sprinkling of straw to interpose between their aching limbs and the Roumanian mud. They are under canvas, but that is all; the surgical staff is insufficient to deal with one fourth of their number; every necessary of a properly organised field hospital is wanting to them. At Turnu Magureli the miseries of the Russian and Roumanian wounded are unspeakable, and the men die by dozens daily—men who, under anything like decent care, might recover within a few weeks. On the other side of the river things are even worse; for the wounded are too frequently left without any protection from the inclemency of the weather, or any attendance and nourishment, for many hours at a stretch. In a word, the Russian ambulance and field hospital organisation, like that of the invading army itself, was arranged in keeping with the foregone conclusion that the campaign in Bulgaria would be a 'walk over'—short, not very sharp, and uniformly triumphant for the Russian arms. Very little hard fighting was anticipated, and therefore very small losses. The Grand Duke asked for 400,000 men, and got 160,000; the hospital service was organised upon a scale enabling it to meet a maximum pressure of 5000 wounded, and from 15,000 to 20,000 have been delivered to it to be dealt with in a few days. Ignorance and lack of foresight are at the bottom of all the hideous misery that has appalled civilised humanity since the achievement of the last catastrophe before Plevna. Luckily, help is at hand, or very nearly so, from abroad, and it may be hoped that the lives of some small proportion of the gallant fellows who have been desperately fighting the Turk since the 10th ult. will be saved by the timely aid of French, German, and English surgeons and stores. An agent of the English Red Cross Society arrived here on Monday, bringing with him 400 cases of medical stores, and three British surgeons are expected in Bucharest next Saturday morning. Ten French surgeons and an equal number of German Militar-Aerzte have already placed their services at the disposal of the Roumanian authorities. The Russians will not accept, so I am assured, the assistance of foreign surgeons in their ambulances and hospitals."

THE WAR.

We present this week several Illustrations, from sketches by our Special Artists with the Russian and Turkish Armies, but we have little fresh news to give of the progress of either the Bulgarian or the Armenian campaign. The Roumanians before Plevna have, indeed, been defeated in another renewed attack on the second Gravitzza redoubt. This was made by them yesterday (Friday) week with four battalions, which on the afternoon of that day issued from their most advanced parallel line of trenches to assault the redoubt, but were compelled to fall back by the violence of the Turkish musketry fire. Later, at half-past six in the evening, a new attack was made, the three foremost storming battalions leaping into the trenches, where they remained struggling with the Turks for an hour, but vainly, for possession of the redoubt. Their long absence in the trenches gave rise to the belief that the redoubt had been taken; but in the end the Roumanians withdrew, having sustained a loss of two officers and 200 men killed, and twenty officers and 707 men wounded. It is inferred that the loss of the Turks must also be considerable, because Roumanian artillery played upon the flank and rear of the Turkish reserves as they advanced to the support of the defenders of the redoubt.

There is little movement on the part of the Cæsarewitch at Biela, but it is believed that severe fighting on the Lom is imminent. According to the latest intelligence, daring reconnaissances are being pushed against the Turkish right flank by Zimmermann's cavalry, the effect of which has been to cause Suleiman to retire from his advanced positions, adopting, in fact, the same course as his predecessor, Mehemet Ali. Raouf Pasha continues Suleiman's tactics against the Shipka, and hammers away at Fort Nicholas whenever the weather allows him to do so.

An official despatch is published from the Russian headquarters in Armenia, dated Sunday. It states that after the battle of the 15th inst. the main body of the Russian army marched over the heights of Vezinkoi and Orlok, thus leaving Kars on its right, and operated against the enemy's positions at Madikars, Sarykamish, and Mazca. Respecting Ismail Pasha, it is stated that his troops, numbering twenty-seven battalions (probably 12,000 or 13,000 men) attacked the position of General Tergukasoff on the 14th inst. Their operations were principally directed against the village of Chatalai, but they were everywhere driven back and compelled to retreat to their intrenchments. On the night of the 16th Ismail Pasha evacuated his position at the foot of the mountain. He was pursued during his retreat by General Tergukasoff, who on the 18th occupied the positions on the heights of Sara formerly in Turkish occupation. But we now hear that Ismail Pasha has succeeded in rejoining Moukhtar Pasha, whose army, though much diminished and weakened, holds a defensible position at Zewin, on the mountain road half way between Kars and Erzeroum. The Russians are again surrounding Kars, but have failed in an assault upon the outworks of that place.

Two shocks of earthquake were felt at Lisbon on Thursday.

THE FIRE AT INVERARY CASTLE.

Our Illustration represents the interior of the central hall in the Duke of Argyll's noble mansion at the head of Loch Fyne, at the moment of the fire, early in the morning of Friday, the 12th inst. We are indebted for the Sketch to Captain Gambier, R.N., who was lately an occasional War Correspondent of the Times, and incidentally of this Journal, with the army of Suleiman Pasha in the Shipka Pass, but who has been staying at Inverary since his return home. Some account of the castle, and of the partial destruction by this fire of its central tower, in which the hall was situated, was given in our last published Number. The hall contained a billiard-table, with sofas and arm-chairs, on the floor. It communicated with the room adjoining by a lofty arched doorway; and was open above to the roof of the building, a height of 70 ft. There was a gallery all round the interior of the hall, on a level with the second storey of the adjacent buildings, on each side, which contained the bed-rooms and staircases used for the ordinary accommodation of the household. A small square organ was placed in this gallery, in a niche above the arched doorway. The decorations of this hall were of an appropriate and interesting character. To the right and left of the arched doorway hung the colours of the Argyllshire Fencibles, or militia, of the last century, and the pair of old regimental flags which lately belonged to the 91st Argyllshire Highlanders. That gallant regiment is proud to bear the name of her Royal Highness Princess Louise, Marchioness of Lorne, the Duke of Argyll's illustrious daughter-in-law. It is not very long since one of its officers, Captain H. R. Robley, contributed to this Journal a sketch of the scene at the presentation of the old well-worn colours to her Royal Highness, when the Duke promised to take good care for their preservation at Inverary Castle; but we have been told by Robert Burns, and have often proved by experience, how "the best-laid schemes of mice and men gang aft agley." The bronze statuette of a mounted knight in armour, which stood on the mantelpiece, was the design of Princess Louise herself, whose artistic talent as a modeller of sculpture has been frankly recognised. It was intended to represent Edward the Black Prince, and had been in an exhibition at Edinburgh. On the wall above the fireplace was displayed a large double star, formed of bayonets, and surrounded by radiating barrels of flint-lock muskets, with Lochaber axes outside. These old-fashioned weapons, together with the banners of the Argyllshire Fencibles, were memorials of the battle of Culloden. It is to be regretted that not only these, and various pieces of ancient armour, but several family portraits of much historical interest, those of the unfortunate Marquis of Argyll and his rival Montrose included, have been destroyed, with other pictures and works of art. The damage to the building itself can easily be repaired, as the massive walls are still quite sound. The Duke and Duchess of Argyll, Princess Louise, Marchioness of Lorne, and her husband, with Ladies Eveline, Victoria, Mary, Frances, and Constance Campbell, and with Lady Charteris and Mrs. Campbell of Islay, visitors at the Castle, were in the house at the time of the fire. The Marquis of Lorne took off his coat and worked manfully, aided by Mr. James Fergusson, clerk of works at the Castle, in pumping the fire-engines and laying the hose; a number of patent "extinctors," which discharge a vapour that quenches fire, were also used; and some of these, carried like knapsacks, are seen on the backs of men in the gallery, represented in Captain Gambier's sketch. It was through the arched doorway of the hall, shown in our Illustration, that Mrs. Campbell of Islay, who is blind, was led by the Marquis of Lorne, who had brought her down stairs from her own room. They had a narrow escape, for just had they reached the outer door to the lawn when down fell the huge wooden beams in the roof of the hall with a fearful crash on the stone floor. We are very thankful no person was killed or injured.

THE COLLIERY EXPLOSION AT BLANTYRE, SCOTLAND.

We had last week to record a dreadful colliery explosion near Wigan; this week we have to announce a still more melancholy accident of the same kind at the coal-pits of W. S. Dixon and Co., at Upper Blantyre, near Glasgow, which happened on Monday morning about nine o'clock. There are three pits within a distance of a quarter of a mile, connected underground; and it was in No. 3 (furthest east) that the explosion occurred. The coal gave out so little gas that the colliers were in the habit, it is stated, of working with naked lights. About nine o'clock on Monday morning, when there were 233 men and boys below, an explosion occurred which blocked up one of the shafts and sent up a stream of firedamp from the other. It was, therefore, some time before any examination of the workings was possible, but when the first descent was made only one man was found alive. During Monday night the explorers came upon three men and a boy who were alive. The latter died before he reached the pit brow; the others were brought carefully to the surface and their wants ministered to, but one died on his way to the infirmary, and the other two are so ill that the issue with them is very doubtful. On Wednesday twenty-six bodies were taken out of No. 2 pit. During the night a pony was found in the north side of the workings. It was still alive, but suffering from the effects of foul air. It is believed that at least 200 lives have been lost. A consultation has been held by the mining engineers, several representatives of the firm of Messrs. William Dixon and Co., and various gentlemen experienced in colliery matters, and their unanimous opinion is that there is no hope for the safety of the imprisoned miners. It is, therefore, deemed advisable that future operations should be conducted with the greatest care for the safety of those engaged in the work, so as to guard against the possibility of further loss of life.

On Wednesday Mr. Ralph Moore received from Sir Thomas Biddulph a telegram from her Majesty the Queen, which ran as follows:—"The Queen wishes to know the extent of the disaster in the colliery, and hopes it may not be so great as reported." To this message Mr. Moore replied that unfortunately the news was only too true. At a late hour on Wednesday night the following further message was received by the Government Inspector:—"The Queen is anxious to hear whether any more of the men have been saved, and inquires how the sufferers who have been rescued are going on."

The Secretary of State has directed that a public local inquiry into the cause of the explosion shall as soon as possible be held by her Majesty's Inspector, Mr. Dickinson, and a legal assessor.

Mr. Dixon, the principal proprietor of the colliery in which the calamity occurred, has headed an appeal to the public for aid to the widows and orphans by a subscription of £1000.

Mr. Henry Reece, M.R.C.S., 168, Piccadilly, writes as follows on the subject of colliery explosions:—"The necessity of the managers of mines being provided with those securities against accidents which science has provided is rendered painfully evident by the late deaths of Messrs. Watkin, Cooke, and Laverick in the Wigan mine. Had these brave men been provided with the cheap but most effective apparatus for enabling them with safety to enter a poisonous atmosphere, where a light could not burn or an animal live, they could with perfect safety have carried out their search for the missing miners through passages where, even at the entrance, they sacrificed their valuable lives. The electric lamp affords such a safe and bright light that the darkest portion of the mine could be illuminated with perfect safety where even the glimmering faint light of the Davy lamp could not be trusted. Provided with the apparatus enabling them to breathe pure air in the most suffocating atmosphere an explosion could produce, furnished with the brilliant safe light of the electric lamp, where the feeble light afforded by the miner's lamp would cause an explosion, these devoted men would have been able to render most valuable assistance in place of only adding to the sad number of the victims to the explosion. The electric lamp may not be able to compete in economy, &c., with gas in our streets, theatres, or rooms; but its safety and brilliancy should certainly give it the preference over the dim and dangerous lamp used by the miners. The apparatus, costing only a few shillings, which experience has shown confers absolute safety on its wearer in the most poisonous atmosphere, should certainly be kept in readiness where this tragedy shows it is so much required."

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL NEWS.

FRANCE.

A Cabinet Council was held in Paris on Tuesday, and the Moniteur says that, after it was over, Marshal MacMahon had a rather long conversation with the Duc de Broglie and M. de Fourtou, and in the course of it said plainly that the idea of Ministerial changes could not be entertained "at the present moment."

The Bureaux of the Left in the Senate have issued an address to the electors, reminding them that in naming councillors general and councillors of arrondissements they will be appointing senatorial electors, that the senators of departments are renewable by thirds, and that the first renewal will take place in December of next year.

M. Jules Grévy, following the advice of his friends, is stated to have decided to accept the representation of Paris in the new Chamber of Deputies, in order to give his election more general significance than it would have in a smaller and less important constituency.

According to the official returns of the results of the recent general elections, the colonies excepted, 4,313,000 Republican and 3,636,000 Conservative votes were recorded, thus leaving a balance of 677,000 votes in favour of the Republicans. In 1876 the total number of Republican votes was 4,030,000, and of Conservatives votes 3,160,000. The Republicans have thus gained 283,000, and the Conservatives 476,000 votes.

M. Mestreau, a Republican deputy, has been sentenced by the tribunal of Marennes to one month's imprisonment and a fine of 2000f. for having insulted Marshal MacMahon, the Duc de Broglie, and M. de Fourtou.

Lord Lyons, our Ambassador, has returned to Paris.

General Grant arrived at Paris on Wednesday evening. He was received at the station by General Noyes, the American Minister, and numerous Americans; and next day he visited Marshal MacMahon.

General Noyes and Mrs. Noyes have been received by the Duchess de Magenta.

The youngest son of the Queen of Oude has arrived at Paris.

The principal building in connection with the Paris Exhibition of next year has been completed, and great progress is also being made with the foreign department, especially the British, where an immense building for the exhibition of agricultural machinery has just been finished.

The death, at the age of eighty-four, of M. Dubochet, the founder of the Comptoir d'Escompte, and a well-known Paris financier, is announced. He leaves an immense fortune, and rumours are current that he has bequeathed part of it to M. Gambetta.

The Academy of Medicine at Paris has accepted a legacy of 100,000f. left by Dr. Demarquay to assist that body in erecting a residence worthy of it.

It is announced in the French papers that after prolonged negotiations at Stockholm the Government of Sweden and Norway has agreed to cede to France the Swedish island of St. Bartholomew, one of the West Indian Leeward Islands, in return for a sum of 277,500f. Pending the ratification of the contract by the Chambers of the countries concerned, the white population of St. Bartholomew has been consulted, and has pronounced by a majority of 351 votes against 1 in favour of the proposed transfer of the island to France. The island was originally settled by the French in 1648, and was ceded by them to the Swedes in 1784. It is about eight miles long, and varies from two to three in breadth, its area being about twenty-five square miles. The population at the present time is estimated at 2800 souls.

SPAIN.

A Royal order was officially published at Madrid on Monday censuring the Mayor of a village in Andalusia for having put pressure upon the parents of a Protestant infant to give it Catholic baptism, the Royal order declaring the desire of the Government to prevent any violation of the liberty of conscience, which it will cause to be respected.

According to a despatch of Tuesday's date from Havana, the Spaniards have captured Estrada, the President of the so-called Cuban Republic. Official intelligence has been received at Madrid that the force under the insurgent General Riuz has been reduced to thirty men by the dissensions which have broken out among the insurgents in the district of Manganille. The Spanish authorities have received the submission of five colonels, several officers, and upwards of one hundred men. A despatch from New York states that the President of the Cuban Chambers and the Insurgent Secretary of War have been killed in an engagement between the Spanish troops and the insurgents in Cuba.

SWITZERLAND.

A popular vote was taken on Sunday upon the newly-proposed laws concerning electoral rights, the military tax, and work in factories. The bill relating to the right of suffrage of persons living beyond the boundaries of their native communes and the bill regulating the tax to be paid by persons unfit for military service were rejected, while the bill concerning work in factories, was adopted.

GERMANY.

The Emperor William, who arrived at Berlin last Saturday evening, was to leave on Thursday for Wernigerode, the seat of Count Stolberg, to take part in some battues.

Field-Marshal Count von Moltke has returned to Berlin, after an excursion made with his staff in the western provinces of the German Empire, particularly Alsace-Lorraine.

The Prussian Parliament was opened last Sunday morning by Herr Camphausen, the Finance Minister and Vice-President of the Prussian Cabinet, who read the Speech from the Throne. It states that the financial results for 1876 were favourable beyond all expectation; but that, on the other hand, the matriculatory contributions of the different States to the Imperial Budget will be considerably higher for the current administrative year. The speech announces that the following measures will be submitted to the Diet during the present Session: "A loan bill, a bill for modifying town and road regulations, a bill concerning communal taxes, and, finally, several bills having reference to the constitution of the German law courts." In conclusion, the speech expresses the grateful thanks of the Emperor for the striking proofs of loyalty and devotion manifested towards his Majesty by all classes of the population during his recent journey through several provinces of the monarchy. In Monday's sitting of the Lower House Herr von Bennigsen was re-elected by acclamation President, and Herren Klotz and von Bethusy Vice-Presidents, upon the motion of Deputy Windhorst. The Budget was submitted to the Lower House on Tuesday. Herr Camphausen stated that for the year 1876 there was a surplus of 22,000,000 marks, and that the State had 300,000,000 marks at its disposal for railway purposes. In conclusion, the Minister gave notice of the new loan to be issued for public works. The House was previously informed that the King had declined to accept Count Eulenburg's resignation, but had granted him six months' leave of absence, during which term Dr. Friedenthal, the Minister of Agriculture, would be intrusted with the control of the Ministry of the Interior.

Prince Lewis Ferdinand of Bavaria attained his majority on Monday last. King Lewis on that day conferred upon him the order of St. Hubert, and gave him a commission in the 2nd Regiment of Cuirassiers. Prince Lewis Ferdinand is also about to be called to take his seat in the Chamber of Royal Councillors.

A new iron corvette, to which the name of Moltke has been given, was successfully launched at the Imperial docks at Dantzig on Saturday last.

A bill has been laid before the Chambers of Hesse raising the Grand Duke's civil list by 14,574 marks (£728) per annum—that is, to a total of 1,095,188 marks (about £54,764). In consideration of the comparatively heavy liabilities incurred by the late Grand Duke in building a theatre, and by the present Grand Duke in building a new palace, it is proposed that for the next ten years the civil list shall be paid at the rate of 1,349,818 marks (about £67,500) a year.

AUSTRO-HUNGARY.

The Empress of Austria, it is announced, intends after Christmas to pass some time in England.

The Morning Post hears that Sir Andrew Buchanan is about to retire on his well-earned pension, and that he will be succeeded in the Embassy at Vienna by Sir Henry Elliot.

On Tuesday the Austrian Budget was submitted to the Lower House of the Reichsrath. The Minister of Finance said that it showed a decided change for the better. The expenditure is estimated at 421,347,469 fl., being an increase of 7,200,000 fl. compared with the Budget of 1877. This increase, the Minister explained, was owing to an intended larger redemption of the public debt. The receipts are estimated at 401,114,600 fl., being 24,800,000 fl. more than in 1877. Of this increase, 16,700,000 fl. would accrue from an intended sale of Treasury bonds for the redemption of public debt. Setting aside the sums relating to the debt, the expenditure for 1878 would be 9,500,000 fl. less and the receipts 8,000,000 fl. more than in 1877; whilst the deficit would be 20,200,000 fl., against 37,800,000 fl. Thus, the Minister said, the Budget for 1878 shows an improvement of 17,600,000 fl. upon the previous year. This improvement was the result of serious efforts at a reduction of the expenditure and an increase of revenue. For the purpose of effecting these economies a special commission had been appointed, which would continue to exercise its functions. The Minister proposes to cover the deficit of 20,200,000 fl. by the issue of gold rentes.

GREECE.

The Session of the Greek Chamber was opened on Monday by a Royal order, which was read by M. Coumoundouros.

AMERICA.

The Senate has passed a resolution providing that a committee of seven senators shall consider the existing state of the law with regard to ascertaining the declaration of the result of the elections for President and Vice-President of the United States, and confer with a Committee of the House of Representatives, who on their part have passed a resolution appointing a committee of eleven members to act upon the same subject.

In the Senate the chief business has been the introduction and reference to committees of numbers of bills introduced by the advocates of a silver currency on the one side, and Inflationists on the other. The majority of the Congressional Silver Commission have reported to the Senate in favour of the full restoration of the double standard gold and silver currency and the unlimited coinage of both. They recommend that the Government should have the right of paying bonds in gold or silver, and believe that a resumption of specie payments will be impracticable unless the double standard currency is restored.

Accounts received from all parts of the country show that the wheat harvest is the largest ever produced in the States.

A telegram of Wednesday's date from New York announces the sailing on the previous day of the steamer J. B. Walker, with arms and ammunition for Constantinople.

Reports come from Manitoba that the efforts of General Terry's Commission to effect an arrangement with the Indian chief Sitting Bull have failed. The Commissioners succeeded in getting an interview with Sitting Bull, but he dismissed them abruptly and disdainfully. By a later telegram we learn that the Government has instructed the commission treating with Sitting Bull at Fort Walsh to break off negotiations if that chief should refuse to return peaceably to the United States, adding that the British Government would no doubt take the necessary measures to protect the United States territory against a hostile invasion.

The New York papers contain further revelations made by Tweed of the frauds perpetrated by the Tammany Ring.

What the writer calls the most astounding fraud of all the numerous recent ones disclosed in America is described by the American correspondent of the Times—namely, the over-issue of stock in the West Philadelphia Passenger Railway, the development of which has just appalled Philadelphia.

This railway, popularly known as the Market-street Railway, is the chief and most prosperous horse-car passenger road in Philadelphia. It has been dividing 30 to 35 per cent a year, and apparently laying up a surplus besides. Its stock was 8000 shares at the par value of 50 dols., but so tightly held by the owners that sales were rarely made, and, when they were, the quotation was 150 dols. to 175 dols. per share. Its roadway, coaches, horses, and, in fact, all things pertaining to it, were kept in the highest state of efficiency. In 1868 John S. Morton was made president of the railway. For seven years he managed it honestly; but in 1870, he suffered a loss in speculation, borrowed the money to make it good, pledging as "collateral" a fraudulent certificate for several hundred shares of "Market-street stock." This act led to others. In order to issue the first fraudulent certificate he had to procure the connivance of the treasurer and secretary of the railway, which he did. He carried the debt for three years, unable to make it good, and then found that the treasurer was short 80,000 dols. in his accounts. They had to cover each other's crimes, and more fraudulent stock had to be issued to make good this loss. Interest accumulated, and this, added to the principal, required additional certificates. They were put out as fast as wanted, and each note was paid by creating another. Banks and private money-lenders were only too willing to lend money on such good "collateral," and it was taken at a margin gradually rising from 80 dols. to 150 dols. a share. Finding the debts accumulate, the guilty official resorted to various enterprises in the hope of recouping their losses. This required more money, and to raise it more fraudulent stock had to be put out. Nearly every enterprise was a failure, and this increased the frightful debt. When the Centennial Exhibition came one enterprise after another was gone into and failed, the most conspicuous being the printing of the Exhibition catalogue. The treasurer was a partner in a printing-house. This house, with Morton, paid 100,000 dols. bonus for the privilege of printing the Exhibition catalogue, and lost 150,000 dols. by the operation. The millions of visitors who thronged the Exhibition were anxious to see the goods, but not to buy the catalogue. The culprits invested in a patent steam canal-boat, a motor for street-cars, a porcelain factory, and some other enterprises, all turning out failures, and increasing the pile of debt, and requiring additional issues of fraudulent certificates.

This sort of thing went on for seven years. All the time the railway increased in prosperity, declared enormous dividends, showed plethoric balance-sheets and a good bank account, and the prices of shares advanced. When January, 1877, came there was 181,000 dols. in bank, according to the books. But, alas! the money was not there. All the ready money the railway brought in—and its income was about 2000 dols. a day—went as fast as received into the whirlpool that was engulfing the officers. They paid wages, bills for horse-feed, and railway bills by giving notes, and to these they pinned more fraudulent stock certificates. They borrowed the money to pay the dividends, and thus put up more "collateral." All the time Morton increased in fame and social standing. A man of most affable qualities and prodigious energy, he was conspicuous in every public enterprise. Philadelphia was replete with public spirit during the Centennial year, and Morton ever kept in the front rank. He was a prominent candidate for Governor of Pennsylvania, and was elected president of the Permanent Exhibition Company, which is continuing the great Exhibition of 1876 with much of its former splendour. The railway directors were so proud of him that they had built a magnificent railway station and public hall, naming it "Morton Hall," in honour of his distinguished ancestor. Yet this man, with all his outward fame and fortune, had for seven years the knowledge of accumulating guilt that was sure to overwhelm him, and, as he says, suffered all the torments of a "hell on earth." What is equally suspicious, not one of the eight directors of the railway had the slightest suspicion of what was going on until the merest accident disclosed it.

CANADA.

Lord Dufferin, accompanied by Lady Dufferin and suite, has been making a Viceregal progress through the Province of Manitoba and portions of the North-West territory, thereby completing his personal acquaintance with every inhabited portion of the Dominion, from Cape Breton to Vancouver Island; and (adds the Canadian correspondent of the Times) it has put the copestone to his popularity with the people he was sent to govern. Two of the most interesting incidents of his progress were his visit to the Mennonite settlements and to those of the Icelanders. The Mennonite reserves are two in number—Rat River reserve, consisting of eight townships east of Red River, and Dufferin reserve, consisting of seventeen townships west of Red River. The first of these Mennonites arrived in 1874, and now they number 6340. They make excellent settlers, and are distinguished for their good conduct and cleanliness. The Icelandic colony is in the territory of Keewatin, on the west shore of Lake Winnipeg. Their chief village is called Gimli (Paradise), where some 268 Icelanders settled in 1875. In 1876, 1156 more came into the territory.

Mr. Laurier, the new Minister of Inland Revenue, in addressing his constituents last week, said that the Government would immediately open negotiations with the United States for the conclusion of a reciprocity treaty.

A telegram from Ottawa on Wednesday states that the Blackfoot Indians have ceded 51,000 square miles of valuable territory to the Canadian Government. The Indians in exchange receive certain reservations for each band and a number of gifts.

A great fire, causing the destruction of 230 houses, and rendering some 2000 persons homeless, has occurred in a suburb of St. John, New Brunswick.

THE CAPE COLONIES.

Fighting, according to the latest news from the Cape (to Oct. 2) began in the Transkei (South Africa) on the 24th of last month, when the Galekas attacked the Fingoes and 120 police at South Mapassa, but subsequently retired with a loss of 200 men. Five days later they attacked, with a strength of 8000, the camp of Ibeka, and, after four hours' combat, were repulsed, and pursued a distance of two miles. The Governor (Sir Bartle Frere), and Lieutenant-General Sir Arthur Cunynghame, commander of the forces, were both present at the scene of the disturbance. Two hundred men of the 88th Regiment have been sent from Simon's Bay, and one hundred more are to follow. A telegram to the Times says it is expected that the disturbance will be localised, and that the tribes will not join in it.

A Reutea's telegram from Madeira of Thursday's date says intelligence has been received there by the Roman that Mr. Robert Bell, justice of the peace of New Scotland, Transvaal, has been murdered by order of a native chief.

The proposal to form at the Cape an armed police force has been approved by the Colonial Office, and the work of organisation will be intrusted to the military authorities on the spot. The new force will take over duties similar to those performed until 1870 by the Cape Mounted Riflemen, and it will be maintained solely at the expense of the local Government, the officers and men being, however, subject to the ordinary rules for the enforcement of military discipline.

Upon the recommendation of a select committee of the Legislative Assembly, it has been decided to hold a second International Exhibition at Cape Town, to be opened in April next. It will include an agricultural department organised on a large scale. Intending exhibitors should communicate with Mr. Johnson, Commissaire Délégué, 3, Castle-street, Holborn.

The Mayor of Durban, seaport of Natal, states in his "Annual Minute," recently issued, that the population of the borough of Durban is 10,488—namely, 5312 whites, 3177 Kaffirs, and 1999 Indians. Durban, therefore, is now in population the third town in South Africa, taking rank next to Port Elizabeth, which has about 16,000 inhabitants.

INDIA.

The Viceroy, in a telegram dated the 20th inst., reports that in Madras the rainfall last week averaged one inch and a half, and the prospects of the crops were everywhere good. In Bombay the crop prospects were good everywhere except in Scinde, where they were gloomy. The prospects were also good in Mysore, the North-Western Provinces, the Punjab, Indore, the Central Provinces, Assam, Burmah, and Hyderabad. There had been a reduction of 356,790 during the week in the numbers receiving relief in Bombay and Madras, which caused a decrease of £110,000 in the monthly famine expenditure.

CHINA.

A telegram from Hong-Kong, dated the 8th inst., states that general satisfaction is expressed at the proposition of Governor Hennessey to build a breakwater for the protection of the junk population during typhoons. Three years ago, for want of such a structure, 4000 Chinese were drowned in one night in the harbour of Hong-Kong. Admiral Ryder and Commodore Watson warmly approve of the scheme.

His Excellency has issued instructions to prevent any coolie emigration to Peru, where it is alleged the indentured labourers were treated as slaves.

PERU.

The Shah is coming to Europe again next spring. A despatch from Teheran of Saturday's date says that Mirza Ali Khan Emin-ul-Mouk, his Majesty's private secretary, left on Friday afternoon to make the necessary preparations at the various capitals, including London and Paris. His Majesty, it is added, will travel incognito.

AUSTRALIA.

A telegram from Adelaide, dated Oct. 19, says that the South Australian Legislative Assembly has passed a vote of confidence in the Ministry.

The Melbourne Argus of Sept. 3 states that the Free-Trade League of Victoria, which was formed on Aug. 11, 1876, held its first annual meeting on Aug. 30. The report of the executive committee described in detail the work of the league during the past year, and concludes thus:—"There is therefore every encouragement for continued exertion on the part of the Free-Trade League, with a fair confidence that principles which have been conclusively proved to be true will sooner or later prevail in this colony."

NEW ZEALAND.

A new Ministry has been formed by Sir George Grey, who assumes office as Premier, with Messrs. Larnach, M'Andrew, Sheehan, and Fisher as colleagues. Sir George, it will be remembered, was a former Governor, who subsequently took to politics in the colony as an ordinary statesman. This news comes by telegram dated the 15th inst. We learn by a later telegram that Mr. Larnach takes office as Colonial Treasurer, and Mr. M'Andrew as secretary for Lands. Sir George Grey himself takes the post of Colonial Secretary.

A letter of Aug. 25 in the Times spoke of the native lands question as one likely to result in a change of Ministry. Sir George Grey has special views on this, and is an opponent of the abolition of provincialism.

The Times' correspondent just alluded to says:—"Among the most important measures resulting from the abolition of 'provincialism' is an Education Bill for the whole colony, which has been introduced by Ministers. It is as near an approach as possible to a complete secular system, the only semblance of religious instruction proposed being the reading of the Bible, without comment, on the opening of the school, with the reservation of a right to parents who object to this to keep their children outside the doors till it is over. The whole cost of education is proposed to be borne on the consolidated fund, which will be an inestimable boon to the North Island, where the provision for public education has been miserably insufficient, while in the South Island it has been magnificently endowed out of the Land Revenue. The bill will meet with opposition from some of the religious bodies, on account of the absence of any provision for subsidising denominational schools; but I do not think that, except among the Roman Catholics, there is a sufficiently strong feeling against a purely secular system to create any violent opposition to a bill otherwise good."

The British Vice-Consul at Ferrol has taken charge of the ship Cleopatra, having the obelisk on board.

A despatch from Singapore tells us that eleven bandits, who had committed many murders, have been hanged.

The Daily News' correspondent at Alexandria telegraphs that Signor Gessi and Signor Matteucci, the African explorers from Italy, had left Alexandria for Assouan and Khartoum.

The Queen has appointed Mr. Robert Ffrench Sheriff, lately Attorney-General of the Leeward Islands, to be Attorney-General of Gibraltar.

Don Miguel, the Portuguese Pretender, married at Ratisbon, on the 17th inst., the Princess of Thurm and Taxis, daughter of the Duchess Eleanor of Bavaria.

A Lloyd's telegram advises the safe arrival at Brisbane of the ship Roxburghshire, which left the Clyde on July 5 with 292 passengers on board. The voyage occupied ninety days.

A Berlin telegram to the Morning Post says that, in consequence of Chinese bands having threatened an invasion of Kuldsha, a Russian detachment has been sent for the protection of the frontier.

A small force is to be formed, under command of an English official, to undertake police duties solely in connection with the suppression of the traffic in slaves at suspected ports in the Red Sea.

A telegram from New York announces the coming of a heavy south-easterly gale, which will probably strike the British coasts about Saturday (to-day). Vessels bound for American ports north of lat. 35 deg. are especially warned.

A severe thunderstorm burst over Suez on Tuesday. During the night the banks of the fresh water canal were washed away, inundating and destroying part of the native town, and completely stopping the railway traffic.

A French gun-boat which has arrived at New York from San Francisco reports that Pomare, the Queen of the Society Islands, died on Sept. 17, and that her son Arxane had been proclaimed King.

An educational census of children between the ages of four and fifteen years has been ordered to be made in St. Helier's, Jersey, by the States Committee on Elementary Education. This step is regarded as the prelude to the introduction of a measure similar to the School Board system in England.

The Pope has appointed Cardinal Bilio, the author of the Syllabus, Major-Penitentiary, vice Cardinal Panebianco, resigned from illness. For having in his works supported the idea that the temporal power of the Pope is not a necessary institution, the Jesuit Father Curic has been expelled from the Society of Jesus.

News has reached Egypt from Abyssinia to Sept. 14, the purport of which is that no definite peace between King John and the Egyptian Government had been signed up to that time. King John, having completely defeated King Menelek, of Shoa, insists upon the possession of Massowah. A telegram from Alexandria says this news is not official, but it is derived from a trustworthy source. The despatch adds:—Gordon Pasha telegraphs that an Egyptian war-vessel should leave for Massowah in order to meet him there.

An American lady, Miss Maxson, who had been staying at the Hôtel de la Tour de Londres at Verona last August, left behind her two bracelets, a gold brooch, and a coral necklace, valued at £150. The articles were found by the chambermaid and handed over to the hotel-keeper, who placed them in the custody of the Syndic. The Syndic afterwards learned that the lady was travelling in England and had banking correspondents in the city of London, and he accordingly communicated with the Lord Mayor, and asked him to undertake the handing over of the jewellery to the owner, suggesting only that some little reward might be given to the chambermaid. The Lord Mayor placed the package in the hands of the lady's bankers, but Miss Maxson had sailed that very day for New York. Her address, however, is known, and the jewellery will be forwarded to her. The Lord Mayor has thanked the Syndic for his courtesy.

THE WAR: TURKS HAULING
FROM A SKETCH BY O

GUNS UP TO THE FRONT.
OF OUR SPECIAL ARTISTS.

ECHOES OF THE WEEK.

"Acting under the advice of my counsel," quoth Inspector Meiklejohn, in the dock of the Central Criminal Court on Wednesday, "I do not plead." The Clerk of the Arraigns then demitted of Inspector Druscovich if he would say that he were guilty or not guilty. "I decline to plead," answered Druscovich. Similar refusals were made by Palmer, by Clarke, and by Mr. Froggatt the solicitor. In fact, all the prisoners arraigned for alleged complicity in the Great Turf Frauds declined to plead; and, in accordance with our modern and more humane system of criminal procedure, a plea of "Not guilty" was entered for all the recalcitrant defendants. The same course is followed when a prisoner stands "mute of malice;" or, as the common people put it, "plays mum-chance."

My legal readers know what would have happened to these six men had they refused to hold up their hands and say "guilty" or "not guilty" in the days of stern Mr. Justice Page, and even at an epoch considerably later than that in which that eminent hanging Judge flourished. Meiklejohn, Druscovich, and the rest would all have been pressed to death. The wretch condemned to the peine forte et dure was taken into the press-yard—the name of which, I believe, still survives in the interior of Newgate; there he was stripped and stretched on the cold stones. Enormously heavy iron weights were then placed on his heart; and all his sustenance was a few morsels of barley bread and a little of the running water that was next the prison door. So, under the peine forte et dure, he remained until he pleaded, or until (persisting in his obstinacy) he was mercifully relieved from his sufferings by death. You will find a very graphic description of the horrible process in Mr. Ainsworth's clever, but mischievous, romance of "Jack Sheppard," in which Blueskin is pressed to death; and an extravagantly burlesqued account of the torture in M. Victor Hugo's "Homme qui rit."

It would, nevertheless, be inexpedient to be very vain-glorious because we no longer press prisoners to death. I am no lawyer; but it seems to me that our criminal law is getting into a very deplorable state of muddle. In the reports of the many hundreds of criminal trials of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries which I have read through and annotated, the proceedings (so far as I can make out from the printed Sessions Papers) always begin by the reading of the indictment by the Clerk of the Arraigns; and the first object of Counsel for the defence was to endeavour to find a flaw in the phraseology of the indictment, so as to get their clients off on the mere score of a legal technicality. Thus, if you were indicted for killing and slaying Cock Robin, and it could be shown that the name of the deceased was Cock Robin Redbreast, you got off; and in the case of Christopher Layer (tried for high treason, temp. George I.), Mr. Hungerford, for the prisoner, absolutely applied to have the indictment quashed because in a Latin phrase used therein an ablative had been put for an accusative case. At present a bill of indictment seems only to concern the law stationers (who doubtless charge a pretty penny for engrossing it), and nobody else. The squabble on Wednesday at the Old Bailey was all about the indictment, which, lucus à non lucendo, was so big that nobody except the scribes and the Attorney-General seems to have been able to see it. Would it not be better to substitute for an indictment, couched in legal jargon which nobody but the lawyers can understand, an Act of Accusation, after the French fashion, to be read in open court? Surely, the person in the dock ought to know something about that which he is accused of having done.

"Where is the grave of Sir Arthur Orellan? Where may the grave of that good knight be?" Unless I am not mistaken (I am quoting from memory), Coleridge goes on to tell us, in his exquisite little snatch of lyric, that Sir Arthur is buried on the slope of Helvellyn, under the shade of a young birch-tree, and that His sword is rust;

His bones are dust;
And his soul is with the Saints, we trust.

The concluding aspiration may be reverently felt by all men when they hear the name and remember the fame of Christopher Columbus; but where are the bones of the illustrious Navigator, whom the Holy See have lately (and somewhat ungratefully) declined to canonise? I have seen (it is fourteen years ago) the tomb of Columbus in the Cathedral of San Cristobal de la Havana; and until recently I believed (with all and sundry) that in the cenotaph I saw in 1863 the Admiral's dust was really mouldering. I believed that the corpse of the famous Genoese had been transferred from Seville to Santo Domingo (Hispaniola), and thence, in 1795, to Cuba; but it seems that all the world and I have been strangely in error on this point. The Chapter of the Cathedral of Santo Domingo (the Spanish-speaking portion of the magnificent island of which Hayti is the French section) claim to have discovered a chest containing human remains which, from unimpeachable evidence, must be recognised as those of Christopher Columbus. But, supposing this to be an ascertained fact, where should the dust of the Admiral be finally interred? There is no reason why he should rest in the Cathedral of San Cristobal. He was at Santiago de Cuba (pardon, and correct me if I am blundering), but never at Havana in the flesh. I cannot see what claim Santo Domingo can put forward to become the repository of his ashes. The Peninsular Spaniards have not the slightest right to keep him, for their ancestors treated Columbus worse than any dog was ever treated. To my mind, if there be in the Kingdom of Italy a gentleman as munificent and as public spirited as Mr. Erasmus Wilson, that gentleman should make application to the Government of Santo Domingo for permission to bring home at his own expense, the ashes of the Discoverer of the New World, and give the honoured relics an abiding shrine in the Admiral's native city, Genoa. The Italian Government and the municipality of "Genova la Superba" would surely associate themselves with such an enterprise; and perhaps the Capitular body of the Hispaniolan Cathedral, as Columbus is not to be canonised, would part with his body "for a consideration."

That unfortunate Cleopatra's needle! Upon my word, I begin to think that the end of the big boulder will be to get into Chancery, and then, who shall say what will happen to it? Already there are as many legal questions bristling round it as there are hieroglyphics on its mouldy old face. The Captain of the Fitzmaurice picked it up, abandoned and knocking about in the Bay of Biscay. Is it a derelict? If it be so, the Needle is, by clearly ascertained maritime law, the sole property of the person who finds it. There is then no question of salvage; the derelict belongs to the Captain of the Fitzmaurice, and to nobody else. But then it may be "flotsam and jetsam;" and in that case the Spanish Government might put in some claim to it. Finally, if it be only held to be a partial wreck rescued by the Captain of the Fitzmaurice, how is the value of the Needle on which salvage can be claimed to be estimated? It has been insured, I hear, for two thousand pounds; but cargoes are frequently insured far beneath their real value. It has been spoken of as a "priceless relic." Suppose the captain of the Fitzmaurice were to appraise a "priceless relic" at £1,000,000, and demand ten per cent thereupon?

The Right Hon. Robert Lowe, M.P., speaking at a Mansion House dinner on Wednesday, does not, seemingly, think much of Cleopatra's Needle. "There was nothing," remarked the ex-Chancellor of the Exchequer, "remarkable as regarded the size of the obelisk; there was nothing conspicuous in its appearance; it was a very plain and simple thing, something like 3000 years old; the toy, the plaything, of a tyrant who, not caring much for beauty or elegance, took this opportunity of showing his power; and it had been transported to the place where it was found at the cost of, probably, many hundreds of lives. Mr. Lowe might have added that six brave British sailors perished the other day in the attempt to "tackle" this battered old stone pillar with the top broken off. But a site, I suppose, must be found for it if the obelisk ever reaches these shores in safety. Mr. Lowe thinks that a place might be found for the monolith either in the Green Park or in Hyde Park, "where nothing would interfere with its full solemn relief." In this column I have ventured to suggest two sites for the Needle: one, the courtyard of the British Museum; the other, the esplanade in front of Greenwich Hospital. Both these suggestions have (I dare say deservedly) been pooh-poohed; but I am not discouraged. I have a third site—"in my mind's eye, Horatio." Let the Needle be set up in front of the antique and palatial Hall of the Needle-makers' Company, one of our most influential and useful civic Guilds. The "lines" of Cleopatra's Needle would harmonise admirably with the stately and severe architecture of Needle-makers' Hall, one of Inigo Jones's finest works.

G. A. S.

THE MANSION HOUSE FAMINE FUND.

The payments yesterday week included £525 from the Merchant Taylors' Company. Among the provincial remittances were Derby (making £1500 in all), £500; Plymouth (fourth instalment), £500; Burnley (second), £500; County and City of Perth (fourth), £450; Wigan (additional), £350; Northampton, £400; Wednesbury, £200; Whitehaven (third), £100; Kilkenny (additional), £100; Gravesend (fourth), £100; Dorchester (third), £100; Dublin (twenty-first), £500; Seaham Harbour, £135. The bicyclists of the United Kingdom sent a first instalment of £100, through Mr. Henry Etherington; the London Chartered Bank of Australia, £100; Messrs. Harrison, Ainslie, and Co., £100. Among the church and chapel collections were St. John's, Paddington (additional), per the Rev. Sir Emilius Bayley, £277.

A third remittance of £1500 was received from Sheffield last Saturday, making £6000 in all. Among the other larger sums paid in were York (additional), £400; Hanley (tenth), £200; Macclesfield, £200; Croydon, £189; Bath, £134; Tynemouth, £125; Keighley (additional), £150; Holmfirth and neighbourhood (third), £100; Weymouth, £273; Horbury, £100; Trinity Church, Cheltenham, £115.

A meeting of the Executive Committee was held on Monday, at which a telegram from Madras was read giving an account of the working of the relief committees there, and bearing testimony to the gratitude of the sufferers at the manifestation of charity at home. It was unanimously resolved to send a further sum of £35,000 to India for distribution, making £385,000 in all. Among the donations received were: Nottingham (fifth instalment), £500; Swansea (handed over personally by the Mayor), £250; Boston (third), £100; Newport (Monmouthshire), £100; Ipswich, £100; Bedford, £100; Dublin (twenty-second), £500; Brixton Independent Church, £103; St. Luke's, West Holloway, £100; Kirkcudbright, £187.

Among the larger amounts received on Tuesday were the following:—Otago (second instalment), £500; Elgin and neighbourhood, £300; members of Metropolitan Police Force, £174; Shrewsbury (seventh), £150; Devonport (fifth), £100; Colchester (seventh), £100; Dewsbury (fourth), £100; Independent Order of Odd Fellows, Manchester Unity, Friendly Society, £100; collected in the Roman Catholic places of worship in the diocese of Westminster, £332 10s.

On Wednesday the smallest sum yet received in one day in aid of the fund was paid into the Mansion House, the whole subscriptions amounting only to £2300. The principal sums were the following:—Coventry, £211; Reigate (third instalment), £100; Chesterfield (additional), £100; St. Michael's, Paddington, £158; Ottery St. Mary, £101.

Miss Amy Sedgwick (Mrs. Pemberton) has volunteered to give a reading and recital in aid of the Famine Fund, and the Lord Mayor has placed the Egyptian Hall of the Mansion House at her disposal for the purpose on the afternoon of Tuesday next, the 30th inst. Mr. Marlaunde Clarke, as elsewhere stated, will give an entertainment for the benefit of the fund at the St. James's Theatre on Saturday, Nov. 3.

In the contest for the representation of North Northamptonshire, which took place at the close of the last Session of Parliament, Lord Burghley, M.P., expended £2892, and Captain Wyatt Edgell £2060.

General Sir Arthur Cotton, R.E., gave a lecture at Bristol on Friday, the 19th inst., in which he advocated a system of irrigation in India as a preventive of famine. The lecture was well attended, and at its close a resolution was unanimously adopted recommending a Parliamentary Commission to investigate the subject of the material improvement of India, including the prevention of famines, and the history and result of irrigation, navigation, and railways.

The Queen has conferred the honour of the Companionship of the Civil Division of the Order of the Bath on the following gentlemen:—Professor Frederick Augustus Abel, F.R.S., chemist to the War Department and President of the Chemical Society; Mr. Ralph Thompson, Assistant Under-Secretary of State, War Office; Major Charles William Wilson, R.E., late Assistant Quartermaster-General, War Office; Major-General Charles Wright Younghusband, F.R.S., R.A., Superintendent of the Royal Gun Factories; Mr. Charles Walpole, late Assistant Controller of Legacy Duties; Mr. George Everest, late head clerk of the Criminal Department of the Home Office; Mr. Robert Baker and Mr. Alexander Redgrave, Inspectors of Factories.

Lieutenant-General Erskine on Tuesday opened the commodious block of buildings in the Military-road, Chatham, which have been bought by Mr. John Hamilton, of Hull, and fitted up at the expense of that gentleman for a soldiers' and seamen's home and institute. The building is replete with every convenience for the purpose for which it is intended to be used. It contains a coffee tavern, billiard-room, reading and lecture rooms, hot and cold baths, library, and bed-rooms; the home being for the sole use of the sailors and soldiers of the troops of the port and garrison. Another building has been devoted by Mr. Hamilton to apartments for respectable married soldiers, for whom quarters are not provided in the barracks.

NATIONAL SPORTS.

The last of the seven acts which are annually played at Newmarket commenced on Monday, and to-day (Saturday) the curtain will descend until the Craven Meeting of 1878. In spite of the programme extending over the whole week, each day's card has been very heavy; still, a good deal of plating has been mixed up with more important affairs, and we may safely pass over a great many of the events without remark. Indeed, of the eight races that were brought off on Monday, we need only allude to the Criterion Stakes. There were nine starters, including Jannette, Clémentine, Lord Clive, Polestar, Tredegar, and Bellicent, all of whom had won races of more or less importance. Naturally, the unbeaten Jannette started a strong favourite, as she is doubtless the best of Lord Falmouth's grand team of two-year-olds, and was credited with six winning brackets, half of that number, however, being earned by walks over. Lord Clive gave a good deal of trouble at the post, and finally got away a little behind the others, of whom Clémentine made the running at a cracking pace, with Jannette lying at her quarters. Three hundred yards from home this pair were four lengths in front of Lord Clive, and nothing else was within hail, and a fine finish resulted in a neck victory for Lord Falmouth's filly, while Lord Clive, who made up his ground in extraordinary fashion from the distance, was only a head behind Clémentine. This is the first time that Jannette has been made to gallop, and we doubt if she was able to show her best form on this occasion, as it was not decided to run her until the last moment, and we hear that she had been watered shortly before the race.

There was another very heavy day's racing on Tuesday, proceedings commencing with the All-Aged Trial Stakes, in which Trappist, who must be made of cast-iron, and seems quite indifferent to weight, won as he liked. A Maiden Plate fell to Matador, a son of Pero Gomez, whose stock are constantly winning, and there was nothing else of importance prior to the Cambridgeshire, for which no less than thirty-four numbers were hoisted. The system of drawing lots for places, which was inaugurated last year, was again adopted; and though Rosy Cross (7 st.) was one of the unfortunates on the lower ground, she kept her position as first favourite with great firmness. Hilarious (7 st. 7 lb.) and Manœuvre (6 st. 6 lb.) were also very steady in the betting, a marked feature of which was the advance of Shillelagh (6 st. 9 lb.) to 12 to 1. After several false starts, the large field got off fairly together, Avontes (6 st. 2 lb.), who had the best place, being the first to show in front. Before half the distance was covered, Manœuvre was in trouble, and Shillelagh and Newport (6 st. 10 lb.), both of whom have awful tempers, were busily engaged in annoying each other, and running all over the course. Hilarious was also done with a long way from home, and Avontes was beaten at the Red Post, and dropped away, leaving Monk (7 st. 5 lb.) and Gladia (6 st. 8 lb.) with the lead. At this time Jongleur (8 st. 4 lb.) was pulling double, and, going to the front about a furlong from home, he won with great ease by a couple of lengths from Belphebe (7 st. 10 lb.), who finished three lengths in front of Gladia, the placed horses being right away from the rest of the field. The performance of Jongleur is about the best in the history of the race; but his easy defeat by Lady Golightly at the Second October Meeting appeared to put him quite out of court. We imagine that, as we stated at the time, he is a far better colt at a mile than over a longer distance; for, if this is not the case, it is easy to show on paper that he would have won the St. Leger by a hundred yards, had he been engaged. Indeed, the form of at least half a dozen horses in the Cambridgeshire is so puzzling and contradictory that we have abandoned any attempt to elucidate it in despair. There can be little doubt that Jongleur is the best three-year-old in training over his own course; and Belphebe again ran a great mare, though she experienced the terribly bad luck of finishing second for both Cesarewitch and Cambridgeshire. The odds of 4 to 1, which were laid upon Lady of Mercia, were upset by Attalus, and this brought a bad day for backers to a close.

Ten races were a tolerably good allowance for such an off-day as Wednesday proved, but there was no single event of more than passing interest. Flashman ought to have beaten Hydromel for a Post Stakes; but he refused to try when the pinch came, and allowed Lord Falmouth's colt to win a punishing struggle. The Stand Handicap fell an easy prey to Trappist (9 st. 8 lb.), who conceded upwards of 40 lb. to some of his ten opponents; and Lord Clive (8 st. 10 lb.) took the Criterion Nursery, prior to which race he was sold to the Duke of St. Albans for 3000 gs., with a stipulation that he should not be delivered to his new owner until after the race. The price would, doubtless, have been larger, but the colt is most unfortunately disqualified for the classic races of next season, owing to his having been entered in them as own brother to Warren Hastings, whereas he is only half brother to that horse.

The Lurgan Open Meeting, which is the first really important coursing gathering of the present season, was brought off with great success last week. Unhappily, the state of Lord Lurgan's health prevented him from taking any part in it; but Lady Lurgan and a large party were present each day. Hares were very plentiful, and afforded some grand trials, and all the three stakes filled, though the Brownlow Cup scarcely attracted so many high-class greyhounds as in previous years. It fell to Wild Orphan, by Royal Joseph—Lady Lue, who beat Don't be Headstrong, by Light Cavalry—Humming Bee, in the final trial. The Raughton Stakes, for sixty-four dog puppies, was won by Danube, by Hopeful Joe—Don't Forget, and the Derrymacash Stakes, a similar event for puppies of the opposite sex, was divided between Wedding Tour, by Willie Galwey—Watercress, and Herzegovina, by Contango Annie McPherson. Mr. Warwick and Heystead gave great satisfaction as judge and slipper respectively.

William Gale, who started at the Agricultural Hall on Sunday morning last to attempt to walk 4000 quarter miles in 4000 ten minutes, would have done wisely to leave well alone. People are growing very tired of these tedious and endless exhibitions of endurance, and few people are likely to be attracted to Islington.

The Commander-in-Chief has appointed Colonel Harman, Assistant-Adjutant-General at Aldershot, to be Deputy-Adjutant-General of the Forces in Ireland, in succession to Colonel Sir A. Alison, K.C.B., promoted Major-General.

A preliminary meeting, convened by Mr. Wait, M.P., and Mr. Lewis Fry, chairman of the Bristol School Board, was held in Bristol on the 18th inst. to consider the propriety of erecting a suitable memorial to perpetuate the memory of Mary Carpenter; the Dean of Bristol presided. Nothing definite was decided upon; but a suggestion seemed to meet with general acceptance that the best memorial would be an extension in Bristol of homes for working boys and girls, an institution which Miss Carpenter originated and supported till her death. It was resolved to call a public meeting.

THE CHURCH.

PREFEMENTS AND APPOINTMENTS.

Fell, H., to be Rural Dean of Gosforth.
Brooke, Canon; Rural Dean of the District of Bath, in the Deanery of Bath.
Bernard, Henry Norris; Reader in St. Clement's Church, Sandwich.
Cox, F. H.; Rector of Fen Ditton, Cambridge.
Francis, John; Curate of the parish of Liverpool.
Hawley, W.; Vicar of Patrick, Isle of Man.
Jekyll, Walter; Minor Canon of Worcester Cathedral.
Jones, Edward Rhys; Chaplain to the Bishop of Rochester.
Rawson, E. O.; Curate of Newport Pagnell; Vicar of Marston, Cheshire.
Tuson, Henry; Rector of South Elmham, St. James's, Suffolk.—Guardian.

Sir Gilbert Scott has prepared plans for the restoration of Prestbury church, Gloucestershire, the carrying out of which will cost £5000.

The Rev. Samuel Wainwright, D.D., morning preacher at All Saints' Church, Dalston, has been presented with a purse containing 220 sovereigns by the members of that congregation.

The parish church of Sternfield, East Suffolk, was reopened on the 17th inst. by the Bishop of Norwich, after a thorough restoration by Mr. St. Aubyn, at a cost of £1325, which has been raised within the year. The sermon was preached by the Bishop.

The Bishop of Ely has reopened the Church of St. George, at Thriplow, Cambridgeshire, the nave and transepts of which have been restored at considerable expense, from plans of Sir Gilbert Scott. The Master and Fellows of St. Peter's College (the lay rectors) have contributed largely to the work.

A harvest thanksgiving service was held on Sunday morning at the Royal Chapel, by Cumberland Lodge, in Windsor Park. The church was richly and tastefully decorated for the occasion. Prince and Princess Christian were present. The sermon was preached by the Rev. Arthur Robins, of Windsor.

The recent discoveries at St. Alban's Abbey of the north-west walls of the old chapter-house, which owed its erection to Gorham, eighteenth abbot, has led to the finding also of the sedilia and some beautiful tile pavement. A distinguished party of archaeologists, including Sir Gilbert Scott, last week visited the spot and took notes of the various treasures as they were brought to light. The mouldings and carvings will soon again be covered in, as a public way passes over the spot.

The Bishop of St. Albans has been called upon to perform a twofold and most interesting duty at Loughton—that, namely, of consecrating a new memorial chapel, and of reopening the fine old parish church after restoration. The memorial chapel, a beautiful monument in flint, faced with Bath stone, has been erected by Mrs. Whitaker Maitland to the memory of the late lord of the manor, Mr. W. Whitaker Maitland, and is intended to be used for funerals and special occasions. The restoration of the church has comprised an enlargement of the chancel, pavement with coloured marbles, new choir stalls, rebuilding of the organ, &c.

The large five-light east window of Bulwick church, Northampton, is now filled with stained glass. The subjects represented are "The Last Supper" and "The Crucifixion," the outer lights being filled with adoring angels. The window is in memory of Anne, eldest daughter of Sir John Trollope, sixth Baronet, and wife of Thomas Tryon, Esq., who died Feb. 11, 1877. Messrs. Heaton, Butler, and Bayne, London, were the artists.—The members of the family of the late Sir Titus Salt, Bart., have put up a large stained-glass window to his memory (by the same artists) in the west end of Lightcliffe Church. Figures of Noah, Abraham, Moses, Samuel, and Daniel are introduced, and under each figure is represented an incident taken from the life of the personage represented above it.

A special service for the working classes, in connection with the working-men's clubs of the metropolis, will be held in Westminster Abbey next Thursday evening, Nov. 1, at half-past seven o'clock. The sermon will be preached by the Very Rev. the Dean, president of the Workmen's Club and Institute Union. The musical arrangements will be under the direction of Mr. W. S. Hoyte, assisted by the choir of the Lay Helpers' Association; Dr. Bridge, organist of the abbey, presiding at the organ. Admission will be by tickets only, which are to be distributed among the working-men's clubs in the metropolis, the committee having adopted this plan in order to secure a congregation of bona-fide working men. A few tickets at the disposal of the public and those favourable to the movement can be obtained at the offices of the Bishop of London's Fund, 46a, Pall-mall.

A large congregation was attracted to St. Mary's, Oxford, on Sunday to hear the University sermon preached by the Bishop of Manchester, who has not occupied the University pulpit for some years. Taking as his text the interview between Paul and Felix, with especial reference to the words, "As he reasoned of righteousness, temperance, and the judgment to come," Dr. Fraser contrasted the sober and temperate attitude of the Church of England with the rapid and restless life of the present day and the appetite for sensationalism. Alluding to the recent writings of Mr. Greig and Professor Tyndall, he pointed out the dreary prospect offered by their teaching, dwelling fervently on the general conviction in the soul of man as to an account to be rendered by all in the future. While Mr. Ruskin was flying to the utmost corners of the earth to escape the noise of a locomotive and steam whistle, there were thousands in his own diocese whose lives were never lightened on earth. Were they to have no prospect but annihilation? If so, why let them "eat and drink, for to-morrow they die."

BRISTOL CATHEDRAL.

Last week the ancient city of Exeter witnessed the re-opening, with great pomp and ceremony, of her restored cathedral, the nave having been thoroughly reinstated, at a cost of over £40,000. On Tuesday the historic city of Bristol witnessed a similar ceremonial on the occasion of reopening an entirely new nave, built up from the very foundation, at a cost of £45,000. It has been built upon the exact lines laid down in the fourteenth century by Abbot Knowle, who, however, did not proceed beyond the foundations. £13,000 has been spent in restoring the choir and the interior of the cathedral. It is now complete, but buttresses have been built of two massive and handsome western towers, to be named respectively the Butler and the Colston, and these remain to be finished. By the munificent contribution of a lady, who wishes to remain unknown, and the aid of another person, the beautiful north porch has been completed. The family of the late Bishop Monk have defrayed the cost of the baptistery, situate under the south-western tower, and are about to have placed therein a font of very handsome design; the western door, too, has been erected as a memorial of the late Mr. Charles Ward, and many of the windows have been filled with stained glass by other benefactors. The handsome rose window over the western entrance is the gift of the Rev. Henry H. Daniel, and is in memory of his relative, the late Alderman Daniel. Under the Butler tower are two handsome windows—one the gift of Messrs. Charles and Edward S. Hill as a memorial of their father; and the other given by Mr. W. J. Blackburn Maze, son of the late Mr. Peter Maze, to whose memory it is raised. Mr. W. E. George, of Stoke Bishop, has filled one of the windows in the south aisle, and in the choir is a memorial window to the late Mr. Corfe, fifty-one years organist of the cathedral. This latter window is the work of Mr. Bell, of College-green, whose design was selected from four sent in by various artists. The other stained-glass windows are by Hardman, of Birmingham. The nave consists of six bays, is 120 ft. in length, and the total width inside the walls is 69 ft., exactly the same as that of the choir, but the height, 60 ft., is somewhat greater. The height of the pillars to the capitals is 25 ft., and from these spring arches of graceful form. The columns are of Corsham stone, relieved by blue lias. The flooring is of Pennant and Portland stone, and Goodwood tiles. The walks in the nave and aisles are of Pennant and Portland stone, with bands of Isle of Man marble, and the rest of the floor is of red, black, and chocolate coloured tiles. The architect was Mr. G. E. Street, A.R.A., and the contractor Mr. G. W. Booth, of London. In the sermon preached at the opening, the Bishop of the diocese spoke very hopefully of the future of the cathedral system—reformed and not revolutionised, developed, not destroyed. The services were continued on Wednesday. In the morning the Dean of Westminster preached, and in the evening the Dean of Canterbury occupied the pulpit.

DIOCESAN CONFERENCES.

The annual meeting of the Exeter Diocesan Conference was begun on Tuesday at the Chapter House, adjoining the cathedral. The Bishop presided, and there was a large attendance of the clergy and laity, among the latter being Lord Devon, Lord Fortescue, Lord Coleridge, Lord Clinton, Sir John Duckworth, Sir T. D. Acland, Sir John Kennaway, &c. The principal matter discussed at the evening sitting was the sale of livings.

The Burials Bill of last Session was referred to in speeches made at the Diocesan Conference held at Chichester on Tuesday by Sir W. Barttelot, M.P., and Mr. Grantham, M.P.; and, after a discussion, a resolution in favour of the general provisions of the measure was passed.

The Bishop of Ely, in his charge to the clergy at Cambridge on the 18th inst., spoke very strongly against the Public Worship Regulation Act, and expressed a hope that the public mind would be so moved that its revision by the Legislature would soon be demanded. He strongly condemned all proposals to revise the Prayer-book. The clergy ought, he said, to make no change in the services except by consultation with their Bishop. He strongly counselled the clergy not to recommend private confession, and he condemned afternoon or evening celebrations.

A Diocesan Conference was opened at Chester on Wednesday under the presidency of Dr. Jacobson, the Bishop of the diocese. The first meeting was held at two o'clock in the afternoon, and another at eight in the evening. The Bishop, in his opening address, spoke of the good which had been done by diocesan conferences in preparing the way for the Church Congresses. A proof of this he drew from the recent Congress at Croydon. Referring to the question of the reform of Convocation, he said it was admitted that reform was necessary; but they must bear in mind that it was only reform that was wanted. His Lordship also alluded to the wants of the diocesan institution for education and church building.

A conference, convened by the Bishops of Bangor and St. Asaph and the Lord Lieutenant of Merionethshire, and the majority of the representatives of Welsh constituencies, was held at Bangor on Tuesday, to discuss the Sunday closing of public-houses. The Bishop of Bangor presided at the morning meeting, and strongly advocated the establishment of working-men's clubs, alluding to the uselessness of attempting to check the attractions offered by publicans unless the friends of temperance provided ample counter-attractions. Mr. Morgan Lloyd, M.P., Mr. Holland, M.P., the Dean of Bangor, the Hon. Charles Wynn, Archdeacon Evans, and others, took part in the discussion. Resolutions were adopted favouring Sunday closing, the establishing of workmen's clubs, and a stricter supervision of public-houses.

THE UNIVERSITIES AND PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

OXFORD.

Mr. W. Ellison, commoner of Exeter, has been elected to the Mitchell Exhibition in that society.

At Jesus the following Exhibitors have been elected:—G. H. Evans, private tuition; E. A. Johnson, Bedford Grammar School; W. O. Nares, Rossall; Enoch Jones, the College, Llandovery; W. J. Morris, Merchant Taylors'; T. E. Jones, Friars' School, Bangor; A. H. Jones, Shrewsbury Grammar School. These exhibitions are restricted to natives of Wales or Monmouthshire.

The Oxford University Commission was formally opened at the Clarendon Hotel, Oxford, on Monday afternoon, and on Tuesday the commissioners will proceed to take evidence. The proceedings will be strictly private. Lord Selborne is chairman; and Mr. Bayne, of Christ Church, and Mr. Dallin, of Queen's, are joint secretaries.

Some degrees of music have been conferred, as announced in our Music article.

Mr. W. H. Grenfell, of Balliol College, has been elected president of the Oxford Athletic Club; and at a captains' meeting T. C. Edwards-Moss, of Brasenose College, the retiring president, was unanimously re-elected to the position.

CAMBRIDGE.

The Vice-Chancellor has promulgated the electoral roll of the University for the ensuing academical year. It comprises 336 names, and is headed by those of the Duke of Devonshire, LL.D., of Trinity College, as Chancellor, and the Earl of Powis, LL.D., St. John's, High Steward. Three hundred and thirty-five names were on the list last year.

Dr. Vaughan was the preacher at the University church last Sunday. He took for his subject "The rich young ruler." There was an immense congregation.

A collection for the Indian Famine Fund has been started among members of the University. A first list of subscriptions has appeared amounting to about £100.

At Queen's, after competitive examination, Ellis has obtained the Hebrew Exhibition of £40 and Bolton and Boyer exhibitions of £25. All three successful candidates are from Merchant Taylors' School.

On Monday the ordination of Mr. J. D. M. Murray, of St. John's College, one of the two gentlemen about to proceed to India under the auspices of the University Mission, took place in Great St. Mary's Church, the Lord Bishop of the diocese officiating. The sermon was preached by the Rev. Canon Westcott, D.D. Mr. Murray's destination is Delhi, for which place he will sail next week, with the Rev. Mr. Bickersteth, of Pembroke College, and assistants.

Professor Fawcett, M.P., Professor of Political Economy at this University, began on Saturday a series of lectures in the Arts Schools, in which, carefully examining the subject of free trade and protection, he traced the causes which in recent years have not only retarded the general adoption of free trade, but have in some countries given a fresh vitality to the doctrines of protection. In subsequent addresses the hon. gentleman will endeavour to show that, however great the injury inflicted on English industry by the protective tariffs of other countries, this injury would be seriously aggravated by a policy of retaliation.

DURHAM.

The Examiners for the first year in Arts have issued the following class-list:—Class I.: M. A. W. Mitchell, University College; F. H. Williams, University College. Class II.: R. Fitzgerald, unattached; W. Hodgson, University College. Class IV.: C. E. Baldwin, University College. Recommended: For scholarships of £70 each at matriculation, T. Davies and J. Howarth; for exhibition of £20 at matriculation, D. Parry; for medical scholarship, A. J. Beanlands, B.A. The following have also been recommended for exhibitions: T. Hodgson and W. Turner, sq. Recommended for scholarships of £60: Pratt and Armstrong; of £30, R. Williams. Recommended for exhibition of £30: Holmes.

ST. ANDREWS.

The triennial election of the Lord Rector, in the room of Dean Stanley, will be held on the fourth Thursday of November. The Conservative party are canvassing for Lord Salisbury, their candidate at the last election; while another section have selected Robert Browning, the poet, as a non-political candidate.

At Westminster, the Mure Scholarship, founded by the friends of the late Mr. James Mure, so long known in connection with the school, has been awarded for the first time. The successful candidate was H. B. Cox, a Town boy.

The Archbishop of York laid the foundation-stone on Tuesday of the Yorkshire College at Leeds; and in the evening he delivered the opening lecture of the Leeds Philosophical Society.

A public meeting was held at Canterbury on the 19th inst. for the purpose of discussing the provisions of the new scheme put forth by the Charity Commissioners for the administration of the King's School in that city, and of taking steps to raise £1000 to meet the grant by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners of the house known as the Archbishop's Palace, together with the sum of £3000, in order to create a junior department in connection with the school. The chair was taken by his Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury, who was supported by the Bishop of Dover, the Dean of Canterbury, and other members of the cathedral body. A resolution to the effect that "This meeting approves generally the provisions of the new scheme for the King's School, and of the endeavour to raise £1000 to meet the grant of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners," was proposed by Mr. Majendie, M.P., seconded by Mr. M. Bell, J.P., of Bourne Park, and carried unanimously. A sum of nearly £300 was subscribed in the room towards the fund.

On Monday evening, under the presidency of the Rev. R. Lee, M.A., the Head Master of Christ's Hospital, the birthday of its Royal founder was celebrated at the Albion Tavern, Aldersgate-street. About 150 gentlemen sat down to dinner, all of whom, with one or two exceptions, have been educated at the hospital.

The London Ladies' Educational Association opened its tenth session at University College for day lectures on Monday. Most of the evening lectures—intended chiefly for governesses and candidates for public examinations open to women—began a week ago.

At the Michaelmas Commencement on Saturday last at Trinity College, Dublin, the degree of Doctor of Music was conferred upon Horton Claridge Allison, after a performance of "Acts," consisting of a sacred cantata and a concerto for pianoforte and orchestra, in the dining-hall of Trinity College on the day previous. Dr. Allison was presented by Sir Robert Stewart, the University Professor of Music.

Professor H. G. Seeley, of King's College, began on the evening of the 19th inst., at the College for Men and Women, Bloomsbury, a course of eight lectures on "Evolution, and the Geological Evidence which bears upon the Origin of the Existing Races of Plants and Animals."

The School Guardian announces that the arrangements are complete for the establishment of a new Training College for Mistresses, under the auspices of the National Society and the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge. It is not intended to wait until a college has been built; but two spacious houses have been obtained at Tottenham, which will be opened in January next with accommodation for forty students. Next year further arrangements will be made for the reception of forty more, and when the college is completed the number will be raised to one hundred. Clergymen having candidates to recommend should communicate with the Principal, the Rev. E. Hobson, St. John's College, Battersea, S.W.

The Gresham Professor of Astronomy gives notice that he will lecture at Gresham College, Basinghall-street, at six p.m., on Oct. 30, 31, and Nov. 1, 2. Subject—Transits of Venus and other methods of determining the distance of the Sun.

THE JAPANESE ARMY.

The civil war in the Satsuma province still troubles the Empire of the Mikado; and Mr. Wigram, our Correspondent at Yokohama, now and then uses his pencil, as in the Sketch engraved for this week, to delineate the figures and equipment of the Imperial troops, when they come to embark at that port for their conveyance by sea to serve in the present campaign. We expect their peculiar appearance will rather afford some mirth to our readers than enhance the estimation in which the Japanese military system is held by foreigners in distant Europe; but these queer-looking soldiers are reported to fight and march as well as those of certain other armies, wearing neater uniforms, and drilled into more perfect regularity of movement. The clownish, loutish bearing of both officers and privates in the ranks may therefore be excused, so long as they are brave and loyal and obedient to the call of duty. Yet it must be hard to restrain a laugh at the comical sight of such men and horses set in warlike array beneath the standards of an august Empire preparing to chastise its rebel subjects for the crime of treasonable disrespect. This is, however, merely a matter of taste.

An accident resulting in three deaths and injuries to eight other persons occurred on the night of the 18th inst. on the line of railway between Northampton and Wellingborough.

A miser named Farrell, aged sixty-five, was found dead in his bed in Dublin on Monday morning. In a drawer in his room were found £82 in gold and deposits for shares in railway and mining companies to the amount of £17,755.

Sir Andrew Fairbairn opened at Leeds on Monday a new institution for the accommodation of the blind and dumb, erected at a cost of £10,000. There remains a debt on the building of £2500, towards which Alderman Barran, M.P., has promised £150.

THE WAR: AFTER AN ASSAULT ON THE REDOUBT AT PLEVNA.

THE WOODLANDS CONVALESCENT HOME AT RAWDON, NEAR BRADFORD.

THE WOODLANDS CONVALESCENT HOME, NEAR BRADFORD.

This institution, which was opened on the 10th inst. by the Marquis of Salisbury, has been erected by the munificence of Mr. H. W. Ripley, M.P. for Bradford. It is designed somewhat on the plan of the Convalescent Home at Ilkley, near Leeds, of which Mr. Ripley has been many years a liberal supporter. It is situated at Rawdon, in Airedale, with a southern aspect, on high ground overlooking the valley of the Aire. The main building consists of a central block, with two wings. The central block is apportioned to entrance and dining halls, a conservatory, the culinary department, serving and waiting rooms, and a number of small sitting-rooms. The two wings forming the southern front are divided into sitting-rooms and dormitories for the men, the women and children. There is accommodation for 120 persons altogether. At the end of each wing nearest the dining-hall are stone staircases leading to the lavatories, bath-rooms, and dormitories. With the exception of the dining-hall, the building is two storeys high, giving to the principal dormitories of both wings the same southern aspect as that of the large sitting-rooms below. The room over the entrance-hall is set apart for a board-room. The portion of the central block on each side of the entrance-hall facing the approach has been carried one storey higher than the remainder of the building, so that space is obtained for a number of additional bed-rooms. The whole building stands upon foundations raising it considerably above the ground level; perfect dryness is thus secured, and spacious cellars obtained. All the rooms are spacious, lofty, and well lighted, and rendered cheerful by ornamental stained glass in the upper portions of the windows. With a view to the convenient working of the establishment, attention has been paid to the relative position of the lavatories to the bed and sitting rooms, and that of the serving and culinary department to the dining-hall. The wash-house and laundries are grouped in a building adjacent to the kitchen, the intervening space forming a courtyard. The corridors have concrete floors, are brick arched and fire proof. All internal fittings are of the simplest design and most durable quality. The Home being intended for occupation during the winter as well as the summer, attention has been paid to the provision for heating the building. All the rooms and corridors are warmed by hot-water pipes and coils, in addition to fireplaces in the principal rooms. Externally, the character of the building corresponds with the simplicity of the interior. It is designed after the style of the domestic architecture of the seventeenth century; flat pitched roofs, projecting eaves and corbels, mullioned and transomed windows, being its prominent features. The grounds, upwards of ten acres, are partly grass and partly woodland, giving a variety of walks and pleasure-grounds. A portion of the land has been laid out as a large kitchen garden.

TYPES OF JAPANESE CAVALRY AND INFANTRY.

The proceedings on the opening day, with the speeches of Lord Salisbury and Mr. W. E. Forster, M.P., at the luncheon given by Mr. Ripley in a tent adjoining the Convalescent Home, were reported at the time. Mr. Ripley in his speech gave some account of the institution, which had cost him much more than the £10,000 of the original estimate. The building itself, with the grounds, he had conveyed to six trustees, with directions to them to allow the building to be used in perpetuity for a Convalescent Home or for any analogous purpose. The management of the institution was left to a committee, to be appointed by donors and subscribers, who would themselves decide on the mode of electing the committee of management. Mr. Ripley said "he wished to suggest to the working people of Bradford and the neighbourhood the desirability of their taking that institution to a great extent into their own hands and forming clubs or making use of clubs already in existence for the purpose of paying some small subscription, which should entitle any member of a family—under regulations which might be decided upon—to the benefit of the Home. If it happened that any family subscribing did not require to avail themselves of the Home, it could only be a source of thankfulness to them that they were doing something to help their less fortunate neighbours. He did not suppose that the institution could be entirely self-supporting, but by donations and subscriptions, which might be made to confer certain rights of voting, especially in the election of the committee of management, he was sanguine enough to believe that sufficient funds would be provided, so that a working man's self-respect would not be lowered by his receiving as a charity something which, by this means, he would, to a certain extent, be providing for himself." This is the principle of the Woodlands Convalescent Home for Bradford, and it seems to be worthy of approval.

WORK AND WAGES.

The Bolton strike has virtually come to an end. At a meeting of the men held on Tuesday night the proposal of the committee of the Masters' Association, that if the operatives resumed work at a reduction of 5 per cent the committee would recommend their association to revise the standard price-lists, was, in effect, agreed to.

As the strike of the stonemasons in London continues, thirty Germans and thirty Italians have been brought over for the work at the New Law Courts. On Friday evening, the 19th inst., as the Italians were leaving work, they were surrounded by a crowd of men, by whom they were hooted and jostled on their way to their lodgings. One of the Italians was struck on the face by a stone. The men were so frightened that they applied to the Italian Consul for protection, and Messrs. Bull and Son, the contractors, called attention to the outrage at Bow-street. The German masons, leaving under the protection of the police, were not attacked, but the windows of their lodgings were smashed by stones. A canteen has been fitted up on the site of the Law Courts, where dinner is served to them; and there is accommodation within the inclosure to lodge many more than the thirty Italian masons who were the subject of the outrage. Arrangements are in progress to serve meals here to all the men employed at the works, Englishmen as well as foreigners, and to supply it in the evening with newspapers and the other apparatus of a workmen's club. Some of the unfinished rooms are to be used as barracks for the further contingents of workmen expected from abroad. The Masons' Strike Committee deny any knowledge of the outrage, and protest that their dispute has been conducted in a strictly legal manner. Sixty masons, who are to be employed on the new buildings in the Temple, arrived in London on Wednesday from America. Several hundreds more have been engaged in the States, and are coming to be employed on large works in this country.

There is another lock-out of ironworkers of the ship-building yards on the Clyde.

The strike of weavers at Ashton, by which upwards of a thousand operatives have been thrown out of work for three weeks, has terminated by the hands accepting the employers' terms.

The strike of colliers in North Staffordshire has begun, and more than 2000 are now out.

Cases of "rattening" are again becoming common occurrences at Sheffield. A man named Proctor, who refused to take part in a strike, has had all his tools stolen from a wire mill in which he was employed.

A meeting, composed of delegates from the Carpenters and Joiners' Amalgamated Union, the General Union, and from all the builders' yards and shops throughout the metropolis, was held in London last Saturday evening, at which a resolution was passed to the effect that the time has arrived to ask for a reduction of the hours of work and an increase in the rate of wages.

Last week a meeting of skilled labourers was held in Liverpool to consider the depression of trade. It was stated that from three to four thousand cotton porters alone were out of employment. A deputation was appointed to wait upon the Cotton Brokers' Association to solicit advice and aid.

NEW BOOKS AND PUBLICATIONS.

Now ready, price 6d.,
THE QUIVER for NOVEMBER, forming the First Part of a New Volume.

1. THE RESTING-PLACES OF OUR SAVIOUR AND THE SCENE OF HIS PASSION.
2. OUT-OF-THE-WAY PAPERS.
3. EARLY PILGRIMS: their Call, their Journeying, and their Rest.
4. CHRIST OUR EXAMPLE.
5. WHAT HE WAS MADE FOR.
6. "THE QUIVER" BIBLE CLASS.
7. LAST WORDS OF THE BOOKS OF GOD.
8. SCRIPTURE LESSONS FOR SCHOOL AND HOME.
9. UPON POVERTY AND PURITY.
10. HEIRS OF GOD.
11. THE PARABLES OF THE OLD TESTAMENT.
12. A VISIT TO A FAMOUS ORGAN.
13. "JESUS SHALL REIGN!" New Hymn Tune.
14. THE TRYST IN THE HOLLOW.
15. MORE THAN CONQUEROR. New Serial Story.
16. A CHRONICLE OF BARIHAM. New Serial Story.

"An outline of sixpence upon THE QUIVER will not be regretted by those who are desirous of finding something at once easy to understand and worth the reading, and which is neither dull nor dear." The illustrations are a very pleasant feature in the numbers. —Guardian.

CASELL, PETER, and GALPIN, London; and all Booksellers.

THE SEA—ITS STIRRING STORY.

THE SEA—ITS STIRRING STORY OF ADVENTURE, PERIL, AND HEROISM.

Now ready, Part I (including large Presentation Plate), price 7d.,
THE SEA—ITS STIRRING STORY OF ADVENTURE, PERIL, AND HEROISM. With numerous Original Illustrations.

CASELL, PETER, and GALPIN, Ludgate-hill, London.

THE NEW AND POPULAR NOVELS.

- Now ready, at all the Libraries.
- A JEWEL OF A GIRL. By the Author of "Queenie," &c. 3 vols.
- THE SQUIRE'S COURTSHIP. By Mrs. MACKENZIE DANIEL. 3 vols.
- MAUD LESLIE. By Lady CHARLES THYNNE.
- TWO TALES OF MARRIED LIFE: HARD TO BEAR. By GEORGIANA M. CRAIK; and A TRUE MAN. By M. C. STIRLING. 3 vols.
- GLORY. By Mrs. G. LINNÆUS BANKS. 3 vols.
- ONLY A LOVE STORY. By IZA DUFFUS HARDY. 3 vols.
- CHEAP EDITION OF PENELOPE, JUNIOR. By Mrs. OLIPHANT. 1 vol. 6s. bound and illustrated.
- HURST and BLACKETT, Publishers, 13, Great Marlborough-street.

HISTORY OF FRENCH LITERATURE. By HENRY VAN LAUN.
Vol. I. From its Origin to the Renaissance. Demy 8vo, 16s.
Vol. II. From the Renaissance to the End of the Reign of Louis XIV. Demy 8vo, 16s.
Vol. III. From the end of the Reign of Louis XIV. till the End of the reign of Louis Philippe. Demy 8vo, 16s.
London: SMITH, ELDER, and Co., 15, Waterloo-place.

NEW VOLUME BY ROBERT BROWNING.

Now ready, 7s. 6d.,
THE AGAMEMNON OF ÆSCHYLUS.
Translated by ROBERT BROWNING.
London: SMITH, ELDER, and Co., 15, Waterloo-place.

NEW NOVEL BY MR. R. D. BLACKMORE.
Second Edition, now ready, at all the Libraries.
EREMA; or, My Father's Sin. By R. D. BLACKMORE. Author of "Lorna Doone," &c. 3 vols. 16s.
London: SMITH, ELDER, and Co., 15, Waterloo-place.

NEW NOVEL BY SARAH TYTLER.
A DOUCE LASS. By the Author of "Citoyenne Jacqueline," "A Garden of Women," &c. 2 vols. 16s.
London: SMITH, ELDER, and Co., 15, Waterloo-place.

On Oct. 27 (One Shilling), No. 215.
THE CORNHILL MAGAZINE for NOVEMBER. With Illustrations by George du Maurier and Frank Dicksee.

EREMA; or, My Father's Sin. (With an Illustration.) Chap. LIV.—Brunetta Defeated. LV.—A Dead Lion. LVII.—Whitson's Sword. LVIII.—Female Suffrage. LVIII.—Beyond Desert and Desert.
Some Sonnets of Campanella.
The Czar's Clemency: A Polish Priest's Story.
Æthelstan's Analysis of an Obelisk.
A Mighty Sea-Wave.
The Last Redoubt. By Alfred Austin.
For Perival. (With an Illustration.) Chap. IX.—Slav looks into the Mirror. X.—In Langley Wood. XI.—Meanwhile. XII.—"Well, what's gone from me? What have I lost in you?"
London: SMITH, ELDER, and Co., 15, Waterloo-place.

MACMILLAN'S MAGAZINE

(No. 217) for NOVEMBER.
Price 1s.
CONTENTS OF THE NUMBER.
1. M. Thiers: A Sketch from Life, by an English Pencil. By Emily Crawford.
2. Young Musgrave. By Mrs. Oliphant. Chaps. XXXII.—XXXV.
3. The Discovery of Olympia. By Guy de Maupassant. Late Director of the Excavations for the German Government.
4. Me and My Mate. A Whitty Story.
5. Transylvanians and the Slav Committee.
6. My Pet Corn.
7. Molière's "L'École des Rois." By Professor E. H. Palmer.
8. Style. By T. H. Wright.
9. Airman Exploration and its Results. By Sir Rutherford Alcock, K.C.B., &c.
MACMILLAN and Co., London.

Just out, 1 vol., 8vo, Plates and Woodcuts, half morocco, 22 1/2s. 6d.

WORCESTER PORCELAIN.
By R. W. BINNS.
Second Edition, rewritten and enlarged.
BERNARD QUINCEY, 15, Piccadilly, London.

THE NEW WEEKLY PAPER.

On Nov. 18th, and every succeeding Saturday,
BRIEF: a Weekly Epitome of Current NEWS, THOUGHT, and CRITICISM.
"An abstract and brief compendium of the time," —Shakespeare.
Under the above title will be published, every Saturday, at the price of One Penny, a popular summary of the sayings and doings of the current week, as recorded in the public Press. The brief Number will appear on Saturday, Nov. 3, 1877.
BRIEF, presenting the Press compressed — concentrated essence of Press in fact — giving a bird's-eye view of the contents of many journals, marshalling together the different opinions of various leaders of national thought, impartially representing all parties and schools of politics, literature, science and art, must appeal to a very large number of readers, and, while indispensable to many, prove acceptable to all. BRIEF will be thoroughly well printed on good paper. Yearly Subscription, post-free, 6s. 6d. Office: 81, Great Queen-street, W.C.

WITH THE LADIES' TREASURY for NOVEMBER will be given ELEVEN DESIGNS for WINTER MANTLES, of the NEWEST SHAPES, with also Ten Engravings of the Latest Fashions, and a Large Coloured Fashion-Plate; designs in Needlework, &c. Price 1d.; by post, 7d. —Benson's, 10, Paternoster-buildings, London.

Price 6d. (or free by post 8d.).
MADAME DEMOLÈS'S

WHAT TO WEAR, AND HOW TO MAKE IT.

Information on Dress and Dressmaking. Contains nearly 500 Miniature Illustrations of Ladies' and Children's Fashions for Autumn and Winter, with full descriptions of Latest Styles, &c., including Materials, Trimmings, Walking and Outdoor Costumes, Dinner, Evening, and other Toilets, Jewellery, Lace, Collars, Millinery, and every new and desirable article connected with Ladies and Children's Dress.
Just what every Lady, Milliner, Dressmaker, Draper, Warehouseman, and Outfitter wants to know about the Autumn and Winter Fashions.
Sold by all Booksellers and Newsagents, and at every Railway Station.
WILLIAMS and ROGERS NEWS COMPANY, General Agents for Demolès's Reliable Patterns, 11, Boulevard-street, London.

PAINTING ON CHINA, EARTHENWARE, &c. Practical Lessons by Mme. la Baronne Delamare, Translated from the French by G. A. Bouvier. Price 1s.; post-free, 1s. 1d. —Leicester's, BARNES, and Co., 60, Regent-st., London.

NEW BOOKS AND PUBLICATIONS.

8vo, pp. 220, bound, 2s. 6d.; by post for 3s. stamps.
HORSES ILL AND WELL: Homeopathic Treatment of Diseases and Injuries, and Hints on Feeding, Grooming, Conditioning, Nursing, Shoeing, &c. By JAMES MOORE, M.R.V.C. &c. A Chest of Medicine, Book enclosed. 20s. DOG DISEASES TREATED BY HOMOEOPATHY. Pp. 180, bound, 1s.; by post for 1s. stamps. A Medicine Chest, 20s. JAMES MOORE and Co., 46, Threadneedle-st.; and 170, Piccadilly.

2nd Edition, 8vo, cloth, pp. 1102, 16s.

HOMOEOPATHIC DOMESTIC MEDICINE. By J. LAURIE, M.D. Completely rearranged and revised by H. S. Gutteridge, M.D. The most comprehensive Guide published for the use of families, emigrants, and missionaries, being free of all technicalities. The present edition contains, in addition to the symptoms and treatment of all general diseases, including those of Females and Children, many important new chapters, comprising, among others, the specific characteristic effects of all the new American remedies, plain Directions for the treatment of Accidents, and Illustrations delineating the minor operations in surgery. Hydrophobia, Apoplexy, Affection of the Eyes (with a description of the Eye and their Appendages, and Illustrations showing the various parts of the eye). Full directions are also given for the treatment of Diseases prevalent in Tropical Climates. A new and concise Dictionary of Medical Terms and Treatment, with leading indications of treatment prefixed to the various chapters and divisions. An Epitome of the above, 2nd Edition, price 6s. A Case of Medicines adapted to the former Work, in tinctures or pills, price 4s. 6d.; in globules, 4s. 6d. To the latter, tinctures or pills, price 2s. 2s.; globules, 1s. 1s. LEARNS and ROSS, 5, St. Paul's-churchyard; and 9, Vere-street, W.

By Dr. BARR MEADOWS, Physician to the National Institution for Diseases of the Skin. Seventh Edition, post-free, 3s. stamps.
ERUPTIONS; their Rational Treatment. Remarks on the abuse of arsenic, mercury and other reputed specifics. —London: G. HILL, 154, Westminster Bridge-road.

VITREMANIE. — An Easy Method of Decorating Windows in Churches, Public Buildings, and Private Houses equal to Real Stained Glass. Illustrated Handbook of Instructions, post-free, 1s. 6d. Particulars free. London: J. BARNARD and SONS, 330, Oxford-street, W.

WHITE WOOD ARTICLES, for PAINTING, FERN PRINTING, and Decalcomanie. Hand, Aprons, Book-covers, Glove, Knitting, and Handkerchief Boxes; Paper Knives, Fans, &c. Priced List on application. WM. BARNARD, 119, Edgware-road, London.

SCRAPS FOR SCREENS AND SCRAP BOOKS. IN IMMENSE VARIETY. Flowers, Figures, Fruits, Birds, and Landscapes, coloured, from 1s. per sheet. 18 per sheet. 1s. 6d. per sheet. WM. BARNARD, 119, Edgware-road, London.

STOCKS AND SHARES, Telegraphs, Tramways, Railways, Banks, and other leading Securities. WILLIAM ABBOTT, 10, Tokenhouse-yard, London, E.C.

FOR ARMS AND CREST, send Name and County to T. MORING, Inns of Court Heraldic Offices, 44, High Holborn, W.C. Plain sketch, 3s. 6d.; Coloured, 7s. 6d. Seals, Dies, and Diplomas. Illustrated Price-List post-free.

FOR FAMILY ARMS (Lincoln's-Inn Heraldic Office) send Name and County. Sketch, 3s. 6d., or stamps. Arms Painted and Engraved on Seals, Book-Plates, Dies, &c. —PUGH BROS., Great Turnstile, Lincoln's-Inn.

THE LINCOLN POSTAGE - STAMP ALBUM, with spaces for over 2000 stamps, bound in cloth, gilt, 1s. 6d.; post-free, 1s. 1s. The cheapest Album ever published. W. LINCOLN, 23, High Holborn, London.

THE SOCIETY OF ARTS' ONE SHILLING MOIST-COLOUR BOX. Unadulterated pigments. Box in japanned tin. —Lechertier, Barbe, and Co., 60 Regent-st., London; and local Artists' Colourmen and Stationers.

WOOD-CUTTING for AMATEURS. — No previous knowledge required. Thousands of pretty things in Cut Wood, Baskets, Stands for Flowers, &c. Candabras, Pipe Cases, &c., can be cut by LORIN'S WOOD-CUTTING MACHINE. Everything complete, Drawings, saws, &c., from 3s. Wholesale and Retail to be had at the Manufacturers', JACQUES LORIN FILS, 3, Rue de la Fidélité, Paris. Catalogues free on application.

CHEAPEST HOUSE IN LONDON FOR ENGRAVINGS.

GEO. REES.

CHROMOS. GEO. REES.

OLEOGRAPHS. GEO. REES.

BEAUTIFULLY - FRAMED PICTURES, from 10s. to £10. Shippers and the Trade supplied. —GEO. REES, 29, Charing-cross. Wholesale Depot—41, 42, 43, Russell-street, Covent-garden. Catalogue, three stamps.

WRITING, BOOK-KEEPING, &c.

Persons of any age, however bad their writing may be, in Eight Easy Lessons, acquire permanently an elegant and flowing style of penmanship, adapted either to professional pursuits or private correspondence. Book-keeping by double entry, as practised in the Government, Banking, and Mercantile Offices, Arithmetic, Shortland, &c. —Apply to Mr. W. SMART, at his Sole Institution, 97a, Quadrant, Regent-street.

PALACE SOAP, 20s. per lb., for State Apartments. —PIESSE and LUBIN, 2, New Bond-street, are the only makers of this exquisite Soap. Single Cakes, 6s.; or six in a box, 32s. 6d. Piesse and Lubin also make some charming Flower-Scented Soaps, at 10s. per lb., such as Opopanax Soap, Violet Soap, Frangipani Soap, Attar Rose Soap, and others, in Cakes, 2s. 6d. each, suitable for superior use. Royal Laboratory of Flowers, 2, New Bond-street.

PIESSE and LUBIN. SWEET SCENTS POUR CADEAUX. —Opopanax, Jockey Club, Patchouly, Frangipani, Lign-Aloe, &c. Piesse and Lubin also make some charming Flower-Scented Soaps, at 10s. per lb., such as Opopanax Soap, Violet Soap, Frangipani Soap, Attar Rose Soap, and others, in Cakes, 2s. 6d. each, suitable for superior use. Royal Laboratory of Flowers, 2, New Bond-street.

GOLDEN HAIR. — ROBARE'S GOLD AUROLINE produces the beautiful Golden Colour so much admired. Guaranteed perfectly harmless. Price 2s. 6d. and 10s. 6d. per Bottle. Wholesale, HOVENDE and SONS, 6, Great Marlborough-street, W.; and 85 and 95, City-road, E.C. London; Pinaud and Meyer, 37, Boulevard de Strasbourg, Paris; 31, Graben, Vienna; 44, Rue des Longs Chariots, Brussels.

DOES YOUR HAIR TURN GREY? Then use HERRING'S PATENT MAGNETIC BRUSHES and COMBS. Brushes, 10s. and 15s. each. Combs, 2s. 6d., 5s., 7s. 6d., 10s., 15s., and 20s. each. Pamphlet upon application. —G. B. C. Titchborne, Phil., 1, Great Marlborough-st., W.; 85 and 95, City-road; and of all Perfumers.

LAXORA LOZENGES. — This Preparation will be found the most valuable remedy for Constipation, Sluggishness of the Stomach, Bile, Headache, and especially useful for Children and Ladies. "The 'Lancet,' June 9, 1877, reports: — 'We have no hesitation in recommending this preparation. It is a great improvement on the preparations in common use for the same purpose, and will be really valuable in families.'"
"Medical Press and Circular," April 11, 1877: — "The Laxora Lozenges can be safely recommended."
Each Box contains Eight Lozenges, and sold, 1s. 1d., by all Chemists and Druggists; Wholesale, 82, Southwark-street, London.

DR. LELIÈVRE'S ICELAND MOSS POWDER, superior to all (patented), is exempt from all the inconveniences inseparable from Laxatives, and with Linseed or Bread. These solid the Laxative, binding, &c., dry up on the edges, rapidly ferment, giving a most unpleasant odour; and no dependence can be placed on the quantity and firmness of the stool. This New Powder is in fact, therefore, for it is ready in a few seconds. Sold retail by all Chemists.
Wholesale, RIGOLLOT and CO., 82, Southwark-street, London.

GOUT and RHEUMATISM. — The excruciating pain of Gout or Rheumatism is quickly relieved and cured in a few days by the use of Laxora. It is a safe and reliable remedy. They require no restraint of diet or confinement during their use, and are certain to prevent the disease attaching any vital part.

NEW MUSIC.

NEW WALTZ. — DER LETZTE KUSS (The Last Kiss). By OTTO MÜLLER. Performed at the Promenade Concerts, Covent-garden Theatre. This charming Waltz, by the Composer of the celebrated "Goldilocks and the Three Bears," "Loved and Lost," &c., may be had of all Music-sellers. Solo or Duo, price 2s. net. —DUFF and STEWART, 147, Oxford-st.

LOVED and LOST (Geliebt und Verloren) WALTZES. By OTTO MÜLLER (performed at the Promenade Concerts, Theatre Royal, Covent-garden). These celebrated Waltzes may be had of all Music-sellers. Solo or Duo, 2s. net. —DUFF and STEWART, 147, Oxford-street, W.

THE Popular Song, LOVED AND LOST. The Words by Percy Fitzgerald, adapted to Müller's beautiful Waltz, "Geliebt und Verloren." Sold by every Music-seller in the United Kingdom. Post-free, 2s. —DUFF and STEWART, 147, Oxford-street.

POPULAR WALTZES. Easily arranged, without octaves, for the Piano. By JULES ROCHARD. Loved and Lost. Müller. Doctrien. Strauss. The Last Kiss. Müller. Mergul. Strauss. Rêve d'Amour. Lamotte. Thousand and One Nights. Strauss. Manolo. Walteufel. Beautiful Danube. Strauss. Post-free, 1s. each. —DUFF and STEWART, 147, Oxford-street.

HAMMOND'S MUSIC PORTFOLIO.

No. 1 contains: —
Bris des Nuits Waltzes Lamotte.
Hydropaten Waltzes Gung'l.
Manuelita Waltzes Walteufel.
Autograph Waltzes Strauss.
St. David's Quadrille Dan Godfrey.
Bruder Lustig Galop Budik.
Contents of No. 2: —
Le Premier Balzer Waltzes Lamotte.
Venus Reigen Waltzes Gung'l.
Den Lieben Langen Tag Waltzes Rudel.
Deutsche Herzen Waltzes Strauss.
The Varsity Lancers D'Aville.
The Pet Schottische Bertrand.
Contents of No. 3: —
SIX WALTZES BY JOSEPH GUNG'L.
Soldaten Lieder Waltzes.
Grafenberg Waltzes.
Daheim Waltzes.
Jungheeren Tänze Waltzes.
Fantasiebilder Waltzes.
Mein schönster Tag in Berlin Waltzes.
Contents of No. 4: —
Frühlinglieder Waltzes Gung'l.
Lille Waltzes Strauss.
Le Tour du Monde Waltzes Metra.
La Planc e Waltzes Lamotte.
Hochzeit (Wedding) Quadrille Strauss.
Pergola Polka Marie.
Price 1s. each Number; post-free, 1s. stamps.
N.B. — Violin and Cornet Accompaniments to each Number, 6d. each.
A. HAMMOND and Co., 6, Vigo-street, London, W.

JULIA WOOLF'S NEW SONGS.
A GREAT SECRET. Words by F. E. Weatherly, Esq. THE BEE AND THE ROSE. Words by Agnes Trevor. "There is an irresistible charm of melody in both these songs." —Lit. News.
Post-free, 2s. stamps. —B. WILLIAMS, 60, Paternoster-row.

NEW SONGS by ROBERT STANLEY.
Dear little Flowers. Eating.
When love's glow hath gone by.
Price 2s. each net. —CHAMBERS and Co., 201, Regent-street.

THE FOUR MARIES. Old Ballad, as sung in Mr. Kennedy's Entertainment in St. James's Hall. Post-free for 1s. stamps, from MATHIAS SIMMONS and Co., Dundee, or C. JEFFERY, Berners-street, London.

ONE of the MOST POPULAR WALTZES of the Season is GETHOLEN KUSSE ("Stolen Kisses"), by HANS WALDENFELDT. "Its popularity promises to be almost as great as that of the 'Blue Danube Waltz.'" —Graphic, Oct. 6. Price 2s. —Wood and Co., 3, Great Marlborough-street.

PIANOS for HIRE, 10s. per Month. Seven octaves. No hire charged if purchased at any time within six months. —THOMAS OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street, London, W.

PIANOS, 17s. 6d. per Month, on the Three-Years System. Becomes the property of the hirer if the payments are kept up. Illustrated Catalogue, post-free, on application. —THOMAS OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street.

PIANO, £14. Seven-Octave PICCOLO PIANOFORTE. Second-hand, in good condition, for ready money. —May be seen at 27, Baker-street, Portman-square.

P. J. SMITH AND SONS' IRON-STRUTTED PIANOS. "The best and most substantial instrument produced." 9, CONDUIT-STREET, REGENT-STREET, W.

BUTLER'S MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS. Violins, Concertinas, Harmoniums, Flutes, Clarionets, Flageolets, Guitars, Banjos, Accordions, Flutinas, Cornets, Saxhorns, Drums, and Musical Instruments of every description. Largest assortment in the Kingdom. BUTLER'S Manufacturing, 29, Haymarket, London. Illustrated Catalogue, post-free.

MUSICAL-BOX DÉPÔTS, 56, Cheapside, and 22, Ludgate-hill, London. —Nicole's celebrated Musical Boxes, playing secular and sacred music. Prices 2s. to £120. Snuffboxes from 1s. to 80s. Largest Stock in London. Catalogue gratis and post-free. Apply to WALES & McCULLOCH, as above.

NOTICE OF REMOVAL. MESSENGER and SONS, Manufacturers of CHANDELIER, Gas-fittings, and Lamps of every description, beg to give notice of their REMOVAL from 73, Hatton-garden, to 64, HOLBORN VIADUCT, London.

E. DENT and CO., 61, Strand, and 34, Royal Exchange, London, Manufacturers of CHRONOMETERS, WATCHES, CLOCKS, &c. (Catalogues free) to her Majesty the Queen and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and Foreign Sovereigns. Makers of the Great Westminster Clock and of the New Standard Clock of the Royal Observatory, Greenwich.

WALKER'S CRYSTAL CASE WATCHES are unsurpassed all others. Price Middles-London, 1863; Paris, 1867. Silver Watches, from 44s.; Gold, from 48s. Price Lists sent free. —60, Cornhill; 220, Regent-street; and 70, Strand.

£10. BENNETT'S WATCHES. In return for a £10 Note, free and safe per post, one of BENNETT'S LADY'S GOLD WATCHES, perfect for time, beauty, and workmanship, with keyless action, air-tight, damp-tight, and dust-tight. —Chapside, London. Good Chains of manufacturers' prices. P.O. to John Bennett, BENNETT, 65 and 64, Cheapside.

TRAVELLING BAGS. Write for their "Bag" Catalogue (Illustrated).
MAPPIN and WEBB,
76, 77, & 78, OXFORD-STREET, } London.
W. 2, QUEEN VICTORIA-STREET, CITY.

BILLIARD - TABLE (SLATE). 45 10s., complete, 6ft. by 3ft. STEVENS and SONS, Villiers-street, Charing-cross. Illustrations free.

REVOLVERS, PISTOLS. — COLTS' Government Army Revolver, Colts' Deringer Revolver for travellers, and house protection, Colts' Deringer for the vest pocket. Price-List free. —Colts' Fire-Arms Company, 14, Pall-mall, London.

CHUBB'S FIRE and THIEF RESISTING SAFES, steel plated, and with their Patent Diagonal Locks, a theft-proof security. Chubb's Patent Locks and keys for all purposes. Cash and Deed Boxes. Price-List sent free. —CHUBB and SONS, 128, Queen Victoria-street, St. Paul's, E.C. and 68, St. James's-street, S.W.

CHUBB'S FIRE and THIEF RESISTING SAFES, steel plated, and with their Patent Diagonal Locks, a theft-proof security. Chubb's Patent Locks and keys for all purposes. Cash and Deed Boxes. Price-List sent free. —CHUBB and SONS, 128, Queen Victoria-street, St. Paul's, E.C. and 68, St. James's-street, S.W.

CHUBB'S FIRE and THIEF RESISTING SAFES, steel plated, and with their Patent Diagonal Locks, a theft-proof security. Chubb's Patent Locks and keys for all purposes. Cash and Deed Boxes. Price-List sent free. —CHUBB and SONS, 128, Queen Victoria-street, St. Paul's, E.C. and 68, St. James's-street, S.W.

CHUBB'S FIRE and THIEF RESISTING SAFES, steel plated, and with their Patent Diagonal Locks, a theft-proof security. Chubb's Patent Locks and keys for all purposes. Cash and Deed Boxes. Price-List sent free. —CHUBB and SONS, 128, Queen Victoria-street, St. Paul's, E.C. and 68, St. James's-street, S.W.

CHUBB'S FIRE and THIEF RESISTING SAFES, steel plated, and with their Patent Diagonal Locks, a theft-proof security. Chubb's Patent Locks and keys for all purposes. Cash and Deed Boxes. Price-List sent free. —CHUBB and SONS, 128, Queen Victoria-street, St. Paul's, E.C. and 68, St. James's-street, S.W.

of the hair on bald spots where the glands are not decayed. A any Chemist for the "Mexican Hair Renewer," price 3s. 6d.
 Prepared by HENRY O. GALLUP, 493, Oxford-street, London

NEW MUSIC.

CHRISTMAS NUMBER OF CHAPPELL'S MUSICAL MAGAZINE, containing the following Popular Dance Music:—
 Trial by Jury Lancers... Charles D'Albert.
 Constantinople Quadrille... Charles D'Albert.
 Les Fiedermans Waltz... Johann Strauss.
 Les Laitières Valse... Emile Waldteufel.
 Maiden's Dream Waltz... Edward Hoffman.
 The Schomburg Galop... Charles D'Albert.
 Florette Polka... Charles D'Albert.
 Flanico Polka... J. and J. F. Aust.
 Forget-me-not Galop... A. Hecker.
 And a New Quadrille.
MOLLIE DARLING, by CHAS. D'ALBERT.
 Price One Shilling; post-free, 1s. 3d.
 CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE BALKANS. Descriptive Piece for the Piano-forte, by JULES DE SIVEL, introducing Turkish and Russian Airs. Illustrated. 2s. net. SCHIFFA PASS. Grand March for the Piano-forte, by WM. SMALLWOOD. Illustrated. 1s. 6d. net. MARCH OF THE PASHAS. For the Piano-forte, by J. PRIDHAM. Illustrated. 2s. net. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

MAIDEN MINE. By W. STERNDAL. Bennett. Sung by Mr. Shakespeare at all Concerts during his Provincial Tour. Price 1s. 6d. net. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

ARTHUR SULLIVAN'S NEW SONG.
THE DISTANT SHORE. New Song. By ARTHUR SULLIVAN. Sung by Mr. Edward Lloyd during his provincial tour. Price (in E flat, F, or G). 2s. net. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE ROWAN TREE. New Song, by M. W. BALFE. Will be sung by Madame Antoinette Sterling during her Tour in the Province. Price 2s. net. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THOU'RT PASSING HENCE. — Mr. Santley will sing Arthur Sullivan's New Song at the Saturday Popular Concert, on Nov. 17, at St. James's Hall. Price 2s. net. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE FANFARE POLKA. By CHARLES D'ALBERT. Illustrated. 1s. 6d. net; Orchestra, 2s.; Septet, 3s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHARLES D'ALBERT'S NEW DANCE MUSIC.
SWEETHEARTS. Waltz on Arthur Sullivan's popular Song. "One of the best waltzes ever written by the above favourite Composer." 2s. net.
TRIAL BY JURY LANCERS. on Airs from Sullivan's popular Work. 2s. net.
TRIAL BY JURY QUADRILLE. 2s. net.
TRIAL BY JURY WALTZ. 2s. net.
TRIAL BY JURY POLKA. 2s. net.
BINK GALOP. 2s. net.
 The above, arranged for Full Orchestra, 2s.; Septet, 2s. each. N.B. A complete List of M. D'Albert's Popular Dance Music will be sent on application to CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S NEW SONGS.
SWEETHEARTS. (sung by Mr. Edward Lloyd) ARTHUR SULLIVAN 2s. net.
THOU'RT PASSING HENCE. (sung by Mr. Santley) ARTHUR SULLIVAN 2s. net.
IF (sung by M. McDuckin) PINSUTI... 2s. net.
THE CAPTIVE SKYLARK. PINSUTI... 2s. net.
THE SKYLARK FREE. PINSUTI... 2s. net.
BOOKS AND FLOWERS. PINSUTI... 2s. net.
OH! FOR THY WINGS. PINSUTI... 2s. net.
THE EVERLASTING SHOE. CARRINGTON LEE 2s. net.
CHARLE SONG. CARRINGTON LEE 2s. net.
THE LAST LETTER. CARRINGTON LEE 2s. net.
WHEN THOU ART NIGH. GOUNOD... 2s. net.
I'LL SING THREE SONGS OF ARABY. F. CLAY... 2s. net.
THE FATE OF A ROSE. HENRY SMART... 2s. net.
MY LOVE ACROSS THE BLUE SEA. S. ADAMS... 2s. net.
THE DAY MY LOVE WENT MAYING. L. GRAY... 2s. net.
NOT FAR AWAY. B. TOURS... 2s. net.
SAY, FOND HEART. HAMILTON CLARKE 1s. 6d. net.
 CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

TRIAL BY JURY. Dramatic Cantata. Written by W. S. Gilbert. Composed by ARTHUR SULLIVAN. Now being performed with immense success at the Strand Theatre. Complete for Voice and Piano-forte. 2s. 6d. net. TRIAL BY JURY. Piano-forte Solo. 2s. 6d. net.
THE JUDGE'S SONG. 2s. net.
THE LOVE-SICK BOY. Defendant's Song. 1s. 6d. net.
KUKE'S FANTASY. 2s. net.
SMALLWOOD'S FANTASIA (easy). 1s. 6d. net.
 CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

L'ORGANISTE PRATIQUE.
 240 Easy Pieces for Organ or Harmonium, by J. LEYBACH, in 2 vols., price 6s. each net; or in eight parts, each 2s. net. The above will supply a want long felt by amateur performers on the organ or harmonium, as all the pieces are very pretty without being difficult.
 CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S THREE-YEARS' SYSTEM OF HIRE.

PIANOFORTES of every description by all the most celebrated makers from Two Guinea's a Quarter.

HARMONIUMS by ALEXANDRE, from One Pound Five Shillings per Quarter.

SECOND-HAND PIANOFORTES, at Immense Reductions for Cash, or on the Three-Years' System.

CHAPPELL'S ENGLISH 20-GUINEA or SCHOOL-ROOM PIANOFORTE, with Check Action, in Canadian Walnut or Mahogany. This instrument combines good quality of tone and excellence of workmanship. Has a lovely touch and is capable of enduring hard practice without going out of order. Owing to its size, it is admirably adapted for the boudoir or any room where space is an object. In Solid Oak or White Ash, 22 ga.; Rosewood or Walnut Case, 27 ga. 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S COLONIAL MODEL COTTAGE PIANOFORTE. Seven Octaves, A to A. Trichord throughout. Patent Check Action. Iron plates and extra strong bracing, with solid panels in lieu of silk and fretwork. Rosewood, 45 ga.; Walnut, 50 ga. The same model manufactured expressly for exportation to extreme climates, in solid dark wood, with Iron Pin Plates and extra bracing, 50 ga. 50, New Bond-street, London, W.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S IRON-FRAMED OBLIQUE GRAND, with Transverse Strings, compass Seven Octaves, A to A; Trichord throughout and Transverse String Bass; patent check action with metal standards; solid or fretwork panels—Rosewood Case, 50 ga.; Walnut, 50 ga.; Solid Wood (extra screwed, for tropical climates), 100 ga. Suitable for all extreme climates. The strongest Piano that can be manufactured. More powerful in tone than the small Grands. 50, New Bond-street, London, W.

AIR DU DAUPHIN. Ancienne Danse de la Cour. By ROECKEL. For Piano Solo, Duet, Violin, Harmonium, Orchestra, Organ-Paraphrase, by W. T. Best. Each 18 stamps.—AUGER and Co., 50, Newgate-street, E.C.

GAVOTTE DE LOUIS QUINZE. By MAURICE LEE. Piano Solo, Duet, Violin, Orchestra, Organ Transcription, by F. K. Gladstone. 18 stamps each. AUGER and Co., 50, Newgate-street; and Foubert's-place, W.

AUGENER and CO.'S UNIVERSAL CIRCULATING MUSICAL LIBRARY is the largest in Europe. It contains 100,000 distinct works. Annual Subscription, 2 guineas.—London: 61, Regent-street. Prospectuses gratis.

NEW and POPULAR SONGS.
MAIDEN MAY. Two keys. A. S. GATTY. Sung by Madame Cave-Ashton.
BEFORE THE STORM. Baritone. A. S. GATTY.
MEHA. No. 1 tenor, No. 2 baritone. V. CAPOUL. Sung by M. Capoul.
MY LOVE. Baritone. G. FOX. Sung by Wadmore.
MY STAR. No. 1 contralto, No. 2 mezzo-sop. JULIA WOLFF.
LITTLE NANNIE. Soprano. JULIA WOLFF. Sung by Mrs. Osgood.
THE TROOPER'S DREAM. Baritone. JULIA WOLFF.
 F. W. and Sons, 19, 111-street, W.

NEW MUSIC.

Price 2s. 6d. each volume, paper; 4s., cloth, gilt edges.
ROYAL EDITION OF GERMAN SONGS.
 RUBINSTEIN'S 80 SONGS.
 RUBINSTEIN'S 16 VOCAL DUETS.
 BEETHOVEN'S 75 SONGS.
 MENDELSSOHN'S 80 SONGS.
 SCHUMANN'S 75 SONGS.
 THE SONGS OF GERMANY (100 Volkslieder).
 The above have all German and English words.
 BOOSEY and Co., 235, Regent-street, W.

Price 2s. 6d. each, paper; 4s., cloth, gilt edges.
ROYAL EDITION OF NATIONAL SONGS.
 THE SONGS OF ENGLAND (100 Songs).
 THE SONGS OF SCOTLAND (150 Songs).
 THE SONGS OF IRELAND (108 Songs).
 THE SONGS OF WALES (92 Songs).
 BOOSEY and Co., 235, Regent-street.

ROYAL EDITION OF ENGLISH OPERAS.
 The Siege of Rochelle. 2s. 6d. Rosina. 1s.
 The Bohemian Girl. 2s. 6d. No. 1 in a Village. 1s.
 The Lily of Killarney. 2s. 6d. No. 2, no Supper. 1s.
 Bataillon (in the press). The Beggar's Opera. 1s.
 BOOSEY and Co., 235, Regent-street.

Price One Shilling each.
BOOSEY'S SHILLING INSTRUCTORS.
 W. T. BEST'S FIRST ORGAN BOOK.
 J. W. ELLIOTT'S NEW HARMONIUM TUTOR.
 HENNING'S FIRST BOOK FOR THE VIOLIN.
 CASE'S VIOLIN TUTOR.
 BRINLEY RICHARDS' FIRST LESSONS FOR THE PIANO.
 GEORGE MOUNT'S POPULAR PIANOFORTE TUTOR.
 DR. SPARK'S HANDY-BOOK OF CHORAL SINGING.
 BALFE'S BALLAD TUTOR.
 VACCAR'S SINGING METHOD, without Solfege.
 HATTON'S SINGING TUTOR FOR LADIES' VOICES.
 HATTON'S SINGING TUTOR FOR MEN'S VOICES.
 KAPPEY'S CLARINET TUTOR.
 EDWARD HOWELL'S FIRST BOOK FOR THE VIOLON-CELLO.
 R. S. PRITCHEN'S FLUTE TUTOR.
 STANTON JONES'S CORNET TUTOR.
 CASE'S ENGLISH CONCERTINA TUTOR.
 DR. CALLOTT'S GRAMMAR OF MUSIC.

BOOSEY'S SHILLING BALLAD BOOKS, in the MUSICAL CABINET.
 Santley's 10 New Songs. A. S. GATTY's 12 Ballads.
 Santley's 10 New Songs. A. S. GATTY's 12 Ballads.
 Arthur Sullivan's 10 Songs. Virginia Gabriel's 10 Songs.
 Hatton's 10 New Songs. Dolores's 12 Songs.
 Longfellow and Balfe's 10 Songs. Gounod's 10 Songs.

Price 1s. each.
BOOSEY'S SHILLING OPERAS for PIANOFORTE SOLO.
 Ballo in Maschera. Lohegrin (2s.).
 Barber's. Lucia.
 Crown Diamond. Lucresia Borgia.
 Dame Blanche. Madame Angot.
 Diocora (2s.). Maria Stuarda.
 Domino Noir. Manonello.
 Don Juan. Norma.
 Don Pasquale. Nozze di Figaro.
 Ernani. Oberon.
 Fidelio. Rigoletto.
 Figlia del Reggimento. Robert le Diable.
 Flauto Magico. Semiramide.
 Flying Dutchman (2s.). Sonnambula.
 Fra Diavolo. Traviata.
 Freischütz. Trovatore.
 Grand Duchess. William Tell.
 Hugenots (2s.). Zampa.

BOOSEY'S SHILLING ORATORIOS and MASSES.
 Beethoven's Mount of Olives. Haydn's Creation (8vo). 1s.
 Bach's Passion (S. Matthew). Haydn's Creation (4to). 1s.
 1s. 6d. Haydn's Imperial Mass. 1s.
 Bach's Passion (Corale). 6d. Mendelssohn's Walpurgis Night.
 Handel's Messiah (8vo). 1s. Mendelssohn's Hymn of Praise. 1s.
 Handel's Messiah (4to). 1s. Mozart's weight Mass. 1s.
 Handel's Actus and Galates. 1s. Rossini's Requiem Mass. 1s.
 Handel's Dettingen to Death. 1s. Rossini's Stabat Mater. 1s.
 Handel's Israel in Egypt. 1s. Beethoven's Mass in C. 1s.
 Handel's Judas Maccabæus. 1s. Gounod's Messe Solennelle. 1s.

BOOSEY'S SHILLING ORGAN BOOKS.
 BACH'S 100 CHORALES.
 HENRY SMART'S 60 PRELUDES AND INTERLUDES.
 SCHUMANN'S CONCLUDING VOLUNTARIES.
 BATISTE'S 67 PRELUDES, INTERLUDES, &c.
 HATTON'S SMALL ORGAN BOOK.
 HILES' SHORT VOLUNTARIES (WITHOUT PEDALS).
 WELBY'S ORATORIOS.
 ANDRE and HENSE'S VOLUNTARIES.
 BOOSEY and Co., 235, Regent-street.

Price 1s. each Book.
BOOSEY'S CABINET CLASSICS.
 203. RUBINSTEIN'S ALBUM (11 best Pieces). 1s.
 204. RUBINSTEIN'S SIX STUDIES. 1s.
 205. RUBINSTEIN'S SIX PRELUDES. 1s.
 206. BRAHMS' ALBUM (including 16 waltzes). 1s.
 207. RAFF'S ALBUM (6 best pieces). 1s.
 208. HELLER'S ALBUM (12 pieces). 1s.
 209. HELLER'S FIRST ALBUM (10 pieces). 1s.
 210. HELLER'S SECOND ALBUM (10 pieces). 1s.
 211. HELLER'S THIRTY-FOUR STUDIES. 1s.
 212. SCHUMANN'S KINDERSCENEN, &c. 1s.
 213. SCHUMANN'S FIRST ALBUM FOR YOUTH. 1s.
 214. SCHUMANN'S SECOND ALBUM FOR YOUTH. 1s.
 215. SCHUMANN'S THIRD ALBUM FOR YOUTH. 1s.
 216. CHOPIN'S WALTZES, complete. 1s.
 217. CHOPIN'S MAZURKAS, complete. 1s.
 218. CHOPIN'S NOCTURNES, complete. 1s.
 219. CHOPIN'S TWENTY-FIVE PRELUDES. 1s.
 220. FIELD'S TEN NOCTURNES (all the best). 1s.
 221. MENDELSSOHN'S SONGS WITHOUT WORDS (Six). 1s.
 222. BEETHOVEN'S WALTZ ALBUM (45 waltzes). 1s.
 BOOSEY and Co., 235, Regent-street.

AT LAST. By COWEN. Miss Anna Williams will sing "At Last" throughout Madame Trebelli's Tour, in October and November. BOOSEY and Co., 235, Regent-street.

THE OLD SAILOR WIFE. By MOLLOY. Sung by Madame Antoinette Sterling every night at Mr. Lloyd's Provincial Concerts.—BOOSEY and Co., 235, Regent-street.

THE KING'S HIGHWAY. By MOLLOY. Sung by Mr. Maybrick, Signor Frederici, and Mr. Fox. "A charming and graceful ballad, which has made its mark, and will become one of the popular songs of the day."—News of the World. Price 2s. net.—BOOSEY and Co., 235, Regent-street.

Price 2s. each, net.
SANTLEY'S POPULAR SONGS.
 POLLY. THE VAGABOND.
 FAIR IS MY LOVE. THE YEMMAN'S WEDDING.
 Also, SANTLEY'S NEW SONG-BOOK, in the MUSICAL CABINET (179), containing Ten Songs published in no other work. Price 1s.
 NAVA'S BABITONE METHOD. Edited by Santley. 10s. 6d. BOOSEY and Co., 235, Regent-street.

NANCY LEE WALTZ. On the Celebrated Song. The Waltz of the Season.

NANCY LEE WALTZ. Price 2s. net, Solo and Duet; Septet, 1s.; Orchestra, 2s. BOOSEY and Co., 235, Regent-street.

This day, price 1s. each.
LAMOTHE'S WALTZ ALBUM, containing Six New Sets of Waltzes, price 1s.; and WALDEUFEL'S WALTZ ALBUM, containing Eight Popular Sets. 1s. BOOSEY and Co., 235, Regent-street.

STRAUSS'S DANCE BOOKS in BOOSEY'S MUSICAL CABINET. Each Number beautifully illustrated. Containing twelve numbers, illustrating the months of the year. Price 2s. 6d. complete. Separate parts for the chorus, price 4d. each voice. The band parts may also be had. BOOSEY and Co., 235, Regent-street.

New Cantata for Amateur Societies.
THE SONG OF THE MONTHS. Cantata, by FRANCIS HOWELL, Composer of "The Last of Promise." Containing twelve numbers, illustrating the months of the year. Price 2s. 6d. complete. Separate parts for the chorus, price 4d. each voice. The band parts may also be had. BOOSEY and Co., 235, Regent-street.

W. T. BEST'S FIRST ORGAN BOOK.
 Forty pages, music size. An Elementary and Practical Guide for Organ Students. This day, price 1s. BOOSEY and Co., 235, Regent-street.

NEW MUSIC.

HANDY-BOOK FOR CHORAL SOCIETIES.
 By Dr. SPARK. Price 1s. A complete Guide for the Study and Practice of Part Music, including 128 Exercises, Part-Songs, Rounds, &c. (66 pages). 2s. 6d. net. BOOSEY and Co., 235, Regent-street.

With fifteen Illustrations, price 2s. 6d.
LILLIE'S FIRST MUSIC-BOOK. 64 pages music size. "The most admirable tutor extant for the Piano-forte."—Somerset Herald.
 BOOSEY and Co., 235, Regent-street.

WORKS FOR CHORAL SOCIETIES.
 F. H. COWEN. THE CORSAIR. 2s. 6d.
 F. H. COWEN. THE ROSE MAIDEN. 2s. 6d.
 ARTHUR SULLIVAN. THE PRODIGAL SON. 2s. 6d.
 ARTHUR SULLIVAN. ON SHORE AND SEA. 2s. 6d.
 F. HOWELL. THE LAND OF PROMISE. 2s. 6d.
 BOOSEY and Co., 235, Regent-street.

NOVELLO, EWER, and CO.'S MUSIC PRIMERS. Edited by Dr. STAINER:
 1. The Piano-forte (Second Edition, price 2s.). 2. The Rudiments of Music (in the Press). 3. The Organ (ready Oct. 15). Dr. Stainer. In preparation: 4. Harmonium, King Hall. 5. Singing. A. B. Rogers. 6. Pronunciation in Singing. A. J. Ellis, F.R.S. 7. Musical Forms. E. Pauer. 8. Harmony. Dr. Stainer. 9. Counterpoint. Dr. Bridge. 10. Fugue. J. Higgs. 11. History of Music. E. Pauer. 12. Scientific Basis of Music. Dr. Stone. 13. Church Choir Training. Rev. J. Troutbeck. 14. Plain Song. Rev. T. Holmore. 15. Instrumentation. E. Prout. 16. The Elements of the Beautiful in Music. E. Pauer.—(To be continued.)

Second Edition, price Two Shillings.
THE PIANOFORTE PRIMER. By ERNST PAUER (Principal Professor of the Piano-forte at the National Training School for Music). No. 1 of NOVELLO, EWER, and Co.'s Music Primers.

Now ready.
THE ORGAN PRIMER. By Dr. STAINER. No. 3 of NOVELLO, EWER, and Co.'s Music Primers.

In the Press.
THE RUDIMENTS OF MUSIC PRIMER. By W. H. CUMMINGS. No. 2 of NOVELLO, EWER, and Co.'s Music Primers.

Second Edition, price Two Shillings.
CATHEDRAL PSALTER CHANTS. Edited by Rev. S. BOOD JONES, M.A.; JAMES TURLE, Rev. J. THOUTBECK, M.A.; Dr. J. STAINER, and JOSEPH BARNBY.

LIEDER OHNE WORTE. Eight Books. 4s. complete.

MENDELSSOHN.—LIEDER OHNE WORTE (Songs Without Words). The best and ONLY COMPLETE EDITION, containing the Seventh and Eighth Books. Folio, handsomely bound, gilt edges, 12s.; octavo, handsomely bound, 6s.; paper covers, 4s. Order Novello's Edition.

RUBINSTEIN'S EIGHTEEN TWO-PART SONGS, with German and English Words. The English Version by Madame NATALIA MACFABEN. Octavo, paper covers, 2s. 6d.; handsomely bound, 4s. 6d.

SCHUMANN'S VOCAL ALBUM, containing Thirty Songs, with English and German Words. By ROBERT SCHUMANN. Paper covers, 2s. 6d.; handsomely bound, 4s. 6d.

SCHUMANN'S PIANOFORTE ALBUM for YOUNG PIANISTS, containing Fifty-Six Short Pieces. By ROBERT SCHUMANN (Op. 68 and Op. 105). Paper covers, 2s. 6d.; handsomely bound, 4s. 6d.

GERMAN VOLKSLIEDER ALBUM, containing Forty Songs, with the Original German Words, and an English version by John Oxenford. Paper covers, 2s. 6d.; handsomely bound, 4s. 6d.
 London: NOVELLO, EWER, and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.; and 50 and 51, Queen-street, E.C.

ALL SHEET MUSIC promptly forwarded, post-free, at half price. Accuracy to be depended upon. Payments received in stamps.
 London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.

HAMILTON'S MODERN INSTRUCTIONS for the PIANOFORTE. 117th Edition.—This popular and standard book has been thoroughly modernised, and will now be found much more progressive. It begins at the lowest step of the ladder. Every little lesson has been carefully fingered and arranged, with a view to the position of the hand, and in the order of difficulty with reference to the keys. Solo duets have been added, and the part for the pupil placed over that for the teacher, in order further to explain the time-table. The improvements of the book will be found both practical and useful, and calculated to strengthen its position and increase its world-wide popularity. Post-free for 28 stamps.
 London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.

L'ECLAIR GALOP. Illustrated. A New and most spirited Galop for the Piano-forte. By COTSFORD DICK. Post-free for 18 stamps.
 London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.

A VENETIAN MARCH of the Seventeenth Century for the Piano-forte. By F. LEMOINE. Post-free for 18 stamps. A very attractive theme, well set.
 London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.

POPULAR QUADRILLES for the Piano-forte, as Solos and Duets. 4s. each, post-free at half price.
 The United Service. F. Godfrey. The Canary. R. Linter.
 The Oboon. S. Glover. The Garden Party. W. Smallwood.
 The Gipsy. S. Glover. The Holklay. S. Glover.
 The True Friends. S. Glover. The English Fleet. J. Pridham.
 The Pusey. A. Ledue. A Singing Quadrille. Cotford Dick.
 London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.

ASHDOWN and PARRY'S CATALOGUES OF MUSIC.
 PART 1. PIANO, ORGAN, HARMONIUM.
 PART 2. VOCAL.
 PART 3. HARP, CONCERTINA.
 PART 4. VIOLIN, VIOLONCELLO, ORCHESTRA, &c.
 PART 5. FLUTE, CORNET, CLARINET, &c.
 Sent gratis and post-free to any part of the world.
 Ashdown and Parry, Hanover-square, London.

Just published.
THE LORD BRINGS BACK HIS OWN. New Sacred Song. By Sir JULIUS BENEDET. Price 4s. Ashdown and Parry, Hanover-square.

MARRIOTT'S NAVAL QUADRILLE. A new and extremely effective Set on popular Nautical Melodies. Price 4s.
 London: ASHDOWN and PARRY.

Just published. A remarkably attractive and vigorous Set, on popular martial airs. Price 4s.
 London: ASHDOWN and PARRY.

CHRISTMAS TIME. A New Set of Lancers Quadrilles on old English Melodies. By W. C. LEVEY. Well-chosen tunes, and excellent for dancing.
 London: ASHDOWN and PARRY, Hanover-square.

ASHDOWN and PARRY'S MUSICAL PUBLICATIONS are to be had of every Musician and Bookseller in Great Britain, Ireland, the Colonies, and India, or will be sent direct post-free at half the marked price (bound works and cheap vocal part-music excepted) to any part of the world on receipt of remittance of satisfactory reference.
 London: ASHDOWN and PARRY, Hanover-square.

BAISER DE PRINTEMPS. LAMOTHE'S loveliest and most popular Waltz, played with greatest success at all Cote and Timney's engagements, and by all the Regimental Bands of the Service and Volunteers. 2s. net. CUNNINGHAM BOOSEY and Co., and all Musicellers.

A. S. GATTY'S BEST SONGS.
 A DAISY SONG. 2s. each. TRUE TILL DEATH.
 Song by Madame Cave-Ashton. 1s. each. CUNNINGHAM BOOSEY and Co., and all Musicellers.

NEW MUSIC.

Ready this day.
THE CLANG VALSE (The Clang of the Wooden Shoon) on Molloy's popular Song. Arran by CHARLES GODFREY. Price 4s.; post-free, 2s. 6d. stamps. This charming Waltz will be performed for the first time in public by the Band of the Royal Horse Guards at the County Ball, Bury St. Edmunds, on Oct. 28.
 London: METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, W.

Just published.
KING HENRY'S SONG. By ARTHUR SULLIVAN. Introduced in the revival of "Henry VIII." Price 4s. Half price.
 METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London.

Just published.
BEDOON LOVE SONG. Composed by CIRO PINSUTI. Sung by Signor Foli with great success. Price 4s.; post-free, 2s. 6d. stamps.
 London: METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, W.

Just published.
ACROSS THE FAR BLUE HILLS. MARIE. New Song. By JACQUES BLUMENTHAL. Words by E. Weatherly. Price 4s.; post-free, 2s. 6d. stamps.
 London: METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, W.

THE FIRE KING.—THE PAST IS BUT A TROUBLED DREAM. Sung by Mr. Edward Lloyd. Also, TO ARMS! TO ARMS! War Song. Price 4s. each. Half price.—METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London.

SEA NYMPHS. The New Operetta. By LECOCQ (now being represented at the Folly Theatre). The Libretto (written by H. B. Farnie) and the Music complete, with all stage directions, published at 2s. 6d., post-free, in Metzler and Co.'s Edition of Comic Operas.
 METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

WHISPERING KISSES. The New Song. By E. JONAS (from the popular French play, "Bébé"). Is sung by Miss Violet Cameron in "The Creole" at the Folly Theatre with the greatest possible success, and is nightly encored. Post-free, 18 stamps.
 METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

SUNG BY MR. BARTON MCGUCKIN.
MINE OWN. A New Song, in C, E, and F. By H. GADSBY; Words by E. Weatherly. Price 4s.; post-free, half price.
 METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

SUNG BY MADAME LIEBHART.
FAR FROM HOME. New Song. By G. B. ALLEN. Words by Edward Oxenford. Sung with the greatest success at Madame Liebhart's Concerts. Price 4s.; post-free, half price.
 METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

EDITH'S SONG. From Tennyson's "Harold." Set to Music by ODOARDO BARRI. Post-free, 24 stamps.
 METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

A WINTER'S TALE. From Tennyson's "Harold." Setting for young lovers in wintry weather." Set to Music by ODOARDO BARRI. Post-free, 24 stamps.
 METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

WAR SONGS OF THE EAST. By H. B. FARNIE. In handsome cover, price 1s.; post-free, 13 stamps.
 METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

LA SERENADE. Waltz. By METRA. A most attractive and popular waltz. Solo or Duet. Post-free, 24 stamps.
 METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

LA VAGUE. Waltz. By METRA. Solo or Duet. Post-free, 24 stamps.
 METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

W. SMALLWOOD'S NEW PIECES for PIANOFORTE. Illustrated Titlespages. CRYSTAL DEW DROPS. AVELETTE. Gondola Song. FAIRY DREAMS. Post-free, 18 stamps each.
 METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

MASON and HAMLIN'S ORGANS. Now ready. New Illustrated Book. Post-free.
 METZLER and Co., Sole Agents, Great Marlborough-street, W.

MASON and HAMLIN'S ORGANS. New Style 235. Nine Stops. Viola Dulce, Seraphone, &c. Price 28 gs.
 METZLER and Co., Sole Agents, Great Marlborough-street, W.

MASON and HAMLIN'S ORG

THE PRINCE OF WALES TAKING HIS SONS ON BOARD THE NAVAL CADETS' TRAINING-SHIP BRITANNIA AT DARTMOUTH.

THE OBELISK AS SEEN FROM CANNING'S STATUE.

THE OBELISK FROM THE CORNER OF PALACE-YARD.

CLEOPATRA'S NEEDLE IN THE PROPOSED SITE.

THE ROYAL NAVAL CADETS AT DARTMOUTH.

The Prince of Wales took his two sons, Prince Albert Victor Christian Edward, and Prince George Frederick Ernest Albert, to Dartmouth on Thursday week, and placed them as naval cadets on board H.M.S. Britannia, the training-ship. There are, indeed, two vessels, the Britannia and the Hindostan, moored one astern of the other in the midway of the harbour, and connected by a covered gangway running from the bows of the Britannia to the stern gallery of the Hindostan. These vessels are without masts and rigging, except one small mast in the Britannia for the purpose of signals and instruction; they have no guns; their ports are filled with glazed windows, and their decks are fitted with class-rooms, cabins and mess-rooms for the officers and instructors, store-rooms, and quarters for the ship's company. The cadets sleep in hammocks on the main deck. Each ship is furnished with hot and cold baths, and a large tank, used every morning as a swimming-bath. The private landing-place of the Britannia is within pistol-shot of the ship. Here is a gymnasium, and on the heights above is a cricket-ground; half-way up the hill is a five-court and covered bowling-alley. A small fleet of boats, both for sailing and rowing, is attached to the ship; these, under proper precautions, are at the disposal of the cadets. Every cadet is required, unless prevented by sickness, to spend at least an hour a day on shore at the gymnasium, the bowling-alley, or in the cricket-field, and on certain days of the week a much longer time is afforded for recreation and exercise. About twenty-eight hours per week is the time allotted for formal instruction; this is judiciously divided among the various branches of a general and technical training. For instruction in seamanship the ship is provided with a series of models, in which every part of a ship and its rigging is shown on a scale large enough for practical teaching. The single mast of the Britannia is used for the same purpose, and draughts of cadets are occasionally sent to sea in the Dapper, a seagoing gun-boat attached to the Britannia as tender. The number of cadets is about 130, divided into four classes. Each of the cadets passes through every class in the course of his two or three years' training. Each class is under a naval instructor, assisted by teachers for special subjects; but the same instructor takes the same batch of cadets through each of the four classes, so that a particular cadet is always under the same teacher. Each cadet on board costs the country over £300 a year. This high figure is partly accounted for by the fact that she is a commissioned ship, with a captain, a staff of executive officers, and a ship's company, independent of the staff of naval instructors and special teachers. The above is a short outline of the kind of work the young Princes will have to perform during their stay on board the ship, the only exception being that they will be brought up by a private tutor.

A set of apartments has been constructed on board the Britannia for the accommodation of the two Royal Princes. It is separated from the rest of the ship by a canvas screen across the upper deck. There are three entrances—one for the Princes, one for the private tutor, and one for the servant. The sitting-room is 26 ft. by 9 ft. 8 in., by 7 ft. high. The furniture is of light mahogany, and consists of a circular table covered with crimson and black cloth, two couches, two easy-chairs, and two cross-legged cane-seated easy-chairs. There are two mahogany writing-desks, fitted with drawers, and book-shelves, and cap-racks. The carpet is dark brown with a dark pattern. There is a small grate, with necessary fittings, made to warm both the sitting-room and the sleeping-cabin. The mats and rugs are perfectly plain. The apartment is well lit and ventilated, having round the sides seventeen sliding sashes with shutter lights, hung with green curtains. The woodwork is painted a delicate green. Over the fireplace is a simple pier-glass. Two doors lead from this room out behind. The sleeping-cabin is on the port side, forward from the sitting-room. It is 15 ft. 6 in. long, 11 ft. 6 in. wide, and, like the other rooms, 7 ft. high. The furniture, of the same pattern as that in the sitting-room, consists of three or four chairs, two washstands, mahogany shelves, and two towel horses. There are the usual hammock bars, and the two brothers have their hammocks slung side by side. There are five sliding sashes, with shutters and curtains, as in the sitting-room. From this cabin the tutor's cabin is entered forward. It is only 11 ft. long by 7 ft. in width; it is furnished in the same style as the Princes' room, but, instead of a hammock, it has a small bed. The bathroom, on the left-hand side of the entrance to the sitting-room, is 9 ft. long by 8 ft. wide, and has three sliding windows. The bath is 8 ft. long by 3 ft. 6 in. deep, and 2 ft. 9 in. in width, and will be heated by steam. It is supplied with both fresh and salt water. Forward from the bath-room is the servant's room, fitted and furnished much the same as the room of the tutor. Over the space between the apartment and the canvas screen already mentioned there is an awning. As a new gangway has been built from this part of the deck to the studies below, the Princes will be able to pass up and down entirely under cover. The apartments are ventilated with copper cowls. Nothing appears to have been overlooked which can tend to the health or convenience of the Royal brothers. With the exception of having separate apartments, they will be treated like the other cadets.

The Prince of Wales, with his sons, arrived at the Kingswear railway station, opposite Dartmouth, at ten minutes before five in the afternoon, having left London by the Great Western line about noon, and come on by the Bristol and Exeter and South Devon Railways. The Prince of Wales wore the uniform of the Royal Naval Reserve, while the boy Princes wore their Naval Cadet uniforms. Their Royal Highnesses were accompanied by two equerries, and by Admiral Sir H. Keppel and the Rev. Mr. Dalton, private tutor to the young Princes. They were received by Captain Fairfax, Commander of the Britannia, and by the Mayors and corporate officials of Totnes and Dartmouth. The latter presented addresses of welcome, after which their Royal Highnesses descended the platform, between ranks of the boys of the Brixham Orphanage School, and went in a barge to the Britannia, passing through a flotilla of nearly three hundred boats. The barge was manned by Naval Cadets, and there was a double line of Cadets' boats, in which they all stood up bareheaded, holding their oars erect on high, by way of a salute. Many of the other boats, as well as the town and banks of the Dart estuary, were decorated with flags and banners; and thousands of spectators were assembled. The scene, of which we give an illustration, was very animated, with the picturesque steep wooded hills on both sides of the river, the quaint old-fashioned buildings of the quay and streets, and the row of boats that seem quite to shut in the harbour from the sea. There was an illumination of the town at night, with a torchlight procession. The Prince of Wales stayed that night on board the Britannia, and returned next day to London, leaving his two sons in their new floating home and school.

The Hospital Saturday movement at Portsmouth this year shows an increase over last year of £125.

MAP OF THE BASIN OF THE CONGO, ILLUSTRATING MR. STANLEY'S TRAVELS IN AFRICA.

STANLEY'S EXPLORATION OF THE CONGO.

The Daily Telegraph and New York Herald Special African Explorer has again performed a valuable service for geographical science; and our Sketch Map of the Basin of the Congo will enable readers to form an estimate of Mr. H. M. Stanley's latest achievement. On Aug. 24, 1876, this enterprising traveller left Ujiji, on the eastern shore of Lake Tanganyika, on his way to the Manyema country. His men were gloomy and dispirited, for they had been frightened by the stories of cannibalism practised in the west. Many of them deserted, and Stanley, to prevent the total disorganisation of his force, had a number of them clapped in irons, and drove them down to the canoes. Treading in the footsteps of Livingstone and Cameron, he reached Nyangwe, on the Lualaba river. His men, in the meantime, had recovered their spirits, all fears of being eaten having vanished. He found Manyema much changed since Livingstone's visit. The country then was densely populated; it abounded in gardens and cultivated fields, and there were flocks of goats and droves of black pigs. It is now, for the most part, an uninhabited wilderness, and this in consequence of the slave-hunts carried on there by the subjects of the Sultan of Zanzibar.

At Nyangwe Stanley recruited a force of 140 musketeers and seventy spearmen. On Nov. 5 he again started, at first following the right bank of the river, through Uregga, a country inhabited by cannibals; thence crossed over to the left bank, and finally embarked his force in the exploring-boat Lady Alice and eighteen canoes. At the very outset of his journey he was harassed by the natives and by the disinclination of his escort to proceed further. The river, contrary to expectations, flowed almost directly to the north. Under the Equator it formed five great falls, and it was necessary to cut a road thirteen miles through the forest, over which the canoes were dragged. In lat. 2 deg. N. the river turned to the north-west. Stanley describes it as a broad stream, from two to ten miles wide, and full of islands. He established friendly relations with a tribe who were armed with muskets; but three days later he was attacked by fifty-four large canoes, which issued from a considerable tributary of the Lualaba, and he there fought the last but one of "thirty-two battles." This tributary, not less than 2000 yards wide at its mouth, appears to have been Schweinfurth's Welle. The Monbattu, who live on it, are known to possess large canoes, and they have every facility of procuring muskets from Nubian traders. The Congo there, or lower down, is known as Ikutu ya Congo. Navigation does not appear to be interrupted again until the Massassa Falls are reached; but thence down to the coast there are no less than thirty falls and rapids, the lowest being those of Yellala.

At the Massassa Falls the expedition nearly came to grief. Twelve boats were swept over the falls here; Frank Pocock (Stanley's European servant) and fifteen natives perished, and 12,000 dollars' worth of ivory were lost. Six weeks later, at the Falls of Mbeto, Stanley himself narrowly escaped a similar fate.

On Aug. 6, 1877, after a journey of 274 days from Nyangwe, the expedition arrived at Ni Sanda, a village within four days' march of Boma, a trading station on the lower Congo. Stanley's force had been reduced by that time to 115 men, women, and children, in a starving condition, for the natives declined to receive the cloths, beads, and wire brought from the East Coast, in exchange of corn. Fortunately, relief was near at hand. Messrs. A. Motta Viera and J. W. Harrison, of Boma, on hearing of the traveller's arrival, at once forwarded a supply of provisions. The importance of Stanley's discoveries can hardly be overrated. He has changed the aspect of our map of Central Africa, and the Congo will in future take rank with the very largest rivers of the world.

THE ROYAL HUMANE SOCIETY.

The following cases of saving life were last week brought under the notice of the committee, which bestowed the usual awards:—

The silver medallion was unanimously voted to Mr. A. E. Bartlett, surgeon, of Goudhurst, Kent, for the following act of gallantry:—On the 21st ult. William Buss, a plumber, descended a well 34 ft. deep for the purpose of effecting some repairs in connection with the pump; but he had been only a short time down when the foul air compelled him to signal to be hauled up, which was done, and when within 8 ft. of the top he became insensible, slipped through the rope by which he was fastened, and fell to the bottom. Mr. Bartlett, as a medical man, was sent for, and found the air so foul that no light would burn, and the well was, of course, quite dark. He heard the man breathing stertorously at the bottom, and at once determined to descend and attempt his rescue, which he did by holding on to a short ladder let down by a rope. On reaching the bottom he found the man still insensible, with his head just out of the water, and managed to fix him round the pipe of the pump to prevent his drowning. Experiencing, however, great difficulty in breathing, and not being secured to the ladder, he was unable to remain or to take up Buss, who was a heavy man. On coming to the surface he endeavoured to induce someone else to venture to the rescue, being himself much exhausted, but without success, and he therefore determined to make another effort. By this time, however, the unfortunate man had succumbed to the influence of the foul air and the fall, and his would-be rescuer was only at last successful in bringing his body to the surface.

The society's medallion was also voted to Miss Julia R. Wyatt, a young lady only fourteen years of age, for rescuing Miss Hutchinson, who was in danger of drowning at Plymouth harbour while bathing on June 28; to James Claypole, a lad of seventeen, for saving Thomas Calman, who sank while bathing in the sea at Southsea, Hants, on Aug. 29; to G. A. Lacey, a gunner in the Royal Marine Artillery, for saving, in conjunction with two other men named Bulkeley and Croad, who were also rewarded by the presentation of testimonials, a man named Keogh, who sank while bathing in 28 ft. of water at Fort Mansel, Malta, on the 1st ult.; to John George Collis, a lad of eighteen, for diving four times to the rescue of William Plumridge, who sank in 12 ft. of water while bathing at Tumbling Bay, Oxford, on Aug. 12; and to W. Mansfield, for saving Denis Mulcahy, who fell into the sea at Cork on the 23rd ult.

Testimonials inscribed on vellum and on parchment, recording the nature of the services rendered and the thanks of the society, were also presented to Henry Smith, James Higham, Sergeant G. E. Green, of the Grenadier Guards; George Underwood, Thomas Daughton, J. T. Howe, George Colville, John R. Vining, Charles Griffiths, William Rose, and W. H. Moorman; and pecuniary rewards of various amounts to Robert Vincent, John Williamson, Arthur Bailey, and George Brownbrick.

The annual meeting of the United Kingdom Alliance was held on Tuesday at Manchester, under the presidency of Mr. Benjamin Whitworth, M.P. In the evening a great meeting was held in the Free Trade Hall, at which the chief speaker was Sir Wilfrid Lawson.

MUSIC.

CRYSTAL PALACE.

The programme of the third of the new series of Saturday afternoon concerts included the first performance of Schubert's second symphony, in B flat. The recovery of the manuscript of this work was one of the many valuable similar results of the visit of Mr. George Grove (then secretary of the Crystal Palace) to Vienna in 1867. Since that date several important compositions by Schubert have been given for the first time at the Crystal Palace concerts, including the "Tragic Symphony" (No. 4), the fifth symphony (in B flat), and the seventh (in C major)—several overtures, the music of the operetta "The Conspirators," the "Song of Miriam," and other valuable works.

The symphony performed on Saturday begins (as do most of the other symphonies of Schubert) with an introductory slow movement (Largo) which heralds an "Allegro Vivace," founded on a subject curiously like that of Beethoven's overture to "The Men of Prometheus." The following andante is a charmingly melodious although simple theme, which is varied and elaborated with exquisite variety of treatment and orchestral effect. A bold minuet and trio follow, and the symphony concludes with a bright and genial presto vivace, which is full of sustained interest and animation. The work was composed in 1815, when Schubert was about seventeen. It was admirably played on Saturday, and was received with great applause throughout.

Another novelty at the same concert was M. de Saint Saëns's symphonic poem "La Jeunesse d'Hercule," a series of strongly contrasted movements illustrative of the legend of the young Hercules's hesitation "between Virtue and Vice, and his final choice of Virtue, with hardship, sacrifice, death, and eternal life." There is some skilful orchestral writing, but the general effect of the music is that of strained effort. The piece, however, was not heard to the best advantage, coming at the close of the concert, and after such works as had preceded it—the symphony already noticed, Sterndale Bennett's refined and imaginative overture entitled "Parisina" (in illustration of Byron's poem), and Mendelssohn's splendid violin concerto. This latter work was played by Senor Sarasate (who made so great an effect at the previous week's concert), with a purity and beauty of tone, an accuracy of intonation, and a brilliant and unflinching mechanism, that produced a marked impression. Enthusiastic applause followed his exquisite delivery of the "Andante," and this was repeated at the close of the concerto. The violinist was also heard in his own transcription of a pianoforte nocturne by Chopin, in answer to an encore of which he played another piece.

Mlle. Redeker sang with much effect a recitative and prayer from Herr Max Bruch's "Odysseus" and lieder by Schubert and Mendelssohn; and Mr. R. Hilton (a gentleman with a good bass voice) was well received in his delivery of Handel's aria "Se un bell'Arcide" and Loder's song, "The Diver."

At the concert of to-day (Saturday) a pianoforte concerto by Scharwenka is to be introduced for the first time, with Mr. Dannreuther as pianist.

Mr. William Carter opened his new season of oratorio performances at the Royal Albert Hall on Thursday week with "The Messiah." An important feature at these concerts is the fine singing of the choir formed and trained by Mr. Carter. The solo singers on Thursday were Mesdames Nouver and Patey, Mr. Cummings and Mr. George Fox. Mr. Carter conducted with his usual ability.—The next concert will take place in November, when Mendelssohn's "Lobgesang" (Hymn of Praise) and Rossini's "Stabat Mater" will be performed.

Her Majesty's Theatre is to be reopened by Mr. Mapleson on Nov. 5 for a season of Italian opera performances, at reduced prices. The programme announces the production of Signor Marchetti's opera, "Ruy Blas," which is said to have been very successful in Italy; besides which Verdi's "La Forza del Destino" will be revived, with changes and additions by the composer, who may probably visit London to conduct it. The list of artists announced comprises the names of Mesdames Caroline Salla, Marie Roze, and Demerice-Lablache, Mdlles. Alwina Valleria and Mila Rodani, Mdlles. Parodi and Lisa Perdi (their first appearance), Mlle. Bauermeister, Mlle. Anna de Belocca (her first appearance in this theatre); Signori Fancelli, Bettini, and Giliandi, Signor Rancio (his first appearance), Signori Rinaldini and Grazzi, Signori Galassi, Del Puente, Poli, Zoboli, Franceschi, Fallar, and Brocolini, and M. Gomet. The subscription is for thirty nights. The usual restrictions as to dress will only apply to the stalls and the dress circle, and the performances will begin an hour earlier than usual—that is, at half-past seven, so as to terminate at a reasonable time. The scheme appears to hold out every prospect of a favourable result.

Music is again to be made a prominent feature at the Alexandra Palace. On Saturdays, Nov. 3 and 17 and Dec. 1 and 15, concerts of orchestral and vocal music will be given by a band of fifty, under the direction of Mr. Frederick Archer. Nov. 3, being the anniversary of Mendelssohn's death, the music is to consist chiefly of that composer's works. On the evenings of alternate Saturdays, except Nov. 10 (a race day) there will be concerts of Handel's music by the Alexandra Palace Festival Choir of 1000 voices.

Mr. Kuhe gave his annual concert at Brighton on Tuesday before a fashionable assembly, Mlle. Albani and a number of distinguished artists taking part in the entertainment.

A concert of chamber music (the first of a series of four) by Herr Hermann Franke will be given next Tuesday evening, at the concert-room, Royal Academy of Music; and Mr. Walter Bache's annual pianoforte recital is announced for Monday afternoon, Nov. 5, at St. James's Hall. Mr. Santley will be the vocalist.

The arrangements for the series of concerts to be given at Newcastle-on-Tyne, for the benefit of the local infirmaries (briefly referred to in our last Number) are on a very extensive scale, including the engagement of a fine orchestra, led by Mr. Pollitzer, and a powerful chorus, together numbering about 250 performers. The solo-singers named in the prospectus are Mesdames Edith Wynne and Patey, Misses Anna Williams, Helen D'Alton, and Henrietta Tomlinson, Mr. E. Lloyd, Mr. B. Lane, Mr. L. Thomas, Mr. R. Ferry, and Signor Foli. The concerts will occupy the week beginning Nov. 5, and the principal features of the programmes will be as follow:—On the Monday, "The Messiah"; Tuesday, Mr. H. Smart's cantata, "The Bride of Dunkerron," and a miscellaneous selection, including Mendelssohn's concerto in G minor (pianoforte, Mr. Rea), Nicolai's overture to "The Merry Wives of Windsor," &c.; Wednesday, Rossini's "Stabat Mater," Beethoven's symphony in C minor, Mendelssohn's overture to "Ruy Blas"; Thursday, "Elijah"; Friday, "Hezekiah," an oratorio composed expressly for these concerts by Dr. Arne; the finale to the first act of Mendelssohn's unfinished opera, "Loreley"; Weber's overture to "Oberon," and a violin solo by Mr. Pollitzer; and on the Saturday a miscellaneous concert comprising Beethoven's pianoforte concerto in E flat

(with Mr. Walter Bache as pianist), Mendelssohn's "Italian" symphony, Rossini's overture to "Guillaume Tell, and other pieces. Mr. Rea, an eminent local professor, contributes his services as conductor and solo pianist, in addition to which the fine choir trained by him give their co-operation, as constituting the chorus. It is to be hoped, and can scarcely be doubted, that the results of such performances, so efficiently organised, will be largely beneficial to the excellent institution which stands in need of aid and greatly deserves it.

The following have satisfied the examiners for the degree of Bachelor in Music at the University of Oxford:—J. Barret, New College and Tentercroft-street, Lincoln; R. A. Boissier, Christ Church and Penshurst, Kent; T. H. Collinson, New College and North-road, Durham; H. W. Harding, New College and Sidmouth; J. W. Hudson, New College and Spring Bank, Hull; H. Walmisley, Little New College and Bernard-street, London, W.C.; H. T. Pringner, New College and the Glen, Redhill; F. J. Sawyer, New College and Lambeth-road, London; and G. F. Sims, St. John's College and Holywell, Oxford.—The following have satisfied the examiners in the degree of Doctor in Music:—H. Keeton, New College and the Cathedral, Peterborough; and W. H. Sangster, New College and Cambridge-street, Hyde Park.

The council of Trinity College, London, have lately decided to throw open its higher musical examinations to women. The first examination under the new statutes will take place early next year.

Mr. Heathcote Long has presented the Royal Academy of Music with a prize of ten guineas for pianoforte-playing, to be competed for by male students at the end of each academical year, in July.

THEATRES.

The recent changes in theatrical movements are of a nature to provoke serious reflection. First of all, we have to record the withdrawal of Mr. Wills's dramatic romance of "England in the Days of Charles II." from the boards of Drury Lane. The manager has fallen back on the late Mr. Andrew Halliday's well-tryed "Amy Robsart." This drama was reproduced on Saturday with its usual success. Miss Louise Wiles, an actress of evident ability, sustains the character of the heroine, and is likely, we think, to achieve popularity. Miss Edith Stuart, in the part of Queen Elizabeth, is sufficiently majestic, and in the expression of scorn and jealous rage adequately forcible. Leicester is represented by Mr. W. Terriss, and Tresilian by Mr. E. F. Edgar. Mr. James Fernandez made a strong part of Varney, and Miss Harriett Coveney a lively one of Flibbertigibbet. The appropriate scenery and accessories have been restored to the representation, and as a spectacle it wants nothing to render it attractive.

The failure of Mr. Wills's tragedy lies probably in the fact of its author having been hurried in the production of a piece made to order. The true secret of dramatic success lies in the condition that the playwright should work spontaneously and freely. The course of management has not lately encouraged the speculative dramatist to labour at the composition of a standard drama, with a hope when finished that a discerning manager would place it on the stage. Where such an arrangement is possible, the results are profitable to all parties.

This becomes clear from the experience of the Court Theatre, which, in presenting a posthumous play of Lord Lytton's, has found its reward in public approbation. His Lordship would appear to have composed the four acts in question at an interval subsequent to the production of "Money" and prior to that of "Not so Bad as We Seem." They are written with all the care and polish that distinguished the style of the popular author at that period, and the dialogue is in particular characterised by those artistic touches in which he so much delighted. No doubt there is an air of artificiality in the general tone of the composition; but there is evidence of workman-like care and earnestness in every part of the general treatment. Perhaps there is not much originality in the plot; and, indeed, the great scene in which the husband utters the parable designed to confound the seducer and fortify the wife with honest motives is palpably borrowed from a French play. Mr. Boucicault had, in fact, previously used it in one of his occasional productions; but the situation has not as yet been stated. The copy given to us by Lord Lytton takes its place naturally enough in the dramatic history of "the House of Darnley." The famous apologue, however, fails of its full effect on Lady Juliet Darnley, who needs yet the stimulus of jealousy in order to secure her complete restoration to honour. All this is very ingeniously contrived, and gives rise to situations that are natural enough in their way, yet exhibit, perhaps, a little too much conscious cleverness on the part of the practised dramatist. More modern dramas avoid this fault, and endeavour to make a judicious use of common-places, by which the specific action is brought more level to the minds of a general audience. We may note that the additional act supplied by Mr. Coghlan illustrates in some measure the difference between the various treatments. There are in it some phrases which we suspect Lord Lytton would never have tolerated, and which somewhat offend a fastidious taste. The general acting of the play is well calculated to assist in rescuing the posthumous labour of an esteemed literary workman from undeserved oblivion. Nothing can be better than Mr. Charles Kelly's interpretation of the character of Darnley—it is minute and distinct, faithful to the slightest traits that serve as exponents of the motives and habits of thinking of a worldly, honest man, who believes in wealth and argues that it means worth. Equally good is Mr. Hare in the portraiture of Mainwaring, the rich man's cynical friend. Mr. Titherage made a very favourable first appearance in Sir Francis Marsden, whose rascally confidant, Fyshe, was characteristically in all respects realised by Mr. A. Bishop. To Miss Helen Terry as the lady Juliet we have already made our acknowledgments. But there is one attribute which will secure the popularity of Lord Lytton's interesting drama—that is, the chastity of its plot, and the moral quality which pervades the entire design and execution of the dramatic legacy which his Lordship has made to the world.

We wish we could say as much for the comic opera with which Miss Kate Santley has inaugurated her management of the Royalty. It would be unjust to suppose that "La Marjolaine" is merely an opera-bouffe; its composer had evidently a far more ambitious aim. Lecocq intended to present his Belgian admirers with new and original music, remarkable for ingenuity and brilliancy, associated with original songs and with an original story. There is little of parody, and less of buffoonery. The libretto, by MM. Vaulon and Leterrier, is less discreet than it might have been; and the action has been condemned as being objectionably suggestive, and all this notwithstanding the care of the adapter (Mr. Sutherland Edwards) to remove doubtful phrases. Miss Kate Santley should, we think, have thought seriously before presenting this libretto to an English audience. It is true that the music of Lecocq is of rare excellence, and the singing, though not throughout successful, very good, particularly that by Miss Rose Cullen, and Mr. F. Mervin, whose Annibal was an effective bit of acting. Mr. Lionel Brough, with his fowl "George," managed to be exceedingly comic.

A new actor, hailing from America, has appeared at the Surrey. He has been placarded and posted in the most prominent style, and puts forth the most elevated claims for his acceptance by a transpontine audience. His name is Mr. George M. Caprico, and he appears as the hero of a new American melodrama, which is not without considerable merit—albeit curiously entitled "Fates and Furies." All this manifests a bold determination to succeed, if not to carry the position by storm. The drama is written by Mr. G. B. Denamore, and has been performed at San Francisco with success. The piece is in six acts, and deals with the period of the French Revolution. The character assumed by Caprico is that of M. Albert, the Court painter, whose success excites the envy of M. Reynard, a diplomatist. The persecuted artist lives to turn the tables on his persevering enemy, and to secure the triumph of his own innocence. Some elaborate scenery has been provided for the performance, including a distant view of the Tuilleries, an old church in Berlin, the banks of the Tiber, and other localities. These are well painted by Messrs. Brooke and Gray. We are of opinion that Mr. Caprico has more than ordinary merit as an actor, though not able to regard him as another Edmund Kean. The audience received both him and the new drama with abundant enthusiasm. The experiment is likely to prove a triumph.

Mr. and Mrs. German Reed's entertainment, at St. George's Hall, maintains its well-deserved popularity, steadfastly preserving the high position it has long occupied among the refined amusements of the metropolis.

Mr. Marlande Clarke will give an entertainment at St. James's Theatre, next Saturday, Nov. 3, for the benefit of the Indian Famine Fund. It will be under the special patronage of the Lord Mayor and the Mansion House Committee of the Fund, and will consist of scenes from "Hamlet," "Macbeth," "Romeo and Juliet," "The Lady of Lyons," and vocal and instrumental music.

MUSICAL PUBLICATIONS.

"Joseph," an oratorio, the text selected by E. G. Monk, the music composed by G. A. Macfarren (Stanley Lucas, Weber, and Co.). Of this new work, by the composer of "St. John the Baptist" and "The Resurrection," we have already spoken in reference to its first performance at the Leeds Festival last month, and need now, therefore, merely record its publication in a neat and inexpensive form, the orchestral accompaniments skilfully arranged for the pianoforte by Mr. F. W. Davenport. We shall soon have again to speak of the oratorio in reference to its coming performance in London.

"The Fire King," dramatic cantata, by Maud Hargreaves, music by Walter Austin (Metzler and Co.). This work was also produced at the Leeds Festival, and spoken of by us in reference thereto. It is now published in large octavo form, and at a price that places it within easy reach.

"The Mount of Olives," an oratorio composed by Beethoven (Novello, Ewer, and Co.). This is a new and very cheap edition of the only work of its kind produced by the great symphonist. The oratorio has been published in England with various alterations of the text, one adaptation having changed the title to "Engedi." In the edition now referred to the original title is retained, and a new English version has been supplied by the Rev. J. Troutbeck, in which the German words are closely followed, thus preserving, as far as possible, the integrity of the work. It was with this version that the oratorio was performed at the recent Leeds Festival. The pianoforte accompaniment has been carefully revised by Mr. E. Prout.

"The Organist's Quarterly Journal" (Novello, Ewer, and Co.). The thirty-sixth part of this serial, for the current month, contains a varied selection of original compositions, beginning with a pleasing "Andante Espressivo," by Mr. Stimpson, organist of the Birmingham Townhall. This is followed by a characteristic "Allemande," by Mr. F. Archer; after which comes an expressive "Andante," by Dr. Roberts, of Halifax. The next piece is an effective "Postlude," by Mr. W. H. Wale, Mus. Bac., the two concluding movements being a bold march by Mr. W. A. C. Cruickshank, and a short melodious "Andante Grazioso," by Mr. G. Smith.

"Primer of Pianoforte Playing," by Franklin Taylor (Macmillan and Co.). This little book is one of the valuable (although cheap) series of primers issued by the well-known firm just specified. Of Mr. F. Taylor's special excellence as an interpreter of classical pianoforte music we have had several occasions to speak, and the small volume now referred to affords ample evidence of the extent and soundness of his musical taste and judgment. The amount of valuable information here collected is surprising when considering the limited compass within which it is contained. The remarks are comprised under the general headings of "touch," "exercises," "fingerings," "phrasing," and "ornament," on all which subjects Mr. Taylor affords copious instructions, illustrated with examples in music type. The volume can scarcely fail to be largely in demand.

A meeting was recently held at Ayr to establish an archaeological society for the counties of Ayr and Wigtown. The Earl of Stair, K.T., Lord Lieutenant, presided. The Earl of Stair was elected president of the society; and the Marquis of Bute, the Marquis of Ailsa, the Earl of Eglinton, the Earl of Galloway, the Earl of Glasgow, Viscount Dalrymple, the Right Hon. Sir James Fergusson of Kilkerran, Sir Robert Maxwell of Monreith, Sir W. Montgomerie Cunningham, M.P., Sir Andrew Agnew of Lochnaw, and Sir William Wallace of Cairnyan, vice-presidents.

A sale of pure-bred stock, the property of the Queen, was held by Mr. John Thornton on Tuesday at the Prince Consort's Shaw Farm, Windsor. The stock consisted of forty pure-bred shorthorns from the old established herd at Windsor Castle, among them being about a dozen specimens of the Knightley blood, half of them being of the favourite Coldcream tribe; five lots were of the Graceful family, descended from Mr. Arbuthnot's celebrated herd, with which Fawcley was so closely allied. A number of heifers were bred from the animals which have been reared upon the farm during the last thirty years, and are noted for their dairy qualities. They were principally by Mr. Booth's King Tom (31,521) and Manrico (26,805), and the cows and heifers were mostly in calf to King Rufus (34,351). Several Jersey heifers and bulls, and some Clydesdale entire colts and fillies, bred from purest strains, were included in the sale. The shorthorn cows realised 1304 gs. and the four bulls 115 gs. Six Jersey cows realised 116 gs., and the entire sale about 2100 gs. The principal buyers were the Prince of Wales, the Duke of Wellington, the Hon. R. Nevill, Major Carlyon, Mr. Russell (Sevenoaks), and Mr. Tesdale (Kensington).

GREAT FALLEN TREE AT MARIPOSA, CALIFORNIA.

THE GREAT TREES OF CALIFORNIA.

We do not seem to be aware that, in calling these trees by the name of "Wellingtonia," we are guilty of a want of courtesy to our American cousins; yet the American evidently has justice on his side when he complains of the English botanist who so named these largest of existing trees. As they grow only upon American soil, good taste might have dictated the name of Washington; but it was decidedly wrong to name them after a British hero; and this error becomes the more glaring when it is considered that they were already, in botanical fashion, classified and named. There was a tree, well enough known in the same region, before the great trees of California were discovered, which was commonly known as "Redwood" from its colour. The American botanists gave it the name of Sequoia sempervirens. The name was derived from a noted half-blood Indian of the Cherokees, called George Guess, but whose Indian name was Sequoyah. When the great trees were discovered, as they were of the same genus, they were naturally classed with the other, and called the Sequoia gigantea, a title which we ought always to give them, and we should do all in our power to erase the other name by which they are most commonly known amongst us. The tree first received the name of Sequoia gigantea so early as 1854, from a French botanist, M. Decaisne, and it is described by him, and classified in the "Bulletin de la Société Botanique de France," vol. i., p. 70. At first only two groups of these trees were known, that of Mariposa and that of Calaveras; but several others have been since described. They are always found in groups, and at Mariposa there are about 200 of these trees. There are none of them in the Yosemite Valley, but the Mariposa group is only about sixteen miles due south of the Yosemite, and as they are generally visited on the way to that valley, it is natural to talk of them and of its scenery together. These trees are confined to a region between lat. 36 deg. and 38 deg. 15 min., and their growth is limited to an elevation not lower than 5000 ft., and never higher than 7000 ft. They are thus very limited in their geographical range. The Mariposa group is visited from Clark's Ranch, standing on a hill about 1500 ft. higher up, or about 5500 ft. above the sea level. The largest tree in this grove is the one known as the "Grizzly Giant." It is said to measure 300 ft. in height, and is 93 ft. 7 in. in circumference at its base, or over 30 ft. in diameter, and 68 ft. 3 in. at 11 ft. above the ground. As the tree has suffered from burning, these measurements scarcely do justice to its true growth. It is about 300 ft. in height. Half way up there is a branch 9 ft. in diameter, which itself would make a very respectable tree. The trees are all named after great men, such as Longfellow, or Abraham Lincoln, President Grant, and Ferdinand Lesseps. The "Grizzly Giant" is so named because it has passed its prime, and shows all the marks of age and endurance of time and rough weather. Another large tree has been blown from its roots, which is now known as the "Fallen Monarch."

THE GELADA MONKEYS AT THE ALEXANDRA PALACE.

THE RESCUE OF THE CREW OF THE CLEOPATRA FROM A SKETCH BY CAPTAIN

AT DAWN IN THE BAY OF BISCAY, OCTOBER 15.
CAPTAIN. OF THE CLEOPATRA.

Our Illustration shows one very old tree which has fallen, and has had the decayed wood of its central part burned out, and which now lies like a great tunnel, so wide that a man on horseback can ride through a portion of it.

This gigantic Californian tree has only one rival, and that is in Australia and Tasmania. It is known as the Eucalyptus amygdalina, and attains even 400 ft. in height. There is one said to reach 480 ft., exceeding the highest specimen of the Sequoia gigantea by 150 ft. But the largest of those Australian giants does not exceed the diameter of 81 ft. There is, again, another big tree, which far exceeds the Sequoia in thickness; it is the Baobab, or Adamsonia digitata; but this species, although swelling out at the base, is of a low growth, never exceeding 70 ft. in height. If both thickness and height of the great trees of the Pacific slope be taken into consideration, they stand as yet without a known rival. A gentleman who had lately returned from a visit to California was once asked how the great trees were to be described, from the want of anything approaching them in size in the Old World. He had recourse to selecting two trees about thirty feet apart, and then he said:—"Look here, one of the great trees of California fills up a space as large as that." It is the only way to realise on an English lawn the size of these giants of the botanical creation.

MONKEYS AT THE ALEXANDRA PALACE.

Among the Zoological novelties lately added to the exhibition at the Alexandra Palace will be found an Abyssinian family of monkeys, imported into this country by Messrs. Hagenbeck and Rice, of Hamburg. In their cage in the central hall these interesting animals are likely to arrest attention. Dr. Ruppell, a German traveller, is credited with having discovered this rare species of monkey some fifty years ago in the mountains of Abyssinia, but did not do more than introduce the skin of one of the animals into this country. The family of monkeys now on exhibition at the Alexandra Palace—seven in number—claim notice for some peculiarities of form and hirsute covering. The males possess an amplitude of hair over the shoulders like a cape, and this protection would seem to be necessary in the cold mountainous region in which the animals live. A distinctive feature in the animal is a small triangular space in the chests of both males and females. This space is of a pink colour when the animal is in repose, but under irritation the colour becomes red. There are seven animals in all, the father of the family standing about three feet high, and the youngest of the progeny not exceeding the dimensions of a small kitten.

CLEOPATRA'S NEEDLE: FACSIMILE OF THE INSCRIPTIONS.

CLEOPATRA'S NEEDLE.

Our readers last week were informed that the south-west gale of Sunday, the 14th, raging in the Bay of Biscay, as well as in England, compelled the abandonment, early next morning, of Mr. Dixon's ingenious vessel, or iron-plate cylinder, named the Cleopatra, in which the Egyptian obelisk from Alexandria was being towed by the steamer Olga on its voyage to London. It was further stated in our last that the Cleopatra was afterwards picked up by a steamer, the Fitzmaurice, bound for the Spanish port of Valencia; and we have since learned that the obelisk, in its still floating iron case, is left in safety at Ferrol, whence it will no doubt soon be brought to its destination; but some delay may arise from the claim of salvage to be paid for its recovery when cast adrift, and apparently in a foundering condition, at sea. The circumstance to be most deplored is the drowning of six men belonging to the Olga, who bravely went off to save the men from the Cleopatra, and whose boat was swamped during the height of the gale on Sunday week.

We are enabled, by the assistance of Captain Henry Carter, who commanded the Cleopatra, to give the illustrations which appear in our front-page Engraving, and in the large Engraving presented as our Extra Supplement for this week. The following account of the abandonment of the Cleopatra, and the rescue of the crew, is also derived from information furnished to us by Captain Carter:—

"The crew of the Cleopatra consisted of eight men, and Captain Carter, who commanded. She left Alexandria, in tow of the Olga, on the 21st ult. Everything went on well till near the middle of the Bay of Biscay. The little vessel proved itself worthy of its designer and of the confidence expressed during the period of uncertainty both by Mr. Dixon and his consulting engineer, Mr. Baker. Even in the rough weather experienced from the time she entered the Bay of Biscay, not a drop wetted the main deck over the house. Of course, as the vessel lay so low in the water, the prow was covered by every wave with which it came in contact; but the front pillar, which supported the hurricane deck or gallery, split each wave, and, throwing the halves on each side, left the deck-house clear. Though the pitching was considerable, owing to the evenly distributed weight unavoidable from the form of the Needle, the rolling was practically none. The cylindrical form of the hull allowed the sea to slip over it without causing the slightest disturbance.

SKETCHES OF THE WAR: OUR SPECIAL ARTIST'S TENT.

THE LAST SHELL BEFORE LEAVING SINANKEUL.

"In the early part of the passage across the Bay of Biscay the wind was south, and consequently in line with the Cleopatra, which was travelling northwards. A little before sunset on Sunday, the 14th inst., the wind veered towards the west, and the captain of the Cleopatra determined to lie-to for the night, head to the wind. It was not without difficulty that the Olga was put about, owing to the heavy sea then running. The Cleopatra did not follow sufficiently quickly, and a sea struck the deck-house, causing her to roll, for the second time during the voyage. At that moment, Captain Carter says, he felt something moving under him, and knew at once that the ballast had shifted. The little ship was at once thrown on her side, and every wave washed clean over her, causing the deck-house to disappear entirely each time. The signal was at once given from the Cleopatra to cast off, as, from her position, she would be utterly unable to show any lights during the night, while the weight of 400 yards of steel $\frac{3}{4}$ in. cable, between her and the Olga, would inevitably cause the two vessels to come together. Not much was to be feared on the score of the Cleopatra, as she had a 'collision chamber' in front, but the fate of the Olga would have been certain. With the hope of righting her somewhat, the mast of the Cleopatra was cut off, and the deck was cleared of rigging. The effect of this, however, was inappreciable. Then the well-known unfortunate attempt was made to get the crew off by sending a manned boat from the Olga. The boat came quite close to the Cleopatra, and a line was thrown and caught, but the men were unable to hold on. The sea drifted their boat away, and it was never again seen. The position of the Cleopatra was forlorn indeed: being mastless, heeled over till the deck made an angle of 50 degrees, and completely washed by every sea. As soon as dawn made it possible for the Olga to distinguish her consort a manilla-herp rope (which, being light, floated on the surface of the water) was paid out. The Olga then steamed across the front of the Cleopatra, causing the rope which she dragged through the water to strike on the prow of the Cleopatra. Before it could be caught, the sea had washed it away again, and the Olga was obliged to come into dangerous proximity to the Cleopatra, in order that a line might be thrown on board the latter. A hawser was then bent on to the line, far short of its other extremity. The men on board the Cleopatra, by their hauling at the line, brought over the hawser and the continuation of the line at the same time, so that there were now two ropes connecting the ships. The hawser was made fast to the front part of the Cleopatra, and when the signal was given a boat was lowered from the Olga, and was drawn across the intervening space by the line. Another line, attached to the prow of the little boat, kept it in communication with the Olga. It is just the exciting moment, when the boat has nearly reached the disabled vessel, that has been chosen for one illustration. The dawn has broken, but the sun not yet risen. Some pieces of cloud are floating about the sky, but the storm is over, though the sea still remains nearly as rough as before. The men are all huddled on the deck. The original steel cable is seen hanging from the prow, and the Manilla rope, fastened to the front pillar which supports the hurricane-deck or gallery. As the state of the waves permitted, the men dropped one by one into the boat, but not without great difficulty. The boatswain was seriously ill, and one of the men was invalided by a damaged foot. The safe removal of these two was a serious anxiety to Captain Carter, but was accomplished without accident. They were dragged on board the Olga by the second line before mentioned, and Captain Booth then ordered the Cleopatra to be cut adrift."

We gave, in the Illustrated London News of March 10, a series of illustrations of the design and construction of the cylinder-vessel intended to contain the prostrate obelisk for its conveyance by sea; and of the mode in which it was to be inclosed by this iron case, then to be removed from its former position, where it fell ages since, in the sands of the seashore at Alexandria, and to be floated in the harbour there. All this was successfully performed by the enterprising civil engineer, Mr. John Dixon, assisted by his brother, Mr. Wayman Dixon, in the course of the past summer; and the steamer Olga was engaged to tow the obelisk-vessel, bearing the name of Cleopatra, as stated above, from Alexandria to London. The cost of this difficult operation, to an amount not exceeding £10,000, is defrayed by the munificent gift of Mr. Erasmus Wilson, the eminent surgeon, this payment on his part becoming due upon the safe arrival of the obelisk here; but the risk of losing the actual cost, in case of a failure, being taken by Mr. Dixon. The public is therefore greatly indebted to both those gentlemen for their generous personal sacrifices in the task of bringing home an object of historic and artistic interest, which was already the property of the British nation, having been presented to our Government, or repeatedly offered, by the Khedive and former Pasha of Egypt. Major-General Sir James Alexander has the merit of having proposed and advocated this measure during many years past. It was by him that Mr. Dixon, and Mr. Erasmus Wilson subsequently, were led to take it up, as they have done, in such a liberal spirit and with such practical results.

A threepenny pamphlet by Mr. Erasmus Wilson, "Our Egyptian Obelisk—Cleopatra's Needle" (published by Brinn and Co., of Paternoster-row), will afford the general reader perhaps sufficient information; but Mr. W. R. Cooper, secretary to the "Society of Biblical Archaeology," has produced "A Short History of the Egyptian Obelisks" (Samuel Bagster and Sons), which discourses more largely of these interesting monuments, their original position and significance, their historical associations, and the present situation of all those now extant in Egypt or in different cities of Europe. Translations are given also, from the French version by M. Chabas, of some of the hieroglyphic inscriptions on obelisks. The best English authority upon this subject is Dr. S. Birch, the learned curator of Egyptian Antiquities at the British Museum. He contributed a valuable account of this particular obelisk, one of those two called Cleopatra's Needles, to the "Museum of Classical Antiquities," some time ago. We are now informed that Dr. Birch has been engaged in deciphering the inscription on the obelisk, hitherto unread, a facsimile of which appears in our Engraving, and that his version of it will be published in the Athenaeum. We take the opportunity of recommending to those who feel any interest in the historical aspects of this matter a little book recently issued by the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge, one of the series entitled, "Ancient History, from the Monuments." "Egypt, from the Earliest Times to B.C. 300," written by Dr. Birch, is a concise but most instructive and satisfactory account of that singular ancient monarchy, till it became a province of the Persian, and subsequently of the Macedonian Empire. The reign of the Greek Ptolemy Pharaohs, to the Roman conquest and the death of Cleopatra, is not included.

There are some forty Egyptian obelisks, great and small, and several much older than the one which is now coming to London. The largest at Rome stands in front of the Lateran church; there is also one in front of St. Peter's, and several others. It is considered by Egyptologists that the obelisk and the pyramid were forms symbolical of the rising and the setting sun. Obelisks were erected to the east of the river Nile—pyramids on its western bank. The Rising Sun, which extended to noon-day, was the visible manifestation, in their pantheistic Nature-worship, of the generative and preservative power, which they worshipped by the name of Ra, or Life. The Setting Sun, ultimately including Night, was the token of Death, and the dark Underworld, into which the human soul would descend, like other animals, as was signified by the daily sinking of the sun beneath the horizon. This was called Tum, and the pyramids, dedicated to Tum, were the sepulchres of dead Kings and illustrious persons. The Egyptian temples, on the contrary, in which Ra and the other Gods of Life, Light, and Truth were worshipped, had their gates adorned with pairs of obelisks, which also served as monuments to record the name and fame of the monarchs by whom they were set up. An Egyptian King was, in fact, deified in his lifetime, like the Cæsars of Rome, who probably learned from Egypt this trick of blasphemous arrogance. The Pharaoh of the day was the Horus, the incarnate Son of Ra, and the Kheper-Ra, or earthly God of his age, with other preposterous titles, with which these obelisks are inscribed. The most ancient obelisk known is supposed to be not much less than five thousand years old. The two obelisks which were removed by Octavius or Augustus Cæsar from On (Heliopolis) to Alexandria, where they ornamented the front of the Cæsareum, in honour of Julius Cæsar, are popularly called "Cleopatra's Needles." That famous Princess, indeed, had died several years before, yet she is likely to have designed their removal, as well as the erection of the Cæsareum. The two obelisks themselves were erected at On or Heliopolis, seven or eight hundred miles distant, about 1600 years before the birth of Christ, together with another pair of obelisks, now respectively at Constantinople and at Rome. The Pharaoh or King by whom they were originally set up at On was Thothmes III.; but one of his successors, Rameses II., or Sesostris as the Greeks called him, who reigned two centuries later, has added the side lines of hieroglyphic inscriptions, to his own honour and glory, while the middle perpendicular line sets forth the renown of Thothmes III., the proper constructor and donor of the obelisk. The dimensions of our huge monolith, which consists of syenite, the rose-red granite of Syene or Assouan, are exceeded by one of those of Karnak, and slightly by those brought to Rome and to Paris. Its length is 68 ft. 5½ in., and its greatest breadth at the base is 7 ft. 10½ in. on two opposite sides, and 7 ft. 5 in. the other two sides, the base not presenting a perfect square, but a perfect rectangular figure. The breadth, as it ascends, gradually diminishes to within 7 ft. or 8 ft. of the top, where it tapers off into a slender pyramid, which was perhaps covered with bronze or gold. A small model of the perfect obelisk, made under the direction of Mr. Bonomi, is now on view at Sir John Soane's Museum at Lincoln's-inn-fields. The weight of the real obelisk is 186 tons, and its solid measurement is 2529 cubic feet. Where it shall be placed in London, whenever it arrives, has not yet been finally determined. Parliament-square, between Palace-yard, Westminster, and the gardens adjoining St. Margaret's churchyard and Westminster Abbey, is preferred by Mr. Erasmus Wilson and by Mr. Dixon; and a wooden model has been put up there, during the last few weeks, to show the effect. Our illustrations will help the reader at a distance from London to judge of this disputed question, which must, however, be decided finally by her Majesty's Government. It is said that the First Commissioner of Works, to whose department it belongs, has referred it to the Prime Minister, and Lord Beaconsfield is now considering the point; but there will be plenty of time before we get the obelisk safely moored alongside the Thames Embankment.

THE VOLUNTEERS.

Among the principal events of last week are the following:—In the annual competition for the challenge cup presented to the Queen's (Westminster) by the First Lord of the Admiralty, the Right Hon. W. H. Smith, M.P., the cup and first prize of £7 were adjudged to Private C. F. Lowe. The other prizes were won by the following members:—£5, Private Parkinson; £4, Corporal H. B. Wilson; £3 each, Private W. H. Brewer, Private J. Palmer, and Private C. Morgan; £2, Private J. Dyke; £1 each, Sergeant Tuke, Private Vicars, and Private J. B. Southam.

The annual prize-meeting of the A (Ward of Aldgate) company of the London Brigade took place at the City ranges, Rainham. The first prize was taken by Private Lacey, and following him were Corporal Judkison, Captain Hickey, Corporal Drought, and Private Morris. In the series for recruits, M'Vane, Kirby, and Hayton were the winners.

The inhabitants of Sydenham having subscribed about £60 to purchase challenge cups for the 9th Kent (Plumstead) Artillery, the presentation took place last Saturday. The volunteers marched over to Sydenham from their headquarters at Plumstead, and were received by the Vicar and many of the principal residents in the public hall, where the prizes were presented by Mrs. Legge. The commanding officer, Lieutenant-Colonel Hughes, suitably acknowledged the gifts.

A match was fired between the 2nd Tower Hamlets Engineers and the 1st London Engineers, which resulted in a victory for the 1st London by 65 points.

The members of the 26th Kent (Woolwich Arsenal) completed its regimental shooting club competition at the Royal Arsenal practice range on Saturday afternoon, when the badges were finally won by Corporal Frost, Corporal Welsby, and Corporal Andrews. The corps prizes were shot for at the same time, and the following were the highest scores:—Corporal Andrews, Corporal Brand, Private Brand, Lance-Corporal Marshall, Private Dargie, Sergeant Wood, Corporal Webb, Private Simmons, Private Welch, Major Farrell.

In the thirteenth competition for the brigade challenge medal of the Queen's Edinburgh Brigade, the holder, Sergeant Stuart, was again successful.

Two matches, Martini-Henry v. Snider, resulting in both cases in a victory for the former weapon, were decided last week. The first was a return match between teams of six men from the 64th Regiment and the 6th Essex Rifles. The 64th scored 461; and the 6th Essex, 399 points.—The other match was fired at Edinburgh by teams of ten sergeants of the 78th Regiment and 1st Salkirkshire Rifles, the former being victorious by 129 points.

The Volunteer Service Gazette is informed that one of the metropolitan volunteer regiments has succeeded in proving to the satisfaction of the Chancery Division of the High Court that it is the legal successor and representative of one of the volunteer corps disbanded at the beginning of the century, and has received a considerable sum of money which was in court to the credit of the disbanded corps.

The foundation-stone of a new Townhall was laid at Wakefield on the 18th inst.

WRECK REGISTER OF THE PAST YEAR.

After a great storm which has caused great devastation both on land and sea, a few remarks on the Wreck Register and Chart of the past year will not be inappropriate.

We accordingly find that the Parliamentary return in question, which is prepared by the Board of Trade, contains much useful and varied information on a subject of national importance. We regret to find, however, that the year's wrecks and casualties have exceeded those of any previous year. The whole number of wrecks, casualties, and collisions on our shores during the year was 3757, or 167 more than the number reported for the previous year.

The sites of these several disasters are distinctly shown on the wreck chart accompanying the Register, which also indicates the stations of the 267 life-boats of the National Life-Boat Institution.

From 1856 to 1860 the average number of wrecks each year was 1252; from 1861 to 1865 it was 1538; from 1866 to 1870 it was 1862; and from 1871 to 1875-6, after subtracting, for the purpose of proper comparison, the minor casualties in the years 1874-6, the average reached 2226.

The number of ships lost or damaged in the 3757 casualties during the year 1875-6 was 4554, representing a tonnage of upwards of 1,028,000 tons. The number of ships in 1875-6 is more than the total in the previous year. The number of ships reported is in excess of the casualties reported, because in cases of collision two or more ships are involved in one casualty. 3754 of these were British ships, of which 2678 were employed in our coasting trade; 720 were foreign vessels, 25 of which were also employed as coasters; and of the remainder (80) the nationality is unknown.

The wrecks last year comprised 502 total losses, 1076 serious casualties, and 2179 minor accidents.

If we further subdivide them, we learn that 775 were cases of collision, being 116 more than in the previous year; and 2982 wrecks and casualties other than collisions, or 51 in excess of those in the former year.

Of the wrecks and casualties other than collisions, 425 were total losses, 176 of which were caused by stress of weather, 111 from carelessness or neglect, 29 from defects in the ship or her equipments (19 of them being caused by unseaworthiness), and 78 from various other causes.

Again: 851 of the casualties resulted in serious damage and 1706 in minor damage; of those, 1456 were caused by stress of weather, 423 from carelessness, 180 from defects in the ship or her equipments, and the remainder from other causes.

It will thus be seen that 29 vessels were totally lost and 180 damaged on our coasts during the year through defects in the ships or their equipments.

It is also a remarkable fact that 1929 of the casualties of the year happened when the wind did not exceed a strong breeze; 745 during weather in which a ship, if properly found, manned, and navigated can keep the sea in safety; and only 977 with the wind at and above a strong gale.

The greatest number of wrecks occurred on the east coast; but, as usual, the loss of life was largest on the west coast. The gales most fatal to shipping on our coasts are westerly winds, the most destructive being from south-west; strong westerly winds being more common than easterly winds.

As regards the loss of life, we observe that lives were sacrificed in 1 out of every 22 of the casualties last year, 778 lives being lost from 143 British and 28 foreign ships. Fortunately, the number is 148 less than those lost in the previous year.

We now turn to a more interesting and encouraging subject—that of saving life from the wrecks before mentioned. It is satisfactory to find that 4358 lives were thus saved during the year 1875-6 by the life-boats of the National Life-Boat Institution, the rocket apparatus of the Board of Trade, ships' boats, coastguard and fishing boats, harbour life-boats, and various other means.

Of course, the palm of success in this great salvage of life must always be yielded to the perilous deeds of the life-boats, of which there are now 267 under the management of the Life-Boat Institution. During every storm on our coasts their services are, as is well known, most prompt and successful; their gallant crews never failing—in the face of the heaviest gales and the darkest nights—to go afloat in them, and perform, or try to perform, the noble duty they have undertaken—to succour, in the hour of his deepest distress and helplessness, the shipwrecked sailor.

In addition to the hearty and earnest co-operation of the local committees and the boatmen on the coast, these boats are constantly visited by the institution's three inspectors of life-boats, who thus materially aid in securing as much as possible complete system and efficiency at each life-boat station.

It is, however, only just to the Board of Trade to state that they, in every respect, seek to accomplish equal efficiency at the stations of the rocket and mortar apparatus, which are so admirably and skillfully worked by the officers and men of the coastguard service and the brigades of volunteers who help them.

Thus we see that the great work of saving life from shipwreck on the coasts of the United Kingdom is carried on with an ardour and a liberality which know no check or stint.

It is impossible to visit any of the stations of the National Life-Boat Institution without hearing lively expressions of confidence in its life-boats, and of appreciation of its prompt liberality in regard to its rewards to the crews and the annual expenditure on the life-boat establishment. We may here mention that the payments voted last year by the Life-Boat Institution to its volunteer crews amounted to £8000, for going afloat in the life-boats on occasions of saving life and of quarterly exercise of the boats.

It is satisfactory to find that the work of the institution is thoroughly appreciated and understood, not only throughout the British Isles, but also throughout Europe and wherever the English language is spoken.

The Barrow School Board has determined to establish higher grade schools within the borough and to open science classes. It is also proposed to establish trade schools.

The Commissioners of Patents, in their report of last year, which has been issued in a Parliamentary paper, state that the number of applications during the year exceeded those of any former year, being 5069. After deducting the patents not completed, and the number lapsed, there are 3367 in force.

Sir Sydney Waterlow, Bart., M.P., distributed last Saturday the prizes and certificates gained by the students of the Liverpool Science and Art Classes. He traced the progress of science and art schools throughout the country, and gave Lancashire credit for being the first to move in the work. He then proceeded to speak of the importance of scientific teaching in board and other schools, and quoted some of his own experiences in early life to show the practical advantages of a knowledge of such matters as drawing and chemistry. The lively companies of London had, he stated, done good service by voting from £12,000 to £14,000 a year for promoting technical education in the large manufacturing towns.

FASHIONS FOR THE WINTER OF 1877.

PETER ROBINSON, OXFORD-STREET, LONDON, W.

NEW COLOURED SILKS,

at 3s. 6d., 3s. 11d., and 4s. 4d. per yard; also, richer quality, at 5s. 3d., usually sold at 7s. 6d. per yard. 250 shades to select from. Patterns free.

ONE THOUSAND PIECES OF BLACK GROS GRAINS.

This extensive purchase comprises Silks of the best and most reliable makes, and are specially recommended. Prices 2s. 6d., 3s. 3d., and 3s. 9d. per yard. Also richer goods, from 4s. 6d. to 10s. 6d. Patterns free from PETER ROBINSON, 105 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

COLOURED GENOA VELVETS,

to match every silk, short pile, well covered, suitable for gowns, 5s. 11d. per yard. Any length cut. A Special purchase of Black Lyons Velvet, all silk, at 3s. 11d. per yard. Patterns free from PETER ROBINSON, OXFORD-STREET.

COLOURED SILK COSTUMES,

of the latest designs and most fashionable description, in all the new Coloured Silks, commencing at 4s. 6d. Patterns of the Silks and Engravings post-free.

BLACK SILK COSTUMES,

made from the new Paris Models in eight different styles of the most approved designs, as shown in engravings. Price, with bodies complete, 5s. 6d. Patterns of the Silks and Fashion-Plates post-free from PETER ROBINSON, Oxford-street, London, W.

NEW AND ELEGANT DESIGNS IN WINTER COSTUMES.

Cashmere and Silk Costumes, 4 gs. Specialties in Costumes, suitable for travelling, promenade, and indoor wear, 3s. 6d. to 7 gs. Rich Velvet Costumes, 3s. 6d. to 7 gs. Illustrations and Patterns of Materials post-free.

IMPORTANT TO LADIES REQUIRING MADE BALL AND WEDDING DRESSES.

Now ready, several thousand charming Dresses, in White, Black, and all Colours, from 18s. 9d. to 10 gs. Engravings of the above, with many others, can be seen in the New Book of Fashions, which is sent post-free.

A FAVOURITE DRESS IN TARLATAN.

THE "DORA," any Colour or Black, profusely trimmed with flounces and ample train, 1 guinea. A substantial box included. A pretty Brussels Net Dress, in White, Black, and all Colours, for 2s. 6d., with material for bodice. Patterns of Materials and Illustrations sent free from PETER ROBINSON, OXFORD-STREET, W.

A LARGE COLLECTION OF NOVELTIES FOR WINTER DRESSES, in every variety of Fabric and Shade of Colour, from 12s. 6d. to 12s. the Full Dress. Patterns free.

IN 62 NEW SHADES OF COLOUR. CACHEMIRE DE PARIS.

This elegant material is all wool, beautifully soft, and richer in its colourings than any article previously introduced, 4s. 6d. in the wide, 2s. 11d. and 3s. 6d. per yard. Patterns free. PETER ROBINSON, OXFORD-STREET, LONDON, W.

VERY FASHIONABLE THIS SEASON. CASHMERE MERINOES, all Wool.

This most useful material can be had in every new Shade of Bronze, Vert, Bouffelle, Prune, &c., from 2s. 2d. to 2s. 11d. per yard, 4s. 11d. wide. Patterns free.

A NEW FABRIC FOR PALETOTS, &c. POIL DE CHAMEAU (Registered).

This elegant Fabric, though very warm, is remarkably light and soft, and can be had in choice Shades of Fawn, Drab, Grey, Light Brown, &c., 5s. 11d. wide, from 5s. 6d. per yard. PETER ROBINSON, OXFORD-STREET, LONDON, W.

A VARIETY OF NEW MATERIALS FOR WARM WINTER PETTICOATS, including a large assortment of Silk-striped Cloth Skirtings, Reversible Felt, plain Colours, new Striped Flannel Cashmere, &c., from 2s. 11d. to 4s. 6d. per yard. Patterns free.

NOW ON SALE AT HALF PRICE. 1000 UNMADE PALETOTS (Black), richly embroidered on very fine Cashmere or Diagonal Cloth. Full size and Newest Shapes, from 2s. 6d. to 4s. 6d. each; formerly 3 gs. to 4 gs.

IN WHITE, BLACK, AND ALL NEW COLOURS. VELVET-FINISHED VELVETEENS, beautifully soft, rich, and very wide. This charming fabric can be had in Black, from 2s. 6d. to 4s. 6d. per yard, and in choice Shades of Colour at 3s. 9d. per yard. Patterns free. PETER ROBINSON, OXFORD-STREET, LONDON, W.

PETER ROBINSON, OXFORD-ST., W., having concluded the purchase of large quantities of SEAL FUR SKINS and Squirrel Fur, they are now on Sale, as quoted below:—Russian Seal Fur jackets, loose shapes, 4s. to 28 in. deep, 6 to 10 gs. Ditto, fitting shapes, 30 to 36 in. deep, 9 to 20 gs. South Sea Seal, loose shapes, 2 to 4 gs.

THE LATEST PRODUCTIONS IN MANTLES AND PALETOTS.

Cashmere Circulars, lined Fur, 2 to 5 gs. Cashmere 8-Paletots, lined Fur, 3s. 6d. to 5 gs. Silk Circulars, lined Fur, 3s. 6d. to 10 gs. Silk Paletots, lined Fur, 5 to 15 gs.

THE NEW DIAGONAL CLOTH PALETOTS, 2 gs. to 5 gs.

The New Beaver Cloth Paletots, 2s. 9d. to 5 gs. New Ulster Mantles, 17s. 6d. to 22s. 6d. Waterproof Mantles and Ulsters, 17s. 6d. to 42s. Patterns and Engravings free from PETER ROBINSON, 105 to 108, Oxford-street, London, W.

ROYAL DEVONSHIRE SERGES, woven from pure Wool, for LADIES' DRESSES, in Navy or Dark Indigo Blue, Black, Dark Browns, Prune, and other solid colours, price 1s. 11d., 2s. 6d., 2s. 11d. per yard. For CHILDREN a lower quality is made, very strong, at 1s. 6d. per yard. For BOYS' HARD WEAR it is extra milled, price, 5s. 11d. wide, 3s. 6d. per yard. Books of Patterns sent post-free by

SPEARMAN and SPEARMAN,

The ROYAL DEVONSHIRE SERGE is the only true Yachting Serge. See Water cannot injure it. Any Length is Cut by the Factors, who arrange to pay the carriage of all Parcels above Two Pounds in value to and as far as London.

EGERTON BURNETT'S ROYAL WELLINGTON SERGES.

"The Court Circular," "The Queen," "Myra's Journal," &c., unanimously testify to the superiority of Egerton Burnett's Serges as per excellence the material for ladies' wear. EGERTON BURNETT, Wellington, Somerset, respectfully calls attention to these admirable SERGES. He has repeatedly had the honour of supplying them direct to the ROYAL FAMILY, and orders are daily arriving from all parts of the kingdom. Being woven from the finest wools, and of a permanent dye, which neither rain nor water can affect, they surpass all others in appearance and durability. Prices from 1s. 2d. to the finest, at 4s. 6d. per yard. E. B.'s New HANBURY VIGGONE CASHMERE (RIENNE and FOUTLE) SERGES are most fashionable. A SPECIAL STRONG MAKE IS MADE FOR BOYS' AND GENTLEMEN'S SUITS, 5s. 11d. from 3s. 9d. per yard. Pattern-books of the various makes and shades sent free by post, and carriage is paid to Bristol or London on parcels over 22s. Goods packed for exportation.

EGERTON BURNETT, WELLINGTON, SOMERSET.

ROYAL ESTAMINE SERGES.—A Stock of this beautiful warm material, in the new dark shades, now selling at 4d. per yard. Patterns free.

JOHN HOOPER, 22, Oxford-street, W.

AT PETER ROBINSON'S

WAREHOUSE FOR BLACK GOODS,

REGENT-STREET.

For TWO GUINEAS and up to FIVE, CHOICE BLACK MATERIAL COSTUMES COMPLETE, in the New Style, (Princess Polonaise and Skirt). Patterns and Photos free.

URGENT MOURNING.

"ON RECEIPT OF LETTER" MOURNING GOODS will be forwarded to all parts of England, on approbation—no matter the distance—with an excellent fitting Dressmaker (if required), without extra charge. PETER ROBINSON, 256, 258, 260, 262, Regent-street, London.

DEEP MOURNING ORDERS.

DRESSES, Costumes, Mantles, Millinery, in the most appropriate and best styles, at the lowest possible cost, by clever and expert artists.

INEXPENSIVE MOURNING, as well

as the Richest Qualities, can be supplied by PETER ROBINSON, upon the most advantageous terms, to Families, The Court and Family Mourning Warehouse, 256, 258, 260, 262, Regent-street, London.

BLACK SILKS.—Excellent Value.

PETER ROBINSON, of REGENT-STREET.

An immense purchase just completed in Lyons, from the well-known houses of Messrs. Bonnet, Fomson, Crozat, &c.

800 Pieces at 2s. 6d.; 150 Pieces at 3s. 6d.; extra wide, 200 Pieces at 4s. 6d.; really worth 7s. 180 Pieces at 5s. 6d.; cheap at 6s. 6d. and prices ranging up to 10s. 6d. Patterns free.

PETER ROBINSON'S BLACK SILK WAREHOUSE, REGENT-STREET, Nos. 256 to 262.

BLACK SILK DRESS VELVETS.

Exceedingly good qualities, at 7s. 6d., 8s. 9d., 10s. 6d., 12s. 9d., 15s. 6d.

A Special Bargain in Lyons Velvet, at 10s. 9d.

Black Silk-Trimmed Velvets, at 1s. 6d., 3s. 6d., 5s. 6d.

At PETER ROBINSON'S, REGENT-STREET, Nos. 256 to 262.

FOR SIX GUINEAS.

A BLACK SILK COSTUME,

Made of Rich Lyons Silk, with Velvet Garniture, Exquisitely cut and fashioned. Copies of expensive Paris Models. Photos free.

PETER ROBINSON, of REGENT-STREET.

REMARKABLY CHEAP.

For One Guinea, A Black Quilted SATIN PETTICOAT.

For 2½ Guineas, A Black Silk TRAINED SKIRT.

At PETER ROBINSON'S, of REGENT-STREET.

FOR TWO GUINEAS, and up to Seven,

Costumes in New Black Materials, in various fashionable styles.

At PETER ROBINSON'S, of REGENT-STREET.

EVENING DRESSES, at One Guinea.

Black Brussels Net, at 2s. 6d. Tulle (condition keeping), 6s. Grenadine, 5s. 6d.

New Styles, well cut, and elegantly trimmed. Illustrations free.

THE NEW CRAPE.

The Pure Silk Gordian Crape, for Widows and Families. Its advantages are—that it is made of Silk so pure that it will not crease when sat upon, nor spot with rain.

It is a richer black than any dress and the gummied appearance so objectionable in other Crape. The wear of every yard is guaranteed.

The Gordian Crape is a Specialty, only to be obtained at PETER ROBINSON'S, of REGENT-STREET.

THE MOURNING WAREHOUSE, Nos. 256 to 262. Excellent qualities at 4s. 6d., 5s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 9s. 6d. Patterns free.

FUR-LINED CLOAKS

at Summer Prices. Good useful Cloaks at 3s. and 4s. guineas.

SEMI-FITTING SEAL PALETOTS,

33 inches long, for 9 guineas. 36 inches long, for 11 guineas. 39 inches long, for 13 guineas.

At PETER ROBINSON'S, of REGENT-STREET.

NOTICE.—In reference to the above advertisement, it is important that letters should be clearly addressed to 256 to 262, REGENT-STREET.

SWAN and EDGAR are showing the choicest Paris styles in Costumes and Mantles for Autumn wear; also Sealskin Paletots, the new shape, made from selected skins, commencing at 4 guineas. Designs and price-list free.

SWAN and EDGAR are offering a Stock of Black Silks made expressly for wear at 3s. 11d., 4s. 11d., 5s. 11d., and 7s. 6d. a yard. New Dress Materials for Autumn. Patterns free. Piccadilly, and Regent-street, London.

WEDDING TROUSSEAU,

250, 260, and 4100. LAYETTES, 4s. 6d. and 20s. INDIAN OUTFIT, 42s. Illustrated Price-List post-free. Mrs. ADDLEY BOURNE, 37, Piccadilly.

SWANBILL CEINTURE CORSET (Regd.).

An admirable combination of Ceinture and Corset of novel and ingenious manufacture, combining the advantages of both Stay and Loin of Arc belt. While imparting a graceful symmetry and elegance to the figure, it affords a degree of comfort to the wearer not to be derived from an ordinary Corset. 16in. deep, 21in.; hand-made, 42s. Send size of waist with P.O. order. Sous la direction d'une corsetière Parisienne. Mrs. ADDLEY BOURNE, Ladies' Outfitter, &c., 37, Piccadilly opposite St. James's Church, London; and at 78, Rue St. Lazare, Paris.

MAPPIN and WEBB,

MANUFACTURERS, Mansion House-buildings, City, London. The Highest Quality at Lowest Prices.

MAPPIN and WEBB'S SPOONS and FORKS. Electro-Silver Plate on Nickel. Fiddle or Plain. Bet. Qual.

12 Tablespoons or Forks, per doz. 41 10 0 42 0 0

12 Dessert-Spoons 1 4 0 1 12 0

12 Teaspoons 0 12 0 0 18 0

Salt, Mustard, or Egg Spoons .. 0 5 0 0 8 0

11 Pair Sugar Tongs 0 2 6 0 3 6

MAPPIN and WEBB,

MANUFACTURERS, 78, 77, and 76, Oxford-street, West-End, London. The Highest Quality at Lowest Prices.

GASLIERS, in Crystal, Glass, Ormoulu, or Bronze, Medival Fittings, &c. A large assortment always on view. Every article marked with plain figures.

D. HULETT and CO., Manufacturers, 55 and 56, High Holborn.

NOTICE.—CLEOPATRA TOILET

SERVICES.—Messrs. OETZMANN and CO. have COMPLETED ARRANGEMENTS at the Works, affording GREATLY INCREASED FACILITIES for PRODUCING this SPECIALITY, and hope to keep pace with the demand, which they have hitherto been unable to do. Customers can now be supplied with any of the colours direct from Stock.—OETZMANN and CO., Complete House Furnishers, 67 to 79, Hampstead-road. Descriptive Price-List post-free.

FURNISH THROUGHOUT.

OETZMANN & CO.,

67, 69, 71, 73, 77 & 79,

HAMPSTEAD-ROAD,

NEAR TOTTENHAM-COURT-ROAD.

FURNISH THROUGHOUT.—OETZMANN

and CO., 67, 69, 71, 73, 77 and 79, HAMPSTEAD-ROAD, near Tottenham-court-road. Cabinet Factory, Albion Works, Drummond-street; Bedding Factory, Eagle-place, London, N.W. Carpets, Furnishings, Bedding, Drapery, Furnishings, Ironmongery, China, Glass, Paper Hangings, Pictures, Clocks, &c., and every other requisite for completely furnishing a house throughout.

THE IMMENSE RANGE OF PREMISES

formerly the EAGLE BREWERY having been REBUILT and added to their SHOW-ROOMS, it is now one of the largest Furnishing Establishments in the world. Comparison of price and quality respectfully solicited before deciding elsewhere. OETZMANN and CO. are enabled to offer special advantages to Country Customers in delivery of Goods by their own large PANTECHNICON VANS, and fixing in position by competent persons. Descriptive Catalogue, the best Furnishing Guide extant, post-free.—OETZMANN and CO.

CABINET and UPHOLSTERY

DEPARTMENT.—Best Plate Chimney-Glasses, in double-gilt frames, elegant pattern, large size, 2 guineas; magnificent ditto, from 5 to 20 guineas. Handsome Walnut Chiffonier, shaped front and richly-carved mountings, 4 ft. 3½ guineas. Noble Mahogany Sideboards, 3 ft. 4 guineas; 6 ft. 6 guineas upwards. Easy-chairs, from 14s. 9d. upwards. Drawing and Dining Room Chairs, from 10s. 6d. each.—OETZMANN and CO.

OETZMANN and CO.'S FIVE-GUINEA

OETZMANN and CO.'S FIVE-GUINEA DEPARTMENT.—A marvel of quality and economy combined—consists of a 4 ft. 6in. wide handsome Brass and Iron French Bedstead, one of O. and CO.'s patent Pallio Mattresses, and a good Wool Upper Mattress, good feather Bolster, and two Pillows. Everyone about to furnish should see this excellent set on view in the show-rooms. Also, to suit the above, two fine Linen Sheets, one ditto Bolster-case two ditto Pillow-cases, three superior quality Blankets, and handsome white Marella Quilt, for 7s. 6d. the set. OETZMANN and CO.

OETZMANN'S PATENT PALLIO

MATTRESS supercedes the use of the old rigid palliase; is more cleanly, healthy, and elastic; combines the advantages of a mattress and palliase at the cost of one article. Price from 16s. 9d. upwards. See page 123 in "Guide to House Furnishing." Sent post-free on application.—OETZMANN and CO.

CARPETS.

CARPETS. FURNITURE.

CARPETS. FURNITURE.

CARPETS. FURNITURE.

ANGLO-TURKEY CARPETS.

OETZMANN and CO.—These superior Carpets, of which Messrs. OETZMANN and CO. have the exclusive sale, are of first-class British manufacture, have all the style and appearance of real Turkey Carpets, at little more than the price of good Brussels, and are very durable. Price-List post-free on application. For the convenience of those residing at a distance, a large piece, showing the border and centre of each Carpet, sent on receipt of 6s., which will be deducted from price of Carpet or refunded upon return of pattern. Hearth Rugs to match, 6 ft. long by 2 ft. 8in. wide, 41s. 6d. A large stock of real Turkey Carpets at reduced prices.—OETZMANN and CO.

CARPET DEPARTMENT.—Stout Tapestry

Brussels Carpet, 1s. 9d.; handsome pattern ditto, from 2s. 2d. to 2s. 9d. per yard; superior Brussels, new designs, from 2s. 11d. upwards. These prices are much below value. Kidderminster Carpet, all wool, 1s. 11d. per yard; Patent Felt Carpeting, from 11s. 6d. per yard; superior Block-Dye ditto, handsome designs, double width, 1s. 11d. per yard; excellent Stair Carpet, from 6d. per yard; best quality, all-wool ditto, 1s. per yard. OETZMANN and CO.

EVERYONE SHOULD SEE the large,

handsome AXMINSTER HEARTH RUGS that OETZMANN and CO. are now selling at 8s. 11d. each; usual price 12s. 6d. There is nothing sold that can be compared with these for quality and cheapness. An immense variety of Designs and Colours to suit every pattern in Carpets. A visit of inspection solicited.—OETZMANN and CO.

DOWN QUILTS.—OETZMANN and CO.'S

EIDER and ARCTIC DOWN QUILTS and CLOTHING combine the greatest amount of warmth attainable with the least possible weight, and are of the very best quality. Price-List post-free.—OETZMANN and CO.

ELEGANT TAPESTRY CRETONNE

CURTAINS, in various choice designs, adapted for Drawing-Rooms, Dining-Rooms, Parlours, Bed-Rooms, &c., lined throughout with the new Cretonne Lining, and bound all round with best Silk. Paris Lace or Cretonne Binding, 3 yards long by 30 inches wide, 17s. 6d. per pair; ditto, 45 inches wide, 15s.; ditto, 54 yards long by 45 inches wide, 17s. 6d. Also, every description of materials used for Curtains. One of the largest and best Assortments in London to select from.—OETZMANN and CO.

BOMBAY STRIPED CURTAINS.—The

cheapest CURTAINS extant, effective style, 3 yards long by 46in. wide, 9s. 9d. per pair; 34 yards, 11s. 9d.; 4 yards, 12s. 9d. Patterns on application.—OETZMANN and CO.

KITCHEN REQUISITES.—OETZMANN

and CO.'S TEN-POUND SET (List No. 2, page 231 in the GUIDE TO HOUSE FURNISHING), sent post-free on application) includes Tables, Chairs, Clock, &c., and the various Culinary Utensils and requisites, contains all the most useful articles required in every kitchen, each being of superior quality, and is the most practical selection extant.

CHINA. GLASS, &c.

CHINA. GLASS, &c.

CHINA. GLASS, &c.

CLEOPATRA TOILET SERVICE.

OETZMANN and CO.'S New Special Design, a beautiful Grecian shape, meets the great desideratum of art-manufactures—viz., the shape best adapted for purposes of use required, combined with the most artistic design and decoration. Prices from 10s. 6d. per set. Descriptive Price-List post-free.

ROYAL WORCESTERSHIRE CHINA

from the celebrated ROYAL PORCELAIN WORKS can be obtained from OETZMANN and CO., Complete House Furnishers, 67 to 79, Hampstead-road, who are also SOLE VENDORS of the CLEOPATRA TOILET SERVICES (ewer, basin, &c. complete—nine pieces), from 10s. 6d. per set.—Descriptive Price-List of the same can be had of our agent on application.

POSTAL ORDER DEPARTMENT.

OETZMANN and CO.—Orders sent per post, whether large or small, receive prompt and careful attention. Those residing at a distance, or any to whom a personal visit would be inconvenient, desirous of leaving the selection to the firm, may rely upon a faithful attention to their wishes and interest in the selection. This department is personally supervised by a member of the firm. For further particulars please see page 287 in Catalogue, sent free on application. OETZMANN and CO.

OETZMANN and CO., COMPLETE

HOUSE FURNISHERS, 67, 69, 71, 73, 77 and 79, Hampstead-road (three minutes' walk from Tottenham-court-road and Tottenham-station, Metropolitan Railway). Lowest prices consistent with guaranteed quality. Orders per post, large or small, receive prompt and faithful attention in the selection. Close at Seven, and on Saturdays at Four o'clock. Descriptive Catalogue post-free.—OETZMANN and CO.

DESCRIPTIVE CATALOGUE, post-free.

OETZMANN & CO.,

HAMPSTEAD-ROAD.

MRS. S. A. ALLEN'S

WORLD'S HAIR RESTORER.

IT CANNOT FAIL TO RESTORE

GREY HAIR TO ITS YOUTHFUL COLOUR, GLOSS, AND BEAUTY. WHEN THE HAIR TURNS GREY, LOSES ITS LUSTRE, AND FALLS OUT, IT SIMPLY REQUIRES NOURISHMENT. MRS. S. A. ALLEN'S WORLD'S HAIR RESTORER, BY ITS GENTLE TONIC ACTION, STRENGTHENS AND INVIGORATES THE HAIR, AND, BY THE OPERATION OF NATURAL CAUSES, GREY OR WHITE HAIR IS QUICKLY RESTORED TO ITS YOUTHFUL COLOUR, GLOSS, AND BEAUTY. IT WILL STOP ITS FALLING, AND INDUCE A HEALTHY AND MOST LUXURIANT GROWTH. USE NO OTHER PREPARATION WITH IT, NOT EVEN OIL OR POMADE, OR ZYLO-BALSAMUM.

CAUTION!!—The Genuine only in Pink Wrappers.

Sold by all Chemists, Perfumers, and Dealers in Toilet Articles.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

Mrs. S. A. ALLEN manufactures two entirely distinct Preparations for the Hair. One or the other is suited to every condition of the Human Hair. Both are never required at one time. For details as to each preparation, kindly read above and below this paragraph. Readers can easily determine which of the two they require.

MRS. S. A. ALLEN'S

ZYLO-BALSAMUM,

For the Growth and Preservation of the Hair.

A cooling transparent liquid, entirely vegetable, without sediment.

A SIMPLE TONIC AND DRESSING

OF INESTIMABLE VALUE TO BOTH SEXES THE FAVOURITE WITH THE YOUNG AND ALL THOSE WHO HAVE NO GREY HAIR. PRE-MATURE LOSS OF THE HAIR, SO COMMON IN THESE DAYS, MAY BE ENTIRELY PREVENTED BY THE USE OF ZYLO-BALSAMUM. PROMPT RELIEF IN THOUSANDS OF CASES HAS BEEN AFFORDED WHERE THE HAIR HAS BEEN COMING OUT IN HANDFULS. IT PROMOTES A HEALTHY AND VIGOROUS GROWTH. HAIR DRESSED WITH ZYLO-BALSAMUM IS ALWAYS CLEAN, FREE FROM DANDRUFF, AND WITH THAT BEAUTIFUL GLOSS ONLY SEEN IN HEALTHY HAIR. IT IS DELIGHTFULLY FRAGRANT. NO OIL OR POMADE SHOULD BE USED WITH IT.

CAUTION!!—The Genuine only in Blush Grey Wrappers. Sold by all Chemists, Perfumers, and Dealers in Toilet Articles.

GOLDEN STAR

BAY-LEAF WATER.

Triple distilled from the fresh leaves of the Bay Tree (Myrica Asclepi).

For the Toilet, Nursery, and Bath.

A few drops on a sponge or towel moistened with water, and the face and hands bathed with it, is very beneficial to the skin, removing all roughness. Most highly recommended to apply after shaving. A small quantity in the bath gives a delightful aroma, and it has most remarkable cleansing properties. Particularly adapted to the bathing of infants and young children. Most grateful to invalids and all who suffer from headache from mental labour or fatigue. Buy only the genuine Golden Star Bay-Leaf Water, sold in three sizes Toilet Bottles, 2s. 6d., 5s., &c., by Chemists and Perfumers, or on receipt of stamps from the Wholesale Depot, 114 and 116, Southampton-row, London.

NATURAL MINERAL WATERS

OF VICHY.

Property of the French Government. CELESTINS.—The water of this spring is very agreeable, sparkling, and slightly acidulated. Remedy for Complaints of the Kidneys, Gr

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS

REGISTERED AT THE GENERAL POST-OFFICE FOR TRANSMISSION ABROAD.

No. 1999.—VOL. LXXI.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 3, 1877.

WITH TWO SUPPLEMENTS } SIXPENCE.
By Post, 6d.

TRIAL OF THE DETECTIVES AT THE OLD BAILEY: EXAMINATION OF THE CONVICT KURR.

BIRTHS.

On the 17th ult., at Cannes, France, the Baroness de Langsdorff, née Haecourt, of a son.
On the 26th ult., at 18, Bolton-gardens, Kensington, Lady Wade, of a son.
On the 26th ult., at Spencer House, Putney, Lady Harriet Fletcher, of a son.

MARRIAGES.

On the 25th ult., at the parish church, Masham, by the Rev. G. M. Gorham, M.A., Vicar, assisted by the Rev. H. Newton, M.A., Vicar of Wyrardbury, Bucks, and brother of the bridegroom, John, second son of Henry Newton, Esq., of Grove Lodge, York, to Bertha Louisa, younger daughter of John Maister, Esq., of Beverley.
On Sept. 27, at St. Ambrose Chapel, Barbadoes, W.I., by the Rev. G. T. Bowen, Charles Lloyd Abbott, barrister-at-law, son of the late Chief Justice Abbott, of Tobago, to Julia, second daughter of the late Fred. C. Keens, Esq., and niece of the Hon. J. H. Keens, C.M.G., Administrator of the Government of Tobago.
On the 25th ult., at Riverhead Church, by the Ven. the Archdeacon of Taunton and the Rev. J. Burn-Murdoch, Captain W. E. Denison, M.P., to the Lady Elinor Amherst, fourth surviving daughter of Earl and Countess Amherst.
On the 25th ult., at the parish church, Lynsted, Kent, by the Rev. H. J. Bigg-Wither, R. E. Montgomery, Lieutenant, Royal Marines, to Cordelia Eleanor, third daughter of the Rev. J. Hamilton, Vicar of Lynsted, and granddaughter of the late Sir H. Hawley, Bart.

DEATHS.

On the 30th ult., at 29, Brompton-square, Francis Joseph Leonards, of 16, St. Swinith's-lane, aged 67. R.I.P.
On the 27th ult., at 5, St. Edmund's-terrace, Regent's Park, William Ray Smee, Esq., F.S.A., eldest son of the late William Smee, Esq., after a short illness, aged 61. Friends will please accept this intimation.
On the 29th ult., at Guildborough, Northampton, the Dowager Countess Spencer.

* The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, or Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING NOV. 10.

SUNDAY, Nov. 4.

Twenty-third Sunday after Trinity.
St. Paul's Cathedral, 10.30 a.m., Rev. J. M. Robertson, Chaplain to the Lord Mayor; 3.15 p.m., Rev. Canon Gregory; 7 p.m., Rev. V. W. Hutton, Vicar of Epsom, Notts.
Westminster Abbey, 10 a.m., Rev. C. B. Scott; 3.15 p.m., Rev. Canon Farrar.

MONDAY, Nov. 5.

New Moon, 8.46 a.m.
Glanpowder Plot, 10.05.
Royal Institution, general monthly meeting, 2 p.m.
Farmers' Club, 5.30 p.m. (Mr. G. M. Allender, on Products of the Dairy, and Discussion).
Oecological Society, 8 p.m.
Society of Engineers, 7.30 p.m. (Mr. Alfred Le Grand on Tube Wells).
Medical Society, 8.30 p.m.

TUESDAY, Nov. 6.

Dr. Vaughan's Twelve Readings in the Greek Testament (Philippians), begin, Middle Temple, 8 a.m.; Nov. 6-9, 13-16, open to the public.
Christian Knowledge Society, 2 p.m.
Gresham Lectures, 6 p.m. (Dean Burgon on Divinity—St. Paul at Athens), and three following days.
Pathological Society, 8.30 p.m.

WEDNESDAY, Nov. 7.

Horticultural Society, Fruit and Floral Committee, 11 a.m.; scientific, 1 p.m.; general meeting, 3 p.m.
Agricultural Society, noon.
Orphan Asylum, elections.
Microscopical Society, 8 p.m.
Entomological Society, 7 p.m.

THURSDAY, Nov. 8.

Cambridge Michaelmas Term divides at noon.
British Home for Incurables, Clapham-river; general meeting and elections, City Terminus Hotel, noon.
London Church Choir Association, fifth annual festival, St. Paul's Cathedral (Profits for the Indian Famine Fund).
Mathematical Society, anniversary, 8 p.m. (Paper by Professor Cayley).
Historical Society, 8 p.m. (address by Dr. B. W. Richardson; Rev. A. H. Wratishaw on John of Jeustein, Archbishop of Prague, and Archbishop Thomas à Becket).
Royal Albert Hall, 8 p.m. ("Hymn of Praise" and "Stabat Mater").

FRIDAY, Nov. 9.

The Prince of Wales born, 1841.
Lord Mayor's Day.
Astronomical Society, 8 p.m.
Climatic Society, 8.30 p.m.
New Shakespeare Society, 8 p.m. (Mr. E. Rose on Shakespeare's Adaptation of "King John" from the Original Play).
Quekett Microscopical Club, 8 p.m.
Architectural Association, 7.30 p.m. (address from the president, Mr. Bowes A. Paley, and reports from the classes).
University College Hospital, Amateur Dramatic Performance for it, King's Cross Theatre, 7 p.m.

SATURDAY, Nov. 10.

Botanic Society, 3.45 p.m.
Athletics (L.C.), Stamford-bridge.

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE NEW OBSERVATORY OF THE ROYAL SOCIETY.
Lat. 51° 28' 6" N.; Long. 0° 18' 47" W.; Height above Sea, 34 feet.

DAY.	DAILY MEANS OF					THERMOM.		WIND.		General Direction.	Movement in 24 hours, read at 10 a.m. next morning.	Rain in 24 hours, read at 10 a.m. next morning.
	Barometer Corrected.	Temperature of the Air.	Dew Point.	Relative Humidity.	Amount of Cloud.	Maximum.	Minimum.	Direction.	Force.
Oct 24	29.494	46.3	39.6	79	4	53.9	38.8	SW. W. SW.	269	0.310
25	29.137	50.6	50.4	99	10	54.9	47.7	SSW. S. NE. NW.	157	0.220
26	29.844	48.4	46.9	91	6	55.8	44.7	S. SW.	92	0.025
27	29.842	50.5	48.7	94	8	56.3	45.0	S. SW.	278	0.290
28	29.844	48.8	43.5	83	—	56.0	43.6	SW. WSW. W.	172	0.063
29	29.635	51.6	51.6	100	10	57.8	43.1	S. SW.	386	0.300
30	29.725	53.1	50.4	91	9	59.3	45.7	SSW. S. SW.	390	0.000

The following are the readings of the meteorological instruments for the above days, in order, at ten o'clock a.m. :—

Barometer (in inches) corrected	29.720	29.245	29.774	29.851	30.075	29.781	29.823
Temperature of Air	46.7	52.2	50.0	53.5	50.5	53.4	51.2
Temperature of Evaporation	42.9	51.8	48.5	51.7	48.5	52.4	50.4
Direction of Wind	WSW.	S.	NW.	S.	SW.	S.	SW.

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE FOR THE WEEK ENDING NOVEMBER 10.

Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m
0 30 10 22	1 15 1 37	1 58 2 19	2 38 2 59	3 19 3 39	4 0 4 20	4 40 5 0

ST. JAMES'S HALL, PICCADILLY.

THE MOORE AND BURGESS MINSTRELS will introduce an ENTIRELY NEW PROGRAMME. The whole of the songs contained in the first or musical portion of the Entertainment will be changed. New Dances, New Whimsicalities, and New Burlesque Sketches. The New Programme will be given EVERY NIGHT at EIGHT, and on MONDAYS, WEDNESDAYS, and SATURDAYS, at THREE and EIGHT.
Pantomime, &c.; Sofa Stalls, &c.; Area, &c.; Gallery, &c. Doors Open at 2.30 for the Day Performance, at 7.30 for the Evening Performance. No Fees. Ladies can retain their bonnets in all parts of the Hall.

EVANS'S, COVENT-GARDEN. — NOTICE. — These celebrated supper-rooms are now open for the reception of Ladies. Evans's choir of Boys, specially trained by and under the direction of Mr. F. Jones, and the best available Comic talent. Suppers after the Theatre.—Proprietor, J. B. AMOS.

OUR CHRISTMAS NUMBER FOR 1877

(To be Published early in December)

WILL INCLUDE

A TALE BY WILKIE COLLINS,

LARGE COLOURED PICTURE,

AND

A NUMBER OF SEASONABLE ILLUSTRATIONS.

OFFICE, 198, STRAND, W.C.

Now Ready,

PRICE ONE SHILLING (FREE BY POST, 1s. 2½d.),

THE

ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK

FOR

1878,

CONTAINING

SIX COLOURED PICTURES,

PRINTED BY LEIGHTON BROTHERS' CHROMATIC PROCESS.

TWELVE ILLUSTRATIONS OF THE WAR, FINE ART, &c.

TWELVE ENGRAVINGS AS HEADINGS TO THE CALENDAR.

ASTRONOMICAL DIAGRAMS OF REMARKABLE PHENOMENA,

WITH EXPLANATORY NOTES.

The Royal Family of Great Britain; the Queen's Household; her Majesty's Ministers; Lists of Government Offices and Officers; Bank of England and London and Westminster Bankers; Law and University Terms; Fixed and Movable Festivals; Anniversaries; Acts of Parliament passed during the Session of 1877; Obituaries of Eminent Persons; Christian, Jewish, and Mohammedan Calendars; Tables of Stamps, Taxes, and Government Duties; Times of High Water at London and Liverpool; Postal Regulations; Remarkable Occurrences, &c., 1877-78; Eclipses in the Year 1878; together with an amount of useful and valuable information, which has during the past thirty-two years made the ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK an acceptable and elegant companion to the library or drawing-room table.

The unprecedent demand for the ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK year after year stimulates the Proprietor to still greater exertions to secure for this Almanack a reception as favourable as that which has hitherto placed its circulation second only to that of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

The ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK is inclosed in an elegant cover, printed in colours by the same process as the SIX COLOURED PLATES, and forms a charming and pleasing ornament to the drawing-room table.

The SHILLING ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK is published at the Office of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS, 198, Strand, and sold by all Booksellers and Newsagents.

Now Ready,

THE ILLUSTRATED PENNY ALMANACK FOR 1878.
containing Twenty-Four Engravings from the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS—viz., Gates of Constantinople, Forts on the Bosphorus and the Black Sea, Old Modes of Locomotion, &c.; Tables of Stamps, Taxes, and Licences; Eclipses, Remarkable Events, Post-Office Regulations, and a great variety of Useful and Interesting Information. The Trade supplied by G. VICKERS, Angel-court (172), Strand; and H. WILLIAMS, Warwick-lane, Paternoster-row, London.

THEATRE ROYAL, DRURY LANE.—EVERY EVENING,
at Eight, AMY ROBESART, Messrs. J. Fernandez, W. Terrier, E. F. Edgar, A. Gifford, Lingham, Douglas, F. Moreland, Brooke, G. Weston, Lifford, Morris, H. Vaughan, Meddones, Wiles, Harriet Greville, E. Stuart, Adair, D'Arcy, Vincent, &c. Preceded by SARAH'S YOUNG MAN. To conclude with THE CONSCRIPTION. Prices from 6d. to 55s. Doors open at 6.30; commence at 7. Box-office open from Ten till Five Daily.

THE MOONSTONE, by Wilkie Collins. A New Drama, altered from the Novel. EVERY EVENING, at 8.30. Box-office open daily from Eleven to Five. No booking fees.—OLYMPIC THEATRE.

LAST MORNING PERFORMANCE OF THE MOONSTONE, SATURDAY, NOV. 10, at 2.30. Box Plan now open. OLYMPIC THEATRE.

MR. and Mrs. GERMAN REED'S ENTERTAINMENT.
A HAPPY BUNGALOW, at THE SEA-SIDE, by Mr. Corney Grain; and No. 204, Every Evening, except Thursday and Saturday, at Eight; every Thursday and Saturday, at Three. Admission, 1s., 2s., 3s., 5s.—ST. GEORGE'S HALL, Langham-place.

MASKELYNE and COOKE. Daily at Three and Eight o'clock. EGYPTIAN HALL, Piccadilly. Fifth year in London. The present programme includes Psycho and Zoo, the twin automatic mysteries; the sensational dance, in exposure of so-called Spiritualism, in which Mr. Cooke has about the room taking the cabinet with him—the most astounding feat ever accomplished; and many other illusory items of novel and original character. Such is the success of the entertainment that it is advisable to book seats in advance, for which there is no charge. Admission, 6s., 3s., 2s., 1s. W. MORRIS, Manager.

SACRED HARMONIC SOCIETY, EXETER HALL.
Conductor, Sir Michael Costa. Forty-sixth Season.—FRIDAY, NOV. 2, Mendelssohn's 3d. HALL. Vocalists: Madame Edith Wynne, Madame Patey, Mr. Vernon Baily, Mr. Stanley, Mr. C. Henry, Mr. De Launay, Mr. G. H. Jones, &c. Tickets, 3s., 2s., 1s., and 6d. Subscriptions, 2, 3, and 5 guineas for Ten Concerts. Season Prospectus, now ready, No. 6, Exeter Hall.

G. A. MACFARREN'S New Oratorio, JOSEPH, produced at the Leeds Festival with immense success, will be PERFORMED for the first time in London by the ROYAL ALBERT HALL CHORAL SOCIETY. Conductor, Mr. Bantley.
Full particulars shortly. Tickets, 7s., 6s., 5s., and 4s., and Vocal Scores, 4s. (bound, 6s.), sent once by post by Stanley Lucas, Weber, and Co., 24, New Bond-street, W.; or at the Royal Albert Hall.

THE FIRST MONDAY POPULAR CONCERT OF THE SEASON will take place in ST. JAMES'S HALL, on MONDAY EVENING, NOV. 12, 1877, to commence at Eight o'clock precisely. Programme:—Part I. Quartet, in A minor, Op. 41, No. 1, for strings (Schumann); Duets, Wenn ich aus dem Lager liege, and Wenn ich geh' (Mendelssohn); variations on a theme in E flat, Op. 35, for piano-forte alone (Schubert). Part II. Trio, in C minor, Op. 66, for piano-forte, violin, and violoncello (Mendelssohn); Duets, Behn Scheiden im Garten und Lied der Vogel (Schubert); Quartet, in B flat, Op. 55, No. 3, for strings (Haydn). Executants: Madame Norman-Neruda, Mlle. Anna Mohlig, MM. L. Ries, Zerbini, and Platti. Vocalists: Mdlles. Friedlander and Reicker. Conductor, Sir Julius Benedict. Stalls, 7s.; Balcony, 5s.; Admission, 1s.

THE FIRST SATURDAY POPULAR CONCERT OF THE SEASON will take place in ST. JAMES'S HALL, on SATURDAY AFTERNOON, NOV. 17, 1877, to commence at Three o'clock precisely. Programme:—Quartet, in A minor, Op. 24, for strings (Schubert); Song, "Thou art passing hence" (Schubert); Variations, in F minor, for Piano-forte alone (Haydn); Romance, in G, op. 40, for Violin, with Piano-forte accompaniment (Beethoven); Air, "Reverence, Timothy's cry" (Handel); Trio, in B flat, op. 52, for Piano-forte, Violin, and Violoncello (Schubert). Executants: Mdlle. Anna Mohlig, Madame Norman-Neruda, and MM. L. Ries, Zerbini, and Platti. Vocalists: Mr. Bantley. Conductor, Sir Julius Benedict. Stalls, 7s.; Balcony, 5s.; Admission, 1s. Tickets may be obtained at Chappell and Co.'s, 50, New Bond-street; and at Austin's, 28, Piccadilly.

LONDON BALLAD CONCERTS, ST. JAMES'S HALL.
Twelfth Season.—Mr. JOHN ROOSEY begs to announce four anti-Christmas Concerts, on WEDNESDAY EVENINGS, NOV. 21 and 28, DEC. 5 and 12. Further particulars will be immediately published.

MR. WALTER BACHIE'S PIANOFORTE RECITAL
(Sixth Season), on MONDAY, NOV. 5, at ST. JAMES'S HALL, at Half-past Three. Vocalist, Mr. Bantley. Accompanist, Mr. Zerbini. Stalls, 5s.; Balcony, 3s.; Admission, 1s.—Stanley Lucas, Weber, and Co., 24, New Bond-street; Chappell's; and Austin's, 28, Piccadilly.

THE GRAND ANNUAL FANCY-DRESS POLO and LIMITED COUNTRY DRESS BALL will take place on THURSDAY, NOV. 29, in the ROYAL PAVILION, BRIGHTON, under the auspices of the International Gun and Polo Club, several Masters of Hounds, and the leading country families. A list of Lady Patronesses, sponsors, and Members from whom vouchers can be obtained will be sent on receipt of twelve stamps by the Secretary, 155, Piccadilly, London.

CRYSTAL PALACE PICTURE-GALLERY.—Open all the year round for the RECEPTION and SALE of PICTURES by the British and Foreign Schools. For Particulars apply to Mr. C. W. Wase.

DORÉ'S GREAT WORKS, "THE BRAZEN SERPENT,"
"CHRIST LEAVING THE PRETORIUM," and "CHRIST ENTERING THE TEMPLE," each 38 in. by 22 in.; with "Dream of Pilate's Wife," "Christian Martyrs," &c., at the DORE GALLERY, 35, New Bond-street, W. Daily, 10 to 6. 1s.

THE ANNUAL WINTER EXHIBITION OF HIGH-CLASS PICTURES is NOW OPEN at ARTHUR TOOTH'S GALLERY, 5, Haymarket (opposite Her Majesty's Theatre), from Ten till Seven o'clock. Admission, One shilling, including Catalogue.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

LONDON: SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 3, 1877.

It can hardly be held as matter for surprise that the emphatic decision of the French people at the late General Election should have loosened the cohesion of Monarchical Parties in France, the formal coalition of which was initiated on May 16. Even political madness has its degrees, inclining, as the case may be, towards utter recklessness on the one hand, and towards recovering prudence on the other. The Orleanists, the Legitimists, the Bonapartists, and those who, for want of a better title or distinctive name, pass muster as MacMahonists, might unite in opposition to the Republic; but when that bond of union was severed by the triumph of the Republic in the Elections might well be expected to fall asunder as soon as the question presented itself, "What is the attitude to be assumed in face of the incontrovertible declaration of the will of the country?" That which prior to last Sunday, when the second Ballot was taken in the case of some dozen constituencies or so, in which a fortnight before no absolute majority had been given, could only be held as a presumptive conclusion, has since then, it appears, taken the shape of fact. The Orleanists have declared off from any further aggression upon the national will. If Le Soleil, the principal organ of that Party, may be trusted, the Orleanists have made up their minds not to prolong further their resistance to the legally pronounced determination of the French people. Numerically considered, they are by far the smallest of the factions constituting the "coalition" of Monarchists, but their political influence is great. Present circumstances have made them masters of the situation. They can by mere abstention change a majority in the Senate into a minority, and so place the President, his Cabinet, and those who support them, in a position of isolation in regard to the public Powers deriving their authority from the Constitution. There remains but one alternative for Marshal MacMahon, if he should continue to resist, as he seemed inclined to do, the fiat of Universal Suffrage. He would have to resort to a coup d'état, and refer the destinies of France to the arbitration of the Army.

For this we are given to understand he is not prepared, nor is it by any means certain that if prepared he could confidently count upon success. But, be this as it may, the odds against him are such as might well compel him to pause and resurvey the dilemma into which his Ministers have brought him. He was persuaded by the Duc de Broglie and M. de Fourtou to quit the position of a Constitutional Ruler legally exalted by his office above parties, and to throw himself into that of an active partisan. He issued electioneering manifestoes, he made electioneering progresses, he pitted himself on one side against the Republic on the other, and asked France to choose between the two. France responded to his appeal by choosing the Republic. One would have imagined that the contention would naturally end here. He does not seem to have recognised the necessity of the case. His friends gave out that the battle was by no means over. They talked of a second Dissolution. They published plans of Parliamentary procedure concocted with a simple view to stifle the voice of the nation. They appeared to take for granted the concurrence of all the Parties to the "coalition" in an attempt to wear out the patience of the Republican Majority. They over-shot their mark. They spoke in haste and without sufficient authority. They may, perhaps, have carried the President with them, for he is as lamentably ignorant of true political forces as he is unpractised in political tact. The Orleanists have, to a large extent, undeceived him. His Cabinet, first divided and afterwards deterred by this unexpected revelation, are understood to have come to a definite resolution to resign on Nov. 7, after having wrought upon the Republic all the mischief which the law had put into their power.

Two questions naturally arise hereupon. The first is, What in the existing prospects will the President do? and the second, What will the Republican majority of the Chamber of Deputies do?

Will Marshal MacMahon resign his post? Following the worst possible advice, he has placed himself in as difficult a position as can well be conceived. To throw up his office before the end of the Septennate would be to act in contravention of the pledges which he has again and again renewed to his party, that he will remain where he is until the end of his term. But if he does not resign he will find himself obliged to put himself under the guidance of a Cabinet wholly constituted of Republican members. It is not to be anticipated that the Republicans will admit of a mixed administration. There is no reason why they should. There are no precedents in political history morally to compel any such concession. There is not likely to be.

developed any political force in France upon which the Marshal might rely for exacting such a condition. If, however, in spite of all such considerations, he should refuse to give effect to the voice of the country there can be little doubt, we think, that the Chamber of Deputies will so far "stop the supplies" as to leave his personal administration without pecuniary support, and in the withholding of which such an administration will be rendered impracticable—impracticable, that is to say, without a gross violation of constitutional guarantees. Marshal MacMahon, in short, has become shut up by the decision of the French people to the humiliating alternative pointed out to him by M. Gambetta—"Ou se soumettre, ou se démettre."

What will the Republican majority do in the circumstances? The question has been partly answered in the foregoing paragraph—partly, but not wholly. It may be taken for granted, we surmise, that they will not be weak enough to consent to fritter away by vain compromises the will of France as expressed by an immense majority of the constituencies. But that they will still maintain the moderation which they have so marvellously exemplified during the last five months is much to be desired, for the sake not of France only, but also of Europe. "If," in the eloquent words of Le Soleil, "they understand how to keep in the path of order, industry, calmness, and peace; if they understand how to prevent economical troubles and moral agitations, to reassure all interests, develop the national prosperity, and promote business; if they understand how to give France domestic stability and external security, the question will be solved—the cause of the Republic will be gained." No doubt the realisation of the fruits of victory will demand even higher qualities than those required to achieve the victory itself. Solid statesmanship is much rarer than triumphant partisanship; and to pass from the latter to the former will severely test the mettle of Republicans. We shrink from anything approaching to a prophecy as to what may be the result. We see no insuperable reason for expecting failure, no insurmountable difficulty which calm good sense and resolute self-restraint may not overcome. But in order to this there must be a gradual subsidence of party passions; and it is of the last importance that the dominant party should continue to hold up before France a bright example of moderation, self-possession, and disinterested patriotism.

We are compelled to hold over until next week our critic's comments upon the exhibition of pictures by British and Foreign Artists at the French Gallery, Pall-mall East, although it contains more than the ordinary proportion of notable works.

The Hon. A. H. Thesiger, Q.C., third son of Lord Chelmsford, has been offered, and has accepted, the seat in the High Court of Justice rendered vacant by the resignation of Lord Justice Amphlett.

Lord Carnarvon entertained at Highclere Castle on Wednesday the Mayor, aldermen, and councillors of the borough of Newbury, the Town Clerk, the borough magistrates, and the principal officials of the town.

On the occasion of the marriage of his daughter, Mlle. Adelheid, to her cousin, Baron Edmund von Rothschild, Baron Wilhelm von Rothschild, of Frankfurt, has presented a gift of 300,000 marks (£15,000) to the Jewish Religious Society of the same city.

A well-attended town's meeting, convened by the Mayor, was held in the Council Chamber at Bristol on Tuesday for the purpose of taking steps to raise a memorial to the late Miss Carpenter. A letter was read from the Dean of Bristol, who is still indisposed, warmly approving of the proposal. Canon Girdlestone proposed the first resolution, affirming the desirability of perpetuating the memory of the deceased lady by the promotion of some branch of philanthropic work in which she took special interest. This was seconded by Mr. Alan Greenwell, and carried. Mr. Mark Whitwell then proposed, and Dr. Caldecott seconded, the appointment of an influential committee to receive subscriptions and carry out the design. The tone of the speeches was strongly in favour of the establishment in various parts of the city of homes for friendless boys, similar to that founded by Miss Carpenter on St. James's Back, Bristol. £400 was subscribed in the room.

Mr. Gladstone is still in Ireland. On Sunday he attended morning service at the little church at Shillelagh, and subsequently walked home with Lord Meath. The next day he left Coolatin Park, the seat of Earl Fitzwilliam, with his wife, and daughter, and secretary, Mr. Spencer Lyttelton. They were driven to the railway station by Lady Alice Fitzwilliam. Mr. Gladstone, who was received with cheering, carried away with him a memento of the place in the shape of a genuine "sprig of shillelagh," cut for him from the far-famed shillelagh oak at Aughrim, where the train stopped for some time. The right hon. gentleman was interviewed by a Roman Catholic priest, Dr. Kavanagh, of Carlow Lay College, who complained of the policy of the late Government with reference to the Irish University Bill, and declared that the Bishops were opposed to it because it proposed in its clauses to establish an institution for mixed religions. The interview was cut short by the departure of the train, which reached Bray about four o'clock. The party having alighted, carriages were in waiting to drive them to Powerscourt, where they remained on a visit to Lord and Lady Powerscourt for a few days. On Tuesday afternoon Mr. Gladstone, in company with Mrs. and Miss Gladstone, visited the Roman Catholic Reformatory at Glencree, and, at the earnest solicitation of the president of the institution, delivered a short address to the boys, recommending them to be grateful to their instructors, and to practise humility as the surest safeguard of all people. On Wednesday he inspected the National and Catholic Schools at Enniskerry, and expressed himself highly pleased with the performances of the children. He also visited the Catholic chapel and presbytery, and subsequently drove Mr. Gladstone and a large party to the Powerscourt Waterfall, returning to Powerscourt in the dusk of the evening on foot. Mr. Gladstone was to go to Charleville on a visit to Lord Limerick.—At a meeting of the Dublin Corporation, held on Wednesday, it was unanimously resolved to confer the freedom of the city on Mr. Gladstone.

THE COURT.

The Queen gave a ball yesterday week at Balmoral Castle to the servants, tenantry, and gillies of the Balmoral and Abergeildie estates. Her Majesty and Princess Beatrice and Princess Louise, Victoria, and Maud of Wales were present part of the time; the ladies and gentlemen of the household were also present. The Duke of Richmond and Gordon dined with the Queen. On Sunday her Majesty and Princess Beatrice attended Divine service at Crathie church. The Rev. Pearson M'Adam Muir, minister of Polmont, officiated. The Princess of Wales and her daughters lunched with the Queen. On Monday Halloween was celebrated in the usual manner in the evening. The servants and tenants, carrying torches, walked in procession up to the castle, where a bonfire was lighted and reels were danced. Her Majesty, the Princess of Wales, Princess Beatrice, and Princesses Louise, Victoria, and Maud of Wales, and the ladies and gentlemen of the household, were present. The Duke of Richmond and Gordon and the Rev. A. Campbell dined with the Queen. Her Majesty and Princess Beatrice pay frequent visits to the Princess of Wales, and walk and drive daily. The Duke of Richmond and Gordon has left the castle.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

The Prince of Wales left Newmarket yesterday week, where he had been visiting Mr. Chaplin. His Royal Highness travelled by a special train on the Great Eastern Railway, via Bury St. Edmunds, to Barnham, on a visit to the Duke of Grafton, previously to his visit to Lord Londesborough, in Yorkshire. The departure of the Princess of Wales with her daughters on Tuesday was deferred, owing to Miss Knollys having suffered a relapse. Prince Albert Victor and Prince George of Wales having been granted a special passing day for naval cadships, take their places on the Navy List between the two half-yearly "batches" of January and July. The seniority of the young Princes is June 5, 1877.

The Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh arrived at Malta on Saturday last on board H.M.S. Sultan, accompanied by the Osborne, on board which were the Royal children. They landed in La Valetta harbour, and were received with due naval and military honours. The Duke and Duchess proceeded to the San Antonio Palace.

The Duke of Connaught visited the Prosberty, at Fermoy, on Thursday week, and also the Loretto Institute, where he received an address, delivered by one of the pupils, to which he responded. His Royal Highness inspected the chief part of the establishment.

Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar and Countess Dornberg have arrived at Balbirnie from staying with the Duke and Duchess of Richmond and Gordon at Gordon Castle.

His Excellency the Brazilian Minister and the Baroness de Penedo have returned to Grosvenor-gardens from the Continent.

The Dowager Duchess of St. Albans has arrived in town from Brighton.

The Marquis and Marchioness of Ely have left town for Dover.

The Marquis of Ailesbury has arrived in town from Jervaux Abbey, Yorkshire.

The Earl of Beaconsfield has arrived in Downing-street, from visiting the Marquis and Marchioness of Abergavenny at Bridge Castle, Tisbury Wells.

Viscountess Clifden and Colonel Stirling have arrived at Haldenby House, Northampton, from Bournemouth.

Baron and Lady Diana Huddleston have arrived at their residence in Ennismore-gardens from Brighton.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer and Lady Northcote have arrived in town from Pynes, Exeter.

Lady Mary Shelley is now believed to be almost, if not quite, out of danger.

Sir Dudley C. Marjoribanks, Bart., M.P., Lady Marjoribanks, and Miss Marjoribanks have arrived at Brook House, Park-lane, from Guisachan, N.B.

Paul Musurus Bey has left London for Constantinople on a short leave of absence.

FASHIONABLE MARRIAGES.

The marriage of Captain W. Evelyn Denison, M.P. for Nottingham, son of the late Lieutenant-General Sir William T. Denison, K.C.B., to Lady Elinor Amherst, fifth daughter of Earl and Countess Amherst, was celebrated at St. Mary's Church, River-head, near Sevenoaks, on Thursday week. The wedding party arrived from Montreal, Lord Amherst's seat, at half-past eleven o'clock. The bridegroom was attended by Captain Kenyon Slaney, Grenadier Guards, as best man. The bride's princess dress was composed of white satin trimmed with Brussels lace, and over a wreath of orange-blossoms and jessamine a Brussels lace veil. The bridesmaids were the Ladies Margaret and Charlotte Amherst, Miss Denison, Miss C. and Miss K. Denison, Miss Egerton, Lady Jane Grimston, and Hon. Georgina Windsor-Clive, and wore princess robes of white damascene and silk, and white tulle veils, fastened with blue velvet bows. The Ven. Archdeacon Denison, uncle of the bridegroom, performed the religious ceremony, assisted by the Rev. James M. Burn-Murdoch, M.A., the Vicar. The bride was given away by her father. After the breakfast, the bride and bridegroom left for Keston Lodge, the Earl and Countess of Derby's residence, near Bromley, to pass the honeymoon.

The marriage of Mr. John Gordon Kennedy, Second Secretary to the British Embassy at Rome, and Miss Evelyn Wilbraham, youngest daughter of Colonel the Hon. Edward Wilbraham, was solemnised at St. George's Church, Hanover-square, on Tuesday, by the Hon. and Rev. Augustus Legge. The bridegroom was accompanied by Lord William Compton. The bridesmaids were the Hon. Rose Wilbraham, Miss Blanch Pringle, Miss Talbot, and Miss Edith Talbot (cousins of the bride), the Hon. Evelyn Lindsay (niece of the bride), and Miss Alba Wise (cousin of the bridegroom). The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a cream-white silk dress, trimmed with point de gaze, a tulle veil, and orange blossoms in her hair. She also wore a pearl necklace and diamond cross, diamond pins in her hair, and diamond and pearl earrings. The bridesmaids were all similarly attired in pale blue cashmere and silk dresses, and white felt bonnets trimmed with blue velvet and feathers. The breakfast was given at Lord and Lady Lindsay's residence in Brook-street, Grosvenor-square. The bride and bridegroom left for Rostherne Hall, the Hon. Wilbraham and Lady Mary Egerton's seat, near Knutsford, to spend their honeymoon.

The marriage of the Earl of Aberdeen and Miss Marjoribanks is to take place on Wednesday next.

The marriage of Miss Markham, second daughter of Colonel and Mrs. Markham, of Cufforth Hall, Yorkshire, with Mr. Cecil Samuda, son of Mr. Samuda, M.P., of Loudwater, Herts, is arranged to take place on Dec. 11 at Melton Mowbray.

A marriage is arranged and will shortly take place between Major Brodigan, 28th Regiment, and Miss Alice Caroline Burges, second daughter of Mr. John Ynyr Burges and the late Lady Caroline Burges.

THE TRIAL OF THE DETECTIVES.

The Central Criminal Court at the Old Bailey—Mr. Baron Pollock sitting as Judge—has been occupied since Wednesday week, and will probably be engaged for weeks to come, with the trial of four Detective Police officers and a solicitor for conspiracy to prevent the due course of law and justice in the case of forgers and swindlers connected with the late betting-office frauds. In the Calendar of the Court, four of these defendants—namely, John Meiklejohn, Nathaniel Druscovich, William Palmer, and George Clarke, the Inspectors of Police—were charged with feloniously receiving, harbouring, maintaining, and assisting one Harry Benson and others, well knowing that these men had forged and uttered certain warrants for the payment of £10,000 and of 20,000*fr.*, of which crime Harry Benson and the others have since been convicted; and the same defendants were further indicted, together with Edward Froggatt, the solicitor, for conspiring to prevent the lawful apprehension of those criminals. The circumstances have been made familiar to all readers of the daily newspapers by the lengthy reports which have been published of the preliminary examinations before Sir J. Ingham, the magistrate at Bow-street Police Court. At the trial now proceeding in the Central Criminal Court, the Attorney-General and the Solicitor-General, with Mr. Gorst, Q.C., Mr. Bowen, and Mr. Cowie, instructed by the Solicitor to the Treasury, Mr. Poland, represent the Crown; Mr. Montagu Williams and Mr. Walter Ballantine appear as counsel for Meiklejohn; Mr. Douglas Straight for Druscovich; Mr. Besley and Mr. Grain for Palmer; Mr. Collins, Q.C., Mr. Kisch, and Mr. Avory for Froggatt; Mr. Edward Clarke and Mr. Charles Mathews for Clarke. The prisoners, under the advice of their counsel, all declined to plead; but a plea of "Not Guilty" was entered by order of the Court. The Attorney-General, having stated the case in his speech on the first day of the trial, next day called as witness the convict William Kurr, whose evidence and cross-examination took up the whole of Thursday and Friday week, and part of Monday, the trial being adjourned over Saturday. The convict Harry Benson was put into the witness-box, after Kurr, on Monday afternoon, and his examination lasted through Tuesday and part of Wednesday, till a third witness of the same class, the convict Charles Bale, was called to follow him. These men were attired, as in their former appearance at Bow-street Police Court, in the ordinary dress of the convict prisons; and one of them, in the scene represented by our front-page Illustration, stands with folded arms in the witness-box, awaiting the questions put to him by the learned counsel for the prosecution. The Judge's raised seat and desk are seen to the right hand of this Engraving, and the jury-box to the left hand, beneath the window. The barristers at their table below, or at the desks and in the adjacent space of the foreground, are distinguished, of course, by their wigs and gowns; the solicitors for the defence are somewhere near at hand. The prisoners' dock, with its five notorious occupants at this trial, is represented to the extreme left; and one of the prisoners, who leans forward, seems to be exchanging a few words of information with his counsel. The court has been daily crowded with spectators of this important trial.

An official announcement is made from St. Petersburg in reference to the insurrection in the Caucasus. It is stated that order has been restored in South Daghestan, while in the northern province of that name the insurgents have suffered sanguinary defeats at the hands of the older and choice Russian regiments.

The annual general meeting of the members of the Oxford Agricultural Society was held last Saturday at the Townhall, Oxford. It was agreed that, as the Bath and West of England Agricultural Society will visit Oxford in 1878, no show should be held next year, and £100 was voted for special prizes to be offered at the meeting of the latter society. The secretary reported that more than one hundred new members had been enrolled during the year, that stock entries had increased from 358 to 648, and that the prizes had been advanced from £677 to £1071.

At a Board of Trade inquiry at South Shields into the loss of the barque Marion, of Newcastle, on the Newfoundland coast, the Court called the serious attention of the Board of Trade to the vessel having been boarded by about forty wreckers, armed with revolvers, knives, and axes, who stripped her. This lawless act of robbery and spoliation on the part of crews of fishing-smacks not being an isolated case on the Newfoundland coast, the Court hoped the Board of Trade, in concert with the Colonial Government, would take adequate measures for the protection of merchant-vessels wrecked, and prevent such outrages, which were a scandal to any colony under the British flag.

At the half-yearly meeting of the Grand Trunk Railway of Canada Company, held at the Cannon-street Hotel on Tuesday, Sir Henry Tyler, who presided, in moving the adoption of the report, gave details of his recent visit to America, and expressed confidence in the future of the company. He stated that this year's wheat harvest in Canada and the United States was most abundant, and, out of its produce of 80,000,000 bushels, it was expected that 60,000,000 bushels would come over the Grand Trunk system for export to this country. An amendment, proposing a committee of investigation into the affairs of the railway, received the support of the mover and seconder only; and, after the report had been adopted, a resolution was passed thanking Sir Henry for his visit to Canada and the United States, and approving the policy of peace which he advocated while conferring with the railway authorities there.

Deaths from hydrophobia are becoming alarmingly common. On Tuesday the Times mentioned three cases—Richard Cheshire, aged twenty-eight, a clerk in the London and North-Western goods department at Camden Town station; Richard Turvey, of Ashton, near Tring, aged nine; and Elizabeth Dobell, aged twenty-four, wife of an actor, residing in Weedington-road, Kentish Town. On Wednesday an inquest was held on Frederick John Izard, aged eight, son of a cooper, living in Bagdaley-street, at the East-End. An inquest was held the same day at Bushey respecting the death of Charles Cheshire, who died on Sunday last from hydrophobia. The deceased, who was a clerk in the goods department of the London and North-Western Railway at Broad-street, met a mad dog in the St. Albans-road on Sept. 27, and was severely bitten by it in the hands and wrist. He managed to get hold of the dog's throat and threw it down, kneeling upon the animal's body for at least ten minutes. During this time the deceased told Dr. Hles, who attended him, two carriages passed him, the occupants of which he appealed to and asked them to help him kill the dog. None of them would render him any assistance, and, feeling that he was becoming exhausted, he let go the dog, which slunk away, and he saw no more of it. Cheshire had his wounds cauterised, but he afterwards complained of a pain in the arm, and at length died of hydrophobia.

"THE STORY OF ENDYMION. 'WHAT IS IT?'" BY J. H. LETHERBROW.

"THE STORY OF ENDYMION."

"What is it?" This question, from the young lady who is looking at the picture in the picture, and who does not understand its poetical subject, proves that her acquaintance with mythological romance has not been extensive, and that she has neither studied the classics of ancient Greece nor perused the works of John Keats and H. W. Longfellow. She is walking round the Exhibition, or some picture-gallery, when her eye is caught by the interesting scene depicted on canvas, where the shepherd youth of Latmos, awakened from his sleep on the lonely hillside, perceives the amorous Goddess of the Silver Bow, though without her celestial glory, standing beside him with gestures of passionate affection. "A thing of beauty," says the poet, "is a joy for ever;" and there is a sort of beauty, at least a pathetic grace and languid fascination, in this bit of voluptuous Hellenic fancy, which has, perhaps, not yet lost its charm. But few young persons of either sex, we should hope, now require to be told that they ought neither to cry for the Moon nor to expect that the Moon will come down and cry for them.

THE BLANTYRE COLLIERY EXPLOSION.

The terrible disaster on Monday week at the colliery of Messrs. W. S. Dixon and Co., High Blantyre, seven or eight miles from Glasgow, where 200 workpeople were killed by an explosion of coal-gas, was briefly related in our last publication. We now present some illustrations of this sad calamity, with which a more detailed account may be acceptable to our readers. Some explanation of the plan and working of the colliery seems needful.

There are, it appears, three pits close to one another, the communication underground between Nos. 2 and 3 being such as to render them virtually one pit. Indeed, all the pits, to meet the requirements of the Mines Regulation Act, had communications between them. Nos. 2 and 3 were used for carrying on the ordinary operations of the colliery. In these two the accident happened, the former being the "up-cast" and the latter the "down-cast," so that most of the ventilation of both pits came from No. 3. The depth of the shaft at No. 2 pit is 130 fathoms, while that of No. 3 is 155. There are in all the pits seams of ell, main, and splint coal, and the workings, as usual, branch off in various directions, the shortest passage between Nos. 2 and 3 pits being 600 yards long. The principal channel through which fresh air was drawn was No. 3 pit, and to promote its passage there were three furnaces in connection with the up-cast shaft, which, at the late Government inspection, were found to introduce air at the rate of 100,000 cubic feet per minute. So far as can be ascertained, the ventilation of the colliery was carried out on the most approved principles, and these pits have enjoyed an immunity from accidents of all kinds, though No. 2 pit has been in constant operation ever since it was opened, in 1873.

The mode of working the colliery adopted is that known as the "stoop and room" system. The splint seam, on which the labour of the miners had been chiefly employed, had been nearly worked out, so that they had commenced gradually to work backwards and upwards towards the bottom of the shaft, removing the "stoops" as they retired. As has been stated, it would seem that the utmost attention was paid, up to the last, to the introduction of constant currents of fresh air into the workings. The influence of the weather, too, and the relation between atmospheric pressure and the collection of explosive gases, had not been allowed to pass unwatched. Due regard was paid to the accumulation of gas likely to arise between the suspension of work on the Saturday and its resumption on the Monday morning, as it was thought the interruption of the pumping of the water during that time might injuriously affect the ventilation. To prevent such a result, workmen were sent down into the pit shortly before midnight on the Sunday; and, so far as their report goes, there is reason to believe that they found the works perfectly free from anything like foul gas. The fire-master, Alexander M'Call, and the underground manager, descended the pits at four o'clock on the Monday morning for the purpose of making an examination into their condition previous to the arrival of the miners; when the ventilation, as they state, was quite satisfactory.

Shortly after this examination had been completed, the men began to throng to the pit, as usual, to begin their day's work. As well as can be ascertained, 126 men and boys had descended the No. 3 and 107 the No. 2 shaft by six o'clock, making a total of 233. The work went on without any interruption until about nine, when the people in the neighbourhood were startled by a sound like that of thunder, and almost immediately afterwards dense volumes of smoke were seen to burst from No. 2 shaft, while from No. 3 bright sheets of flame shot up into the air, succeeded by showers of wood, earth, and stones. When the explosion occurred, Mr. Watson, manager of the colliery, was at No. 3 pithead, superintending the hanging-up of a cage for all coal. The men who were working beside him had their hands and faces severely scorched. They, however, after a few moments, sufficiently recovered from the terror caused by the explosion to run towards No. 2 pit, to see whether they could render any aid in the rescue of the unhappy sufferers there. But, though some were gassed, they were able to effect very little in the way of deliverance, as they found the communication between the two pits stopped. One of the men who were saved, John Sharp, a roadman, states that when he went down into No. 2 pit, at six o'clock in the morning, everything was apparently all right. He continued working as usual until within a few minutes to nine without the slightest suspicion that anything was wrong, and was ascending the pit to get his breakfast when he felt "an awful blast coming from behind like a storm." He then made for the No. 1 communication, but was there so strongly affected by the after-damp that he was obliged to return, and had to grope his way as far as the underground engine-house. Here he heard through the darkness the overman's voice shouting to the men to go to the big "dook" and open the door. This he attempted to do, but was not able to get further than thirty or forty yards, when he was overpowered by the choke-damp. Eventually he succeeded in crawling over the steam-pipe and on to the top of the cage, and was seen afterwards hauled up to the pit's mouth in a state of great exhaustion. There is evidence to show that from one cause or other the effects of the explosion were more severely felt in the south than in the north "dook," for nearly all the men employed in the latter working found their way to the pit's mouth and were rescued.

THE BLANTYRE COLLIERY EXPLOSION, NEAR GLASGOW.

The news of the disaster spread all over the district with the utmost rapidity. There was a wild rush of people from all directions to the pits. They stood there in a state of intense anxiety awaiting some tidings as to the safety of their near kindred. Nor were there wanting gallant men ready to risk their lives in the dangerous enterprise of attempting to rescue their fellows. It was soon discovered that No. 3 pit shaft was blocked, and that there could not be, at least for some hours, any hope of escape for the imprisoned miners that way. This discovery fell with crushing weight on the hearts of many an anxious woman and child in the crowd, whose anguish found vent in bitter tears. Again there were gleams of hope when it was found that the shaft of No. 2 pit had not been much damaged, and a gang of five men descended into the mine, but, unhappily, only speedily to return exhausted, with the dead body of the overman, Joseph Gilmour, who had been struck down at his post near the engine. There was, however, no lack of volunteers, and another brave band of them was soon lowered into the pit. These succeeded, after great exertion, in bringing to the surface the bodies of several miners, who, in their endeavours to escape, had been overtaken by the after-damp, and had fallen within a few feet of the bottom of the shaft. The appearance of these dead bodies at the pit-head was the signal for renewed outbursts of grief. Women rushed about in a half-frantic state, until being worn out by the intensity of their suffering, they permitted themselves to be led dejectedly to their homes.

The work of rescue meantime was going on but slowly, and it was not until two or three o'clock that thirteen bodies had been recovered. By that hour, however, the volunteers who had all along been so gallantly engaged in relays in the work of rescue succeeded in reaching within twenty or thirty fathoms of the bottom of the pit, their exertions, it is said, being encouraged by cries heard repeatedly and distinctly from beneath. At this point, however, their further progress became completely obstructed by the breaking of the partition which separates the shaft into the up and down cast. It became necessary for a time to give up the search. But again throughout the evening and night the search was continued with renewed energy, and the efforts of those who so manfully laboured in it were rewarded by the discovery of three more men—Thomas Macdonald, Charles Gainer, and William Gummel—who were brought to the surface alive, though in a very prostrate condition. They were removed to Glasgow, where Gainer soon expired. There was also a boy found living, but who died before he could be raised to the mouth of the pit. The survivors, who had been imprisoned there fifteen hours, could give no account of their experience. Many fragments of limbs and other parts of human bodies, with scraps of clothing, were found scattered about, or packed together with shattered timbers, coal, earth, and a variety of rubbish, blocking up the bottom of No. 3 shaft. The obstruction here was nearly 20 ft. thick, and several days have been occupied in the task of its removal. But only seventy-eight of the bodies of the dead had been recovered by Wednesday evening last; the actual number killed seems to be 204, out of 233 who were in the pit at the time of the explosion. Many experienced workmen from various parts of the country are continuously engaged in the pit day and night, the reliefs being so arranged that from thirty to forty men descend the shaft every six hours. The operations are superintended from time to time by Mr. Weir, Mr. Wilson, of Larkhall; Mr. Fairlie, Mr. Ferguson; Mr. Gordon, of Knightswood; Mr. White, of Rosewell; Mr. Allan, of Balgarny; Mr. Gilchrist, of Hillhouse; and several other gentlemen whose practical acquaintance with the working of mines has been found of the greatest value. Mr. Moore, the Inspector of Mines for the Lanarkshire district; Mr. Rankine, of Glasgow; Mr. Duncan, of Calder; and Mr. Thomson, of the firm of Dixon and Co., have been unremitting in their attendance at the pits. An inquest, and a special inquiry by the official inspector for the Board of Trade, will be held to investigate the cause of this disaster. Subscriptions for the relief of the destitute families have been opened at Glasgow and elsewhere, amounting now to about £5000. A donation of £100 was sent, with a kind message, by her Majesty the Queen.

The Coroner's inquiry into the death of the three men who lost their lives in a gallant attempt to rescue some of the unfortunate miners who perished in the Wigan colliery explosion has ended in a verdict of "Accidental death."

We hear from Hastings that Mr. T. Pringle, M.P., laid the foundation-stone for a mission-hall at Silverdown Wednesday, and that the annual meeting of the Philosophical and Historical Society was held in the evening.

The vacancy of the 66th Foot, caused by the death of General Thomas Gumble, has been given to General Thomas Munro, who has been transferred from the 63rd Foot; and Lieutenant-Colonel Sir Richard Waddy, R.C.B., has been appointed Colonel of the latter regiment. Tuesday night's Gazette contains a notification to the effect that Lieutenant-Colonel William G. Jenkins, half-pay, late of the Coldstream Guards, is "removed from the Army, her Majesty having no further occasion for his services."

THE WAR.

The Russian army in Bulgaria has at length performed a feat, which may or may not be sustained and followed up to its possible consequences, in the complete investment and blockade of Osman Pasha's position at Plevna. This has been accomplished, so far, by pushing the reinforcements as they came up into line further and further round the left flank of the army—i.e., from the Loftcha road, occupied by the 16th Division, under General Skobeleff, as far as the Sophia road to Telishe. Accompanying and guarding the left of the line was General Gourko, with a force of infantry and cavalry amounting to some 35,000 men. On or about the 17th this officer crossed the River Vid at Churikovo, and on the 25th, assisted by a heavy bombardment calculated to retain Osman's forces in the works, and by a demonstration on the part of the 2nd Roumanian Division on the north-west of the town, between the Vid and the Isker, he vigorously attacked a fortified position between Telishe and Gorny Dubnik, on the Sophia road. A severe action ensued, terminating in the capture of the work, with its commander, Hifzi Pasha, seventy other officers, 2000 men, a battery, and three squadrons of Circassians. This victory, according to the latest intelligence, has been followed by another on the 28th at Telishe, where seven battalions of regular infantry and many officers are reported to have fallen into the hands of the Russians. If this information is correct, the Roumanian right will have joined the Russian left, and the place will be invested. The losses of the assailants at Dubnik were heavy in proportion to the number engaged, 2500 men, including eighty-four officers, being placed hors de combat. Upon the whole, however, the result is a step gained in the attack, and, if the advantage can be retained, it means the fall of Plevna. The Turkish garrison is provisioned for a certain time, beyond which it cannot hold out. If the place be evacuated by Osman Pasha, the next question that will arise is whether there be a Russian army sufficiently strong to prevent the escape of Ghazi Osman whenever he finds it convenient to go. We do not know exactly how many men the Turkish commander has with him, but they have been roughly estimated at 50,000. We are acquainted with the Russian force. By the latest intelligence we are informed that it consists, including the Roumanian divisions, of 106 battalions of infantry, 67 squadrons of cavalry, and 356 guns, including the siege train. If these battalions and squadrons were up to their full strength they would represent a force of 106,000 infantry and 8700 cavalry. The circle of investment around Plevna has a circumference of forty-five miles, which would require a much larger army to keep fast inclosed against a desperate sally of the Turks. Much will depend on the weather and the state of the roads.

There have been several encounters between the armies of the Czar and Osman Pasha on the banks of the Isker, but these were only reconnoitring affairs. The most important of these minor engagements occurred on the 24th, when the Russians pushed a considerable body of men over the Isker at Yovan-Tchilik and Karahassankoi. There being but few companies of the enemy to withstand an attack made by eighteen battalions, it was of course successful, but, reinforcements arriving on the side of the Turks, the Russians fell back with the loss of 800 men. Another attack upon Rustchuk, which is being perpetually bombarded, was made upon the 26th from the extreme left in the neighbourhood of Pyrgos, and was attended with a like result.

Though there is no news of importance from the Shipka Pass, a telegram from Constantinople announces the appearance of a body of Russian troops at Shaditza, south of the Balkans, and fifty-five miles from Sophia, on the Sophia-Karablik road. If this be true we must suppose that the movement has an object, either a raid on Sophia or a flank attack on Rouf Pasha.

If the Russian telegrams from Asia Minor are to be believed the position of the remains of the Turkish army is somewhat critical. Abandoning Kars, and closely pursued by Generals Heimann and Lazareff, Mukhtar has fought his way back to Kojukoi, the junction of the Kars and Bayazid roads, at the rate of ten miles a day. His colleague Ismail, with General Torguekoff's cavalry at his heels, arrived there also on the 26th, having marched with equal rapidity by the Bayazid road through the defile of Delibaba.

The American papers speak of a possible war between China and Siam. For twenty years past Siam has refused to send messengers to China with tribute and acknowledgment of submission to the latter country. China now demands a settlement.

It is stated that the owners of the Fitzmaurice having refused Mr. Dixon's offer as to the salvage, the Cleopatra, with the needle on board, will remain at Ferrol during the winter, while the question of salvage is settled by the Admiralty Court.

The Indian papers state that Mr. Collett and his engineering staff have already commenced surveying the new line of railway from Ahmedabad to Pahlunpore on the broad gauge. It is expected that the line will be finished within two years.

The Sultan has taken an opportunity of informing the Belgian Ambassador that he is studying the institutions of Belgium, as he intends to devote himself to the improvement of the internal affairs of Turkey when the war is at an end. This declaration has been officially published in the Turkish language.

An American engineer and captain at Constantinople have proposed the construction of a bridge over the Bosphorus, between Pera and Scutari, 6000 feet in length. It would have fifteen arches, and serve both as a railway and a road. They estimate the cost, owing to the cheapness of labour at Constantinople, at £5,000,000.

A duplicate electric cable has been successfully submerged between Malta and Bona by the steamer Kangaroo for the Eastern Telegraph and Construction Company. This cable, which is in connection with another new duplicate cable from Paris to Marseilles, and laid for the same company, is a security against interruption of communication in case of any mishap that might occur to the existing lines to England, and also a means of facilitating rapid delivery.

Several items of Egyptian news are telegraphed to the Times by its correspondent at Alexandria. King John of Abyssinia and King Menelik are stated to have made peace at Gondar. King John (it is added) is furious at the indirect assistance given to King Menelik by the Egyptians, and has shot several chiefs suspected of receiving bribes. Peace has not yet been concluded between King John and Colonel Gordon. The former demands the surrender of the traitor Wada Mikail. It is rumoured that Colonel Gordon is willing to grant King John a port in the Red Sea, probably at Zooli. Sultan Pasha, Commander-in-Chief of the army of the Soudan, has gone from Cairo to Massowah to relieve Colonel Gordon, who is returning to Egypt, and who, it is rumoured, will resign his position as Governor of the Soudan.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL NEWS.

FRANCE.

Complete returns of the fifteen second ballots held on Sunday show that eleven Conservatives and four Republicans have been elected. In the 526 elections which are now concluded, the Republicans have obtained 318, the Bonapartists 112, and the Monarchical parties 96 seats. The second balloting was chiefly advantageous to the Bonapartists, who gained three seats. M. Gudin, in whose behalf M. Gambetta spoke at Château Chignon, was unsuccessful. Assuming that the three remaining elections will be decided in favour of the Republicans, it is reckoned that the Chamber of Deputies will consist of 325 Republicans, 107 Bonapartists, and 101 Royalists; giving the Republicans a majority of 117 votes.

There are, of course, all kinds of surmises afloat, but nothing is known as to the intentions of the Government in the political strait which their own indiscreet conduct has placed them. The retirement of the present Ministry is, however, regarded as certain; for if at any time they hesitated since the severe lesson taught them by the general election, the supplementary elections on Sunday must have convinced them that the minds of the country had become more and more decisively set against their policy. The balance of public opinion appears to be favourable to conciliation. M. Grévy, the leader of the Republican party, is said to use language of the most moderate character, and most favourable to a policy of conciliation. The Government journals differ, for while one says there is an increasing tendency in Government circles towards conciliation, another declares that whatever changes are made a Conservative policy must be maintained.

M. Gambetta, in his speech at Château Chignon in support of M. Gudin, said more violence and arbitrary conduct had preceded the elections of Oct. 14 than had been shown during the whole twenty years of the execrated Empire. He was confident that in a few days the Assembly, with its 330 Republicans, greatly to be recruited after the verification of powers, would restore legality and order, and put an end to the pretensions to keep in place, as necessary organs of the Administration, men who were from the first appointed for a purely political object, now signally defeated. Had these elections been free the Republicans would have counted not 400, but 450.

M. Gambetta has lodged an appeal against the judgment delivered against him on the 12th of last month condemning him to three months' imprisonment and 4000*f.* fine. The case will come before the Court early next week.

On Monday evening General Noyes, the United States Minister at Paris, gave a dinner in honour of General Grant at the Minister's private residence in the Avenue Josephine. Marshal MacMahon was unable to attend. After dinner General and Mrs. Noyes held a reception, which was attended by nearly the whole of the American colony in Paris and by the principal members of the corps diplomatique. Marshal MacMahon arrived at ten and remained half an hour. The Marshal is showing General Grant every attention. On Sunday he sent him his race tickets, and he has placed his opera-box at his disposal for to-night. General Grant did not, however, attend the races, but went to the American church. On Tuesday M. Léon Say and M. Crémieux called on General Grant at the Hôtel Bristol.

According to the Soir, the elections for the municipal councils have been finally fixed for Dec. 2.

Nearly 18,000*f.* have been subscribed for the purpose of raising a statue to the late M. Thiers.

The rumours that the opening of the Paris Exhibition would be postponed in consequence of an alleged delay in the preliminary works are untrue. The construction of the Exhibition is so far advanced that exhibitors may now take possession of the spaces allotted to them.

The annual public meeting of the Five Academies took place on Thursday week at the Paris Institute. An announcement was made that the prize of a gold medal of the value of 1500*f.*, offered for the best work on "Philologie Comparée," had been awarded to M. Guyard, and two others of 300*f.* each to MM. Liebich and Frederich Schöen.

The French Academy has accepted a legacy of 1000*f.* left by the widow of M. Jules Janin to found a triennial prize, to bear the name of her husband, for the best French translation of a Latin work.

The death, at his château of Nerville (Loiret), at the age of fifty-four, of Baron Séguier, Judge of the Orleans Court of Appeal, is announced.

ITALY.

King Victor Emmanuel has approved the inscription to be placed upon the gold medal which his Majesty has decided to confer upon the African traveller, Mr. Stanley. It is as follows:—"To the intrepid explorer of Equatorial Africa, Stanley; given by Victor Emmanuel."

Prince Humbert has accepted the title of Protector of the Congress of Orientalists, which is to be held at Rome in September, 1878, Senator Michele Armari presiding.

The Parliament will meet on the 15th inst.

A monumental tablet was uncovered on Sunday at the house in Trastevere, Rome, where, on Oct. 25, 1876, a band of thirty-seven conspiring patriots, surprised and attacked by an overwhelming force of Pontifical Gendarmes and Zouaves, were overpowered after three hours' fighting, and thirteen horribly mutilated; among them the heroic Giuditta Tavani, with her husband, and their son, twelve years old. Of the prisoners, two were executed, the others being condemned to the galleys. Sunday's ceremony was attended by a vast multitude, with flags and wreaths; and in the evening there was an illumination in Trastevere.

General La Marmora has given 240,000 lire to St. John's Hospital at Turin. He has also given large sums to charities at Venice. His health is now completely restored.

The Pope is slightly indisposed, and suffers much from weakness.

The question whether Father Curci had been expelled from the Society of Jesus, about which there were some doubts expressed, is set at rest by a letter from the General of the Jesuits acceding to Father Curci's request to be removed from the society.

GERMANY.

In the Lower House of the Prussian Diet last Saturday the debate on Herr Camphausen's letter relative to the leave of absence granted to Count Eulenburg was resumed. After five hours' discussion, the motion brought forward by the Progressist party concerning the action of the Government in the matter of administrative reforms was negatived, the Progressists and Polish members voting in favour of it. The motion of the Centre, regarding the Ministerial Organisation Bill and the bill relating to Ministerial responsibility, was rejected by 217 against 132 votes. In the course of the debate Herr Camphausen repudiated in the most positive manner an assertion made by Herr Windhorst that Prince Bismarck ruled absolutely; and in regard to a remark of the same deputy to the effect that the Ministers were merely the clerks of the Imperial Chancellor, Herr Camphausen expressed his opinion that the dignity of the House and that of the Government ought not to show such observations as those which Herr Windhorst, himself a former Minister, had thought fit to make.

On Tuesday Herr Camphausen, the Minister of Finance, presented a bill for the issue of the new loan of 123,745,000 marks, the proceeds of which, as announced in the Speech from the Throne, will be applied to public works.

The Minister of War, during the discussion last Wednesday on Herr Windhorst's motion for repealing the prohibition against the exportation of horses, declared that the measure was taken last June, when German horsedealers had received orders from abroad for 30,000 horses fit for military service, a scale of export which would have endangered German mobilisation, and must perhaps remain sometime longer—in fact, so long as mobilisation, although not now expected, is a possibility. Herr Windhorst's motion was rejected.

AUSTRO-HUNGARY.

The Standard's correspondent at Vienna, telegraphing on Wednesday, states:—"The Empress Elizabeth of Austria will start immediately for England, where her Majesty will remain until Christmas, and enjoy six weeks' fox-hunting. The Empress will reside at Mr. Laugham's, Cottesbrooke House, in Northamptonshire. The Crown Prince Rudolf, with his tutor, Count Bombelles, will accompany his Imperial mother, and will also indulge in the pleasures of the chase.

The Emperor and Empress were present at the marriage of Baroness Louise de Wallersee, daughter of Duke Louis of Bavaria, and niece of the Empress Elizabeth, with Count Larisch-Moennich, which was celebrated on the 20th ult.

At a meeting of both Austrian and Hungarian Ministers, held at Pesth on Tuesday, it was resolved to reopen communications with Germany for a commercial treaty based on the most favoured nation clause.

The Hungarian Budget for 1878 was introduced on Tuesday. In explaining its details, the Minister stated that, in addition to the economies, amounting to 13,000,000 fl., effected in the years 1876 and 1877, a further saving of 3,500,000 fl. would be obtained by reductions in the expenditure for 1878. The estimated revenue for 1878 exceeds that of the present year by 2,500,000 fl. The estimated deficit amounts to 15,750,000 fl., of which 8,900,000 fl. is incurred on account of the redemption of the State Debt. Consequently, the remaining deficit from other causes amounts to 6,700,000 fl., which shows a reduction of 6,800,000 fl. compared with 1877.

DENMARK.

In Wednesday's sitting of the Folkething the report of the Finance Committee was brought forward. The Left, forming the majority of the Committee, moved that the House should reject the provisional financial law which is attached as a note to the Budget of 1877-8, and then pass by the second reading of the Budget itself. At the same time, the Left offered to give a provisional sanction to the Budget in a form which the Ministry declared to be unacceptable. The Right (minority) offered, in case of the provisional Budget passing to the second reading, to vote for its preliminary approval in the form accepted by the Ministry. The Government declared that the adoption of the motion of the majority could only result in a new provision being decreed at once.

The hereditary Princess Caroline of Denmark completed her eighty-fourth year on Sunday last. This venerable Princess (the Copenhagen correspondent of the Pall Mall Gazette writes) is the daughter of the late King Frederick VI., who was the son of the unfortunate Princess Caroline Mathilda, the granddaughter of George II. Princess Caroline is consequently the eldest member of the English Royal family, and is also the oldest member of any European Royal family. A telegram was during the day received from the Princess of Wales.

The Copenhagen correspondent of the Pall Mall Gazette writes:—"According to official information published by the Norwegian Government, the mercantile fleet of that country consists of 7814 vessels, of which 7596 are sailing vessels and 218 steamers. The total number of the crews is 60,281 persons; and, considering that the entire population of Norway is barely 2,000,000 souls, the proportion of sailors to the total number of inhabitants is unusually high—probably higher than in any other country.

SWEDEN.

The King has returned to Stockholm from his journey to Norway. His Majesty has created a new decoration—a medal which is to be distributed amongst such farmers in Norway as distinguish themselves in the cultivation of their land.

We learn from the Pall Mall Gazette correspondent at Copenhagen that the King lately presented the choir called the "Orphel Dranger in Upsala" with a musical work, to which his Majesty has written the libretto. The music is composed by Mr. Hallström; and the work, called "Souvenirs from Upsala," is divided into three parts—the first representing the ceremony, during the late quadri-centennial fetes, in the church; the second, the procession to "Wodin's Wood;" and the third, called "On the Hills of Old Wodin."

AMERICA.

President Hayes has been warmly greeted along the whole route from Washington to Richmond (Virginia). He was received at Richmond on Tuesday by 10,000 of the inhabitants, and the Mayor of the town addressed him as the pacificator of the country. In his reply the President paid a high compliment to the history of the State of Virginia in the past, and predicted for it a prosperous future. Secretaries Evarts, Thompson, and Sherman, who accompanied the President, made Union speeches. Secretary Sherman said that every member of the Administration firmly supported the President's Southern policy, which, with the approval of the people, would be carried out to the end. Both North and South must sustain it. The war, said the Secretary, need not be forgotten, but its results must be accepted. All hearts should blend, and all parties respect each other; and, if the South observed the constitutional amendments, peace would ever prevail throughout the land. Senator Morgan, of Alabama, spoke in praise of the President's policy. A long procession of white and black militia escorted the visitors along the streets, which were decorated with banners and triumphal arches. Notwithstanding the rain which was falling at the time, 50,000 spectators were present. President Hayes visited the agricultural fair on Wednesday, when Mr. Kemper, the Governor of Virginia, cordially tendered to the President the hospitalities of the State. Speeches were made by the President and the members of the Cabinet accompanying him. A reception was held in the evening at the Governor's mansion.

In the Senate Bills have been introduced for re-establishing the Court of Commissioners on the Alabama claims, and for the redistribution of the unappropriated moneys of the Geneva award. They also provide for the further disbursement of moneys received under the award. Senator Morton, who has been ill for some time past, is considered to be in a hopeless condition.

In the House of Congress on Monday 850 bills and resolutions were introduced, several of which proposed the remonetisation of silver, modifications in the tariff, the consolidation of the public debt, and the repeal of the Resumption Act. One of the bills introduced proposes the appointment of a Commission for the American department of the Paris Exhibition and the appropriation of 150,000 dollars for that purpose. The majority of the Banking and Currency Committee of the House of Representatives has reported in favour of a bill repealing the section of Specie Resumption Act, fixing a date for resuming specie payments. The bill was re-committed to the same Committee, a course which gives that body power to press for definite action at any time. A test-vote taken in the House showed that there were 138 members in favour and 116 against the bill. Mr. Willis, Democrat, of New York, has introduced a bill in the Lower House reducing all duties 25 per cent, and in some cases providing for a greater rebate. The bill was referred to the Committee of Ways and Means. The Speaker has appointed Mr. Fernando Wood, New York, to be Chairman of the Committee of Ways and Means, with a majority of members favouring the reduction of protective duties.

It is stated from Washington that Mr. John Welch, of Philadelphia, who was chairman of the Finance Board at the Centennial Exhibition, has been appointed Minister to England, in place of Mr. Pierrepont. This appointment (says the American correspondent of the Times) gives universal satisfaction. Mr. Nadal has been reappointed Second Secretary of the American Legation in London. The Senate has confirmed the President's nominations of other foreign Ministers—General Noyes to France, Mr. Kasson to Austria, Mr. Lowell to Spain, Mr. Stoughton to Russia, and Mr. Fish to Switzerland.

CANADA.

The Government records show that, since 1870, the Indians in the north-west have surrendered 440,000 square miles of territory to the Dominion Government.

Lord Dufferin was entertained at a farewell banquet by the citizens of Winnipeg, in Manitoba, on Sept. 29; and, in answer to the toast proposing his health, made a long speech, which has been reported by the local press with high laudation. Reviewing the past history of the Dominion, he specially traced the progress of the State of Manitoba, which, he said, might be regarded as the keystone of that mighty arch of sister provinces which spans the continent from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

It was here, he said, that Canada, emerging from her woods and forests, first gazed upon her rolling prairies and unexplored North-West, and learnt as by an unexpected revelation that her historical territories of the Canadas, the eastern seaboard of New Brunswick, Labrador, and Nova Scotia, the Laurentian lakes and valleys, corn-lands and pastures, though themselves more extensive than half a dozen European kingdoms, were but the vestibules and ante-chambers to that till then undreamt-of Dominion, whose illimitable dimensions alike confounded the arithmetic of the surveyor and the verification of the explorer. It was here that, counting her past achievements as but the preface and prelude to her future exertions and expanding destinies, she took a fresh departure, received the affluence of a more Imperial inspiration, and felt herself no longer a mere settler along the bank of a single river, but the owner of half a continent, and in the amplitude of her possession, in the wealth of her resources, in the sinews of her material might, the peer of any power on the earth. Alluding to the Marquis of Salisbury's well-remembered suggestion of the geographical misconceptions that are often engendered in men's minds by the smallness of the maps they have consulted, he said that to this cause probably might be attributed the inadequate idea entertained by the best-educated persons of the extent of her Majesty's North-American possessions, or the capabilities they possess of affording happy and prosperous homes to millions of the human race. But, in contemplating the vistas thus opened to our imagination (said Lord Dufferin), we must not forget that there ensues a corresponding expansion of our obligations. For instance, unless great care is taken, we shall find, as we move westwards, that the exigencies of civilisation may clash injuriously with the prejudices and traditional habits of our Indian fellow-subjects. As long as Canada was in the woods the Indian problem was comparatively easy—the progress of settlement was slow enough to give ample time and opportunity for arriving at an amicable and mutually convenient arrangement with each tribe with whom we successively came into contact; but once out upon the plains, colonisation will advance with far more rapid and ungovernable strides, and it cannot fail eventually to interfere with the by no means inexhaustible supply of buffalo, upon which so many of the Indian tribes are now dependent. Against this contingency it will be our most urgent and imperative duty to take timely precautions by enabling the red man, not by undue pressure, or hasty or ill-considered interference, but by precept, example, and suasion, by gifts of cattle and other encouragements, to exchange the precarious life of a hunter for that of a pastoral, and eventually that of an agricultural people. Happily, in no part of her Majesty's dominions are the relations existing between the white settler and the original natives and masters of the land so well understood or so generously and humanely interpreted as in Canada, and as a consequence, instead of being a cause of anxiety and disturbance, the Indian tribes of the Dominion are regarded as a valuable adjunct to our strength and industry. In conclusion, Lord Dufferin said: "In a world apart, secluded from extraneous influences, nestling at the feet of her majestic mother, Canada dreams her dream, and forebodes her destiny—a dream of ever-broadening harvests, multiplying towns and villages, and expanding pastures; of constitutional self-government, and a confederated empire; of page after page of honourable history, added to her contribution to the annals of the mother country, and to the glories of the British race; of a perpetuation for all time upon this continent of that temperate and well-balanced system of government which combines in one mighty whole as the eternal possession of all Englishmen, the brilliant history and traditions of the past, with the freest and most untrammelled liberty of action in the future."

THE CAPE COLONIES.

A telegram of news from the Cape, dated Oct. 28, received from Madeira, reports that the murderers of Mr. Bell in the Transvaal have been captured. It is added that no alarm is felt by the whites. The forces under Commander Griffith have attacked and burned Krelli's kraal without loss.

A 52-carat diamond, valued at £3000, has been found at the fields.

INDIA.

The weekly telegram from the Viceroy continues to report continued improvement. The numbers receiving aid and at work on the relief works are decreasing, and the rain was general everywhere last week, with the exception of Scinde and the North-West Province.

The Morning Post states that Sir Andrew Clarke has been appointed by the Viceroy responsible Minister for the famine administration. He is starting remunerative railway and irrigation works. The same paper says that Captain the Hon. G. Villiers has been appointed military secretary to the Viceroy.

A Calcutta telegram declares that the relations of the Government with the Khan of Khelat are most cordial, and that the movement of troops now taking place is in accordance with previous arrangements made at the direct suggestion of the Khan.

According to recently published statistics, the present population of British India is 190,000,000. Bombay is the most sparsely populated of the three Presidencies, having only 131 persons to a square mile, while Madras has 213, and Bengal 395.

CHINA.

Official possession of the Woosung Railway has been taken by the Chinese authorities, who have stopped the traffic.

Advices from Hong-Kong to Sept. 22, via San Francisco, published in the American papers, state that much dissatisfaction has been occasioned at Hong-Kong owing to the new Governor, Mr. Pope Hennessey, having insisted upon treating the Chinese population there with greater consideration than has been usual, and to his abrogation of some severe laws and customs affecting them. There is said to have been much excitement throughout the colony, and formal appeals to the Home Government against the conduct of the Governor are threatened by the British colonists.

AUSTRALIA.

We hear from Adelaide to Oct. 26 that the new Ministry for South Australia has been formed. Among its members are Mr. Forrester, Treasurer; Mr. Morgan, Colonial Secretary; Mr. Mann, Attorney-General; Mr. Playford, Commissioner of Crown Lands; Mr. Hawker, Public Works; Mr. Blyth, Education.

NATIONAL SPORTS.

There was a very heavy day's racing at Newmarket last Thursday week, as the card contained no less than eleven events, inclusive of two matches, and every one of them produced a contest. We note with great pleasure that the American representatives, Start and Bay Final, were each successful, and we trust that next year Mr. Sanford may have as successful a season as his pluck and enterprise deserve. Hydramel, who shares with Jannette the credit of being still undefeated, had no trouble in landing a Sweepstakes from a pair of moderate opponents; and then came a Limited Free Handicap, which was interesting from the fact that it enabled three of the prominent Cambridgeshire candidates to fight their battle over again. These were Gladia, Avontes, and Rosy Cross, and previous form was quite upset, as Gladia, the third in the great handicap, was very easily beaten by the other two, of whom Rosy Cross got the better of a pretty finish. Of course the Dewhurst Plate was the principal event of the day, and a capital field of nine started for it. Lord Falmouth elected to be represented by Childeric instead of Jannette, and Count Lagrange ran both Insulaire and Inval. Unfortunately for his owner, Beauclerc, the winner of the Middle Park Plate, was not engaged, and the colt by Scottish Chief—Katie, who was second to him in that race, had to be withdrawn, having gone amiss. This left Pilgrimage as the best representative of those that ran in the Two-year-old Derby, and Athol Lad and Attalus were the most noteworthy of the remainder. As was the case at Doncaster, Childeric proved utterly unable to act in the heavy ground, and never gave his supporters the smallest hope; the distance was much too far for the roaring Athol Lad, and Pilgrimage beat the French pair very cleverly. The winner, who is a half-sister to Pellegrino, has proved one of the cheapest purchases ever made, as less than six weeks ago Lord Lonsdale secured her, for only 190 gs., at the sale of Mr. Gerard Sturt's stud. The easy victory of Red Hazard in the Troy Stakes concluded a long day's sport.

The next day saw Pilgrimage again to the fore in a Post Sweepstakes; and she has the credit of being the first conqueror of Redwing, who succumbed by a neck, after a very pretty finish between the pair and Clémentine, who was only beaten a head for second place. After the fine performances of Belphebe both in the Cesarewitch and Cambridgeshire, she was naturally greatly fancied for the Jockey Club Cup, for which Springfield did not start. She is by no means, however, an every-day animal; and, though going wonderfully well at the Bushes, Verneuil had her in trouble soon afterwards, and beat her very cleverly indeed at the finish; St. Christophe, who was attempting to concede the filly 11 lb., was a bad third. Only Ecossais had the temerity to oppose Springfield in the All-Aged Stakes; and the latter, showing even more wonderful speed than ever, made a fearful example of him. It is, we believe, not yet settled whether Springfield will be trained again; but, should he win two or three good races over cup courses next season, he will have thoroughly proved himself the best horse of this or any other time. On Saturday Lord Falmouth, who has this season exceeded the largest amount ever previously won by an owner of racehorses, appropriately took the Winding-Up Handicap by the aid of Great Tom, and the Houghton Handicap fell to Warren Hastings (6 st. 4 lb.), who has sadly disappointed his party on several occasions this season. The match between Placida and Thunderstone, over the R.M., excited the greatest interest, and a shade of odds was laid on the big colt, who was in receipt of 6 lb. from the Oaks winner. Placida, who has been amiss for the greater part of the summer, is evidently recovering her best form, and, coming along at a good pace from the start, she had her opponent in trouble a long way from home, and won as she liked. A good deal of money was dependent on F. Archer's winning mounts reaching 200 by the end of last week, and they only fell short of that number by three.

An event of the week was the sale of the "hurdle-racer," Hampton, to Lord Ellesmere, for 7200 gs.; and we yet hope to see him and Springfield meet over two miles and a half. Forerunner was bought by Mr. Naylor for 2500 gs., and some nice brood mares, the property of Captain Ray, who has given up breeding, were knocked down very cheaply.

We learn that a bust of the late Admiral Rous is being executed by Mr. M. M. Razzi, and, when completed, will be placed in the club-room at Newmarket. A model of the bust has been approved by the committee of the Jockey Club.

The First South Lancashire (Open) Coursing Meeting proved very successful, though hares were scarcely so plentiful as they have been upon previous occasions, and long walks had to be taken every now and then before a slip could be obtained. The Scarsbrick Cup was, of course, the chief event, and it fell to Last But One, by Hasty Joe—Jenny Lind. Old Corby Castle ran into the last three, and the well-known names of Dyazagara and Meolsman appeared among the beaten lot. The Derby, for dog puppies, was won by Prince Charming, by The Palmer—Princess Royal II.; and the Oaks, a similar stake for the "young ladies," went to Sall-o'-th'-Mill, by Hayberry Mill—Beda, who proved too good for Prince Charming when they contested the piece of plate given to be run for by the respective winners of the Derby and Oaks. Mr. Warwick got through four very heavy days' work most satisfactorily, and no fault could be found with Wilkinson's slipping.

Saturday last was a red-letter day with bicyclists, as a fifty guinea challenge cup, presented by the proprietor of the Sporting Life, was ridden for at Lillie-bridge. The Hon. Ion Keith-Falconer and Mr. Wyndham, the present champion, were absentees. However nine came to the post, and H. Osborne, who won very easily indeed, rode the full distance in 3h. 18 min. 55 sec., which is by far the best amateur time on record. S. C. Rhodes, a comparative novice, was second. The performances were all the more remarkable from the fact that the path was terribly heavy from the incessant rain.

Those old opponents, H. Kelley and J. H. Sadler, will scull from Putney to Mortlake next Monday for £200 a side. Both are said to be very well, and in something like their old form.

The demolition of the wreck of the Forest was completed on Tuesday morning. Exactly seven weeks have elapsed since the collision which rendered these operations necessary. The work has been accomplished by Captain Nisbet, R.N., and has cost the Trinity House about a thousand pounds.

The following extract from a letter written by Mr. J. T. Rogers, Director of Public Instruction in Egypt, shows that the Khedive is taking vigorous steps to suppress the traffic in slaves:—"Cairo, Oct. 18.—The day before yesterday the Khedive sent me ten female slaves, and to-day four more, who had been seized from the dealers, and I placed them, according to his Highness's instructions, in the female school. Of course, they came to me in rags and covered with dirt; but on their arrival at the school they were immediately put in warm baths and dressed in clean clothes, after which they were not to be recognized as the same beings."

THE BLANTYRE COLLIERY EXPLOSION, NEAR GLASGOW: C

CALLING FOR VOLUNTEERS FOR THE EXPLORING PARTIES.

THE CHURCH.

PREFERMENTS AND APPOINTMENTS.

Bramley, Richard, to be Vicar of Kirkdale.
 Edwards, T. H.; Vicar of Lindfield.
 Granville, Roger; Rector of Bideford, North Devon.
 Gurney, John Langton; Vicar of Bickton, Bucks.
 Harris, John; Rector of Flowton, Suffolk.
 Jones, Walter Anthony; Minor Canon in Salisbury Cathedral.
 Morland, Anthony Thomas; Rector of Chilton, Berks.
 Owen, Humphrey Edward; Rector of South Moreton, Berks.
 Partridge, Walter Henry; Curate of Witney, Oxon.
 Peacock, Walter G.; Rector of Uleby, near Alford.
 Tritton, Robert Briscoe; Vicar of Bognor, Sussex.—Guardian.

The chancel of Blewbury church, Berks, was reopened after restoration on Wednesday by the Bishop of Oxford.

The Church of St. Margaret, Topsham, Exeter, which has been completely rebuilt, was consecrated by the Bishop of the diocese on Saturday last.

The chancel of St. Bartholomew's, Aldsworth, Gloucestershire, has been reopened after restoration. A new organ replaced an harmonium.

On Wednesday the parish church of Langport, in Somerset, which has been restored at a cost of £2000, was reopened by the Bishop of Bath and Wells.

A painted window, the work of Messrs. Clayton and Bell, has been placed in the chancel of Milton Abbott, by the children of the Rev. Sir St. Vincent Hammick, Vicar.

A public meeting was recently held at Putney, at which it was resolved, with only fourteen dissentients, that no assignment of seats in the parish church ought to be made.

The jubilee of the consecration of Trinity Church, Ripon—a church which was built out of a bequest of £13,000, left for that purpose by Dr. Kilvington, a former medical practitioner in that city—was celebrated on Wednesday.

The Chapel Royal, Whitehall, will be reopened for Divine service on Sunday next. The Bishop of London will preach on the occasion. The organ has been rebuilt and the choir reorganised under the superintendence of Mr. C. S. Jekyll, organist of her Majesty's Chapel Royal.

As the congregation in Stirchly church, Shropshire, were assembling on Sunday morning, the church parted down the side walls, as well as across the ceiling and roof, causing the greatest consternation. The Globe states that this quaint old church, dedicated to St. James, was built in the year 1100.

The Bishop of London will, on and after Monday next, resume his weekly attendance at London House, on Mondays, from eleven till twelve o'clock. Clergymen and others desirous of an appointment are requested to write to the Rev. W. M. Sinclair, Fulham Palace, S.W.

Felstead church, with the mortuary chapel of Lord Rich, the munificent founder of Felstead Grammar School, attached, has been reopened by the Bishop of St. Albans, after undergoing a restoration from which only the tower and Lord Rich's famous monument are excepted.

On Wednesday the restoration of the old collegiate church, Wolverhampton, was announced to be complete. The total expenditure had been £25,880. Of this sum the Ecclesiastical Commissioners contributed £4000, and the rest, with a trifling exception, has been raised by voluntary contributions.

By a subscription among the congregation of Christ Church, Woburn-square, the altar-plate, an ugly service of the period of William III., has been replaced by a fine silver-gilt service in the Renaissance style, much resembling the altar-plate manufactured for St. Paul's Cathedral a few years ago by Messrs. Lias and Son, St. Bride-street, Ludgate-circus, by whom this service is also supplied.

Dr. Vaughan (the Master of the Temple) proposes to give twelve public readings on the Epistle to the Philippians, open to any persons interested in the study of the Greek Testament, whether members of the Temple or not. The readings will be at eight o'clock in the morning, on the Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday of the next three weeks, beginning on Tuesday, Nov. 6, in the lecture-room of the Middle Temple.

The report of the governor of Queen Anne's Bounty for 1876 states that the gifts by benefactors, both private and public, towards the improvement of poor benefices have not diminished. During the year 114 grants were made, as compared with 101 in 1875. The accounts show that the income for the year was £146,981, and the disbursements £119,806. The balance-sheet on Dec. 31, 1876, showed the assets to amount to £3,777,976, and the liabilities to £3,749,435, giving a balance in favour of the corporation of £28,541.

The Bishop of London presided at a meeting at Trinity Schools, Stepney, on Saturday last, to celebrate the reopening of the schools after their restoration. He distributed prizes for religious knowledge, and addressed the children. The Rev. J. E. Kempe, Rector of St. James's, Westminster, and other friends of voluntary schools, were present, and addressed the meeting. At the close of the proceedings at the schools the Bishop adjourned to the site of a new mission building about to be erected in the same parish, and the foundation-stone was laid by Mr. Philip Cazenove. A short service was held in the open air, and the Bishop delivered an address, congratulating the Vicar on the important work that was going on in the parish, and speaking highly of the value of mission-rooms as an aid to the work of the Church in poor districts.

DIOCESAN MEETINGS.

The Bishop of Ripon has issued a circular recently to the archdeacons of his diocese asking them to assist him in making arrangements for holding a diocesan conference in October, 1878.

The annual meeting of the York Diocesan Church Building and Endowment Society was held on Tuesday at York—the Archbishop of York presiding—when several grants of money were made in aid of churches and parsonage-houses, on the works of which a total sum of £13,955 is to be expended.

At the Peterborough diocesan conference yesterday week Mr. Heygate, M.P., opened a discussion on the Burials Bill, contending that no real grievance was felt, much less substantiated; that the agitation was a step towards disestablishment, purely tactless and political; that no concession or compromise was possible; and that the clergy had no alternative but to oppose the clause.

A conference in connection with the Church of England Temperance Society was held on Monday afternoon in the Sheldonian Theatre, Oxford, under the presidency of the Bishop of the diocese, to consider the claims of the temperance movement upon the Universities and public schools. His Lordship, in opening the proceedings, said the object of the society was to create a good, mainly public opinion which would condemn not merely the drunkard's excess but the habit of decent intemperance, which he was afraid was more prevalent now than it had been. Canon Ellison and the Archdeacon of Bucks also addressed the gathering.

The first conference of the newly-constituted diocese of Truro opened on the 25th ult. The Bishop urged that it was their ultimate duty to provide Church worship and teaching wherever such did not exist, and went on to remark that it was utterly futile to bid the Church acquiesce in teaching what they know doctrinally to be unevangelical. Among other subjects, the conference discussed the burials question. A resolution was passed almost unanimously deprecating Lord Harrowby's clause, inasmuch as Nonconformists were at liberty to provide burial-grounds of their own. A rider was carried to the effect that, on the application of twenty householders in any place, the Home Secretary should make an order on the ratepayers to provide a sufficient burial-ground for Nonconformists.—The conference was continued on the following day, when various proposals were made with respect to the new cathedral body. A committee was appointed to consider the matter. The Bishop's proposal with reference to the new cathedral body is that it shall at present consist of honorary officers. There are to be twenty-four canons and an honorary chancellor, and to these it is proposed ultimately to add a new experimental officer, who shall be called a canon missionary, and shall devote himself exclusively to directing mission work.

The Bishop of Gloucester and Bristol, in his charge on the 25th ult. in Bristol Cathedral, dwelt on the three great evils which he considered prevalent in the Church—viz., lawlessness, party spirit, and—what is only party spirit in its strictly professional aspect—sacerdotalism.—The subject of Bishop Ellicott's visitation address at Cirencester the next day was the Confessional, which he strongly condemned as unauthorised by the Prayer-book, fraught with terrible dangers to the Church, and certain to hasten the separation of Church and State by a people who would not submit to priestly assumption on the part of the clergy. If confession became generally advocated, the last sand of the Established Church would be running and the end very near at hand. But this would not occur. Sacramental confession, said the right rev. prelate, is not and never will be the doctrine of our orthodox and reformed Church.—Bishop Ellicott, continuing his visitation on Monday at Malmesbury, dwelt on the Royal supremacy, denying that the legal enactment involved a compact that spiritual and ecclesiastical questions should, in the last resort, be restrained to spiritual or ecclesiastical arbitration, and contending that the tacit compact it did involve of recognising Convocation as the Church of England by representation had been kept, though Convocation had not been duly consulted.—At Chippenham on Tuesday the Bishop's visitation bore special reference to the history and constitution of the Final Court of Appeal. His Lordship severely condemned the imputation cast upon the character and justice of the members of that tribunal, praised the Kildale judgment for its lucidity, force, and transparent impartiality, and warned his hearers that disobedience of the law would do what sectarian opposition and political dissent could never do of itself—break asunder the bonds which unite Church and State.—Bishop Ellicott, in his visitation charge on Wednesday, at Swindon, spoke upon the subject of Convocation. He admitted that Convocation was half-muzzled, and he proposed to improve the matter by increasing the number of proctors, giving the suffrage to curates in sole charge, and providing in all cases a minority vote.

Lord Leonfield has given £15,000 towards the maintenance of the Church of Ireland in the county of Clare.

The annual meeting of the synods of Dublin, Glendalough, and Kildare, was held at the Synod Hall, Christchurch-place, on the 26th ult. The Archbishop of Dublin, in a long address, expressed his thanks for the patience, kindness, and forbearance which he had met with from all during the period when from illness he was obliged to leave a considerable part of his duty to be done by others, and more of it undone altogether. He regretted that he was still obliged to draw upon their patience and forbearance, which he did not think would be soon exhausted; but his course would be clear should he find himself in a condition of permanent inability to take his share in the work that was common to them all. He was gratified to see so large an attendance, because there had been prophecies that when the exciting business of revision was exhausted they would assemble in very small numbers. It might hereafter be so, though he trusted it never would, for the prosperous working of a Church like theirs must depend on the goodwill and lively interest taken in it by all the members. The business of the synod was chiefly of local interest.—The diocesan synod of Kildare met on Tuesday, the Archbishop of Dublin presiding. The report of the council, which was adopted, showed that the entire sum expended on church purposes from the period of disestablishment to the end of 1875, from various sources, amounts to £18,954, of which sum £17,744 was derived from subscriptions and donations.—At the meeting of the Dublin Synod on Wednesday a controversy arose on a motion to censure the introduction of retreats into the Irish Protestant Church—one such Ritualistic innovation, as it was called, having lately been witnessed at Blackrock, near Dublin, under the conductorship of the Rev. Mr. Randall, of Clifton. The debate stood adjourned.

THE UNIVERSITIES AND PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

OXFORD.

The Lord Almoner's professorship of Arabic has been vacated by the resignation of Professor Cheney.

The following gentlemen have been nominated by Hulme's trustees to vacant Hulmeian exhibitions confined to members of Brasenose College:—Mr. W. B. Taylor, formerly scholar; Mr. C. Clementson, B.A., Mr. T. M. Harrison, scholar, and Mr. R. A. Germaine, scholar.

Mr. Lazarus Fletcher, B.A., late scholar of Balliol College, has been elected to a fellowship at that society.

Mr. W. Ellison, commoner, of Exeter, has been elected to a Michell Exhibition at the same house.

The honorary degree of D.C.L. has been conferred on Sir Harry Cotton, Lord Justice of Appeal, lately counsel to the University.

The following gentlemen have been elected honorary Fellows of Jesus College:—Mr. John Richards Green, M.A., author of "A Short History of the English People;" Mr. Lewis Morris, M.A., author of "Songs of Two Worlds;" and Mr. John Rhys, M.A., Professor of Celtic. All three gentlemen are old members of the College.

The electors (the Fellows) have elected to the Principalship of Jesus College, vacant by the death of Dr. Williams, the Rev. Hugo Daniel Harper, M.A., late Fellow of the society, and Head Master of Sherborne School.

The lists of Freshmen for Michaelmas Term shows that the total accession to the undergraduate ranks this term is 443. Kible supplies the greatest number—44. The "unattached" number 51, while the other colleges are represented by the following numbers: Balliol, 35; Exeter, 34; New, 33; Brasenose, 29; St. John's, 27; Magdalen, 23; University, 22; Christ Church, 19; Trinity, 15; Queen's, 15; Oriel, 14; Lincoln, 13; Corpus, 13; Pembroke, 12; Worcester, 11;

Jesus, 11; Merton, 10; Wadham, 8; St. Edmund Hall, 6; Hartford, 4; St. Alban Hall, 3. The colleges, with one or two exceptions, are very full; and a majority of the lodgings, of which there are upwards of a thousand sets licensed by the University, are occupied.

CAMBRIDGE.

At the Congregation on the 25th ult. among the graces which received the sanction of the Senate was one to confer the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws upon Charles Darwin, M.A., of Christ's, the author of the "Origin of Species."

John Archibald Sharkey, B.A., has been elected to a fellowship at Christ's College.

The Seatonian University prize, given annually to the Master of Arts who shall compose the best poem on a social subject, has been adjudged to Mr. W. J. Mills, M.A., of Pembroke College. The subject was "Judas Maccabeus."

The Rev. Arthur Lloyd, B.A., has been elected a Fellow of St. Peter's. Mr. Lloyd was thirteenth classic in 1874.

The entry of Freshmen this term is very high, the number being 722. The number at each of the seventeen colleges is as follows:—St. Peter's, 12; Clare, 26; Pembroke, 45; King's, 17; Caius, 40; Trinity Hall, 50; Queens', 14; St. Catharine's, 13; Jesus, 62; Christ's, 26; St. John's, 114; Magdalene, 17; Trinity, 163; Emmanuel, 22; Sidney, 15; Downing, 13; Corpus, 33. There are in addition forty entered as unattached students.

EDINBURGH.

The General Council of this University has rejected a proposal to abolish the tests by which certain professorships are restricted to "one section of Scottish Presbyterians"—i.e., the Establishment.

GLASGOW.

Lord Beaconsfield has written to Principal Caird stating that the great pressure of public affairs and his indifferent health will prevent him this autumn from personally bidding farewell to his constituents on retiring from the office of Lord Rector, and expressing his thanks for the confidence which had been reposed in him.

A very animated discussion took place on Wednesday in the University Council on the subject of disestablishing the theological chairs in connection with the Scotch universities. Dr. Badenoch, Dr. Smith, and others opposed the motion for disestablishment, and carried their amendment by a large majority.—A motion was carried by a majority of ninety-nine to eighty-seven affirming the necessity for a Scotch Education Board to frame a code and make other educational arrangements for Scotland.

ST. ANDREWS.

The Queen has appointed Mr. George Chrystal, B.A., Fellow and Lecturer of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge, to the Chair of Mathematics in this University. Mr. Chrystal, after obtaining the Fergusson Mathematical Scholarship at Aberdeen, proceeded to Cambridge, where he was in 1875 Second Wrangler and Second Smith's prizeman.

Before a crowded gathering of students and friends of the Bristol University Colleges, Dean Stanley gave an address at the Victoria Rooms, Clifton, last Saturday, in the course of which he dealt with the duties, incentives, aspirations, and possibilities of modern life. The whole of our human existence, he said, is education—not merely a probation.

The committee of the Town Council, to whom the selection of a new Master of Reading School was intrusted, have unanimously resolved to recommend the appointment of the Rev. W. Walker, M.A., of Trinity College, Dublin, and Head Master of the Hanley Castle Grammar School.

The new building of Kelly College, at Tavistock, standing on ground given by the Duke of Bedford, was opened on the 25th ult. by the Bishop of Exeter. The Bishop gave an address in which he said that the true object of the college was to make the scholars educated Christian gentlemen. The building, which has cost £50,000, has been built and endowed from a bequest under the will of Admiral Kelly. It is designed primarily for the descendants of the founder, and secondarily for the sons of naval officers.

The open Science Scholarship of £100 at King's College, London, given by the Company of Clothworkers, has been awarded to Mr. Edgar Crookshank, of University College.

It is proposed to found a high school for the city of Oxford, the Mayor, Aldermen, and citizens having long felt a reproach that, being the site of one of the most ancient and famous of the Universities of Europe, it has been absolutely without any recognised grammar school available for the sons of the citizens.

It was resolved by the Sheffield Town Council on Monday to present a memorial to the Privy Council in favour of the establishment of a University for the North, but objecting to the title of the University of Manchester.

Mr. George Gardner, B.A., late junior student of Christ Church, Oxford, has been appointed an inspectors of schools.

The Gresham Lecturer in Divinity (the Dean of Chichester) will lecture at Gresham College, Basinghall-street, on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, Nov. 6, 7, 8, 9, at six p.m. The subject will be St. Paul at Athens.

Mr. W. E. Forster, M.P., on Wednesday presided at the distribution of prizes awarded to the candidates of the London, Southwark, and Streatham-hill centres, under the Oxford local examination, and delivered an address on secondary education.

The prizes earned by the pupils of St. Margaret's Technical School were distributed on Wednesday evening in Grosvenor Hall by Sir J. C. Lawrence, Bart., M.P.

Several members of Parliament have addressed their constituencies during the week.

The Rev. Professor McCarthy, V.P. Maynooth, has been elected as successor to the late Dr. Moriarty in the Roman Catholic see of Kerry.

Disastrous floods are reported from several parts of the country. South Wales has become extensively flooded, and much damage has been done to property in Bridgend.

A bronze statue of the late Mr. John Laird, the first M.P. for Birkenhead, erected in Hamilton-square, Birkenhead, was unveiled on Wednesday by Lord Tollenmache of Helmingham, formerly one of the members for West Cheshire. A large gathering assembled, and among the speakers were Sir Henry Mather Jackson, M.P.; Mr. David Maciver, M.P.; and Sir Thomas Edwards Moss, of Liverpool. The statue is by Mr. Bruce Joy, of London, and is a good likeness.

At a full-dress parade of the West Kent Militia, assembled at Maidstone for training on Tuesday, Countess Sydney presented colours to the second battalion of the regiment, in the presence of a brilliant company. The presentation was acknowledged by Colonel Laing. Subsequently the regiment, 1000 strong, on parade, went through some review movements before Earl Sydney, the Lord Lieutenant of the county, and his Lordship expressed his satisfaction with what he had seen.

METROPOLITAN NEWS.

The great clock of St. Paul's Cathedral has been stopped for cleaning and necessary repairs, and it will probably be a week before the work is completed.

Mr. John Walter, M.P., has consented to preside on the 28th inst. at the annual festival dinner, at Willis's Rooms, on behalf of the Home for Little Boys.

Mr. Polydore de Keyser has been elected without opposition to the office of common councilman for the ward of Farringdon Without, in the place of Mr. Howell, deceased.

In the presence of many thousands of spectators, the new steam horse-ferry over the Thames, about two miles below London Bridge, was opened by the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress on Wednesday.

Yesterday week the Rev. J. G. Rogers gave an address at the Memorial Hall, Farringdon-street, on the recent Church Congress at Croydon, from the proceedings at which he argued on the necessity of separating the Church from the State.

A new Roman Catholic church—the Church of the Immaculate Heart of Mary and St. Dominic—Balfour-road, Homerton, was opened on Monday morning. A number of priests assisted at the high mass. Cardinal Manning preached.

The memorial-stone of the schools which are to be erected in connection with Tolmers-square Congregational Church was laid on Wednesday by Mr. S. Morley, M.P. The total cost of the building, including the site, is to be £7000.

A play—the present one being "London Assurance"—is performed every afternoon, by a good company, at the Royal Aquarium, Westminster. The Cruikshank Gallery has been reopened, and some original War Sketches by the Illustrated London News artists are on view here.

The distribution of Bibles and Testaments, to the number of about 250, as prizes to the children of the Hornsey Board School, for successful examination in Scripture knowledge, took place on Saturday, in the concert-hall of the Alexandra Palace. Alderman Sir Robert Carden presided.

A letter was read last Saturday from the First Commissioner of Works, at the annual dinner of the Richmond Cricket Club, relative to the earlier opening of Kew Gardens, saying that on Bank Holidays some such arrangement might be made, but that the expense would be too great on other occasions.

The Mansion House Committee formed to receive subscriptions in aid of the sufferers by the fire which occurred at St. John, New Brunswick, early in the year, held a meeting on Monday—the Lord Mayor in the chair—when it was resolved to remit to St. John a balance of £756 (making over £7000 collected and sent out) and to close the fund.

The prizes won at the annual battalion prize-meeting of the 38th Middlesex Rifles (the Artists' Corps) were presented by Major Edis, at Westminster Hall, yesterday week. Among the principal prize-winners were—Captain Robert, Lieutenant Spiers, Colour-Sergeants Horsley and Rich, and Privates Hay, Heritage, Boucher, and Batley.

At the Temperance Hall, 337, Strand, Mr. Thomas Hughes, Q.C., presided on Wednesday evening at the third quarterly social meeting in connection with the Working Men's Club and Institute Union. The hall was crowded, all the affiliated metropolitan workmen's clubs, 120 in number, and possessing an enrolled strength of about 8000 members, being represented by delegates. An excellent tea was provided.

A meeting was presided over on Monday afternoon by the Lord Mayor at the Mansion House, at which resolutions were passed affirming the necessity of establishing an industrial home for women who have become habitual drunkards. A subscription-list was started for the purpose; and, on the motion of Mr. Samuel Morley, M.P., it was agreed that an influential deputation should wait on the Home Secretary to urge on him such legislation as might diminish drunkenness.

The weekly return of metropolitan pauperism shows that the total number of paupers at the end of the fourth week of October was 78,531, of whom 38,249 were in workhouses, and 40,282 received outdoor relief. Compared with the corresponding weeks in 1876, 1875, and 1874, these figures show a decrease of 111, 3893, and 12,587 respectively. The number of vagrants relieved on the last day of the week was 809, of whom 539 were men, 209 women, and 61 children.

Mr. Alderman Biffitt having offered to Sir John Bennett the position of deputy of the ward of Cheap, which he held by the appointment of the late Alderman Allen, Sir John Bennett has declined to accept it. He says that he would neither be consulting his personal dignity nor the rights of the electors if he stooped to recognise, much less take office under, one who sits solely as the nominee of the Court of Aldermen, and in defiance of the will of the ward. Mr. Bontems will be Mr. Biffitt's deputy.

This year's exhibition of chrysanthemums in the garden of the Inner Temple bids fair to be a very good one, the mild weather of the past few days having brought the buds into fine condition. Mr. Newton, the head gardener, evidently relies upon the old-established favourites, as there are only three or four new specimens this year, of which the Gloire de Toulouse (a rose-coloured flower with a white centre) and the Cosack (a pretty maroon and yellow bud) are the most noteworthy. During the continuance of the show the gardens, by the permission of the Benchers, are open to the public.

Baroness Burdett-Coutts has sent to the St. Pancras Vestry a cheque for £100 for the purpose of erecting a greenhouse to preserve plants and flowers during the winter for the new St. Pancras Gardens, with an intimation that, in order to save expense, she had directed her own gardeners to preserve cuttings from her grounds to help to stock the greenhouse. The garden committee reported that they had already given instructions for the erection of the greenhouse, and a letter of thanks was ordered to be transmitted to the Baroness for her liberal and timely gift.

A conversation of the Architectural Association, at which a large body of the members and their friends assembled, was held yesterday week at its Rooms, 9, Conduit-street. The company were entertained by a display of numerous sketches lent by the associates, as well as specimens of art-nodework and furniture. After the distribution of a number of books as prizes to students who had attended the classes during the past session, the president, Mr. Powes A. Poles, gave an address, in which he enumerated the various classes, and said the past session had been a very successful one.

At a public meeting of the Royal Humane Society recently held the silver medal, the highest award granted for saving or attempting to save life, was unanimously voted to Mr. Daniel Thomas, colliery proprietor, Rhondda Valley, Rhondda Valley, South Wales; to Mr. William Botta, machanic organ-grinder, of Harris's Navigation Colliery, Quaker's-yard; to Isaac Price, colliery, Llwynellyn Colliery, Rhondda Valley; and to John William Howell, colliery, Ynisher Colliery, Rhondda Valley, for their gallantry on April 11 at the Tynewydd Colliery in the Rhondda Valley, when they rescued five men who had been imprisoned in the mine for nine days through an inundation. It was resolved to solicit the Earl of Albemarle to present the medallions publicly.

There were 2474 births and 1499 deaths registered in London last week. The births were 58 and the deaths 30 above the average. The deaths included 14 from smallpox, 67 from measles, 61 from scarlet fever, 6 from diphtheria, 23 from whooping-cough, 39 from different forms of fever, and 23 from cholera. The deaths referred to diseases of the respiratory organs, which in the eight preceding weeks had steadily increased from 108 to 297, further rose last week to 371, and exceeded the weekly average by 81; 212 resulted from bronchitis and 113 from pneumonia. The mean temperature was 49.7 deg., and 1.8 deg. above the average. The duration of registered sunshine in the week was 10.8 hours, the sun being above the horizon during 70.7 hours.

At an inquest held by Mr. Bedford in Soho respecting the death of a French gentleman, aged sixty-five, who was found dead in a coal-cellar at 65, Dean-street, Soho, the medical evidence showed that death had resulted from disease of the heart and semi-starvation. The state of the body showed that the deceased must have been very abstemious in his habits. The place where he lay was a mere cellar and totally unfit for human habitation. An official of La Société de Bienfaisance, said he had known the deceased for some time. He had lately been a pensioner of the society, and received some bread nearly every morning. He never asked for anything, but the witness made up a parcel and gave it to the deceased each time he came, which he acknowledged with bow and then left. The jury returned a verdict in accordance with the medical evidence. It was stated that the deceased was a descendant of the Lallys, who were Barons of Tullena-dally or Tolendale, near the city of Tuam, and who, after the Revolution, emigrated to France, where they won fame and promotion in the well-known Irish Brigade; but this has been denied.

At Wednesday's weekly meeting of the School Board for London—Sir Charles Reed in the chair—the Hon. G. C. Fredrick was introduced and took his seat as one of the members for Westminster. The debate on the scheme of the school management committee respecting the instruction of pupil-teachers and candidates at centres was resumed, and ended in the propositions of the committee being referred back for reconsideration.—An exhibition of drawings by children and pupil-teachers in the schools under the School Board for London has been held this week at the offices of the board, Victoria Embankment. The drawings were nearly 2900 in number, consisting mainly of examples of freehand, geometry, model, and perspective, as required from public elementary schools by the regulations of the Science and Art Department, South Kensington.—The amount received from the fête at the Crystal Palace on the occasion of the distribution of prizes for Scripture knowledge on July 7 last was £140, which Mr. Peck, with the concurrence of the school management committee of the London School Board, proposes to apportion as follows:—£20 to be paid to Mr. T. M. Williams, for his services as examiner and organiser of the fête; £10 to be applied for the purchase of testimonial Bibles to be awarded to those head teachers who passed the largest proportion of children in the Scripture examination in their schools; £105 to be set apart for the scholarship to be called the "Crystal Palace Scholarship," and to be tenable for four years, the examination for the scholarship to take place about next midsummer; and the remaining £5 to be added to the fund for defraying the expenses in connection with the examination for scholarships.

The annual exhibition of the works of the pupils of the Female School of Art, at the close of last week, was an interesting record of the year's progress of an institution which has done and continues to do excellent work in preparing women for teaching art or practising it as a profession. The school was established in 1842, being then a Government institution. It now depends on students' fees and on the subscriptions of the public. It contains 200 pupils. Six of them made a tour in Italy last Easter with the superintendent, Miss Gann, and brought back sketches made in Rome, Milan, Venice, and elsewhere as a contribution to the exhibition. Three students went up this year for the National Gallery, and at once obtained admission. Two national silver medals, five bronze medals, six Queen's prizes of books, and fifteen third-grade prizes were obtained by the pupils at the last South Kensington competition, and the works which gained these distinctions were exhibited. Some valuable prizes are attached to the institution itself, and were adjudged by Mr. S. Hart, R.A., Mr. Woolner, R.A., and other well-known artists. The Queen's Scholarship, value £50, was awarded to Rhoda Carleton Holmes, for drawings in water colour of an Egyptian girl, and other sketches. The National Gilchrist Scholarships, given primarily to provide students from the provinces with the best art training which can be obtained in England, were adjudged to Miss Burnay and Miss Newton. Both these ladies exhibited studies of flowers, executed with taste and finish. The strong point of the painting was in flowers and fruit. Minute and accurate studies of lilac and passion-flower by Miss Burnay, of chestnut-leaf and pink blossom by Florence Reason, of primroses and other spring flowers in oils by Ellen Hancock, were among the works which have intrinsic excellence. The paintings of the Gilchrist scholars and of others were remarkable also as the work of persons under twenty; and there were time sketches dashed off in four hours. The subscribers' Scholarships, value £20, were awarded to Elizabeth Lovell for crayon heads, to Florence Reason and Catherine Wood for tempting sketches of fruit, flowers, and birds. Angela Mary Marshall obtained the Queen's gold medal for a bust from life of a negro, and she also exhibited a statuette of a fisherwoman, which gained a bronze medal at South Kensington. The silver medals at South Kensington were gained by Alice Hamblin and Anne E. Hopkinson. The first lady's work comprised spirited studies in charcoal from the Laocoon, while among Miss Hopkinson's may be remarked a well-finished group of oriental fruit, dates pouring out of their wicker basket, the pomegranate, and the melon.

Several appointments to the distinction of C.B. were announced in Tuesday's Gazette, as follows:—Mr. F. A. Abel, chemist to the War Department; Mr. R. W. Thompson, Assistant Under Secretary of State for the War Department; Major C. W. Wilson, of the Royal Engineers, late Assistant Quarter-master-General Topographical Section War Office; Major-General C. W. Youngblood, of the Royal Artillery, Superintendent of the Royal Gun Factories; Mr. C. Waipole, late Assistant Comptroller of Legacy Duties; Mr. G. Everest, late Clerk for Criminal Business, Home Office; Mr. R. Baker, Inspector of Factories; and A. Redgrave, Esq., Inspector of Factories, to be Ordinary Members of the Civil Division of the Third Class, or Companions of the Most Honourable Order of the Bath.

THE MANSION HOUSE FAMINE FUND.

Between £4000 and £5000 was paid in during Thursday, the 25th ult., including a second instalment of £1500 from Preston; £500, a sixth instalment, from the county and city of Aberdeen; a sixth and last remittance of £162 from Canterbury; and the following other sums:—Inverness, £150; Whitby, £148; Huntingdon, £100; Penrith, £100; Whitehaven, £100; Loughborough, £153; sixth collection by the National Union of Elementary Teachers, £130; Stockton-on-Tees, £100.

Only £1300 was received on the 26th ult., and even this small sum includes the donation of £500 from the city of Chester, thus leaving but £800 from other subscribers. An inspector of native schools at Mozufferpore writes:—"Of the inhabitants of Madras, who are suffering from famine, the generous and timely help from London saved the lives of thousands. This act of extreme generosity on the part of the English is the theme of admiration from one end of India to the other." Last Saturday £2800 was received. Bradford sent £1500; Dundee, £138; Carlisle, £100; and Keighley (making in all £1500), £100. The following notice was issued officially from the Mansion House on Saturday:—"The Lord Mayor and the committee having learnt that an impression exists in some quarters that the fund has been closed, desire to inform the public that this is incorrect, and that, on the contrary, as the distress in India is still great, and the need of relief urgent, the list will remain open until further notice, and additional donations will be gladly welcomed and duly acknowledged."

At a meeting of the executive committee on Monday it was announced that the fund amounted to £428,000, of which £385,000 had been sent to Madras. A telegram received that day from the Madras committee was read, in which it was stated that the aid from England, enabling cultivators of very small holdings to commence sowing, was simply incalculable. The general prospects had improved, except in part of the coast, the Godavery Delta, Rannad, and Ganjam. A letter from the Duke of Buckingham, dated the 5th inst., was also read, giving information of the state of the famine districts at that date. His Grace says:—"If, under God's blessing, we have our usual monsoon rain this time, the tide of distress will turn; but even then Christmas must be passed before material relief from incoming crops is effected." It was resolved to transmit to India a further sum of £20,000, making in all £445,000. Sir Nathaniel Rothschild, M.P., observed that the public should clearly understand that the fund would not be continued a day longer than was absolutely necessary.

Among the larger subscriptions on Tuesday were the following:—County and city of Perth (fifth instalment), £200; Lewes and neighbourhood, £103; Bridport, £102; Hereford, £100; Devizes, £100; St. Michael's, Blackheath Park, £128; St. John the Baptist Church, Wimbledon, £176; Skipton-in-Craven, £250. Miss Amy Sedgwick (Mrs. Pemberton) gave her services gratuitously at a reading and recital in aid of the fund in the Egyptian Hall of the Mansion House, which had been placed at her disposal by the Lord Mayor. There was also performed a choice selection of vocal music by Mr. W. H. Cummings, Madame Sintzenich, Miss Banks, and Mr. Wilkinsen, with Mr. Osborne Williams as accompanist; all of whom, like Miss Amy Sedgwick, volunteered their services. Miss Sedgwick made an eloquent appeal for the fund, resulting in the collection of a substantial sum.

Over £3000 was paid in during Wednesday, including Rockdale (fourth instalment), £500; Halifax (sixth), £500; Lanf, £450; Sir Samuel Scott, Bart., and Co., £105; Wednesday (second), £100; simultaneous collections at various commercial hotels, £100; Buckingham (second), 150; Cheltenham (third), £150.

It may be interesting to state that since the collecting box outside the Mansion House has been started nearly £1000 has been contributed in it by passers-by. The largest sum collected in one day was £33 15s. 8d., and the smallest £6 8s. 4d.

The Lord Mayor, at the request of the Indian Famine Fund Committee, has applied to the Earl of Derby, one of the trustees of the Cotton Famine Relief Fund, to know whether a grant from the large unused balance of that fund could not be made for the relief of the sufferers by the famine in India.

The Liverpool Hospital Sunday collection brought in this year £10,619, an increase over last year of £73.

The elections for the Turkish Chamber of Deputies began yesterday week at Constantinople.

An Order in Council, containing regulations for the better government of her Majesty's subjects in China, is published in the Gazette.

The sentence of death passed upon Louis Staunton, Patrick Staunton, and Elizabeth Ann Staunton has been commuted into one of penal servitude for life. A free pardon is granted to Alice Rhodes.

At the monthly meeting of the Bristol School Board a gift of £500 from an anonymous lady for the purchase of bibles, to be given as prizes to board school children for proficiency in biblical knowledge, was announced, and a committee was appointed to determine a plan on which the examinations should be conducted. The board also discussed the subject of spelling reform.

The New York papers publish the following despatch from San Francisco relative to an alleged difficulty between England and Japan:—"England insists upon sharing all the advantages to be enjoyed by Japan from the opening up of Corea to commercial intercourse. Japan refuses to concede this demand, and Russia consents to support her refusal to any extremity if Japan waives her claim to a northern port of entry, and chooses one further south."

Dr. Baxter Langley, William Swindlehurst, and Edward Saffery, who, as stated in our last issue, had been convicted of conspiracy and fraud in connection with the management of the Artisans' and Labourers' Dwellings Company, were yesterday week brought up before Mr. Commissioner Kerr for judgment. The Attorney-General stated that, with respect to these counts upon which a point of law had been reserved, he should not ask for judgment upon them, but merely upon the counts for conspiracy. He also joined in the recommendation to mercy in the case of Saffery. Dr. Langley and Swindlehurst were each sentenced to eighteen months' imprisonment with hard labour, and Saffery to twelve months'.

The following are the proposed changes in the system of registering letters. From Jan. 1 it is intended to reduce the registration fee from 4d. to 2d., and to identify the owner, provided of course all regulations have been complied with, to an extent not exceeding 40s., in case of the letter or the contents being lost during transmission by post. It is hoped that this will save postmen from the temptation to theft too often offered at present by the dispatch of unregistered letters containing articles of value. From the same date the commission on money-orders for less than 10s. will be raised from 1d. to 2d., the present rate being attended with a very heavy loss to the Exchequer. For the convenience of persons residing in rural districts, the walking postmen who collect letters will, for the first time, receive letters for registration and give a receipt.

THE WAR: A RECONNOITRING PARTY.
FROM A SKETCH BY ONE OF OUR SPECIAL ARTISTS

Leaves from a Sketch-Book.

MAIDSTONE.

This respectable and pleasant county town, which is the headquarters of the legal and official authorities for historic Kent, sits on a fair hill rising to the breezy uplands above the ample stream of the Medway, amidst the hop-gardens, cherry-orchards, and corn-fields of that delightful country. Maidstone, whose name is a pretty perversion of Medwaystone, is now to be furnished with a new bridge, the foundation-piles of which were driven last week, in a ceremonial fashion, under the superintendence of local dignitaries. Even the municipality of neighbouring Rochester was represented in the auspicious gathering; and this event seems a fitting occasion for the accompanying "Leaves" to be extracted from our Artist's favourite "Sketch-Book," and here given to the readers of our Illustrated Journal. The old bridge at Maidstone, with its seven stone arches, at the foot of High-street, where the roads from Sevenoaks and Tunbridge meet, has long been familiar to Kentish countrymen, and to many visitors or travellers in that district. It is an agreeable place to lounge there, and look at the broad green meadows, or park, along the riverside, the grey walls of the ancient Church, of the College or Hospital, and of the mansion that was once a Palace of the Archbishops of Canterbury, with the picturesque forms of gabled roof and spire, in the clustered houses on the inhabited hillside, which make up this good little town, the home of some 20,000 English folk. Maidstone is also well-to-do and thriving, as the market of a rich agricultural district, the head port of Medway inland navigation, with a large amount of yearly aggregate tonnage in its heavy barges, and the seat of paper-manufactures, breweries, oil-mills, and flour-mills, doing a prosperous trade. In times past this town has been noted for quiet and steadfast loyalty, with one merely apparent exception, in 1554, when it forfeited its corporate charter by taking part with Sir Thomas Wyatt, of Allington Castle, hard by, in his opposition to the reign of Queen Mary. The Protestant Tudors, King Edward VI., and Queen Elizabeth, held Maidstone in high esteem; and its Royalists in the Civil War, under Sir John Mayney and Sir William Buchanan, fought stoutly against the army of Fairfax, disputing every inch of ground in their steep and narrow streets. The Church of England has been indebted to this town for Bishops of Worcester and Hereford, and for a Dean of Lincoln, born if not bred in this place; and one of the masters of its College was the learned Grocyn, the friend and Greek teacher of Erasmus, and sometime Professor at Oxford University.

THE CHURCH AND COLLEGE.

OLD BUILDINGS IN THE COLLEGE GROUNDS.

OLD BUILDINGS NEAR THE CHURCH.

THE PALACE.

KIT'S COTY HOUSE.

PERRY and CO.'S PATENT NICKEL
SILVER PEN, No. 40, has all the flexible qualities which earned the old Double Patent Perryman Pen to make their reputation for Steel Pen Making, and is coated with Nickel Silver to prevent rust. Price 1s. per Box, or 3s. per Gross.

THE LINCOLN POSTAGE - STAMP
ALBUM, with spaces for over 200 stamps, bound in cloth gilt, 1s. 6d.: post-free, 1s. 8d. The cheapest Album ever published W. LINCOLN, 239, High Holborn, London.

THE LOVE CHASE.—The Merriest Game
 out for any number of Players. 24 Engravings. Post free for 14 shillings. CUPID'S MAGIC CARDS, 14 shillings.
H. G. CLARKE and CO. 2, Garrick-street, Covent-garden.

KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES contain no Opium, Morphia, nor any violent drug. It is the most effective remedy known to the Medical Profession in the cure of Coughs, Asthma, Bronchitis, and Loosening of the Lungs.

NEW MUSIC.

CHRISTMAS NUMBER OF CHAPPELL'S MUSICAL MAGAZINE, containing the following Popular Dance Music: Trial by Jury Lancers, Constantine Quadrille, Die Fledermaus Waltz, Les Lointains Waltz, Maiden's Dream Waltz, The Schomberg Galop, Floretta Polka, Pizzicato Polka, Forget-me-not Galop, And a New Quadrille, MOLLIE DARLING, by CHAS. D'ALBERT. Price One Shilling; post-free, 1s. 2d. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE BALKANS. Descriptive Piece for the Pianoforte, by JULES DE SIVALL, introducing Turkish and Russian Airs. Illustrated. 2s. net. SCHIFFA PASS. Grand March for the Pianoforte, by WM. SMITHWOOD. Illustrated. 1s. 6d. net. MARCH OF THE PASHAS. For the Pianoforte, by J. PRIDHAM. Illustrated. 2s. net. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

ARTHUR SULLIVAN'S NEW SONG. THE DISTANT SHORE. New Song. By ARTHUR SULLIVAN. Sung by Mr. Edward Lloyd during his Provincial Tour. Price 1s. 6d. net. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE ROWAN TREE. New Song, by M. W. BALFE. Will be sung by Madame Antoinette Sterling during her Tour in the Provinces. Price 2s. net. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THOU'RT PASSING HENCE. — Mr. Santley will sing Arthur Sullivan's New Song at the first Saturday Popular Concert, on Nov. 17, at St. James's Hall. Price 2s. net. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE FANFARE POLKA. By CHARLES D'ALBERT. Illustrated. 1s. 6d. net; Orchestra, 3s.; Septet, 2s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHARLES D'ALBERT'S NEW DANCE MUSIC. SWEETHEARTS. Waltz on Arthur Sullivan's popular Song. "One of the best waltzes ever written by the Net. above favourite Composer." 2s. net. TRIAL BY JURY LANCERS. On Airs from Sullivan's popular Song. 2s. net. TRIAL BY JURY QUADRILLE. 2s. net. TRIAL BY JURY WALTZ. 2s. net. TRIAL BY JURY POLKA. 2s. net. BINK GALOP. 2s. net. The above, arranged for Full Orchestra, 3s.; Septet, 2s. each. N.B. A Complete List of M. D'Albert's Popular Dance Music will be sent on application to CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S NEW SONGS. SWEETHEARTS (sung by Mr. Edward Lloyd). THOU'RT PASSING HENCE (sung by Mr. Santley). IF (sung by B. McGuckin). THE CAPTIVE SKYLARK. THE SKYLARK FROM BOOKS AND FLOWERS. OH! FOR TRY WINGS. THE EVERLASTING SHORE. CHADLE SONG. THE LAST LETTER. WHEN THOU ART NIGH. I'LL SING THREE SONGS OF A REBEL. THE JAY OF A ROSE. MY LOVER ACROSS THE BLUE SEA. THE DAY MY LOVE WENT AWAY. NOT FAR AWAY. SAY, FOND HEART. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

TRIAL BY JURY. Dramatic Cantata. Written by W. S. Gilbert. Composed by ARTHUR SULLIVAN. Normed being performed with immense success at the Strand Theatre. Complete for Voice and Pianoforte. 2s. 6d. net. TRIAL BY JURY. Pianoforte Solo. 2s. 6d. net. THE JUDGE'S SONG. 2s. net. THE LOVER'S BOY. Defendant's Song. 1s. 6d. net. KUHER'S FANTASIA. 2s. net. SMALLWOOD'S FANTASIA (easy). 1s. 6d. net. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

L'ORGANISTE PRATIQUE. 240 Easy Pieces for Organ or Harmonium, by J. LEYBACH, in 2 vols. price 4s. each; net, or in eight parts, each 2s. net. The above will supply a want long felt by amateur performers on the organ or harmonium, as all the pieces are very pretty without being difficult. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S THREE-YEARS' SYSTEM OF HIRE. PIANOFORTES of every description by all the most celebrated makers from Two Guinea's a Quarter.

HARMONIUMS by ALEXANDRE, from One Pound Five Shillings per Quarter.

SECOND-HAND PIANOFORTES, at immense Reductions for Cash, or on the Three-Years' System.

CHAPPELL'S ENGLISH 20-GUINEA OR SCHOOL-ROOM PIANOFORTE, with Check Action, in Canadian Walnut or Mahogany. This instrument combines good quality of tone and excellence of workmanship. Has a lovely touch, and is capable of enduring hard practice without going out of order. Owing to its size, it is admirably adapted for the boudoir or any room where space is an object. In Solid Oak or White Ash, 22 gs.; Rosewood or Walnut Case, 27 gs. 6d. New Bond-street, London, W.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S COLONIAL MODEL COTTAGE PIANOFORTE. Seven Octaves, A to A, Trichord throughout. Patent Check Action. Iron plates and extra strong bracing, with solid panels in lieu of silk and fretwork. Rosewood, 45 gs.; Walnut, 50 gs. The same model manufactured expressly for exportation to extreme climates, in solid dark wood, white iron plates and extra bracing, &c. 50 gs. 6d. New Bond-street, London, W.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S IRON-FRAMED OBLIQUE GRAND, with Transverse Strings, compass Seven Octaves, A to A; Trichord throughout and Transverse Bracing; patent check action with metal standards; solid or fretwork panels. Rosewood Case, 50 gs.; Walnut, 55 gs.; Solid Wood (extra screwed, for tropical climates), 100 gs. Suitable for all extreme climates. The strongest Piano that can be manufactured. More powerful in tone than the small Grands. 50, New Bond-street, London, W.

PIANOS for HIRE, 10s. per Month. Seven octaves. No hire charged if purchased at any time within six months. THOMAS OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street, London, W.

PIANOS, 17s. 6d. per Month, on the Three-Years' System. Becomes the property of the hirer if the payments are kept up. Illustrated Catalogues, post-free, on application. — THOMAS OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street.

PIANO, $14. Seven-Octave PICCOLO PIANOFORTE, second-hand, in good condition, for ready money. — May be seen at 27, Baker-street, Portman-square.

SECONDHAND PIANOS. — BOOSEY and CO. have a large Stock of Instruments by all the great Makers, which they offer, according to their custom on the close of the season, at greatly reduced prices. The majority of these Pianos have been hired for one season only, and are as good as new. — Sole address, 235, Regent-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S BRASS INSTRUMENTS FOR AMATEURS. THE DISTIN CORNET, from 43 1/2 to 50. THE DISTIN CELEBRATED LIGHT VALVE CORNETS, 7 and 8 gs. are the best Cornets manufactured. THE DISTIN MINIATURE CORNET-A-PISTONS, 9 gs. THE DISTIN BALLAD HORN, in C, 9 gs. THE DISTIN DRAG AND POST HORNS and BAND INSTRUMENTS at all prices. THE DISTIN MONTHLY BRASS BAND JOURNAL, 10s. 6d. per annum. The above instruments were exhibited by Boosey and Co. at the Philadelphia Exhibition, and were awarded a Prize Medal "For power and good quality of tone, fine workmanship." Estimates for Brass of all sizes, also instruments and prices, to be had of the sole manufacturers BOOSEY and CO., 235, Regent-street, London.

NEW MUSIC.

BOOSEY and CO.'S LIST.

Price 2s. 6d. each, paper; 4s., cloth, gilt edges. ROYAL EDITION OF NATIONAL SONGS. THE SONGS OF ENGLAND (100 Songs). THE SONGS OF SCOTLAND (150 Songs). THE SONGS OF IRELAND (108 Songs). THE SONGS OF WALES (62 Songs).

ROYAL EDITION OF ENGLISH OPERAS. The Siege of Rochelle. 3s. 6d. The Bohemian Girl. 3s. 6d. The Lily of Killarney. 3s. 6d. Satanelia. 3s. 6d. Rosina. 1s. Love in a Village. 1s. No Song, no Supper. 1s. The Beggar's Opera. 1s.

Price 2s. 6d., paper; 4s., cloth, gilt edges. RUBINSTEIN'S FIFTY BEST SONGS. With German and English Words. Also RUBINSTEIN'S EIGHTEEN VOCAL DUETS. With German and English Words. Price 2s. 6d., paper; 4s., cloth, gilt edges. Boosey's Editions must be ordered.

Price 1s. each. BEETHOVEN'S WALTZ ALBUM (45 Waltzes), 1s. FIELD'S NOCTURNE ALBUM (10 Nocturnes), 1s. RUBINSTEIN'S PIANOFORTE ALBUM (12 Pieces), 1s. HELLER'S PETIT ALBUM, 1s.

Price 1s. each. BRAHMS'S PIANOFORTE ALBUM contains his best pieces, including 16 Waltzes. 1s. RAFF'S PIANOFORTE ALBUM, 1s. RUBINSTEIN'S PIANOFORTE ALBUM, 1s.

BOOSEY'S SHILLING BALLAD BOOKS, in the MUSICAL CABINET. Santley's 10 New Songs. Arthur Sullivan's 10 Songs. Hatton's 10 New Songs. Longfellow and Balfe's 10 Songs. A. S. Gatty's 12 Ballads. Charles's 12 Ballads. Arthur Sullivan's 10 Songs. Dolores' 12 Songs. Gounod's 10 Songs.

BOOSEY'S SHILLING OPERAS. OBERON, 1s. FIDELIO, 1s. FIGARO, 1s. Don Juan, 1s. Semiramide, 1s. Zauberköte, 1s. Figlia, 1s. Lucia, 1s. Lucrèce, 1s. Rigoletto, 1s. Trovatore, 1s. La Traviata, 1s. Martha, 1s. Il Barbiere, 1s. Guillaume Tell, 1s. Don Pasquale, 1s. Fra Diavolo, 1s. Der Freischütz, 1s. Norma, 1s. Sonnambula, 1s. Robert le Diable, 1s. La Favorite, 1s. Les Huguenots, 2s. Lohengrin, 2s. Tannhäuser, 2s. The Flying Dutchman, 2s. All complete for Pianoforte. Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

W. T. BEST'S FIRST ORGAN BOOK. Forty pages, music size. An Elementary and Practical Guide for Organ Students. This day, price 1s.

HANDY-BOOK FOR CHORAL SOCIETIES. By Dr. SPARK. Price 1s. A complete Guide for the Study and Practice of Part Music, including 156 Exercises, Part-Songs, Rounds, &c. (56 pages).

HENNING'S FIRST BOOK FOR THE VIOLIN. A celebrated German Method. Now for the first time published in English. It includes 182 Progressive Exercises. Forty pages, music size. Price 1s.

THE BEST INSTRUCTION-BOOK FOR CHILDREN. LILLIE'S FIRST MUSIC-BOOK. With 16 Illustrations. Price 2s. 6d. LILLIE'S SONG-BOOK. 60 Songs, illustrated. 1s. LILLIE'S ALBUM OF DANCE MUSIC. Illustrated. 2s. 6d.

MUSIC FOR CHRISTMAS. LAMOTHE'S WALTZ ALBUM (6 new sets). WALDTEUFEL'S WALTZ ALBUM (8 sets), 1s. STRAUSS'S WALTZ ALBUM (18 sets), 2s. 6d.

WORKS FOR CHORAL SOCIETIES. F. H. COWEN. THE COUSIN. 2s. 6d. F. H. COWEN. THE ROSE MAIDEN. 2s. 6d. ARTHUR SULLIVAN. THE PRODIGAL SON. 2s. 6d. ARTHUR SULLIVAN. ON SHORE AND SEA. 2s. 6d. F. HOWELL. THE LAND OF PROMISE. 2s. 6d. F. HOWELL. THE SONG OF THE MONKS.

AT LAST. By COWEN. Miss Anna Williams will sing "At Last" throughout Madame Trebell's Tour, in November and December. Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

THE OLD SAILOR WIFE. By MOLLOY. Sung by Madame Antoinette Sterling every night at Mr. Lloyd's Provincial Concerts. — Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

THE KING'S HIGHWAY. By MOLLOY. Sung by Mr. Maybrick, Signor Frederici, and Mr. Fox. "A charming and graceful ballad, which has made its mark, and will become one of the popular songs of the day." — News of the World. Price 2s. net. — Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

Price 2s. each, net. SANTLEY'S POPULAR SONGS. POLLY. THE VAGABOND. FAIR IS MY LOVE. THE YEOMAN'S WEDDING. Also SANTLEY'S NEW SONG-BOOK, in the MUSICAL CABINET (170), containing Ten songs published in its own work. Price 1s. NANA'S BARITONE METHOD. Edited by Santley. 10s. 6d.

NANCY LEE WALTZ. On the Celebrated Song. The Waltz of the Season. Price 2s. net, Solo and Duet; Septet, 1s.; Orchestra, 2s.

BOOSEY'S SHILLING PIANOFORTE TUTOR. By GEORGE MOUNT. Forty pages, music size (Hundredth Thousand). Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.

SONGS by F. CAMPANA. Only to See Theo. 3s.; Memories of Home (in C and F), 3s.; The Life of a Zephyr, 3s. Post-free for 15 stamps each. London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.

SONGS by STEPHEN ADAMS. The Song of the Sailor Boy, 4s.; Awake! 3s. Post-free at half price. — London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.

SONGS by MADAME SAINTON-DOLBY. Happy Little Maiden, 4s.; The Cottage on the Moorland, 4s. Half price in postage-stamps. London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.

SONGS by H. P. DANKS, Written expressly for the Publishers. Chimes at Sea, 3s.; The Cuckoo's Concert, 3s.; The Rose-Rose and the Laurel, 3s. Half price in postage-stamps. London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.

SONGS by F. H. COWEN. Ay or No. (No. 1, in D; No. 2, in F). 4s. Sung by Mr. E. Lloyd. Steering. 4s. Half price in postage-stamps. London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.

SONGS by GEORGE FOX. Two Little Fighting Cocks, illustrated, 3s.; The Sick Stag, illustrated, 3s. Half price in postage-stamps. London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.

SONGS by A. S. GATTY. Only a Passing Thought, 3s. When I remember, 3s. O, fair dove! 4s. Tell him I love him yet, 3s. O, doubting heart (No. 1 in C, No. 2 in E flat), 3s. Half price in postage-stamps. London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.

SONGS by JOHN HULLAH. Open thy Little (No. 1 in F, No. 2 in A), 3s. The Kiss of a Little Child, 3s. The Song on the Wind, 3s. Half price in postage-stamps. London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.

SONGS by Miss LINDSAY. — My Laddie far Away, in C sharp and G, 4s.; The Christian's Good-Night, 3s.; When the ship comes home, 4s.; Far Away, 4s.; When sparrows build (No. 1 in B flat, No. 2 in G), 3s. Half price in postage-stamps. London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.

NEW SONG FOR MEZZO-SOPRANO, by AMELIA LUOY OTTON. LITTLE MAY. Words by Mrs. William Kemp. — Horwood and Caw, 42, New Bond-street, W.

NEW MUSIC.

Ready this day. THE CLANG VALSE (The Clang of the Wooden Shoe) on Molloy's popular Song. Arranged by CHARLES GODFREY. Price 4s., post-free, 4d. stamps. London: METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, W.

Just published. KING HENRY'S SONG. By ARTHUR SULLIVAN. Introduced in the revival of "Henry VIII." Price 1s. Half price. METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London.

Just published. BEDOUIV LOVE SONG. Composed by CIRO PINSUTI. Sung by Signor Foli with great success. Price 4s.; post-free, 2d. stamps. London: METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, W.

Just published. ACROSS THE FAR BLUE HILLS. MARIE. New Song. By JACQUES BLUMENTHAL. Words by E. Weatherly. Price 4s.; post-free, 2d. stamps. London: METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, W.

THE FIRE KING—THE PAST IS BUT A TROUBLED DREAM. Sung by Mr. Edward Lloyd. Also, TO ARMS! TO ARMS! War Song. Price 4s. each. Half price. — METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London.

SEA NYMPHS. The New Operetta. By LEOCOQ (now being represented at the Folly Theatre). The Libretto (written by H. B. Farnie) and the Music complete, with all stage directions, published at 2s. 6d., post-free, in Metzer and Co.'s Edition of Comic Operas. METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

WHISPERING KISSES. The New Song. Is sung by Miss Violet Cameron in "The Creole" at the Folly Theatre with the greatest possible success, and is nightly encored. Post-free, 18 stamps. METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

SUNG BY MR. BARTON MCGUCKIN. MINE OWN. A New Song, in C, E, and F. By H. GADSBY. Words by F. E. Weatherly. Price 4s.; post-free, half-price. METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

SUNG BY MADAME LIEBHART. FAR FROM HOME. New Song. By G. B. ALLEN. Words by Edward Oxenford. Sung with the great success of Madame Liebhart's Concerts. Price 4s.; post-free, half price. METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

EDITH'S SONG. From Tennyson's "Harold." Set to Music by ODOARDO BARRI. Post-free, 2d. stamps. METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

A WINTER'S TALE. From Tennyson's "Harold." "Two young lovers in wintry weather." Set to Music by ODOARDO BARRI. Post-free, 2d. stamps. METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

WAR SONGS OF THE EAST. By H. B. FARNIE. In handsome cover, price 1s.; post-free, 13 stamps. METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

LA SERENADE. Waltz. By METRA. A most attractive and popular waltz. Solo or Duet. Post-free, 2d. stamps. METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

LA VAGUE. Waltz. By METRA. Solo or Duet. Post-free, 2d. stamps. METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

W. SMALLWOOD'S NEW PIECES for PIANOFORTE. Illustrated Titlespages. CRYSTAL DEWIHOOPS. AVELEIGH. Gondola Song. FAIRY DREAMS. Post-free, 15 stamps each. METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

MASON and HAMLIN'S ORGANS. Now ready. New Illustrated Book. Post-free. METZLER and Co., Sole Agents, Great Marlborough-street, W.

MASON and HAMLIN'S ORGANS. New Style 233. Nine Stops. Viola Joice, Seraphone, &c. Price 28 gs. METZLER and CO., Sole Agents, Great Marlborough-street, W.

MASON and HAMLIN'S ORGANS. New Style 312. Ten Stops. With Octave Coupler and Sub-Bass. Price 40 gs. METZLER and CO., Sole Agents, Great Marlborough-street, W.

ASHDOWN and PARRY'S CATALOGUES OF MUSIC. PART 1. PIANO, ORGAN, HARMONIUM. PART 2. VOCAL. PART 3. HARP, CONCERTINA. PART 4. VIOLIN, VIOLONCELLO, ORCHESTRA, &c. PART 5. FLUTE, CORNET, CLARINET, &c. Sent gratis and post-free to any part of the world. ASHDOWN and PARRY, Hanover-square, London.

Just published. THE LORD BRINGS BACK HIS OWN. New Sacred Song. By Sir JULIUS BENEDICT. Price 4s. ASHDOWN and PARRY, Hanover-square.

MARRIOTT'S NAVAL QUADRILLE. A new and extremely effective Set on popular Nautical Melodies. Price 4s. London: ASHDOWN and PARRY.

MARRIOTT'S MILITARY QUADRILLE. Just published. A remarkably attractive and vigorous Set, on popular Military Melodies. Price 4s. London: ASHDOWN and PARRY.

CHRISTMAS TIME. A New Set of Lancers Quadrilles on old English Melodies. By W. C. LEVEY. "Well-chosen tunes, and excellent for dancing." London: ASHDOWN and PARRY, Hanover-square.

ASHDOWN and PARRY'S MUSICAL PUBLICATIONS are to be had of every Musician and Bookseller in Great Britain, Ireland, the Colonies, and India, or will be sent direct post-free at half the marked price (bound work and cheap vocal part-music excepted) to any part of the world on receipt of remittance or satisfactory reference. London: ASHDOWN and PARRY, Hanover-square.

HAMMOND'S MUSIC PORTFOLIO. Price 1s. each Number; post-free, 13 stamps. No. 1 contains: — Bries des Nuits Waltzes. Lamothé. Hydrotant Waltzes. Gung'l. Manuella Waltzes. Waldteufel. Antograph Waltzes. Strauss. St. David's Quadrille. Dan Godfrey. Bruder Lustig Galop. Budik. Contents of No. 2. Le Premier Balser Waltzes. Lamothé. Venus Reigen Waltzes. Gung'l. Den Lieben Längen Tag Waltzes. Rudel. Deutsche Herren Waltzes. Strauss. The Variety Lancers. D'Erville. The Pet Schottische. Bertrand. Contents of No. 3. Soldaten Lieder. Waltzes. Grafenberger. Waltzes. Daheim. Waltzes. Jungherren Tänz. Waltzes. Fanzabilder. Waltzes. Mein schönster Tag in Berlin. Waltzes. Contents of No. 4. Frühlinglieder Waltzes. Gung'l. Lilla Waltzes. Strauss. Le Tour du Monde Waltzes. Strauss. La Plancie Waltzes. Lamothé. Hochzeit (Wedding) Quadrille. Strauss. Pergola Polka. Marie. Violoncello Accompaniments to each Number, 6d. each. A. HAMMOND and Co., 5, Vigo-street, London, W.

NEW MUSIC.

THE MUSICAL TIMES. Price Threepence. The Largest and Best Musical Journal.

THE MUSICAL TIMES for NOVEMBER contains:—The Great Composers, sketched by themselves: Mozart, by J. Bennett—A Sketch of the History of Music-Printing, by Dr. Chrysander (continued)—Festivals Committees and New Works—Middle Tittens—Crystal Palace Concerts—Liverpool Philharmonic Society—Advent Anthem, "Hearken unto Me, My people," by Arthur Sullivan—Reviews—Foreign and Country News, &c. Postage-free, 6d. Annual Subscription, 2s., including postage.

THE MUSICAL TIMES for NOVEMBER contains a New Anthem for Advent, by Arthur Sullivan, "Hearken unto Me, My people." Price, separately, 1d.

NOVELLO, EWER, and CO.'S MUSIC PRIMERS. Edited by Dr. STAINER. The following are now ready:—

THE PIANOFORTE PRIMER. By ERNST PAUER. Price 2s.

THE ORGAN PRIMER. By Dr. STAINER. Price 2s.

THE RUDIMENTS OF MUSIC PRIMER. By W. H. CUMMINGS. Price 1s.

THE ELEMENTS OF THE BEAUTIFUL IN MUSIC. By ERNST PAUER. Price 1s. NOVELLO, EWER, and Co.'s Music Primers.

Second Edition, price 2s.; cloth, 3s. CATHEDRAL PSALTER CHANTS. Edited by the Rev. S. FLOOD JONES, M.A., JAMES TULL, Rev. J. TROUTBECK, M.A., Dr. J. STAINER, and JOSEPH BARNBY.

LIEDER OHNE WORTE. Eight Books. The only Complete Edition. Cloth, 6s.; paper covers, 4s.

NOVELLO, EWER, and CO.'S CHRISTMAS PRESENTS.

CHRISTMAS CAROLS, NEW AND OLD. Edited by the Rev. H. R. Bramley and Dr. Stainer. With 46 Illustrations, engraved by the Brothers Dalziel. Elegantly bound, 7s. 6d. THE SUNLIGHT OF SONG. Sacred and Moral Songs, with Original Music by the most eminent English Composers. With 46 Illustrations, engraved by the Brothers Dalziel. Handsomely bound, 7s. 6d.

NATIONAL NURSERY RHYMES. Set to Music by J. W. Elliott. With 60 Illustrations, engraved by the Brothers Dalziel. Cloth gilt, 7s. 6d.

BEETHOVEN'S SONATAS. Edited by Agnes Zimmermann. Folio, elegantly bound, gilt edges, 25s.; octavo, elegantly bound, gilt edges, 12s. 6d. MOZART'S SONATAS. Edited by Agnes Zimmermann. Folio, elegantly bound, gilt edges, 15s.

RUBINSTEIN'S EIGHTEEN TWO PART SONGS. German and English Words. Octavo, handsomely bound, 4s. 6d.; paper covers, 2s. 6d.

SCHUMANN'S VOCAL ALBUM. English and German Words. Handsomely bound, 4s. 6d.; paper covers, 2s. 6d.

SCHUMANN'S PIANOFORTE ALBUM FOR YOUNG PIANISTS (Op. 65 and Op. 10). Handsomely bound, 4s. 6d.; paper covers, 2s. 6d.

GERMAN VOLKSLIEDER ALBUM. Original German Words; and an English Version by John Oxenford. Handsomely bound, 4s. 6d.; paper covers, 2s. 6d.

A DICTIONARY OF MUSICAL TERMS. Edited by Dr. Stainer and W. Barrett. 8vo, cloth, gilt edges, 16s. MUSIC, MYTHS AND FACTS. By CARL ENGEL. Two vols., demy 8vo, cloth, price 12s. London: NOVELLO, EWER, and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.; and 80 and 81, Queen-street, E.C.

JOSEPH WILLIAMS'S LIST OF MUSIC. "The greatest success in Paris."

LES CLOCHES DE CORNEVILLE. L'Opéra Comique. De ROBERT PLANQUETTE. The undenominated arrangements are in the price. 4s. each. Quadrilles, by Arban. Price, Solo and Duet, 4s. each. Suite de Valse, by O. Métra. Price, Solo and Duet, 4s. each. Brilliant Fantasia, by E. Moniot. Price 2s. Complete Opera, Piano Solo. Price 2s. 6d. net. Selection of Airs, in two Books, by C. Moniot. 3s. each. N.B.—The sole right of representation, &c., for Great Britain and Colonies belongs to Mr. Joseph Williams.

CH. NEWSTEDT'S CARILLON. LOUIS XIV. Piano Solo, net, 1s. 6d.; Piano Duet, by J. Hummel, net, 1s. 6d.; Small Band Parts, 1s. 6d.; Full Orchestra, 2s. net.

L. GREGH—LES BERGÈRES. WATTEAU. Piano Solo, net, 1s. 6d.; Duet, by J. Hummel, net, 1s. 6d.; Orchestra, 2s. net.

ARDIT'S L'INGÈNE. Morceau a la Gavotte. 3s. Performed at the Promenade Concerts with enormous success. Orchestra, 2s.

FLORIAN PASCAL'S LATEST COMPOSITIONS. Berceuse. 3s. Also for Small Band, 1s. net. La Princesse. 3s. (Gavotte). Also for Small Band, 1s. net. Performed with great success at the Promenade Concerts. Près le Lac, Deuxième Méditation. 3s. Les Vieux Temps (Gavotte). 3s. Pavane Royale de Louis XIV. 3s. Air de Ballet. New Simplified Edition by Arthur Granville. 3s. Thematic Lists of this favourite Composer's sent free on application.

FLORIAN PASCAL—AUTREFOIS (Souvenir de Marguerite de Valois). This charming little morceau has already run through several editions, and seems likely to rival the ever popular "Danse Favorite" of the same Composer. Post-free, 18 stamps.

FLORIAN PASCAL—UN BIJOU PERDU. "M. Pascal is to be congratulated upon having rescued from oblivion this really exquisite little gem, the melody of which is so captivating that we venture to predict for it great popularity." As Piano Solo, now ready, 18 stamps.

CATALOGUES GRATIS and POST-FREE. Shipping Orders on most favourable terms.

LONDON: JOSEPH WILLIAMS, 24, BERNERS-STREET, W.; and 123, CHEAPSIDE, E.C.

AIR DU DAUPHIN. Ancienne Danse de la Cour. By BOEKEL. For Piano Solo, Duet, Violin, Harmonium, Orchestra, Organ-Panphrasie, by W. T. Best. Each 18 stamps. — AUGER and Co., 88, Newgate-street; and Foubert's-place, W.

GAVOTTE DE LOUIS QUINZE. By MAURICE LEE. Piano Solo, Duet, Violin, Orchestra, Organ Transcription, by F. E. Gladstone. 18 stamps each. AUGER and Co., 88, Newgate-street; and Foubert's-place, W.

AUGER and CO.'S UNIVERSAL CIRCULATING MUSICAL LIBRARY is the largest in Europe. It contains 100,000 distinct works. Annual Subscription, 2 guineas. — London: 81, Regent-street. Prospectuses gratis.

NEW SONGS by ROBERT STANLEY. Dear Little Flowers. Easting. When love's glow hath gone by. Price 2s. each, net. — CRAMER and Co., 201, Regent-street.

THE BRAZILIAN IRONCLAD INDEPENDENCIA.

DINING-ROOM FOR FOREIGN WORKMEN IN THE BASEMENT.

THE LARDER.

THE MASONS' STRIKE AT THE NEW LAW COURTS.

ECHOES OF THE WEEK.

At last we are to have a cheap illustrated edition of the complete works of William Makepeace Thackeray. The new issue is to be in twenty-four crown octavo volumes, illustrated with all the small woodcuts drawn by the author and (in the instance of "The Newcomes") by Richard Doyle; while those of Mr. Thackeray's works which have not yet been pictorially adorned are to be illustrated by "eminent artists." The opening instalment of the series is to be the First Volume of "Vanity Fair;" and very daintily indeed does the specimen page look with the initial-letter vignette or Mr. Sedley's carriage, with the fat coachman and the black footman, drawing up at the great iron gate of Miss Pinkerton's Academy for young ladies, Chiswick Mall.

Messrs. Smith and Elder's new venture seems to me a step in the right direction. I had heard something lately of a contemplated Edition de luxe of Thackeray's works at twenty-five guineas the set; papier de Hollande, proofs of the etchings on India paper, limited tirage, numbered copies, and so forth; but whether it is intended to issue this sumptuous edition or whether the notion has been abandoned I much prefer the scheme for popularising Thackeray by setting his works before the public in a more attractive form and at a cheaper rate than heretofore. At the same time, while gleefully renewing my acquaintance with the crisp little woodcuts to "Vanity Fair," I cannot help regretting that the illustrious novelist should have adopted the deliberate anachronism of pictorially dressing people who flourished between 1815 and 1829 in the costumes of the year 1848. Becky Sharpe and Amelia Osborne so clad are quite as much out of date in 1877 as they would have been had the author-artist given them the proper raiment of their epoch. I am well aware that Mr. Thackeray was deterred from taking this course by what he deemed to be the exceeding hideousness of female fashions and military costumes at the Waterloo period; but the French, who are nothing if not artistically accurate, have boldly taken the Waterloo bull by the horns; and in the woodcuts to the French translation of the greatest prose epic of modern times, "La Foire aux Vanités," published some years since in the Journal pour Tous, Becky and Amelia, Lord Steyne, Rawdon Crawley, and the rest appear in their proper garb. The effect is far from unpleasing.

Mem: That martial costume sixty years ago was not quite so uncouth as Mr. Thackeray thought will be plain to those who visit the French Gallery, in Pall-mall, and look on Wilkie's grand picture of "Chelsea Pensioners Reading the Gazette of the Battle of Waterloo." The mounted light dragoon and the stalwart life guardsman who is handling the baby might pass muster without any risk of being quizzed in Whitehall or at Aldershot at the present day.

The esteemed Miss Mary Hooper (of whose "Every Day Meals" I made mention last week, as a capital culinary manual) and your humble servant have been at issue respecting the proper way of making an omelette. Sneer not! jeer not! an omelette is a very serious matter. Well made, it is a sweet boon; ill made, it leads to that dyspepsia which, according to Mr. John Hollingshead (in the new magazine, Mirth), is "the punishment of prosperity." Miss Hooper says that to make an omelette au naturel you should break three eggs in a basin with a pinch of salt, and three dessert-spoonfuls of milk or cream, and beat them for three minutes. I say that in an orthodox omelette au naturel nothing whatever but the eggs and a pinch of salt should be used. Miss Hooper says that the omelette should be fried a nice brown." I say that its hue should be pale gold. Wishing to avoid needless litigation (for ladies are terrible adversaries), I took counsel's opinion in re omelette. I consulted the accomplished French chef of a great London hotel; and the following would seem to be the state of the case. An orthodox omelette au naturel should be made with nothing whatsoever but eggs, and in the proportion of seventy-five per cent of yolks to five-and-twenty of whites; but (there is some virtue in a "but") in countries where eggs are scarce, and in families where the consumption of eggs, through motives of economy, must be limited, the eggs may be made into a light batter with milk. But an omelette made with cream would cease to be an omelette at all. It would be a fried custard. From the economical point of view, it will thus be seen that Miss Mary Hooper was quite right. Scientifically, my position holds good.

Mr. Gladstone has been presented with a genuine "sprig of Shillelagh" cut from the famous oak at Aughrim. In what Irish church did I see, many years ago, a far less "festivous" memento of the locality which the ex-Premier has just visited? Where was it that I was shown, suspended by a chain, the cannon ball by which General St. Ruth was killed at the battle of Aughrim, in William III. and the Boyne Water time?

Read the report of the Coroner's inquest on the poor French gentleman, and avoid feeling sick at heart, if you can. This unfortunate foreigner, who was sixty-five years of age, was found dead in a miserable cellar in Dean-street, Soho; and the medical evidence showed that he died quite as much from starvation as from disease of the heart. The admirable French Société de Bienfaisance had been very kind to him, and gave him a daily ration of bread; but they had no idea of the utter state of destitution in which the unhappy man was languishing. He was taciturn; he proffered no explanation; when he received his loaf, he used to make a low bow and go away. He was what the French call un pauvre honteux—a shame-faced pauper.

It was stated—but the fact has since been denied—that the aged gentleman who died in the cellar in Soho was the Comte de Lally Tolland, a descendant of the Lallys who were Barons of Tullendally or Tolendale, near Tuam, in Ireland, and who emigrated to France after 1688, and served gallantly in that Irish Brigade which did us such mischief at Fontenoy. A distinguished member of this historic family was the famous Lally Tolland, who was Governor of Pondicherry; who fought against the English in India; who was defeated; and who, on returning to France, was rewarded for his valour by being made the victim of a base conspiracy which robbed him of his fortune and his life. Lally Tolland was beheaded under circumstances of peculiar ignominy and barbarity (the passionate old man protested against the injustice of his doom, and was actually dragged with a gag in his mouth to the scaffold); but a few years afterwards Voltaire, to his lasting honour, procured the reversal of the iniquitous judgment, got back Lally's sword, and restored it to the hero's son. Score one to Aronnet de Voltaire. Score another for his behaviour to the Clgas family. Score as many points in his favour as you can, for the sum on the debit side is a frightfully heavy one.

Touching Fontenoy. The author of a very epigrammatic article called "The Age of the Sapper," in the Pall Mall Gazette, writes thus:—"Mr. Carlyle has dispersed into thin air the chivalrous story of Fontenoy; at least, if memory is to be trusted, he has relegated to the regions of sheer invention the phrase attributed to a gallant Englishman, 'Gentlemen of the French Guard, fire first.'" But was it not a gallant Frenchman who cried out to the British foe at Fontenoy, "Messieurs de la Garde, tirez les premiers?" That cry would have had its raison d'être, seeing that the English Foot Guards were present in force at the battle, and that in the French army of the period there was no Guard at all. The Household Troops of the ancien régime were styled "La Maison du Roi."

There is a terrible, and to some extent irrational, scare just now about the assumed prevalence of hydrophobia; and dogs are being poisoned right and left. It seems that the most successful treatment of the dreadful malady has been that adopted by Dr. Offenburt, a German physician, who administers to the sufferer from hydrophobia a mysterious nostrum called "curare," which is said to be the "wourali," or Indian arrow-poison. The property of "curare" is to take away all power of muscular movement, whereas in hydrophobia muscular movement is continued with morbid violence until the patient dies from exhaustion. So, to curb muscular exuberance, Dr. Offenburt superinduces paralysis. The system reminds me of the American story of "circular treatment." A baby is sick with scarlet fever, and the mother sends for a doctor. "I'm not posted up in fevers," says the medico, "we must approach this case by circular treatment. You give the little cuss this powder. That'll send him into fits. Then send for me again. I'm death on fits." It is to be hoped that Dr. Offenburt is "death" on paralysis.

Mr. W. Fraser Rae, in his very graphic and thoughtful book of American travel, "Columbia and Canada," gives a curious list of the words which Mr. W. Cullen Bryant, poet and editor of the New York Evening Post, forbade his contributors to use in their articles. From Mr. Bryant's Index Expurgatorius I cull at random "aggregate," "aspirant," "artiste," "base" (as a verb), "commence" (instead of begin), "couple," "decade," "humbly," "inaugurate," "in our midst," "lengthy," "located," "mutual" (for common), "pants" (for pantaloons), "roughs," "rowdies," "seaboard" (for seacoast), and "sensation" (for "noteworthy event"). Noteworthy event! Oh, dear me, Mr. William Cullen Bryant! I have been trying to write English these eight-and-twenty years past; but I didn't think that I ever had occasion to mention a "noteworthy event."

G. A. S.

MUSIC.

The Crystal Palace concert of last Saturday afternoon (the fourth of the new series) brought forward a concerto for the pianoforte composed by Xaver Scharwenka—and performed for the first time in England by Mr. Dannreuther. The composer is himself a brilliant pianist, and it would appear as if his chief object in the concerto referred to was to give full scope for the display of exceptional powers of bravura execution. The work consists of three principal divisions—an allegro, including an incidental adagio, a scherzo and trio, and a final "Allegro molto, e passionato." The "Adagio" is the most pleasing portion of the concerto, being extremely melodious, and offering some charming effects of contrast between the cantabile passages for the orchestra and the graceful and florid ornamentation assigned to the solo instrument. The other movements abound—to excess—in extreme difficulties for the pianist, and these were rendered with masterly skill by Mr. Dannreuther, who was greatly applauded at the close of each division of the concerto. The instrumental selection in other respects was of strong interest, although consisting of familiar pieces. Rossini's brilliant overture to "The Siege of Corinth" opened, and Schumann's fine, although sombre, overture to his "Manfred" music closed, the programme, which included Mozart's beautiful "Hafner" symphony. It is needless to say that these pieces were admirably played by the excellent orchestra, conducted by Mr. Manns. Vocal solos were contributed by Miss Robertson and Signor Gustave Garcia. At the concert of to-day (Saturday), Mendelssohn's "Lobgesang" ("Hymn of Praise") will be performed, in commemoration of the composer's death, which took place on Nov. 4, 1847.

The first of the new series of Saturday concerts at the Alexandra Palace (under the direction of Mr. Frederic Archer) will also be rendered commemorative of Mendelssohn, and will include the co-operation of a choir of 200 voices and a band of fifty performers.

The Covent-Garden Promenade Concert of last Saturday evening included the performance of a new orchestral selection from Rossini's "Mosé in Egitto," adapted by Signor Ardit. The arrangement comprises some of the principal pieces in the opera, the solos having been finely played by Mr. Svendsen (flute), Mr. Lazarus (clarinet), Mr. Wotton (bassoon), and Mr. Lockwood (harp obbligato), the full portions having included the effective co-operation of the band of the Coldstream Guards. This week's arrangements included a Balfé night (on Monday), and a Mendelssohn night (on Wednesday). These popular performances will close on Nov. 19, with a special concert for the benefit of Messrs. Gatti, the directors.

Another season of the organ recitals at the Bow and Bromley Institute has just commenced. The organist last Saturday was Mr. F. G. Ogbourne.

The Brixton Choral Society, assisted by Madame Worrell-Duval, Mr. H. Guy, and Mr. J. L. Wadmore—conducted by Mr. W. Lemare—opened its ninth season at the Angell Town Institution on Monday evening, when Haydn's "Creation" was performed. At the next concert, on Dec. 17, Professor G. A. Macfarren's new oratorio "Joseph" is to be given.

Herr Hermann Franke, the well-known violinist, opened his fourth series of performances of chamber music on Tuesday, in the concert-room of the Royal Academy of Music, with an interesting programme.

We have already given a summary of the arrangements for Mr. Mapleson's winter season of Italian opera at her Majesty's opera, to begin on Monday next. "Il Trovatore" is announced for the opening night.

Mr. Walter Bache's sixth annual pianoforte recital will take place at St. James's Hall on Monday afternoon next.

Mr. Sydney Smith will give the first of two similar recitals at Willis's Rooms on Wednesday afternoon.

The twelfth season of the London Ballad Concerts (under the direction of Mr. John Boosey) will begin at St. James's Hall on Nov. 21; three more concerts being announced to take place before Christmas—on Nov. 28, Dec. 5 and 12.

A series of English opera performances is to be given, in the Royal Aquarium Theatre, in November and December, under the direction of Mr. Isidore de Solis.

The London Church Choir Association being about to hold their fifth annual festival at St. Paul's Cathedral on Nov. 8 next, the committee have decided to devote the proceeds of the offertory, after payment of expenses, to the Indian Famine Fund.

It is said that, owing to the strong influence brought to bear upon the Dean and Chapter, there is every prospect that the Festival of the Three Choirs will be held at Worcester next year, with the orchestral accompaniments of former times.

The rehearsals for the forty-sixth season of the Sacred Harmonic Society were commenced yesterday (Friday) week, Mr. Willing acting temporarily as conductor until the return of Sir Michael Costa from his Continental tour, when he will resume the bâton as usual. The president, Mr. D. Hill, J.P., in a short opening address, congratulated the members on their advanced efficiency, as shown during the past season at Exeter Hall, and more remarkably at the recent Handel Festival; and alluded to the varied programme for the coming season, when works of novelty and interest, including "Palestine," "Naaman," "St. John the Baptist," and Rossini's "Moses in Egypt" would engage their serious attention.

By a decree of the King of Italy, Signor Verdi has been appointed a member of the Italian Commission for the Paris Exhibition of 1878.

THEATRES.

NATIONAL THEATRE.

Such is the title just given to the Queen's, now under the management of Mr. Alexander Henderson. Whether a change of name, truly accompanied with a change of nature, will ensure the popularity of the renovated theatre fortune has yet to determine. Mr. Henderson has done, at any rate, one wise thing—he has constructed his scheme on the basis of a shilling pit. We have found, by example, that this comparatively small charge favoured the success of the legitimate drama in a locality far less convenient than that of Long-acre some few years ago; whether it is now likely to promote the prosperity of melodrama in the new position has yet to be proved. We willingly leave it to the proof, though we confess to having doubts, born of long experience and much earnest reflection. However, Mr. Henderson has resolved on melodrama, supplied by Messrs. H. B. Farnie and Reece—the former gentleman acting as stage director. These well practised adapters have resorted for inspiration to a novel by Prince Lubomirski, dealing with the fortunes of certain exiles who had been banished to Siberia, and have denominated their drama, which is in three acts, with a prologue, "Russia." The manners of that empire and the character of her people are certainly at this time matters of absorbing interest and importance. It is not a flattering picture of either which the new drama presents. The state of society depicted is that of semi-barbarism, ruled by a Government corrupt to the very core. The hero is a symbol of the national condition—Schelm, chief secretary to the political department, whose lawless career and violent end are represented by Mr. Hermann Vezin with a vigour and precision that finally stamp him as a powerful and intellectual performer. His task, however, is far from easy; the part being a repulsive one from the beginning. The prologue exhibits Schelm as concocting a sham plot, from which even Count Vladimir Lanine, though Aide-de-Camp to the Emperor, cannot escape. He, and his sister, and wife, and friend, with an Englishman named Harry L'Estrange, are betrayed alike, and banished to the wastes of Siberia. Here we find them assisted by an Irish follower, Corporal Flannigan (Mr. Shiel Barry), and intruded on by Cossacks, who, notwithstanding their uncivil treatment of the convicts, describe themselves as gentlemen. The satire of the situation and dialogue is obvious enough. Moreover, Schelm appears on the scene as the new Governor; he is plotted against by Muller, his former creature (Mr. Arthur Stirling), and Vladimir joins with him and his co-conspirators to promote his downfall. The object is a difficult one, for Schelm is inspired with a passion for Olga, Vladimir's sister (Miss Carlisle), which supports him in his daring. He compels her, indeed, to marry him, and subsequently acts towards her in the most tyrannous and deceptive manner. But Muller is on his track, and ere long succeeds in binding him hands and feet, and so leaves him to perish in a house on fire. Schelm contrives to burn his cords in the flames, and then to follow his victims to the banks of the Angara. They have next to defend the block-house and ford against the pursuing Cossacks. One further act has yet to be witnessed. Schelm, so far triumphant, is not yet out of danger; nevertheless, he succeeds in placing his victims in a peril from which they can only be relieved by the immediate action of the Czar. Ultimately defeated, Schelm is excited to such fury that he dies of ungovernable rage. Mr. Vezin has in such a part scope for great acting, and avails himself of his opportunities to the utmost. He has realised by his success a triumph which will secure in future his ascendancy as an artist. It may be added that his efforts were well seconded by Miss Carlisle as Olga, Miss Henrietta Hodson as Tatiana, and Miss Eleanor Bufton as Madame Dugarey. Mr. John Billington as the English soldier did, too, efficient service; and nothing could be better than Mr. Barry's Hibernian. Much also is owing to Mr. Stirling's vindictive German; and Mr. Brooke, as the Count, secured the sympathy of the audience. The piece is one eminently of action, already rapid, but which will be doubtless rendered more so by judicious compression. The scenery, by Messrs. Julian Hicks and H. P. Hall, is remarkably picturesque, and the accessories of all kinds of a most costly description. The reception throughout was cordial, and the curtain fell to great applause, the authors having previously been summoned before it by acclamation.

ADELPHI.

The management have changed their programme, substituting for the running piece "After Dark" a revival of Mr. Boucicault's more famous drama "Formosa." This remarkable drama was on its first production placed in considerable peril on account of its general action being capable of an immoral interpretation, and teaching a lesson fatal to social order. The pressure was such that a serious alteration had to be made in a main incident; but this effected, the performance was suffered to continue. In itself the drama must be regarded as a realistic one, with the manners, however, so far idealised that the characters and groupings are rendered capable of a pictorial and romantic setting. No doubt all this is cleverly done; and probably the writer never felt more ambition in the composition of any of his works than he must have felt in this. The original cast of the play contributed to its great success, and the present cast will not detract from it. Miss Leighton, on Saturday, stood for the Anonyma—we beg pardon, for Formosa, and looked the part innocently enough, and gave a graceful expression to what might else have offended many. Mrs. Billington, as the mother of the erring heroine, was impressive and amusing. Miss Alma Murray as Edith, and Miss Hudspeeth as Nelly, were eminently satisfactory representatives of their respective rôles. The young Earl, first impersonated by Miss Maggie Brennan, is now acted by Miss Clara Jeck, who succeeds in it admirably. Mr. James Johnstone, as the old Doctor, deserves great praise. Other names, also, must not be passed over without recognition—Mr. J. G. Shore, Mr. Henry Sinclair, and Mr. Douglas did justice to their parts and to themselves. Indeed, all the characters are adequately sustained, and "Formosa" is likely to support the fortunes of the theatre until the Christmas holidays.

GRECIAN.

On Monday a new era commenced in the fortunes of this theatre. Mr. George Conquest, whose management of it has hitherto been exemplary, has now gone to the expense of rebuilding it, on a different site—that, indeed, of the old ball-room—and in so doing has reconstructed it on a larger and more splendid scale. Nothing can be more instructive than the history of this theatre, which began with a public-house in the Shepherd and Shepherdess-fields, a tea-garden and a small concert-room. In a few years it became a spacious saloon, and then "The Olympic Temple," used for lyrical dramatic entertainments. Anon, a more commodious theatre was completed, and for a time operas of importance, new and old, were played. A great property was thus gradually created, and the proprietor was enabled to build the Eagle tavern, with gardens adjoining, at the cost of fifty thousand pounds. During the management of the late Mr. Conquest the establishment took the rank of a regular theatre, and has been for years supplied with original dramas, many from the pen of Mr. George Conquest, his son, which have had the merit of suiting the taste of the neighbourhood and promoting the fortunes of the theatrical manager. A new piece, by that gentleman and Mr. Henry Pettitt, was produced on the opening of the new theatre on Monday. It is a stirring and startling melodrama in four acts, entitled "Bound to Succeed; or, a Leaf from the Captain's Log." The endeavour of the authors has evidently been to exhibit the peculiar phases of Tasmanian and London life. It would, however, be impossible to follow them in the windings and intricacies of their plot, particularly under the exciting circumstances of the first opening of a new and unfinished theatre. The piece has many merits, and will probably achieve a long run.

The manager of the Royal Aquarium Theatre, Westminster, has arranged a series of theatrical representations to be given at that establishment every afternoon at three o'clock. The light musical pieces which have hitherto appeared in the programme were on Monday displaced by more substantial productions. The comedy of "London Assurance" was then performed.

We are glad to find that Miss Glyn has resumed her dramatic readings, at her own residence, 13, Mount-street, Grosvenor-square, beginning on Tuesday next. She also reads at Highgate, Barnsbury, and other localities. The idea is a good one, and merits encouragement.

NEW BOOKS.

The wrongs of the coolie and the iniquities of the dominant Englishman in colonies "under the British flag" form the principal theme of Lutchmee and Dilloo, by Edward Jenkins, M.P., a novel in three volumes, wherein the honourable member has exhibited for the contemplation of his countrymen a sad picture of West Indian life, of which he has had some personal experience, which he has made a subject of study, and on which he is entitled to speak with some authority. What he saw and what he studied have probably borrowed a little of their colouring from the peculiar spectacles which he is well known to wear; but, however that may be, the tale is one which may fairly make the Englishman who reads it hang his head, and confess with humiliation that it is not for him to cast a stone at Turk or Russian, or whoever is "unspeakable." Lutchmee and Dilloo are respectively wife and husband, a young couple, Hindoos of Behar. Dilloo listens to the deceitful promises held out by one of those "recruiters" who, as we gather from the author's representations, are licensed by the British Government or its officers to go about lying in the towns and villages of India for the sake of inducing labourers to emigrate to the West Indies. Dilloo, accordingly, is carried off to Georgetown, Demerara, leaving behind him his pretty wife, Lutchmee, to wait for his return, when he shall have served his time and made what, for him and her, will be a small fortune. But in the meanwhile Lutchmee, weary of waiting and of the persecution of which her beauty has rendered her the object, herself falls a victim to the delusive "recruiter," and sails for Demerara in search of work, wages, and, principally, her husband. Him, after no little difficulty, she finds; and the reunited pair are "bound" to the same estate. Their reunion, however, brings them but short-lived happiness. Ill-treatment and injustice so transform Dilloo that he actually grows jealous of Lutchmee, and, on one occasion, beats her. He joins in a conspiracy of the coolies against the planters; and, though the conspiracy seems to come to nothing, so far as one can gather information from the story, he commits what nobody who reads the book is likely to consider wilful murder. Before he can be tried for the crime, whatever it may have been, he dies of his own wounds; and the short scene with which his life and the novel conclude shows better than a long narrative would show what are the relations, according to our author, between the coolie and his employer. The dying man is being tended by a missionary, who says to him:—"Believe in Jesus Christ—trust your soul to Him!" And this is the reply:—"No—no! Jesu Kriss Massa Drummond's God—Massa Marston's God—all Ingles God. No God for Coolie!" And so, "turning his face away from the Christian, the Coolie breathed out his soul into the bosom of the Unknown God." Be it remarked that "Massa Drummond" is the coolie's master, and rather a good specimen, we are given to understand, of a master; and "Massa Marston" is the magistrate who has to administer the law, if not justice, between the coolie and his master. On the whole, the novel reveals about as unsatisfactory and repulsive a state of things, whether as regards the method of recruiting coolies, or the social condition of the coolies or of their masters, or the management of estates, or the administration of affairs, or the relations between magistrates and planters, as Mephistopheles himself could desire or achieve. There are some attempts to relieve the generally sombre and sickening character of the story with humorous incidents; but the humour consists chiefly in those absurd travesties of the English language and those grotesque blasphemies in which the religious negro is always described as excelling, and in ludicrous phases of the gross immorality, combined with hypocrisy, in which the West Indian negro is represented as indulging. The book must be regarded as an attack upon a system, and as an endeavour to enlist sympathy on the side of that attack by wrapping up naked fact in a more or less picturesque covering of fiction; and, so regarded, it may attract more attention and produce more effect than it could have commanded as a mere romance, though it appears in the outward form thereof.

Though it be tinged with one-sidedness, and though the translation be anonymous, it was well worth while to publish an English version of the Life of Count Cavour, from the French of M. Charles De Mazade (Chapman and Hall)—the life of a man of whom it is not too much to say that he made a nation and marked the starting-point of an era. Not that Cavour has by any means been neglected by writers who make political biography their study; but that he was a luminary whom it is profitable to contemplate from as many different points of view as possible. And, moreover, M. de Mazade had at his command materials which were not within the reach of everybody. The biography, however, is for those chiefly who regard men and things in connection with public affairs; there is in it very little of that private history which is so dear to those who like to see the child growing up under certain influences to manhood, and the man, as distinct from the statesman, displaying his nature and his qualities among his family and in his social intercourse. We learn, certainly, that he was born at Turin on Aug. 1, 1810; that he came of an ancient race and of a good family; that, at the age of ten, "he was admitted to the Military Academy, the school of the young nobility;" that "at eighteen he was the most brilliant and amiable of sub-lieutenants of engineers;" that "in his twenty-second year he had already sent in his resignation, after having undergone the disgrace of a sort of exile at a small station in the Alps, for having uttered a few risky words, which were merely a cry of generous emotion and sympathy, hailing the French Revolution of 1830;" that, as a child, he was "robust, enjoying his life, sparkling, and bringing happiness to all about him," and, as a young man, "of a most liberal spirit, prompt and open, with a mind seizing and understanding everything." But of details concerning his childhood, his boyhood, his youth, and his earlier manhood, such details as are most interesting to the ordinary readers of biography, there is little or nothing. The biography may be said to begin, to all intents and purposes, "towards the autumn of 1850." He was "on the eve of entering for the first time into office as a simple Minister of Commerce;" and, as he was journeying through the provinces of Piedmont, he "stopped at Stressa, on the borders of Lago Maggiore, at the house of Rosmini, the philosopher, where he met Manzoni." Seated upon the top of the villa Bolongaro, these three men discussed the future of Italy, "keeping their eyes fixed upon the opposite shore, which was then, and seemed likely long to remain, a part of the Austrian dominions;" Manzoni was hopeful; Rosmini "smiled sadly at this poet's dream;" but Cavour, rubbing his hands after his peculiar fashion, repeated, "we will do something; we will do something." What he did, and how he did it, the biographer describes, with such comments and explanations as might be expected from an enthusiastic admirer, when that admirer is a Frenchman, and a Frenchman to whom Garibaldi is but "an empty-headed popular hero." On June 6, 1861, Count Camillo Cavour "rendered to his God one of the noblest souls that ever animated a human being;" and, in so doing, disappeared, it has been said, "just in time for his glory." This statement is disputed by the biographer, who is at a loss to conceive how the idea originated, and who roundly declares that, "had he lived, he would have continued to be the most powerful athlete of the new kingdom he had founded." If anybody should be in doubt as to the political sentiments of Cavour, his biographer labels him distinctly: "he was at heart a Liberal Conservative, a Constitutional Monarchist in the broadest interpretation of the term;" and "the originality, the novelty" of his policy consists in this, that "he has bequeathed a monarchy to Italy which cannot be touched without endangering national existence itself."

The continuance of an excellent and elaborate historical study will be found in the two large volumes entitled The Personal Government of Charles I.: by Samuel Rawson Gardiner (Longmans), a work which carries on a portion of English history from 1628 to 1637, "from the assassination of the Duke of Buckingham to the declaration of the Judges on ship-money," and which creates an inclination to calculate in how many volumes, if every reign were treated in the same exhaustive fashion, a history of England would probably be comprised. In such a case, however, it may be safely asserted that the time occupied in the perusal of it would be well spent, and that anybody who had such a history at his fingers' ends would have a most complete and most accurate knowledge of the vicissitudes which his country has gone through. It may be well to just run the eye over the principal incidents of the years between 1628 and 1637. At home, there were the disturbances about tonnage and poundage, the proceedings of the Star Chamber, scenes in the House of Commons, ecclesiastical disputes not unlike those of the present day, the King's coronation at Edinburgh, the arch-bishopric of Laud, and the resistance offered to the collection of ship-money; abroad there were diplomatic failures in all directions, continual choppings and changes, plenty of words but few deeds, fruitless negotiations with divers Kings and States of the Continent. In domestic affairs the chief figures besides the King are Wentworth, Laud, Chambers, Eliot, Prynne, Finch, Selden, Pym, and others whose very names recall the crises through which our liberties have passed; and abroad, Louis XIII., Richelieu, Wallenstein, Gustavus Adolphus, and others, the mere mention of whom is enough to stir the hearts of English readers within them. It may be said, no doubt, that the volumes contain an old story re-told; but the author's peculiar merit is that he goes to original sources and draws original pictures, whether of persons or of things, that he seems to take nothing for granted and to overlook nothing, however minute, and that by so doing he gives to his narrative an air not only of scrupulous exactness, but of unexpected novelty. After the death of Buckingham, Charles I. may be said to have stepped, in a manner, into his favourite's shoes—that is to say, he undertook in person the "supreme direction of affairs." Possibly most people will think that the nation lost little, even though it gained little or nothing, by the succession. And certainly the character of Charles I., as given in the two volumes, did not promise much gain. "Of industrious attention to business," says the historian, "Charles was eminently capable;" but "for government in the higher sense he had no capacity. He was as obstinate in refusing to abandon any plan he had once formed as he was irresolute in the face of any obstacles which might arise in the way of their execution. Hence the contrast between his treatment of difficulties at home and abroad. Within the kingdom where his authority was undisputed, he required prompt obedience without troubling himself with the growing ill-will which was storing itself up to become the source of future trouble. But with the Kings and States of the Continent, who had no thought of taking his word for law, he never succeeded in gaining his ends. Constant repetition of the same demand without any intention to offer advantages in return, or any power to extort by prompt action the object he sought, made Charles's diplomacy a byword on the Continent, as his father's had been before." How much truth there is in this estimate may be a matter of dispute, but of the honest impartiality with which it has been formed there can be no question.

A very quaint piece of somewhat romantic biography is presented in the pages of Sketches from the Public and Private Career of John Christian Schetky, by his daughter (William Blackwood and Sons)—a volume full of very pleasant reading. The subject of the biography, although he was "marine painter in ordinary to her Majesty," cannot be said to have been much known to fame, but he was in many respects a remarkable man. He enjoyed—really enjoyed—"ninety years of work and play;" and that he had as many lives as a cat is to be inferred not only from the length of his existence, but also from the number of accidents he survived. He himself, by request, drew up a list of a "few." Twice he was "all but drowned," and once out of the twice "swallowed lots of tadpoles." Once he was "upset in a boat, at Oxford, during a gale"—and most probably had another narrow escape from drowning, though he does not say so. He was laid up nine weeks from a collision with a fishwoman in a slippery street—"both down." Once he was pitched over the head of his horse. Twice he injured his knee-pan, and had a consequent "kick in his gallop" for life. Once he was "run over by a carriage-brake;" once he dislocated his collar-bone, and once he broke it; once he was upset in a carriage, himself under it, "and the horse kicking all the time;" once he was "run away with in a carriage;" once he "fractured the small bone of the unfortunate right leg;" and once he "jumped through a window (unadvisedly) at Syston, and suffered much from loss of blood and two deep cuts." Such a man ought certainly to have gone into the Navy, in which he was, while at school, actually entered on board the Hind, Captain Cochrane, uncle of the late gallant Earl of Dundonald, but he was afterwards dissuaded by his anxious parents from joining the service. However, his marine yearnings stuck to him to the last; the sea was his passion, he always dressed in sailor-like fashion, and he always carried "a silver boatswain's whistle from the year 1802 to the time of his death," a whistle which was given him "during one of his summer voyages from London to Leith," and on which he learnt to perform most nautically. He was born on Aug. 11, 1778, and he died on Jan. 29, 1874, having thus attained the great age of more than ninety years. He was of Hungarian descent; but his father had settled in Edinburgh, and there he was born, in 1778, as has already been stated. He went to the High School, where, however, he does not seem to have been very much in his element, though he was a great deal "at sea." He soon took to drawing; and, of course, he chiefly drew ships. In 1808 he "was appointed to the junior professorship of civil drawing at the Royal Military College at Great Marlow," after having practised his art at Oxford and elsewhere; from Marlow he had to retire, through no fault of his own, in 1811; and in 1815 his "connection with the Royal family was begun by his appointment to the office of Painter in Water Colours to William, Duke of Clarence," he having been previously appointed "Drawing Professor at the Royal Naval College at Portsmouth," a position which he held until the dissolution of that establishment, in 1836. He, however, soon found a similar berth at the Military College of Addiscombe. In 1844 he received his official appointment as "marine painter in ordinary to her Majesty the Queen;" and in 1855, at seventy-seven years of age, he retired with a pension from his post at Addiscombe. He was clearly a man of various talents, kind, generous, genial, and adventurous, just the man whose private life, as revealed by an affectionate daughter, has many attractions for sympathetic readers, especially when, as in his case, there are little episodes of travel in places which, though now familiar to the tourist, were in his day comparatively untravellers, and anecdotes about persons who, though he encountered them in the flesh and has but lately departed from our midst, are to us as almost faded memories. For instance, he, who in 1872 was at a garden party at Bute House, had held a short conversation in the streets of Rome with Cardinal York, when the latter made the astounding inquiry: "How are all my armies and navies in Britain?" Biographical sketches, which bring past and present so vividly together before the reader, are pretty sure to be highly appreciated beyond the circle of those "many friends" who desire "to possess some connected history of the life of one to whom they were warmly attached."

A variation upon the metre of "Hiawatha" is suggested by the musical numbers in the first, the longest, and the titular piece of the volume, entitled The Meda Maiden; and Other Poems, by the Earl of Southesk, K.T. (Macmillan and Co.), though such modifications, including rhymes, are introduced as amply to justify the author's hope that he will be acquitted of servile copying. At the same time there is the general cadence of "Hiawatha;" and in that cadence there is a peculiar charm, an influence like that of a chattering brook, with a tendency, perhaps, to produce drowsiness, but, on the other hand, with a singular fascination in its easy ripple, leading the reader on and on, scarcely knowing or caring what it is that he is reading. All this, of course, applies only if, as in the present case, there be few or no roughnesses, whether of language, or construction, or rhyme, to break the even tenour of perusal. We gather, however, 'twixt sleeping and waking, that the author is humming a narrative, the story of a little Indian maid, who, as a child, went through a severe course of training, comprising hunger and thirst and labour and ecstatic visions (produced thereby, most likely), for the profession of a Seersess among the Ojibways, and who, having practised her profession with some success, ultimately abjures both it and her Indian faith, and is converted to Christianity. How she was thrice married; how she suffered many things because of two out of her three husbands; how she bare children, and how she was bereaved of them; and how with her third husband, Snowy Rabbit by name, she lived peacefully and respected,—all this is told simply, trippingly, and not ungracefully. With the narrative are interspersed reflections and admonitions of the author's own, not remarkable, it may be, for originality, but not without a tinge of true nobility. The author is certainly no mean proficient in versification; and among the "other poems" there is one, entitled "Frankie," which has the ring of the old homely, vigorous, pathetic ballad. Unfortunately, the author can only claim to have put somebody else's prose into a poetic form. The first line of the ballad, however, raises a question as to whether "Ireland" is a trisyllable!

At a meeting of the Liverpool Local Marine Board last Saturday, Mr. T. R. Shallercross, who presided, presented a binocular glass to Mr. J. Jamieson, mate of the Glasgow steamship Olympia, on behalf of the Board of Trade, in recognition of his services in rescuing the crew of the Louise at sea. The Louise was found waterlogged, dismasted, and a complete wreck, without boats, on Dec. 27 last, and though there was a heavy sea when the Olympia fell in with her, the crew of the Louise (eleven men) were rescued in three trips under perilous circumstances. The rescued crew had suffered from want of water for several days and lost all their clothes. Six days afterwards they were landed at New York by the Olympia, on board of which they had been supplied with clothing as well as food. The Louise was breaking up when abandoned.

THE WAR: WOUNDED AND SICK ON THE ROAD TO TCHERNAVODA.
FROM A SKETCH BY ONE OF OUR SPECIAL ARTISTS.

THE WASH. MOUNTAIN AND THE WASHINGTON ASSOCIATION.

R.C. WOODVILLE
1877

A SKIRMISH ON THE
FROM A SKETCH BY ONE

ROAD TO PLEVNA.
OF OUR SPECIAL ARTISTS.

THE EXPLOSION IN H.M.S. THUNDERER.

A monument has been erected in Haslar burial-ground in memory of the unfortunate sufferers by the terrible explosion on board H.M.S. Thunderer, in July, 1876. It is the result of a private subscription raised among those serving in the several steam reserves and in Portsmouth Dockyard, but supplemented by donations from Messrs. Humphries, the makers of the Thunderer's machinery, and from other engineering firms. It is due to the initiative of Captain Waddilove, late in command of the Portsmouth Steam Reserve, who was on board the Thunderer at the time of the explosion. Owing to a strike among the quarrymen of the Aberdeen Granite Works, there was great delay in finishing the monument; but it is now complete, and has given much satisfaction to all who have seen it, being handsome and appropriate. The monument is immediately over the graves of the two engineer officers who were killed, and in the centre of the line of graves of the victims, most of whom were buried at this spot. It is in the form of an obelisk, and stands on a base of Yorkshire stone, eight feet square. The two plinths are of red polished Aberdeen granite; the obelisk is of polished Sicilian marble; the whole stands about 16 ft. in height. On one side of the pedestal is an inscription setting forth the disastrous occurrence. On the remaining three sides are the names of those who were killed on board and those who died subsequently at Haslar Hospital, in all forty-five names. The monument was constructed by White Brothers, of Landport. The committee instructed Mr. Welch, of Landport, to photograph the monument, and a copy of this photograph, in a black Oxford frame, has been sent to the nearest relatives of each of the unfortunate victims.

GENERAL GRANT AND THE CORPORATION.

It will be remembered that on the occasion of the visit of General Grant to Guildhall he was presented by the Corporation with the freedom of the City of London, which was, as usual, to be inclosed in a gold casket. The making of this was intrusted to Mr. Benson, of Ludgate-hill, and Old Bond-street, who has completed his work in a most careful and artistic manner. It is oblong in form, and composed entirely of pure gold, enriched with enamel, and supported at the four corners by the American eagle. On the front panel is chased in bold relief a view of the Capitol at Washington, with pendants of the ex-President's monogram and the Lord Mayor's coat of arms. The reverse panel bears a similarly-wrought view of the Guildhall. At the ends of the box are finely modelled figures, representing the City of London and the United States; and on the cover are cornucopias springing from the four corners, typical of the fertility and prosperity of the American continent, whilst the city arms appropriately surmount the whole. We believe that this casket will be looked upon in America as a fine specimen of English workmanship and skill.

MONUMENT TO THE MEMORY OF THOSE KILLED BY THE EXPLOSION ON BOARD H.M.S. THUNDERER.

THE MASONS' STRIKE AT THE NEW LAW COURTS.

The continued importation of successive large parties of German, Italian, and American stonemasons and stone-cutters, to supply the place of those on strike who were lately working for the contractors, Messrs. Bull and Sons, at the building of the New Law Courts, has been a theme of much comment. Some of them, more especially the Americans, have been persuaded by the Strike Committee of the Masons' Society to desert the service for which they were engaged, and have accepted the allowance made them by that Society, intending either to return to their own country, or to repair in search of other employment to the provincial towns of this kingdom. But many Italians and Germans, who are found highly competent workmen, are steadily plying the chisel and mallet, day after day, in the spacious sheds on the east side of the inclosure between Temple Bar, or the Strand, and Carey-street. They behave very well indeed, and give no trouble, receiving their orders and instructions through interpreters of their own nation, who understand the English language. About fifty Germans, who came directly off an important public building in Germany, and who are, of course, skilled artisans of a good class, arrived in London on Tuesday. Further reinforcements are daily expected, and it has been thought proper to make arrangements for the comfortable accommodation of so many of these strangers as choose to take their meals on the building premises, instead of losing their time, and running the risk of being cheated, with bad food and excessive prices, among the public-houses and coffee-shops in this part of London. The use of the accommodation here provided for them is quite optional; but we are not at all surprised to find that most of the Italians, and many also of the Germans, have gladly availed themselves of such an advantage, which may also be extended hereafter to English workmen in the same employment. The dining-hall and canteen is established in the vaulted basement of the East block of building, and one of the most experienced contractors for the supply of refreshments and provisions to the army, Mr. J. Ross, late purveyor to Netley Hospital, has undertaken to supply the men with breakfast, dinner, and tea. For these three meals, with a pint of beer, the charge is two shillings; no extra refreshment is supplied beyond the regular meals. The larders are stocked with the best food; and the cooking ranges are capable of preparing soup, roast and boiled meat, vegetables, tea, and coffee, for hundreds of men. The long rows of tables and benches have a very neat and orderly appearance, but rather of a monastic character, and the whole scene is one that we have thought worthy of an illustration, with another sketch giving a peep at the larder. The foreign masons, and those Englishmen who have returned to labour at the old rate of wages, are working two hours and a half overtime, for which they get an increase in the scale per hour.

TURKISH ATTACK ON ROUMANIAN LINES.

SULEIMAN PASHA'S CAMP AT KADIKEULI.

WAR SKETCHES, BY OUR SPECIAL ARTISTS.

The London Stonemasons' Society have presented a memorial to the First Commissioner of Works, complaining that Messrs. Bull and Sons are using a Government building "as a common lodging-house," which is certainly not the fact. It is urged in this memorial that the property of Government should not be used for personal interests, or to favour either one side or the other in a trade dispute. But we conceive it might fairly be replied that the progress of the building, in this instance, is an object of public interest, and her Majesty's Board of Works may be disposed to allow the contractor any facility desired for that purpose, without thereby entering into the dispute with the stonemasons of London. Mr. Stanley Bird, honorary secretary of the Central Association of Master Builders, has refuted the charge of practising deception or concealment with regard to the existence of the strike, when the men were engaged at Hamburg and at New York. The fact of this strike in London must now be quite notorious all over the world. Undiminished zeal is displayed by the promoters of the strike, and "lodge night" on Monday last attracted a very large number of members. The committee had to report the support daily announced from many trade societies. Over 1200 men "went out" at the commencement of the strike, and of these about 120 were now at work—the employers giving the additional penny as demanded by the masons, but leaving the reduction of an hour's labour a matter for further consideration. The committee look upon the strike as but in its infancy, and represent the funds as adequate to meet the requirements of a long continuance of the movement.

CASKET PRESENTED TO GENERAL GRANT WITH THE FREEDOM OF THE CITY OF LONDON.

THE BRAZILIAN TURRET-SHIP INDEPENDENCIA.

It will be remembered that nearly two years ago there was an accident with the launch of this ship in the Thames, which proved a disaster as well as a failure, and the hull was greatly damaged. She has since been repaired and completed by Messrs. Samuda Brothers, at Poplar, under the constant direction of Mr. E. J. Reed, C.B., M.P., late Chief Constructor of the Navy. The Independencia is an ironclad turret-ship, full rigged, resembling in some few respects H.M.S. Captain, which was lost in the Bay of Biscay, but differing from the Captain in her more important features. Her armour is 12 in. and 10 in. thick, as compared with the Captain's 8 in. and 7 in.; and her guns are 35 tons, against the Captain's 25-ton guns. In addition to this, she has 3 ft. more freeboard than the Captain was intended to have, and nearly double as much as the Captain actually had, the Independencia's freeboard being 11 ft., against the Captain's 6 ft. Although the Independencia is 20 ft. shorter than the Captain, she is 10 ft. broader, and this extra breadth, combined with the freeboard, is relied upon by Mr. Reed for giving that ample safety against capsizing which the Captain unfortunately did not possess. At any rate, these differences must give the Independencia very great stability and power to carry sail as compared with the Captain. The only other full-rigged turret-ship we have had built for our Navy is the Monarch, and she has proved to be a thoroughly safe and seagoing vessel. The Independencia is 30 ft. shorter than the Monarch, and has 3 ft. less freeboard, but she has 5½ ft. more beam. Many naval persons consider that the Captain might still have been afloat, and might have proved a safe and serviceable ship, but for the enormous excess of weight worked into her during construction, which amounted to several hundreds of tons. No such error has been made in the case of the Independencia, which is at present floating with a margin of buoyancy somewhat greater than is requisite for the flotation of the weights remaining to go on board.

The Independencia is 300 ft. long between perpendiculars, 63 ft. in extreme breadth, 16 ft. 6 in. in depth of hold, 25 ft. draught of water, and 9000 tons displacement. Her sides are protected by 12 in. of armour at the water-line, and by 10 in. and 9 in. in other parts. The guns are carried in two turrets, which are protected by 13 in. of armour. The deck at the top of the armour belt forward and aft is protected by armour of 2 in. and 3 in. in thickness. The armour plating is distributed over a belt 8 ft. 6 in. broad, which extends right forward and aft, so as completely to surround the ship, and is carried up on a central breastwork 130 ft. in length at the top of the belt, which reaches to the upper deck, 11 ft. above the water-line. The breastwork incloses the boiler and engine hatches, the scuttles to magazines and shell-rooms, the principal openings for ventilation, and the two turrets. There is one turret at each end of the breastwork, each containing two 35-ton guns. Over the breastwork and between the turrets is an erection similar to the hurricane deck of the Devastation. It consists of a deck about one half the breadth of the ship, extending from the fore-turret to some distance abaft the after-turret, this deck being supported by the casings of the boiler and engine hatches. Upon this deck is a rifle-proof house containing the steering apparatus and appliances for navigating the ship, the boats, hammocks, steam-winch, and ventilating-shafts. There is also a poop and forecabin, the hurricane-deck amidships being narrowed abaft the breastwork, and continued aft to the poop. Upon this continuation of the hurricane-deck are placed the standard compass and the steering-wheel. The poop is fitted for mounting mitrailleuses, and ports are cut in the after corners of the hurricane-deck for fighting a 9-pounder gun on each side. Under the poop are apartments for the Admiral and his staff, and cabins for other officers. The forecabin is fitted for working the anchors, and has an armoured bulkhead across the forepart, behind which are placed two 7-in. guns. At the after end of the forecabin is an armoured pilot tower, containing telegraphs and voice-pipes to the engine-room, steering-wheels, and battery, from which the captain will work the ship in action. The engines, made by John Penn and Sons, work to 8500-horse power indicated. The armament, exclusive of the 9-pounder guns and mitrailleuses, consists of four 35-ton Whitworth guns (two in each turret) and two 7-in. guns forward. The guns are all made of the Whitworth compressed-when-fluid steel, and are rifled upon the hexagonal principle, being able to fire very long shell, containing large bursting charges of powder, and also to penetrate the enemy below water with flat-fronted projectiles. The presence of the poop and forecabin prevents a complete all-round fire, as in the Devastation; but the obstruction thus caused is limited to a few degrees from the fore and aft line, supposing the guns to be laid right ahead or right astern. Some obstructions to fire would also be necessarily caused by the determination to make the Independencia a full-rigged sailing-ship. The foremast is just abaft the forecabin, and is worked upon the breastwork deck; all fittings in connection with it, and all bits and the leads of ropes, are so arranged that in clearing away for action they will be out of the line of fire. The shrouds to the foremast and also to the mainmast will be cleared away for action, except two shrouds on each side of the mast, which are made larger than the rest and will remain fixed and take their chance of being shot away. The mainmast is between the boiler-hatch and after-turret. All ropes connected with it will ordinarily be worked on the breastwork deck; but in clearing for action they will be raised upon the hurricane deck, and can be worked there if required. The mizenmast is worked entirely from the poop. This ship is an important addition to the naval force of Brazil.

The undergraduates at Cambridge stopped Dr. Lynn's performance last Saturday night at the Guildhall, smashed chairs, overturned tables, took possession of the platform, and threw banjos and other things into the body of the hall. The Proctors arrived and quelled the disturbance, clearing the hall.

Collections were made last Sunday in the churches and chapels of Birmingham in aid of the local medical charities' fund, which is this year appropriated to the purpose of the general hospital. The returns received on Monday show a total of nearly £2800, which is about two hundred pounds below the corresponding total last year, the falling-off being generally attributed to the depression of trade and the collection recently made for the Indian Famine Fund.

A school of cookery for Cambridge was opened on Monday with a lecture by Mr. Buckmaster, in the Guildhall of that town. Professor Hughes presided. There was a good attendance, including some leading members of the University. Professor Hughes, after speaking of the considerable influence of dyspepsia on our social and national life, said promoters of cookery-schools and similar institutions were public benefactors of high order. Mr. Buckmaster's lecture illustrated the general inferiority of cooking in English homes, and the domestic discomforts resulting. The prevalent methods, too, were wasteful, and did not nearly obtain the nutrition which the materials, properly prepared, could be made to yield. Cooking was more a matter of trouble than money; and, if we would have good servants, mistresses must be better informed in duties expected of servants. No sensible man would think less of a lady who added cooking to her other accomplishments. The dinners and domestic comforts of English homes were far more important matters than the resting-place of Cromwell's skull. It was to be seen among the poor that improper or insufficient food produced constant sinking, and this led to craving for tea or stimulants, and so to intemperance. Mr. Buckmaster lectured again in the evening.

MUSICAL PUBLICATIONS.

The "Life of Mozart," translated from the German work of Dr. Ludwig Nohl by Lady Wallace (Longmans, Green, and Co.) is a very acceptable biography of the great composer, the details of whose life are here given with more copiousness than in any previous work of the kind. The earliest English biography of any importance was that of the late Mr. Edward Holmes, published more than thirty years ago; the most important German work of the kind having been that by Otto Jahn, belonging to a later date. This, however, is more critical than biographical, and therefore Dr. Nohl's recently-completed life takes the first rank as a record of the personal as well as artistic career of Mozart. Although belonging to a different category, mention may here be incidentally made of the thematic catalogue of all Mozart's known works—published and unpublished, completed and unfinished—compiled a few years ago by Herr Von Kochel; a large volume which is at once a remarkable evidence of laborious research on the part of the compiler, and of the wondrous productivity of the composer. These books, and the publication of a beautiful and complete edition of Mozart's works now in progress by the great Leipzig firm of Breitkopf and Hartel, will render a long deferred justice to the greatest musical genius of any age or country. Lady Wallace has before done good service to musical literature by her translations of Mendelssohn's letters, and of those of Beethoven and Mozart; and she has earned the further thanks of all who are interested in such matters by the two volumes of biography now referred to. The first volume, under the general heading of "Apprenticeship," treats of Mozart's childhood, from the date of his birth (1756), and his progress up to the year 1781, including his removal from Salzburg (his birthplace) to Vienna, and his intermediate visits to Munich, Augsburg, and Paris. The second volume is entitled "Mastership," and deals with the most important period of his career, from 1781 to the date of his death, in 1791, almost entirely passed at Vienna, and including the production of his greatest works. The volumes are full of interest, bringing, as they do, the personal life and surroundings of the composer vividly before us, and enlisting our sympathies with the genial and amiable nature of the highly gifted man whose genius and marvellous productivity brought him but little contemporary reward, and prematurely burnt out the lamp of life. The volumes contain many of the composer's letters, and portraits of Mozart at six years old and of his sister Marianne (also a juvenile musical prodigy) at the age of ten. A copious index adds to the value of the book as a work of reference.

"Music and Musicians." Essays and Criticisms by Robert Schumann. Translated, Edited, and Annotated by Fanny Raymond Ritter (William Reeves). Schumann was not only a composer; he was an accomplished writer on the theory and the practice of his art, having for some years edited and contributed to the Leipzig musical journal, the Neue Zeitschrift für Musik. Both in his compositions and in his literary productions his aims were high and noble. In his judgments of the works of others a generous readiness to recognise their merits is everywhere apparent; his criticisms being genial and appreciative, while yet thoroughly analytical and searching. The volume now referred to contains a large number of papers treating of many composers, besides some subjects of a more general nature in association with music. The translation is extremely well executed, and the work forms a most valuable addition to musical literature. It contains a medallion portrait of Schumann, photographed from a crayon by Bendemann.

THE BLUEBOOKS.

The "Parliamentary Papers" of 1876 are now complete. The House of Commons fills eighty-five volumes with its printed papers of that year. There are seven volumes of public bills, many of which are reprinted in the course of their progress; seven volumes of reports from Select Committees; twenty-seven volumes of reports from Commissioners; forty-three volumes of other papers; and the last volume comprises the table of contents and index. The House of Lords has fewer papers laid before it, but fills fifty-nine volumes for 1876. The more important papers are the same in both Houses, but each has some which it jealously guards as its own, the House of Commons keeping the Estimates to itself, for instance, and the House of Lords Peerage claims. These numerous volumes, though called "Parliamentary Papers," are, in fact, the annual collection of our public documents, the mode of issuing them being by presenting them to Parliament. In 1876 we find three volumes filled with papers relating to India, four volumes relating to the colonies, and four volumes of reports from our Secretaries of Legation and Consuls in various parts of the world. There are reports from special Commissions, but the main body of "reports from Commissioners" comprises those which tell us what our public departments at home under their management are doing—the Local Government Board, the Inland Revenue Board, the Customs, the Department of Prisons, Police, Education, Lunacy, Factories, and the like. There are many returns and papers relating to the Army and Navy, but no general review of their condition and work during the year; and for this we must have recourse to reports of the extempore speech by the Minister in the House of Commons on opening the discussion on the Estimates for these departments of the public service. "State Papers," containing correspondence (directly or indirectly) with foreign Governments filled but three volumes in 1876. The cloud in the East had risen, indeed; but as yet the "Correspondence Respecting Affairs in Turkey and the Insurrection in Bosnia and Herzegovina" did not fill a single volume during the Session. The number of papers of all kinds presented to the House of Commons, either by command of her Majesty or on motion made by a member, and printed in 1876, without including the private business, exceeded 1000 in all. The gradual substitution of the handy octavo volume for the unwieldy folio is remarkable. Columns of figures go very well into the smaller pages, and the "Finance Accounts" are now issued in octavo. As yet the reports from Select Committees adhere to the old folio shape.—Times.

An important addition to the free museum at the Pavilion at Brighton was opened yesterday week, consisting of nearly the whole of the suite of rooms on the upper floor of the building. The apartments contain a large number of prints, pictures, &c., illustrating the past history of the town and Pavilion, the former affording striking evidence of the rapid development of Brighton since the opening of the railway, and the latter group showing the original Pavilion and its subsequent elaboration by the "first gentleman in Europe." A number of the rooms have also been devoted to the exhibition of a comprehensive collection of Chinese objects lent by Archdeacon Gray, formerly of Canton. In celebration of the opening the chairman of the committee managing the Pavilion gave a soirée in the building, for which some 2000 invitations were issued. During the evening the subterranean passages between the main building and the outer premises were, for the first time since the place has been acquired by the town, opened to public inspection.

ELECTRIC LIGHTS.

Professor Tyndall and Mr. J. Douglass, chief engineer of the Trinity House, have issued their reports on the trials made with a view of observing from the sea the comparative action of the magneto-electric machines now mounted at the South Foreland. The machines experimented on were (1) Holmes's machines, which have been in use for some years at the South Foreland; (2) Gramme's machines; (3) two Gramme's machines coupled together; (4 and 5) Siemens's large and small machines. The Corporation's steamer Galatea was employed for this purpose, the position first chosen being not far from the Varne Light, and at a distance of 11½ miles from the lighthouses on the Foreland. Other observations were subsequently made at various other distances. As the result of these observations, Professor Tyndall remarks that the new machines—viz., Siemens's and Gramme's—mark a great advance both as to economy and power in the application of the electric light to lighthouse purposes. Both inventions undoubtedly place at the disposal of the Elder Brethren of the Trinity House electric lights of surpassing capacity. Combining either the large machines of Siemens, the two Gramme machines, or, if practicable, the two small ones of Siemens with one of the group-flashing dioptric apparatus recently devised by Dr. Hopkinson, a light transcending in power and individuality all lights now existing would probably be obtained. Such a light would displace, with enormous advantage to the mariner, the two lights hitherto displayed at the Lizard. From an inspection of the Gramme machines, and the information he has been able to obtain respecting them, Mr. Douglass is of opinion that they are not superior in efficiency to the Siemens machines, while they are more complicated in construction and also dearer. Both gentlemen, therefore, recommend that the small Siemens machine be adopted for the Lizard. It is simple in principle, and so moderate in cost that a reserve of power can always be maintained without much outlay. By coupling two such machines together a great augmentation of the light is, moreover, attainable.

LIFE-BOAT SERVICES.

At a meeting of the Royal National Life-Boat Institution, held on Thursday at its house, John-street, Adelphi, the committee expressed their deep sympathy with the families of the two poor men who perished from the Dunbar life-boat, during a gale of wind, on the occasion of her being exercised. The boat was under sail at the time, and being overpressed with canvas, and the sheet of the foresail held fast, she was capsized by a squall, and two of the crew who were unable to regain her were lost sight of, and could not afterwards be discovered. The committee voted £200 in aid of the local subscription being raised on behalf of the men's families. Rewards were granted to the crews of shore-boats for saving life from wrecks on our coast, and payments amounting to £1380 were made on different life-boat establishments.

Amongst the contributions recently received by the institution were £1000 from Mr. R. G. Butcher, of Dublin, to defray the cost of the Fenit (in the county of Kerry) life-boat establishment, in memory of his father, the late Admiral Butcher, and his brother, the late Bishop of Meath; also, £800 from Mrs. A. Bower, of Lessness-heath, for a life-boat establishment; and £50 from the Bristol Historic Club, in aid of the support of their life-boat at Lissiemouth. New life-boats had recently been sent by the institution to Cruden, Newburgh, and Huna, on the Scotch coast.

The Emperor of Austria had caused a silver cross of merit to be presented to each of the coxswains of the Cahore life-boat, in recognition of their services on the occasion of the rescue, by that life-boat, of the crew of thirteen men from the barque Nautia, of Lussino, Austria, which was wrecked during a strong S.E. gale, on Jan. 18 last.

Reports were read from the inspectors of life-boats to the institution on their recent visits to the coast.

The Liverpool Town Council has passed a by-law requiring persons using bicycles in the streets of the town to attach bells to their vehicles, under a penalty of £5.

There was launched last Saturday from the yard of Messrs. Day and Sumner, at Southampton, the auxiliary crew steam-yacht Vasari for the King of Siam. The ship has been constructed at the Northern Works, on the newest and most perfect principles of naval architecture, and is fitted with elegant and durable appliances. Mr. Mason, the Consul, performed the ceremony.

It was officially announced on Monday that the First Lord of the Admiralty has conferred the good-service pension of £150 a year, vacant by the promotion to Flag rank of Captain Richard V. Hamilton, C.B., upon Captain Samuel H. Henderson, R.N.; and that the Greenwich Hospital pension of £50 a year for Chaplains and Naval Instructors in the Royal Navy has been given to the Rev. R. Willoughby Taylor, R.N.

The Dublin Corporation on Monday passed a resolution condemning the intention of the Government to build the proposed Museum of Science and Art on Leinster Lawn, and appointed a deputation to wait on the Chief Secretary on the subject. The resolution declared that, inasmuch as places for public recreation in Dublin are very few in number, it would be most undesirable to build on Leinster Lawn, which is not only a great ornament to the city, but a means of affording enjoyment to the people and of cultivating the public taste.

Mr. Stonor, late county court Judge of Guildford district, has been presented by the registrars of his late circuit, in the counties of Surrey and Berks (No. 45), with a handsome silver tureen, beautifully chased, of French workmanship of the Louis XV. style. The testimonial was accompanied by a letter from the senior registrar (Mr. Hollett) expressing the deep regret of himself and his brother registrars at the transfer of Mr. Stonor from the circuit over which he had presided for twelve years with so much ability, integrity, and patient attention to the suitors, and with such courtesy to the officers of the courts and the profession.

The Earl of Morley and the Bishop of Exeter took part yesterday week in the proceedings attending the opening of the new building of the South Devon and Cornwall Institution for the Blind, a commodious and handsome edifice erected at a cost of several thousand pounds, at North-hill, Plymouth. The institution, which has a large number of inmates, has been established eighteen years; and the Earl of Morley, who is the president for the year, and whose father presided at its inauguration, congratulated the friends of the institution on its having attained its majority. It was announced at the close that one of the oldest friends of the institution, Captain Puckford (whose funeral took place the same day), had left by his will £2000, which clears off the debt. He had given during his lifetime in one sum £1000, besides many smaller donations. Captain Puckford has left the whole of his property to charitable purposes, and other institutions in Plymouth will likewise benefit by his beneficence.

OBITUARY OF EMINENT PERSONS.

SIR F. T. CUNYNGHAM, BART.

The death of Sir Francis Thurlow Cunyngham, Bart., occurred on the 27th ult., at Ryde, Isle of Wight. He was the fourth son of Colonel Sir David Cunyngham, fifth Baronet, by his wife, Maria, daughter of Edward Lord Thurlow, Lord Chancellor of England, and was born in 1808. He married, Aug. 3, 1830, Caroline, daughter of Eyre William Robertson, M.D., of Kindrochet, Perthshire. He succeeded to the baronetcy on the recent death of his nephew, Sir Edward Augustus Cunyngham, seventh Baronet, formerly of the 32nd Foot. The late Baronet is succeeded by his eldest surviving son, Francis George, born April 19, 1835, and married, in January, 1863, Jessica, eldest daughter of the Rev. W. H. Bloxsome, Rector of Stanton and Snow-hill.

THE DOWAGER COUNTESS SPENCER.

Adelaide Horatia Elizabeth, Countess Spencer, died on the 29th ult. at Guildborough Hall, Northampton. She was the only daughter of the late Colonel Sir Horace Beauchamp Seymour, K.C.H., Extra Equerry to Queen Adelaide, by his first wife, Elizabeth Mallet, daughter of the late Sir Lawrence Palk. She was born on Jan. 27, 1825; and married, Aug. 9, 1854, Frederick, fourth Earl Spencer, K.G. (as his second wife), by whom, who died on Dec. 27, 1857, the Countess leaves issue a daughter, Lady Victoria Alexandrina, to whom her Majesty stood sponsor, born in October, 1855, and a son, the Hon. Charles Robert, born in October, 1857. The late Countess was sister of Admiral Frederick Beauchamp Seymour, C.B.

THE DEAN OF OSSORY.

The Very Rev. Charles Vignoles, D.D., Dean of Ossory and Rector of Aghavoe and St. Patrick's, Kilkenny, died at the Deanery there on the 18th ult., in the eighty-ninth year of his age. He was born in 1788, the eldest son of the Rev. John Vignoles, of Cornahir, in the county of Westmeath, by Anna Honora, his wife, daughter of the Rev. Dr. Low, and was educated at Trinity College, Dublin, where he graduated B.A., in 1809, and M.A., in 1812. He married, in 1811, Elizabeth, daughter of Thomas Durell, Esq., by whom, who died in 1870, he had issue.

MAJOR GERAGHTY.

Major Geraghty, one of the Military Knights of Windsor, and late of the 20th Regiment, died on the 25th ult. at his residence in the castle, aged fifty-eight. He served in the Crimean War, in 1854-5, including the battles of the Alma, Balaklava, and Inkerman, and the siege of Sebastopol, and received the medal with four clasps and the Turkish medal. In the Indian campaign of 1857-8, as Adjutant of his regiment, he was present in several actions, and at the siege and capture of Lucknow, and had the medal and clasp. Major Geraghty was the junior Military Knight.

The deaths have also been announced of—

Bertram A. Mitford, Esq., on Aug. 30, at Foo-Chow, China, aged thirty-three.

Francis Napier Johnstone, Esq., on the 24th ult., at his residence, Cambridge Park, Wanstead.

The Rev. Henry Stiles Savory, Rector of Camely, Somersetshire, on the 22nd ult., aged fifty-three.

Major Charles Somner Sedley Taylor, Royal Artillery, on Sept. 5, at Mussoorie, N.W. Provinces, aged forty-one.

Charles Torin Cramer Roberts, Esq., J.P., of Tallymount, in the county of Kildare, late of the 71st Regiment.

The Rev. John Geoffrey Browne, for fifty-four years Rector of Kiddingdon, Oxon, on the 14th ult., aged eighty.

Theodore Gordon, Esq., of Overhall, Aberdeenshire, on the 6th ult., at Kittrells, North Carolina, U.S., in his sixty-eighth year.

The Rev. James Cecil Wynter, Rector of Gatton and Hon. Canon of Winchester, on the 26th ult., at Gatton Tower, Reigate, aged seventy.

The Right Rev. Walter John Trower, D.D., Sub-Dean of Exeter Cathedral, and Rector of Ashington-with-Bunton, Sussex, Bishop formerly of Glasgow and Galloway, afterwards of Gibraltar, on the 24th ult., aged seventy-three.

Miss Anne Cobbett, eldest daughter of the late William Cobbett, author of "The Political Register," on the 22nd ult., at Brompton-crescent, South Kensington, aged eighty-two. She acted for many years as her father's amanuensis.

Colonel Robert Dundas Kerr, R.E., on the 20th ult., aged fifty-three. He was the youngest son of the late Major-General Lord Robert Kerr, and grandson of William John, fifth Marquis of Lothian, K.T., General in the Army, and Colonel 11th Regiment.

The Hon. Mrs. Edward Erskine, on the 23rd ult., at Ems, after a lingering illness. She was the widow of Mr. Andrew Loughnan; and married, in 1847, the Hon. Edward Morris Erskine, C.B., her Majesty's Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary at the Court of Stockholm.

Mrs. Miles (Frances Harriott), of Firbeck Hall, Yorkshire, widow of William Miles, Esq., of Clifton House, in the county of Gloucester (who died without issue in 1844), on the 20th ult., aged seventy-eight. Mrs. Miles was the second daughter of Colonel Jebb, of Walton Hall, Derbyshire, by Dorothy, his wife, daughter of General Gladwyn, of Stubbington Court, in that county. She purchased Firbeck in 1852.

Mr. Durham, A.R.A., the well-known sculptor, on the 27th ult., at his residence, 21, Devonshire-street, Portland-place, aged fifty-eight. His Memorial of the 1851 Exhibition in the Horticultural Gardens, Kensington, is the greatest of his outdoor works; his best classical group being, perhaps, among the Royal Academy works of 1875, and entitled "Leander and the Syren." In portraiture his busts and figures are well known and numerous.

Thomas Irwin, Esq., of Calder Abbey and Justus Town, Cumberland, J.P. and D.L. for that county, and High Sheriff 1836, formerly Captain Inniskilling Dragoons, on the 21st ult., at Calder Abbey, in his eighty-eighth year. He was the eldest son of Thomas Irwin, Esq., of Justus Town, by Jane, his wife, second daughter of John Senhouse, Esq., of Calder Abbey, and married, in 1823, Mary, eldest daughter and heiress of the late Joseph Tiffen Senhouse, Esq., also of Calder Abbey.

Mr. Robert Swinhoe, F.R.S., late her Majesty's Consul at Ningpo, China, on the 28th ult. He had only lately returned from the scene of his distant services. The deceased gentleman in 1854 was appointed a supernumerary interpreter at Hong-Kong, and since then has continuously served the Crown in that capacity, and as Consul in various parts of China and Japan. The late Mr. Swinhoe belonged to several learned societies.

CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

All communications relating to this department of the Paper should be addressed to the Editor, and have the word "Chess" written on the envelope.

N.R. (Freckenham).—Your last letter indicates the correct line of play for the solution of Enigma No. 14, but you give only one weak continuation. The main variation, springing from Black playing 1. P takes B, is extremely fine.

W.L. Bat, A. Wood, and Others.—In your proposed solution of No. 1755 you have overlooked the best defence to 1. Q to B 3rd—viz., 1. Q to Q 4th.

H.W.B.G. (Paris).—We are greatly obliged to you for the trouble you have taken. The games are very acceptable.

E.P.O.B. (Oxford).—Your problem is marked for insertion, and it shall appear in the course of the present month.

S.B. (St. George's-square).—The position is a very interesting one, but its publication would necessitate an analysis too lengthy for the space at our disposal.

E.L.G. (Blackwater).—We congratulate you upon your success with No. 1755. Please look at No. 1757 once more.

A.B.S. (Telford).—Thanks for the game. We should be glad to hear from you frequently.

E.T. (Bath).—The match appears to be a very interesting one, and the games shall have due honours in the course of a week or two.

S.H. (Nottingham).—We are glad to hear of your restoration to health. Many thanks for the problem and the games.

J.T. (Eton College).—Please see the notice in our last issue respecting No. 1756. The problem cannot be solved in the way you suggest. Your own problem shall have our best attention.

W.B.H.—The author of Nos. 1724 and 1755 is Mr. H. E. Kidson. No. 1744 was composed by Mr. J. A. W. Hunter, of Edinburgh.

E.E.A.—In Problem No. 1747, if Black plays 1. R takes R, White mates by 2. Kt to Q 4th, discovering checkmate. The other is the solution of No. 1752.

PROBLEMS received from J. Thurnby, S. Hamel, W.B. Grove, H.A. Nisbet, H.G. Trembath. Games received from H.W.B.G., A.B.S., E.T., and S.H.

CORRECT SOLUTIONS OF PROBLEM No. 1755 received from D.H. E.L.G. and P.S. Shenale; No. 1756, from H.H. Brooks, P.S. Shenale, A. Wood, Jane N. of Utrecht, D.H. C. Weller, and T.E. Hughes.

CORRECT SOLUTIONS OF PROBLEM No. 1757 received from J.D. Hontefeyn, S.A. Sillem, T. Edgar, G.T. Greenbank, G. Schofield, W. Nelson, B.R. Stone, Lix. Leonora and Leon. R. Roughhead, Only Jones, T.R.Y., N.E.D., W.V. Pettit, S. Weston, H.R.G. B. Parkinson, Triton, Black Knight, G. Postbrooke, H. Burgher, L. Burnett, N. Brock, F. Wharton, S.E. J. Wootton, W.H.E. J. Reeves, W.C. Lutton, M.R. Thayer, P.G.V. B. Hallowell, N. Franklin, M. Rawlins, A. Mackenzie, Paul's Root, Robin Gray, L. Elmaker, M. and N.C. Cox, N. Powell, G. Sharswood, R. Selby, Americaine, J.W. Fletcher, B. Champneys, L. of Truro, H.H. Brooks, Woolwich Chess Club, Dr. P. St. P.S. Shenale, Hereward, Wovley, W. Macrae, A. Wood, W.B. Ward, H.M. Pridoux, J. Sargent, E.H.H.V. Bas, W.H. Allen, Coplano, Amateurs of Vieuxseux's Cabinet, Florence, J. Thurnby, and T.E. Hughes.

CORRECT SOLUTIONS OF ENIGMA No. 15 received from P.S. Shenale; No. 16 from P.S. Shenale, W.B.G., H.A.N., Jane N. of Utrecht, and Emile Frau.

SOLUTION OF PROBLEM No. 1755.

WHITE.	BLACK.	WHITE.	BLACK.
1. Q to R 7th	K takes R	3. Q to K 3rd (ch)	K moves
2. R to B 6th (ch)	K to Kt 4th	4. Q or R mates accordingly.

PROBLEM No. 1759.

By JAMES PIERCE, M.A.

BLACK.

WHITE.

White to play, and mate in two moves.

CHESS IN PARIS.

The following pair of amusing little Games were played lately at the Café de la Régence, in Paris, M. ROSENTHAL, the distinguished chessplayer and analyst, yielding the odds of the Knight.

(Remove White's Queen's Knight from the Board.)

WHITE (M.R.)	BLACK (M.C.)	WHITE (M.R.)	BLACK (M.C.)
1. P to K 4th	P to K 4th	1. P to K 4th	P to K 4th
2. P to K 3rd	P takes P	2. P to K 3rd	P takes P
3. Kt to K 3rd	P to Kt 4th	3. Kt to K 3rd	P to Kt 4th
4. B to B 4th	B to K 2nd	4. B to B 4th	B to K 2nd
5. P to Q 4th	P to Q 3rd	5. P to Q 4th	P to Q 3rd
6. P to Q 3rd	P to K 3rd	6. P to Q 3rd	P to K 3rd
7. Castles	B to K 4th	7. Castles	B to K 4th
8. Q to Q 4th	B takes Kt	8. Q to Q 4th	B takes Kt
9. B takes P (ch)	K to B 3rd	9. B takes P (ch)	K to B 3rd
10. R takes B	Kt to K 3rd	10. R takes B	Kt to K 3rd
11. B to K 6th	P to Q 4th	11. B to K 6th	P to Q 4th
12. P to K 5th	Kt to K 5th	12. P to K 5th	Kt to K 5th
13. B takes P		13. B takes P

Between M. ROSENTHAL and an Amateur, the former giving the King's Knight.—(Remove White's K Kt from the Board.)

WHITE (M.R.)	BLACK (Amateur.)	WHITE (M.R.)	BLACK (Amateur.)
1. P to K 4th	P to K 4th	1. P to K 4th	P to K 4th
2. P takes P	Q takes P	2. P takes P	Q takes P
3. Kt to Q 3rd	Q to Q 3rd	3. Kt to Q 3rd	Q to Q 3rd
4. P to Q 4th	P to K 3rd	4. P to Q 4th	P to K 3rd
5. B to Q 3rd	B to Q 3rd	5. B to Q 3rd	B to Q 3rd
6. Castles	Kt to K 3rd	6. Castles	Kt to K 3rd
7. B to K 4th	P to Q 3rd	7. B to K 4th	P to Q 3rd
8. Kt to K 4th	P to K 3rd	8. Kt to K 4th	P to K 3rd
9. B to R 4th	P to Kt 4th	9. B to R 4th	P to Kt 4th
10. B to K 3rd	Kt takes Kt	10. B to K 3rd	Kt takes Kt
11. B takes Kt	P to K 4th	11. B takes Kt	P to K 4th
12. R to K 5th	P to R 5th	12. R to K 5th	P to R 5th
13. B takes B	Q takes B	13. B takes B	Q takes B

CHESS IN RUSSIA.

Between Mr. AYLMER MAUDE and M. HELLMIG.—(Allgaier Gambit.)

WHITE (M.H.)	BLACK (M.M.)	WHITE (M.H.)	BLACK (M.M.)
1. P to K 4th	P to K 4th	1. P to K 4th	P to K 4th
2. P to K 3rd	P takes P	2. P to K 3rd	P takes P
3. Kt to K 3rd	P to Kt 4th	3. Kt to K 3rd	P to Kt 4th
4. P to K 4th	P to K 5th	4. P to K 4th	P to K 5th
5. Kt to Kt 5th	P to R 3rd	5. Kt to Kt 5th	P to R 3rd
6. Kt takes P	K takes Kt	6. Kt takes P	K takes Kt
7. B to B 4th (ch)	P to Q 4th	7. B to B 4th (ch)	P to Q 4th
8. B takes P (ch)	Kt to K 3rd	8. B takes P (ch)	Kt to K 3rd
9. P to Q 4th	Kt to K 3rd	9. P to Q 4th	Kt to K 3rd

CHESS INTELLIGENCE.

It is proposed to form a society, under the title of the British Chess Problem Association, for the purpose of holding periodical problem and solution tournaments with adequate prizes, and the establishment of a problem code for the guidance of chessplayers concerned in such competitions. The annual subscription will be five shillings; but solvers who do not intend entering the problem contests will be admitted to the solution tournaments at half price. The following problem-composers have signified their intention of joining the association—viz. Messrs. Abbott, Andrews, Callender, Campbell, Duffy, Farrow, Finlason, Grimshaw, Greenwood, Johnstone, Kidson, Miles, Mitcheson, Nash, Ormond, Pavitt, Pearson, Pierce, W.T. Pierce, Ranken, Slater, Taylor, Thomas, and Watkinson. Intending subscribers should send their names to Mr. H. J. C. Andrews, The Ferns, Addington-grove, Sydenham.

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

The will and codicil (dated June 28 and July 5, 1877) of Mr. Peter Graham, late of No. 20, Lancaster-gate, who died on July 15 last, were proved on the 2nd ult. by Mrs. Emma Graham, the widow, and Walter Graham, the son, the acting executors, the personal estate being sworn under £90,000. The testator bequeaths to his wife all his household furniture, plate, pictures, effects, horses, and carriages, two annuities of £500 each, and the income of a moiety of the residue of the personalty for life; legacies to his sons, brother, sisters, and others. His freehold estate in Cumberland he devises to his eldest son George and his heirs; and other freehold estate to his four younger sons. The remainder of his freehold estate is divided between his five sons.

The will (dated May 31, 1877) of Mr. John Hugh Bainbridge, of Frankfield, in the county of Cork, has been proved in the principal registry, London, by his son, John Hugh Bainbridge, Commander R.N., and Mr. Robert Conway Dobbs, the executors therein named. After certain special bequests in favour of his said son and his daughters, Elvior, wife of the Right Rev. Samuel Gregg, Lord Bishop of Ossory, and Miss Jane Anne Bainbridge, the testator devises and bequeaths the residue of his real and personal estate to his son, charged with £7000 in favour of his daughter Miss Bainbridge, and the sum of £2000 to be paid to the trustees of Mrs. Gregg's settlement, in addition to the sum of £5000 settled on her marriage. The personalty is sworn under £45,000.

The will (dated Aug. 15, 1873) of Thomas Charles Geldart, LL.D., Master of Trinity Hall, University of Cambridge, who died on Sept. 17 last, was proved on the 23rd ult. by the Rev. Geldart John Evans Riadore, the Rev. James William Geldart, and Henry Charles Geldart, the nephews, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £35,000. The testator leaves to his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Geldart, £3000, all his furniture, plate, pictures, wines, household effects, horses, and carriages, and an annuity of £800 for life. There are a good many legacies to members of his family and annuities to two old servants. Three fifths of the residue he leaves upon trust for his nephew Geldart John Evans Riadore, and the other two fifths upon trust for his nephew James Evans Riadore.

The will and codicil (both dated Aug. 21, 1877) of Mdlle. Theresa Carolina Johanna Tietjens, late of No. 51, Finchley New-road, St. John's-wood, who died on the 3rd ult., were proved on the 25th ult. by Alfred Markby and Charles Green, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £16,000. As the accounts as to the disposition of her property which have already appeared are very misleading, we now give a correct abstract. The testatrix bequeaths to her sister, Henrietta Bell, £1000; to her sister, Augusta Theresa Kruls, £200; to her cousin, Emma Drögemöller, £500; and to her executors £100 each, all free of legacy duty. Her freehold house, No. 51, Finchley New-road, her freehold ground rents in Belsize-road, and her leasehold house, No. 53, Finchley New-road, the testatrix leaves upon trust for her said sister, Augusta Theresa Kruls for life, and at her death to her (testatrix's) niece, Augusta Kruls, absolutely. All her furniture, plate, household effects, jewellery, lace, horses, and carriages, she gives to her two nieces, Augusta Kruls and Maria Bevigiani; £5000 is left upon trust for her brother, Peter Tietjens, for life, and after his decease to all his children. The residue of her real and personal estate she leaves upon trust for her sister, Augusta Theresa Kruls, for life, and afterwards for her three children, Fritz Kruls, Augusta Kruls, and Maria Bevigiani. Any property or interest given to any female is to be for her separate use, and free from the control, interference, or debts of any husband. The testatrix declares that she is a naturalised British subject, and domiciled in England.

The will and two codicils (dated June 13, 1860, Aug. 24, 1864, and Nov. 7, 1870) of Mr. Charles Cooper Henderson, late of Lower Halliford, Middlesex, who died on Aug. 21 last, has been proved by John Henderson, the brother, and Charles Cooper Henderson, the son, the acting executors, the personal estate being sworn under £5000. Subject to legacies to his executors, the testator gives all his real and personal estate, including his share of the estate of his late mother at Spitalfields, to his eight children.

The Bradford correspondent of the Times gives the following particulars of the will and codicils of the late Sir Titus Salt, of Crow Nest, near Halifax, proved in the Wakefield District Registry. The will is dated Jan. 18, 1871, and there are two codicils, one dated Jan. 4, 1873, and the other July 28, 1876. The personal estate is sworn under £400,000. An endowment of £30,000 is provided for the benefit of the sick and aged poor of Saltaire and the neighbourhood, and power is given to the testator's widow, Lady Salt, and his son, Mr. Titus Salt, to settle a scheme for its application. The almshouses and the dispensary at Saltaire, the mausoleum, the Saltaire Club and Institute, and the Sunday and day schools, are also given to Lady Salt and Mr. Titus Salt. The nature, plate, pictures, carriages, &c., at Crow Nest, and an immediate legacy of £2000 are given to the testator's widow; also an annuity of £5000 and a life interest in the Crow Nest estate. Several annuities are also given to relatives of the testator, and legacies to domestic servants, varying according to duration of service. Legacies of £100,000 each are given to the testator's sons, Sir William Henry Salt, the present Baronet, and Mr. Herbert Salt; and a legacy of £80,000 is settled upon each of the testator's three daughters. A further legacy of £100,000 is bequeathed to trustees, to be invested in the purchase of real estate, which is to be settled so as to form a permanent provision for the Baronetcy. Subject to the payment of the legacies and annuities, the whole of the personal estate is given to the testator's three sons, George, Edward, and Titus, who were engaged with him in the business carried on at Saltaire at the time of his death. The estate at Crow Nest (subject to a life interest of the testator's widow), the mills, cottages, and works at Saltaire, and all other real estate, are devised to the testator's four sons and his son-in-law, Mr. Henry Wright, in trust (after making provision for payment of any legacies or annuities which may not be provided for out of the personal estate) for his residuary legatees, Messrs. George, Edward, and Titus Salt, equally as tenants in common. The will contains numerous clauses for facilitating the carrying out of its provisions, and Messrs. George, Edward, and Titus Salt are appointed executors, by whom the will and codicils have been proved.

At a coroner's inquest at Northampton on Monday, the jury returned a verdict of manslaughter against Gibson, inspector of the Northampton district, and the pointsman, Gardner, at Castle Ashby station, for neglect at the recent railway collision.

The Lord Provost of Glasgow has received a letter from Lord Hartington intimating that he will accept the freedom of the city of Glasgow on Monday next, Nov. 5. Lord Hartington will be the guest of Lord Rosebery, and will return to Edinburgh on the 6th, where he will attend the Liberal demonstration. He will be in Glasgow for a similar purpose on Nov. 7.

SPECIAL NOTICE.—CARPETS.
OETZMANN and CO. beg to announce that they have now received all their new designs in CARPETS for the present season, adapted to every climate, from the richest qualities and most artistic designs to the neat and inexpensive kinds. An early inspection solicited.—OETZMANN and CO., COMPLETE HOUSE FURNISHERS, 67 to 79, HAMPTSTEAD-ROAD, near Tottenham-court-road.

FURNISH THROUGHOUT.

OETZMANN & CO.,

67, 69, 71, 73, 77 & 79,

HAMPTSTEAD-ROAD,

NEAR TOTTENHAM-COURT-ROAD.

FURNISH THROUGHOUT.
OETZMANN and CO., 67, 69, 71, 73, 77, and 79, Hampstead-road, near Tottenham-court-road. Cabinet Factory, Albion Works, Drummond-street; Bedding Factory, Eagle-place, London, N.W. Carpets, Furniture, Bedding, Drapery, Furnishings, 1 rooming, China, Glass, Paper, Hangings, Pictures, Bronzes, Clocks, &c., and every other requisite for completely furnishing a house throughout.

THE IMMENSE RANGE OF PREMISES
formerly the EAGLE BREWERY having been REBUILT and ADDED to their SHOW-ROOMS, it is now one of the largest Furnishing Establishments in the world. Comparison of price and quality respectfully solicited before deciding elsewhere. OETZMANN and CO. are enabled to offer special advantages to Country Customers in delivery of Goods by their own large PATENT-IRON RAILWAGONS, and fixing in position by competent persons. Descriptive Catalogue, free best Furnishing Guide extant, post-free.—OETZMANN and CO.

CABINET and UPHOLSTERY
DEPARTMENT.—Elegant Drawing-room Suites, handsomely carved Italian Walnut Wood, upholstered in rich Worsted Damask, from 8 guineas; ditto, in rich Silk and Satin, 20 to 30 guineas; elegant Black and Gold Suites, from 12 guineas; superior ditto, from 15 to 20 guineas; Solid Mahogany Dining-room Suites, 8 guineas; ditto, fine Spanish Mahogany, upholstered in best maroon leather, 16 guineas; massive Mahogany Telescope Dining Tables, from 22 lbs.; handsome Paper Hangings, Pictures, Bronzes, Clocks, &c., and every other requisite for completely furnishing a house throughout.—OETZMANN and CO.

SIDEBOARDS.—OETZMANN and CO.
SIDEBOARDS.—Large and Handsome Mahogany or Oak Sideboards, with high plate-glass back and carved mountings, price 15 guineas; massive Spanish Mahogany or Oak ditto, very handsome, 25 guineas; noble Spanish Mahogany or Oak ditto; elegant mahogany, and lofty plate-glass back, made and finished in the best possible manner, price 35 guineas. A variety of Early English and other designs in rich Spanish Mahogany or finest carved Oak, from 25 to 60 guineas.—OETZMANN and CO.

OETZMANN and CO.'S BED-ROOM
SUITES.—One of the largest and best assortments in the kingdom to select from, displayed in Show-rooms 220 ft. long, with Bedsteads and Bedding fitted up for inspection. Bed-room Suite, consisting of Wardrobe, Chest of Drawers, Washstand, Toilet Table and Glass, Towel Rail, Three Chairs, and Pedestal Cupboard, from 64 guineas, complete. Some new and elegant designs at 15, 18, and 21 guineas; large and handsome decorated Bed-room Suites in ash, pitch pine, and other woods, at 28, 36, 50, and 75 guineas; also in black and gold, 80 guineas upwards.—OETZMANN and CO.

BEDDING DEPARTMENT.—Strong Iron
Bedsteads, from 6s. 6d. each; superior Iron French ditto, 10s. 6d.; handsome Arabian Bedsteads, from 7s. 6d. upwards; excellent Mattresses, full size 12s. 6d.; good Feather Beds, full size, 30s.; ditto Bolsters, 7s. 6d.; ditto Pillows, 3s. 6d. each; handsome 3-ft. Mahogany Washstands, with marble top, 15s. 6d.; Mahogany Toilet-Glass (best plate glass, size of plate 16 inches by 15 inches), 5s. 6d.—OETZMANN and CO.

PAPERHANGINGS.—OETZMANN and CO.
PAPERHANGINGS at WHOLESALE PRICES. A great saving in price. All the new patterns are now on view at the Show-Rooms.—OETZMANN and CO.

CARPETS. FURNITURE.
CARPETS. FURNITURE.
CARPETS. FURNITURE.
CARPETS. FURNITURE.

ARTISTIC FURNISHING.—OETZMANN and CO.
and CO. are introducing a variety of Elegant Persian and Indian Designs in Rugs and Mats, to meet the requirements of Artistic Furnishing, at moderate cost. Large Rugs (excellent copies of real Persian and Indian) from 10s. each. A visit of inspection solicited.—OETZMANN and CO.

ANGLO-TURKEY CARPETS.
OETZMANN and CO.—These superior Carpets, of which Messrs. OETZMANN and CO. have the exclusive sale, are of first-class British manufacture, have all the style and appearance of real Turkey Carpets, at little more than the price of good Brussels, and are very durable. Price-List post-free on application. For the convenience of those residing at a distance, a large piece, showing the Border and Centre of Carpet, sent on receipt of 5s., which will be deducted from price of Carpet or refunded upon return of pattern. Heartflurs to match, 6 ft. long by 2 ft. 6 in. wide, 12s. 6d. A large stock of real Turkey Carpets, at reduced prices.—OETZMANN and CO.

CARPET DEPARTMENT.—Stout Tapestry
Brussels Carpet, 1s. 9d.; handsome pattern ditto, from 2s. 6d. to 2s. 9d. per yard; superior Brussels, new designs, from 2s. 11d. upwards. Kidderminster Carpet, all wool 1s. 11d. per yard; Patent Felt Carpeting, from 11s. 6d. per yard; superior Rock-dye ditto, handsome designs, double width, 1s. 11d. per yard; excellent Stair Carpet, from 6d. per yard; best quality, all-wool ditto, 1s. per yard.—OETZMANN and CO.

EVERYONE SHOULD SEE the large,
handsome AXMINSTER HEARTH RUGS that OETZMANN and CO. are now selling at 5s. 11d. each; usual price 15s. 6d. There is nothing sold that can be compared with these for quality and cheapness, and an immense variety of Designs and Colours to suit every pattern in Carpets. A visit of inspection solicited.—OETZMANN and CO.

DOWN QUILTS.—OETZMANN and CO.'S
EIDER and ARCTIC DOWN QUILTS and CLOTHING combine the greatest amount of warmth attainable with the least possible weight, and are of the very best quality. Price-List post-free.—OETZMANN and CO.

DRAPERY DEPARTMENT.—Large
White Quilts, 2½ yards by 2 yards, 4s. 11d.; handsome Marcella ditto, 5s. 9d.; White Wool Blankets, from 6s. per pair (see Special Reduced List, sent post-free); Large Whitey ditto, 2½ yards long, 5s. 11d. per pair; handsome Cloth Table-Covers, from 4s. 11d.; magnificent ditto, large size, 10s. 11d.; Good Chintzes, new patterns, 4s. 6d. per yard; Cretonne ditto, from 6d. per yard.—OETZMANN and CO.

EXHIBITION PATTERN COAL VASE.
OETZMANN and CO.'S new Special Designs for the Season, much admired, handsomely japanned, and rich burnished gold ornamentation, with opal handles, strong loose lining, a great convenience and saving in wear. Price complete, 21s.—OETZMANN and CO.

ROYAL WORCESTERSHIRE CHINA
has been obtained from the celebrated ROYAL PORCELAIN WORKS can be obtained from OETZMANN and CO. Complete House Furnishers, 67 to 79, Hampstead-road, who are also SOLE-DEALERS of the CLEOPATRA TOILET SERVICES (ewer, basin, &c., complete—nine pieces), from 10s. 6d. per set.—Descriptive Price-List of the same can be had post-free on application.

CHINA and GLASS DEPARTMENT.
Alexandra Pattern Toilet Services (ewer, basin, &c., complete, nine pieces), 7s. 11d.; handsome ditto, 9s. 6d.; Richly Cut Decanters, 7s. 6d. per pair; Cut Wines, from 2s. 6d. per dozen; superior ditto, richly cut, reduced to 5s. 6d. per dozen; Gift Clocks, under glass shades, from 18s. 9d. each; 12 Cottage Clocks, from 15s. 9d. each; Elegant Lustres, Vase, Parian Figures, &c.—OETZMANN and CO.

OETZMANN and CO., COMPLETE
HOUSE FURNISHERS, 67, 69, 71, 73, 77 and 79, Hampstead-road (three minutes' walk from Tottenham-court-road and Finnerley Station, Metropolitan Railway). Lowest prices consistent with guaranteed quality. Orders per post, large or small, receive prompt and faithful attention in the selection. Close at seven, and on Saturdays at Four o'clock. Descriptive Catalogue post-free.—OETZMANN and CO.

DESCRIPTIVE CATALOGUE, post-free.

OETZMANN & CO.,

HAMPTSTEAD-ROAD.

AT PETER ROBINSON'S
WAREHOUSE FOR BLACK GOODS,
REGENT-STREET.
For TWO GUINEAS and up to FIVE,
CHOICE BLACK MATERIAL COSTUMES COMPLETE,
In the New Style,
(Princess Polonaise and Skirt).
Patterns and Photos free.

URGENT MOURNING.
"ON RECEIPT of LETTER
or TELEGRAM."
MOURNING GOODS will be forwarded to all parts of England, on approbation—no matter the distance—
with an excellent fitting Dressmaker (if required),
without extra charge.
PETER ROBINSON, 225, 226, 227, Regent-street, London.

DEEP MOURNING ORDERS.
DRESSES, Costumes, Mantles, Millinery,
and all made-up articles,
in the most appropriate and best styles,
at the lowest possible cost.
Dressmaking and Millinery,
by clever and expert artists.

INEXPENSIVE MOURNING, as well as the Richest Qualities, can be supplied by PETER ROBINSON,
upon the most advantageous terms, to Families.
The Court and Family Mourning Warehouse,
225, 226, 227, Regent-street, London.

PETER ROBINSON, of REGENT-STREET.

IMPORTANT PURCHASE OF 900 PIECES OF LYONS BLACK SILKS OF THE BEST MAKES.
Bonnet's and Cie. from 5s. 6d. to 10s. 6d.
Jaubert's from 5s. 6d. to 10s. 6d.
Ponsard's from 5s. 6d. to 10s. 6d.
Dégère from 5s. 6d. to 10s. 6d.
The Empress Cashmere at 5s.

Also excellent value
at 2s. 6d., 3s. 3d., 4s. 11d., and 5s. 11d.
Patterns free.
PETER ROBINSON, of REGENT-STREET,
Nos. 225 to 227.

BLACK SILK DRESS VELVETS.
Exceedingly good qualities,
at 7s. 6d., 8s. 9d., 10s. 6d., 12s. 6d., 15s. 6d.

A Special Bargain
in Lyons Velvet, at 10s. 9d.
Black Silk-Trimming Velvets,
at 4s. 6d., 5s. 6d., 6s. 9d.
At PETER ROBINSON'S, of REGENT-STREET,
Nos. 225 to 227.

FOR SIX GUINEAS.

A BLACK SILK COSTUME,
Made of Rich Lyons Silk,
with Velvet Gariture,
Exquisitely cut and fashioned.
Copies of expensive Paris Models.
PETER ROBINSON, of REGENT-STREET.

REMARKABLY CHEAP.
For One Guinea, A Black Quilted SATIN PETTICOAT.
For 2½ Guineas, A Black Silk TRAINED SKIRT.
At PETER ROBINSON'S, of REGENT-STREET.

FOR TWO GUINEAS, and up to Seven,
Costumes in New Black Materials,
in the most fashionable style,
at PETER ROBINSON'S, of REGENT-STREET.

EVENING DRESSES, at One Guinea.
Black Brussels Net, at 25s. 6d.
Tulle (condition keeping), 50s.
Grenadine, 25s. 6d.
New Styles, well cut, and elegantly trimmed.
Illustrations free.

THE NEW CRAPE.
The Pure Silk Gordian Crape,
for Widows and Families.
Its advantages are—that it is made of Silk so pure that it will not crease when sat upon, nor spot with rain or perspiration.
It is a rich, soft, free from dress and the gummed appearance so objectionable in other Crape.
The wear of every day is guaranteed.
The Gordian Crape is a Specialty,
only to be obtained at
PETER ROBINSON'S, of REGENT-STREET,
THE MOURNING WAREHOUSE, Nos. 225 to 227.
Excellent qualities at 4s. 9d., 5s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 9s. 6d.
Patterns free.

FUR-LINED CLOAKS
At Summer Prices.
Good useful Cloaks
at 34 and 44 guineas.

SEMI-FITTING SEAL PALETOTS,
33 inches long, for 9½ guineas.
36 inches long, for 11 guineas.
39 inches long, for 13 guineas.
At PETER ROBINSON'S, of REGENT-STREET.

NOTICE.—In reference to the above advertisements,
it is to be clearly understood that all orders should be addressed to 225 to 227, REGENT-STREET.

DISSOLUTION OF PARTNERSHIP of
GASK and GASK.
Sale of the whole of their Immense Stock of Silk Memory General Drapery, &c., ALL NEW THIS SEASON.
Mr. Henry Gask being compelled by ill-health to retire from the business, great Reductions in price will be made throughout all the departments, and all goods marked in plain figures, at the lowest prices,
for ready money only.
Silks, Costumes, Mantles, Dress Fabrics, Linens,
Blankets, Gloves, Hosiery, Lace Goods, Mourning, &c.
Doors will be opened at Ten o'clock.
GASK and GASK,
58, 59, 60, 61, 62, 63, Oxford-street; and Wells-street.

WOOLLEN CLOTHS.—Waterproof
Tweeds, Matelassé Cloths, Sealskins, Fur Beavers, and other materials for Ladies' Jackets; also every kind of Woollen Goods for Gentlemen's and Boys' wear.
C. MEKING and CO., Woollen Warehouse,
111 and 112, Hatton-garden, Holborn-circus, London.

SWAN and EDGAR are showing the choicest Paris styles in Costumes and Mantles for Autumn wear; also Sealskins, Gilettes, the new shape, made from selected skins, commencing at 9 guineas. Designs and price-list free.

SWAN and EDGAR are offering a Stock of Black Silks made expressly for wear at 3s. 11d., 4s. 11d.,
5s. 11d., and 7s. 6d. a yard. New Dress Materials for Autumn.
Patterns free. Piccadilly, and Regent-street, London.

WEDDING TROUSSEAU,
£20, £30, and £100.
LAYETTES, £5, £10, and £20.
INDIAN OUTFIT, £25.
Illustrated Price-List post-free.
Mrs. ADDLEY BOURNE, 37, Piccadilly.

SWANBILL CENTURE CORSET (Regd.).
An admirable combination of Gouture and Corset of novel and ingenious manufacture, combining the advantages of both Stay and Corset. While imparting a graceful symmetry and elegance to the figure, it affords a degree of comfort to the wearer not to be derived from an ordinary Corset. 16in. deep, 2½ in. wide, with P.O. order.
Sous la direction d'une couturière Parisienne.
Mrs. ADDLEY BOURNE, Ladies' Outfitter, &c., 37, Piccadilly (opposite St. James's Church), London; and 26 7/8, Rue St. Lazare, Paris.

DR. DUNBAR'S ALKARAM, or ANTI-CATARH SMELLING BOTTLE.

THE ONLY CURE for COLDS and
SORE THROATS,
BY INHALATION.

ALKARAM, if inhaled on the first symptoms of cold, will at once arrest them;
and even when a cold has been neglected and become severe, it will give immediate relief, and generally cure in one day.

ALKARAM contains no narcotic, and never produces any unpleasant effects. All those who dread the usual remedies for Colds, which almost always contain morphia or chloral, may safely avail themselves of this innocent and pleasant remedy. It acts as a slight canter, but gives no pain; on the contrary, the smell is agreeable and reviving.

ALKARAM.
"Sandgate-road, Folkestone,
Jan. 4, 1874.
"Sir,—I have just obtained a bottle of your excellent and unrivalled Cure for Colds. I have tried at over 200 chemists for an effective cure, but never found one till I obtained your Alkaram, for which I thank you heartily.
"I am, Sir, yours, &c.,
"CYRIL DAVENOR."

ALKARAM may be safely used by
Children, as will be seen from the following Testimonial:—
"49, Grosvenor-road, Highbury.
"Sir,—Allow me to testify to the efficacy of your Cure for Colds. Six of my children were troubled with colds, and, having been induced to try your Alkaram, I have much pleasure in saying that it cured them in one day thoroughly.
"I am, Sir, yours respectfully,
"LOUIS GOLDSTEIN."

ALKARAM.
"35, Baker-street, May 10, 1876.
"Dear Sir,—Your Alkaram is certainly a great boon, and seems to have a wonderful effect in cases of Hay-Fever and Cold in the Head. It should prove more and more valuable during the winter months, when colds are so general.
"Yours truly,
"A. W. FORTES, F.R.S."

ALKARAM.—Of all Chemists, at 2s. 9d.
a Bottle.
AGENTS FOR INDIA.—Messrs. Smith Stanistreet, and Co.,
Calcutta.
AGENTS FOR AUSTRALIA.—Messrs. Elliott Brothers, Sydney;
and Messrs. Hammons, Laws, and Co., Melbourne.
Address DR. DUNBAR, care of Messrs. F. Newbery and Sons,
57, Newgate-street, London, E.C.

DIGESTIVE LOZENGES
or
VICHY,
Manufactured from the Salts extracted from the Mineral Waters.

The Vichy Lozenges should be taken by those persons whose digestion is difficult, painful, or laborious.
In cases of slow or difficult digestion, a few of the Lozenges should be taken before each repast.
The Lozenges are flavoured with peppermint, lemon, vanilla, rose, orange-flower, or anise.

In Boxes, at 1s. and 2s. each.
VICHY BATHS FOR BATHS.
In Packets, for One Bath, 1s. 6d. each.
VICHY BATHS FOR BATHS.
An excellent Digestive Balm.
In Boxes, 1s. 6d., 2s. 6d., and 3s. 6d.

All these Preparations are guaranteed by the French Government.
Sold by all respectable Chemists.

LESLIE'S ALMONDISSED COD-LIVER OIL (Registered).
The purest Oil, and, by Almond flavouring, rendered palatable and easy of digestion. No disagreeable smell or taste, no nausea, and taken readily by the most delicate constitution and by children.
"British Medical Journal" says:—"Whilst securing the beneficial results traceable to Cod-Liver Oil as a valuable tonic and dietetic, we have found no difficulty in inducing our little patients to take it." "Sanitary Record" says:—"We have tried its effect on the most delicate constitutions with marked effect.
So well are the odour and taste of the Oil disguised that children will take the preparation with avidity." "Medical Times" says:—"The taste is decidedly masked by the almond flavouring, and we can testify that the result is satisfactory."
Price: Pint, 4s. 6d.; half pint, 2s. 6d.; quarter pint, 1s. 6d.;
Imperial Measure.
Retail of all Chemists and Druggists, and Wholesale of LESLIE and CO. (Limited), Bond Court House, Walbrook, London.

NEURALGIE gives instant relief in TIC
DOLOREUX, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Toothache, Rheumatism, Gout, and all Nerve and Local Pains.—Mr. Edgar, Butt Lighthouse, Island of Lewis, thus writes to Sir James Matheson:
—"Mrs. Edgar cannot express her thanks to Lady Matheson for sending her the Neuraline. It proved the most successful remedy she had ever applied. The relief experienced was almost instantaneous."—Dated Nov. 23, 1876.

HAY FEVER, COLDS, and all Disorders
of the Mucous Membrane promptly cured by GLYKALINE.

LEATH and ROSS, Homoeopathic Chemists,
15, St. Paul's-churchyard, and 8, Vere-st., W.; and sold by all
Chemists, in Bottles, 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 3d.; by post, 1s. 3d. and 2s.

TAMAR INDIEN.—Owing to the marked success of this fruit-Lozenge—so agreeable to take and universally prescribed by the Faculty, for constipation, headache, bile, hemorrhoids, &c.—Bare Institutions containing drastic irritants are being foisted on the public. The genuine preparations bear the title "Tamar Indien." Price 2s. 6d. per Box.

CONSUMPTION ! CONSUMPTION !
SILPHIUM CYRENAICUM
(this celebrated plant of the Ancients) has now been acknowledged by the principal celebrities of the French Faculty to be the only cure for Consumption and all affections of the Pulmonary Organs, Asthma, Bronchitis, &c. Its effect is magical, and the cure certain. To be obtained from all Chemists, with pamphlets, full instructions, &c. Wholesale from London Patent Medicine house.

"FOR THE BLOOD IS THE LIFE."
CLARKE'S WORLD-FAMED BLOOD
MIXTURE is warranted to cleanse the Blood from all impurities, from whatever cause arising. For Scrofula, Scurvy, Skin and Blood Diseases its effects are marvellous. In bottles, 2s. 6d. each, and in cases containing six times the quantity, 11s.
each, of all Chemists. Sent to any address for 30 or 132 stamps, by the Proprietor, F. J. CLARKE, Chemist, London.

CORPULENCE.—YATE HOLLAND'S
EMACERATING POWDERS safely absorb superfluous fat and reduce corpulence, however long standing. Price 2s. 6d., 4s. 6d., and 11s. per Box.—MARTIN and CO., 3, Paradise-road, London, S.W.; or through any Chemist.

THROAT IRRITATION.
EPPE'S GLYCERINE JUJUBES.
Sold only in Boxes, 6d. and 1s., labelled
JAMES EPPE and CO., HOMOEOPATHIC CHEMISTS,
44, Threadneedle-street; and 170, Piccadilly.

"In point of fact, the mass of the London Water is drawn from sources which are contaminated by the most offensive of all impurities."—Times Leading Article, Monday, Aug. 13, 1877.

A POLLINARIS WATER.
"THE QUEEN OF TABLE WATERS."
London Medical Record.

"The history of human sickness induced by water pollution, if it could be fully written, would be a very horrible and startling record."—Times Leading Article, Aug. 17, 1877.

A POLLINARIS WATER.
An eminent physician says:—"He who drinks
Apollinaris will never be troubled with gout, rheumatism, or indigestion."—Morning Post.

"It is now demonstrated, beyond possibility of doubt, that the water supplied by the existing London companies is uniformly impure, and that, notwithstanding the exorbitant rates at which it is delivered, the quantity furnished is insufficient to meet the general wants of the community. The Thames and the Lea, at present the principal sources of supply, are well known to be extensively polluted with organic impurities from the sewage of towns and hamlets contiguous to their banks; and, although some improvement has been effected in this respect by the removal of the 'fish-balls' of the companies to greater distances from the metropolis, and by the adoption of more efficient methods of filtration, there is still ground for complaint that the quality of the water derived from the rivers mentioned is unfit for drinking and culinary purposes."—Daily Telegraph, Aug. 20, 1877.

A POLLINARIS WATER.
"Free from any organic or inorganic impurity."—Professor J. WASTLEY, Public Analyst, County of Buckingham.

"Again, London is wretchedly supplied with potable water.
The statistics on this point are decisive, but the citizens of the capital do not need the evidence of statistics. They have much more direct proof of the nature and extent of the evil. All the world knows that unless London water is carefully filtered it cannot be safely consumed. It contains an alarming amount of organic matter, and it is not only disagreeable to the taste, but undoubtedly spreads abroad disease and death."—Globe, Aug. 22, 1877.

A POLLINARIS WATER.
"Purity, freshness, persistent effectiveness, and agreeable flavour, alone or mixed with wines or spirits."
—Practitioner.

"THE LONDON WATER SUPPLY.—Next to pure air, pure water is all-important. In spite of the unceasing efforts of our eight Water Companies, the water we get increases in impurity rather than the contrary. The reports of Dr. Frankland are becoming less assuring to the water consumer, and in respect of one or two of the companies supplying the southern districts of the metropolis the analyses and reports show decidedly an alarming condition of the sources of supply. On several occasions we have sounded the alarm, and the great danger of the water supply must become more and more apparent to everybody who considers the extension of our land drainage, and the lands above the intakes of the companies in the upper reaches of the Thames, which are now irrigated with sewage. In spite of the precautions taken by the Water Companies to store and filter the water, it is impossible to keep pace with the increasing drainage areas that now pour their volumes into the stream, and the question recurs daily with more force, What are Londoners to drink?
—Echo, Aug. 22, 1877.

A POLLINARIS NATURAL MINERAL WATER.
"THE TYPE OF PURITY."—Professor BARTLETT, F.R.S.
"A PURE NATURAL EFFERVESCENT WATER."—The PALE MALLET GAZETTE.
"REFRESHING, ANTACID, EXHILARATING—the sworn enemy of Gout, Rheumatism, and Indigestion."—The LONDON MEDICAL RECORD.

PRICES.—50 Glass Quarts, 26s.; 100 Glass
Pints, 42s.; in London.

PRICES.—50 Glass Quarts, 29s.; 100 Glass
Pints, 46s. Carriage paid to any railway station in the United Kingdom. Bottles allowed for on return, 2s. 9d. for 50 quarts; 4s. for 100 pints.

SMALLER QUANTITIES ARE RETAILED
by the Trade at 8s. per Dozen Quarts, and 6s. per Dozen Pints.

SOLE IMPORTERS, A POLLINARIS
COMPANY (Limited), 19, Regent-street, London, S.W.

CITY DEPOT, INGRAM and CO., 119, Queen Victoria-street, E.C. Agents for Scotland, A. Brown and Co., Glasgow.

LORNE "THE PERFECTION OF WHISKY."
HIGHLAND UNRIVALLED
WHISKY. FOR "TODDY"
Wholesale of the Sole Proprietors: GLENKILN BROTHERS,
1, Gresham-buildings, E.C. Distillers, Argyllshire.

KINAHAN'S LL WHISKY.
UNIVERSALLY RECOMMENDED BY THE MEDICAL PROFESSION. A pure old spirit, mild, mellow, delicious, and most wholesome. Dr. Haassall says:—"The samples were soft and mellow, and of a fine taste, aromatic, and of a pleasant smell. The whisky is pure, well matured, and of very excellent quality."

TAYLOR BROTHERS'
MARAVILLA COCOA,
DELICIOUS AND INVIGORATING.

MARAVILLA COCOA.
"It may justly be called the perfection
of prepared Cocoa."
British Medical Journal.

MARAVILLA COCOA.—The "Globe" says,
MARAVILLA COCOA has achieved a thorough success, and supercedes every other cocoa in the market. Entire solubility, a delicate aroma, and a rare concentration of the purest elements of nutrition, distinguish the Mar-avilla Cocoa above all others. For invalids, dyspeptics, and consumers of Cocoa in general, we could not recommend a more agreeable or valuable beverage.
Sole Proprietors, TAYLOR BROTHERS, London.

AMERICAN CENTENNIAL
PRIZE MEDAL.

FRY'S CARACAS COCOA.
Its pure flavour, delicate aroma, and invigorating qualities have established its position as a first-class dietetic article.

FRY'S CARACAS COCOA.
"The Caracas Cocoa of such choice quality."—Food,
Water, and Air (Dr. Haassall).
"A most delicious and valuable article."—Standard.

FRY'S EXTRACT OF COCOA,
"than which, if properly prepared, there is no nicer or more wholesome preparation of Cocoa."—Food, Water, and Air.
Edited by Dr. Haassall.

TENTH INTERNATIONAL MEDAL
awarded to J. S. FRY and SON.

FOR THE NURSERY, THE SICK-ROOM, AND THE FAMILY TABLE.

BROWN and POLSON'S
CORN FLOUR
HAS BECOME A WORLD-WIDE NECESSARY.

THE ESSEX FLOUR and GRAIN
COMPANY, Liverpool-road, London, N., supply the best goods only.—Whites, for Pastry, 10s. 6d. per bushel; Households, for Bread, 10s.; Wheat Meal, for Brown Bread, 8s. 4d.;
Coarse Scotch Oatmeal, 3s. 6d. per 14 lb.; Fine, 3s. 4d.; American

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS

REGISTERED AT THE GENERAL POST-OFFICE FOR TRANSMISSION ABROAD.

No. 2000.—VOL. LXXI.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 10, 1877.

WITH TWO SUPPLEMENTS } SIXPENCE.
By Post, 6^d.

THE WAR: CAMP OF THE "TIMES" AND "ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS" CORRESPONDENTS ATTACKED BY WOLVES.
FROM A SKETCH BY ONE OF OUR SPECIAL ARTISTS.

BIRTHS.

On the 29th ult., at Cwton Manor, West Hartlepool, the wife of George E. L. of a daughter.

On the 5th inst., at Munderfield-Harold, Herefordshire, the wife of the Hon. Boucaup M. St. John, of a son.

On the 31st ult., at 28, Chapel-street, Park-lane, Lady Margaret Strutt, of a daughter.

On the 4th inst., at 84, Eaton-place, the Duchess of Athole, of a son, stillborn.

On the 5th inst., at 19, Chesham-place, Lady O'Hagan, of a daughter, who only survived a few hours.

MARRIAGES.

On the 25th ult., at St. George's Church, Grenada, West Indies, by the Rev. George M. Clinchett, of St. Matthew's, Barbadoes, uncle of the bride, assisted by the Rev. A. Anton, Rector, William Fisher, eldest son of Lieutenant-Colonel J. D. Menda, late 2nd W.I. Regiment, to Frederica, eldest daughter of the Hon. Charles Henry Major, Manager of the Colonial Bank, Grenada, and Member of Her Majesty's Privy Council of that island.

On the 31st ult., at St. Augustin's, Queen's-gate, by the Rev. R. Lister Venables, Lieutenant Sir Baldwin Wake Walker, Bart., R.N., to Fanny Augusta, eldest daughter of the late Captain Cowper Coles, R.N., C.B.

DEATHS.

On the 11th ult., at his residence in Toronto, Canada, suddenly, of congestion of the lungs, Sir Henry Parker, fifth Baronet, of Harbourn, aged 55.

On the 7th inst., at the residence of his son-in-law, Patrick Fleming, Glenorchy House, Newington, Edinburgh, Sir Robert Boag, J.P., ex-Mayor of Belfast.

On the 5th inst., at Spethley Park, Worcester, Augusta, Viscountess Campden, aged twenty-five years.

On the 2nd inst., at Hampton Court, after a few hours' illness, Lady Seaford, in her 90th year.

On the 23rd ult., at Hadley, Herts, Caroline Christiana, widow of Edmund Pinnock Dennis, Esq., and youngest daughter of the late Major-General Sir Robert Bartley, aged 51.

* The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, or Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING NOV. 17.

SUNDAY, Nov. 11.
Twenty-fourth Sunday after Trinity. Accession of Louis I., King of Portugal, 181.	Westminster Abbey, 10 a.m. Rev. Herbert Rowsell, M.A.; 3 p.m. Canon Farrar, D.D.
Half-Quarter Day. St. Martin, Bishop of Tours. St. Paul's Cathedral, 10.30 a.m., Rev. Prebendary Plumtree; 3.15 p.m., Rev. Canon Gregory; 7 p.m., Rev. C. T. Procter, Vicar of Richmond. Savoy, closed.	St. James's, noon, Rev. F. Garden, Sub-Dean of the Chapel Royal. Whitehall, 11 a.m. and 3 p.m., Rev. T. L. Papillon. Temple Church, 11 a.m., Rev. Dr. Vaughan, the Master; 3 p.m., Rev. Alfred Ainger, the Reader.
MONDAY, Nov. 12.
Moon's first quarter, 11.44 p.m. Geographical Society, 8.30 p.m. (address of Sir Lutherford Alcock, the President; Mr. Broyon on Mirambo's Description of Unyamwezi and the best route thither from the coast of South Africa). Monday Popular Concert, St. James's Hall, 8 p.m.	Medical Society, 8.30 p.m. Royal School of Mines, beginning of Session: Mr. Warrington W. Smyth, first of Lectures on Mining, 3 p.m.; Lectures to Working Men (Professor Judd on Geology), 8 p.m. Institution of Surveyors, 8 p.m. (address by the President, Mr. E. James Smith).
TUESDAY, Nov. 13.
Meteors, probably about midnight. Graham Lectures, 6 p.m. (Dr. H. Wyld on Music), and three following days. Inigent Blind School, St. George's, Southwark, general election, Cannon-street Hotel, noon. Working Lads' Institutes, first annual meeting, Stationers' Hall, 2 p.m. Horological Institute, 7.30 p.m. (Mr. T. Frazer on Electricity and its Modern Applications). West London Scientific Association, 8 p.m. (Dr. Edward B. Aveling on Comparative Respiration).	Medical and Chirurgical Society, 8.30 p.m. Photographic Society, 8 p.m., distribution of medals, &c. Antropological Institute, 8 p.m. (Mr. H. Huxworth on the Spread of the Slaves; Captain R. F. Burton on Mori Castellieri). Crystal Palace Annual National Poultry Show (four days). Colston Day at Bristol, annual dinner, Conservative and Liberal. Institution of Civil Engineers, 8 p.m. (Mr. Alfred Holt, Review of the Progress of Steam-Shipping during the last Quarter of a Century). Shrewsbury Races.
WEDNESDAY, Nov. 14.
Literary Fund, 8 p.m. Graphic Society, 8 p.m. Society of Telegraph Engineers, 8.	Epidemiological Society, 8.30 p.m. (inaugural address by Surgeon-General Dr. John Murray).
THURSDAY, Nov. 15.
Accession of Christian IX., King of Denmark, 1863. Linnean Society, 8 p.m. (Recent Arctic Expedition: Mr. R. M. Lachlan on the Insecta collected; Dr. E. L. Moss on the surface Fauna of the Arctic Seas; and Dr. W. C. McIntosh on the Annelida: Mr. C. Stewart on certain organs of the ctenidians).	Numismatic Society, 7 p.m. South Kensington Museum, 8 p.m. (Mr. Edward Bellamy on Anatomy). Royal Society, 8.30 p.m. Chemical Society, 8 p.m. (Professor Odling on Gallium; papers by Dr. Wright and Mr. Luff, Mr. M. M. Pearson-Muir, and Dr. B. H. Paul).
FRIDAY, Nov. 16.
Society for Propagation of the Gospel, 2 p.m. Philological Society, 8 p.m. (M. Mévior on "Gallow;" Mr. B. Dawson on final in the Authorized Version of the Bible).
SATURDAY, Nov. 17.
Physical Society, 3 p.m. Saturday Popular Concert, 8 p.m.	Bow and Bromley Institute, Organ Recital, Mr. E. H. Turpin, at 8.

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE NEW OBSERVATORY OF THE ROYAL SOCIETY. Lat. 51° 28' N.; Long. 0° 18' 47" W.; Height above Sea, 84 feet.

DAY.	DAILY MEANS OF				THERMOM.		WIND.		General Direction.	Movement in 24 hours, read at 10 p.m.	Rain in 24 hours, read at 10 p.m.
	Barometer Corrected.	Temperature of the Air.	Dew Point.	Relative Humidity.	Maximum, read at 10 p.m.	Minimum, read at 10 p.m.	Direction.	Force.
Oct. 31	30.192	50.3	39.8	68	58.3	48.8	SW. W. WSW.	153	0.000	0.000	0.000
1	30.382	47.2	39.0	70	4 54.8	38.7	WSW. W. WSW.	152	0.000	0.000	0.000
2	30.047	46.8	38.0	73	9 53.2	33.6	WSW. S. WSW.	131	0.040	0.040	0.040
3	30.064	45.4	36.5	78	3 51.8	38.7	W. WSW. WSW.	140	0.005	0.005	0.005
4	29.785	46.6	42.5	88	52.9	28.9	SSW. S. SSW.	211	0.010	0.010	0.010
5	29.782	51.4	46.0	81	4 56.2	45.9	SW. SSW.	270	0.070	0.070	0.070
6	29.633	55.2	53.8	95	10 57.4	49.7	SSW.	529	0.210	0.210	0.210

The following are the readings of the meteorological instruments for the above days, in order, at ten o'clock a.m.:-

Barometer (in inches) corrected .. 30.192 30.382 30.047 30.064 29.785 29.782 29.633

Temperature of Air .. 50.3 47.2 46.8 45.4 46.6 51.4 55.2

Temperature of Evaporation .. 39.8 39.0 38.0 36.5 42.5 46.0 53.8

Direction of Wind .. S.W. W. S.W. W. S.W. S.W. S.W.

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE FOR THE WEEK ENDING NOVEMBER 17.

Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
6 15	6 43	6 8	6 35	6 7	6 38	6 10
12 15	12 43	12 8	12 35	12 7	12 38	12 10
6 15	6 43	6 8	6 35	6 7	6 38	6 10

ST. JAMES'S HALL, PICCADILLY.

THE MOORE and BURGESS MINSTRELS will introduce an ENTIRELY NEW PROGRAMME. The whole of the Songs contained in the first or musical portion of the Entertainment will be changed. New Dances, New Vocalists, and New Burlesque Sketches. The New Programme will be given EVERY NIGHT at EIGHT, and on MONDAYS, WEDNESDAYS, and SATURDAYS, at THREE and EIGHT.

Fantasia, 5s.; Sofa Stalls, 3s.; Area, 2s.; Gallery, 1s. Doors Open at 2.30 for the Day Performance; at 7.30 for the Evening Performance. No fees. Ladies can retain their bonnets in all parts of the Hall.

EVANS'S, COVENT - GARDEN. — NOTICE. — These celebrated Supper-Rooms are now open for the reception of Ladies. Evans's Choir of Boys, specially trained by and under the direction of Mr. F. Joughmans; and the best available Comic talent. Suppers after the Theatre.—Proprietor, J. B. Anon.

OUR CHRISTMAS NUMBER FOR 1877

(To be Published early in December)

WILL INCLUDE

A TALE BY WILKIE COLLINS,

LARGE COLOURED PICTURE,

AND

NUMEROUS SEASONABLE ILLUSTRATIONS.

PRICE ONE SHILLING.

Postage through the British Isles, THREEPENCE.

OFFICE, 198, STRAND, W.C.

SUBSCRIPTION TO THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

AT HOME.

Twelve months (including Christmas Number) £1 9s. 3d.
Six months, 14s.; Christmas Half-Year, 15s. 3d.
Three months, 7s.; Christmas Quarter, 8s. 3d.

Copies will be supplied direct from the Office to any part of the United Kingdom and the Channel Islands, for any period, at the rate of 6d. for each Number, paid in advance.

ABROAD.

Copies will be sent to the following places for 36s. 4d. (on thin paper, 32s.) the year:—Australia, Austria, Belgium, Canada, China, Ceylon, Cape of Good Hope, Constantinople, Denmark, Egypt, France, Germany, Gibraltar, Greece, Holland, Honduras, India, Italy, Japan, Luxembourg, Malta, Mauritius, New Zealand, Norway, Portugal, Roumania, Russia, Servia, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, and the United States of America.

To Australia, New Zealand, India, China, and Japan, by the Brindisi route, 45s. (thin paper, 36s. 4d.) the year.

Subscriptions must be paid in advance, direct to the Publishing Office, 198, Strand, in English money; by cheque crossed the Union Bank of London; or by Post-Office order, payable at the East Strand Post Office, to George C. Leighton, of 198, Strand, London.

Now Ready,

PRICE ONE SHILLING (FREE BY POST, IS. 2½d.).

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK

FOR 1878,

CONTAINING

SIX COLOURED PICTURES,

PRINTED BY LEIGHTON BROTHERS' CHROMATIC PROCESS.

TWELVE ILLUSTRATIONS OF THE WAR, FINE ART, &c.

TWELVE ENGRAVINGS AS HEADINGS TO THE CALENDAR.

ASTRONOMICAL DIAGRAM OF REMARKABLE PHENOMENA,

WITH EXPLANATORY NOTES.

The Royal Family of Great Britain; the Queen's Household; her Majesty's Ministers; Lists of Government Offices and Officers; Bank of England and London and Westminster Bankers; Law and University Terms; Fixed and Movable Festivals; Anniversaries; Acts of Parliament passed during the Session of 1877; Obituaries of Eminent Persons; Christian, Jewish, and Mohammedan Calendars; Tables of Stamps, Taxes, and Government Duties; Times of High Water at London and Liverpool; Postal Regulations; Remarkable Occurrences, &c., 1877-78; Eclipses in the Year 1878; together with an amount of useful and valuable information, which has during the past thirty-two years made the ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK an acceptable and elegant companion to the library or drawing-room table.

The unprecedented demand for the ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK year after year stimulates the Proprietors to still greater exertions to secure for this Almanack a reception as favourable as that which has hitherto placed its circulation second only to that of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

The ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK is enclosed in an elegant cover, printed in Colours by the same process as the SIX COLOURED PLATES, and forms a charming and pleasing ornament to the drawing-room table.

The SHILLING ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK is published at the Office of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS, 198, Strand, and sold by all Booksellers and Newsagents.

Now Ready,

THE ILLUSTRATED PENNY ALMANACK for 1878.

Containing Twenty-Four Engravings from the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS—Viz. Gates of Constantinople, Forts on the Bosphorus and the Black Sea, Old Modes of Locomotion, &c.; Tables of Stamps, Taxes, and Licenses; Eclipses, Remarkable Events, Post-Office Regulations, and a great variety of Useful and Interesting Information. The Trade supplied by G. VICKERS, Angel-court (177), Strand; and H. Williams, Warwick-lane, Paternoster-row London.

CRYSTAL PALACE PICTURE-GALLERY.—Open all the year round for the RECEPTION and SALE of PICTURES by the British and Foreign Schools. For Particulars apply to Mr. G. W. Wase.

DORÉ'S GREAT WORKS, "THE BRAZEN SERPENT," "CHRIST LEAVING THE PRÆTORIUM," and "CHRIST ENTERING THE TEMPLE," each 35s. by 22 in.; with "Dream of Pilate's Wife," "Christian Martyrs," &c., at the DOBIE GALLERY, 35, New Bond-street, W. Daily, 10 to 6. 1s.

THE ANNUAL WINTER EXHIBITION OF HIGH-CLASS PICTURES IS NOW OPEN at ARTHUR TOOTH'S GALLERY, 5, Haymarket (opposite Her Majesty's Theatre), from Ten till Seven o'clock. Admission, One Shilling, including Catalogue.

"GONE." By FRANK HOLL.—This fine Picture is NOW ON VIEW at the ANNUAL WINTER EXHIBITION, 5, Haymarket (opposite Her Majesty's Theatre).

MASKELYNE and COOKE. Daily at Three and Eight o'clock. EGYPTIAN HALL, Piccadilly. Fifth year in London. The present programme embraces Psyche and Zee, the twin automatic mysteries; the magical dance, in exposure of so-called Spiritualism, in which Mr. Cooke flouts about the room taking the cabinet with him—the most astounding feat ever accomplished; and many other illusory items of novel and original character. Such is the success of the entertainment that it is advisable to book seats in advance, for which there is no charge. Admission, 6s., 3s., 2s., 1s. W. MONROE, Manager.

MR. and Mrs. GERMAN REED'S ENTERTAINMENT, ONCE IN A CENTURY (first time), by Gilbert A. Beckett: AT THE SEASIDE, by Mr. Corney Grain; and No. 204, Every Evening, except Thursday and Saturday, at Eight; every Thursday and Saturday, at Three. Admission, 1s., 2s., 3s., 6s. ST. GEORGE'S HALL, Langham-place.

SACRED HARMONIC SOCIETY, EXETER HALL. Conductor, Sir Michael Costa. Forty-sixth Season.—FRIDAY, NOV. 23, Mendelssohn's ST. PAUL. Vocalists: Madame Edith Wynne, Madame Patey, Mr. Vernon Right, Mr. Stanley, Mr. C. Henry, Mr. Le Lacy. Organist, Mr. Willing. Tickets, 3s., 2s., 1s., and 6d. Subscriptions, 2, 3, and 5 guineas for Ten Concerts. Season Prospectus, now ready, No. 6, Exeter Hall.

LONDON BALLAD CONCERTS, ST. JAMES'S HALL, Twelfth Season.—Mr. JOHN ROOSEY begs to announce four ante-Christmas Concerts, on WEDNESDAY EVENINGS, NOV. 21 and 23, DEC. 6 and 12. At the first Concert, Nov. 21, the following Articles will appear:—Mrs. Osmond, Miss Orridge, and Madame Antoinette Stirling; Mr. Sims Reeves and Mr. Edward Lloyd, Mr. Stanley and Mr. Maybrick. Pianoforte, Miss Margaret Bucknall. The London Vocal Union, under the direction of Mr. Fred Walker. Conductor, Mr. Sidney Naylor. Stalls, 7s. 6d.; Balcony, 5s.; Area, 4s. and 2s.; Admission, 1s. Tickets of Ausonia, St. James's Hall, the usual Agents, and of Boosey and Co., 25, Abchurch-lane.

THEATRE ROYAL, DRURY LANE.—EVERY EVENING, at Eight, ANY ROBART. Messrs. J. Fernandez, W. Terris, E. F. Edgar, A. Glover, Lingham, Douglas, F. Moreland, Brooks, G. Weston, Lilford, Morris, H. Vaughan; Misses Willes, Harriet Covey, E. Stuart, Adair, D'Arcy, Vincent, &c. Preceded by SALVAT'S YOUNG. To conclude with THE CONSPIRATOR. Prices from 6d. to 45s. Hours open at 6.30; commence at 7. Box-Office open from Ten till Five Daily.

OLYMPIC THEATRE.—LAST SIX NIGHTS OF THE MOONSTONE, by Wilkie Collins. HENRY DUNBAR on MONDAY, NOV. 19. Box-Office hours, Eleven to Five. No Booking Fees. Prices from 1s. to 45s.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

LONDON: SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 10, 1877.

On Monday last the Mansion House Committee of the Indian Famine Fund received the following telegram from the Duke of Buckingham, Governor of Madras:—"Your Lordship's exertions have brought such liberal aid from all quarters that, under the present favourable prospects, we gratefully say the collection may cease." The Secretary of the Executive Relief Committee in Madras added a supplementary telegram to the effect that "they will continue active operations with the munificent funds supplied to them till January or February." The Mansion House Committee, accordingly, will make no further appeal. They will collect all subscriptions from local and other sources with the least possible delay. Their accounts will be audited and the balance remitted. The sum of £425,000 has already been forwarded. Adding to the Mansion House Fund various contributions remitted to Madras otherwise than by the direct channel of the Mansion House Committee, it may be assumed that the people of the United Kingdom have subscribed towards the relief of their famine-stricken fellow-subjects in Southern India a sum amounting to close upon half a million sterling.

The beneficence of the British public has promptly and efficiently done its work. Judiciously distributed by local Committees in various parts of the Presidency of Madras, under the supervision of the Central Executive Committee in that city, it has saved already an incalculable number of human lives. Now that the bursting of the North-Eastern Monsoon has put definite limits to the present Famine, it may be looked upon as certain that the food supply of Southern India is placed upon a satisfactory footing. By the beginning of next year the teeming earth will have put into the hands of the famishing population sufficient means of subsistence. There is much to be done between this and then, which it would have been difficult to do through the agency of the Indian Government. Weak and helpless survivors will need help. Cultivators of the soil who have been constrained to part with all their little property will require to be furnished with seed and agricultural implements. To such ends whatever may yet remain of the Famine Fund will be as timely as useful, and it is a legitimate source of satisfaction that not only has the liberality of the people of this country promptly extended a helping hand towards their fellow-subjects in India suffering under an unspeakable calamity, but it has, in the main, fairly accomplished the end which it proposed.

There may be some danger lest the work which has been thus done should be viewed by those who have done it with an unwarranted degree of self-complacency. Half a million of money is, unquestionably, a very large sum to have been contributed in a few weeks to a charitable object. Everyone knows that distance largely diminishes the sympathy with which we are wont to regard misfortune. Loud and frequent calls are made upon British liberality at home. These we are far more likely to feel than those which come to us from the other side of the globe. It is difficult to realise the sufferings of people with whose habits and modes of life we have but a slender and a remote acquaintance. The sums which have been received by the Mansion House Committee have been received, we had almost said, proportionately, from all parts of the kingdom. Little or no artificial excitement was made available for their collection. The machinery employed to obtain them was of the simplest kind. They represent in the aggregate the sense of duty felt by Englishmen towards India. So far, undoubtedly, the result is extremely gratifying. But when we come to consider the enormous wealth of this country, the large proportion of which is spent in luxury and ostentation, half a million sterling contributed (even under the circumstances we have noted) towards the immediate relief of probably some five-and-twenty million people governed by her Majesty, and passing through such a mortal crisis as that which has developed itself in Southern India, is not, after all, any great matter for boasting. It exceeds, perhaps, in amount anything which would have been done by any other State. But, gauged by the higher standards of duty and sacrifice, it is comparatively trifling. The nation, as a nation, spends nearly as much upon a single ironclad without taking thought of it.

The value of the Famine Fund is that it has been produced by spontaneous generosity. It means a great deal more than its worth in money—more to the givers, more to the recipients. It is the outcome of motives the exercise of which ennobles those who feel them. In not a few instances it expresses thoughtful and deliberate self-sacrifice; in some sympathetic interest, regardless of time and place, in humanity. The British people will be none the worse, will be the better, for the response they have made to the appeal from their Indian brethren. Every act of this kind tends to purify, whilst it enriches, national character; to deepen a sense of responsibility in individuals for the right use of affluence conferred upon them by Providence; and to diffuse and to strengthen in the minds of those who are possessed of means a conviction that they are stewards of a trust for the benefit of mankind, rather than possessors of an absolute property which they may use as they list.

What the effect may be upon the native populations of India is quite another matter. Nothing would be easier than to cherish exaggerated expectations in this direction. Yet it is undoubtedly well that the native races of our Eastern Dependency should have some proof of the good will at least of the Conquering Race, with which by a strange chain of circumstances they have become associated. It is useless to conceal from ourselves that they dislike British Rule—not, indeed, because it is essentially unjust, but because it is not their own. Successive generations must pass away before the Indian people will give up their preference for irregular self-rule, with all its inconveniences and occasional license and anarchy, to the steady and inexorable restraints of law based upon reason and justice. But, so far as the facts come before them, there can be little doubt, we think, that their prejudices will be softened by successive displays of Anglican interest in their well-being. We cannot be said to understand them. The secret strings that bind them together as a society are concealed from our eyes. But benevolence is a searching element of moral force, and scatters prejudice much as the rays of the sun scatter morning mists. After all, the main constituents of human character are the same in all climes and all ages, and, as Shakespeare says, "One touch of nature makes the whole world kin." Some such assimilating influence as this will, more or less, emanate from the spontaneous liberality which the Mansion House Fund represents. We do not say that it will be a passport to the hearts of the Indian population. We do not anticipate for it in our imagination any such important result. But it will do something—probably will do not a little—to break down the barrier which now separates India from England. It will be one of perhaps many concurrent causes which, it is to be hoped, will eventually tighten the bonds which connect together in one Empire this country and that.

THE COURT.

The Queen and Princess Beatrice attended Divine service on Sunday at Crathie church. The Rev. Archibald Campbell officiated. The Princess of Wales, accompanied by her daughters, has paid frequent visits to her Majesty. The Queen and Princess Beatrice have made daily excursions on Dee side. Her Majesty a few days since visited the Hon. Lady Biddulph at Abergeldie Mains. The Marquis and Marchioness of Huntly and Lord Brooke have dined with the Queen at Balmoral. Lord Sackville has left, and Lord C. FitzRoy, Equerry-in-Waiting, has arrived at the castle.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

The Prince of Wales entertained the Crown Prince of Hanover at dinner yesterday week at Clarence House, St. James's. On Saturday last the Prince, accompanied by the Crown Prince of Hanover, left town for Sandringham. The Prince has been entertaining a shooting party during the week. His Royal Highness attained his thirty-sixth year yesterday. The Princess of Wales, with her daughters, has remained at Abergeldie Castle awaiting the return to health of Miss Knollys.

Princess Louise of Lorne and the Marquis of Lorne paid a visit to Cambridge on Thursday week and lunched with Lord Colin Campbell, the youngest brother of the noble Marquis, who is a student at Trinity.

The Duke of Connaught was present last week at the meet of the United Hunt Club at Fermoy Wood.

The Duke of Cambridge returned to Gloucester House yesterday week from visiting the Duke of Grafton at Euston Hall, Thetford. On Tuesday his Royal Highness went to Sandringham on a visit to the Prince of Wales.

The Grand Duke and Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg-Strelitz left St. James's Palace yesterday week for Dover, upon their return to Strelitz.

The Crown Prince of Hanover arrived in London on Thursday week from the Continent. His Royal Highness was met at Charing-cross station by the Duke of Teck, who accompanied him in one of the Prince of Wales's carriages to the Alexandra Hotel. The Prince was visited at the hotel by the Duke of Cambridge, the Duchess of Teck, Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar, Baron Both (in attendance on the Grand Duke of Mecklenburg-Strelitz), Colonel Greville (equerry to the Duchess of Cambridge), and others. His Royal Highness has passed the week at Sandringham.

The Maharajah Dhuleep Singh arrived at Sandringham on Tuesday on a visit to the Prince of Wales.

His Excellency the German Ambassador and Countess Marie Münster have returned to the German Embassy from visiting Earl and Countess Delawarr at Buckhurst.

His Excellency the French Ambassador and the Marquis and Mdles. d'Harcourt have returned to the French Embassy, Albert-gate, from Paris.

The Duchess of Westminster and Lady Beatrice Grosvenor have left Grosvenor House for Eaton Hall, Chester.

The Marquis and Marchioness of Ripon have arrived at Nocton Hall, their seat in Lincolnshire, from Studley Royal.

The Marquis and Marchioness of Headfort and Lady Adelaide Taylour have left Underly Hall, Kirkby Lonsdale, on a visit to the Earl and Countess of Bradford at Weston Park.

The Marquis and Marchioness of Lothian have left town for Mount Teviot, their seat in Roxburghshire.

The Marchioness Dowager of Londonderry has arrived at her house in Brook-street from Ireland.

The Earl and Countess of Dudley have arrived at Witley Court from Blackmount, N.B.

The Earl and Countess of Dalkeith have left Hamilton-place for Brighton.

The Earl and Countess of Charlemont have arrived at their residence in Upper Grosvenor-street.

The Earl of Devon has arrived at The Castle, Newcastle.

FASHIONABLE MARRIAGES.

The marriage of the Earl of Aberdeen, grandson of the eminent statesman, and Miss Isabel Maria Marjoribanks, youngest daughter of Sir Dudley Coutts Marjoribanks, Bart., M.P., was solemnised on Wednesday at St. George's Church, Hanover-square. Lord Aberdeen was accompanied by Mr. A. J. Balfour, M.P., his best man. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a dress of white satin duchesse, trimmed with Brussels lace and orange-blossoms; a full trail of the flowers was laid between plisses of satin on the train, and a trellis-work band forming a châteleine of flowers, trimmed the right side of the dress, fringes of orange-buds and leaves beading the lace across the front. Her wreath, composed of orange-blossoms, and veil of Brussels lace, were confined by five diamond stars, taken from the tiara presented to her by her father on her marriage; her other jewels comprised a necklace and earrings of diamonds and pearls, and a diamond locket with large sapphire centre, Lord Aberdeen's gifts to his bride; and the bracelets from Lord Aberdeen's tenantry in Aberdeenshire and Sir Dudley Marjoribank's tenantry at Guisachan and district. The bridesmaids were Lady Gladys Herbert, Lady Emma Baring, Lady Margaret Ashburnham, the Hon. Georgina Scott, Miss C. Gordon, Miss Grizel Baillie, Miss Susan Suttie, and Miss M. Hogg. Their dresses were of white poult de soie, with drappings and carves of white striped gauze, tulle veils, and wreaths and bouquets of variegated ivy. Each wore a gold heart-shaped locket, with enamelled ivy-leaf (the Gordon badge) in centre, and monogram and coronet in diamonds, Lord Aberdeen's gift. The service was performed by the Archbishop of Canterbury, assisted by the Hon. and Rev. Canon Douglas H. Gordon, M.A., Chaplain in Ordinary to the Queen, and the Rev. Francis J. Holland, M.A., Minister of Quebec Chapel. Sir Dudley and Lady Marjoribanks received about 200 guests at breakfast at Brook House, Park-lane, after which the bride and groom left in an open barouche and four, for Halstead Place, Sevenoaks, where they intend to pass the honeymoon. The bride's travelling dress was of sapphire velvet, trimmed with black fox fur; bonnet to match, with drawn white satin lining and strings, and trimmed with black fox muffs of the same fur. The presents were of great value, including from Prince Leopold a Cellini cup. Great rejoicings took place on the Earl's estates.

The marriage of the Hon. Charles C. W. Cavendish, eldest son of Lord Chesham, and the Lady Beatrice Grosvenor, second daughter of the Duke of Westminster, is arranged to take place on Tuesday next, at Eccleston church, Chester.

The marriage of Miss de Rothschild and Mr. Cyril Flower will take place in London on the 22nd inst.

THE MANSION HOUSE INDIAN FAMINE FUND.

Last Saturday the Lord Mayor (Sir Thomas White) received from the Duke of Buckingham, Governor of Madras, and the Central Relief Committee there, a personal telegram expressing, on behalf of the people of Southern India, the deep and warm gratitude felt among all races and creeds for his Lordship's active benevolence and his great and successful exertions in promoting the munificent sympathy of the people of Great Britain with the sufferings of the famine-stricken population of India. To this the Lord Mayor telegraphed a reply taking no credit to himself for the splendid response made to his appeal, but rejoicing that his official position enabled him to originate the fund and to take some part in its collection and distribution. A communication was also received by the Lord Mayor from the Earl of Carnarvon respecting contributions from the colony of British Guiana. The weekly telegram from Madras represents that all possible exertions are being made to turn the favourable weather to good account.

Among the contributions received at the close of last week were the following:—Auckland, new Zealand, £500; a third instalment from Otago of £400; Douglas, Isle of Man (additional), £100; the National Union of Elementary Teachers, £130 (making in all £374); Primitive Methodist Churches, per the Rev. W. Jones, £177; city and county of Perth (sixth), £750; Heywood (second), £500; Grantham (fourth) £132; Wardle, £100; Salisbury (second), £500; Bath (sixth), £400; Burnley, £258; Lincoln, £200; the Freemasons of Durham, £100; Burton (additional), £110.

The committee of the Famine Relief Fund decided at their meeting on Monday not to make any further appeals for subscriptions. This resolution was adopted owing to the receipt by the Lord Mayor of the following telegram from the Duke of Buckingham, dated Monday afternoon:—"Your Lordship's exertions have brought such liberal aid from all quarters that, under the present favourable prospects, we gratefully say the collection may cease. In this the Executive Relief Committee concur." Another telegram, addressed to Mr. Soulsby, was received from Mr. Digby, the secretary of the Relief Committee, which said:—"With reference to the Governor's telegram, please remember that we shall continue active operations with the munificent funds supplied to us till January or February." The fund was reported on Monday to amount to £146,100, and a further sum of £20,000 (making £166,100 in all) was ordered to be sent to India. On the motion of Sir Nathaniel de Rothschild, supported by General Sir Henry Norman and Mr. S. P. Low, the committee tendered their hearty thanks to the Lord Mayor for his able services as their chairman and treasurer, and adjourned until Monday next. All sums sent to the Mansion House will be received, but the committee wish it to be understood that they make no further appeal for subscriptions. Among the donations received on Monday was one of £1000 from Paisley.

The sums received during Tuesday included Bedford, £100; County and city of Perth, £300; Stoke-on-Trent, £100; Haverfordwest, £240; Brighton, £850; Holmfirth and neighbourhood, £101; Odd Fellows, Bradford, £100.

Notwithstanding the announcement made on the authority of the Governor of Madras that no further appeal is necessary and that the collection may cease, large sums continue to be sent to the Mansion House for the Famine Fund, which now amounts to £451,000. Among the later receipts are the following:—Dublin (24th), £500; Ramsbottom, £300; Crews, £300; Newport (fifth), £100; Stoke (fifth), £100; Bedford (sixth), £100; Messrs. Donald Currie and Co., £100; Holy Trinity, Sloane-street, £136; Mr. W. G. Hart, £100; Truro (second), £100; Southport, £282; and Scarborough, £170. It should be distinctly understood that the Mansion House fund is now only open for the receipt of final balances from the provinces and unpaid church collections.

The Viceroy of India has telegraphed that the north-east monsoon has burst favourably everywhere in Madras, except at Ganjam, and that the condition of the people in the famine districts continues to improve.

The amount subscribed in Australia in aid of the sufferers by the Indian famine reaches £76,000—of which £20,000 is from Melbourne.

The honour of knighthood has been conferred on Mr. Andrew Barclay Walker, Mayor of Liverpool, who recently presented an art-gallery to the town; and also on Mr. James Bain, the Lord Provost of Glasgow.

THE NEW LORD MAYOR AND SHERIFFS

The new Lord Mayor of London, Mr. Alderman Owden, has been many years associated with the public business of the Ward of Bishopsgate. Mr. Thomas Scambler Owden was born in 1808, at Cuckfield, Sussex, being the youngest and only surviving child of Mr. John Owden, who died in 1811. He has satisfactorily filled the various offices to which he has been elected in the ward and parish with which he is connected. He was for a long period a member of the Board of Guardians of the East London Union, and successively deputy-chairman and chairman, until its amalgamation with the City Union. In 1845 he was chosen one of the representatives of the Ward of Bishopsgate in the Common Council, and in 1862 he became one of the deputies of the ward, in which position he remained until the death of Mr. Alderman Copeland, in 1868, when Mr. Owden was elected to succeed him as Alderman. He served the office of Sheriff with Mr. Robert Jones, during the mayoralty of Alderman Sir T. Dakin, in 1870. He is a member of the Innholders' and the Loriners' Companies. Mr. Alderman Owden married, in 1837, Frances Mary, the eldest daughter of Mr. John Rigby, and has three sons and three daughters. The Alderman is well known at Tottenham, where he has resided upwards of thirty years, as a liberal promoter of all good works. Having for some years past had no private business occupation, his time has been entirely devoted to his public duties; and the City Press further remarks that "his career furnishes an admirable illustration of the way in which, by plain, straightforward dealing, a man may win the respect and esteem of those around him, and rise to a position of honour and responsibility."

Mr. Alderman and Sheriff Staples has been long known as former proprietor of the Albion, in Aldersgate-street, a famous house of civic and social entertainment. He was born at Salisbury, to which place his father had retired after a prosperous business career in London. In 1842 the present Alderman, jointly with his brother, Mr. T. H. Staples, took the Albion, on the retirement of Mr. John Kay, who a few years afterwards served the office of High Sheriff of Buckinghamshire. The two brothers conducted this establishment until 1864, when it was converted into a limited company. Mr. John Staples was then returned to the Court of Common Council as one of the representatives of Aldersgate ward. This position he retained until chosen Alderman. On joining the Common Council Mr. Staples was placed on the Library Committee, and has devoted himself to that very useful department. In 1870 he was chosen chairman of the committee, and distinguished himself by elaborating a well-conceived plan for the proper custody and protection of the Corporation records, which was adopted, and duly carried into execution. As a member of the committee for erecting the New Library, he was enabled to render considerable service in reference to the general arrangements of the building, more particularly with regard to its adaptation for public ceremonies. Mr. Staples took a leading part in the design and preparation of the large window in the library which was presented by the inhabitants of the Aldersgate Ward, and he received the thanks of the Ward-mote for his exertions. Having filled the chairs of the Streets Committee, and the Finance and Improvement Committee of the Commission of Sewers, he was elected in 1875 to the responsible position of chairman of the Commission. Mr. Staples is a Fellow of the Society of Antiquaries; he has served the office of Warden of the Leathersellers' Company, and has just completed his second year as Master of the Pewterers' Company. He married the only daughter of Mr. Henry Gillett, late senior partner in the firm of Howell, James, and Co. His family consists of two sons and two daughters.

Mr. Alderman and Sheriff Nottage is descended from the family of the Nottages, of Nottage, in Glamorganshire, who afterwards settled in Essex, in which county he spent his early youth. He is fifty-two years of age, and was married, in 1851, to Christiana, daughter of Mr. James Warner. His family consists of a son and daughter. He was many years engaged in the large iron business of his uncle, Mr. R. W. Kennard, late M.P. for Newport. Mr. Nottage is also a nephew of the late Mr. Alderman Challis, who for many years represented the borough of Finsbury in Parliament. It is a curious coincidence that both his uncles, Mr. Kennard and Alderman Challis, served the offices of Sheriff of London and Middlesex during the same year. Alderman Nottage was, a few years since, a candidate for a seat at the board of the Union Bank of London, which he lost only by a few share votes, gaining, however, a majority of 109 of the proprietors. Mr. Nottage from his earliest years evinced a taste for the fine arts. The stereoscope having been invented, he saw that by this instrument in connection with the undeveloped art of photography, if brought out on commercial principles, a large and lucrative business might be established. He at once threw his energies into the new enterprise, under the title of the London Stereoscopic Company. This has since developed into the largest concern of the kind, with agencies in various part of the world. Sir David Brewster, the inventor of the stereoscope in its present popular form, interested himself in this development of his ingenious idea. A prize being offered by Mr. Nottage for the best essay on the new optical instrument, Sir David Brewster became the adjudicator, awarding it to Professor Louie. In 1862 the London Stereoscopic Company undertook the largest contract ever known in connexion with photography—that of the Great International Exhibition. They purchased from the Royal Commissioners, for a large sum, the exclusive right of producing and selling photographs in the new building. Two chefs-d'œuvre of modern sculpture, "The Sleep of Sorrow and Dream of Joy," by Monti, and Magni's celebrated "Reading Girl," there exhibited, were secured by Mr. Nottage from those eminent sculptors. Mr. Nottage is not unknown in connection with literature. Some years since he published, under the nom de plume of "Persius Junior," a series of amusing and shrewd sketches of character. He also compiled "The Shakespearean Diary." Mr. Alderman Nottage is a member of the Spectaclemakers' Company.

Our Portraits of the Lord Mayor and the Sheriffs are from the photographs of the London Stereoscopic Company.

The arrangements for the Lord Mayor's Show yesterday were to include a pair of dromedaries, a pair of elephants, with Nubian attendants, a model of Cleopatra's Needle, and a triumphal car bearing a group of allegorical figures, provided by Messrs. Sanger. The Lord Mayor's state coach has been constructed by Mr. Offord, of Wells-street, Oxford-street. The Prime Minister and nearly every other member of the Cabinet had accepted the invitation to the Lord Mayor's feast in Guildhall. The customary farewell dinner given by the outgoing Lord Mayor has this year been dispensed with.

The Lord Lieutenant of Ireland has appointed the Earl of Wicklow State Steward, in the room of the Earl of Bandon, resigned.

The Queen, the Prince of Wales, and Prince Leopold have accepted from Mr. John Wilkins, of the Elzevir Press, copy of the large-paper edition of the Caxton Catalogue, of which only twelve copies were printed.

MR. ALDERMAN OWDEN, THE NEW LORD MAYOR OF LONDON.

MR. ALDERMAN AND SHERIFF NOTTAGE.

MR. ALDERMAN AND SHERIFF STAPLES.

THE WAR: EFFECTS OF THE LATE RAIN—A STREET AT SISTOVA.
FROM A SKETCH BY ONE OF OUR SPECIAL ARTISTS.

THE WAR.

Our Illustrations of the campaign in Bulgaria, from the Sketches by our Special Artists, continue to represent many characteristic incidents of this great military struggle. The Russian army under the immediate command of the Grand Duke Nicholas, accompanied by his sovereign and august brother, the Emperor Alexander, has been drawing its lines closer and tighter, now encompassing the intrenched positions of Osman Pasha on the hills round Plevna, which cannot, it seems, be taken by direct assault, but must in time be surrendered or abandoned, since the supplies have been cut off by General Gourko's operations along the western road. Our Special Artists, like other newspaper correspondents, are now excluded from the inner circle of trenches and batteries in the Russian lines of investment; but they have still frequent opportunities of witnessing some interesting actions, and the scenes delineated by them, such as that of "Bringing the Wounded to the Rear," and the mustering of "Cossack Scouts," must be of almost daily occurrence. Mr. Irving Montagu, who pitched his roving tent beside that of the Times' Correspondent, Mr. R. Coningsby, has used his pencil, in the Sketch engraved for our front page, to show us the effect of a night alarm, not from the approach of Turks, but of a pack of wolves, which startled their little encampment in the hours that should have been devoted to needful slumber. The Times' Correspondent may be left to tell the story in his own manner. They also travelled together on their way to Plevna; and, as they passed through Sistova, found the streets of that town in a sorry plight from the incessant rains of three weeks before. This is the subject of one of our Artist's sketches, in which the four-horse waggon conveying himself and Mr. Coningsby to their wretched hotel is seen plunging into a lake of liquid mud. This, in some places, came up to the horses' girths, while pedestrians had to wade through mire within a few inches of the tops of their jack-boots. The weather has since been more favourable to campaigning, though very cold at night on the hills, with much hoar frost, and signs of a coming hard winter.

The Emperor Alexander on Sunday last rode on horseback with his staff, accompanied by the Commander-in-Chief, through the Russian lines around Plevna, to inspect the positions recently occupied. His Imperial Majesty has, on several former occasions, visited in this manner different parts of the ground covered by his army, from their headquarters extending westward beyond the Vid; and he has more than once ridden past a field of recent carnage, where the dead bodies of slain men and horses, still lying unburied, must have sadly borne witness to the inhuman conditions of warfare. A scene of this description is represented in one of our Engravings, from a sketch by Herr Schönborg, who lately quitted the seat of war in Bulgaria. It reminds us of the saying of a great English soldier, "I know only one thing that could be more sorrowful than a battle in which we have gained the victory—I mean a battle in which we should have suffered defeat."

The Turkish side has likewise afforded the subject of a Sketch for the Illustrations published this week. It belongs, indeed, not to the actual campaigning experiences and operations, but to the collection of troops, even from distant Asiatic provinces, in the neighbourhood of Constantinople. The encampment of Zeibeks, a wild and warlike race inhabiting the seacoast of Armenia, towards Batoum, has been pitched on the rising shore at the mouth of the Bosphorus, overlooking the Sea of Marmora, in sight of many fine palaces, mosques, and public buildings. The Asiatic shore, about Scutari, with the barracks and Tower of Leander, is seen in the background, over the narrowing inlet there. To the left hand is the Yeldiz-Kiosk, or summer palace; near the water's edge, in the middle of the View, are the Matchka Arsenal, the Mosque of Top-hané, the Gunesh-sou Hospital, and the Military School of Pancaldi. The barbarous irregular soldiery, clad in their fantastic native dress, and wielding a miscellaneous variety of weapons, are dispersed in sundry careless groups all over the foreground, lounging in front of their tents, while their officer, with the standard-bearer and the drummer, seems endeavouring to command their attention; which is not an easy task.

The most important event of the week, since our last record of current news concerning the war both in Asia and Europe, is the reported capture of Erzeroum by the Russians, who have left a considerable force to invest the fortress of Kars, while they have pressed hard and strong the pursuit of Mukhtar Pasha since his defeat three weeks ago, still driving him westward, through Koprikoi and Hassan-Kale, and finally expelling him from the position he had taken up at Deve Boyun. These places will be found in the small Map which we present on another page, in the Supplement to this week's publication. But at the hour of writing this, on Thursday afternoon we have not yet received certain and authentic information that the Armenian capital has been abandoned and taken by the Russians. After the loss of the Deve Boyun plateau, Erzeroum, which lies in the hollow beyond, is not the place to which an army bent on further resistance can retire, as it would easily be cut off from all its lines of communication and be very soon surrounded. This seems to have been understood by the Turkish commander as early as last spring, and, therefore, positions in the mountains west of Erzeroum were selected, in case the Turkish army shall have to retire on the capital. These positions are on the road to Balburt and Trebizond, and it may be to this refuge Mukhtar has retired with his main force, leaving only a small garrison in Erzeroum itself. What we have heard of the state of the works thrown up around Erzeroum does not inspire much confidence in the power of the garrison to hold the place against a Russian assault, and the rumours, therefore, about the capture of the town are but the anticipation of what is a very probable event.

The allied force investing Plevna at the present time consists, according to the latest trustworthy accounts, of the First, Second, and Third Divisions of the Roumanian army, occupying the northern section of the investing circle, from the river Wid on the right to Gravitza, on the Plevna-Bulgareni road, on the left; of the 9th Russian corps and the Thirtieth Division of Infantry, holding the eastern portion of the investing lines from Gravitza on the right to the highway to Loftcha on the left; and of the Guard corps, the cavalry force under General Gourko, the Sixteenth Division of Infantry, and the Second Division of Cavalry, completing the circle on the south and west. Further, the first brigades of the Second and Third Divisions of infantry are stationed in reserve at Loftcha. Assuming the establishments of the several units of this investing force to be complete, the total strength of the latter would amount to, in round numbers, 125,000 men. The proportion of artillery attached to the army before Plevna is unusually large, many extra guns having been brought up to assist in bombarding the Turkish defences, the total number of field and siege guns available being said to be 600. The length of the investing line cannot be much less than forty miles; the most westerly Russian position is Djurilevo, ninety kilometres west of Plevna. The Russians will attack from the south in order to gain the heights on which the Turkish reserves are encamped, which are considerably above Plevna. Their artillery would command the town and all the Turkish fortifications. The Russians are chiefly massing troops towards Orkanieh, leaving Osman Pasha no chance but that of making a sortie to the north-west towards Widdin, where he would find himself in a cul-de-sac formed by the Danube and the Servian Timok frontier, now strongly guarded. The report is repeated that Osman Pasha is short of ammunition, and therefore a sortie may very soon be expected.

Mehemet Ali has arrived at Melva. His command embraces all the forces concentrated at Sophia, Orkanieh, and Novi-Bazar, and the Shipka Pass.

The Polish deserters from the Russian army are being formed into a Polish legion.

On Monday the Roumanian batteries at Kalafat attempted to prevent the construction of a new Turkish battery at Widdin. The attempt, however, did not succeed, as the Turks unmasked a battery already finished, and bombarded the opposite Roumanian battery for nearly four hours. The fire of the Turks, however, only damaged a few houses in Kalafat.

The official weekly return of killed, wounded, and missing issued by the Russian authorities gives the total of losses up to the 1st inst. as 61,801. The losses in the week preceding that date are given as 2859 on the Danube alone, the losses on the Asiatic battle-fields in the same period being apparently still incompletely reported.

From the headquarters of the war in Asia a Russian official despatch states that on Sunday last the united columns of Generals Heymann and Tergukassoff defeated the Turkish troops under Ahmed Mukhtar Pasha and Ismail Pasha in their fortified positions on the heights of Deve Boyun after nine hours' fighting. The Turks fled in complete disorder, abandoning their camp and also their arms and provisions. The losses sustained in the engagement are not yet known.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL NEWS.

FRANCE.

The anticipation that the Government would, on the meeting of the Chambers, make a declaration of its policy or intentions has been disappointed. The Senate and Chamber of Deputies met at Versailles on Wednesday. The business before the Senate was unimportant and chiefly formal, and no communication from the Marshal or his Ministers was made. The Chamber of Deputies did not fail to make known at its first meeting its distinctly Republican character. It heard with approbation a eulogy on M. Thiers from its senior member, M. Deseaux, who presided in the absence of the veteran deputy, M. Raspail, and expressions of hope and goodwill for the fortunes of the Republic; and it still more distinctly foreshadowed its policy by appointing M. Jules Grévy Provisional President of the Chamber by the unexpectedly large majority of 290 to 170 votes. The Vice-Presidents, MM. Rameau and Lepère, were re-elected. The next business of the House will be the appointment of the eleven Bureaux or Committees; and then the Chamber will proceed to take cognisance of the reports of the various Committees respecting the validity of the elections. Meanwhile there is a period of suspense, broken only by the announcement on the part of the official journal that the Ministers, who had resigned, have, at the request of the Marshal, withdrawn their resignations. It is stated that when the Marshal received the delegates of the Right on Tuesday he gave it to be understood that he had resolved not to resign.

The results of 1839 departmental elections are now known. Seven hundred and sixty-four Republicans and 511 Conservatives are elected, and in eighty-four cases a second ballot will be necessary. The returns are complete for eighty departments, but the exact distribution is only known as regards sixty-four. The Republicans are believed to have a majority in forty Councils General, and the Conservatives in thirty-nine. The Republicans altogether have gained 107 seats.

Aarifi Pasha, the new Ottoman Ambassador in Paris, presented his credentials to Marshal MacMahon on Monday. His Excellency was assured by the Marshal that he might rely upon a warm and sympathetic reception in France.

At the dinner given by Marshal MacMahon at the Elysée on the 1st inst., in honour of General Grant, all the members of the Cabinet were present, as also General Noyes, the American Ambassador, General Torbert, the American Consul, and M. Vignaud, Secretary of the American Legation. Madame MacMahon had General Grant on her right and the Duc de Broglie on her left, while the Marshal had Mrs. Grant on his right and the Duchess de Broglie on his left. After dinner the Marshal and General Grant retired into a smoking-room and had a tolerably long conversation, chiefly on military questions, M. Vignaud acting as interpreter. The Marshal invited General Grant to come and dine with him, without ceremony, at Versailles, whither he removes on Tuesday, and to attend some of the sittings of the Senate and Chamber, placing the Presidential box at his disposal. General Grant accepted the offer. A banquet was given on Monday by the American residents in honour of General Grant. Several toasts were proposed by General Noyes, the United States Minister, and in drinking the health of General Grant his Excellency made a speech highly eulogistic of the late President of the United States, who responded in brief terms.

A marriage was celebrated in Paris on Tuesday between Mlle. Amélie Cloué, daughter of the Vice-Admiral of that name, Maritime Prefect of Cherbourg, and M. Olivier de Marguerie, Commander in the Navy, son of the Marquis of that title, and nephew of the late Bishop of Autun.

Madame Leverrier, wife of the illustrious astronomer, died recently of grief at the loss of her husband; M. Glais Bizoin, a member of the Provisional Government of 1870, died at his native place in Brittany, aged seventy-seven; and M. Duvergier, the great jurisconsult, died at Bordeaux, his native place, aged eighty-six. Under the Empire he was successively President of the Council of State, Minister of Justice, and senator.

ITALY.

The meeting of the Parliament is postponed till the 22nd inst. Signor Crispi, in a circular to the members of the Chamber of Deputies, begs that they will, if necessary, make some private sacrifices in order to attend the sittings.

The Pope, according to the Standard's correspondent at Rome, is suffering from rheumatism, which has deprived him of the use of his lower limbs; but a Reuter's telegram says that his Holiness is in good health. It is stated that the Vatican proposes to re-establish the Roman Catholic hierarchy in Scotland.

A telegram from Naples says that the ironclad Duilio made her trial-trip on Wednesday, and that the trial was regarded as completely successful.

SPAIN.

Preparations are being made in Madrid for the marriage of King Alfonso, which will take place on Jan. 23. The Cortes will be asked to pass a bill approving of the marriage, and also to vote a grant of money. The Moderado party, at a meeting held in Madrid on Monday, unanimously adopted a resolution approving of the proposed marriage of King Alfonso with the daughter of the Duc de Montpensier.

PORTUGAL.

The King and Queen left Lisbon last Saturday morning for Oporto, to be present at the inauguration of a railway bridge constructed over the Douro. The ceremony took place on Sunday. When the work had been blessed by the Bishop, the members of the Royal family passed over the bridge in a state railway carriage, and were present afterwards at a luncheon at the station. There was a display of fireworks at night on the newly-opened bridge.

HOLLAND.

The new Cabinet has been formed, and is composed as follows:—M. Van Heeckeren Vankell, Chief of the King's Cabinet, Minister for Foreign Affairs; Deputy Smidt, Minister of Justice; M. Kappeyne, Minister of the Interior; M. Wichers, naval officer, Minister of Marine; M. Gleichman, secretary to the Bank of the Netherlands, Minister of Finance; Deputy Deroy, Minister for War; M. Van Bosse, ex-Minister, Colonial Minister.

A Royal decree has been issued instituting a new department for Commerce, Industry, and Public Works and Aqueducts. M. Tak von Poortvliet is the Minister.

GERMANY.

It is announced from Berlin that the Emperor William has returned from the battues in Silesia in excellent health.

The German Chancellor has proposed to the Federal Council the establishment of twelve maritime courts for inquiry into accidents at sea, to sit respectively at Königsberg, Danzig, Stettin, Stralsund, Rostock, Lübeck, Flensburg, Tünnig, Hamburg, Bremerhaven, Brake, and Emden. Each of these courts will have jurisdiction over a certain defined portion of the German coast.

In the sitting of the Prussian Lower House on the 2nd inst. the Budget Bill for 1878 was read the first time; and after some discussion and a few explanatory remarks from the Ministers of Commerce and Finance, the more important portions of the Estimates were referred to a special committee. The Budget Committee has resolved that some items of the proposed loan shall be inserted in the Budget of extraordinary expenditure, and that the first instalment of the estimates for public works in 1878-9 shall be agreed to.

In Wednesday's sitting an animated debate took place in consequence of a Conservative motion that in future every member should be obliged to deliver his speech from the tribune. Both Ultramontane and Progressist members opposed it, and used language of strong invective against the Conservative speakers, who replied in the same spirit. The motion did not pass.

The death of Field Marshal Count von Wrangel, in his ninety-third year, took place on the 1st inst. He entered the army in 1796 as a cadet in the Dragoons, became a Lieutenant-Colonel in 1814, and Colonel in the following year. Several years later he was named Lieutenant-General, and received in 1848 the command of the 2nd Corps d'Armée of Federal troops in the Schleswig-Holstein campaign. In 1856, on the anniversary of his sixtieth year of military service, he was promoted to the rank of Field Marshal. He was also Commander-in-Chief of the "Marches" and Governor of Berlin. In 1864 he was called to the superior command of the Austro-Prussian army sent against Denmark, but was replaced subsequently by Prince Frederick Charles of Prussia, being at the same time raised to the dignity of Count. He also held an important command during the struggle with France and Germany. The funeral obsequies of the late Field Marshal were celebrated on Monday with much solemnity, at his late residence, in the presence of the Emperor William and the Royal Princes. A procession was then formed to the Stettin Railway station, and the body was carried to Stettin, where it was buried on Tuesday by the side of the Marshal's sons, who died many years ago.

Count Hermann Arnim, a relative to the ex-Ambassador at Paris, has been sentenced to a month's imprisonment for libelling Prince Bismarck.

AUSTRO-HUNGARY.

Some questions of interest were put to the Austrian Ministers in the Lower House of the Reichsrath on Tuesday. The first regarded the recognition by the Government of the Old Catholics. To this the Minister of Public Works replied that, as the Old Catholics only made a declaration concerning their legal recognition on Oct. 13, the Ministry was not in a position before the 18th of that month to recognise them, and to authorise the formation of Old Catholic communities in Vienna, Wamersdorf, and Ried. The Minister of Commerce, replying to an interpellation upon the subject of the negotiations with Germany for the conclusion of a Customs treaty, said the German Commissioners had declared that the proposals of the Austro-Hungarian Government could not be accepted. The idea of a provisional prolongation of the existing treaty for one year, as desired by Germany, could not be entertained by Austria. The Government would shortly submit to the House a general customs tariff, and hoped that it might come into force at the commencement of the new year. Meanwhile they had proposed to the German Government the conclusion of a treaty based upon the most favoured nation principle. Replying to a question respecting the seizure of rails in Hungary, the Minister stated that the Hungarian Government had regarded rails as contraband of war; but, upon a certificate from the Roumanian Government being forthcoming that the rails were destined for the Roumanian railways, the Government of Hungary gave orders to have them released. Measures have been taken by the Government for the purpose of settling the question whether rails are contraband of war or not.

GREECE.

King George returned to Athens on the 2nd inst. The Chamber will soon resume its sitting.

DENMARK.

In Wednesday's sitting of the Folkething the provisional Budget based upon that decreed on April 12 last was rejected, but a resolution was adopted granting a provisional approval of the Estimates in a form which the Government on its part did not oppose.

AMERICA.

President Hayes breakfasted with General Joseph Johnston and other Confederate officers on the 1st inst., after which he addressed an assembly of 30,000 people. The President also reviewed the militia. He has returned to Washington, much pleased with his reception in Virginia.

The Army Appropriation Bill submitted to the House of Representatives provides that the army shall not exceed its present strength of 22,000 men. The amount proposed is 25,000,000 dols. or 5,000,000 dols. less than the Government asked. The proviso against the use of the army for political purposes, which caused the defeat of the Appropriation Bill last Session, is omitted.

The House of Representatives has passed Mr. Bland's bill authorising the free coinage of a standard silver dollar of 412½ grains, and restoring its legal tender character. The House has also adopted a resolution making the bill repealing the date for the resumption of specie payments a special order from day to day until Nov. 30. Then action will be taken.

The Silver Remonetisation Bill passed by the House was referred in the Senate to the Finance Committee, a majority of which, while favouring the principle, are reported to advocate a limitation of the amount of silver as a legal tender.

Senator Morton is dead. This reduces the number of Republican Senators to thirty-eight, exactly one half of the Senate. Mr. Daniel Voorhees, Democrat, has been appointed Senator for Indiana, succeeding Mr. Morton.

Elections were held in twelve of the American States on Tuesday, the balance of success being apparently greatly in favour of the Democrats, who have elected General McClellan for the post of Governor of New Jersey.

While the Democratic candidates have been successful in the elections for State officers in New York, the Republican party has secured a majority in the Legislature of the State.

New York telegrams of Monday's date state that a slight shock of earthquake was felt there on Sunday afternoon. It was felt also in New Brunswick and Quebec.

On St. Luke's Day the Bishop of Maine consecrated his new cathedral at Portland, the corner-stone of which was laid at Christmas, 1868. The church is of blue stone, finished with red and grey Nova Scotia free stone. Its dimensions are 65 ft. by 140 ft. The altar is of Italian marble, resting upon Caen stone. The building, which has cost 120,000 dol., is from designs by Mr. C. C. Haight, of New York.

Mrs. Mary Proctor, of Rochester, Western New York, has left the bulk of her fortune of nearly 200,000 dol. to institutions of the American Church. An abstract of the late Mr. Motley's will is given at page 462.

The Mexican Government has sent Señor Zamacona as special commissioner to Washington in order to negotiate with the United States.

THE CAPE COLONIES.

We have news from the Cape to Oct. 16. The chief Krelis has been deposed by the Governor, and his territory has been annexed to the British dominions. There have been some engagements, but none of a decisive nature. In an action, the date of which is not given, at Krelis's quarters thirty Gulekas were killed, twenty horses were taken, the kraals burned, and some grain, agricultural implements, and other plunder was taken. At Butterworth river a sharp struggle took place, and fifty of the Kaffirs were killed. On our side two privates, named Wainwright and Coghe, were slightly wounded. It was rumoured at Cape Town and believed that Krelis had made overtures for peace. A special despatch to the Times says:—The Colonial force in Transkei consists of about 1200 Europeans. The British troops occupy posts guarding the Border, and are overawing the Gulekas to prevent them joining Krelis. Another detachment of the 88th Regiment, under Major Owen, and some volunteers, under Captain Bailey, have gone to the front. The Premier has joined the Governor and the general commanding at head-quarters in King William's Town.

NEW ZEALAND.

A telegram from Wellington, dated the 5th inst., states that the first direct communication from the Maori King since the war of 1863 has been received by Sir George Grey. Tawhia has telegraphed asking Sir George to meet him this month. Previously a telegram was sent, with the King's concurrence, to Sir George Grey urging the visit on the ground that it was likely to promote road-making and general friendship.

INDIA.

The prospects in the Madras Presidency continue to improve with wonderful rapidity. Within the last four weeks there has been a decrease of 900,000 in the number of persons employed on the relief works. The great saving thus effected for the Government has been unattended by any suffering or loss of life. According to the present estimate, the total expenditure on account of the Madras famine from the commencement to its expected end, including loss of revenue of all kinds, will amount to £8,500,000; while for the Bombay famine it will be rather under £2,000,000. Other reports continue satisfactory.

The Hon. W. Stuart is gazetted Minister at the Hague.

Sir Arthur Gordon, Governor of Fiji, is about to pay an official visit to Samoa, in one of her Majesty's ships of war.

Two thousand natives have made an attack upon a Spanish fort in the Sooloo Islands, but have been repulsed with a loss of fifty killed. Eleven Spaniards were wounded.

The Daily News correspondent at Alexandria telegraphs that the railway to Suez is again opened, and that 4000 fellows are repairing the damage to the Fresh Water Canal.

Mr. Archibald Forbes, the Special Correspondent of the Daily News, has received through the Russian Ambassador in London the insignia of a Knight of the Order of St. Stanislas, conferred upon him by the Emperor of Russia for his courage and intrepidity at the battle of Plevna on July 30.

Information has been received of the total destruction by fire at sea of the ship Hampden, which left Leith for Bombay five months ago with two thousand tons of coal. A fire broke out on Sept. 16, and the crew abandoned the vessel in boats. Nineteen of the crew arrived at the Seychelles Islands. The remainder, in two boats, are missing. A cutter has gone out from Seychelles in search of them.

A committee has been formed in Holland, under the patronage of Prince Henry of the Netherlands, and 24,000 fl. have been collected, to send out in May of next year a small but strong sailing-vessel to the west coast of Spitzbergen, with the view of reaching the mouth of the Yenisei. The objects of the expedition are to explore the new commercial route to the Siberian rivers, to train sailors who might ultimately be intrusted with the formation of a scientific station, and to erect monuments to the memory of the early Dutch Arctic navigators.

Messrs. W. T. Weekes and Co. dispatched from Plymouth last Saturday the Merchant Shipping Company's ship Gainsborough, 973 tons, Captain J. Carter, under charter to the New Zealand Shipping Company, with Government emigrants for Nelson and other ports in New Zealand. In addition to seven first-class passengers, the Gainsborough takes out 29 married couples, 63 single men, 81 single women, 15 boys, 21 girls, and 12 infants—making a total of 250 emigrants, equal to 220 statute adults.—Messrs. W. T. Weekes and Co. have dispatched from Plymouth for Australia the ship Torrens, Captain Angell, belonging to the Elder Line of sailing-ships. She has on board a large number of passengers, in addition to a full general cargo.—Messrs. Money Wigram and Sons' ship Essex, Captain Ticehurst, from London, bound for Melbourne, arrived at Plymouth on Saturday to embark passengers.

Mr. W. H. Smith, M.P., Admiral Wellesley, Admiral Hood, Admiral Lord Gilford, and Sir Massey Lopes are gazetted as the new Board of Admiralty.

The Great Western Railway has completed the purchase of the Cornwall Minerals Railway, which extends across the country from the Bristol Channel to the English Channel, and have to-day paid Dr. Trefry, of Fowey, £103,000 for that portion which lies within Trefry Estate.

POLITICS.

LORD HARTINGTON IN SCOTLAND.

The Marquis of Hartington, who during his visit to Scotland has been the guest of the Earl of Rosebery at Dalmeny Park, near Linlithgow, arrived in Glasgow on Monday for the purpose of receiving the freedom of the city. He was accompanied by his noble host, and was received at the Queen-street Station by the Lord Provost and various members of the Corporation. A considerable number of persons were present in the station, and gave a cordial greeting to the noble Marquis. He at once proceeded to the City Chambers, where he was entertained by the Corporation at a luncheon. His Lordship was presented with the freedom of Glasgow in the City Hall. In acknowledging the compliment, the noble Lord spoke with diffidence as to his own personal merits, and attributed the honours paid to him to the position which he fills in connection with one of the great parties of the State. He spoke in high terms of the manner in which Glasgow had hitherto led the van in the cause of education and sanitary and social improvement. He regretted that Glasgow, like other industrial centres, was suffering from a depression of trade; but he had no hope in a revival until there was a complete restoration of European peace. The country, however, would have felt the effect of the present disturbed state of Europe much more keenly if, instead of neutral spectators of the war, they had been induced to take an active participation in it. His Lordship expressed a hope that there would always be a powerful restraining influence upon the Government in causing it to preserve as long as possible an attitude of strict neutrality, whatever might be the state of affairs on the Continent. In the evening Lord Hartington returned to Dalmeny Park, the seat of the Earl of Rosebery.

Lord Hartington visited Edinburgh on Tuesday, and was waited upon by a deputation from the Scottish Chamber of Agriculture, who presented an address on the subject of the land laws, in reply to which the noble Marquis, having excused himself from entering at length into a complicated subject, said that his friends would meet them in a liberal spirit, and avail themselves of every opportunity of learning what were the wants of the agricultural community in Scotland. The noble Lord subsequently received addresses from several Scotch Liberal associations, and in his reply said, with reference to their demand for an increased Parliamentary representation in Scotland, that the Liberal party were now almost generally agreed that the time had come when the question of bringing the representation of the country into greater harmony with its real condition imperatively demanded a settlement. He believed the complaints of the neglect of Scotch business might be charged against both parties; but he hoped that after his visit the people of Scotland might not have reason to complain of the action taken in their affairs by the Liberal party. In the evening Lord Hartington attended a public meeting in Edinburgh, and spoke in reply to a resolution of thanks and confidence. He expressed a hope that the inauguration of Liberal associations in Scotland would be an era in the history of the party. They aimed at unity of action in matters on which the party were agreed, but left a completely free understanding on all others. He contended that the Liberal party had never hampered itself with pledges on a great variety of subjects, and declared that, although he could not lead the party on the question of Disestablishment, he would neither stimulate nor repress discussion thereupon.

On Wednesday morning his Lordship received at Glasgow deputations from two bodies interested in the separation of the Church from the State, and the representatives of the Liberal Associations of West and South Scotland. To the former the noble Lord declined to express any opinion. He advised the latter to pay especial attention to the organisation of the party, and suggested that the councils would do well to look out for young men of talent who might be trained to render good service in political life. In the afternoon he was entertained at dinner in the Corporation Galleries; and at eight o'clock he attended a public meeting in the City Hall, at which Mr. G. Anderson, M.P., presided. His Lordship dwelt on the past achievements of the Liberal party. He argued that the representation of constituencies should bear some proportion to the condition and importance of different parts of the country. He did not believe that the extension of the franchise in counties would introduce any dangerous elements. The noble Lord also spoke at some length respecting the war, and expressed the hope that when it was ended the Government would use its influence for an introduction of those reforms which Turkey has always promised, but never endeavoured to carry into effect. In conclusion, he praised the moderation of Scotch Liberalism, and said that when the time came for the Liberals to resume the reigns of Government there would be plenty of work for them to do.

MR. GLADSTONE IN IRELAND.

Mr. Gladstone's visit to Ireland draws very near to its close. The hon. gentleman was in Dublin last Saturday and visited the National Gallery; he then inspected the College of Physicians; after which he drove to the Artane Industrial School, about three miles from Dublin. On Monday he visited Maynooth College, and in the afternoon he went to Dublin to dine with the Archbishop. Tuesday was spent by Mr. Gladstone in visiting places of interest in Dublin, including the Castle, the Four Courts, and the Marlborough-street National Schools, where 1800 pupils are trained. He also paid a visit to the Cardinal Archbishop of Dublin, and subsequently received privately a deputation from the County Down Farmers' Association. In the evening the right hon. gentleman dined with the Provost and Fellows of Trinity College.

The crowning incident of Mr. Gladstone's visit to Ireland was the presentation to him, on Wednesday, of the freedom of the city of Dublin. The ceremony took place in the Council Chamber of the City Hall. In reply Mr. Gladstone, speaking of the Land Act of 1870, stated that during the remainder of his career he would be ready to co-operate with the Irish people in anything for their advantage, and would wish to see the Bright clauses of the Land Act so re-adapted as to create more quickly small proprietorships in land. In England the land would always remain in the hands of a comparative few; but in Ireland it was desirable to create small ownerships. He was against entails and settlements. As to the Education Bill, he had desired to set learning free for all, so as to make Trinity College a national University, and had not been interested, as the designer of the measure, either in favour of denominational or mixed education. Local government was desirable for every country, to train its people in public affairs, but it was especially desirable in Ireland. In England there was of late too much central control, with large subsidies of money, and local rule was being unwisely interfered with. The working of the Church Act, the adoption of the ballot, and the general prosperity of Ireland were also amongst the topics dealt with. In the afternoon Mr. Gladstone was entertained at a déjeuner by the Lord Mayor at the Mansion House, and delivered a great speech on the condition of Ireland, in its social and political aspects, dwelling with emphasis on the operation of recent legislation.

Mr. Gladstone left Dublin on Wednesday afternoon for Abbeyfeich, the seat of Lord de Vesci, where he was to remain until Saturday, when, according to arrangement, he would go to Woodlands, the seat of Lord Annull. He is to leave for England on Monday next.

MR. BRIGHT AND MR. CHAMBERLAIN AT ROCHEDALE.

Mr. John Bright, M.P., on Wednesday evening presided over a crowded meeting at Rochdale, and gave a political address, in the course of which he said that the Conservatives had always obstructed measures for the general good of the country; and had, as far as possible, transferred taxes which had hitherto been borne by property owners to the general public. He said they were supported in particular by the landowners, 955 of whom owned one third of the land in the United Kingdom. Pointing out that, in consequence of its defective organisation, the Liberal party was fighting its opponents at a great disadvantage, he referred with pride to the successful efforts it had made to promote the public interest. He then introduced Mr. Chamberlain, M.P. for Birmingham, who gave an elaborate address, dealing mainly with the land question. Hearty votes of thanks were passed to both gentlemen.

FINE ARTS.

Earl Granville, as Lord Warden of the Cinque Ports, visited Dover last Saturday, and opened the new premises of the School of Art in that town. He expressed the opinion that the work carried on by schools of art was especially important at a time when foreign nations were making efforts in regard to similar institutions; and rejoiced that in our own art-schools the doors were thrown open to female students, who availed themselves of every advantage, and showed very great success. Major Scott read the list of successful students, his Lordship delivering the certificates and prizes to the ladies and gentlemen as they came to the platform.

A statue of the late Mr. Adam Black, M.P., was unveiled at Edinburgh last Saturday. Lord Moncrieff was the principal speaker.

On Tuesday Admiral Egerton, M.P., opened a science and art conversation at Chesterfield; the Right Hon. Gathorne Hardy, Secretary of State for War, presided on Wednesday evening at the distribution of prizes to successful students in the science classes at the Royal Arsenal, Woolwich; and the Earl of Darnley presided the same evening at a crowded meeting held in the Corn Exchange, Rochester, where his Lordship presented the prizes which had been obtained by the successful students in the science and art classes.

The fourth annual competition between the sketching clubs of the Schools of Art in the metropolis took place recently at the Dudley Gallery, Piccadilly, which was kindly lent by the committee for the purposes of the competition. Five sketching clubs engaged this year in the competition—viz., the South Kensington (male and female), Lambeth, West London, and the "Gilbert" (St. Martin's); and a total of 202 sketches in oil, water-colour, chalk, clay, and plaster were contributed. The gentlemen who undertook the office of adjudicating upon the works this year were Sir John Gilbert, R.A., Mr. W. F. Woodington, A.R.A., and Mr. A. Legros, who made the following awards:—Award of honour to that club which produced the best aggregate of work, to the Lambeth Club. Prizes of £3 each were awarded as follow for the best sketch in each of the subjects named: For Figure, "A Critical Moment," Mr. H. G. Glindoni, "Gilbert" Club; for Landscape, "A Grey Day," Mr. J. W. Wilson, "Gilbert" Club; for Sculpture, "A Critical Moment," Miss H. Montalba, South Kensington Club; for Animals, "On the Look-Out," Mr. Montefiore, South Kensington Club; for Design, a decorative panel, three prizes of £1 each were awarded to Mr. C. Reich and Mr. W. Swaine, West London Club, and Mr. Pearce, Lambeth Club.

The Right Hon. George Selater-Booth, M.P., has been appointed Official Verderer of the New Forest.

The Marquis of Abergavenny laid on Tuesday the foundation-stone for a pump-room for Tunbridge Wells.

The second anniversary of the Society to Establish and Sustain the English Congregational Churches in North Wales has been this week commemorated in Chester.

The state apartments of Windsor Castle are closed until further orders. Her Majesty's speedy return to Windsor is foreshadowed by this announcement.

The fourteen Dundee vessels engaged at the seal-fishing have captured this season upwards of 80,000 seals, the value of which is estimated at £56,450.

The bust in marble, of the late Admiral Rous, which, as we announced last week, is to be placed in the club-room at Newmarket is being executed by Mr. Ruggi.

At a meeting of the Bristol Chamber of Commerce on the 2nd inst. a resolution was unanimously carried in favour of converting the river Avon into a floating dock throughout the seven miles of its course from Bristol to Kingroad.

St. James's Hall, a handsome building which has been erected by Mr. W. J. Armitage, of Farnley Ironworks, at a cost of £10,000, in one of the lowest quarters of Leeds, as a counter-attraction to public-houses, was opened on Saturday.

The opening meet of her Majesty's stag-hounds took place at noon on Tuesday, at Salt Hill, near Slough. Although the weather was miserably damp, there was a large field and a considerable attendance of spectators.

Lord Moncrieff, the referee in the arbitration between the operative shipwrights and Clyde shipbuilders, has given his decision, which is in favour of the masters. Lord Moncrieff holds that the state of trade on the Clyde does not warrant an advance. The lock-out has lasted six months.

The opening address of the session of the Edinburgh Philosophical Institution was delivered on the 2nd inst. in the Music-Hall by the Bishop of Manchester; the Lord Provost occupied the chair. The subject which the Bishop chose for consideration was the responsibility which attached to the formation of opinion.

A banquet was given last Monday to the Leicestershire veterans of the Army and Navy, at the Corn Exchange, Leicester, presided over by Colonel Burnaby. In the middle of the market-place two bucks, the gifts of Earl Howe and Sir E. C. Dixie, Bart., were roasted. About ninety officers and 400 men, all wearing their medals, with a few leading tradesmen of the town, dined together, and the proceedings were throughout of an enthusiastic description.

The appointment of Mr. A. H. Thesiger, Q.C., a Judge of the Court of Appeal, in the room of Sir Richard Amphlett, has been gazetted.—Mr. Justice Field has been placed on the rota of Judges for the trial of election petitions during the year.—Mr. James Robinson, Q.C., chairman of the county Cavan, has received the serjeantcy vacant by the death of Sir Colman O'Loughlin.—Sir Edmund Beckett, Bart., long known as Mr. E. B. Denison, Q.C., has been appointed Chancellor of the diocese of York.

THE WAR: A RIDE OVER
FROM A SKETCH BY ONE

THE BATTLE-FIELD.
OUR SPECIAL ARTISTS.

ECHOES OF THE WEEK.

I have been on County business; that is to say, I travelled, last Tuesday, from Brighton to Tunbridge Wells to be present at the laying of the first stone, by the Marquis of Abergavenny, of a new Pump-Room which is to adorn the beautiful inland watering-place. If Athens (teste Mitton) is "the Eye of Greece," Tunbridge Wells may assuredly lay claim to be considered "the Eye of Kent;" and it is an eye, moreover, which, like Lesbia's in the ballad, is always beaming. It beamed on Tuesday afternoon quite merrily, despite a persistent down-pour of drizzling rain, sufficient to convert an ordinary Lesbia into a Niobe. The rain notwithstanding, the town was en fête. The County families and the local magnates were present in force in the marquee sheltering the masonic apparatus; there were banners and floral decorations; there was a brass band; and there was a guard of honour composed of the Tunbridge Wells troop of that gallant corps the West Kent Yeomanry Cavalry, under the command of Captain Lord George Pratt. So, after a little speech-making and a great deal of cheering, the first stone of the proposed edifice was declared to be well and truly laid; the County families drove away in state, and the rain poured down more persistently than ever. I would have sent a sketch of the ceremony to the Editor of this Journal, only I am not an adept in drawing the convexities and concavities of innumerable umbrellas.

In the evening the Marquis and a number of the neighbouring nobility and gentry, county members, clergy, &c., were entertained at a grand banquet given at the Sussex Hotel by that energetic body, the Tradesmen's Association at Tunbridge Wells. There were sixteen toasts, and about thirty respondents to the sentiments proposed; so you may imagine that we sat late, and that I have been suffering from a slight attack of deafness owing to the rapturous applause (including "Kentish Fire" and American "tigers") with which each speech was greeted. I spent a delightful evening in the atmosphere of the purest and the strongest Toryism. I begin to see (after many years' devotion to Liberalism) the wickedness of Whiggish ways; and you need not be surprised if ere long you meet me in Pall-mall attired in a grass-green coat with basket buttons gilt, a blue "bird's-eye" cravat, drab cords, gaiters, and a broad-brimmed white hat turned up with green (the orthodox costume, I believe, for a Conservative), and if I produce from my waistcoat pocket a sample-bag of corn, and hold you in bucolic discourse concerning live stock and mangold-wurzel. Meanwhile, I wish all success to the new undertaking (it is to cost some six thousand pounds) at the "Wells," for which I have had for years a peculiar affection. I like Tunbridge Wells in and out of season; in weather wet and in weather dry. I like the Pantiles and the verdant gardens of the Calverley; the bustling shops and smiling villas; the soft acclivity of Mount Ephraim; the exquisite prospects of distant hill and dale which meet you at every turn; and the hearty, hospitable, and genial ways of the townsfolk.

I should agree with every word in a learned letter contributed to the Pall Mall Gazette by a gentleman who announces the formation of an "Index Society" (which has obviously nothing to do with the Index Expurgatorius) if the gentleman were not quite so dogmatical, and if he did not talk about the "governing body" of the nascent society. Beshrew governing bodies! All scholars know that the Bayles and Scaligers of old were tremendous index-makers—acute, appreciative, exhaustive, indefatigable; and that in modern times the art has been all but abandoned by men of letters, or disdainfully flung to slovenly or stupid hands. Does not Johnson make allusion to a man who made the Index to the Rambler, and who referred to the Bard of All Time as "Shakespeare, W., Esq."? Did not Macaulay quiz the Lemprière system of classification by giving as a sample the name of Jones:—"Sir William, an Oriental scholar; Paul, a privateersman; Jenny, a Welsh maiden; Davy, a fiend"?

Let some first-rate scholar publish a good treatise on the art of indexing; and then let us work for ourselves in the silence and solitude which besem the literary man who was not made for Society:—nor was Society made for him. Properly pursued, indexing is a delightful pursuit, and, withal, a most useful one. It is a continual aid to memory. I do not know much about anything; but if I retain any remembrance at all of the books which I have read, that retention is due to the unvarying habit I have had from my youth upwards of carefully indexing the most trifling matter which I have entered in my commonplace book. Such books without indexes (I am grateful to the correspondent of the P. M. G. for not calling them "indices"), tabulated by the author himself, are worse than useless; since, unless the author has accumulated a vast number of common places, he is led to believe that he remembers what he has written. If he has not been his own index maker he will find himself woefully mistaken.

Mem.: To test the truth of that which I have said, make the following simple experiment. I will assume you to be a conscientious index maker. I will suppose that you are, as I am now, rusticated and far away from all your common-place books. But try, for mere exercise sake, to recall some of the entries, not in the body of the books, but in the indexes thereto. Turn up arbitrarily (in your mind's eye) the references in letter A, letter P, letter S. You will find, ere long, your mind travelling from the index to the passages referred to, and that you are taking a most invigorating cold bath of memory.

Are we still in the Dark Ages; or, is it not time that we ceased (being Turcophiles) to call the Russians barbarians, or (being Russophiles) to return the compliment to the Osmanli? I read the report of an inquest held at Leominster (I am very fond of Leominster for the sake of Somebody who lives there) on the body of a marble-mason who died under the following horrible circumstances. The deceased, being in the tap-room of a public-house, made a wager with another man that he would eat a certain quantity of raw meat. Some raw beef was fetched from the butcher's, and the marble-mason proceeded to devour it. Shortly afterwards he became very ill; and subsequently he was found lying on his back, in a back kitchen, dead. It was conjectured that he had been suffocated, and the Coroner's jury returned a verdict in accordance with the evidence. A medical friend to whom I was talking about this hideous case remarked that the raw-beef eater's death was possibly accelerated by his having had a "stone-cutter's throat." Workmen following this trade are liable to chronic obstruction of the bronchial tubes (the capillaries), which become irritated by the impalpably fine dust arising from the stone which they hew; and a man in such a bronchial condition would be peculiarly liable to evil consequences if he essayed such a mad feat as that performed by the man who "wolfed" the raw meat. Or there might have been sudden pulmonary congestion. There is "miner's lung" and "fork-grinder's lung"—both due to causes analogous to those which induce thoracic disease in stone-cutters.

Russians and Turks Barbarians! What do you think of a wretch of a labourer at Woolwich who has been sent to prison for three months, with hard labour, for biting off the ears and tail of a cat? The only defence made by the brute was that he had a wife and four children. Does he bite off their ears, I wonder? A tide of cruelty to animals seems to be steadily setting in, and it should be stemmed very sternly. The hydrophobia scare is leading to cruelty to dogs by unnecessarily muzzling and confining them and assuming them to be mad, when it is we only who are half out of our wits with morbid dread of a malady the prevalence of which I believe to be exaggerated. These epidemics of nervous affright seem to be recurrent. I remember a fearful hydrophobia scare when I was quite a little boy, and the grim stories that were told of Orders in Council authorising physicians to smother patients suffering from hydrophobia between two feather beds!

And they cannot even leave the poor little badger—the "bear writ small"—a "festive little cuss," as Artemus Ward would have said—alone. Somebody has said that the badger when "drawn" or worried out of his burrow by fierce terriers affords very good "sport"! G. A. S.

THE CHURCH.

PREFERMENTS AND APPOINTMENTS.

Browne, Robert Charles Lathom, to be Vicar of North Curry.
Ducast, William Methven Gordon; Rector of Llanphugh, Cusuberland.
Eaton, John Richard Turner; Rector of Denton, Norfolk.
Goodacre, Frederick William; Rector of North Collingham, Notts.
Holbeck, J. L.; Vicar of St. Margaret's, Benthum.
Hutton, W. M.; Vicar of Tryford-cum-Thurgarton.
Lewis, Lewis; Home Missioner in the Diocese of Lichfield.
Lockwood, J. Travis; Rector of Widdford, Herts.
Mather, Herbert; Rector of Loddington.
Pittar, Arthur Charles; Vicar of Holy Trinity, Trowbridge, Wilts.
Russell, Arthur Goodacre; Incumbent of St. Stephen's, Cardiff.
Sainsbury, Thomas Ernest Longford; Vicar of Frampton, Dorset.
Scott, Edward Maude; Rector of Sudborne-cum-Capella de Orford, Suffolk.
Sillitoe, A. W.; Chaplain to the British Legation, Darmstadt.
Thompson, Cornelius; Rector of West Berkwith.
Tryon, W. Arthur; Rector of Grantham.
Watkins, William; Vicar of Bassaleg, Monmouth.
Welburn, Edward Brown; Vicar of Orby, near Spilsby.—Guardian.

The Rev. Jonathan Holt Titcomb, Vicar of Woking, and honorary Canon of Winchester, has been appointed to the Bishopric of Rangoon.

It has been resolved to invite the Church Congress to hold its next meeting at Sheffield. The question led to a lively debate at a meeting of local clergymen.

A Conference, under the auspices of the Church Association, was opened on Wednesday in the Masonic Hall, Birmingham. Mr. T. R. Andrews, chairman of the Council of the Association, presided.

At Bradford church, Alresford, Hants, a beautiful stained-glass window (executed by Messrs. Mayer and Co.), representing "Christ Walking on the Sea," has been erected in memory of the late H. F. Flow, Esq., who was lost in the Liberia in 1874.

The parish church of Bruton, in Somerset, has been restored at a cost of above £1000, and was on the 1st inst. reopened by the Bishop of Bath and Wells. The work has been in progress the last seven years, and the Earl of Ilchester and Sir Henry Hoare have been large contributors.

The Bishop of Winchester consecrated on the 1st inst. the chancel which has been added to All Saints', Landport, the cost of the work, without fittings, having amounted to about £6000. The chancel was designed by Sir Gilbert Scott, R.A. Since the present Vicar (the Rev. E. B. C. Churchill) entered upon the living, in 1862, extra sitting accommodation for 600 persons has been provided in this church, which is situate in a densely populated district.

The memorial stone of a new mission school-room was laid on the 1st inst. by Mr. Richard Foster, of Upper Clapton in Aden-grove, in the parish of All Saints, Stoke Newington. The Vicar stated that, although the parish contained 4000 souls, there was no room in which a lecture could be delivered, a public meeting held, or an innocent entertainment given. To supply that want, as well as to make provision for the religious education of the children of the Sunday schools, the room was being constructed.

The ancient parish church of Elsdon, in Northumberland, has this week been reopened, after restoration, with a succession of services—the preachers announced being the Bishop of Durham, the Archdeacon of Lindisfarne, the Hon. and Rev. Canon Grey, Rector of Morpeth, the Rev. W. Gillmor, Vicar of Ilkington, and the Rev. T. Baillie, Rector of Elsdon. The church, dedicated to St. Cuthbert, is a large cruciform structure, with north and south transepts. Elsdon Castle, now the Rectory House, was built in the reign of Henry III. by David, King of Scotland, and is a strong old tower, surrounded by a fine shrubbery and plantations.

It is intended by the friends of those lost in the ill-fated ship Avalanche to build in Portland a small memorial church "in memoriam" of Captain Williams and the passengers and crew. It is felt that this, under the deplorable circumstances of the disaster, will give, as nearly as may be, a sacred character to the resting-place of those who lie buried beneath the waves opposite to the proposed church. A mortuary side-chapel will be attached for the reception of the monument, upon which will be inscribed a record of the fatal occurrence, and the names of Captain Williams, his passengers and crew. The captain of the Avalanche was very popular and much respected in the colony of New Zealand, to which he piloted many in comfort and safety. Subscriptions are being received by the Rev. J. A. Beazer, the Rector of Portland.

DIOCESAN MEETINGS.

The Bishop of St. Davids in his primary charge to the clergy on Wednesday denounced in strong terms the circulation of "The Priest in Absolution;" he also spoke in severe terms of the Society of the Holy Cross. In reference to the burials question, he hoped that the controversy would soon be settled in the direction of Lord Harrowby's clause.

The Bishop of Gloucester and Bristol having delivered a series of visitation charges in various parts of his diocese this week and last on the present dangers of the Church, concluded them on the 1st inst. at Chipping Sodbury, with an address on "Remedial Counsels." Their first and immediate care, he said, should be a constitutional enlargement of Convocation; and their next that Convocation found fair and free utterance, first by facilitating the regular meeting of Convocation; and, next, by treating it as the really representative body of the Church. Lastly, all proposals affecting doctrine should be initiated by Convocation, and nothing should receive the Royal assent that was in opposition to the formally expressed opinion of both houses of Convocation.

The Bishop of Chester (Dr. Jacobson) began the triennial visitation of his diocese on Monday. In his charge to the clergy, the Bishop gave some figures showing the progress of Church work in the diocese. He said that, in thirty-seven parishes in which school boards had been constituted, strong testimony was borne to their beneficial influence in increasing attendance, improving regularity and punctuality, and in stimulating the zeal and diligence of the teachers; while injurious results were noted in two instances only. Speaking at length on the subject of private confession, the Bishop observed that it was not the mind of the Church of England that it should be compulsory; it was not required as a necessity of Christian life; and the Scriptures, rightly understood, could not be pleaded for enforcing it, nor could the practice of the Church for a thousand years.

It is announced that Lord Leconfield, in addition to his former gift of £10,000, has given a further sum of £15,000 to the Irish Church.—On the 2nd inst. the Archbishop of Dublin held his annual visitation of the clergy of the diocese of Dublin and of the Chapter of St. Patrick's Cathedral, in the Cathedral. In his charge he treated of the various questions affecting the Irish Church, and of the relation of the Irish and English Churches to each other. His Grace said, "New and very grave dangers, of which in times past we knew nothing, will henceforth beset us, and the weight of our new-formed liberty may prove a very grave peril indeed; so also there are dangers which we have escaped, but which we see plainly lying in ambush for our sister Church in England." A "retreat" recently conducted in the diocese of Dublin by some Ritualistic clergymen was the subject of a debate in the diocesan synod on Thursday, and a series of resolutions was passed directed against confession and other practices.—The excitement of the Dublin Protestant public on the subject of retreats and auricular confession, which has been, they say, attempted to be introduced into the Irish Church, has not in the least abated. On Monday night a meeting was held in the Exhibition Palace, over which Lord Oranmore presided, at which Orange mottoes were displayed, and the resolution of Professor Jellett against Ritualism at the Dublin synod enthusiastically reaffirmed.

The Scotsman says that the Edinburgh Church Extension Association in connection with the Church of Scotland was successfully inaugurated on Monday. The association aim at planting seven new churches in various districts of Edinburgh, and they contemplate raising a central fund of £14,000 for the purpose of making grants to local committees, who are to carry out the details of the scheme.

THE UNIVERSITIES AND PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

OXFORD.

Mr. George Earle Buckle, B.A., late Scholar of New College, has been elected to the vacant fellowship at All Souls'.

Mr. J. Y. Sargent, M.A., late Fellow of Magdalen, has been appointed Fellow and Tutor of Hertford College.

The Rev. J. R. T. Eaton, Whyte's Professor of Moral Philosophy, has announced his intention of resigning his chair.

Professor Ruskin begins this week a course of lectures to which he gives the title of Landscape Painting. The lectures are given on Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays.

CAMBRIDGE.

Dr. Atkinson and Dr. Fowler, the Master of Pembroke, were nominated for the Vice-Chancellorship during the ensuing year, and Dr. Atkinson was re-elected on Monday.

The following were on Monday elected to fellowships at St. John's:—R. F. Scott, fourth Wrangler, 1875; C. W. E. Body, bracketed sixth Wrangler, 1875; A. M. Marshall, first in first class of Natural Science Tripos, 1874 (B.A. 1875); W. J. F. V. Baker, fourth Classic, 1875; H. W. Simpkinson, bracketed fourth Classic, 1876; D. McAlister, Senior Wrangler and first Smith's prizeman, 1877.

The number of persons attracted to Cambridge by the lectures and other teaching provided for women under the auspices of the Association for the Higher Education of Women has increased so much that the sub-committee appointed to superintend the arrangements made for lodging them have found it desirable to provide a second house for this purpose. Accordingly, Norwich House, which had been previously occupied by the members of Cavendish College, has been opened, under the charge of Madame Rasche, for the accommodation of students of the association.

EDINBURGH.

The candidates for the Lord Rectorship were nominated last Saturday evening. The Marquis of Hartington, Mr. Cross, Sir Robert Christison, and Mr. Fawcett, M.P., were nominated; but the vote was finally taken between Lord Hartington and Mr. Cross, when 240 voted for the former and 223 for the latter. A poll was demanded, and the election is fixed for to-day (Saturday).

GLASGOW.

On Tuesday the Conservative students, wearing blue caps, and the Liberal students red caps, had their meetings for nominating candidates for the office of Lord Rector. Mr. Stafford Northcote was nominated by the one party, and Mr. Gladstone by the other. The election takes place on the 15th.

ST. ANDREWS.

A meeting of students favourable to the election of a non-political candidate for the rectorial chair was held on Monday night, when Mr. Robert Browning was selected. During the afternoon the leaders of the Conservative party received a telegram from the Marquis of Salisbury declining to allow himself to be put in nomination. A meeting of the party who were supporting the Marquis was held on Tuesday night, when it was unanimously agreed to bring forward Mr. Matthew Arnold in opposition to Mr. Robert Browning. The poll is fixed for the 22nd inst.

The late Mrs. Bell, of Balgray, Forfarshire, has bequeathed £1000 to the Senatus Academicus of St. Andrews for the purpose of founding a scholarship either in Arts or Medicine.

The Council of University College, London, has appointed the Rev. T. G. Bonney, B.D., of St. John's College, Cambridge, Professor of Geology and Mineralogy for five years.

Dr. Samuel Kinns, Principal of the College, Highbury New Park, will begin this (Saturday) evening a course of lectures on Animal Physiology at Christ's Hospital.

At a special meeting of the Oxford Town Council on Monday it was resolved to establish a first-grade grammar school, the Corporation granting a site in the centre of the city of nearly an acre in extent, £4000 towards the building, and £100 per annum towards its maintenance. There are to be fifty-three scholarships, tenable for three years, thirty of which are to be filled up from the public elementary schools.

Rear-Admiral Lord John Hay, C.B., has been appointed to the command of the Channel Fleet, in the room of Rear-Admiral Sir Beauchamp Seymour.

The Prince Imperial arrived at Chatham on Monday morning, and made an inspection of the schools and works in connection with the school of military engineering, being conducted over them by Colonel Cox. The principal part of the time was spent in an inspection of the field works.

THE NEW THAMES STEAM-FERRY.

The Lord Mayor of London on Wednesday week opened the new steam-ferry across the Thames between Wapping and Rotherhithe, just over the Thames Tunnel and East London Railway. There is, of course, nothing new in steam horse-ferries, by which the Mersey and other estuaries are crossed. But in this case there were peculiar difficulties, which have made special demands on engineering skill. It is certain that the improvements in the channel of the river have greatly increased the range of the rise and fall of the tide. It is necessary that the ferry should be worked at all states of the tide; and it was found impossible to work it by means of inclined piers, as at Liverpool. There was, therefore, no alternative but to devise a means of transferring vehicles and passengers from the landing-stages to the boats, and vice versa. The level of the boats' decks at low water is 24 ft. below that of the river bank, and at such time the boats cannot approach within 170 ft. of the Wapping wharf, and 70 ft. of that at Rotherhithe. At Wapping 100 ft. of this distance is provided for by a jetty formed by two spans of wrought-iron girders, supported by columns of cast iron, screwed about 15 ft. into the ground, and filled in with cement concrete. Under this jetty the Conservators of the Thames have secured a clear space of 8 ft. above Trinity high-water mark. From the jetty at Wapping and the wharf at Rotherhithe passengers step upon a platform, at the same level, measuring 70 ft. by 35 ft., and this is lowered to the level of the boat's deck by means of hydraulic machinery invented and patented by Mr. E. Duckham. This lift-platform weighs eighty tons, and is counterpoised by ballast-boxes. The special risk to be provided against was the tilting of the platform by a heavy load at any side or corner of it. This is done by an arrangement analogous to that by which the wheels of a locomotive are connected. At each side of the platform there are four iron columns, like those that support the jetty. The columns act as guides, and (in the words of Mr. Duckham) "support four hydraulic presses which have a lifting power of fifty tons, and are connected at four points by chains with the lift platform. The chain from each press on the one side of the lift passes round a massive shaft fitted under and sustaining the platform, and having a corresponding connection with the corresponding press on the other side of the lift. As the platform moves the shaft rotates—its ends necessarily rotate simultaneously—and thus both sides of the lift cannot but work together. The two hydraulic presses on each side of the lift are placed horizontally, one in front of the other, and coupled by stout connecting-rods, like the couplings of a goods locomotive; and, as one press cannot move without the other, a horizontal position is also maintained in the direction of the platform's length. The effect of this combination is, that each press assists or is assisted by others of the system, and that, although the loading may be most unequal, the work of the presses and the movement of the platform are correctly equalised. This has been practically tested by the platform being held in position upon the hydraulic pressure being entirely removed from two of the presses, and the connecting chains cut off from the third." Mr. Duckham does not see how an accident could happen: he says there are ample precautions to meet any failure of the machinery. Each cylinder will have an effective safety valve, which will prevent any escape of water should a failure occur in the hydraulic pressure. Safety grabs are being arranged to grip the guide columns on the instant, in case of any irregularity of working of the suspending chains. Lastly, the lift platform itself is a monster pontoon; and, should everything else give way, would float freely with one hundred tons of cargo, and, if necessary, convey it safely to the other side of the river without the intervention of the ferry-boat. The engines for producing the hydraulic pressure are of 25-horse power, and have a 22-feet accumulator loaded to 720 lb. per square inch. These and the whole of the hydraulic machinery have been supplied by the East Ferry-road Engineering Works Company, of Millwall, and under the direct supervision of their manager, Mr. Heber Duckham.

On each side of the platform there is an elevated railed footpath for foot-passengers. In the river, 60 ft. outside each lift, are two columns, fixed as dolphins to keep the boats in position. There are two boats, each having a superficial area of 82 ft. by 42 ft., and a carrying capacity of 50 tons. The rectangular deck is left clear for traffic, the funnels being at the sides, on the sponsons. There is a rudder at each end, which can be controlled by the captain from the top of either of the two paddle-boxes. The two engines are worked independently; and it is said that each boat can be turned completely round within its own length without the aid of steering gear. A matter affecting only the company's commercial position is that it holds valuable wharfage ground, and at Wapping has erected large fireproof warehouses, from the designs of Mr. Stenning, and the section which is completed is already stowed with merchandise. The proposed tariff, subject to revision, varies from 1d. for a pedestrian or a passenger in an omnibus, and 3d. per head of cattle, to 1s. 9d. for a four-horse vehicle when it is empty and 3s. 9d. when it is laden. The expectation of traffic is based on the saving in distance as compared with going round by London Bridge—a saving which in some cases amounts to six or seven miles in the double journey, and the avoidance of blocks and delays in Aldgate and Fenchurch-street, and on London Bridge. The saving of time, of course, represents an increase in the earning power of men, horses, and vehicles.

The Lord Mayor drove in a carriage and four to Rotherhithe. Before reaching the company's wharf, he was met by the representatives of the parish, who presented an address. It expressed satisfaction at the completion of the ferry, and brought under notice the improvements which the Metropolitan Board intend to carry out in the district—such as the widening of several of the narrow streets. It expressed a hope that new streets would be formed to connect the lower portion of the parish with the main road from London to Greenwich, and to provide better approaches to the ferry. His Lordship responded suitably, and drove on into the company's premises. Here the 23rd Surrey Rifle Volunteers furnished a guard of honour and a band, under the command of Captain Bissell. Some drays had come over from Wapping to give assurance that the machinery was in working order. But the more spirited carriage horses, amid the excitement, required to be kept well in hand. There was a narrow escape of a mishap in driving from the wharf to the stage, down a temporary slope which had been made too narrow. At length three carriages and eight horses were safely stationed on the platform—the carriage and four in the centre. The platform was lowered to the level of the boat, and its bulwark was lowered to form a prow for the procession to pass over. At its head was the Chief Marshal on horseback; his charger made a little difficulty about going on board. The rest were easily led and driven; the boat then started, and steamed easily across, notwithstanding the number of craft in the way. The landing-jetty seemed crowded. The children of St. John's Schools, decorated with ribbons and rosettes, occupied the raised footpaths—boys on one side and girls on the other. One inscription gave the visitors "A Wapping Welcome."

When the platform was level with the jetty, the Rector of Wapping, the Rev. Septimus Buss, advanced to the Lord Mayor's carriage and read an address on behalf of the parish and that of St. George's-in-the-East. Having left the carriage, the Lord Mayor was conducted into the box at the end of the jetty, where the hydraulic lever is handled by a man with his eye on the platform as it rises and falls. His Lordship himself guided the lever when the platform was lowered and raised, on the arrival of the band and some of the visitors who had been left behind on the opposite shore. The Rev. Mr. Buss offered a prayer and pronounced a blessing. The school children, who had already sung the National Anthem, sang a psalm, and the company proceeded under the new warehouses and across the road to a spacious marquee, where luncheon had been provided. The chair was taken by Mr. Edmund Waller, managing director. At the principal table were the Lady Mayoresse, Miss White, and Miss M'Lelland, with several Aldermen and Common Councilmen, and representatives of other public bodies. Several appropriate toasts were duly honoured.

METROPOLITAN NEWS.

The Common Council has resolved to petition Parliament for a continuance of the coal and wine duties.

The winter meeting of the London Athletic Club will take place at Stamford-bridge, Fulham, this (Saturday) afternoon.

A new station on the London and South-Western Railway has been opened in the Queen's-road, Battersca Park. This makes the third station in this locality.

Mr. E. M. Nelson has been chosen Common Councilman for Dowgate Ward, in the place of Mr. Alderman Breffitt. Alderman Sir F. Truscott has nominated Mr. Thomas White to be his deputy for the ward.

According to ancient custom, the Lord Mayor entertained last Saturday the Master (Mr. J. C. Burgoyne), the Wardens, and the Court of the Fruiterers' Company at dinner in the Egyptian Hall of the Mansion House.

Mr. Bass, M.P., has promised to head the subscription-list in connection with the anniversary dinner of the Commercial Travellers' Schools with 1000 guineas. The anniversary is fixed for Friday, Dec. 21.

The sixteenth season of the Lambeth Bath meetings was opened last Saturday evening by Mr. Alderman M'Arthur, M.P. A resolution recognising the value of these gatherings was carried, upon the motion of Sir J. C. Lawrence, his colleague in the representation of the borough.

At Wednesday's meeting of the School Board for London—Sir Charles Reed presiding—the question of the vagrant children of the metropolis was discussed, and resulted in a joint reference to the industrial schools and the by-laws committees. The other business was of a routine nature.

The trial of Detective-Inspectors Meiklejohn, Druscovich, Palmer, and Clarke, and Mr. E. Froggatt, solicitor, is proceeding at the Central Criminal Court, before Baron Pollock. On Thursday, the twelfth day of the trial, the case for the prosecution was brought to a close, and witnesses for the defence were called.

The Metropolitan Board of Works has decided to construct the sewerage works proposed by the engineer for the purpose of preventing the low-lying district of Battersea from being flooded. These works will necessitate an expenditure of £40,000. The board have entered into negotiations with Queen's College, Oxford, to purchase the manorial rights over Plumstead-common for the sum of £10,500.

The third sitting of the autumnal session of the ministers and teachers connected with the Sunday School Union was held on Wednesday evening in the Metropolitan Tabernacle. The various methods of conducting young men and women classes was the subject for the evening, and it was very fully discussed on the motion of Mr. Tresidder, who gave the address.

Those old opponents and ex-champions, Henry Kelley and J. H. Sadler, sculled from Putney to Mortlake for £200 a side on Monday last. Though Sadler is now thirty-seven years old, he is nine years younger than Kelley; and, taking the lead from the start, he won very easily indeed by half a dozen lengths. Kelley sculled most pluckily, and in capital form; but, in giving away such an advantage in point of years, he attempted an almost impossible task.

The weekly return of metropolitan pauperism shows that the total number of paupers at the end of the fifth week of October was 79,198, of whom 38,465 were in workhouses, and 40,733 received outdoor relief. Compared with the corresponding weeks in the years 1876, 1875, and 1874, these figures show a decrease of 35, 3837, and 12,378 respectively. The number of vagrants relieved on the last day of the week was 798, of whom 533 were men, 215 women, and 50 children.

A reward of £50 has been offered by the managing director of the Westminster Aquarium for information which will lead to the discovery of the perpetrators of a robbery at the Aquarium. Among the articles stolen are "an Irish torc," formed of a thin strip of gold about a quarter of an inch wide, spirally twisted, 8 in. in diameter; four armlets, made of strips of gold; a gold bracelet, 2½ in. in diameter; a large number of old coins in gold and silver, medals, bracelets, rings, eardrops, and four nuggets of gold.

A general court of the subscribers of the Governesses' Benevolent Institution was held on the 2nd inst. at Willis's Rooms, St. James's—Mr. J. W. Hale, the treasurer, in the chair. Last year the society benefited in various ways 4293 governesses; and on Dec. 31 last there were 208 annuitants in receipt of sums varying from £20 to £50—a number increased by the election last May to 215. The meeting was called to elect five annuitants of £25 each, from a list of 133 approved candidates.

A meeting in support of Miss Leigh's Home for Destitute Englishwomen in Paris was held on Tuesday at the Mansion House. The Lord Mayor, who presided, stated how essential it was that not only Englishwomen, but English children, should be rescued, when destitute, from the temptations which large foreign cities presented. The "Home" he considered a most valuable institution to that end. Sir William Hill, the Rev. Canon Morley, and the Hon. Captain Maude, R.N., and the Rev. F. J. C. Moran, were among the speakers.

The winter session of the Central Chamber of Agriculture commenced by a meeting held on Tuesday in the Salisbury Hotel, under the presidency of Earl Fortescue. It was agreed that a memorial should be presented to the Lord President of the Council asking that the restrictions which they recommended as necessary for the security of home stock from the importation of foreign cattle disease should be enforced. The Chamber considered the question of highway legislation, and adopted a resolution stating that the increasing burden of highway rates rendered imperative the introduction of a comprehensive highway bill into Parliament.

Captain G. C. Strahan, R.A., C.M.G., Governor-in-Chief of the Windward Islands, was on Wednesday night entertained at a farewell dinner given at Willis's Rooms by a party of gentlemen connected with Barbadoes.

Mr. Thomas Rudkin, chairman of the City Lands Committee and of the Billingsgate Market Sub-Committee, entertained on Monday the Lord Mayor (Sir Thomas White), most, if not all, of the Aldermen, and other principal members of the Corporation of London at a dinner, which was served in the Vintners' Hall, situated in Upper Thames-street.

The Stafford House Committee resumed its sittings at Stafford House on Tuesday. Since the general meeting of subscribers held there in July last the executive committee has met daily at Dunrobin Castle. The subscriptions received in the interval have amounted to about £12,000—making a total of £30,000. The amount of suffering and distress at the present moment in Turkey is beyond belief and beyond description, and the committee earnestly appeals to the public for the means of continuing and increasing their work through the winter. The Duke of Portland has contributed another £1000, making a total of £6000 given by him to the Fund.

The Lord Mayor having received her Majesty's permission to nominate deputy-lieutenants for the city of London in the room of those who have died or been removed from the commission during his year of office, has chosen the following gentlemen:—Mr. Leopold de Rothschild, the Hon. Pascoe Charles Glyn, Mr. Charles W. Mills, Mr. Thomas C. Baring, M.P., Colonel Makins, M.P., Mr. Henry Samuel King, J.P., Mr. Arthur T. Hewitt, Mr. Robert Burn Blyth, Mr. J. T. Bedford, Mr. Richard Cox, Mr. Thomas Rudkin, Mr. William Quartermaine East, Mr. James Hughes, Mr. Lumley Smith, Mr. R. Colquhoun Fergusson, Mr. James T. Friend, J.P., Mr. Samuel Hoare, Mr. Horace White, Mr. Cecil Price, Mr. William L. T. Foy, Mr. J. D. Lee, Mr. Frederick Manuella, Mr. Thomas Frazer, Mr. David Smith, Mr. Under-Sheriff Crawford, Mr. Jonah Hadley, and Mr. John Orwell Phillips.

Tuesday was the opening day of a numerous and well-selected exhibition of singing, talking, and other small and middle-sized birds at the Westminster Aquarium. There were upwards of 1100 cages, and several of those were as full of inhabitants as a model lodging-house; but all seemed fresh, comfortable, and contented. The canaries were in great force, one amateur fancier, Mr. Salt, of Derby, having 220 entries. British birds—from the gold and bull finches down to the robin and blackbird—were also included in the exhibition; and, lastly, there was a large supply of foreign birds, amongst which were several fine specimens of the Java sparrow, some pretty love-birds, and several exceedingly loquacious parrots and cockatoos. The birds were arranged, with every attention to their health and comfort, by Messrs. Cotton and Custance, the secretaries to the exhibition; and their quality was carefully appraised by Messrs. Wilson, Blakston, and Bemrose. There were many valuable prizes. The show closed on Thursday.

The first meeting of the Zoological Society for this session was held on Tuesday evening at Hanover-square. After an announcement by the secretary of the addition to the society's gardens since last meeting, Professor Flower read a paper on recent additions to our knowledge of mesopodion, a genus of whales. He particularly referred to the way in which colonists, especially in New Zealand, having taken to zoology as a study, are doing valuable work. Especially with regard to this genus have they contributed information, and as this is an old British whale, whose fossil remains are found in the crag, this is of interest. If in the next ten years our knowledge of whales increases as it has in the last ten we may more safely generalise as to groups. The Marquis of Tweeddale contributed an ornithological paper, and Professor Garrod spoke of a comparison he had had an opportunity of making between the skin of a Sunderbund rhinoceros and the Javan (Sondaicus) at the Zoological Gardens, which, on its arrival, attracted so much attention. He finds that the folds and other markings are almost identical, and they appear to be of the same species. Several technical papers were read.

There were registered last week 2667 births and 1447 deaths, and allowing for increase of population the births exceeded by 163, while the deaths were 118 below the average. The deaths included 9 from smallpox, 47 from measles, 82 from scarlet fever, 9 from diphtheria, 24 from whooping-cough, 39 from different forms of fever, and 19 from diarrhoea. The fatal cases of scarlet fever showed a further marked increase upon the numbers in recent weeks, and exceeded those in any week since the first of 1876. The deaths referred to fever corresponded with the numbers in the previous week, and were 2 below the corrected weekly average: 4 were certified as typhus, 31 as enteric fever, and 4 as simple continued fever. The number of smallpox patients in the Metropolitan Asylum Hospitals, which in the four preceding weeks had risen from 137 to 177, further increased to 189 during last week. The deaths referred to diseases of the respiratory organs, which in the nine preceding weeks had steadily increased from 108 to 371, declined last week to 335, and all but corresponded with the corrected weekly average: 195 resulted from bronchitis and 99 from pneumonia. The death of the wife of a grocer, aged twenty-four years, in Kentish Town, was referred to hydrophobia, making the fourteenth fatal case of this disease registered in London since the beginning of the year, the corrected average annual number being but four. In Greater London 3202 births and 1663 deaths were registered. The mean temperature was 49.1 deg., 2.8 deg. above the average. The duration of registered sunshine in the week was 19.2 hours, the sun being above the horizon during 67.6 hours.

The estate of Bewlie, near Lilliesleaf, Roxburghshire, has been sold by Captain Riddell of Muselle to Captain Riddell Carre of Cavers-Carre, at a price between £13,000 and £14,000.

Orders have been given by the Admiralty for the construction of eleven swift torpedo vessels, an improvement on the Lightning type. Their cost will be rather more than £60,000.

A fancy fair was held the first three days of this week under the Dome of the Pavilion at Brighton, in aid of the funds of the Sussex County Hospital. A large number of suitable articles had been sent in from Brighton, the county, and London, and over a dozen well-stocked stalls were opened, amongst the ladies who took charge of them being the Marchioness of Queensberry, Lady Cardross, Lady Jephson, and many others. The Duchess of Richmond and Gordon, the Countess of Münster, Viscountess Forbes, and the Baroness de Teissier were included in the list of patronesses; and Princess Louise (Marchioness of Lorne) showed her interest by sending a portrait of Lady Frances Campbell, drawn by herself. The Marchioness of Queensberry's stall contained a quantity of Viennese work in leather, the gift of the Archduchess Marie of Austria. Besides the attractions of the stalls, military concerts by the band of the 20th Hussars, which is now quartered in the town, musical performances, and dramatic entertainments were also given, Miss Amy Sedgwick and a number of local professional ladies and gentlemen giving their services.

THE WAR: IN THE TRENCHES BEFORE PLEVNA.
FROM A SKETCH BY ONE OF OUR SPECIAL ARTISTS.

THE LORD MAYOR OF LONDON OPENING THE NEW STEAM FERRY ACROSS THE THAMES AT WAPPING.

THE UNION LINE STEAM-SHIP GERMAN, FOR THE CAPE MAILS.

THE NEW MAIL STEAM-SHIP GERMAN.

This vessel, lately constructed and launched on the Clyde, belongs to the Union Steam-Ship Company, and is designed for the mail service between England and the British South African Colonies. She was built by Messrs. Denny, Brothers, and Co., shipbuilders and marine engineers, at Dumbarton. The dimensions of the German are—length, 350 ft.; breadth, 39½ ft.; and depth, 32 ft. The gross tonnage is 3028 tons, the registered tonnage 1946 tons. The engines, a remarkably successful piece of work, were turned out by the engineering establishment of the same firm. The nominal horse power is only 425, but the power indicated at the official trial in Southampton was 2651. The speed attained on that occasion was considerably in excess of that contracted for. With 1760 tons of dead weight on board, and on a mean draught of 18 ft. 4 in., the German realised an average speed of 13.813 knots, which is equal to seventeen statute miles. There are some noticeable features connected with the arrangements of the ship and the manner in which she has been fitted and finished. Great attention has been bestowed on those details likely to enhance the comfort of the numerous passengers. A noble staircase, branching into two broad flights, leads down to a spacious antechamber, well lighted, and furnished as an elegant and luxurious drawing-room. This opens forward into the dining-saloon, which is nearly square, running athwart the ship, and is most comfortable, with bar pantry annexed. The ladies' cabins, partitioned off on the starboard side amidships, and the other sleeping cabins, arranged on each side of a wide corridor running aft, are entered also from the antechamber. There are baths and retiring-rooms for ladies at the stern of the ship, and for gentlemen in the forepart. The second-class accommodation, with a saloon 100 ft. long, flanked by airy cabins, is so good as to be even more remarkable than that for the first-class passengers. The officers' quarters are in deck-houses above, with the hospital and additional baths. There is a flush deck the whole length of the ship, giving plenty of room for healthful exercise. The German is calculated not only to reflect credit on the builders and owners, but may be expected to ensure to the travelling public every convenience during the voyage to and from the South African colonies. The time occupied in the passage to Capetown is not anticipated to be more than nineteen or twenty days.

The foundation-stone of the Aveling Memorial Church, at the Reedham Asylum for Fatherless Children, was laid on the 1st inst. by Mrs. Spalding, of Ore-place, Hastings, daughter of the late Dr. Andrew Reed, founder of the institution; and an address was given by Sir Charles Reed, chairman of the London School Board, a son of the founder.

The council of the Royal Agricultural Society of Ireland held a special meeting on the 1st inst., and confirmed the report of the committee recommending an amalgamation with the Agricultural Committee of the Royal Dublin Society. The committee recommend that the new society should be called the Royal Agricultural Association of Ireland; but the meeting resolved that it should be called the Royal Irish Agricultural Society. A meeting of the council of the Royal Dublin Society was subsequently held, and they agreed to accept the report. It will be submitted to a general meeting of the members of both societies for confirmation.

THE WANDERERS' CLUB, Pall-mall.—This Club having now reached 1378 Members, there remain only 200 VACANCIES. Annual Subscription:—Town Members, 8 guineas; Country Members, 4 guineas; Members abroad, 2 guineas. Present Entrance-Fee, 10 guineas. Apply to Major T. H. P. KENNAN, Secretary.

MOST IMPORTANT AND ENLARGED DRAWING OF PRIZES with the Security of the Government of Hamburg.—£40,413 (£2,500) in Gold, must positively be won in a few months. The highest gain is amounting to £18,750 (£1,250) in the most favourable circumstance. The following is a list of the other Prizes:—

1 Prize of ..	£12,500	£12,500
1 Ditto of ..	6,250	6,250
1 Ditto of ..	3,125	3,125
1 Ditto of ..	1,562	1,562
1 Ditto of ..	781	781
1 Ditto of ..	390	390
1 Ditto of ..	195	195
1 Ditto of ..	97	97
1 Ditto of ..	48	48
1 Ditto of ..	24	24
1 Ditto of ..	12	12
1 Ditto of ..	6	6
1 Ditto of ..	3	3
1 Ditto of ..	1	1
1 Ditto of ..	0.5	0.5
1 Ditto of ..	0.25	0.25
1 Ditto of ..	0.125	0.125
1 Ditto of ..	0.0625	0.0625
1 Ditto of ..	0.03125	0.03125
1 Ditto of ..	0.015625	0.015625
1 Ditto of ..	0.0078125	0.0078125
1 Ditto of ..	0.00390625	0.00390625
1 Ditto of ..	0.001953125	0.001953125
1 Ditto of ..	0.0009765625	0.0009765625
1 Ditto of ..	0.00048828125	0.00048828125
1 Ditto of ..	0.000244140625	0.000244140625
1 Ditto of ..	0.0001220703125	0.0001220703125
1 Ditto of ..	0.00006103515625	0.00006103515625
1 Ditto of ..	0.000030517578125	0.000030517578125
1 Ditto of ..	0.0000152587890625	0.0000152587890625
1 Ditto of ..	0.00000762939453125	0.00000762939453125
1 Ditto of ..	0.000003814697265625	0.000003814697265625
1 Ditto of ..	0.0000019073486328125	0.0000019073486328125
1 Ditto of ..	0.00000095367431640625	0.00000095367431640625
1 Ditto of ..	0.000000476837158203125	0.000000476837158203125
1 Ditto of ..	0.0000002384185791015625	0.0000002384185791015625
1 Ditto of ..	0.00000011920928955078125	0.00000011920928955078125
1 Ditto of ..	0.000000059604644775390625	0.000000059604644775390625
1 Ditto of ..	0.0000000298023223876953125	0.0000000298023223876953125
1 Ditto of ..	0.00000001490116119384765625	0.00000001490116119384765625
1 Ditto of ..	0.000000007450580596923828125	0.000000007450580596923828125
1 Ditto of ..	0.0000000037252902984619140625	0.0000000037252902984619140625
1 Ditto of ..	0.00000000186264514923095703125	0.00000000186264514923095703125
1 Ditto of ..	0.000000000931322574615478515625	0.000000000931322574615478515625
1 Ditto of ..	0.0000000004656612873077392578125	0.0000000004656612873077392578125
1 Ditto of ..	0.00000000023283064365386962890625	0.00000000023283064365386962890625
1 Ditto of ..	0.000000000116415321826934814453125	0.000000000116415321826934814453125
1 Ditto of ..	0.0000000000582076609134674072265625	0.0000000000582076609134674072265625
1 Ditto of ..	0.00000000002910383045673370361328125	0.00000000002910383045673370361328125
1 Ditto of ..	0.000000000014551915228366851806640625	0.000000000014551915228366851806640625
1 Ditto of ..	0.0000000000072759576141834259033203125	0.0000000000072759576141834259033203125
1 Ditto of ..	0.00000000000363797880709171295166015625	0.00000000000363797880709171295166015625
1 Ditto of ..	0.000000000001818989403545856475830078125	0.000000000001818989403545856475830078125
1 Ditto of ..	0.0000000000009094947017729282379150390625	0.0000000000009094947017729282379150390625
1 Ditto of ..	0.00000000000045474735088646411895751953125	0.00000000000045474735088646411895751953125
1 Ditto of ..	0.000000000000227373675443232059478759765625	0.000000000000227373675443232059478759765625
1 Ditto of ..	0.0000000000001136868377216160297393798828125	0.0000000000001136868377216160297393798828125
1 Ditto of ..	0.00000000000005684341886080801486968994140625	0.00000000000005684341886080801486968994140625
1 Ditto of ..	0.000000000000028421709430404007434844970703125	0.000000000000028421709430404007434844970703125
1 Ditto of ..	0.0000000000000142108547152020037174224853515625	0.0000000000000142108547152020037174224853515625
1 Ditto of ..	0.00000000000000710542735760100185871124267578125	0.00000000000000710542735760100185871124267578125
1 Ditto of ..	0.0000000000000035527136788005009293556213390625	0.0000000000000035527136788005009293556213390625
1 Ditto of ..	0.00000000000000177635683940025046467781066953125	0.00000000000000177635683940025046467781066953125
1 Ditto of ..	0.000000000000000888178419700125232338905334765625	0.000000000000000888178419700125232338905334765625
1 Ditto of ..	0.0000000000000004440892098500626161694526673828125	0.0000000000000004440892098500626161694526673828125
1 Ditto of ..	0.00000000000000022204460492503130808472633369140625	0.00000000000000022204460492503130808472633369140625
1 Ditto of ..	0.000000000000000111022302462515654042363166845703125	0.000000000000000111022302462515654042363166845703125
1 Ditto of ..	0.0000000000000000555111512312578270211815833428515625	0.0000000000000000555111512312578270211815833428515625
1 Ditto of ..	0.00000000000000002775557561562891351059079166712878125	0.00000000000000002775557561562891351059079166712878125
1 Ditto of ..	0.000000000000000013877787807814456755295395833564390625	0.000000000000000013877787807814456755295395833564390625
1 Ditto of ..	0.0000000000000000069388939039072283776476979167821953125	0.0000000000000000069388939039072283776476979167821953125
1 Ditto of ..	0.00000000000000000346944695195361418882384895839109765625	0.00000000000000000346944695195361418882384895839109765625
1 Ditto of ..	0.0000000000000000017347234759768070944119244791954978125	0.0000000000000000017347234759768070944119244791954978125
1 Ditto of ..	0.00000000000000000086736173798840354720596223959774890625	0.00000000000000000086736173798840354720596223959774890625
1 Ditto of ..	0.000000000000000000433680868994201773602981119798874453125	0.000000000000000000433680868994201773602981119798874453125
1 Ditto of ..	0.0000000000000000002168404344971008868014905598994372265625	0.0000000000000000002168404344971008868014905598994372265625
1 Ditto of ..	0.00000000000000000010842021724855044340074527994971861328125	0.00000000000000000010842021724855044340074527994971861328125
1 Ditto of ..	0.000000000000000000054210108624275221700372639974859306640625	0.000000000000000000054210108624275221700372639974859306640625
1 Ditto of ..	0.0000000000000000000271050543121376108501863199874296533203125	0.0000000000000000000271050543121376108501863199874296533203125
1 Ditto of ..	0.00000000000000000001355252715606880542509315999371482666015625	0.00000000000000000001355252715606880542509315999371482666015625
1 Ditto of ..	0.000000000000000000006776263578034402712546579996857413330078125	0.000000000000000000006776263578034402712546579996857413330078125
1 Ditto of ..	0.0000000000000000000033881317890172013562732899984287066650390625	0.0000000000000000000033881317890172013562732899984287066650390625
1 Ditto of ..	0.00000000000000000000169406589450860067813664499921435333251953125	0.00000000000000000000169406589450860067813664499921435333251953125
1 Ditto of ..	0.00000000000000000000084703294725430033906832249996071766612578125	0.00000000000000000000084703294725430033906832249996071766612578125
1 Ditto of ..	0.000000000000000000000423516473627150169534161249980358833062890625	0.000000000000000000000423516473627150169534161249980358833062890625
1 Ditto of ..	0.0000000000000000000002117582368135750847670806249940179166514453125	0.0000000000000000000002117582368135750847670806249940179166514453125
1 Ditto of ..	0.0000000000000000000001058791184067875423835403124970089583257265625	0.0000000000000000000001058791184067875423835403124970089583257265625
1 Ditto of ..	0.00000000000000000000005293955920339377119177015624850447916286328125	0.00000000000000000000005293955920339377119177015624850447916286328125
1 Ditto of ..	0.000000000000000000000026469779601696885595885078124252239581431640625	0.000000000000000000000026469779601696885595885078124252239581431640625
1 Ditto of ..	0.000000000000000000000013234889800848442797944039062112611197917157203125	0.000000000000000000000013234889800848442797944039062112611197917157203125
1 Ditto of ..	0.00000000000000000000000661744490042422139897201953106305989585860625	0.00000000000000000000000661744490042422139897201953106305989585860625
1 Ditto of ..	0.00000000000000000000000330872245021211069948600976553152994792928125	0.00000000000000000000000330872245021211069948600976553152994792928125
1 Ditto of ..	0.00000000000000000000000165436122510605534974300488276576496464615625	0.00000000000000000000000165436122510605534974300488276576496464615625
1 Ditto of ..	0.000000000000000000000000827180612553027674871700244137882482323078125	0.000000000000000000000000827180612553027674871700244137882482323078125
1 Ditto of ..	0.0000000000000000000000004135903062765138374358501220689412161615390625	0.0000000000000000000000004135903062765138374358501220689412161615390625
1 Ditto of ..	0.00000000000000000000000020679515313825691872179006103447060808076953125	0.00000000000000000000000020679515313825691872179006103447060808076953125
1 Ditto of ..	0.000000000000000000000000103397576569128459360895030517235304040384765625	0.000000000000000000000000103397576569128459360895030517235304040384765625
1 Ditto of ..	0.0000000000000000000000000516987882845642296804475152586176520201923828125	0.0000000000000000000000000516987882845642296804475152586176520201923828125
1 Ditto of ..	0.00000000000000000000000002584939414228211484022375762930882601009619140625	0.00000000000000000000000002584939414228211484022375762930882601009619140625
1 Ditto of ..	0.000000000000000000000000012924697071141057420111878814654413005048095703125	0.000000000000000000000000012924697071141057420111878814654413005048095703125
1 Ditto of ..	0.0000000000000000000000000064623485355705287100559394073272065025240478515625	0.0000000000000000000000000064623485355705287100559394073272065025240478515625
1 Ditto of ..	0.00000000000000000000000000323117426778526435502796970366360325126202392578125	0.00000000000000000000000000323117426778526435502796970366360325126202392578125
1 Ditto of ..	0.000000000000000000000000001615587133892632177513984851831801625631011962890625	0.000000000000000000000000001615587133892632177513984851831801625631011962890625
1 Ditto of ..	0.0000000000000000000000000008077935669463160887

FORMS A STOPPING,
SAVES THE TOOTH
J. Honnall, Esq., Surgeon, Bridport, writes:—"I consider BUNTER'S NERVINE a specific for Toothache. Very severe cases under my care have found instantaneous and permanent relief."
Of all Chemists, at 1s. 11d. per Packet.

NEW MUSIC.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S

SPECIALITIES IN PIANO-PORTES.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S STUDENT'S PIANOFORTE. Compos. five Octaves, 15 ga., or 21 10a. per quarter on the Three-Years' System.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S SCHOOL PIANOS, Canadian Walnut, 20 ga., or 22 ga. per quarter on the Three-Years' System of Purchase.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S YACHT PIANOS, 30 ga., or 23 ga. per quarter on the Three-Years' System of Purchase.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S BOUDOIR PIANO, 35 ga., or 23 10a. per quarter on the Three-Years' System of Purchase.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S MODEL PIANETTE, 35 ga., or 23 10a. per quarter on the Three-Years' System of Purchase.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S ENGLISH MODEL, 40 ga., or 24 ga. per quarter on the Three-Years' System of Purchase.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S COLONIAL MODEL, 45 ga., or 24 10a. per quarter on the Three-Years' System of Purchase.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S FOREIGN MODEL, 50 ga., or 25 ga. per quarter on the Three-Years' System of Purchase.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S ENGLISH OBLIQUE, 55 ga., or 25 10a. per quarter on the Three-Years' System of Purchase.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S OBLIQUE GRAND, 70 ga., or 27 ga. per quarter on the Three-Years' System of Purchase.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S IRON-FRAMED OBLIQUE, 80 ga., or 29 ga. per quarter on the Three-Years' System of Purchase.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S MIGNON IRON GRAND, 80 ga., or 29 ga. per quarter on the Three-Years' System of Purchase.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S BOUDOIR IRON 110 ga., or 31 ga. per quarter on the Three-Years' System of Purchase.

UPWARDS of ONE HUNDRED VARIETIES ON VIEW.

MAY BE HAD OF ALL PIANOFORTE DEALERS THROUGHOUT THE UNITED KINGDOM.

SHOW-ROOMS—50, NEW BOND-STREET.

STEAM FACTORY—CHALK FARM-ROAD, N.W.

CHRISTMAS NUMBER OF CHAPPELL'S MUSICAL MAGAZINE, containing the following Popular Dance Music:

Tryal by JURY Lancers Charles D'Albert.
Constantinople Quadrille Johann Strauss.
Die Fledermaus Waltz Emil Waldteufel.
Les Lointains Waltz Johann Strauss.
Maiden's Dream Waltz Charles D'Albert.
The Schomberg Galop Edward Hoffman.
Florette Polka Charles D'Albert.
Pizzicato Polka J. and J. Strauss.
Forget-me-not Galop A. Hecker.

MOLLIE DARLING, by CHAS. D'ALBERT. Price One Shilling; post-free, 1s. 2d. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE BALKANS. Descriptive Piece for the Pianoforte, by JULES DE SIBAL, introducing Turkish and Russian Airs. Illustrated. Price 2s. net. SCHIFFER PASS. Grand March for the Pianoforte, by WM. SMALLWOOD. Illustrated. 1s. 6d. net. MARCH OF THE PASHAS. For the Pianoforte, by J. PRIDHAM. Illustrated. 2s. net. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

ARTHUR SULLIVAN'S NEW SONG. THE DISTANT SHORE. New Song. By ARTHUR SULLIVAN. Sung by Mr. Edward Lloyd during his provincial tour. Price (in E flat, F or G), 2s. net. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE ROWAN TREE, New Song, by M. W. BALFE, will be sung by Madame Antoinette Sterling during her tour in the provinces. Price 2s. net. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THOU'RT PASSING HENCE. — Mr. Santley will sing Arthur Sullivan's New Song at the first Saturday Popular Concert, on Nov. 17, at St. James's Hall. Price 2s. net. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE FANFARE POLKA. By CHARLES D'ALBERT. Illustrated. 1s. 6d. net; Orchestra, 2s.; Septet, 2s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHARLES D'ALBERT'S NEW DANCE MUSIC.

SWEETHEARTS. Waltz on Arthur Sullivan's popular Song. "One of the best waltzes ever written by the Net. Above favourite composer." Price 2s. net. TRIAL BY JURY LANCERS. — An Air from Sullivan's popular Work 2 0 TRIAL BY JURY QUADRILLE 2 0 TRIAL BY JURY POLKA 1 6 TRIAL BY JURY POLKA 1 6 RINK GALOP 2 0 The above, arranged for Full Orchestra, 2s.; Septet, 2s. each. N.B. A Complete List of M. D'Albert's Popular Dance Music will be sent on application to CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S NEW SONGS. SWEETHEARTS (sung by Mr. Edward Lloyd) 2s. net. IF (sung by B. McGuckin) 2s. net. THE CAPTIVE SKYLARK 2s. net. THE SKYLARK FREE 2s. net. BOOKS AND FLOWERS 2s. net. OH! FOR THY WINGS 2s. net. CRADLE SONG 2s. net. THE LAST LETTER 2s. net. WHEN THOU ART NIGH 2s. net. I'LL SING THESE SONGS OF ARABY 2s. net. THE FATE OF A ROSE 2s. net. MY LOVE ACROSS THE BLUE SEA 2s. net. THE DAY MY LOVE WENT AWAY 2s. net. NOT FAR AWAY 2s. net. SAY, FOND HEART 2s. net. HAMILTON CLARKE. 1s. 6d. net. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

TRIAL BY JURY. Dramatic Cantata. Written by W. S. Gilbert. Composed by ARTHUR SULLIVAN. Now being performed with immense success at the Strand Theatre. Complete for Voice and Pianoforte. 2s. 6d. net. TRIAL BY JURY. Pianoforte Solo. 2s. 6d. net. THE JUDGE'S SONG. 2s. net. THE LOVE-SICK BOY. Defendant's Song. 1s. 6d. net. KUHLE'S FANTASIA. 2s. net. SMALLWOOD'S FANTASIA (easy). 1s. 6d. net. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

L'ORGANISTE PRATIQUE. 240 Easy Pieces for Organ or Harmonium, by J. LEYBAECH, in 2 vols., price 6s. each; or in eight parts, each 2s. net. The above will supply a want long felt by amateur performers on the organ or harmonium, as all the pieces are very pretty without being difficult. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW MUSIC.

BOOSEY and CO.'S LIST.

THE ILLUSTRATED SONGS OF SCOTLAND.—BOOSEY and CO. beg to announce a New and very superb Edition of the Songs of Scotland, containing twelve full-page illustrations by Frank Dicksee, A. Hunt, J. MacRae, and E. B. Leighton. The book contains 120 songs, the music edited by J. Pittman and Collin Brown, the words revised (with notes) by Charles Mackay. The illustrated songs of Scotland are printed in one volume, imperial 8vo, very beautifully bound in cloth, gilt edges, price 10s. 6d. Ready on the 10th inst.

BOOSEY and CO.'S CHRISTMAS PRESENTS IN MUSIC, all handsomely bound in cloth, gilt edges.

THE ILLUSTRATED SONGS OF SCOTLAND (120 songs with 12 full-page illustrations), 10s. 6d. BEETHOVEN'S SONATAS. Edited by W. Dorrell. 10s. 6d. MENDELSSOHN'S SONATAS WITHOUT WORDS. 4s. SCHUMANN'S PIANO-FORTE ALBUM. 4s. CHOPIN'S WALTZES, NOCTURNES, and MAZURKAS. 4s. STRAUSS'S WALTZ ALBUM (18 sets). 4s.

THE ROYAL SONG-BOOKS. RUBINSTEIN'S FIFTY SONGS. 4s. RUBINSTEIN'S EIGHTEEN VOCAL DUETS. 4s. BEETHOVEN'S SEVENTY-SIX SONGS. 4s. MENDELSSOHN'S SIXTY SONGS. 4s. SCHUMANN'S SEVENTY-FIVE SONGS. 4s. THE SONGS OF GERMANY. 4s.

The above have all German and English words. THE SONGS OF ENGLAND. 4s. THE SONGS OF SCOTLAND. 4s. THE SONGS OF IRELAND. 4s. THE SONGS OF WALES. 4s.

The above form a complete collection of National Songs. SACRED SONGS. ANCIENT AND MODERN. 4s. HUMOROUS SONGS. 4s. CHOICE DUETS FOR LADIES' VOICES. 4s. All the 4s. volumes can be had in paper covers, 2s. 6d. each.

Price 2s. 6d., paper; 4s., cloth, gilt edges. HUMOROUS SONGS.—A Third Edition (making the twelfth thousand) of this popular book is just published, containing seventy-two of the choicest songs for the drawing-room, edited by J. L. Hatton. Among the contributors are:—

Didkin, Offebach, Leeson, Arthur Sullivan, T. Hood, Hatton, Balfe, F. C. Burnand, H. Farnie, Oxford, A. S. Gatty.

Price 1s. each. BRAHMS' PIANO-FORTE ALBUM contains his best pieces, including 16 Waltzes. 1s. RAFF'S PIANO-FORTE ALBUM. 1s. RUBINSTEIN'S PIANO-FORTE ALBUM. 1s.

THE BEST INSTRUCTION-BOOK FOR CHILDREN. LILLIE'S FIRST MUSIC-BOOK. With 15 illustrations. Price 2s. 6d. LILLIE'S SONGS AND DANCES. 1s. LILLIE'S ALBUM OF DANCE MUSIC. Illustrated. 2s. 6d.

MUSIC FOR CHRISTMAS. LAMOTHE'S WALTZ ALBUM (6 new sets), 1s.

WALDTEUFEL'S WALTZ ALBUM (8 sets), 1s. STRAUSS'S WALTZ ALBUM (18 sets), 2s. 6d.

WORKS FOR CHORAL SOCIETIES. F. H. COWEN. THE CORSAIR. 2s. 6d. F. H. COWEN. THE ROSE MAIDEN. 2s. 6d. ARTHUR SULLIVAN. THE PRODIGAL SON. 2s. 6d. ARTHUR SULLIVAN. THE LITTLE BOY. 2s. 6d. F. HOWELL. THE LAND OF PROMISE. 2s. 6d. F. HOWELL. THE SONG OF THE MONTHS.

HANDY-BOOK FOR CHORAL SOCIETIES. By Dr. SPARK. Price 1s. A complete Guide for the Study and Practice of Part Music, including 128 Exercises, Part-Songs, Rounds, &c. (56 pages).

AT LAST.—Miss ANNA WILLIAMS will SING a new Ballad, by F. H. Cowen, entitled AT LAST, in the following Towns:—Manchester, Nov. 10; Dublin, 12; Waterford, 13; London, 14; Belfast, 15; Sheffield, 16; Loughborough, 17; Cheltenham, 18; Brighton, 19; Southampton, 20; Hastings, 21; Rochester, 22; Warrington, 23; Leicester, 24; Wolverhampton, 25; Bolton, Dec. 1; Southport, 2; Liverpool, 3; Worcester, 4; Preston, 5; Glasgow, 6; Dundee, 10; Newcastle, 11; Birkenhead, 12; and Hull, 13.

TWO NEW SONGS by the Composer of "Nancy Lee." In a few days will be published:—1. THE TWO FAIRIES. Sung by Mr. Santley. 2. YOUTH AND AGE. Sung by Mr. Maybrick. Both songs will be sung at the approaching Ballad Concerts. Price 2s. net.—Boosey and Co., 285, Regent-street.

NANCY LEE WALTZ. On the Celebrated Song. The Waltz of the Season. Price 2s. net, Solo and Duet; Septet, 1s.; Orchestra, 2s.

NANCY LEE GALOP. By FREWIN. On Adams's Popular Ballad. 2s. net. [This day. Boosey and Co., 285, Regent-street.

BOOSEY'S SHILLING OPERAS. OBERON, 1s. FIDELIO, 1s. FIGARO, 1s. Don Juan, 1s. Semiramide, 1s. Zampa, 1s. Figlia, 1s. Lucia, 1s. Lucrèce, 1s. Rigoletto, 1s. Trovatore, 1s. Un Ballo, 1s. La Traviata, 1s. Martha, 1s. Il Barbiere, 1s. Guillaume Tell, 1s. Don Pasquale, 1s. Fra Diavolo, 1s. Der Freischütz, 1s. Norma, 1s. Sonnambula, 1s. Robert le Diable, 1s. Le Trouvère, 1s. Les Huguenots, 1s. Lohengrin, 2s. Tannhäuser, 2s. The Flying Dutchman, 2s. All complete for Pianoforte.

SECONDHAND PIANOS.—BOOSEY and CO. have a large Stock of Instruments by all the great Makers, which they offer, according to their custom on the close of the season, at greatly reduced prices. The majority of these Pianos have been hired out season only, and are as good as new.—Boosey address, 285, Regent-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S BRASS INSTRUMENTS FOR AMATEURS. THE DISTIN CORNET, from 33 10s. THE DISTIN CELEBRATED LIGHT VALVE CORNETS, 7 and 9 ga., are the best Cornets manufactured. THE DISTIN MINIAURE CORNET-A-PISTONS, 9 ga. THE DISTIN BALLAD HORN IN C, 9 ga. THE DISTIN DRAG AND POST HORN AND BAND INSTRUMENTS at all prices. THE DISTIN MONTHLY BRASS BAND JOURNAL, 10s. 6d. per annum.

The above instruments were exhibited by Boosey and Co., at the Philadelphia Exhibition, and were awarded a Prize Medal "For power and good quality, fine workmanship." Estimated for Bands of all sizes, also illustrations and prices, to be had of the sole manufacturers, BOOSEY and CO., 285, Regent-street, London.

P. J. SMITH and SONS' IRON-STRUTTED PIANOS. "The best and most substantial instrument produced." 9, CONDUIT-STREET, REGENT-STREET, W.

BUTLER'S MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS. Violins, Concertinas, Harmoniums, Flutes, Clarionets, Flageolots, Guitars, Banjos, Accordions, Flutinas, Cornets, Saxhorns, Drums, and Musical Instruments of every description. Largest assortment in the Kingdom. BUTLER'S Manufactory, 20, Haymarket, London. Illustrated Catalogue, post-free.

"ESTEY" ORGANS, from 12 to 125 Guineas.

"ESTEY" NEW PEDAL ORGAN, 65 ga. Four Sets of Reeds. The only Perfect Reed Pedal Organ.

"ESTEY" ORGANS, For brightness and purity of tone and proximity to that of the Pipe Organ, also for precision of touch and power, are unsurpassed. Every Musical Instrument Dealer in the United Kingdom, and HODGE and EDELL (Sole Agents), 6 and 7, Argyl-street, Regent-street, London, W.

PIANOFORTES for HIRE or for SALE, from 25s. upwards.—JOHN BROADWOOD and SONS, No. 33, Great Fintona-street, Golden-square, W. Manufactory, No. 45, Horseferry-road, Westminster.

NEW MUSIC.

Ready this day. THE CLANG VALE (The Clang of the Wooden Shoon) on Molloy's popular Song. Arranged by CHARLES GODFREY. Price 4s.; post-free, 2s. stamps. London: METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, W.

Just published, KING HENRY'S SONG. By ARTHUR SULLIVAN. Introduced in the revival of "Henry VIII." Price 4s. Half price. METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London.

Just published, BEDOUIN LOVE SONG. Composed by CRO PINBUTI. Sung by Signor Foli with great success. Price 4s.; post-free, 2s. stamps. London: METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, W.

Just published, ACROSS THE FAR BLUE HILLS, MARIE. New Song. By JACQUES BLUMENTHAL. Words by E. Weatherly. Price: post-free, 2s. stamps. London: METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, W.

THE FIRE KING.—THE PAST IS BUT A TROUBLED DREAM. Sung by Mr. Edward Lloyd. Also, THE ARMS! TO ARMS! War Song. Price 4s. each. Half price.—METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London.

SEA NYMPHS. The New Operetta. By LEOCOQ (now being represented at the Folly Theatre). The Libretto (written by H. B. Farnie) and the Music complete, with all stage directions, published at 2s. 6d., post-free, in Metzer and Co.'s Edition of Comic Operas. METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

WHISPERING KISSES. The New Song. Is sung by Miss Violet Cameron in "The Creole" at the Folly Theatre with the greatest possible success, and is nightly encored. Post-free, 18 stamps. METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

SUNG BY MR. BARTON MCGUCKIN. MINE OWN. A New Song, in C, E, and F. By H. GADSBY. Words by F. E. Weatherly. Price 4s.; post-free, half-price. METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

SUNG BY MADAME LIEBHART. FAR FROM HOME. New Song. By G. B. ALLEN. Words by Edward Oxenford. Sung with the greatest success at Madame Liebhart's Concerts. Price: post-free, half price. METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

EDITH'S SONG. From Tennyson's "Harold." Set to Music by ODOARDO BARRI. Post-free, 24 stamps. METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

A WINTER'S TALE. From Tennyson's "Harold." "Two young lovers in wintry weather." Set to Music by ODOARDO BARRI. Price: post-free, 24 stamps. METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

WAR SONGS OF THE EAST. By H. B. FARNIE. In handsome covers, price 1s.; post-free, 15 stamps. METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

LA SERENADE. Waltz. By METRA. A most attractive and popular waltz. Solo or Duet. Post-free, 24 stamps. METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

LA VAGUE. Waltz. By METRA. Solo or Duet. Post-free, 24 stamps. METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

W. SMALLWOOD'S NEW PIECES for PIANO-FORTE. Illustrated Titlespages. CRYSTAL DEWDROPS. AVEILRE. Gondola Song. FAIRY DREAMS. Price 2s. 6d. each. Post-free, 18 stamps each. METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

MASON and HAMLIN'S ORGANS. Now ready. New Illustrated Book. Post-free. METZLER and Co., Sole Agents, Great Marlborough-street, W.

MASON and HAMLIN'S ORGANS. New Style 235. Nine Stops. Viola Dolce, Seraphone, &c. Price 28 guineas. METZLER and Co., Sole Agents, Great Marlborough-street, W.

MASON and HAMLIN'S ORGANS. New Style 312. Ten Stops. With Octave Coupler and Sub-Bass. Price 40 guineas. METZLER and Co., Sole Agents, Great Marlborough-street, W.

ASHDOWN and PARRY'S CATALOGUES. PART 1. PIANO, ORGAN, HARMONIUM. PART 2. VOCAL. PART 3. HARP, CONCERTINA. PART 4. VIOLIN, VIOLONCELLO, ORCHESTRA, &c. PART 5. FLUTE, CORNET, CLARINET, &c. Sent gratis and post-free to any part of the world. ASHDOWN and PARRY, Hanover-square, London.

Just published, THE LORD BRINGS BACK HIS OWN. New Sacred Song. By Sir JULIUS BENEDICT. Price 4s. ASHDOWN and PARRY, Hanover-square.

MARRIOTT'S NAVAL QUADRILLE. A new and extremely effective Set on popular Nautical Melodies. Price 4s. London: ASHDOWN and PARRY.

MARRIOTT'S MILITARY QUADRILLE. Just published. A remarkably attractive and vigorous Set, on popular martial airs. Price 4s. London: ASHDOWN and PARRY.

CHRISTMAS TIME. A New Set of Lancers Quadrilles on old English Melodies. By W. C. LEVEY. "Well-chosen tunes, and excellent for dancing." London: ASHDOWN and PARRY, Hanover-square.

ASHDOWN and PARRY'S MUSICAL PUBLICATIONS are to be had of every Musician and Bookseller in Great Britain, Ireland, the Colonies, and India, or will be sent direct post-free at half the marked price (bound works and cheap vocal part-music excepted) to any part of the world on receipt of remittance or satisfactory reference. London: ASHDOWN and PARRY, Hanover-square.

Full music size.—"A marvel of cheapness." MORLEY'S MARCH ALBUM. Price 1s. A valuable Collection of celebrated Marches by Handel, Mozart, Rossini, Weber, Schumann, and others (guaranteed strictly correct). The Volume, post-free, 12 stamps. Sole Publisher, W. MORLEY, Jun., 70, Upper-street, N.

CHARLES HALLÉ'S PRACTICAL PIANO-FORTE SCHOOL. Section I.—No. 1. Pianoforte Tutor. FORTY-THREE BROTHERS, London and Manchester.

MUSICAL LIBRARY SERIES. Edited and carefully fingered by CHARLES HALLÉ. FORTY-THREE BROTHERS, London and Manchester.

CHARLES HALLÉ'S NEW EDITION of POPULAR WORKS. For List of Pieces already published Catalogues will be forwarded, post-free, on application to FORTY-THREE BROTHERS, 272, Regent-street, Oxford-street, London; and Cross-street, South King-street, Manchester.

STOLEN KISSES WALTZ. By HANS WALDENFELDT. Free, 2s. Wood and Co., 3, Great Marlborough-street.

"Sweetly pretty, universally admired, and, having established itself as one of the most popular waltzes of the season, no programme will be complete without it."

NEW MUSIC.

THE MUSICAL TIMES. Price Threepence.

The Largest and Best Musical Journal.

THE MUSICAL TIMES for NOVEMBER contains:—The Great Composers, sketched by themselves: Mozart, by J. Bennett—A Sketch of the History of Music-Printing, by Dr. Chrystander (continued)—Festival Committees and New Works—Mdlle. Titiens—Crystal Palace Concerts—Liverpool Philharmonic Society—Advent Anthem, "Hearken unto Me, My people," by Arthur Sullivan—Reviews—Foreign and Country News, &c. Postage-free, 6d. Annual Subscription, 4s., including postage.

THE MUSICAL TIMES for NOVEMBER contains a New Anthem for Advent, by Arthur Sullivan, "Hearken unto Me, My people." Price, separately, 1d.

NOVELLO, EWER, and CO.'S MUSIC PRIMERS. Edited by Dr. STAINER. The following are now ready:—

THE PIANO-FORTE PRIMER. By ERNST PAUER. Price 2s.

THE ORGAN PRIMER. By Dr. STAINER. Price 2s.

THE RUDIMENTS OF MUSIC PRIMER. By W. H. CUMMINGS. Price 1s.

THE ELEMENTS OF THE BEAUTIFUL IN MUSIC. By ERNST PAUER. Price 1s. NOVELLO, EWER, and Co.'s Music Primers.

Second Edition, price 2s.; cloth, 3s. CATHEDRAL PSALTER CHANT. Edited by the Rev. F. FLOOD JONES, M.A., JAMES TURPIN, and A. H. OUTBECK, M.A., Dr. J. STAINER, and JOSEPH BARNEY.

LIEDER OHNE WORTE. Eight Books. The only Complete Edition. Cloth, 6s.; paper covers, 4s.

NOVELLO, EWER, and CO.'S CHRISTMAS PRESENTS. CHRISTMAS CAROLS, NEW AND OLD. Edited by the Rev. H. R. Bramley and Dr. Stainer. With 48 illustrations, engraved by the Brothers Dalziel. Separately bound, 7s. 6d.

THE SUNLIGHT OF SONG. Sacred and Moral Songs, with Original Music by the most eminent English Composers. With 46 illustrations, engraved by the Brothers Dalziel. Handsomely bound, 10s. 6d.

NATIONAL NURSERY RHYMES. Set to Music by J. W. Elliott. With 65 illustrations, engraved by the Brothers Dalziel. Cloth gilt, 7s. 6d.

BEETHOVEN'S SONATAS. Edited by Agnes Zimmermann. Folio, elegantly bound, gilt edges, 21s.; octavo, elegantly bound, gilt edges, 7s. 6d.; octavo, paper covers, 4s.

MOZART'S SONATAS. Edited by Agnes Zimmermann. Folio, elegantly bound, gilt edges, 12s. 6d.; octavo, elegantly bound, gilt edges, 4s. 6d.; octavo, paper covers, 2s. 6d.

MOZART'S SONATAS. Edited by Agnes Zimmermann. Folio, elegantly bound, gilt edges, 12s. 6d.; octavo, elegantly bound, gilt edges, 4s. 6d.; octavo, paper covers, 2s. 6d.

RUBINSTEIN'S EIGHTEEN TWO-PART SONGS. German and English Words. Octavo, handsomely bound, 4s. 6d.; paper covers, 2s. 6d.

SCHUMANN'S PIANO-FORTE ALBUM FOR YOUNG PIANISTS (Op. 65 and Op. 10). Handsomely bound, 4s. 6d.; paper covers, 2s. 6d.

GERMAN VOLKSLIEDER ALBUM. Original German Words; and an English Version by John Oxenford. Handsomely bound, 4s. 6d.; paper covers, 2s. 6d.

A DICTIONARY OF MUSIC. TERMS. Edited by Dr. Stainer and A. Barrett. Bro. cloth, gilt edges, 18s.

MUSICAL MYTHS AND FACTS. By CARL ENGEL. Two vols., demy 8vo, cloth, price 12s. London: NOVELLO, EWER, and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.; and 80 and 81, QUEEN-STREET, E.C.

JULIA WOOLF'S NEW SONGS. A GREAT SECRET. Words by F. E. Weatherly. Ego. THE BEE AND THE ROSE. Words by Agnes Trevor. "There is an irresistible charm of melody in both these songs."—Daily News. Post-free, 24 stamps.—B. WILLIAMS, 60, Paternoster-row.

AIR DU DAUPHIN. Ancienne Danse de la Cour. By ROBERT. For Piano Solo, Duet, Violin, Harmonium, Organ, Organ-Paraphrase, by W. T. Best. Each 18 stamps.—AUGER and Co., 86, Newgate-street, E.C.

GAVOTTE DE LOUIS QUINZE. By MAURICE LEE. Piano Solo, Duet, Violin, Orchestra. Organ Transcription, by F. E. Gladstone. 18 stamps each. AUGER and Co., 86, Newgate-street, and Foubert's-place, W.

AUGENER and CO.'S UNIVERSAL CIRCULATING MUSICAL LIBRARY is the largest in Europe. It contains 10,000 distinct works. Annual Subscription, 2 guineas.—London: 81, Regent-street. Prospectuses gratis.

NEW SONGS by ROBERT STANLEY. Dear little Flowers. Easting. When love's glow hath gone by. Price 2s. each net.—CRAMES and Co., 201, Regent-street.

THE FOUR MARIES. Old Ballad, as sung in Mr. Kennedy's Entertainment in St. James's Hall. Post-free for 18 stamps, from METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, W.

NEW AND POPULAR SONGS. ALL FOR HER. No. 1 sop. No. 2 contralto. A. S. GATTY. MAIDEN MAY. Two keys. A. S. GATTY. Sung by Madame Cave-Ashton.

BEFORE THE STORM. Baritone. A. S. GATTY. Sung by M. Caponi. REMY LOVE. Baritone. G. FOX. Sung by Wadmore. MY STAR. No. 1 contralto. No. 2 mezzo-sop. JULIA WOLFF. Little NANNIE. Soprano. JULIA WOLFF. Sung by Mrs. Osmond.

THE TROOPER'S DREAM. Baritone. JULIA WOLFF. Price 2s. each. Post-free, 24 stamps each. ENOCH and Sons, 19, Holles-street, W.

HAMMOND'S MUSIC PORTFOLIO. Price 1s. each Number; post-free, 15 stamps. No. 1 contains:—

Bris des Nuits Waltzes Lamothé. Gungl. Mennelotte Waltzes Waldteufel. Autograph Waltzes Strauss. St. David's Quadrille Dan Godfrey. Bruder Lustig Galop Budik.

Contents of No. 2. Le Premier Balser Waltzes Lamothé. Venus Reigen Waltzes Gungl. Den Lieben Langer Tag Waltzes Rudol. Deutsche Herren Waltzes Strauss. The Varsity Lancers D'Evilly. The Pet Schottische Bertrand.

SIX WALTZES BY JOSEPH GUNGEL. Soldaten Lieder Waltzes. Grafenberg Waltzes. Dahnlein Waltzes. Jungherren Tänz Walt

SKETCHES OF THE WAR, BY OUR SPECIAL ARTISTS.

COSSACK SCOUTS PASSING THE SCENE OF A RECENT ENGAGEMENT.

BEFORE PLEVNA: BRINGING THE WOUNDED TO THE REAR.

The Extra Supplement.

EXETER CATHEDRAL.

The reopening on the 17th ult. of the nave of this fine old ecclesiastical building, after its architectural restoration, which has followed that of the choir, was noticed in our Journal. A view of the exterior, including the north transept tower and the west front—with its picturesque screen, crowded with figures of Kings, warriors, saints, and apostles—is now presented as our Extra Supplement. The Cathedral Yard, with the adjacent Close or Precinct, and the Bishop's Palace close to the venerable cathedral church, occupies the most central site in the ancient Western city. This city of Exeter, a town of 40,000 inhabitants, little more than one mile in length and breadth, stands upon the hill that rises steeply on the left bank of the river Exe. From the meadows and other low grounds lying on the right bank of that river, including the suburb of St. Thomas's and the neighbouring hamlets of Exwick and Alington, and from the Haven Banks along the Exeter Canal, the distant view of the Cathedral is as fine as those of Lincoln or Durham, chiefly owing to its elevated site; and it is well set off by the terraced cliff and lines of houses above the Quay, and by the masses of foliage that surround those grey old towers. A nearer inspection of the Cathedral, while it reveals many beauties and original features of detail, somewhat detracts from the general effect of grandeur; it is rather interesting and characteristic than harmonious or sublime as an entire building. The west front is reached from Fore-street, near the antique Guildhall, by taking a few steps through Broadgate into the Cathedral yard, which is planted with lofty elms. One is struck, at first sight, by the position of the two great Norman towers, which are not, as in many other cathedrals, placed flanking the principal façade, but so as to form the north and south transepts. In the external view, we should say, this arrangement is far better than the ordinary position, as the gabled and buttressed pile of the west front, a fine Gothic composition, is not dwarfed by the mighty side towers. But the interior effect is gloomy, from the absence of transept windows and crossing lights, those towers completely blocking up the north and south ends. It was Bishop William Warewast, a nephew of William the Conqueror, who built the towers between 1107 and 1136. The choir and the nave, the Lady Chapel and other chapels, of Decorated Gothic, were constructed from 1258 to 1369, by the successive Bishops, Walter Bronescombe, Peter Quivil, Thomas de Bytton, Walter Stapledon, and John Grandisson. It is Peter Quivil, from 1280 to 1291, whose genius predominates in this noble piece of building, which is scarcely inferior to the best examples of English Gothic. If it have any fault, there may be objections to the excessive boldness and breadth of the vaulting groins, which tend to lessen the apparent height of the roof. But, according to the table given in Mr. Ferguson's "History of Architecture," it is, after all, 70 ft. high, which is absolutely loftier than Lichfield (55), Worcester (66), and Wells (67); and proportionately loftier than several others. The ratio which the height of the nave bears to its breadth is as 1 to 2.1; whereas at York, Lincoln, Peterborough, Wells, and Lichfield it is but 1 to 2. Ely also is as 1 to 2.1; and the only loftier examples given by Mr. Ferguson are Westminster (1 to 3), Salisbury and Durham (1 to 2.3), Canterbury (1 to 2.4), Winchester (1 to 2.43), Worcester (1 to 2.45), and Norwich (1 to 2.8). The nave is 180 ft. in length, while the entire length of the cathedral is 390 ft. The clustered columns, of Purbeck marble, contrasting with the light warm-tinted stone of the walls, have a rich and pleasing effect. The roof springs from slender shafts, studded with delicately carved bosses, extending to the east end of the choir. The corbels between the arches, too, are exquisitely carved; the recessed arcade over the nave-arches, the minstrel's gallery, with its figures of angelic musicians, and the windows of pure geometrical Gothic tracery, are very beautiful. In the choir, which is separated from the nave by a fine organ-loft screen of three broad stone arches, there is not less architectural grace, with much decorative sculpture, a very fine Bishop's throne of carved oak, stalls and sedilia of the same, a grand east window of stained glass, marble tombs, and other monumental works of art. The new reredos, which was the subject of litigation on account of its sculptured figures, has been allowed to occupy its destined place. Near this stands a handsome new stone pulpit. The Lady Chapel has been completely restored. It is interesting as reproducing the exact proportion of coloured glass and grisaille, as in the original stained windows. These windows and the decorations of the walls and ceiling are the work of Messrs. Clayton and Bell. The windows are a memorial to Bishop Philpotts, and the fittings of the chapel, where there is a second altar, are a gift from Lady Kollo. In St. Gabriel's Chapel, which forms the eastern termination of the south choir aisle, the glass of the east window is a memorial of Archdeacon Freeman, who laboured earnestly for the restoration of the cathedral. He had arranged the subjects for the window (all relating to the appearances of angels) which has now been erected as his own memorial. A memorial window for Archdeacon Bartholomew, in the Speke chantry, has been designed from Ary Scheffer's "Christus Consolator," and is not unsuccessful. The most interesting of these memorial windows, also by Clayton and Bell, is one in the south transept, bearing the following inscription:—

This window was placed here by numerous friends, to the glory of God, and to keep alive the name of John Taylor Coleridge, Knight, twenty-three years Judge of the Queen's Bench, Privy Counsellor to Queen Victoria. A sound lawyer. A wise man. Honoured by all men—loved by the good. He was trained by life for death, and by this world for another. Born at Tiverton, July 9, 1790. Deceased at Heath's Court, Ottery St. Mary, February 11, 1876.

The window contains full-length figures of Moses, Deborah, Nicodemus, Gamaliel, King Alfred, and Matthew Hale; and in the predella below, under each figure, is a subject in connection with it. Moses is receiving the tables of the law; Alfred is appointing his jurymen; and Hale is offering to defend Charles I., who declines his assistance. Lastly, we have to notice the memorial to Bishop Patteson—a pulpit of creamy-tinted Mansfield stone. Bishop Patteson, it should be said, was a nephew of Sir John Coleridge, and cousin of the present Lord Coleridge. He was ordained deacon in Exeter Cathedral in September, 1853, and priest in the September of the next year. Immediately after receiving priest's orders he went out to the missionary field of the Melanesian islands, in which he continued to labour till his death.

The pulpit contains three sculptured panels, exhibiting, first, the Martyrdom of St. Alban, the first British martyr; secondly, the Embarkation of St. Winfrid or Boniface, a native of Crediton, who afterwards became "The Apostle of Germany;" and, thirdly, the placing of the body of Bishop Patteson in a canoe by the natives. The face of the martyr has been sculptured from the latest photograph taken of him. Across his chest is carved a palm leaf, with its five nuts, signifying, it is supposed, that his death was in vengeance for five of the natives killed. The pulpit also contains, in the niches between the panels, carved figures of St. Paul, St. John the Baptist, and St. Stephen. Running round the base of the pulpit is a carved legend, "The noble army of martyrs praise Thee;" and the following inscription appears on a small plain panel:—

This pulpit is placed here in memory of John Coleridge Patteson, D.D., Missionary Bishop, ordained in this Cathedral, Deacon, 25th December, 1853; Priest, 24th September, 1854. Consecrated Bishop on the Feast of St. Matthias, 1861. Killed, 20th September, 1871, together with two fellow-workers for our Lord, at Nukapu, in the South Pacific Ocean, whilst doing the duty for which he gave up himself and all that he had.

The nave has been supplied, by the liberality of Chancellor Harrington, with substantial oak stalls for the use of the choir at the Sunday afternoon services. By the removal of the walls which formerly inclosed the choir, accommodation has been found for some hundreds of additional worshippers. A vast multitude may now take part in the services.

The works of restoration and decoration, occupying nearly seven years altogether, have been executed under the superintendence of Sir G. Gilbert Scott. The Rev. Chancellor Harrington, and the Rev. Archdeacon Woolcombe, also a Canon of this Cathedral, have greatly exerted themselves, and the first-named clergyman has contributed very large gifts of his own money, to achieve the successful result. We take the opportunity here to notice a recent publication, "Gleanings from the Municipal and Cathedral Records of Exeter," in which Archdeacon Woolcombe bears part. The volume (published by Mr. James Townsend, of Gandy-street, Exeter) consists of several historical essays and narrative sketches, by Mr. W. Cotton, F.S.A.; and of two lectures delivered by Archdeacon Woolcombe at the Exeter Athenæum, describing the ancient manuscripts, charters, leases, rolls, statutes, registers, minutes, and letters, belonging to the Cathedral Chapter. These documents, to the number of six thousand, begin from a period before the Norman Conquest, when the two Western Sees of St. Germans and Crediton—that is to say, of Cornwall and Devon—were united at Exeter, by Bishop Leofric, under the appointment of King Edward the Confessor. They are chiefly valuable as illustrating ecclesiastical history. But the Exeter Chapter Library possesses another great literary and antiquarian treasure, this being an authentic copy of the Conqueror's Domesday Book, for the western counties of England, setting forth a detailed account of their topography, with the ownership and assessed value of all manors and landed estates, in Latin text with many abbreviations, inscribed on 532 double pages of vellum. The Archdeacon's second lecture, upon the "Exeter Domesday Book," is worthy the attention of students of English history. We can scarcely bestow equal commendation upon the essays which compose the first portion of this volume, relating to such historical passages as the Wars of the Roses, the rebellion of Perkin Warbeck, the insurrection of 1549, and the Civil Wars of Charles I.'s time. How the City of Exeter fared upon those occasions, may be read in other books.

ÆSCHYLEAN VENTURES.

Mr. Carlyle, from the literary point of view, as some persons contend, had a great deal to answer for already; and now, it appears, he must stand godfather to The Agamemnon of Æschylus: transcribed by Robert Browning (Smith, Elder, and Co.), a composition of which the author says: "it was commanded of me by my venerated friend Thomas Carlyle, and rewarded will it indeed become, if I am permitted to dignify it by the prefatory insertion of his dear and noble name." When two such distinguished writers conspire together to produce a publication, difficult indeed is the position of the mere sifter at their feet who, though he may have some pretensions to scholarship, feels the greatest diffidence in expressing the opinion he is called upon to form about the work. His unfeigned respect prevents him from bluntly declaring that the combined proceeding is a case of the blind leading the blind; and, on the other hand, his regard for truth will not allow him to pronounce the new venture either well advised in conception or successful in execution. It is, in fact, a thousand pities that a good English poet should have been encouraged to waste his time in knocking his head, which can be used to so very much better purpose, against the obstacles presented by such a "transcription" as Mr. Browning has undertaken. And yet it is intelligible that Mr. Browning, who has succeeded to a marvel in rendering some passages of the more manageable Euripides, should have felt an almost irresistible inclination to tackle the inconvertible Æschylus; for, although Mr. Browning would perhaps be the first to scout the idea of placing himself and the Greek upon the same level of genius, yet the two have thus much in common—that, whether wilfully or unconsciously, they have dealt largely in dark sayings and eccentric expressions and involved constructions, to such an extent as to have become, even to their own countrymen and contemporaries, by-words for incomprehensibility, to use a not inappropriately sesquipedalian term. It is quite possible that neither the ancient nor the modern poet can be justly accused of affectation; it is conceivable that, as Dr. Watts remarks of the canine race, "God hath made them so;" and they cannot be held personally responsible for the incomprehensible language in which sometimes their poetical inspiration receives utterance. And in support of this theory may be mentioned an anecdote touching the Ettrick Shepherd, Hogg, a poet whose share of the Divine allusion would not entitle him to rank with Æschylus or probably with Mr. Browning, but who, on the other hand, had the advantage of both, so far as difficulty of comprehension is concerned, in his command of the "Doric" or Scottish dialect. Well, of him it is related that upon a certain occasion a certain poem of his, having been printed off, was brought to him for correction, with a suggestion that one passage, being utterly unintelligible as it stood, should be either amended or expunged; but he replied, "Hoot, mon, ye'll just prent it as it stands. I dinna precessely ken what I meant myself, but I'm sure it's vara good." Such is the sublime self-complacency of true genius, sighing, "I would that my tongue could utter the thoughts that arise in me;" but, the utterance effected, answering whosoever complains of inability to understand with a "What is that to me? See thou to that." Something of this lofty disregard for lucidity seems to have existed in Æschylus; something to exist at this day in Mr. Browning. What, then, is likely to be the result of the former "transcribed" by the latter? A double portion of obscurity, an Egyptian darkness, a darkness that may be felt, and felt acutely by the despairing reader. And so it is. One would almost dare to say that there are scarcely a dozen consecutive lines in any part of this "transcription" which an English reader, innocent of Greek, could peruse without a sense of bewilderment, or, if not innocent of Greek, without a desire to fly for refuge to the far less irritating original. Mr. Browning himself, to judge from what he says in his preface, seems to have anticipated some such consequence of the method he has adopted. He, supposing himself to be in the position of one who, "because of the immense fame" of the "Agamemnon," desired to become acquainted with it, and "could only do so by the help of a translator," says that he would "require him to be literal at every cost save that of absolute violence to our language;" and he remarks—"If I obtained a mere strict, bald version of thing by thing, or at least word pregnant with thing, I should hardly look for an impossible transmission of the reputed magniloquence and sonority of the Greek; and this with the less regret, inasmuch as there is abundant musicality elsewhere, but nowhere else than in his poem the ideas of the poet. And lastly, when presented with these ideas, I should expect the result to prove very hard reading indeed if it were meant to resemble Æschylus." As regards the result, this expectation is fulfilled to a heart-rending degree; but whether, even at such sacrifice, the ideas of the Greek poet can be approximately apprehended by the English reader is extremely doubtful. Moreover, to sink "the magniloquence and sonority" of Æschylus is to shear the locks of Samson, to crop the lion's mane, to turn the majestic into the grotesque. As for literal translation, granted—gladly granted—that Mr. Browning is right, and a thousand thanks to him for giving the weight of his authority to the advocates thereof; but there is a limit to literality; he has himself assigned it; he would be literal "at every cost save that of absolute violence to our language." But it will be passing strange if he be not generally considered to have committed that very violence, to have acted towards our language the part of an "unspeakable" Turk, of a barbarous Bashi-Bazouk. He is not content with simply murdering the Queen's English; he mutilates it. He does not give us Æschylus merely "bald" (as he was in life) and nude, as he would appear without the gorgeous diction in which he clothed his thoughts; he gives us the poet in guy-like garb, as if for the fifth of November. Surely the strongest advocates of literal translation, and none can be stronger than the writer of these lines, would not carry it out to the verge of absurdity, to forms of composition repugnant to the nature of the English tongue, to the employment of dislocations and distortions, to the rejection of idiomatic equivalents in sense though not in words. For example, would any advocate of literal translation render the "pied marin" of the French by "sea-foot" rather than "sea-legs" in speaking of a man who had "got his sea-legs"? Or the "handschuh" of the Germans by "handshoe" rather than "glove"? Yet it really seems as if Mr. Browning, in "transcribing" the Greek tragedian, would carry literal version to so extreme a length as that. The consequence is that, in his noble desire to honour the memory of the great Æschylus, he has run the risk of bringing the whole Greek race of the "Agamemnon" period into discredit, the author of the famous play as an impostor, and his countrymen, who so admired him, as imbeciles. What gross injustice is done to the original may be fairly gathered from a comparison of the Greek with the English in the celebrated speech describing the lighting-up of successive beacons to announce the fall of Troy; in the "transcription" we miss, especially, the appropriate speed of what Horace calls the "swift" iambics, the unbroken continuity, the photographic instantaneousness of the picture, the seal-like roll of the easy-jointed compound terms. Nor is the accuracy of the version altogether unimpeachable. There is, according to one edition at any rate, an explanatory line omitted in the translation, after the word "flambeau-bearers," a line by no means superfluous. And why is the fire called "escort"? The proper rendering is surely "courier" or "poster," as Mr. Browning once correctly, if with a little suspicion of bill-sticking, calls it. As for the expression, "a third great torch o' the island Zeus" sent received in turn;" as soon as the construction is caught, it is likely to conjure up a ludicrous image of a common scene at all pantomimes, when Clown applies a red-hot poker to the "seat" of Pantaloon. On the whole, it is to be feared that Mr. Browning, having attempted a tremendous task, has failed. He is a giant, but there are some things beyond even gigantic strength; the giants themselves could not scale heaven. One cannot help reflecting how different the case might have been if Mr. Browning, with his poetical gifts and his scholarly acquirements, had taken such parts of the "Agamemnon" as are both grand and intelligible, and exercising upon them the skill, together with the sympathetic appreciation which even in his failure is discernible, had shown how one true poet can, as literally as need be, interpret another; then, indeed, we should have had something, a fragment only, but still something, to which we could direct attention, saying, "If you wish to know what Æschylus is really like, read that."

An anonymous writer, instead of translating, so far as can be surmised, either literally or freely, the extant tragedies of the famous Æschylus, has testified his admiration for the Greek poet by the publication of Prometheus, the Fire-Giver (Chatto and Windus), which is described as "an attempted restoration of the lost First Part of the Promethean Trilogy." It should be at once stated that the author addresses to the shade of Æschylus a preliminary apology for taking the little liberty, but does not ask permission to follow up his present replacement of a lost jewel with another to be entitled "Prometheus Unbound," in case it should be considered that an opening is still left, notwithstanding the celebrated poem composed by Shelley. "Prometheus the Fire-Giver" is in dramatic form, but is not divided into acts and scenes. The "persons of the drama" are Zeus, "Man," Prometheus, the Fates, and a chorus of Oceanides. It would be rather difficult, one would think, to know how to "make up" for "man" upon the stage; but one would conclude from the dialogue that the abstract type would be best represented by a creature (of neuter gender, if possible) resembling the fascinating Caliban. The author, who writes, on the whole, tolerably plain English, has this great advantage over the mighty Greek and some, at any rate, of the translators, that he is, for the most part, easy to be understood. That he has caught a little of the Æschylean spirit, tone, and manner is unquestionable; that he should attain to the Æschylean grandeur, the Olympian stateliness, the weird sublimity, the impressive treatment of awful myths, the exuberance of double-barrelled epithets, the sound and fury, as hollow perhaps, but yet as stirring, as a trumpet, was all but impossible. Nor is it probable that Æschylus would have alluded to "April." There is rather a curious expression at the commencement of the drama. The three Fates are "discovered" at the back of the stage; and the Chorus at once addressing them as "dark-robed, mighty, mystic Three," enquires, "Who are ye?" Now, it occurs to one that, if the Chorus had not known who they were, it would never have addressed them as "mighty" or "mystic," or with a capital "T"; and that "How are ye?" would have been a more sensible and a more polite salutation. However, the objection is not a very fatal one; for the purpose evidently is to get the Fates to talk, and the former question admits of greater length in reply than the latter. And so we are gradually drawn on into the very midst of the drama, in which there are speeches and dialogue and choruses, after the antique pattern, ingeniously imitated, and well written in parts, soft, spirited, and vigorous, according to requirement. A horrible doubt, however, arises in two places as to whether there is anything queer with the metre, or whether the restorer of Æschylus can by any chance be at all shaky about his pronunciation of "Ouranos" and "Oceanos."

The veteran author of dramatic and philosophic poetry, Mr. J. A. Heraud, in his most recent publication, a small volume issued by Simpkin and Marshall, shows no abatement of his original force of thought. He now presents us with two fine poems, dramatic in form, romantic in their story, historical in their costume and scene, but, like most of his other works, profoundly psychological in their idea and motive. This is a kind of composition which we presume will be "caviare to the general," so long as readers (for here is no appeal to theatrical playgoers) seek mere entertainment of the sensuous fancy. Mr. Heraud has long since accepted the not unworthy destiny of those more elevated minds who "fit audience find, though few," in their endeavours to render high literary art the vehicle of high ethical instruction. To such readers we commend his Uzmai: an Antique Love Story; and his French historical romance of Macée de Léodepart. The first-mentioned drama has its scene laid in one of those strange pre-historic ancient cities of Central America, which are supposed to have preserved in their solemn temples, now presenting only a mysterious spectacle of ruins, the symbolic religious worship of remote ages in the Eastern world. Human love, as the oldest and most potent of social affections, takes precedence of the most far-fetched traditions of the supernatural and its ritual or legal observances; which is the true moral of this powerful imaginative story. The other dramatic poem is more realistic in its treatment of a subject taken from the annals of France in the fifteenth century, in the reign of Charles VII., when the faded garb of mediæval chivalry so often betrayed the strife of mean and selfish intrigues at the Royal Court. The famous merchant prince and treasurer, Jacques Cœur, a fair example of public virtue in the rising Common, is contrasted with the minions of a King's capricious favour; while his noble-minded wife, Macée de Léodepart, having to deal with the celebrated Agnes Sorel and with the Queen (Marie of Anjou), plays her part as a true heroine, in a very interesting series of acts, which ought to command stage representation. But the stage has given place to private study for serious dramatic poetry of this high order.

MUSIC.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.

This establishment opened on Monday (according to previous announcement) for a series of performances of Italian opera (at reduced prices), again under the management of Mr. Mapleson, as during the past summer, when the house was first used for its intended purpose, some years after its construction on the site of the building destroyed by fire in 1867.

We have already referred to Mr. Mapleson's arrangements for the new season, which began with "Il Trovatore," the cast of which was similar to that of past occasions. Mdlle. Caroline Salla (who was the Leonora) will be remembered as having made a very favourable impression on her first appearance in London, during the early part of the past season, at Her Majesty's Theatre. Indisposition, however, soon terminated her performances. She has now returned, apparently in full possession of her powers, and her success on Monday was even greater than on the former occasion. Her voice has gained in volume, and her fluent execution was specially displayed in the allegro, "Di tale amor," of the opening cavatina, the earlier portion of which, "Tacea la notte," was given with great refinement. In subsequent portions of the opera, especially in the "Miserere" and the following music at the close, Mdlle. Salla both sang and acted with true dramatic fervour. The latter part of the "Miserere" had to be repeated. In this scene, and previously, Signor Fancelli distinguished himself greatly by the excellence of his singing, special effect having been produced by his delivery of the impassioned solo, "Di quella pira." Other characters were also filled as often before—Azucena by Madame Lablache, Inez by Mdlle. Bauermeister, the Count di Luna by Signor Galassi (who was encoined in the aria, "Il balen"), Ferrando by Signor Brocolini, and subordinate parts by Signori Rinaldini and Fallar. The band and chorus were throughout efficient; and Signor Li Calsi conducted with care and skill.

On Tuesday Mdlle. Anna de Belocca was to have made her first appearance in this theatre as Rosina, in "Il Barbiere di Siviglia"—a part which she performed at Drury Lane Theatre, in Mr. Mapleson's season of 1875, when Mdlle. de Belocca made her début—but her indisposition and that of Signor Bettini caused the substitution, on Tuesday, of "Lucia di Lammermoor," which was very effectively given, with Mdlle. Alwina Valleria as Lucia, Signor Fancelli as Edgardo, Signor Galassi as Enrico, and other portions of the cast also as before.

For Wednesday "Un Ballo in Maschera" was promised, with the début, as Riccardo, of Signor Runcio, of whom we must speak next week.

The operas announced for the remaining nights of this week were "Rigoletto" on Thursday, "Le Nozze di Figaro" on Friday, and "Robert le Diable" for this evening.

Last Saturday's Crystal Palace concert, nearly coinciding in date with that of the anniversary of Mendelssohn's death (Nov. 4, 1847), the programme was rendered commemorative of the event by including performances of the overture to "St. Paul," the air "Jerusalem," from that oratorio, well sung by Miss Mary Davies; and the noble "Lobgesang" ("Hymn of Praise"). The three fine symphonic movements which precede the vocal portion of this cantata were admirably played by the orchestra. The solo vocalists in the "Lobgesang" were Misses Robertson and Mary Davies and Mr. Barton McGuckin; and the choruses were rendered by the Crystal Palace choir. The concert included the first performance here of Herr Max Bruch's second concerto for violin, with orchestra; a work similar in design, extent, and merit to its predecessor, of which we spoke in reference to its performance at the Crystal Palace concert of Oct. 13 last. In each instance the violinist was Señor Sarasate, for whom the second concerto was specially composed. The great difficulties with which it abounds were admirably executed, the close of the performance having been greeted with enthusiastic applause. The concerto was conducted by the composer, the other portions of the programme having been directed, as usual, by Mr. Manns.

A tribute to the memory of Mendelssohn was at the same time rendered at the Alexandra Palace, where the first of a new series of Saturday afternoon concerts was inaugurated last week, the performances having included the co-operation of a select band, of between fifty and sixty performers, headed by Mr. A. Burnett as principal first violin, and a large and effective choir. The programme was a fairly representative one, having comprised the overture to "A Midsummer Night's Dream," the "Italian" symphony, the choruses from the unfinished oratorio "Christus," the air (from "Elijah") "O rest in the Lord," finely sung by Madame Patey, and the song, "The Garland," by Mr. Pearson. There was also a miscellaneous selection. Mr. Frederic Archer, the well-known organist, conducted.

The series of Promenade Concerts at Covent-Garden Theatre will close on Monday week with a special performance for the benefit of Messrs. Gatti, the directors. On Saturday last an orchestral selection of themes from M. Victor Massé's new opera, "Paul et Virginie" (adapted by Signor Arditi), was introduced with much success. On Monday evening another Gounod night was given; Wednesday was the last Beethoven night; and for yesterday (Friday) evening a ballad night was announced.

Mr. Walter Bache, the eminent pianist, gave a recital at St. James's Hall on Monday afternoon, when the instrumental selection comprised Beethoven's thirty-two variations on an original theme in C minor; the same composer's sonata in E, op. 109; Bach's chromatic fantasia and fugue; and detached pieces by Chopin and Liszt. Mr. Santley was the vocalist, and Mr. Zerbini the accompanist. Mr. Bache's fourteenth annual concert will take place (also at St. James's Hall) on the evening of Feb. 19, the arrangements including, as usual, the engagement of a first-rate orchestra of about sixty performers.

The first of Mr. Sydney Smith's two pianoforte recitals took place at Willis's Rooms on Wednesday afternoon, when his programme comprised some of his new compositions, besides pieces by Beethoven, Bach, Handel, and Scarlatti. Mdlle. Ida Corani and Mr. Cummings were the vocalists.

The twentieth season of the Monday Popular Concerts will open next week, when the quartet party will consist of Madame Norman-Néruda, Mr. L. Ries, Mr. Zerbini, and Signor Piatti. Mdlle. Anna Mehlig will be the solo pianist, Mdlles. Friedlander and Redeker the vocalists, and Sir Julius Benedict will occupy his accustomed post as conductor.

The second oratorio performance of Mr. W. Carter's new season—at the Royal Albert Hall—took place on Thursday evening, when the programme consisted of Mendelssohn's "Hymn of Praise," and Rossini's "Stabat Mater." The solo vocalists announced were Mesdames Lemmens-Sherrington and Enriquez, Mr. W. H. Cummings, and Mr. R. Hilton.

Professor G. A. Macfarren's new oratorio, "Joseph" (produced at the Leeds Festival last September), is to be given by the Royal Albert Hall Choral Society on Dec. 11, for the first time in London.

The second season of the "North Kensington Musical Evenings for Gentlemen" (on Saturdays) begin at Ladbroke Hall, this week.

Mr. R. D'Oyley Carte has announced the speedy reopening of the Opéra Comique Theatre with a new work, entitled "The Sorcerer." The piece is a comic opera, the words by Mr. W. S. Gilbert, the music by Mr. Arthur Sullivan, who were associated in the popular "Trial by Jury." A compact band and select chorus have been engaged, and the company comprises the following artists:—Miss Alice May (the Australian prima donna), Miss Giulia Warwick (of Mr. Carl Rosa's Opera Company), Miss H. Everard, and Mrs. Howard Paul; Mr. George Bentham (of Her Majesty's Opera Company), Mr. Richard Temple, Mr. Rutland Barrington, Mr. F. Clifton, and Mr. George Grossmith, jun. The scenery will be by Messrs. Gordon and Harford, and "The Sorcerer" will be produced under the personal direction of Messrs. Gilbert and Sullivan. Mr. G. B. Allen is the musical director. "The Sorcerer" is to be preceded by a musical piece by Mr. Alfred Cellier, the book of which is by Mr. James Albery.

As already announced, the forty-sixth season of the Sacred Harmonic Society will open on Friday, Nov. 23, with Mendelssohn's "St. Paul." Mesdames Edith Wynne and Patey and Messrs. Vernon Rigby and Santley will be the principal vocalists. This will be followed by Handel's "Judas Maccabeus," on Dec. 14, and the same composer's "Messiah" on Dec. 21. The after-Christmas concerts will be occupied by Mendelssohn's "Elijah," Crotch's "Palestine," Costa's "Naaman," Haydn's "Creation," and Macfarren's "St. John the Baptist." The specialty of the season will be the production, for the first time in England, in a complete form in the concert orchestra, of "Rossini's celebrated oratorio "Moses in Egypt" (Mosè in Egitto). Sir Michael Costa continues as conductor; and the principal vocalists already engaged are Mesdames Lemmens-Sherrington, Edith Wynne, Osgood, Blanche Cole, Anna Williams, Julia Elton, and Patey, and Messrs. Vernon Rigby, E. Lloyd, Cummings, L. W. Thomas, Herr Henschel, and Mr. Santley.

THEATRES.

The most significant fact of theatrical experience at the present moment is, perhaps, the number of nights that a new drama may run. Mr. H. J. Byron's comedy of "Our Boys" has now been presented to a London audience for more than nine hundred nights; this, though certainly an exceptional occurrence, is one of great significance. "Pink Dominoes," at the Criterion, has also the promise of numbering its nights of performance by hundreds. Its run already exceeds two hundred and twenty nights. Such a result, however, is not dependent on elaborate preparations or high merit in the dramatic productions themselves, but merely on some popular element accidentally discovered. The same tendency to a prolonged run may be observed at the Globe, in the production of "Stolen Kisses," the attraction of which is at least equal to its merit. Mr. Righton, however, has supported it by a revival of the opéra bouffe entitled "Isaac of York." As an actor, the manager had already succeeded in the character; and his desire, therefore, to repeat it is only natural. It were to be wished, however, that the piece were worthy of the boards on which it is now performed.

MISS GLYN'S READINGS.

In the present lull of managerial activity, the repetition of Miss Glyn's readings at her private residence, 13, Mount-street, Grosvenor-square, may be recorded as a welcome occurrence. On Tuesday evening the reading was from the tragedy of "Antony and Cleopatra," and formed a fitting commencement of the intended series. Miss Glyn's name is associated in a peculiar manner with this marvellous drama. She is, indeed, the first and only actress who has ever really identified herself with its heroine. Her special qualifications for the part received immediate public recognition from the beginning. She shines, however, more in the reading of the character than in the acting of it; and, indeed, presents such a tableau of the action of the entire play as makes the recital of it by one person better than the acting of it by several could possibly be. Miss Glyn personates each of the parts with perfect intellectual skill and such sensuous force as may be imparted to a private rehearsal. Her reading on Tuesday manifested all her usual excellences. The various moods of the Egyptian heroine, her witcheries and passionate outbursts, were alike strongly given. The delivery of the whole play may be noted as a triumph of art, so well marshalled are her intellectual forces, and such the harmony with which in their integrity they are connectedly displayed. The great scenes were powerfully rendered, whether when showing her influence with Antony, her pride in his subjection to her beauty and subtle fascinations, or when receiving the news of his marriage with Octavia, and her characteristic disparagement of her rival's qualifications. These scenes were marked by a subtlety of delineation which at once commanded appreciation. They were powerfully followed by the sublimer situations that precede the grand historical catastrophe, in which her love for the Roman she had enthralled, her despair for his consequent death, and her resolution at self-sacrifice, were illustrated in all their wildness, majesty, and superb abandon. Nor is the great actress disdainful of the smaller parts in the play; that of the Clown, for instance, who provides her with the asp for her intended suicide, and jests on its qualities. This little portraiture alone is sufficient to warrant the highest estimate of Miss Glyn's histrionic genius. Miss Glyn's readings take place regularly on Tuesday and Friday evenings—the former being devoted to the delivery of "Antony and Cleopatra," and the latter to that of "Hamlet." We were much gratified to see that the séance was well attended.

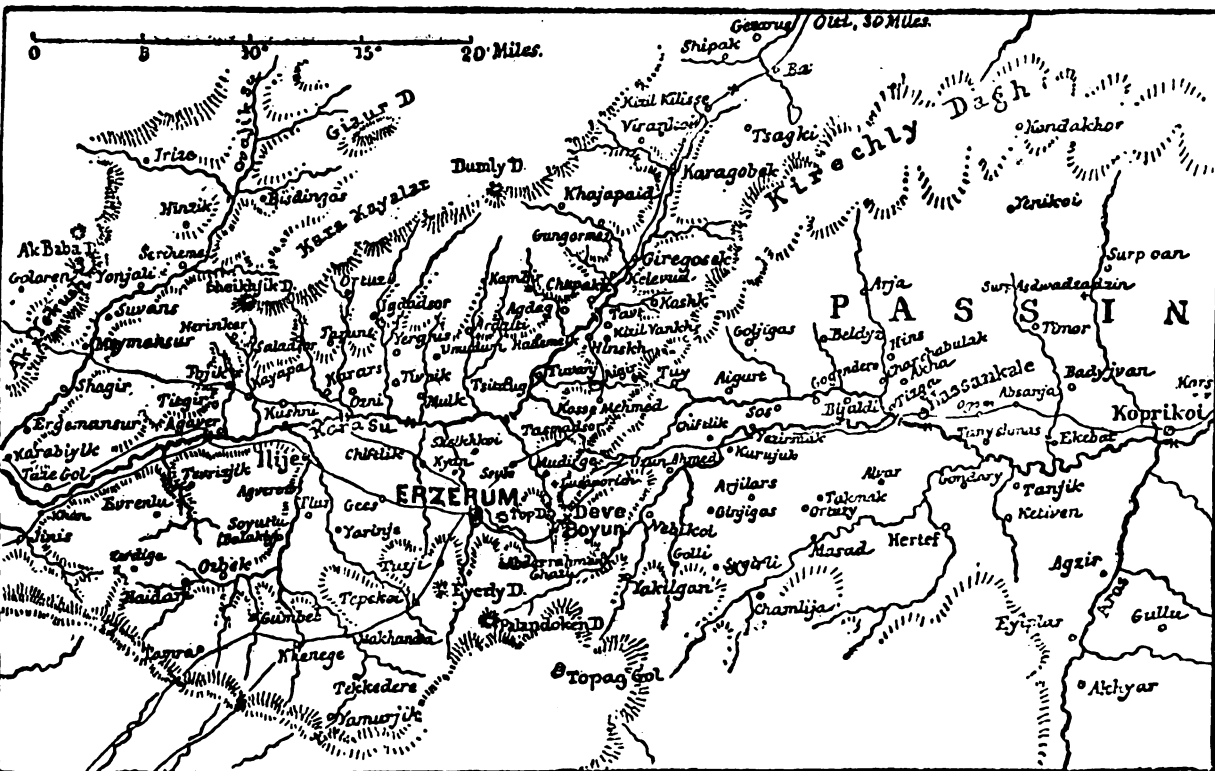

Mr. and Mrs. German Reed's entertainment at St. George's Hall, Langham-place, continues to supply its amused audiences with novelties. "A Happy Bungalow" is to be withdrawn, and a new first part, entitled "Once in a Century," from the pen of Mr. Gilbert A'Beckett, the music by Vivian Bligh, will be produced next Monday evening, the 12th inst. A novelty by Mr. Burnand is to follow in a few days.

The Mohawk Minstrels opened the fifth consecutive year of their performance at the Agricultural Hall, Islington, on Wednesday last, with an excellent festival programme.

THE RUSSIAN ADVANCE ON ERZERUM.

We learn by a telegram of last Tuesday, from Constantinople, that Mukhtar Pasha, the Turkish Commander-in-Chief in Armenia, has lost the city of Erzerum. It is confessed that he, finding his position in the Deve Boyun seriously compromised, has abandoned it, and left Erzerum to be occupied by the Russians, who are now in possession of the Armenian capital. Mukhtar Pasha is falling back on Trebizond, where he is sure of supplies, and is expecting large reinforcements. The Map we give to illustrate the Russian advance on Erzerum, from Hassan-kale and Koprikoi, will serve to explain some of the recent movements of the contending armies; but it does not extend so far eastward as Kars. We may, however, simply here refer to the accustomed notice, in another page, of the progress of the war since our last weekly record was made up.

On Monday the foundation-stone of a new School of Art and Design at Macclesfield was laid by the Mayor. The building, exclusive of internal fittings, will cost £3500. The High Sheriff of the county, Mr. W. C. Brocklehurst, M.P., and the leading gentlemen of the town took part in the proceedings.

MAP TO ILLUSTRATE THE RUSSIAN ADVANCE ON ERZERUM.

THE WAR: ZEIBEK'S CAMP AT CONSTANTINOPLE—CALL TO ARMS.
FROM A SKETCH BY ONE OF OUR SPECIAL ARTISTS.

THE WAR: BRIDGES' CAMP AT CONSTANTINOPLE. (ANTI-ARMY)
FROM A LETTER IN ONE OF OUR LATEST ISSUES.

CATHEDRAL.

STATUE OF LORD LAWRENCE, FOR CALCUTTA, BY T. WOOLNER, R.A.

STATUE OF LORD LAWRENCE.

This statue, the work of Mr. Woolner, R.A., has been erected at Calcutta by a subscription among the friends and admirers of Lord Lawrence, sometime Governor-General of India. It was cast in bronze at the foundry in Manor-street, Chelsea. The figure, which measures 11 ft. from the plinth, is placed on a pedestal 15 ft. in height. The dress is the conventional dress of the present day, with the cloak of the Star of India, from the collar of which hangs the badge of the Order, thrown carelessly over the left shoulder, and kept in its place by the left arm. The attitude is peculiarly happy in natural effect, while the likeness cannot fail to commend itself to those who are familiar with the countenance of Lord Lawrence. A site has been chosen in Calcutta, facing Government House, and near the equestrian statues of Lord Hardinge and Lord Canning—a distinguished triumvirate of Indian statesmen. We have been told with what feelings the natives of India regard the memories of those men to whom, as they are now beginning to understand, they owe so much as to the wisest and best of their British rulers.

THE LATE MR. LAIRD, M.P.

A bronze statue of the late Mr. John Laird, M.P., the well-known iron ship-builder, was last week unveiled at Birkenhead, by Lord Toller-mache, in the presence of a great crowd of people. The memorial was raised by public subscription; a balance of the fund is to be devoted to charity, as announced by Mr. James Beazley, chairman of the committee. There was a popular display on the occasion. Members of trade and friendly societies, to the number of about 3000, and wearing rosettes, marched in procession through the streets, which were decorated with flags, as were also the ships in the docks. At the commissioners' offices the memorial committee and others joined the procession. The statue, which was cast by Messrs. Maschfield, of Chelsea, from a model by Mr. Bruce Joy, is of bronze, and weighs about 50 cwt., and is about 10½ ft. in height. It is an excellent likeness of Mr. Laird. On the granite pedestal is the inscription:—"John Laird, born June 14, 1805; died Oct. 29, 1874." The site is in the Hamilton-square-gardens, in the centre of the borough. The speeches at the inauguration were pronounced by Lord Toller-mache, Sir Henry Mather Jackson, M.P., Mr. David MacIver, M.P., Sir Thomas Edward Moss, and Lieutenant-Colonel King. Much interest was shown by the large assembly, ten or twelve thousand people, that witnessed the ceremonial. Mr. Laird was an active and useful public man, in a variety of local business, and especially in the construction and management of the Birkenhead Docks. He also founded and endowed, at his own expense, the Hospital and the School of Art in that town.

COLLEGE OF MUSIC FOR THE BLIND.

The Royal Normal College and Academy of Music for the Blind, situated at Upper Norwood, has been frequently spoken of by us, with the commendation due to its well-devised scheme of practical beneficence in aid of a class of afflicted persons who claim public sympathy by their naturally helpless condition. It has been proved by successful experiments, both in America and on the Continent of Europe, that a considerable proportion of the blind, if properly educated and specially trained in some department of musical skill, may find remunerative employment and earn a fair livelihood either as teachers of music, organists, singers, or pianoforte-tuners, and perhaps also in repairing instruments, or incidental work at the piano manufactories. There is even, we think, apparent ground for supposing that the fineness both of ear and of touch, which nature gives as a compensation for the loss of sight, may, in some instances, render them better qualified for these arts, or may at least facilitate the acquisition of them. The College at Upper Norwood is designed to furnish both a sound general education and the required technical instruction to a number of male and female pupils, who are lodged and boarded here, at a yearly charge of £50 below the age of thirteen, and £60 above that age, during a period of three or five years. This charge is to be defrayed either by the parents or friends of each pupil, or by nomination to a "scholarship" at the cost of funds which may be given by some charitable person, or may be granted by some corporation, orphanage, or other institution, or raised by local subscriptions in any town of the United Kingdom. Such public donations and subscriptions, as well as corresponding private gifts and bequests, seem to us particularly wise and safe as a method of doing good with a comparatively small amount of money; and we would especially point out to the friends and acquaintance of any family in straitened circumstances, or bereaved of its husband and father, where one of the children is unhappily blind, that they can, by a very slight joint contribution during a very few years, provide for that child the means of gaining an honest and comfortable subsistence early in life.

STATUE OF THE LATE MR. JOHN LAIRD, M.P., AT BIRKENHEAD.

THE ROYAL NORMAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC FOR THE BLIND, AT UPPER NORWOOD.

We have dwelt upon the merits of this institution with more than usual earnestness, from our personal knowledge of the excellent manner in which it is organised and conducted by Mr. F. J. Campbell, the accomplished Principal, who is himself blind, aided by Mrs. Campbell, and acting under the direction of a judicious and attentive Managing Committee. The Chairman of the Committee, Sir Rutherford Alcock, K.C.B., late her Majesty's Minister Plenipotentiary in Japan and China, is also Treasurer of the institution, which has many persons of high social distinction and of great experience among its Vice-Presidents and Council. The eminent musicians, Sir Julius Benedict, Mr. G. A. Macfarren, Madame Schumann, the Rev. Sir Gore Ouseley, Dr. Stainer, Mr. Henry Leslie, and Mr. A. Manns, are associated with this College, as well as Dr. T. R. Armitage and others, more particularly conversant with the needs and capabilities of the blind. The Duke of Westminster, its President and munificent benefactor, with their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales and the Duke of Edinburgh as vice-patrons, and several of the nobility on the list of trustees and vice-presidents, testify that there is no lack of influential sponsors.

The College was first established in 1872, and has already effected much good; the performances of its music pupils at many public concerts, both on the premises at Norwood and at Grosvenor House and other noblemen's mansions, have pleased the visitors and fashionable audiences; and those who have inspected the College, which is open to view on Tuesday afternoons, have been much gratified with its domestic and educational state. A favourable report is also made of the success of past inmates of the College, both young men and young women, after completing their term of instruction and going out into the world.

The new building, of which we present an illustration, has been erected in the pleasant and secluded garden, with ample space for healthful recreation, attached to the house in Westow-street, Upper Norwood, where the College had found temporary accommodation since 1872. There is now room and a sufficient teaching staff for one hundred pupils, who will certainly be well cared for and well taught, and who ought to be constantly forthcoming, with the moderate sum charged for their maintenance here, from all parts of England and Scotland. Local committees for this purpose have been formed in most of the great provincial towns; and it is to be hoped that this example may be followed by county and district associations, and by other convenient agencies for so good an object.

OBITUARY OF EMINENT PERSONS.

DOWAGER BARONESS SEAFORD.

The Right Hon. Anne Louisa Emily, Baroness Seaford, died at Hampton Court on the 2nd inst., aged ninety. Her Ladyship, who was born March 19, 1788, the eldest daughter of Admiral the Hon. Sir George Berkeley Berkeley, second son of Augustus, fourth Earl of Berkeley, married, first, Nov. 17, 1807, Vice-Admiral Sir Thomas Masterman Hardy, Bart., G.C.B., Flag-Captain of Lord Nelson on the Victory at Trafalgar, who died Sept. 20, 1839. She married, secondly, Oct. 2, 1840, Charles Rose, first Lord Seaford, who died July 1, 1845.

The deaths have also been announced of—

Commander Augustus Bolton, R.N., on the 22nd ult., at Little Belgrave, Sidmouth, Devon.

Eugene Alfred Conwell, Esq., M.R.I.A., late H.M. Inspector of Schools, on the 23rd ult., aged fifty-eight.

Agnes, Lady Cheape, widow of General Sir John Cheape, G.C.B., of Old Park, Isle of Wight, on the 26th ult., at Ryde.

Colonel Robert Baigrel, G.B., Hon. A.D.C. to the Viceroy, and Quartermaster-General Bombay Army, on Sept. 25.

Colonel Henry Disney Ellis, late 9th Regiment, on the 30th ult., at Apsley Lodge, Cheltenham, aged fifty-eight. He served in the Crimean War, at Sebastopol.

Robert Swinhoe, Esq., F.R.S., F.R.Z.S., F.R.G.S., late H.M. Consul at Ningpo, China, on the 28th ult., at Carlyle-square, aged forty-one.

The Hon. Henry Brodrick, of the Admiralty, formerly 60th Rifles, third son of William John, seventh Viscount Midleton, on the 31st ult., at St. Leonard's-on-Sea, aged thirty-nine.

Mrs. Jemima Maria Tayler, widow of the Rev. Henry Joseph Tayler, and daughter of the late Sir William Fraser, Bart., on the 20th ult., at Worcester, aged eighty-six.

The Rev. William Harrison, M.A., for forty-seven years Rector of Warrington, Warwickshire, on the 30th ult., at the Rectory, aged seventy-seven. He was third son of the late Rev. Dr. Harrison, of Rudbroke Rectory, Northamptonshire.

Major William Austin, at 20, Pulteney-street, Bath, on the 2nd inst., in the eighty-third year of his age. He served with the 52nd Regiment in the Peninsular War, and at Waterloo.

William C. Caldwell, Esq., of Chobham House, Chobham, Surrey, late Captain 6th Regiment, on the 29th ult.

The Rev. George Bonfonde Wheeler, A.M., Rector and Vicar of Ballysax, Curragh Camp, in the county of Kildare, and editor, from its foundation, of the Irish Times, an able journalist and accomplished scholar, on the 21st ult., at Newbridge, from the effects of an accident.

Edward Reeves, Esq., of Merriem-square, Dublin, one of the most eminent and respected solicitors of that city, on the 28th ult., at Sydenham Villas, Bray. He married, May, 1828, Juliet Matilda, youngest daughter of the late Rev. Richard Studdert, of Mount Rivers, in the county of Clare.

The Rev. Alfred Smith, of Old Park, Devizes, J.P. for Wilts, and formerly Incumbent of Southbroom, on the 29th ult., in his eightieth year, eldest son of Roger Smith, Esq., of Manor House, Walworth, Surrey, by Jane, his wife, daughter of J. Hyatt, Esq., and was married, in 1820, to Harriet, daughter of William Stephens, Esq., of Aldermaston, by whom he leaves, with other issue, an only son, the Rev. Alfred Smith, M.A., patron and Rector of Yatesbury, Wilts.

On Saturday there was a large gathering at Monckton Main, about six miles from Barnsley, to celebrate the winning of the well-known Barnsley coal on the estate of Lord Galway. The coal was found at a depth of 470 yards, and the first sod was cut on May 24, 1875, so that the sinking was done in a remarkably short time. About 300 persons sat down to dinner, the chair being occupied by Lord Galway. Lord Houghton was amongst the speakers.

CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

All communications relating to this department of the Paper should be addressed to the Editor, and have the word "Chess" written on the envelope.

H F SAVAGE.—You cannot, under any circumstances, place your King on prise of an adverse piece or Pawn; therefore, in the position you send, the Bishop cannot be captured.

W ATKINS.—We fail to perceive how you propose to mate in two moves (Problem No. 1757) after 1. Q takes B.

R F PRETTEJOHN.—(1) There is no special work on the subject. Practice is the only road to success. (2) Your proposed solution of 1758 is inaccurate.

Q C (Taunton).—Your question shall be answered next week.

Problems received from G J Slater, J. Crane, J. W. Littlewood, and R J N.

CORRECT SOLUTIONS OF PROBLEM No. 1758 received from Dr F St. A. A. A. Hill, W. Leeson, Lulu, and Cant.

CORRECT SOLUTIONS OF PROBLEM No. 1757 received from Jane N F (Utrecht), Cant, W J Sedgfield, and G P Drew.

CORRECT SOLUTIONS OF PROBLEM No. 1758 received from W T Aman, Baz, Woolwich Chess Club, Trial, R H Brooks, F H (Hawick), Amateurs of Vieuxseux's Cabinet (Florence), T E Hughes, W J Sedgfield, Walter, H Rec, T Thursley, Dr F St. A. P. Vulliamy, H M Pridoux, R J N. W Leeson, J De Honsteyn, S Selas, Robin Grey, Paul's Root, R D Skue, W B G. W H Ward, R B Thomson, N Rintrop, H Croft, W S B. H Thomas, M E Heywood, E Forster, M Harrison, E L G. W P Welch, Cant, J Sowden, Roy, J Williams, Tippet, Leonora, Only Jones, J Clarke, and G P Drew.

SOLUTION OF PROBLEM No. 1757.

WHITE.	BLACK.	WHITE.	BLACK.
1. Kt to Kt 4th	B takes Kt	3. Q, Kt, or P to B	7th. Mate.
2. P to Q 4th (ch)	Any move

If Black play 1. B to Kt 6th, then 2. Q takes K P (ch); if 1. B takes Kt, 2. Q to Q 6th (ch), mating in each case on the following move.

PROBLEM No. 1760.

By J. A. W. HUNTER.

BLACK.

WHITE.
White to play, and mate in three moves.

CHESS IN BRISTOL.

The following are two Match Games recently contested between Mr. THOROLD and Miss RUDGE, at the odds of a Knight. The lady has hitherto proved herself a most formidable antagonist at these odds, and the result of the combat now going on to prove whether or not she is too strong for them will be awaited with much interest.

(Kneave's Gambit. Remove White's Q Kt.)

WHITE (Mr. T.)	BLACK (Miss R.)	WHITE (Mr. T.)	BLACK (Miss R.)
1. P to K 4th	P to K 4th	17. Q to B 7th (ch)	K to Q 2nd
2. Kt to K B 3rd	Kt to Q B 3rd	18. R to Q sq (ch)	Kt to Q 3rd
3. B to B 4th	B to B 4th	19. Kt takes P	B to B 4th
4. P to Q Kt 4th	B takes P	20. Kt takes Kt
5. P to B 3rd	B to B 4th
6. Castles	P to Q 3rd
Had Miss Rudge, on her fifth move, played B to R 4th, she could now have brought her K Kt to B 3rd with advantage.
7. P to Q 4th	P takes P	21. Kt to B 5th (dis. K to B 3rd (ch))
8. P takes P	B to Kt 3rd	22. Q to Q 5th (ch)	K to Kt 4th
9. P to K R 3rd	K Kt to K 2nd	23. Kt takes Kt (ch)	P takes Kt
Black might here have well followed her opponent's example, and played P to K R 3rd.		24. Q to Kt 3rd (ch)	K to B 3rd
10. Kt to Kt 5th	P to Q 4th	25. B to Kt 2nd	Q takes R (ch)
11. P takes P	Kt to R 4th	26. Q takes Q	B to K 3rd
12. P to Q 6th	Q takes P	27. P to K R 4th	P to Q R 4th
13. Kt takes B P	Q takes P	28. P to R 5th	R to Kt sq
14. Kt takes R	Kt takes B	29. P to R 6th	B to Q 4th
		30. P to R 7th	R takes P (ch)
		31. K to R sq	R takes P (dis. ch)
		32. Q takes B (ch)	K takes Q
		33. P to R 8th	R to B 8th (ch)
		34. K to Kt 2nd	R to Kt 8th (ch)
		35. K to B 3rd	R to B 8th (ch)
		36. K to K 2nd	R to B 7th (ch)
		37. K to K sq	R to B 4th
		38. Q to Q 8th (ch)	Resigns.

All this is played by Mr. Thorold with his accustomed skill and insight. His after-play is also exceedingly good.

(Irregular Opening. Remove White's Q Kt.)

WHITE (Mr. T.)	BLACK (Miss R.)	WHITE (Mr. T.)	BLACK (Miss R.)
1. P to K 4th	P to Q 4th	15. Q R to K Kt sq	B to R 6th
At this odds some authorities prefer P to K 4th for the second player's first move. However, it is quite a matter of taste and opinion. For ourselves, we agree with the move adopted by Miss Rudge.		16. B to B 3rd	B to Q 3rd
2. P to K 3rd	K Kt to B 3rd	17. P to Kt 5th	Castles (Q R)
Scarcely so good as 2. P to Kt 3rd, to be followed by 3. B to Kt 2nd. This has been found to afford an exceedingly satisfactory defence to this opening when the Knight is given.		18. P takes P	P takes P
3. K Kt to B 3rd	B to Kt 5th	19. K to R 7th	P to K R 4th
4. P to Q Kt 3rd	Kt to B 3rd	20. R to Kt sq	Q to Q 6th
5. P to Kt 2nd	P to K 3rd	21. K R to K Kt sq	Q to Kt 4th
6. P to K R 3rd	B takes Kt	22. Q to Q sq	Q to Kt 3rd
7. Q takes B	Q to Q 3rd	23. P to Q R 4th	B to B 3rd
8. P to Kt 4th	P to K 4th	24. Q to B 2nd	Q to K 3rd
9. B to Kt 5th	P to K 5th	25. Q R to Kt 6th	Q to K 3rd
10. Q to K 2nd	P to Q R 3rd	26. R to Q B sq
Miss Rudge has been playing with great care, and has now a very good game. Her last move is quite as it should be, because, though ill-considered exchanges are to be avoided, yet, where the odds-receiver can safely obtain a Bishop for a Knight, it is correct play to do so.		27. P to Kt 4th	P to B 3rd
11. B to K 5th	Q to K 3rd	28. B takes R	Q takes R
12. B takes Kt (ch)	Q takes B	29. P to Kt 5th	R P takes P
13. K to B 2nd	Kt to Q 2nd	30. P takes P	Q to K 3rd
14. B to Q 4th	P to K B 3rd	31. Q to R 4th	Kt to B 4th
15. Q R to Q B sq
A slip on Mr. Thorold's part would be unlikely. We must, therefore, assume either that he hoped for weak play or
		32. Q to R 8th (ch)	K to Q 2nd
		33. Q to R 7th	Kt to Q 6th (ch)
		34. K to Kt 2nd	Kt takes R, and wins.

CHESS INTELLIGENCE.

The first round in the City of London Chess Club Handicap has been practically brought to an end, and the combatants have been re-paired for their second encounter. The following first-class players are among the winners, viz.:—Messrs. Boden, Macdonnell, and Potter. Mr. Blackburne, being absent in Manchester, had to forfeit his games. The following third-class players were also successful with their first opponents, viz.:—Messrs. Boardell, Block, Blunt, Delaune, Earee, Eschwege, Knight, F. W. Lord, Philip Stevens, and Watts, as also Messrs. Bussy and Vyse, who won by forfeits. The above-named winners are now eligible for the first and second prizes.

A match took place recently between the Athenaeum Club, of Camden Town, and the Excelsior Club, of Camberwell, at the rooms of the former. There were seven competitors on each side, and the Athenaeum won by eight games to two, with two draws.

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

The will (dated Feb. 26, 1864) of Mr. John Chapman, M.P. for Grimsby, late of Hill End within Mottram, in Longdendale, Cheshire, who died on July 18 last, has been proved at the district registry, Chester, by Edward Chapman, George John Chapman, and Charles Chapman, the sons, the acting executors, the personal estate, including leaseholds, being sworn under £140,000. The testator leaves the two pictures by Guido left to him by his father to his eldest son, Edward; the rest of his pictures and drawings are to be distributed by his wife between his children. To his wife, Mrs. Ann Chapman, he gives all his furniture, plate, household effects, horses and carriages, £750 per annum for life out of his personal estate, and £750 per annum for life charged on the Hattersley estate; to his sons Edward and George John, £10,000 each; to his son Charles, £20,000; upon trust for his daughter Alice, £10,000, and such portion of his residuary personal estate as will produce £400 per annum. The Hill End estate he devises to his wife for life, with remainder to his son Edward; he also devises the Hattersley estate to his last-named son, subject to the said annuity of £750. All his real estate at Macclesfield, Cheshire, he devises to his son George John, and the Carlcotts estate, Yorkshire, to his son Charles. The residue of his personalty is to be divided equally between his three sons.

The will (dated Sept. 1, 1875) of the Rev. Edward Bushby, Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge, who died on the 8th ult., at No. 6, Kingston-street, Mill-road, Cambridge, was proved on the 27th ult. by Percival White Bushby, the nephew, the sole executor, the personal estate being sworn under £100,000. The testator bequeaths to his nephews, William John Bushby and Daniel Harrison, £8000 each; to his niece, the daughter of his brother, Thomas Bushby, £6000; to his nephew Daniel Harrison an annuity of £50; to Sarah Wallman and to his landress, 19 guineas each; and the rest of his property he leaves to his said nephew, Percival White Bushby.

The will and codicil (dated Sept. 10, 1876, and Oct. 3, 1877) of Mr. Edward Green, late of Stafford Lodge, Heavitree, Devon, and of No. 25, High-street, Exeter, who died on the 7th ult., at Folkestone, were proved in London on the 26th ult. by Walter James Green, the son, John Dering Walker, the nephew, and Charles Edward Freeman, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £45,000. The testator leaves considerable legacies to his five children; legacies to two porters in his employ; and the remainder of his property he gives to his sons and daughters in equal shares, as tenants in common.

The will (dated Feb. 14, 1872) of Sir Arundell Neave, Bart., of Dagnam Park, Essex, who died on Sept. 21 last, at Llysdules, Amlwch, Anglesey, was proved on the 22nd ult. by the Hon. Dame Gwyn Gertrude Neave, the widow, the sole executrix, the personal estate being sworn under £40,000. The testator gives his wearing apparel and personal wardrobe to his valet, and directs all his debts, funeral and testamentary expenses to be paid. All his real estate and the residue of his personalty he gives to his wife.

The will (dated June 26, 1874) of Miss Louisa Garrard, late of No. 45, York-terrace, Regent's Park, who died on Sept. 26 last, was proved on the 18th ult. by Preston Karlslake and John James, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £25,000. After giving some legacies, the testatrix leaves the residue to her mother for life; at her death she gives £5000 to her brother Frederick, and the remainder upon trust for her sister, Mrs. Emily Karlslake.

In the abstract of the late Dr. Charles Geldart's will, given last week, the amount of his personalty was understated. It was sworn under £38,000.

The Boston correspondent of the New York Herald says:—"The will of John Lothrop Motley was presented for probate to-day (Oct. 20). It is a model document, covering only half a sheet of foolscap paper. It was executed in Boston on July 29, 1875. All the testator's personal property—books, pictures, literary papers, manuscripts, plate, jewellery, and clothing—are to be equally divided between his three daughters, Eliza Cabot Ives, Mary Lothrop Sheridan, and Susan M. S. Motley; and the residue of his property is given to trustees for the benefit of his daughters. He directs that his trustees, Francis E. Parker and J. Lewis Stackpole, shall make such arrangements and contracts for continuing the publication of his copyrighted works as may seem most fitting and advantageous, and pay the income arising from the sale of the books to his daughters. Mr. J. Lewis Stackpole is appointed sole executor."

A testimonial is about to be raised in Birmingham in recognition of the services of the junior member, Mr. Joseph Chamberlain. The testimonial will take the form of a fountain and ornamental canopy, with medallion portrait of Mr. Chamberlain; and, with the consent of the Town Council, will be placed upon the vacant ground at the north end of the Townhall. The contributions already exceed £2000.

Friday night's Gazette contains the following order from the Admiralty, dated Oct. 30, 1877:—"In pursuance of her Majesty's pleasure, the following change is to be made in the uniform of the undermentioned officers, as regards the distinguishing lace on the cuff of the coat:—Lieutenants and navigating lieutenants of eight years' seniority and upwards, paymasters of eight and under fifteen years' service, secretaries to junior flag officers, secretaries to commodores of the first class, secretaries to captains of the Fleet, chief engineers of less than ten years' seniority, and naval instructors of eight and under fifteen years' seniority, to wear two rows, with a narrow stripe of gold braid between, similar to that worn by staff surgeons. Assistant-paymasters of eight years' seniority and upwards, and engineers of eight years' seniority and upwards, to wear two rows (like lieutenants of less than eight years' seniority).

A financial report on the institutions established in Liverpool under the Free Libraries Act contains some information with reference to the cost of these various educational establishments maintained at the public expense for the free use of the people. The maximum rate permitted by Mr. Ewart's Act is one penny in the pound, which on the borough of Liverpool yields something over £11,000 per annum; but, this sum being insufficient for the maintenance of the libraries, museum, and art-gallery, an annual grant of the balance is obtained from the surplus income of the Corporation. The estimates for next year include charges of £3100 in respect of the Derby Museum, £3300 for the reference library, £1500 for the lending libraries, £3200 for the maintenance of the art department and the purchase of works of art. A new reading-room, the contract for which is £18,390, is also in process of erection, and during the coming year £9855 is intended to be spent under this head. The gross estimated expenditure of this department of the Corporation of Liverpool for next year is set down at £22,205, and the Council are asked to provide out of surplus revenue the difference between this estimate and the yield of the penny rate.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

The NEXT TERM will begin
on MONDAY, JAN. 22.

BANK OF NEW ZEALAND

(Incorporated by Act of General Assembly, July 20, 1861.)
Bankers to the New Zealand Government.
Paid-up Capital, £725,000. Reserve Fund, £75,000.

DIRECTORS.
J. LOGAN CAMPBELL, Esq., President.
George B. Owen, Esq., Robert Porter, Esq.,
Alfred Cox, Esq., M.G.A., James Watt, Esq.,
Samuel Browning, Esq., Hon. Jas. Williamson, M.L.O.

LONDON BOARD.
The Right Hon. Sir James Fergusson, Bart., K.C.M.G.,
Archd. Hamilton, Esq.,
A. J. Mundella, Esq., M.P.
Falconer Parkworthy, Esq.,
James Watt, Esq.,
Thomas Russell, Esq., C.M.G.

Head Office—Auckland.

BRANCHES AND AGENCIES.

In Australia—Melbourne, Sydney, and Newcastle.
In Fiji—Levuka.
In New Zealand—Auckland, Blenheim, Christchurch, Dunedin, Wellington, Napier, Nelson, New Plymouth, Invercargill, Pictou, and at seventy-seven other towns and places throughout the Colony.

The Bank grants Drafts on all their Branches and Agencies, and transacts every description of banking business connected with New Zealand, Australia, and Fiji on the most favourable terms.

The London Office RECEIVES DEPOSITS of £50 and upwards for fixed periods of two to five years, bearing interest at 5 per cent per annum. The rate for shorter periods can be ascertained on application at the Office of the Bank.
F. PARKWORTHY, Managing Director.
No. 1, Queen Victoria-street, Mansion House, E.C.

THE GRAND HOTEL, LONDON.

The extensive building, now in course of erection on the site of the historical mansion of the Dukes of Northumberland, at the corner of Northumberland-avenue, Trafalgar-square, will, when completed, be OPENED as a FIRST-CLASS HOTEL.
Messrs. GOSNOLD and Co., Proprietors.

FISH AND ICE.—EDWIN GILSON,

Fishmonger by Appointment to H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, 19, Haymarket, S.W., supplies Country Families with the best Fish, the market produces at lowest possible prices. A choice Dish of Fish forwarded, carriage-free, within 24 miles of London for Half-a-Crown.

LORNE "THE PERFECTION OF

HIGHLAND WHISKY.
UNRIVALLED.
FOR "TODDY."
Wholesale and Sole Proprietors: GUTHRIE & BROTHERS,
1, Gresham-buildings, E.C. Distillers, Argyleshire.

KINAHAN'S LL WHISKY.

UNIVERSALLY RECOMMENDED BY THE MEDICAL PROFESSION. A pure old spirit, mild, mellow, delicious, and most wholesome. Dr. Hassall says: "The samples were soft and mellow to the taste, aromatic and ethereal to the smell.
The whisky is pure, well matured, and of very excellent quality."

COCK'S READING SAUCE

Is the best and most economical Sauce ever manufactured
FOR FISH, ENRICHING SOUPS, GRAVIES, &c.
It only requires a trial to convince the purchaser of its superiority.

CAUTION.—The genuine is protected by Trade Mark—viz.,
CHARLES COCK'S Signature on a white ground across the Reading Arms.

HORNIMAN'S TEA for Forty Years has commanded a large sale, because it can always be relied on for strength, flavor, and cheapness. It is the best tea imported. Sold only in packets.

AMERICAN CENTENNIAL

PRIZE MEDAL.

FRY'S CARACAS COCOA.

Its pure flavor, delicate aroma, and invigorating qualities have established its position as a first-class dietetic article.

FRY'S CARACAS COCOA.

"The Caracas Cocoa of such choice quality."—Food,
Water, and Air (Dr. Hassall).
"A most delicious and valuable article."—Standard.

FRY'S EXTRACT OF COCOA,

"than which, if properly prepared, there is no nicer or more wholesome preparation of Cocoa."—Food, Water, and Air.
Edited by Dr. Hassall.

TENTH INTERNATIONAL MEDICAL
awarded to J. S. FRY and SON.

TAYLOR BROTHERS'

MARAVILLA COCOA,
DELICIOUS AND INVIGORATING.

MARAVILLA COCOA.

"It may justly be called the perfection
of prepared Cocoa."
British Medical Journal.

MARAVILLA COCOA.—The "Globe" says,

"MARAVILLA COCOA has achieved a thorough success, and surpasses every other cocoa in the market. Entire solubility, a delicate aroma, and a steadily increasing consumption. We believe that Messrs. Taylor Brothers are now the largest of the kind in the three kingdoms, and the total quantity of prepared cocoa consumed at the present time reaches four millions of pounds annually. This result is not surprising.
The dietetic properties of native cocoa are well known; but in the form prepared by Messrs. Taylor they are rendered additionally valuable, both on account of their increased nutritive power and digestible character. We rejoice to see the high opinion we formerly held to have been so generally confirmed, and we can only congratulate Messrs. Taylor on the sound and valuable addition they have made to our not over lengthy list of dietetic foods."—Civil Service Gazette.

SCHWEITZER'S COCOATINA.

Anti-Dyspeptic Cocoa or Chocolate Powder.
Guaranteed Pure Soluble Cocoa, with excess of Fat extracted.
Four times the strength of Cocoa Thickened yet Weakened with Arrowroot, Starch, &c.

The faculty pronounces it the most nutritious, perfectly digestible Beverage for "BREAKFAST, LUNCHEON, or SUPPER."
Keeps in all climates. Requires no cooking. A teaspoonful to Breakfast Cup, costing less than a halfpenny. Samples gratis.
In All-Right Tins, at 1s. 6d., 3s., and 6s., by Chemists and Grocers.
H. SCHWEITZER and Co., 10, Adam-street, London, W.C.

FOR THE NURSERY, THE SICK-ROOM, AND THE FAMILY TABLE.

BROWN and POLSON'S

CORN FLOUR

HAS BECOME A WORLD-WIDE NECESSARY.

THE ESSEX FLOUR AND GRAIN

COMPANY, Liverpool-road, London, N., supply the best goods only—Whites, for Pastry, 10s. per bushel; Households, for Bread, 9s. 4d.; Wheat Meal, for Brown Bread, 8s. 4d.;
Course Scotch Oatmeal, 3s. 4d. per 11 lbs.; fine 3s. 4d.; American Hominy, 4s.; Barley, Indian Corn, and Barley Meal, 5s. 6d. per bushel, or 21s. 6d. per sack; Buck-wheat, 5s. per bushel, or 18s. per sack; Oats, 4s. per bushel; Crushed Oats, 3s. 6d. per bushel.
Es. 6d. per sack; Middlings, 2s. 4d. per bushel; Ground Pollard, Es. 8d.; Peas, 7s. 6d.; Tick Beans, 8s.; Split Peas, 2s. 6d. and 3s.
per sack; Meat Biscuits, 2s. per cwt. Lentil Flour, for Invalids, in tins, 11s. 6d., 1s., and 71b. 5s. All other kinds of Grain and Seed. Special prices for larger quantities. Orders and cheques to be made in favour of G. YOUNG.

HEALTHY SKIN AND GOOD

COMPLEXION.

PEARS'S TRANSPARENT SOAP

Is the best for the

TOILET, NURSERY, and SHAVING.

Recommended in the "Journal of Cutaneous Medicine," edited by Mr.

ERASMUS WILSON, F.R.S.,

used by

THE ROYAL FAMILY,

and Sold by Chemists and Perfumers
Everywhere.

ROYAL WORCESTER CHINA

from the celebrated ROYAL PORCELAIN WORKS can be obtained from OETZMANN and CO., Complete House Furnishers, 67 to 79, Hampstead-road, who are also SOLE VENDORS of the CLEOPATRA TOILET SERVICES (ewer, basin, &c., complete—nine pieces), from 10s. 6d. per set.—Descriptive Price-
Lists of the same can be had post-free on application.

FURNISH THROUGHOUT.

OETZMANN & CO.,

67, 69, 71, 73, 77 & 79,

HAMPSTEAD-ROAD,

NEAR TOTTENHAM-COURT-ROAD.

FURNISH THROUGHOUT.—OETZMANN

and CO., 67, 69, 71, 73, 77 and 79, HAMPSTEAD-ROAD, near Tottenham-court-road, Cabinet Factory, Albion Works, Drummonds, 14, B. H. B. Furniture, and London, S.W.
Carpet, Furniture, Bedding, Drapery, Furnishing Ironmongery, China, Glass, Paper Hangings, Pictures, Bronzes, Clocks, &c., and every other requisite for completely furnishing a house throughout.

THE IMMENSE RANGE OF PREMISES

formerly the LAGER BREWERY having been REBUILT and added to their SHOW-ROOMS, it is now one of the largest Furnishing Establishments in the world. Comparison of price and quality respectfully solicited before deciding elsewhere.
OETZMANN and CO. are enabled to offer special advantages to country customers in delivery of goods by their own large PANTHEON VANS, and fixing in position to competent persons. Descriptive Catalogue, the best Furnishing Guide extant, post-free.—OETZMANN and CO.

PAINTINGS, OLEOS, CHROMOS,

PHOTOS, and ENGRAVINGS.—A choice assortment, in handsome frames. The paintings are by well-known artists, and the name guaranteed. Also, a large assortment of Bronzes, Statuettes, Vases, Clocks, Antiques, Furniture, and artistic furnishing items. A Catalogue of Art Department post-free.
OETZMANN and CO.

CABINET and UPHOLSTERY

DEPARTMENT.—Best Plate Chimney-Glasses, in double-rifle frames, elegant pattern, large size, 2 guineas; magnificent ditto, from 5 to 20 guineas. Handsome Walnut Chiffonier, shaped front, and richly-carved mountings, 4 ft., 3 guineas.
Sole Mahogany Sideboards, 5 ft., 6 guineas; 6 ft., from 8 guineas upwards. Easy-Chairs, from 14s. 6d. upwards. Drawing and Dining Room Chairs, from 10s. 6d. each.—OETZMANN and CO.

STANLEY DINING-ROOM SUITE in solid carved Spanish Mahogany, upholstered in best marine leather, comprising a noble Couch, two Easy-Chairs, and six Chairs, price 14 guineas. Quality guaranteed. A variety of other patterns on show, from 8 guineas upwards. Massive Mahogany Table, 8 ft., 4 ft., 6 ft., patent metallic screw,

5s. 6d.—OETZMANN and CO.

DRAWING-ROOM SUITES.

OETZMANN and CO.—Elegant Drawing-Room Suite, richly-carved Italian Walnut Wood, upholstered very soft and comfortable, in best Rep. consisting of a Couch, two Easy-Chairs, and six Chairs, price 15 guineas; ditto, very handsome design, upholstered in rich Pekinette, made and finished in superior style, 20 guineas; ditto, very elegant design, richly upholstered in finest Satin, and finished in the best possible manner, 25 guineas. Also a variety of other Drawing-Room Suites, in Black and Gold, Early English, and other designs.
OETZMANN and CO.

BEDDING DEPARTMENT.—Handsome

3 ft. 6 in. Mahogany Chest of Drawers, with deep bottom drawer, 2 guineas; Spanish Mahogany Wardrobes, from 5 guineas upwards. Bed-Room Suites, enamelled imitation of mahogany, oak-wood, and other handsome woods, consisting of Wardrobe, Chest of Drawers, Washstand, Toilet Table, Toilet Glass, bedplate, 18 in. by 12 in. Towel Airer, three Chairs, and pedestal Toilet Cupboard, all complete for 64 guineas.
OETZMANN and CO.

LODGINGS.—EXTRA BED to accommodate Visitors.—A strong IRON FOLDING BED-STEAD, 6 ft. long by 2 ft. 6 in. wide, with a wool mattress, pillow, and blanket, complete, 5s. 6d. Bedstead, 5 ft. wide, 2s. 6d. complete. Sent carefully packed. Forms a portable package.

Also, to suit the above, two white calico sheets, one ditto bolster case, one pillow case, three white flannel blankets, and one quilt, for 20s. 6d. A very elegant design, richly upholstered in finest Satin, and finished in the best possible manner, 6 ft., by 2 ft., with cushions, forming the mattress. Price, complete, 21s.—Address order to OETZMANN and CO.

BEDSTEADS. BEDDING.

BEDSTEADS. BEDDING.

BEDSTEADS. BEDDING.

BEDSTEADS. BEDDING.

INOLEUM.—OETZMANN and CO.

INOLEUM.—Warm, soft, carpet-like in appearance, and very durable. PRIZE DESIGN 1876. Best item of the year.
A visit of inspection solicited. Prices below those usually charged for this favourite floor covering. The Trade supplied.
OETZMANN and CO.

TURKEY CARPETS.—CLEARANCE

SALE.—OETZMANN and CO.—A quantity of Turkey,
Iranian, Persian, Jubbulpore, Masulipatan, Farahan, Khorassan, Suland, Kashmir, and other Carpets, and Rugs, clearing out at greatly reduced prices, ranging from 15s. 6d. to 50 guineas.
A detailed Price-List, with sizes and description, sent, post-free, on application. Prices will be found much below those usually charged. A quantity of Indian Rugs, 15s. 6d. each; some very handsome ditto at 35s. to 45s.—OETZMANN and CO.

EVERYONE SHOULD SEE the large,

handsome AXMINSTER HEARTH RUG, that OETZMANN and CO. are now selling at 35s. 11d. each; retail price 15s. 6d. There is nothing else to be compared with these for quality and cheapness. An immense variety of Designs and Colours to suit every pattern in Carpets. A visit of inspection solicited.—OETZMANN and CO.

DOWN QUILTS.—OETZMANN and CO.'S

DOWN and ARCTIC DOWN QUILTS and CLOTHING combine the greatest amount of warmth attainable with the least possible weight, and are of the very best quality. Price-List post-free.—OETZMANN and CO.

CRETONNES.—OETZMANN and CO.

CRETONNES.—An immense assortment of all the choicest designs in this fashionable material, in every variety of style and colouring; excellent imitations of rare Tapestries, some being exact copies of the finest Gobelins Tapestry. Prices varying from 9d. to 4s. 11d. per yard. Patterns sent into the country by stating kind required.—OETZMANN and CO.

BOMBAY STRIPED CURTAINS.—The cheapest CURTAINS extant, effective style, 3 yards long by 6 ft. 6 in., 3s. 6d. per pair; 3 yards, 11s. 6d.; 4 yards, 13s. 6d.

Patterns on application.—OETZMANN and CO.

KITCHEN REQUISITES.—OETZMANN and CO.'S TEN-POUND SET of No. 24, page 221 in their "GUIDE TO HOUSE FURNISHING," sent post-free on application, includes Tables, Chairs, Clock, &c., with the various Culinary Utensils and requisites, contains all the most useful articles required in every kitchen, each being of superior quality, and is the most practical selection extant.

OETZMANN and CO.

NOTICE.—CLEOPATRA TOILET

SERVICES.—Messrs. OETZMANN and CO. have COMPLETED ARRANGEMENTS at the Works, affording GREATLY INCREASED FACILITIES for PRODUCING this SPECIALLY, and hope to keep pace with the demand, which they have hitherto been unable to do. Customers can now be supplied with any of the colours direct from Stock.—OETZ-MANN and CO., Complete House Furnishers, 67 to 79, Hampstead-road. Descriptive Price-List post-free.

OETZMANN and CO., COMPLETE

HOUSE FURNISHERS, 67, 69, 71, 73, 77 and 79, Hampstead-road (three minutes' walk from Tottenham-court-road and Gower-street Station, Metropolitan Railway). Lowest prices consistent with guaranteed quality. Orders per post, large or small, receive prompt and faithful attention in the selection.
Close at seven, and on Saturdays at Four o'clock. Descriptive Catalogue post-free.—OETZMANN and CO.

DESCRIPTIVE CATALOGUE, post-free.

OETZMANN & CO.,

HAMPSTEAD-ROAD.

PETER ROBINSON'S

COURT and GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,

REGENT-STREET.

Is the largest and most important warehouse of its kind in England.

AT PETER ROBINSON'S

WAREHOUSE FOR BLACK GOODS,

REGENT-STREET.

For TWO GUINEAS and up to FIVE.

CHOICE BLACK MATERIAL COSTUMES COMPLETE,

In the New Style.
(Princess Polonaise and Skirt).
Patterns and Photos free.

URGENT MOURNING.

"ON RECEIPT OF LETTER
or TELEGRAM,"

MOURNING GOODS will be forwarded to all parts of England, on application—no order the distance—
with an excellent fitting Dressmaker (if required),
without extra charge.
PETER ROBINSON, 226, 228, 230, 232, Regent-street, London.

DEEP MOURNING ORDERS.

DRESSES, Costumes, Mantles, Millinery,

In the most appropriate and best styles,
at the lowest possible cost.
Dressmaking and Millinery,
by clever and expert artists.

INEXPENSIVE MOURNING, as well

as the Richest Qualities, can be supplied by

PETER ROBINSON,
upon the most advantageous terms, to Families.
The Court and Family Mourning Warehouse,
226, 228, 230, 232, Regent-street, London.

BLACK SILKS.

An Important Purchase

of Several Thousand Pieces by

PETER ROBINSON, of REGENT-STREET,

of the best wearing makes only,
and highly recommended.

Bonnet of Clo. at 6s. 6d.

Jaubert at 4s. 6d.

Ponsou's at 6s. 6d.

Legove's at 4s. 6d.

The above are from 2s. to 3s. per yard
under last year's prices.

The Empress Cachemire at 6s.

Also excellent value at

2s. 6d., 3s. 3d., 3s. 11d., 4s. 6d., and 4s. 11d.

For Patterns, address

PETER ROBINSON,
226 to 232, Regent-street.

BLACK SILK DRESS VELVETS.

Exceedingly good qualities,

at 7s. 6d., 8s. 6d., 10s. 6d., 12s. 6d., 15s. 6d.

A Special Bargain

in Lyons Velvet, at 10s. 6d.

Black Silk-Trimming Velvets,

at 4s. 6d., 5s. 6d., 6s. 6d.,

Tulle (condition keeping), 5s.

Grenadine, 5s. 6d.

New Styles, well cut, and elegantly trimmed.

Illustrations free.

THE NEW CRAPE.

The Pure Silk Gordin Crape,

for Widows and Families.

Its advantages are—that it is made of silk so pure that it will not crumple when sat upon,

nor spot with rain.

It is a richer black, free from dress and the gammed appearance so objectionable in other Crape.

The wear of every yard is guaranteed.

The Gordin Crape is a Specialty,

only to be obtained at

PETER ROBINSON'S, of REGENT-STREET.

The MOURNING WAREHOUSE, Nos. 226 to 232.

Excellent qualities at 4s. 6d., 5s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 8s. 6d.,
Patterns free.

FUR-LINED CLOAKS

at Summer Prices.

Good useful furs, 24s. 6d. and 26s. 6d.

SEMI-FITTING SEAL PALETOTS,

33 inches long, for 9 guineas.

35 inches long, for 11 guineas.

37 inches long, for 13 guineas.

At PETER ROBINSON'S, of REGENT-STREET.

NOTICE.—In reference to the above advertisements,

it is important that letters should be clearly addressed to

226 to 232, REGENT-STREET.

ROYAL DEVONSHIRE SERGES.

woven from pure Wool, for LADIES' DRESSES, in Navy or Dark Indigo Blue, Black, Dark Browns, Prune, and other solid colours.

price 1s. 11d., 2s. 6d., 3s. 11d. per yard.

For CHILDREN a lower quality is made, very strong, at 1s. 6d. per yard.

For BOYS' HATS, HANKS, extra milled, price,

4s. 6d. wide, 2s. 6d. per yard.

Books of Patterns sent post-free by

SPEARMAN and SPEARMAN,

Devonshire Serge Factors, Plymouth.

The ROYAL DEVONSHIRE SERGE is the only true Yachting

Serge.

Final Completion of the Underground Inner Circle Railway System.

ISSUE OF £1,200,000 SHARE CAPITAL,
IN 120,000 SHARES OF £10 EACH, OF THE

METROPOLITAN INNER CIRCLE COMPLETION RAILWAY,

WHICH WILL CONNECT

THE METROPOLITAN RAILWAY

AT ALDGATE, WITH

THE METROPOLITAN DISTRICT RAILWAY

AT THE MANSION HOUSE STATION, THUS UNITING THE TWO RAILWAYS IN A COMPLETE CIRCLE.

Incorporated by Special Acts of Parliament, 37 and 38 Vict., Cap. 199 (1874), and 39 and 40 Vict., Cap. 228 (1876).

In view of the great importance of the undertaking to the Metropolis generally, the following CASH SUBVENTIONS are by Act of Parliament secured to the Company:—

By THE METROPOLITAN BOARD OF WORKS	£370,000
By THE COMMISSIONERS OF SEWERS OF THE CITY OF LONDON	130,000
Total	£500,000

GUARANTEED MINIMUM TOLLS, £64,240 PER ANNUM, secured by Act of Parliament, which, with the other sources of revenue, will yield a CLEAR MINIMUM 4½ PER CENT DIVIDEND on the Share Capital now for subscription, with probable increase to 5½ per cent soon after the opening of the Line, and further advancing as the traffic is developed.

DIRECTORS.

The Right Honourable the LORD MAYOR, CHAIRMAN.

Alderman Sir CHARLES WHETHAM, Chairman of the London and Blackwall Railway Company, of the National Provident Institution, and one of the Commissioners of Sewers of the City of London.
Alderman Sir F. WYATT TRUSCOTT, Member of the Metropolitan Board of Works and one of the Commissioners of Sewers of the City of London.
W. M. BULLIVANT, Esq. (Messrs. Bullivant and Co.), Millwall; and 72, Mark-lane.

JAMES GOODSON, Esq., Director of the Guardian Fire and Life Assurance Company.

E. F. D. WALSH, Esq., Clarges-street, Piccadilly.

J. S. FORBES, Esq., Chairman of the Metropolitan District Railway Company.

G. W. CURRIE, Esq., Vice-Chairman of the ditto ditto

The Right Honourable Viscount GORT, Director of the ditto ditto

Representing the Metropolitan District Railway Company.

BANKERS.

THE NATIONAL PROVINCIAL BANK OF ENGLAND, 112, Bishopsgate-street, E.C.
Messrs. Glyn, Mills, Currie, and Co., 67, Lombard-street, E.C.

ENGINEERS.

Messrs. BRUNLES and McKERROW, Victoria-street, Westminster.

SOLICITORS.

Messrs. NEWMAN, STRETTON, and HILLIARD, 75 and 76, Cornhill.

BROKERS.

Messrs. HELBERT, WAGG, and CAMPBELL, 18, Old Broad-street.
Messrs. PANMURE GORDON and Co., Hatton-court, Threadneedle-street, E.C.

LAND SURVEYORS.

Messrs. F. and R. and A. VIGERS, Frederick's-place, Old Jewry, E.C.

SECRETARY.

ARTHUR HIGGINSON, Esq.

OFFICES:—6, WESTMINSTER CHAMBERS, VICTORIA-STREET, WESTMINSTER.

The Directors of the METROPOLITAN INNER-CIRCLE COMPLETION RAILWAY COMPANY are now prepared to receive applications for £1,200,000, being the Share Capital proposed to be raised, in 120,000 Shares of £10 each, payable as follows:—

£10 0 0	per Share, payable on Application.
1 0 0	on Allotment.
2 0 0	on Feb. 1, 1878.
2 0 0	on April 1, 1878.
1 10 0	on June 1, 1878.
1 10 0	on Dec. 1, 1878.
1 0 0	on Feb. 1, 1879.

£10 0 0

THE METROPOLITAN INNER-CIRCLE RAILWAY, called the "Link Line," will supply the only link now wanting to complete the Underground Inner-Circle Railway System, which, though hitherto incomplete, has so greatly benefited the Metropolis generally, by affording quick and cheap locomotion to all parts.

Though a private undertaking, the character of the work and its great necessity and usefulness have excited an amount of public attention seldom given to other than National Works.

The evidence taken before the Select Committee of both Houses of Parliament showed clearly that if the lines of the Metropolitan and District Railway Companies could be joined so as to complete the circle, enabling trains to be run round it continuously, without detaching engines or shifting carriages at the termini, a saving of about two minutes and a half in the interval between each train running would be secured, the effect of which would be to enable both Companies to double the number of their trains, without outlay to either Company, to their great profit and to the convenience of the public—a result which no widening of the existing lines, even if feasible, could effect.

The length of the Link Line is 1 mile 4 chains, equal to 1.1-20th miles, and will be constructed under the supervision of Messrs. BRUNLES and McKERROW, the well-known experienced Engineers.

The course of it will be as follows:—

From the Mansion House Station of the District Railway it will pass almost entirely beneath Cannon-street, and thence under a new street to be formed by the Company between Eastcheap and Fenchurch-street, near Mining-lane, and be continued under Fenchurch-street to the junction near Aldgate, with the Metropolitan Railway. This street will, in fact, be an extension eastward of Queen Victoria-street and Cannon-street.

The Link Line will thus complete the circle, by extending the District Railway, which now terminates at the Mansion House Station, to a junction with the Metropolitan Railway north of their Aldgate Station.

There will be three important Stations:—

- 1st—At Cannon-street, between Walbrook and St. Swithin's-lane, opposite to and connected with the South-Eastern Railway, only 280 yards from the Bank of England.
- 2nd—At the Corner of Gracechurch-street, King William-street, and Eastcheap, on the site now occupied by the National Provident Institution, and at the commencement of the New Street.
- 3rd—At the corner of Leadenhall-street, Fenchurch-street, and High-street, Aldgate, near the other end of the New Street.

The two last Stations, from their position as regards the New Street, will afford most ready and easy access to the public in immediate contiguity to a main thoroughfare.

Highly satisfactory arrangements have been made with the Metropolitan Board of Works and the Commissioners of Sewers of the City of London, by which this Company, in consideration of their constructing the new street (which will utilise the surplus land to the utmost advantage), and widening and improving the small portion of Fenchurch-street incidental to the railway works, will receive from those Corporations on completion of the works the sum of £500,000 as under:—

The Metropolitan Board of Works	£370,000
The Commissioners of Sewers of the City of London	130,000
Total	£500,000

The entire cost of the undertaking, after deducting the value of the surplus land, the greater portion of which is in the New Street, and as to which arrangements for sale at the price of £550,000 have been made (being more than it was valued at in the estimates), and after deducting the above contributions, is estimated not to exceed £1,600,000. This Company is accordingly prepared to receive subscriptions for £1,200,000 in Shares, which, with £400,000 in 4 per Cent Debentures, is the portion of the authorised capital necessary to be raised.

A contract has been entered into with Mr. T. A. Walker (who has had great experience in the construction of important underground lines in London, including the District Railway and portions of the Metropolitan Railway), whereby he undertakes to construct and complete the railway, &c., and the street improvements, by Aug. 1, 1879 (with a bonus for earlier completion), and receiving the earnings of the line from the portions as opened until the whole is completed, to pay interest at 6 per cent per annum on the capital paid up on calls from the date of each call until Aug. 1, 1879.

The contract includes the construction of convenient Refreshment-Rooms or Restaurants, Lavatories, &c., at each of the three stations, which, owing to their central and public position in the heart of the business portion of the City, will yield a large annual rental to this Company. The Mansion House Station Restaurant alone, not nearly so well placed as the stations of this Company, yields about £3000 per annum income to the District Company.

The works will be proceeded with and continued with all vigour; and the portion from the Mansion House Station to Eastcheap, which includes the two Stations at Cannon-street and Eastcheap, will, with the New Street and street improvements, be completed by Dec. 31, 1878.

With reference to the land, it has not only been valued by the experienced surveyors, Messrs. VIGERS, but checked by Mr. CHARLES LEE and Mr. V. BUCKLAND, and critically examined by Mr. VULLIAMY and Mr. HAYWOOD, the officers of the Metropolitan Board and the City Commissioners of Sewers, before the contributions for the new street were voted. The utmost precautions have thus been taken to secure the completion of the works within the capital of £1,600,000.

The actual earnings on the Link Line may be safely calculated to be at least equal to those of the District Railway, which, between Mansion House and South Kensington (where the traffic divides), are 7s. 9d. per train mile. The Metropolitan earnings are about 9s. 6d. per train mile.

An agreement has been entered into with the District Company (which is scheduled to and confirmed by this Company's Act of Parliament of 1876), by which the District Company undertakes to pay as toll for the use of the Link the average gross receipt per train mile on their system for the time being, guaranteed at NOT LESS than 7s. 7½d. per train mile, equal to 8s. per train run over the Link Line, on a minimum guaranteed number of 440 trains daily. The fares and tolls received or payable on the Link Line, or such portion as may be necessary to meet the stipulated payment per train, are to be paid over quarterly to this Company. The District Company are also bound to give a rebate of 10 per cent on the earnings on the District Line, from traffic passing the whole length of the Link Line, to or from the District Stations, at and east of Charing-Cross.

The agreement further stipulates that the District Company is to work the Line free of cost to the Company so long as the toll does not exceed the minimum payment of 8s. per train, but the District Company is to retain any excess of toll over 8s. until it realises 9s. 3d. per train, and when the earnings rise beyond 9s. 3d. this Company takes the whole till the net profits of the Link Line reach 5 per cent on £1,600,000—whereupon all profits beyond this are to be divided equally with the District Company.

The Act of Parliament of 1876 extends the Companies' agreement of June 29, 1871, which requires both the Metropolitan and the District Companies to run their trains continuously, and interchangeably, between all Stations of either Company on the existing portion of the inner circle, to the stations on the Link Line immediately it is constructed.

The minimum guaranteed Toll, with the other sources of Revenue mentioned below, which are estimated on reliable data, is equal to a Dividend of £4 10s. per cent per annum on the Share Capital, as under:—

440 Trains per Day, at 8s. per Train	£64,240
10 per cent Rebate on New Traffic	7,500
Rent of Refreshment-Rooms, Book-Stalls, Advertising-Boards, Lavatories, &c.	13,000
Total	£84,740
Less—Manning and maintaining the Line, Board, Officers, and Office Expenses	14,000
Interest on Debenture Stock, 4 per cent on £400,000	16,000
Leaving Net Revenue available for Dividend on the Share Capital of £1,200,000	£54,740 being upwards of 4½ per cent per annum.

The resident population of London itself is about 3,500,000, and, together with the immediate suburban population, within the police radius of fifteen miles, gives a total of about 4,250,000. The Metropolitan and District Railways conveyed in the year ending 1876 more than 80,000,000 passengers.

The following numbers of passengers conveyed on the two Railways during the past four years, as gathered from their published accounts, show an increase in that period of 17,000,000, or about 27 per cent.

Total Passengers 1873 about 63,000,000	1874	1875	1876
" " " "	65,000,000	74,000,000	80,000,000
" " " "	being an increase over 1873 of 2,000,000	" " "	" " "
" " " "	" " "	" " "	" " "

The traffic is daily increasing, and would progress still more rapidly could the interval between the trains be reduced, and the trains run with greater frequency. This the Link Line will secure.

There are now run on the District Line 440 trains each week day, and the natural increase of traffic will continue for 1½ years, whilst the Link Line is under construction. Assuming the trains to increase on the opening of the Link Line (when the capacity of the existing lines is doubled) only by 91 trains per day, this will raise the Dividend on the Share Capital (after dividing the profits over £30,000 with the District Company) to £5 10s. per cent per annum.

This Dividend will further advance from time to time, as the trains are increased in number, each additional 46 trains yielding an additional quarter per cent; thus an additional 92 trains per day would yield a Dividend of 6 per cent per annum.

In the foregoing estimate no credit is taken for earnings from Goods Traffic—to be carried during the night—or for the increase in the average gross earnings per train per mile beyond 7s. 7½d.

These calculations are founded on the present necessities and anticipated future development of Metropolitan traffic. There is no question that the number of trains to be run (contributed by both Companies and the several other Companies to whom the Link will be opened) will rapidly increase, as nearly all the important main lines—viz., the London and North-Western, the Great Northern, the Midland, the Great Western, the South-Western, and the Great Eastern, besides the North London, the Brighton and South-Eastern—will, on the completion of the Link Line, be brought into more or less improved connection with the Inner Circle Railway, while the first five Companies may actually run their trains over the Link.

By the agreement with the District Company, from the tolls payable on the 440 trains to be run per day, which, with the rebate, is absolutely GUARANTEED BY THE DISTRICT COMPANY, from the completion and opening of the line, combined with the other sources of revenue above specified, a net income equal to 4½ per cent on the Share Capital now for subscription will arise. Any arrears of such tolls and rebate would become a cumulative debt on that Company, payable out of its net profits available for Dividend on its Ordinary Stock, in perpetual priority to the dividends upon the whole of that Stock, which profits are estimated by Mr. Forbes to reach and probably exceed £30,000 per annum before the opening of the Link Line.

The financial prospects of the Link Line may therefore be considered sound and satisfactory, producing as they do a minimum dividend of £4 10s. per cent, rising steadily within a comparatively short period to a probable 6 per cent and upwards on the Share Capital.

The importance of the Link Line to the District and Metropolitan Railways is not only that it will double their capacity for carrying passengers, and effect a considerable saving in the cost of working, and relieve the District Company from the enlargement of the Mansion House Station, which might otherwise become necessary to accommodate the future additional traffic—an enlargement which, though costly, would not increase the capacity of their railway, but also that it will create a new traffic by enabling the passengers on the one line to continue their journey on the other, and make what are now terminal stations, with a reduced mileage receipt, into through stations, with the enlarged receipts which attach to such stations.

The agreement gives to the District Company the option, expressly stipulated for by them, of purchasing the entire undertaking on the following terms:—

That at the end of three years from the opening of the Link Line, and not before, they may buy the undertaking by giving to this Company as much £4 10s. per Cent District Debenture Stock as will yield a yearly sum, equal to the net income of the Link Line earned in the last of such three years, not being less than £4 10s. per cent on the Capital of £1,600,000.

The effect of this arrangement would be as follows:—

If at the end of the Third Year the Earnings of this Company should be	The District Company would have to hand over for each £100 Stock in this Company	Which Debenture Stock being worth in the Market, say, £110 per £100 Stock, would equal in cash	Giving a Net Profit to the Holders of the Stock of this Company of
5 per Cent.	£111 2 0 — 4½ per Cent Debenture Stock	£122 Cash	£22 Net Profit per £100 Stock
5½ " "	116 13 0 " " "	128 " "	28 " " "
6 " "	122 4 0 " " "	134 " "	34 " " "
6½ " "	127 15 0 " " "	140 " "	40 " " "
7 " "	133 6 0 " " "	146 " "	46 " " "

It will be seen, therefore, that a profit may be looked for if the line is purchased of from £22 to £46 per £100 Stock.

The position of this Company, owning this small link, which so greatly benefits the two great Metropolitan Companies, and is indispensable to both, may be viewed as somewhat analogous to that of the Victoria Station and Pimlico Railway, built to accommodate the traffic of the Great Western, Brighton, and London, Chatham, and Dover Railway Companies, and used by them jointly on terms the effect of which is to allow of a dividend of 9 per cent per annum on its Ordinary Stock, which is quoted at about £215 per £100 Stock, or 115 premium.

As an illustration of the current value of Railway Stocks, may be mentioned that of the Metropolitan Railway, which, taking the average of the last two half-years, has paid a dividend at the rate of 4½ per cent per annum. That stock is quoted on the Stock Exchange at about £117 per £100 Stock.

The Shares of this Company, upon which a minimum dividend of 4½ per cent is practically guaranteed, and will probably increase to 6 per cent and upwards, are now for subscription at par—viz., £10 per Share, equal to £100 per £100 Stock.

Looking to the intimate relations which will naturally result from the completion of the Link Line between this Company and the Metropolitan and District Railways, the allotment of the Shares will, as far as possible, be made on the following basis:—

- One third to the Proprietors in the Metropolitan Railway.
- One third to the Proprietors in the Metropolitan District Railway.
- One third to the general public.

Should the total number of Shares applied for by each of those sections exceed the proportion of the Capital allocated to them as above, the applications will, if necessary be reduced pro rata.

Subscribers are at liberty to pay up the balance due on their Shares on any day when an instalment becomes payable, whereupon interest at 5 per cent per annum will immediately accrue thereon.

In the event of no allotment being made, the deposit will be returned in full without deduction.

Should the full number of Shares applied for not be allotted, the surplus deposit paid will be applied towards the payment of the amount due on allotment.

Failure to pay any instalment at the due date will render all previous payments liable to forfeiture. On all the Instalments being duly paid the Shares will be converted into Stock.

Copies of the Company's Acts of Parliament can be seen on application to the Solicitors of the Company, Messrs. Newman, Stretton, and Hilliard, 75, Cornhill.

Applications, which must be made in the printed form, accompanied by a deposit of £1 per Share applied for, may be sent to the Secretary, Arthur Higginson, Esq., at the Offices of the Company, or to the Bankers, the National Provincial Bank of England, 112, Bishopsgate-street, E.C., and its Branches; or Messrs. Glyn, Mills, Currie, and Co., 67, Lombard-street, E.C.

Prospectuses and Forms of Application can be obtained at the Bankers, the Brokers, Messrs. Helbert, Wagg, and Campbell, 18, Old Broad-street, E.C.; or Messrs. Panmure Gordon and Co., Hatton-court, Threadneedle-street, E.C.; or at the Offices of the Company, 6, Westminster Chambers, Victoria-street, Westminster.

6, Westminster Chambers, Victoria-street, Westminster, By order of the Board, ARTHUR HIGGINSON, Secretary.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS

REGISTERED AT THE GENERAL POST-OFFICE FOR TRANSMISSION ABROAD.

No. 2001.—VOL. LXXI.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 17, 1877.

WITH } SIXPENCE.
TWO SUPPLEMENTS } By Post, 6d.

THE WAR: A TURKISH OUTPOST.

BIRTHS.

On the 12th inst., at 2, Pelham-crescent, Lady Margaret Cuffe, of a daughter.
On the 7th inst., at Bayham Abbey, the Marchioness of Camden, of a son, who survived only two days.
On the 5th inst., at Witley Court, Lady Dudley, of a son.

MARRIAGES.

On the 8th inst., at the parish church, Hockliffe, Bedfordshire, by the Rev. H. F. Grey, Rector, Henry Brock Wood, Esq., son of William Henry Wood, Esq., of Florence, Italy, to Emma Frances, daughter of the late Thomas Tringham Smith, Esq., of Palazzo, Bruciatto, Florence, and niece of Sir Richard Gilpin, Bart., M.P.
On the 8th inst., at Christ Church, Lancaster-gate, by the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Rev. R. Ffrench Blake, Rector of Staple, Kent, to Mary Elizabeth, only daughter of Arthur T. Hewitt, Esq., of 38, Gloucester-place, Hyde Park, and Brighton.

DEATHS.

On the 19th ult., at Max House, Winscombe, Somersetshire, Jane, wife of Charles Edward Smith, Esq., late of Anderson's Bay, Otago, New Zealand.
On the 2nd inst., John Calthrop, Esq., of Stanhoe Hall, Norfolk, a magistrate for that county, and Deputy-Lieutenant for the counties of Norfolk and Lincoln, aged 88.
On the 6th inst., at the Hotel Vitali, Cimiez, Nice, Charles Venables, Esq., of Longueville Manor, Jersey, and Wellington, Salop.
On the 20th ult., at Kingston, Jamaica, Imogene Cordelia, wife of Francis Dawson, Assoc. Inst., C.E., aged 24 years.
On the 8th inst., at her residence, 26, Pembroke-square, Mrs. Catharine Clark, widow of Matthew Clark, Esq., late of Morgan House, Ham-common, Surrey, aged 84 years.
On the 22nd ult., at Berne, Switzerland, Constance, widow of Mc de Morlot, youngest daughter of Sir John Ingilby, Bart., of Ripley Castle, Yorkshire, and Dame Elizabeth Ingilby-Amesbury, of Kettlethorp Park, Lincolnshire, aged 82.

* The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, or Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING NOV. 24.

SUNDAY, Nov. 18.

Twenty-fifth Sunday after Trinity. St. James's, noon, probably Rev. Prebendary J. E. Kempe. Whitehall, 11 a.m., Bishop Piers Claughton, Chaplain-General (for the Indian Famine Fund); 3 p.m., Rev. W. F. Erskine Knollys. Temple Church, 11 a.m., probably Rev. Dr. Vaughan, the Master; 3 p.m., Rev. Alfred Ainger, the Reader.
Westminster Abbey, 10 a.m., Rev. Harry Jones; 3 p.m., Rev. Canon Farrar.
Savoy, closed.

MONDAY, Nov. 19.

Asiatic Society, 4 p.m. (Captain Forbes on the Connection of the Mons of Pegu with the Koles of Central India).
Institute of British Architects, 8 p.m. (Mr. W. H. White on Middle-Class Houses in London and Paris).

TUESDAY, Nov. 20.

Full moon, 10.19 p.m.
The Commander-in-Chief's Levée, Horse Guards, 1 p.m.
Humane Society, committee, 4 p.m.
Statistical Society, 7.45 p.m. (Inaugural address by Mr. G. J. Shaw Lefevre, M.P., the president).
Institution of Civil Engineers, 8 p.m. (discussion on the Progress of Steam Shipping).
Pathological Society, 8.30 p.m.
Colonial Institute, 8 p.m. (Mr. R. H. Elliot on Indian Famines and How to Modify the Causes that lead to them).
Zoological Society, 8.30 p.m. (the Marquis of Tweeddale on the Ornithology of the Philippines; No. 2, Mr. A. H. Everett's Collections in Zebu; papers by Dr. O. Finckh and Professor Garrod).
Warwick Races.

WEDNESDAY, Nov. 21.

Victoria, Princess Royal of Great Britain and Crown Princess of Germany, born, 1841.
Met. and Astr. Soc., 7 p.m. (the Hon. Ralph Abercromby on the General Character and Principal Features of Variation in the Weather in any part of a Cyclone or Anticyclone; papers by Captain A. Schick and Mr. R. H. Scott).
Historical Institute, 8 p.m. (Mr. Evans on Clockmaking).
British Archaeological Association, 8 p.m. (Dr. S. Birch on the Obelisk known as Cleopatra's Needle).
Geological Society, 8 p.m. (Mr. C. Lapworth on the Moffatt Series; papers by Mr. W. Shone and Mr. A. B. Wynne).
Society of Arts: beginning of the session (opening address by Mr. William Hawes), 8 p.m.
London Ballad Concert, St. James's Hall, 8 p.m.

THURSDAY, Nov. 22.

St. Paul's Cathedral, noon, confirmations by Bishop Claughton.
South Kensington Museum, 8 p.m. (Mr. Edward Bellamy on Anatomy).
Royal Society, 8.30 p.m.
Norwich Christmas Show Association (three days).
Swindon Agricultural Show (two days).
Royal Albert Hall Choral Society, 8.30 p.m. (Verdi's Requiem).

FRIDAY, Nov. 23.

Sacred Harmonic Society, 7.30 p.m. (Mendelssohn's "St. Paul").
Clinical Society, 8.30 p.m.
Quekett Microscopical Club, 8 p.m.
Architectural Association, 7.30 p.m. (Mr. J. P. St. Aubyn on Cornish Churches).

SATURDAY, Nov. 24.

Botanic Society, 3.45 p.m.
London Athletic Club, St. James's Hall, assault-at-arms.
Bow and Bromley Institute, organ recital, Dr. Spark, 8 p.m.

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE NEW OBSERVATORY OF THE ROYAL SOCIETY.

Lat. 51° 28' 6" N.; Long. 0° 18' 47" W.; Height above Sea, 34 feet.

DAY.	DAILY MEANS OF					THERMOM.		WIND.		Rain in 24 hours, read at 10 A.M. next morning.
	Barometer Corrected.	Temperature of the Air.	Dew Point.	Relative Humidity.	Amount of Cloud.	Maximum, read at 10 P.m.	Minimum, read at 10 P.m.	General Direction.	Movement in 24 hours, read at 10 A.M. next morning.
November	Inches.	°	°	°	0-10	°	°			Miles.	In.
7	29.838	52.4	50.0	92	9	55.6	50.6	S. W. S.W.		240	0.005
8	29.821	48.6	44.0	85	3	55.8	41.5	S.W. S.		180	.085
9	29.801	52.7	51.3	86	10	56.9	47.8	S.		497	1.100
10	29.347	51.1	45.9	84	6	55.0	47.6	S. S.W.		478	1.100
11	29.014	50.3	47.4	91	—	52.2	46.2	S.W. S.		686	1.020
12	28.987	44.6	39.0	83	7	52.8	41.1	S. S.E.		293	.050
13	29.474	41.4	40.7	88	7	48.7	35.7	S.E. S. S.W.		102	0.000

* Hall.

The following are the readings of the meteorological instruments for the above days, in order, at ten o'clock a.m.:

Barometer (in inches) corrected	29.808	29.831	29.787	29.254	29.310	29.323
Temperature of Air	52.6°	46.6°	53.4°	52.7°	50.6°	43.4°
Temperature of Evaporation	51.7°	46.0°	52.4°	49.3°	43.4°	42.4°
Direction of Wind	W.	S.W.	S.	S.	S.	W.W.

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE FOR THE WEEK ENDING NOVEMBER 24.

Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m
10 12	0 31	0 50	1 9	1 28	1 45	2 4
10 12	0 31	0 50	1 9	1 28	1 45	2 4

ST. JAMES'S HALL, PICCADILLY.

THE MOORE and BURGESS MINSTRELS will introduce an ENTIRELY NEW PROGRAMME. The whole of the songs contained in the first or musical portion of the Entertainment will be changed. New Dances, New Whimsicalities, and New Burlesque Sketches. The New Programme will be given.

EVERY NIGHT AT EIGHT, and on MONDAYS, WEDNESDAYS, and SATURDAYS, at THREE and FIVE.
Furniture, &c.: Sofa, Stalls, &c.; Area, &c.; Gallery, &c. Doors open at 2.30 for the Day Performance; at 7.30 for the Evening Performance. No fees. Ladies can retain their bonnets in all parts of the Hall.

EVANS'S, COVENT-GARDEN.—NOTICE.—These celebrated Supper-Rooms are now open for the reception of Ladies. Evans's choir of Boys, specially trained by and under the direction of Mr. F. J. Longmans; and the best available Comic talent. Suppers after the Theatre.—Proprietor, J. B. Amon.

OUR CHRISTMAS NUMBER

(To be Published early in December)

WILL INCLUDE

A TALE BY WILKIE COLLINS,

LARGE COLOURED PICTURE,

AND

NUMEROUS SEASONABLE ILLUSTRATIONS.

PRICE ONE SHILLING.

Postage through the British Isles, THREEPENCE.

No more Advertisements for this Christmas Number can be received.

OFFICE, 198, STRAND, W.C.

POSTAGE OF THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

AT HOME.
The cost of transmission by post within the United Kingdom, including the Channel Islands, is one halfpenny.

ABROAD.	2d.	3d.	4d.	5d.	6d.	7d.	8d.	9d.	10d.	11d.	12d.	13d.	14d.	15d.	16d.	17d.	18d.	19d.	20d.	21d.	22d.	23d.	24d.	25d.	26d.	27d.	28d.	29d.	30d.
Africa, West Coast of	2d.	3d.	4d.	5d.	6d.	7d.	8d.	9d.	10d.	11d.	12d.	13d.	14d.	15d.	16d.	17d.	18d.	19d.	20d.	21d.	22d.	23d.	24d.	25d.	26d.	27d.	28d.	29d.	30d.
Alexandria	2d.	3d.	4d.	5d.	6d.	7d.	8d.	9d.	10d.	11d.	12d.	13d.	14d.	15d.	16d.	17d.	18d.	19d.	20d.	21d.	22d.	23d.	24d.	25d.	26d.	27d.	28d.	29d.	30d.
Australia, via Brindisi	2d.	3d.	4d.	5d.	6d.	7d.	8d.	9d.	10d.	11d.	12d.	13d.	14d.	15d.	16d.	17d.	18d.	19d.	20d.	21d.	22d.	23d.	24d.	25d.	26d.	27d.	28d.	29d.	30d.
India, via Brindisi	2d.	3d.	4d.	5d.	6d.	7d.	8d.	9d.	10d.	11d.	12d.	13d.	14d.	15d.	16d.	17d.	18d.	19d.	20d.	21d.	22d.	23d.	24d.	25d.	26d.	27d.	28d.	29d.	30d.
Italy, via Brindisi	2d.	3d.	4d.	5d.	6d.	7d.	8d.	9d.	10d.	11d.	12d.	13d.	14d.	15d.	16d.	17d.	18d.	19d.	20d.	21d.	22d.	23d.	24d.	25d.	26d.	27d.	28d.	29d.	30d.
Belgium	2d.	3d.	4d.	5d.	6d.	7d.	8d.	9d.	10d.	11d.	12d.	13d.	14d.	15d.	16d.	17d.	18d.	19d.	20d.	21d.	22d.	23d.	24d.	25d.	26d.	27d.	28d.	29d.	30d.
Canada	2d.	3d.	4d.	5d.	6d.	7d.	8d.	9d.	10d.	11d.	12d.	13d.	14d.	15d.	16d.	17d.	18d.	19d.	20d.	21d.	22d.	23d.	24d.	25d.	26d.	27d.	28d.	29d.	30d.
Cape of Good Hope	2d.	3d.	4d.	5d.	6d.	7d.	8d.	9d.	10d.	11d.	12d.	13d.	14d.	15d.	16d.	17d.	18d.	19d.	20d.	21d.	22d.	23d.	24d.	25d.	26d.	27d.	28d.	29d.	30d.
China, via Brindisi	2d.	3d.	4d.	5d.	6d.	7d.	8d.	9d.	10d.	11d.	12d.	13d.	14d.	15d.	16d.	17d.	18d.	19d.	20d.	21d.	22d.	23d.	24d.	25d.	26d.	27d.	28d.	29d.	30d.
Constantinople	2d.	3d.	4d.	5d.	6d.	7d.	8d.	9d.	10d.	11d.	12d.	13d.	14d.	15d.	16d.	17d.	18d.	19d.	20d.	21d.	22d.	23d.	24d.	25d.	26d.	27d.	28d.	29d.	30d.
Denmark	2d.	3d.	4d.	5d.	6d.	7d.	8d.	9d.	10d.	11d.	12d.	13d.	14d.	15d.	16d.	17d.	18d.	19d.	20d.	21d.	22d.	23d.	24d.	25d.	26d.	27d.	28d.	29d.	30d.
France	2d.	3d.	4d.	5d.	6d.	7d.	8d.	9d.	10d.	11d.	12d.	13d.	14d.	15d.	16d.	17d.	18d.	19d.	20d.	21d.	22d.	23d.	24d.	25d.	26d.	27d.	28d.	29d.	30d.
Germany	2d.	3d.	4d.	5d.	6d.	7d.	8d.	9d.	10d.	11d.	12d.	13d.	14d.	15d.	16d.	17d.	18d.	19d.	20d.	21d.	22d.	23d.	24d.	25d.	26d.	27d.	28d.	29d.	30d.
Spain	2d.	3d.	4d.	5d.	6d.	7d.	8d.	9d.	10d.	11d.	12d.	13d.	14d.	15d.	16d.	17d.	18d.	19d.	20d.	21d.	22d.	23d.	24d.	25d.	26d.	27d.	28d.	29d.	30d.
Sweden	2d.	3d.	4d.	5d.	6d.	7d.	8d.	9d.	10d.	11d.	12d.	13d.	14d.	15d.	16d.	17d.	18d.	19d.	20d.	21d.	22d.	23d.	24d.	25d.	26d.	27d.	28d.	29d.	30d.
Switzerland	2d.	3d.	4d.	5d.	6d.	7d.	8d.	9d.	10d.	11d.	12d.	13d.	14d.	15d.	16d.	17d.	18d.	19d.	20d.	21d.	22d.	23d.	24d.	25d.	26d.	27d.	28d.	29d.	30d.
United States	2d.	3d.	4d.	5d.	6d.	7d.	8d.	9d.	10d.	11d.	12d.	13d.	14d.	15d.	16d.	17d.	18d.	19d.	20d.	21d.	22d.	23d.	24d.	25d.	26d.	27d.	28d.	29d.	30d.
West Indies	2d.	3d.	4d.	5d.	6d.	7d.	8d.	9d.	10d.	11d.	12d.	13d.	14d.	15d.	16d.	17d.	18d.	19d.	20d.	21d.	22d.	23d.	24d.	25d.	26d.	27d.	28d.	29d.	30d.

Copies printed on thin paper may be sent to the Colonies and Foreign Countries at half the rates stated above; but their use is not recommended, the appearance of the Engravings being greatly injured by the print at the back showing through.

Newspapers for foreign parts must be posted within eight days of the time of publication.

Now Ready,

PRICE ONE SHILLING (FREE BY POST, 1s. 2d.).

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK

FOR 1878,

CONTAINING

SIX COLOURED PICTURES.

PRINTED BY LEIGHTON BROTHERS' CHROMATIC PROCESS.

TWELVE ILLUSTRATIONS OF THE WAR, FINE ART, &c.

TWELVE ENGRAVINGS AS HEADINGS TO THE CALENDAR.

ASTRONOMICAL DIAGRAM OF REMARKABLE PHENOMENA, WITH EXPLANATORY NOTES.

The Royal Family of Great Britain; the Queen's Household; her Majesty's Ministers; Lists of Government Offices and Officers; Bank of England and London and Westminster Bankers; Law and University Terms; Fixed and Movable Festivals; Anniversaries; Acts of Parliament passed during the Session of 1877; Obituary of Eminent Persons; Christian, Jewish, and Mohammedan Calendars; Tables of Stamp Taxes, and Government Duties; Times of High Water at London and Liverpool; Postal Regulations; Remarkable Occurrences, &c., 1877-78; Eclipses in the Year 1878; together with an amount of useful and valuable information, which has during the past thirty-two years made the ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK an acceptable and elegant companion to the library or drawing-room table.

The unprecedented demand for the ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK year after year stimulates the Proprietor to still greater exertions to secure for this Almanack a reception as favourable as that which has hitherto placed its circulation second only to that of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

The ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK is inclosed in an elegant cover, printed in Colours by the same process as the SIX COLOURED PLATES, and forms a charming and pleasing ornament to the drawing-room table.

The SHILLING ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK is published at the Office of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS, 198, Strand, and sold by all Booksellers and Newsagents.

Now Ready,

THE ILLUSTRATED PENNY ALMANACK for 1878.

Containing Twenty-Four Engravings from the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS—viz. Gates of Constantinople, Forts on the Bosphorus and the Black Sea, Old Modes of Locomotion, &c.; Tables of Stamp Taxes, and Licences; Eclipses, Remarkable Events, Post-Office Regulations, and a great variety of Useful and Interesting Information. The Trade supplied by G. Vickers, Angel-court (172), Strand; and H. Williams, Warwick-lane, Paternoster-row London.

SACRED HARMONIC SOCIETY, EXETER HALL.

Conductor, Sir Michael Costa. FRIDAY NEXT, NOV. 23, Mendelssohn's ST. PAUL. Madame Edith Wynne, Madame Waring; Mr. Vernon Rigby, Mr. Santley, Mr. C. Henry, Mr. De Lacy, Organist, Mr. Welling. Tickets, 3s., 5s., 7s., and 10s. 6d. Subscriptions, 2, 4, and 8 guineas for Ten Concerts.

WEDNESDAY NEXT.—LONDON BALLAD CONCERTS.

ST. JAMES'S HALL.—The first of the four ante-Christmas Concerts, on Wednesday next, at Eight o'clock. The programme will include the following popular songs in addition to several new ballads:—"Should he upbraid" and "When the heart is young" (Mrs. Osgood); "The Better Land" and "The Three Fishers" (Madame Antonette Sterling); "The oak, the ash, and the hony ivy tree," "The Ballad of the Daughter of Leighton," and "Golden Days" (Miss Orridge); "My Queen" and "My pretty Jane" (Mr. Sims Reeves); "Good-night, Beloved," "The anchor is weighed," and "Sweethearts" (Mr. Edward Lloyd); "Blow high, blow low," "Fair is my love," and "The Leather Bottle" (Mr. Santley); "The White Squall" and "South and Age" (Mr. Maybrick); Piano-forte, Miss Margaret Bucknall. The London Vocal Union, under the direction of Mr. Fred. Walker. Conductor, Mr. Sidney Taylor. Stalls, 7s. 6d.; Balcony, 3s.;

Government; the removal of Deputies and Senators from their posts as Mayors; the closing public thoroughfares to the sale of Liberal newspapers; the conversion of Marshal MacMahon into an Electoral Agent; dictating to him Manifestoes which in anticipation resisted the National Will; assuming to govern with the Senate alone, thereby abolishing the representation of the people; and the using of official placards to vilify the Republican Deputies, were, according to the speaker, among the acts which Marshal MacMahon's Ministers would be called upon to justify. The whole speech, though long—occupying, in fact, two hours and a half in delivery—was admirably sustained, and made, as may easily be supposed, a profound impression upon the Chamber.

Assuming—as we think we are safe in doing—that the Parliamentary Commission moved for by M. Albert Grévy will be acceded to by a majority of the Chamber of Deputies; and still further assuming that such Commission will report in terms of censure regarding the Ministerial offences popularly laid to the charge of the De Broglie-Fourtou Cabinet, the question still occurs, What will Marshal MacMahon do? It is rumoured that he has declared his resolution under no circumstances to submit to the majority opposed to him. The authority upon which this rumour rests may be insufficient; the intention of the Marshal, even if thus authentically expressed, may yet be susceptible of change. But it seems to be generally believed that, if the Senate can be persuaded to support his policy, he will proceed to a second dissolution. He is not prepared to resort to a military Coup d'Etat. He is utterly uninstructed in the principles which should regulate a Constitutional Chief Magistrate. But, should the Senate fail him, he will probably resign. The decision of the question lies mainly in the hands of the Orleanist section of the Monarchists, which practically means that the Princes of that Royal House hold in their own hands the immediate destinies of the country. They know well what is meant by Parliamentary Government. They are by no means ignorant of what is involved in an appeal to Universal Suffrage. They may be weak in following up their opinions by correspondent action, but, in this matter, they are not devoid of an enlightened conscience. What the Marshal will ultimately do will in all probability materially depend upon the course pursued by the Orleanists of the Senate. But uncertainty hovers over the decision of these men. Pending the solution of what is still unknown, it is of the last importance that the Republican majority should be as calm and moderate in giving shape to their policy as they are firm in pursuing it. A great many things may be lawful to them which are not just now expedient. They might easily frighten France by a strict exaction of all their rights. They have hitherto restrained themselves with such unflinching self-command that we can hardly entertain a doubt as to their future behaviour. Moderation is still the weapon with which they can best meet the enemies of the Republic. With it they have hitherto acquired, and even increased, the confidence of French electors. Their patience under provocation has fully repaid them. Perseverance in the same course will frustrate the most astute plans of their political adversaries. Let them consult and follow the course commended to them by reason and history, and they will assuredly succeed in establishing upon a lasting basis that form of government which, under existing circumstances, is best adapted to secure and to extend the wellbeing of the French people.

THE COURT.

The Queen and Princess Beatrice went to Abergeldie on the morning of the Prince of Wales's birthday to congratulate the Princess of Wales. The Princess, with her daughters, afterwards lunched with her Majesty at Balmoral Castle; after which the Queen, accompanied by the Princess, Princess Beatrice, and Princesses Louise Victoria and Maud of Wales, went to the ball-room, where were assembled the ladies and gentlemen, and the servants and tenants of Balmoral, and drank to the health of the Prince of Wales. Major Bainbridge and Lieutenant Duckett and Toogood, of the 21st Royal Scots Fusiliers, at Ballater, were invited to luncheon at the castle, and were afterwards received by her Majesty. The Queen attended Divine service on Sunday, performed at the castle by the Rev. Dr. Scott, of Greenside Church, Edinburgh. Her Majesty and the Princess of Wales frequently interchange visits. The Queen, with Princess Beatrice, has driven to the Linn of Dee, Allan Quhich, and other picturesque localities. Sir John and Lady Clark have dined with her Majesty. Mr. W. D. Campbell has left Balmoral. The Queen has appointed Major Henry Brackenbury one of her Majesty's Honourable Corps of Gentlemen at Arms, vice W. F. Portlock Dadson, resigned on appointment to the Colonial Service.

The following were the orders for the Court's going into mourning on Thursday last for the late Queen Dowager of Saxony, viz. :—

The ladies to wear black dresses, white gloves, black or white shoes, feathers, and fans, pearls, diamonds, or plain gold or silver ornaments. The gentlemen to wear black Court dress, with black swords and buckles. The Court to change the mourning on Thursday, the 20th inst., viz. :—The ladies to wear black dresses, with coloured ribbons, flowers, feathers, and ornaments, or grey or white dresses, with black ribbons, flowers, feathers, and ornaments.

The gentlemen to continue the same mourning. And on Thursday, Dec. 6 next, the Court to go out of mourning.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

The anniversary of the birthday of the Prince of Wales yesterday week was observed with the usual honours in the metropolis and at Windsor. His Royal Highness's tradesmen held their nineteenth anniversary dinner in honour of the birthday at Willis's Rooms, when upwards of two hundred dined. The customary illuminations were made. The Duke of Cambridge and the Maharajah Dhuleep Singh terminated their visit to the Prince last Saturday, and left Sandringham; after which his Royal Highness and the Crown Prince of Hanover drove to the meet of the West

Norfolk hounds at Congham House, the seat of Mr. R. Elwes, where was a large muster of members of the hunt. Their Royal Highnesses joined in the chase. The Duke of Teck arrived at Sandringham on a visit. The Prince left Sandringham on Monday and proceeded to Merton, on a visit to Lord and Lady Walsingham. Among the guests invited to meet his Royal Highness were the Maharajah Dhuleep Singh and Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar, and the Countess of Dornberg. The Crown Prince of Hanover, accompanied by the Duke of Teck, left Sandringham for Cambridge, en route for London.

The Princess of Wales, with her daughters, continues at Abergeldie Castle. The Medical Examiner reports:—"Miss Knollys is still progressing satisfactorily, the temperature having been normal since the evening of the 7th inst., and no new symptoms having arisen. Miss Knollys enjoys long stretches of calm sleep, and her strength is daily improving, though she still shows signs of having been much shaken by the fever and relapse. Mr. Oscar Clayton, who is still in constant attendance, hopes to be able to allow Miss Knollys to accompany the Princess of Wales to London early next week."

The Prince of Wales has consented to preside at a dinner to be held in March next in aid of the funds of the Princess Mary's Village Homes for Little Girls, situated at Addlestone, Surrey. Upwards of 150 little girls are now in these homes.

Princess Louise of Lorne and the Marquis of Lorne were present on Tuesday at a performance of "The Messiah," given at the opening of the new public halls, Glasgow. Before the oratorio commenced the Princess was presented with a handsome casket, containing a photograph of the building and an illuminated programme.

The Duke of Connaught has visited the Presentation Convent and the Christian Brothers' Schools at Fermoy.

The Crown Prince of Hanover left the Alexandra Hotel on Wednesday on a visit to Earl Brownlow at Ashbridge. The Duke and Duchess of Teck accompanied him to Ashbridge.

His Excellency the Turkish Ambassador and Mdle. Musurus have returned to town from Petersham.

His Excellency the Danish Minister and Madame de Bülow are at Vale Royal on a visit to Lord and Lady Delamere.

His Excellency the United States Minister and Mrs. Pierpont have left Cavendish-square for Chatsworth, on a visit to the Duke of Devonshire.

His Excellency the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland and the Duchess of Marlborough have left Dublin for Dromoland, in the county of Clare, the seat of Lord Inchiquin.

FASHIONABLE MARRIAGES.

The marriage of Captain the Hon. C. Compton W. Cavendish, 10th Hussars, eldest son of Lord Chesham, and the Lady Beatrice Constance Grosvenor, second daughter of the Duke of Westminster, was solemnised on Tuesday at Eccleston church, near Chester. The bridegroom was accompanied by Captain E. Hartopp (late 10th Hussars), in the unavoidable absence of Lord Charles Beresford, R.N., as best man. The bride, who was given away by her father, came from Eaton Hall with her mother, and was received on her arrival by the Duke of Westminster and her bridesmaids—namely, Lady Margaret Grosvenor, her sister; the Hon. Mary and the Hon. Katharine Cavendish, sisters of the bridegroom; the Hon. Katharine Bagot, Miss Shaw Stewart, and Miss Grenfell. She wore a pearl-white satin dress, covered with point d'Angleterre; a veil of the same fabric over a chaplet wreath of orange-blossoms and myrtle, fastened by the diamond stars presented to her by the Marquis and Marchioness of Ormonde. Her other ornaments were the diamond necklace given by the tenantry on the Eaton estate, the pearl bracelet given by Lady Chesham, and the diamond and pearl locket given her by the inhabitants of Calveley and neighbourhood. The bridesmaids' dresses were jupes of white poul de soie, draped in white cachemire de l'Inde rayé, bordered with white fur, corsages à la vierge, and white bouquets. Each also wore a crystal locket, with a pearl wreath and initials, "B.C.," in light blue enamel, presented by the bridegroom. The service was performed by the Hon. and Rev. Francis R. Grey, Rector of Morpeth, assisted by the Rev. J. G. Longueville, Rector of Eccleston. The Duke and Duchess of Westminster received a party of about eighty guests at breakfast in the Grosvenor wing of Eaton Hall, after which the bride and bridegroom left, escorted by a troop of the Cheshire (Earl of Chester's) Yeomanry Cavalry, of which corps the Duke of Westminster is Lieutenant-Colonel Commandant, for the Chester railway station, and proceeded by the Irish mail on the London and North-Western Railway to Euston-square, which was reached at twenty minutes past six, and afterwards by the Great Western line to Taplow, en route for Cliveden, the noble Duke's residence in Bucks, to pass the honeymoon. Lady Beatrice wore a grey travelling-dress, trimmed with green velvet and silver fox fur, and bonnet to correspond. The wedding presents were very numerous and of great value. The Queen presented Lady Beatrice with an Indian shawl. The Prince of Wales sent a gold bracelet, set with emeralds and pearls; and to Captain Cavendish a silver 10th Hussars inkstand. The Princess of Wales gave the bride a diamond and pearl locket; Princess Christian, a pair of silver Queen Anne candlesticks; and Princess Beatrice, a diamond arrow brooch. The Duke and Duchess of Westminster entertained a party of eighty persons at breakfast at the Grosvenor Hotel, Chester, and at night gave a ball, in celebration of the event of the day, at the hotel, to about 400 guests. There was a dinner party, covers being laid for sixty, at the same hotel on Monday.

A marriage is arranged to take place between Viscount Dalrymple, eldest son of the Earl of Stair, and Miss Susan Grant Suttie, daughter of Colonel and Lady Susan Grant Suttie.

Mr. Charles Hall has been appointed Attorney-General to the Prince of Wales, in place of the Hon. A. Thesiger, recently raised to the Appeal Court.

The Scottish Chamber of Agriculture have resolved to request the Government to introduce a bill to abolish the Law of Hypothec.

Two shorthorn heifers purchased by Mr. Holford, of Market Harborough, for £5300 at Quebec, arrived in the Mersey on Monday.

The 241st anniversary of the birth of Edward Colston, the philanthropist, was celebrated in Bristol on Tuesday by the customary gatherings of the Anchor (Liberal), the Dolphin (Conservative), and the Grateful (neutral) societies.

The Liverpool School Board has declined to sanction an agreement by the District Education Committee to allow a person to employ children, under certain conditions, in pantomime performances during the coming season.

A severe thunderstorm visited Manchester on Wednesday evening. The storm lasted about half an hour, and after it came a heavy shower of rain, which, however, did not continue long. Several buildings were struck by the lightning.

PROVINCIAL MAYORS.

The following gentlemen have been elected Mayors of the boroughs in England and Wales :—

Aberavon—T. E. Jones
Aberystwith—M. O. Roberts
Arundel—Ald. W. W. Mitchell
Ashton-under-Lyne—G. H. Mellor, re-elected Banbury—P. Tanner, re-elected
Barnsley—Ald. J. S. Parkinson, 3rd time
Barnstaple—C. S. Willsher, re-elected
Barrow-in-Furness—Alderman H. W. Schneider, re-elected Bath—Alderman Murch, re-elected
Batley—Councillor H. Brook
Beaumaris—Ald. Wynne Jones
Bedford—John Usher Taylor
Berwick—Alderman Darling
Beverly—Alderman A. Crosskill
Bewdley—R. A. Pardoe
Bideford—Alderman Joyce
Birmingham—Councillor W. Kenrick
Blackburn—Ald. James Dickenson
Bolton—E. Crabb
Bolton—Ald. James Greenhalgh
Bootle—Alderman Heints
Boston—James Thomas
Bradford—Briggs Priestly
Bridgewater—T. Collins
Brighton—Alderman J. E. Mayall
Bristol—Ald. Edwards, re-elected
Buckingham—T. Ridgway, re-elected
Burnley—Alderman W. Robinson
Bury—Mr. Duckworth, re-elected
Bury St. Edmund's—J. Watlington, 3rd time
Cambridge—T. H. Naylor, 2nd time
Canterbury—Captain T. Lambert
Cardiff—Alderman Taylor
Carlisle—Samuel Jackson Binning
Carmarthen—T. Thomas
Carnarvon—Councillor Pugh, re-elected
Chester—Councillor W. Farish
Chesterfield—Councillor Drabble
Colchester—T. May
Congleton—D. Bradwell, 3rd time
Conway—Alderman Ward
Crewe—Ald. J. Atkinson, re-elected
Darlington—Theodore Fry
Dartmouth—Sir H. Seale
Denbigh—Alderman T. Gee
Derby—H. H. Bemrose, re-elected
Devonport—J. W. Ryder
Dewsbury—Alderman R. Greenwood
Doncaster—R. C. Bentley, 3rd time
Dorchester—Dr. Aldridge
Dover—Alderman Court
Droitwich—John Holyoake
Dudley—W. North
Durham—E. Peel
Evesham—G. H. Garrard
Exeter—H. D. Thomas
Falmouth—T. Webber, 3rd time
Farnham—L. Shrubsole, 2nd time
Flint—Ald. R. Mueser, re-elected
Gateshead—J. W. Robinson
Gloucester—Alderman J. Murrell
Godalming—Alderman Yate
Godmanchester—Ald. Freshfield
Gravesend—M. A. Troughton, J.P.
Guildford—Algernon Crooke
Halifax—Alderman S. T. Midgley
Hanley—Alderman Gilman
Hartlepool—Ald. J. Groves, 4th time
Harwich—W. Groom
Hastings—Alderman John Howell
Haverfordwest—W. Williams
Hereford—W. Stillard
Hertford—Dr. W. Warren
Honiton—Alderman Knight
Huddersfield—Alderman Woodhead
Hull—R. Waller
Huntingdon—B. Brown
Hythe—J. B. Mackesson, 5th time
Ipswich—C. H. Cowell
Kidderminster—J. J. Harvey
King's Lynn—W. Thompson*
Lancaster—Abraham Seward
Launceston—Dr. D. Thompson
Leamington—Councillor W. Harding

Leeds—Councillor Carbutt
Leicester—Councillor C. Stretton
Leominster—S. Goode
Lichfield—Alderman John Bown
Lincoln—Councillor Cottingham
Liverpool—Arthur B. Forwood
Liskeard—S. Jenkin
Llanidloes—R. Jones
Longton—W. Cooper
Louth—H. D. Simpson, re-elected
Ludlow—Councillor Ernest Davies
Luton—J. Cumberland
Macclesfield—J. W. White
Manchester—Alderman Grunly
Maldon—William Humphreys
Middlesbrough—Samuel A. Sadler
Monmouth—Joseph Coates
Neath—R. W. Bartlett
Newbury—Councillor C. S. Slocock
Newark—Becher Tidd Pratt
Newcastle (Staff.)—Ald. W. Mellard
Newcastle-on-Tyne—T. Robinson
Newport (Isle of Wight)—Ald. Pittis
Newport (Monmouthshire)—J. Moses
Norwich—J. D. Smith
Nottingham—William George Ward
Oldham—Alderman Bodden
Oswestry—John Thomas
Oxford—Alderman Cavell, 2nd time
Pembroke—J. P. Adams
Penzance—Charles Campbell Ross
Perryn—James Martin
Peterborough—Dr. W. Paley
Plymouth—Joseph Willis
Poole—A. Balston, re-elected
Portsmouth—William David King
Preston—Councillor John Satterthwaite
Reading—Councillor James Silver
Reigate—Alderman Edward Lamber
Retford—John Curtis
Ripon—Ald. Collinson, re-elected
Rochdale—Councillor Jas. Tweedale
Rochester—G. Booth
Rotherham—J. C. Morgan
Ruthin—M. Louis
Ryde—Alderman Barrow, 4th time
Salford—Ald. Walsley, re-elected
Salisbury—R. M. Wilson
Scarborough—B. Smith
Sheffield—F. T. Mappin
Shrewsbury—Ald. R. H. L. Burton
South Molton—Councillor J. Gallford
South Shields—Ald. J. Brodick Dale
Southampton—A. L. McCalmont
Stafford—John Averil
Stamford—H. T. Betts
Stratford-on-Avon—H. W. Newton
3rd time
Stockton—Ald. Joseph Richardson
St. Albans—Dr. R. H. Prior
St. Ives—Mr. Grace
Stalybridge—T. Harrison
Sunderland—Ald. S. Storey, re-elected
Swansea—Mr. Thomas
Taunton—Norman Macfie
Taunton—Myers Jacobs
Tenby—Alderman Smith
Tewkesbury—J. T. Prosser
Torrington—James Baldson
Totnes—Alderman Roe, re-elected
Wakfield—Alderman W. H. Stewart
Wallingford—Alderman R. Deacon
Walsall—Alderman W. Bayliss
Warwick—Dr. John Tibbets
West Hartlepool—Alderman Groves
Weshpool—S. Davies
Weymouth—John Lyndie
Wigan—Alderman Walter Mayhew
Winchester—J. T. Clifton
Windsor—James Dewe, re-elected
Wishbach—Councillor C. Gane, re-elected
Wolverhampton—David Kendrick
Worcester—Francis Dingle
Wrexham—Alderman J. C. Owen
Wycombe—W. Phillips
Yarmouth—C. Diver
Yeovil—John Curtis
York—Ald. W. Vary (Lord Mayor)

* At King's Lynn Mr. Alderman Smetham (C) was for the sixth time elected Mayor, but he refused to serve, and Mr. W. Thompson (Independent) was unanimously chosen in his stead.

At the election for Mayor of the borough of East Retford both parties in the council were equally divided, and the two aspirants to the office of chief magistrate, Mr. Alderman Jenkinson and Mr. Councillor Curtis, agreed to toss, the conditions being "best two out of three." Councillor Curtis won, and he was unanimously declared Mayor for the ensuing year.

The Mayor of Stratford-on-Avon having entered on his third year of office, the only instance on record since the granting of the municipal charter by Charles II., was presented yesterday week with a loving-cup, costing sixty guineas, subscribed by the members of the council.

Sir Richard Bulkeley, High Sheriff of Anglesey, who was perpetual Mayor of Conway until the borough adopted the Municipal Act, has presented the Town Council with a mayoral gold chain of office, and a badge set in pearls, rubies, and emeralds.

At a meeting of the Edinburgh Town Council yesterday week Mr. Thomas Jamieson Boyd, of the firm of Messrs. Oliver and Boyd, publishers, was elected Lord Provost by a majority of twenty-four to thirteen.

At the first meeting of the newly constituted Town Council of Glasgow yesterday week Bailie Collins, the principal of the well-known publishing firm of Collins and Sons, Glasgow and London, was unanimously elected Lord Provost of Glasgow. He has been for many years leader of the temperance party in Glasgow and the west of Scotland.

THE BLACKBURN MAYOR'S BADGE AND CHAIN.

These very handsome decorations of a Lancashire municipal dignitary have been manufactured by Messrs. Hunt and Roskell, of New Bond-street, for Mr. Joseph Harrison, J.P. and D.L., of Galligraeves Hall, who has presented them to the Corporation of Blackburn. The chain, 42 in. in length, which sustains the badge, is formed of massive square links, on the backs of which are engraved the names of the Mayors since the incorporation of the borough in 1851. In the centre of the chain are the full arms of her Majesty, richly enamelled in the proper heraldic colours, and on either side appear the arms of the Duchy of Lancaster and of Edward the Confessor. From the centre depends the badge, which consists of a shield with enamelled arms of the borough of Blackburn surmounted by the crest, the whole surrounded by a wreath of oak and laurel. The Prince of Wales's plume, coronet, and motto, carved in gold, serve as a loop to the badge to attach it to the chain. The enamelled ribbon intertwining the wreaths bears the following legends:—"Eduardus Rex et Confessor, Dominus maneri et villæ, A.D. 1050;" and "Hic Burgus incorporatus fuit, regnante Victoria, A.D. 1851," and the ribbon below the arms carries the very appropriate motto of the borough, "Arte et labore." Beautifully engraved on the back of the badge is the following commemorative inscription:—"A.D. 1876, and in the fortieth year of the reign of her Majesty Queen Victoria, this badge and chain were presented to the Mayor, Aldermen, and Burgesses of the loyal Corporation of the ancient town of Blackburn, by Joseph Harrison, Esq., of Galligraeves Hall, in which Blackburn, a Justice of the Peace and Deputy-Lieutenant of this county, for the use of the said Mayor for the time being, and in hearty thanks to Almighty God for the safe and happy return from India of H.R.H. Albert Edward, Prince of Wales, K.G., &c., on the 11th day of May, in the present year. God save the Queen."

M. GRÉVY, PRESIDENT OF THE FRENCH CHAMBER OF DEPUTIES.

THE PRESIDENT OF THE FRENCH CHAMBER.

The newly-returned Chamber of Deputies in France has re-elected its former President, M. Jules Grévy, by a majority of 229 votes against 159, which is one way of signifying that it is a continuation of the late Chamber, in spite of Marshal MacMahon's appeal to the suffrages of the nation. M. Jules Grévy is a firm, but sober and temperate, Liberal of proved ability and judgment, in whom both M. Thiers and M. Gambetta had agreed to put their confidence, and who is now regarded as the most eligible person to succeed Marshal MacMahon in the Presidency of the Republic. On Monday last, at the meeting of the Chamber, M. Jules Grévy took his seat as President of that Assembly, and shortly returned thanks for the confirmation of his election. A task of great responsibility was imposed upon him, and he would endeavour to fulfil it with firmness and moderation, as he was sure the Chamber would do theirs, taking example from the admirable calmness and prudence of the country in expressing its sovereign will. This brief speech was received with long-continued plaudits from three fourths of the benches, the Right remaining silent. After some formal notices, the great Parliamentary struggle began. The brother of the President, M. Albert Grévy, mounted the tribune to commence that uncompromising assault upon the Government of May 16 which the Left has matured in private committee, and the secret of which has been so well kept that the Ministers had no idea of the form in which it would be made. The speaker, very like his brother, the President, but much younger, has a good voice, with a dignified manner, equal to the occasion, and in most impressive tones he read what in reality is a bill of indictment against the Ministers. He moved the following resolution:—"Considering that the elections of Oct. 14 and 28 were carried on in a manner which imposes exceptional duties on the Chamber in order to protect universal suffrage, from which it issues, considering that during five months the law was systematically violated, and that every species of illegality was crowned by the scandal of official candidatures, and acts of pressure which revolted the public conscience—the Chamber therefore resolves, and it is hereby decreed, that a committee of thirty members elected in the bureaux shall be charged to institute an inquiry into all the acts of pressure since May 15. It will be invested with the fullest powers, will have a right to call for the papers relating to every election, and to propose such comminatory measures as it may deem fit." In a short but most effective speech supporting the resolutions, M. Albert Grévy said it was necessary that all the criminal acts of those who for five months had been in open rebellion against the country should be collected, so that right might be done upon them. The criminals were the agents of those Ministers who yet stuck to their places. Those Ministers had treated France as a conquered province. The hour had now come for them to be brought to account. The country must be restored to its proper position of master against rebellious servants. The country had done its duty, and it was now for its representatives to do theirs. This speech was greeted with vehement applause. The President of the Ministry, the Duc de Broglie, with manifest anger and vexation, affected to brave out the accusation. With much indignant gesticulation, he declared that the Government was more anxious than anybody for full inquiry, and he desired that it might be rapidly concluded. Only he would perhaps wish for more impartial judges than he was likely to get then. Travelling out of the record, he used a tu quoque argument from the pressure on the constituencies which M. Gambetta attempted to exercise at Bordeaux seven years ago. He would hereafter discuss the strange theory of those who pretended that two of the powers instituted by the Constitution were bound immediately to give way to the third. The Chamber retired to its bureau to elect the committee, which met immediately, and drew up a report adopting Albert Grévy's resolutions. The debate upon this report has continued from day to day this week. M. Léon Renault, on Tuesday, delivered a powerful speech against the Ministry. On Wednesday the chief speaker was M. de Fourtou, the Minister of Justice, who denounced the part played by the Opposition during the recent elections, and showed that during the revolution of 1848, and under the Empire, the French had admitted the principle of official candidatures. He reminded the Opposition also that the Constitution was a compromise, and defended the action of the Government in removing prefects. After some personal explanations, M. Jules Ferry made an animated speech in reply to the Minister. He contended that the Republic was menaced, inasmuch as the Republican Deputies had been excluded from the official candidatures. When the debate was again adjourned, it was expected that the Duc de Broglie would speak on Thursday, and that M. Gambetta would answer him. It was uncertain whether M. Rouher would take part in the debate. The position of M. Jules Grévy, in presiding officially, as we now see, over a legislative assembly invited to proceed with the impeachment of the Executive Government, is one of the utmost gravity; but he is reputed to be fully equal to it. His own expressed desire is that Marshal MacMahon should summon a Liberal Ministry and should remain President of the Republic till 1880.

BADGE AND CHAIN FOR THE MAYOR OF BLACKBURN.

SKETCHES OF THE WAR, BY OUR SPECIAL ARTISTS.

Our Portrait of M. Jules Grévy is from a photograph by Franck, of the Rue Vivienne, Paris.

THE WAR.

There is not much news of importance from the seat of war, either in Bulgaria or Armenia, during the past week. The Russians have completed their circle of military positions all round Osman Pasha's defensive fortified camp at Plevna. Their victories on the upper stream of the Vid, above that town, and their capture of Gorny Dubnik, Telis, and Dolny Dubnik, from the 24th ult. to the 1st inst., have closed the western road to supplies coming from Orkhanieh and Sophia. We give two illustrations, from sketches by our Special Artist with the Russian division operating in that direction, which relate to the battle of the 24th ult. at Dolny Dubnik. That victory was dearly purchased by the Russian army. The glory of the day belonged to the infantry Guards, who suffered, however, terrible losses. Of the four regiments forming the second division, commanded by Count Paul Schouvaloff, a brother of the Ambassador, nearly sixty officers were either wounded or killed. The Pavlovsk and the Finnish Guards had each to bemoan a loss of eighteen officers. Of the Guard Chasseurs, leading the first attack, seven officers were killed and eighteen wounded. The whole loss amounts to 2500 men and nearly one hundred officers, whilst about 7000 Turks, with their commander, Ahmed Hifzi Pasha, were killed, wounded, or taken prisoners. The greater part of the Russian nobility are placed in mourning by the sacrifice made in storming the Turkish positions. On the 28th or 29th ult. the Turkish force entrenched at Telis surrendered after a cannonade of two hours. Between 4000 and 5000 prisoners were taken, making a loss of 10,000 men for the Turks on the Sofia road during the past five days. The Russian loss on that day at Telis was only sixteen men killed and wounded, whereas they lost over 1000 at the same place five days before. The easy surrender of this force is somewhat suggestive of a state of demoralisation among part, at least, of the Turkish forces. Osman Pasha is believed to have 50,000 good troops in Plevna, and there are 25,000 men of all sorts at Orkhanieh under the command of Mahomet Ali Pasha, who has superseded Chevket Pasha.

The Pasha captured at Gorny Dubnik declares there are four months' supplies in Plevna, but no one believes this statement; and, according to all present appearances, it is probable that the fate of Osman Pasha's army will be decided within the next fortnight. The citadel of Plevna is on a rocky height north-west of the town, rising 700 ft. above the valley, and crowned with four strong earthworks. It speaks volumes for the tenacity of the Moslem soldier that he has held the trenches around Plevna for fifty-two days with shells liable to burst around him at every moment, and scarcely answering with his own guns. There is no more difficult thing for a soldier to endure than sitting still and being fired at without replying, and the Turks have certainly stood this test admirably.

It was lately announced that the head-quarters of the Emperor and of the Grand Duke Nicholas have been shifted from Gorny Studen to Poradim, in the immediate vicinity of the batteries that have been prepared to bombard the Ottoman redoubts on the hills above Gravitz and the valleys below Radichevo. The sketches which fill one page of this Number represent a view of the Russian bombardment of Plevna; on the 25th ult., a train of forage-waggons, with camp followers mounted upon the hay or corn, stopping for a look at the bombardment; and Prince Charles of Roumania, with his escort or guard of honour, going to visit the Imperial head-quarters at Poradim. One of the illustrations in our Supplement shows the interior of the most advanced Russian earthworks, held by troops of the Fourth Division, with the Times' Correspondent, Mr. R. Coningsby, and Mr. Irving Montagu, our Special Artist, standing there among the soldiers, two of whom are wounded; the officer in command is leaning on the breastwork, inspecting with his field-glass the Turkish positions.

There is no news of the Turkish army on the Lom. From the slopes of the Balkans east of Tirnova a Russian report comes that on Friday a Turkish force, consisting of from 3000 to 4000 men, with some mountain guns, attacked the positions held by the Sowsky infantry regiment at Marian, beyond Elena, but was repulsed with great loss after three hours' fighting. The Turks left about one hundred dead and many wounded on the field. The Russian loss was insignificant.

It is said that Suleiman Pasha has been recalled from his command of the army on the Lom, in order to take charge of a new army to be formed in Roumelia for the defence of Adrianople. His rivals, as hitherto considered, Raouf Pasha and Mahomet Ali Pasha, are now both employed—the one in the Shipka Pass, the other at Orkhanieh, in supporting the resistance still made in Bulgaria to the Russian invasion. We give a portrait of Raouf Pasha; and our Special Artist in the Shipka Pass, Mr. J. Bell, has sent us a number of sketches on the Turkish side.

The distribution of charitable relief, by the agents of the Turkish Compassionate Fund, to a large number of destitute women and children at Shumla, is the subject of an illustration. We can identify the several persons who appear seated at the table, and on the divan close to the wall, at the left-hand side of our Engraving. The Cadi, or Mohammedan local magistrate, wearing a turban and loose gown, sits with his hands in his lap; at his right hand sits the president of the Medjlise, or municipal council, with a pen and a book, to record the proceedings. Two English gentlemen, Captain Syngé and Colonel Inglis, are seated close to the window. At the corner of the table sits another European, bareheaded, with an eye-glass at his right eye, and wearing a courier's bag suspended by a strap over his shoulder. This is M.

Jourdan, the Daily Telegraph Special Commissioner for the distribution of the fund there. It is stated in the official report that large quantities of made-up clothing, for which money was advanced by Mr. Layard, have been received; and, as soon as the arrangements in the store-office are complete, they will be issued to various districts, the chief demand at present being for clothing. A hospital and soup-kitchen has been opened at Tchamlaja, a suburb of Scutari, on the Asiatic side, opposite Constantinople. This hospital is under Mr. Layard's immediate supervision; but can, if successful, be imitated elsewhere. A special agent is about to proceed to Orkhanieh, Tatar Bazardjik, Philippopolis, and Adrianople to ascertain the number of fugitives at each place. He will also inquire into the different systems of relief adopted by the several committees, and where no organisation exists, as at Orkhanieh and Tatar Bazardjik, he will establish a centre of relief. From his report, it is hoped that some idea can be formed of the extent of relief required, and the probable amount that the necessities of the winter months will demand. A large consignment (over £100 worth) of warm goods for clothing, with needles and thread, has been sent to Eski Zagra, to enable the poor refugees in the district of Kesanlik, mentioned in Colonel Blunt's letter, to clothe themselves.

The scene of campaigning experience which is delineated in the large Engraving presented this week for our Extra Supplement was sketched a few weeks since by Mr. Melton Prior, lately our Special Artist with the Turkish army on the Lom. It represents a portion of that force in the act of shifting its position from Sinankeui to Kaceljevo, places to be remembered for the battles fought there in August and September, of which Mr. Prior furnished sundry sketches to this Journal. The weather at that time was very bad, with many days' heavy rain, like that shown in the present sketch; the roads were so deep in mud that the horses could not draw the guns at all, and they had to be unharnessed, and the guns dragged by large numbers of soldiery. It is a most uncomfortable scene; but the figures, their faces and gestures, as well as their uniforms, cloaks, and other dress, are characteristic, and accurately drawn from the life. The man with the bugle, on the rising ground to the left, is sounding a signal for the troops to hurry up. In the middle background is a well, furnished with one of those curious tall levers, and long rope to raise bucket, which are common throughout the Danubian provinces.

The figure of a Turkish outpost man, in the Engraving on our front page, is a Bashi-Bazouk, or irregular fighting man, from some part of Asiatic Turkey. Our recent news of the war in Armenia does not appear so decisive as was expected a fortnight ago. Mukhtar Pasha has not surrendered or abandoned the city of Erzeroum, though he suffered more than one severe defeat in his forced retreat thither, and his army was terribly cut up, on the 4th inst., when driven from the Deve Boyun heights, six miles from Erzeroum, by Generals Heimann and Tergukasoff. A Russian attack on the 9th (yesterday week) seems to have failed, and cost the Russians six hundred men. The renewed bombardment of Kars, also, by General Loris Melikoff and General Lazareff, does not appear likely to prove more successful than on former occasions.

The Montenegrins have captured Antivari, and laid siege to Podgoritzza.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL NEWS.

FRANCE.

Last Saturday the Chamber of Deputies proceeded to the election of its bureaux. M. Jules Grévy was chosen President by an overwhelming majority; and MM. Lepère, Rameau, and Bethmont, of the Left, and MM. Dufort and Civrac, of the Right, were chosen vice-presidents. M. de Civrac, being a Legitimist, was only elected on a second ballot, the Left declining to vote for him simultaneously with his colleagues, in order that he might not, by the joint suffrages of both sides, get a higher number than the rest of the bureau.

The Chamber of Deputies on Monday took the first step in the performance of a grave duty. In the midst of profound silence, while every bench in the Assembly was crowded with occupants, M. Albert Grévy, the brother of its President, mounted the tribune and proposed a Resolution for the appointment of a Commission to inquire into and report upon the means employed in the late elections to distort the expression of the national will. Some particulars of the proceedings of the Chamber on this day and on subsequent days will be found at page 468.

The death of the Marquis de Francieu, Legitimist member of the Senate, is announced.

According to the Census taken in 1876, the population of France was 36,905,788, an increase since 1872 of 802,867.

SPAIN.

Queen Isabella left Madrid for Paris on Tuesday. Her three daughters remain with the Princess of the Asturias.

The Minister of Finance has completed a contract for an advance of one million and a quarter sterling from Spanish bankers, at 9 per cent interest, receiving half in cash and half in coupons falling due in January.

A Royal decree subjects the Basque Provinces to the same direct taxes as the rest of Spain.

ITALY.

Some Ministerial changes are reported from Rome. Signor Zanardelli, Minister of Public Works, has tendered his resignation; and Signor Depretis, the President of the Council, takes charge of the department provisionally. Signor Ronchetti, Under-Secretary in the Public Works Department, and the Under-Secretary of Finance have also resigned.

A telegram from Rome announces that the Pope has improved in health, and that he gave several audiences on Tuesday. Pilgrims are again arriving in that city.

Intelligence has reached the Royal Italian Geographical Society that the Marquis Antinori, heading the Italian expedition of discovery in Africa, is dead; and that Chiarini, his fellow-traveller, is a prisoner in Abyssinia.

PORTUGAL.

The King and the Royal family have returned to Lisbon from Oporto. They were cheered by the people at the different stations.

The bridge over the Douro has given great satisfaction. It is considered one of the finest specimens of engineering in Europe. A public subscription has been proposed for the purpose of erecting a monument to the historian Herculano.

The Daily News' correspondent at Lisbon states that the yield of oil, wine, and fruit throughout Portugal is scanty.

DENMARK.

After eleven hours' debate, the Rigsdag has agreed to an understanding with the Government upon the question of provisionally sanctioning the Budget.

A Ministerial order has been published annulling the order of Feb. 10 enacting measures for preventing the introduction of the cattle plague from Great Britain. The prohibition concerning the importation of live cattle, sheep, goats, and pigs remains, however, in force until further notice.

BELGIUM.

The Chambers were opened on Tuesday by the King in person. His Majesty said that Belgium, faithful to her pacific rôle, continues to entertain most amicable relations with all the Powers. The last Census proves that in ten years the increase of population has been 508,000. The number of legislators must therefore be augmented by five senators and ten representatives. The provincial and communal representation must also be increased accordingly. The law for the prevention of electoral frauds will be completed, and unity of electoral legislation established. Public instruction is in a prosperous condition, and sufficient provision for the teaching body of all degrees has been made. The situation of agriculture is satisfactory; and the invasion of the cattle plague has been prevented. Notwithstanding the commercial crisis, Belgian commerce has not declined, and the activity of the ports has increased. Belgian industry will take a part worthy of it at the Paris Exhibition. Belgian art sustains its old reputation. The Civic Guards and the Army answer to the confidence of the country. A bill relative to the organisation of the Civic Guards will be presented this Session. The product of the sale of military lands will be employed in the construction of two forts on the left bank of the Nethe, to secure the defence of the Antwerp roads. Credits for artillery will be demanded. The public revenues, with the exception of the railways, will realise the expectations formed. In the last six years 350,000,000f. have been spent on works of public utility. The execution of new maritime works at Antwerp, commenced on the river Meuse, will soon render it navigable through the whole of Belgian territory. The construction of railways is progressing, notwithstanding the regrettable financial disasters. Belgium will join the other Governments in the question of the simplification of railway tariffs. Postal legislation will be put in harmony with the principles of the postal union. Maritime legislation is to be revised, and a law will be presented regulating responsibility in questions of transport. In questions on which men's minds are divided (his Majesty said) the principles and ideas uniting all should not be forgotten—the love of national autonomy and attachment to constitutional liberties. In two years the fiftieth anniversary of national independence would be celebrated; then the great things accomplished in half a century would be commemorated, and, as to-day, God would be thanked for having always protected their dear fatherland.

AUSTRO-HUNGARY.

We learn from the Standard correspondent at Vienna that the Emperor has ordered his portrait to be painted as a present to Sir A. Buchanan, the British Ambassador.

The Lower House of the Hungarian Diet passed on the 8th inst., by 210 against 109 votes, the motion to adopt the bill for the establishment of the Austro-Hungarian National Bank as a basis for the subsequent debate on the subject.

In Saturday's sitting of the Lower House of the Austrian Reichsrath the Government introduced a bill for ratifying the postal contract with the Austro-Hungarian Lloyd, the general customs tariff, and a bill imposing a consumption tax upon mineral oils. On Tuesday the general debate upon the bills for the establishment of an Austro-Hungarian national bank was begun. The majority of the committee, represented by its reporter, Dr. Giska, proposed the adoption of the draught proposed by the committee, and that with regard to the bill for the settlement of the debt of 80,000,000 florins which the State owes to the National Bank of Austria the House should pass to the order of the day. On the other hand, Herr Schaub, reporter of the minority of the committee, proposed an adjournment of the discussion until the remaining bills in reference to the Austro-Hungarian compromise should have been submitted to the House. Forty members signified their intention to address the Chamber upon the subject.

GREECE.

The Chamber of Deputies proceeded on Wednesday to the election of its bureaux. M. Augerines, who was President during the last Session, was re-elected President. Perfect agreement prevails among the members of the Cabinet.

AMERICA.

A Washington telegram states that a caucus of Republican senators has been held, at which opinions were exchanged showing that the majority were not in accord with the policy of President Hayes in regard to the South and the Civil Service; but there was less than a majority disposed to raise a formal issue with the President on any point.

The Senate Committee on Foreign Relations has reported in favour of the President's nomination of Mr. John Welsh, of Pennsylvania, as Minister to Great Britain; and of Mr. Stevens as Minister to Sweden. Mr. Henry S. Sanford has been nominated to Belgium.

The House of Representatives has passed the Army Appropriation Bill fixing the strength of the military forces of the United States at 20,000 men. The bill provides for stationing four full cavalry regiments on the Rio Grande. The House has also passed the Deficiency Bill, the major portion of the grants it provides being for the navy.

Over two hundred leading public men—bankers, railway presidents, and prominent citizens of New England and the middle Southern States—on the 19th inst. gave a complimentary banquet, at Delmonico's, New York, to Mr. J. S. Morgan, of London. Mr. Samuel J. Tilden presided, making an address, in very complimentary terms, to Mr. Morgan. Among the guests were Mr. John Welsh, the new American Minister to England; the British Consul-General at New York, Mr. Archibald; and Mr. F. R. Plunkett, British Chargé d'Affaires at Washington. The occasion of the banquet was a welcome to Mr. Morgan, after twenty-five years' absence from the United States.

A motion for a new trial in the suit of the Emma Mining Company against Messrs. Park, Baxter, and others to recover 5,000,000 dols., the price of sale of the mine to the London stockholders, was made on Wednesday in the United States Court.

Owing to the prevalence of the cattle plague, the Government has prohibited the importation of hides and cattle from Europe after Dec. 1 next without a consular certificate of non-infection.

A party of Mexicans have entered Texas and attacked a body of Indians belonging to the "reservation" in the United States who had committed depredations in Mexico. They killed six Indians and recovered stock which had been stolen.

INDIA.

From the weekly telegram of the Viceroy of India respecting the famine we learn that the number of persons receiving relief continues to decrease.

The Times of India hears that there will be an installation at Government House, Calcutta, of the new Grand Crosses and Grand Commanders of Knights of the Orders of the Star of India and the Bath on Jan. 1. The ceremonies will not be on a large scale, and native chiefs attending the Chapter will only bring a few followers each.

The Secretary of State for India has ordered the adoption of a complete system of drainage for the city of Madras.

General Kennedy has given an emphatic opinion against the advisability or possibility of the construction of the Madras harbour, and the scheme is to be abandoned.

AUSTRALIA.

A telegram of Australian news dated Sydney, Sept. 29, received by way of Brindisi, states that after the unsuccessful attempts of Mr. Stuart and Mr. Stephen Brown to form a Ministry in New South Wales, the Governor decided to dissolve Parliament whether supply were obtained or not. The Robertson Ministry, whose resignation was accepted upon condition of another Government being formed, remain in power, and intend to ask the House to pass an Appropriation Bill, or two months' supply, before the dissolution.

A despatch from Melbourne, dated Oct. 4, says that active preparations are being made for a thorough representation of the colony at the Paris Exhibition. It is contemplated to hold an international exhibition at Melbourne, to which the Prince of Wales will be formally invited.

Sir William Jervois had arrived at Adelaide, and was sworn in on Oct. 2. The crop prospects are said to be splendid in South Australia.

The Turkish Government have exiled the Messrs. Geshoff to Asia Minor.

The gorilla recently exhibited at the Westminster Aquarium died at Berlin on Tuesday.

The Queen Dowager Amelia of Saxony, died on the 8th inst., aged seventy-six. She was the twin sister of the late Queen Elizabeth of Prussia.

Her Majesty, by Order in Council, has approved of one Vice-Admiralty Court being established for the Leeward Islands, instead of maintaining the several now existing.

The prospectus of a new Five per Cent Russian Loan has been issued. The amount is £15,000,000, the price of issue 76½, and the loan is to be redeemed at par within thirty-seven years by annual drawings.

Lin Ta-Jen, the late Assistant Chinese Minister at the Court of St. James's, left London on Tuesday morning for Berlin, to which Court he has just been accredited as Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary.

The new iron Clyde-built ship Stirlingshire, 1187 tons, sailed from the tail of the bank, Greenock, on the 8th inst., bound for Brisbane, Queensland. She takes out 130 single men, 109 single women, 74 married people, 55 children between the ages of twelve and one, and 13 infants.

Messrs. Coutts & Co. have forwarded to Constantinople, on behalf of the Turkish Compassionate Fund, a further sum of £2000, making £14,000 sent in cash, besides numerous stores.—The Stafford-House Committee has sent £2000 to Mr. Barrington Kennett for the further relief of the suffering wounded in Asia Minor.

The Queen has approved of Mr. C. Tennant Jones as Consul at Port Elizabeth, with jurisdiction over the eastern part of Cape Colony, for the King of the Netherlands; of Mr. Carlos Jouanis as Consul at Mahe, Seychelles Islands, for the King of Portugal and the Algarves; and of Mr. Robert H. Knox as Consul at Hamilton, Canada, for the United States of America.

The West India mail-steamer Don, which arrived at Southampton on Monday, brings news of a terrific hurricane that passed over Curaçao, causing a loss of nineteen lives and damage to property estimated at 3,500,000 guilders. A tidal disturbance was experienced at Esmeralda, west coast of Colombia, on the 11th ult. A similar phenomenon occurred at Port Buenaventura, with a shock of earthquake, at the same time.

The Pacific mail has brought particulars of an attempt made by Felix Pajés, a Roman Catholic priest, to assassinate General Barrios, the President of Guatemala. Finding Barrios in a room alone and unarmed, Pajés drew a revolver and fired at him. The shot missed, and before he could fire again Barrios sprang at him, and a struggle ensued, during which the President's servant entered the room, seized the revolver, and shot the priest dead.

The Daily News Correspondent at Alexandria telegraphs that the Khedive has offered the Governorship of Durrut to Captain Burton, the British Consul at Trieste. The Standard's correspondent at Alexandria reports that the Khedive is sending Captain Burton to continue his explorations for gold in the land of Midian.—Mr. Alonzo Money, C.B., of the Bengal Civil Service, one of the two members of the Bengal Board of Revenue, has accepted the post of Controller of the Daira of the Khedive. Mr. Money was five years President of the Bank of Bengal.

The silver medal of the first class for gallant conduct in saving life at sea was presented at the Custom House, Jersey, on the 9th inst., to Captain John Allen, by Colonel Dalzell, Deputy Lieutenant-Governor of the island. While on a voyage from Corunna to Portsmouth in the schooner Queen, the vessel was wrecked on the rocks a mile and a half from shore, near Cape Ushant. In spite of a heavy sea, Captain Allen swam ashore and got assistance, by which the whole of the crew were saved, and also his wife, who was on board, but not before the vessel had broken up and all had been carried on to a ledge of rocks, much bruised and injured.

Dr. George Macdonald, the author of many novels and poems, has been awarded £100 a year on the Civil List.

At a meeting of the executive committee of the Indian Famine Relief Fund held on Monday at the Mansion House, it was reported that the fund amounted to £461,000, of which £445,000 had been already remitted to India. A telegram from the Madras Committee was read, which stated that in all £680,000 had been received from Great Britain, Australia, New Zealand, Mauritius, and the non-distressed portions of India, and this would enable the committee to meet all probable demands. The committee remitted a further sum of £20,000 to India; ordered the vote of thanks accorded on the last occasion to the late Lord Mayor to be emblazoned and presented to him; and made arrangements for the auditing of the fund by Messrs. Turquand, Young, and Co., accountants. The Earl of Northbrook, late Viceroy of India, in a letter to the Lord Mayor, congratulates his Lordship on the complete success of the subscriptions in aid of the famine in India, and states that he has heard from many quarters of the value of the aid thus given, and of the excellent effect that has been produced in India by this substantial proof of our sympathy with our distressed fellow-subjects in that country.—A meeting was held on Monday at the Cannon-street Hotel to consider the question of pressing upon the Indian Government the necessity of establishing a more extensive system of irrigation. Lieutenant-General Sir A. Cotton, who presided, unfolded a scheme which he believed would economically effect the desired object. He said a Royal Commission on the subject was imperatively required. It was resolved to ask the co-operation of several learned societies especially interested in Indian affairs.

THE CHURCH.

PREFERMENTS AND APPOINTMENTS.

Allen, Robert, to be Incumbent of Christ Church, Eastbourne.
Beckett, John, Vicar of Forthbrook St. Peter, Staffordshire.
Burd, Frederick, Vicar of Cressage; Vicar of Neen Savage.
Connor, G. H.; Honorary Canon of Winchester.
Gardner, George Edward; Perpetual Curate of Holy Trinity, Heworth.
Gore, Canon; Chaplain to the Bishop of Chester.
Graham, G. H.; Curate of Kempsey.
Greive, William Thomas; Perpetual Curate of St. Thomas's, Regent-street.
Heaton, F. A.; Curate of Malpas; Curate of Rayleigh.
Irwin, John J.; Vicar of Thornton-with-Allerthorpe.
McArthur, Charles; Curate of Colleshill.
McNeill, E. H.; Chaplain to the Bishop of Chester.
Robinson, J. C.; Rector of St. Margaret's with St. Peter-le-Willows, York.
Richardson, William James; Vicar of Great Milton, Oxon.
Smith, Thomas, Curate of Bolton Percy; Vicar of St. Helen's, York.
Studdy Studdy, A. F.; Vicar of St. Thomas's, Barrowford, near Preston.
Theobald, Frederick, Vicar of Drayton; Vicar of Stevenon, Berks.
Turner, Richard S.; Rector of Bolas Magna, near Wellington, Shropshire.
Tryon, Arthur W.; Curate of Grantham.
White, George Cosby; Vicar of Newland.—Guardian.

Lord Beaconsfield has appointed Archdeacon Trollope Bishop Suffragan of Nottingham.

Mr. J. Earle Olivant, M.A., of the Inner Temple, has been appointed by the Bishop of Llandaff Chancellor of the diocese.

A memorial window to Lady Augusta Stanley and Lady Matilda Maxwell will be unveiled in Pollokshaw parish church to-morrow (Sunday). The window is the gift of Dean Stanley and Sir William Stirling Maxwell.

The Rev. C. P. Peach, of Appleton-le-Street, near Malton, was on Wednesday elected proctor in the Northern Convocation for the Archdeaconry of Cleveland, in the room of the late Rev. C. Bailey.

Mr. Marten, M.P., addressing a meeting at Cambridge on the relations of the Church of England to the working classes, advocated the providing of free and open churches, and that the churches should be opened early in the morning and remain open all day.

The revisers of the authorised version of the New Testament met on Tuesday in the Jerusalem Chamber, and sat for seven hours. Fourteen members were present, the Bishop of Gloucester and Bristol being in the chair. The company carried on their revision to the end of the first chapter of the 1st Epistle of St. Peter.

The Bishop of Bath and Wells has reopened the parish church of Bruton, which has been thoroughly restored under the direction of Mr. R. H. Carpenter. The total cost of the work has been about £4500. After service a testimonial, consisting of silver plate to the value of £250, was presented to Mr. T. O. Bennett, jun., who had taken great interest in the restoration.

The Bishop of Chester, at his triennial visitation at Liverpool on Tuesday, alluded to the proposed erection of a see there, and said that his consent was conditional upon there being no diversion of existing ecclesiastical endowments from the purposes to which they were now devoted. He thought no smaller sum than £4000 a year should be the income of the new Bishop.

A public meeting, convened by the Vicar of Halifax and the churchwardens, was held in Halifax on Monday—the Bishop of Ripon in the chair—when a resolution was adopted expressing sympathy with the efforts being made to restore the parish church. It was stated that the cost of the proposed renovation was estimated at £10,000, of which sum more than half has been promised in subscriptions.

A memorial of Charlotte Prescott, who died last year at Mentone, sister of the Vicar of the parish, has been placed, through the kindness of a friend, in the Church of St. Leonard, Priors Marston, Warwickshire. It consists of the porch and south-west windows, filled with painted glass representing various Scriptural subjects, by Lavers and Barraud; and also of one of the new hearse biers which was exhibited lately at the Croydon Congress by Mr. Lyne.

On All Saints' Day the Bishop of Lichfield consecrated a new church at Peak Forest, built by the Duke of Devonshire, to replace the old church, dedicated to King Charles the Martyr, which had fallen into a dilapidated condition. It is from designs of Mr. Henry Cockbain. On the north side of the chancel is the Needham Chapel, built by Mr. Needham, of Rushop, the representative of a family of benefactors to the former church. The reredos, which is the gift of Mr. Needham, and is of Hollington stone, with marble shafts, is enriched with emblematic floral carvings and relieved with gold and colour. The clock, striking hours and half hours, is the gift of Lord George Cavendish. The church provides accommodation for about 300 worshippers.

Lord Leconfield has published in the Sussex Express the following explanation:—"It is reported that I have given a sum of £10,000 towards the Irish Church funds, and that I had now further supplemented that donation by a sum of £15,000. This is inaccurate, and is not the only inaccurate report that has appeared on this subject. The Irish Church Commissioners, under the powers conferred upon them by the Irish Church Act, awarded me a sum of about £20,000, as compensation for the loss of patronage of several livings I sustained under that Act. This sum I divided, partly among the parishes in which I held property, for Church purposes; and the remainder I gave to the diocesan funds of the two dioceses of Clare and Limerick. The portion allotted to the parishes and dioceses of Clare was about £15,000. This was carried out some two years ago, and is the only contribution that I have given towards the funds of the Irish Church."

At the meeting of the Scottish Episcopal Synod, held in Edinburgh on Wednesday, the Bishop of St. Andrew's presiding, it was agreed to express to the Convocation of the Provinces of Canterbury and York the thanks of the Synod for the brotherly sympathy and consideration shown to the Church in Scotland by passing resolutions in regard to the proceedings of Bishop Beckles.

THE UNIVERSITIES AND PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

The University Commissioners, after sitting nearly three weeks at the Clarendon Hotel, Oxford, and taking the evidence of the leading officers and members of the University, have concluded their duties for the present, but it is understood they will shortly resume their inquiries in town. The Commissioners, in addition to taking evidence, have made a personal inspection of the various University buildings. It is stated they will sit again at Oxford after Christmas.

The matriculation for the Michaelmas Term at Cambridge was held yesterday week in the Senate House. The number of students who subscribed their names in the University books was 680, the largest entry ever recorded, showing an increase of 21 as compared with the entries in the Michaelmas Term of 1876. Not a single fellow commoner matriculated; the pensioners were 599, there were 43 sizars, and 38 non-collegiate students. The totals from each college are as follow:—King's, 17; Trinity, 162; St. John's, 91; St. Peter's, 11; Clare, 25; Pembroke, 45; Caius, 39; Trinity Hall, 45; Corpus, 32; Queen's, 13; St. Catharine's, 12; Jesus, 62; Christ's, 26; Magdalene, 17; Emmanuel, 20; Sidney, 14; Downing, 11; making a total, including the non-collegiate students, of 630.

A requisition for an extraordinary meeting of Convocation to consider the reform of the London in connection with the proposed new charter has been forwarded to the Chairman of Convocation, Dr. Storrar. It has received the signature of sixty-eight members of Convocation.

The Warden and Senate at Durham have elected Mr. H. J. R. Marston, B.A., Hatfield Hall, to the vacant fellowship. Mr. Marston was educated at the College for the Blind Sons of Gentlemen, Worcester. He was elected Newby Scholar, 1875; and University Classical Scholar, 1875; and obtained a First Class in Classics at the Final Examination for B.A., Michaelmas Term, 1876. Mr. Marston is Second Master in the Worcester College for the Blind.

Lord Hartington has been chosen Rector at Edinburgh, defeating the Home Secretary (Mr. Cross) by 932 to 684. There is now wanting only £1000 in order to endow the Celtic Chair in this University with a salary of £500 a year, and Professor Blackie hopes to have the chair formally instituted by this time next year.

The polling for Lord Rector of Glasgow took place on Thursday forenoon. The result was declared at one o'clock as follows:—Mr. Gladstone, 1153; Sir Stafford Northcote, 609. Mr. Gladstone has a majority in every "nation," and is therefore returned.

The sum of £600, being the amount of the surplus arising from the Eisteddfod, has been applied as a contribution to the funds of the University College of Wales.

A purse of 400 guineas and a timepiece has been presented to the Rev. F. Calder, head-master of Chesterfield Grammar School, in recognition of his services during the period of thirty years. Mrs. Calder has been presented with a silver tea and coffee service.

A meeting was held at Shrewsbury on the 7th inst. in support of a movement for establishing a Church of England public boarding school at Ellesmere, Salop, for the sons of farmers, tradesmen, citizens, artisans, and other persons of small means in the Midland Counties, in connection with St. Nicholas College, Lancing, and under the direction of the Provost and Fellows of Denstone. Lord Bradford presided, and among the speakers were the Bishops of Lichfield and Hereford, Lord Powis, Sir T. Percival Heywood, and Archdeacon Allen. The school will be built upon the site given by Lord Brownlow, at an estimated cost of £50,000, of which about £12,000 has been subscribed. Besides giving the site, Lord Brownlow has subscribed £1000 towards the building fund. The school will be conducted upon the system introduced by Canon Woodward in Sussex in 1848. The meeting was largely attended, and resolutions in favour of establishing the school were carried unanimously.

The presentation of prizes to the permanent staff of the Royal London Militia took place on Monday in the officers' mess-room. Lady Rose on this, as on former occasions, undertook the office of distributing the prizes to the successful winners. Captain and Adjutant Savory, prior to the presentation, read certain statistics relative to the shooting both of the regiment and the permanent staff, showing that for the year 1875 and 1876 they were at the head of the list; and Colonel Sir William Armstrong Rose congratulated the staff on the excellence of their shooting, and paid a tribute of praise to Captain Savory, Quartermaster Birkin, Sergeant-Major W. Clarke, and Sergeant-Instructor of Musketry W. W. Grainge, and the staff generally, for their exertion in producing this satisfactory result. Lady Rose then distributed the prizes.

The prizes won by the members of the Liverpool Rifle Brigade (5th L. R. V.) were presented on Monday evening at St. George's Hall. More than 350 ladies and gentlemen in evening dress were seated on a large two-sided platform, which had been erected on the orchestra; the galleries were crowded with friends of the corps; and seats placed longitudinally on either side of the body of the hall were occupied with more civilian spectators. The regiment arrived shortly after eight o'clock, and was massed in quarter-column in the grand area. On Major-General Robertson appearing on the platform, accompanied by Lieutenant-Colonel Tinley, he was received with a general salute, the corps presenting arms. At the invitation of the gallant commander, Major-General Robertson, Colonel Blair, Major Barnard, and the chairman walked round the hall and inspected the battalion, the fine soldier-like bearing of the officers and men eliciting their marked commendation. The chair was occupied by Mr. H. S. Gladstone (son of the late Colonel Adam Gladstone, who raised the regiment). To this young gentleman was entrusted the honour of presenting the prizes. Addresses were given by Lieutenant-Colonel Tinley, the chairman, Major-General Robertson, and Mr. Robert Gladstone.

Mr. Alderman Owden, the new Lord Mayor, went in state from Guildhall to Westminster on the 9th inst., with the usual escort, the procession upon this occasion combining some novel features, which, notwithstanding the disagreeable weather, attracted large multitudes into the thoroughfares through which it passed. The novelties of the procession comprised a pair of dromedaries and a pair of elephants, each animal being ridden by persons intended to represent natives of African countries; an ornamental car carrying a full-size model of Cleopatra's Needle, supported by an appropriate emblem of Egypt; and, lastly, an elaborate ornamental tableau car, drawn by ten horses, crowded with representative personages. On the summit of this car, which was 27 ft. in height, was a female to represent Peace and Plenty; while below were stationed other persons representing "Britannia," "Father Thames," and further allegorical individuals, together with groups emblematic of the colonies, agriculture, and the four quarters of the globe. After the new chief magistrate had been presented to the Barons of the Exchequer, the civic pageant returned by way of the Thames Embankment.—Lord Beaconsfield, speaking at the Guildhall banquet in the evening, alluded to the famine in India, and, having paid a warm tribute to the energy which had been shown by the Viceroy in dealing with the calamity, passed on to refer to the war. He held that Turkey had manifested a spirit in resisting invasion which placed that country amongst the great sovereignties of Europe, and entitled her to the maintenance of her independence. He alluded to the hope which the English Government had in regard to the future of that country; and, going on to touch upon domestic events, saw no cause for despondency. Criticising some recent observations of the Marquis of Hartington, the noble Earl argued that it was better for an Administration to endeavour to secure the comfort and the welfare of all classes than to harass and annoy them.

5. Village of Dubnik.

4. Turkish Artillery.

3. 3. Turkish Lines.

2. 2. Advanced Russian Lines.

1. River Vpr.

THE WAR: BATTLE OF GORNY DUBNIK, OCTOBER 24.

FROM A SKETCH BY ONE OF OUR SPECIAL ARTISTS.

"HOMELESS." FROM THE PICTURE BY C. E. HOLLOWAY.

ECHOES OF THE WEEK.

The High Court of Chancery resembles in one of its aspects a Na-myth's steam-hammer, which, with exquisitely graduated force, will crush an enormous bar of iron to the thinness of writing-paper, or, with gentle taps, insert a tin tack into a deal board. Nothing is too big and nothing too small for the cognisance of the formidably versatile tribunal of Lincoln's Inn. Everything and everybody may get into Chancery some day. The ownership of estates with a rent-roll worth fifty thousand a year or the disputed copyright in a comic song; the will of a millionaire or a patent affecting the ribs of an umbrella; the guardianship of a rich heiress or a squabble about putting up a screen to a refreshment-bar;—each and all of these things come within the province of the Lord High Chancellor and his learned Vices.

This week the question of the ownership of Knole, by Sevenoaks, in Kent—the historic mansion, the lovely park, and the broad lands thereunto attached—has been “in Chancery.” The case had been there before, and in the House of Lords, to boot. I would rather not attempt to give even the barest outline of the suit on which Vice-Chancellor Sir Richard Malins gave judgment on Monday—first, because I should require at least two columns of the smallest type if I set forward the facts detailed in evidence; and, next, because I should probably make some blunder in the technical details of the litigation, and then I might find myself (to my horror and despair) “in contempt.” You remember the case of the cobbler in Pickwick who was innocently guilty of contempt. Let it suffice to hint that Earl Delawarr thinks that Knole ought to belong to him, because one of his titles is that of Lord Buckhurst, and Knole is an endowment of the Barony of Buckhurst; whereas the Earl's brother, Lord Sackville (who has been for some years in possession of the beautiful domain), holds that Knole should and must be his, for the reason that, if the Royal Letters Patent re-creating the Barony had not, as to one of their clauses, been invalidated by the House of Lords, he would be Lord Buckhurst, and not Lord Sackville. For the present, the decision in Chancery has gone against Earl Delawarr; but it is probable that the whole case will be heard again on appeal in the House of Lords.

Mem: Whoever, ultimately, may be proclaimed the Lord of Knole, I venture deferentially to express the earnest hope that the descendant of the illustrious Sackville-Dorset family who is declared to be entitled to the fee-simple will follow the generous practice of his noble predecessor and reopen the glorious mansion house at Knole at convenient times and seasons to the public. Her Majesty graciously permits her subjects to stroll through the state apartments of Windsor Castle; but Knole has for some time past been “a fountain sealed.” English tourists and travellers from the Continent and the United States are not permitted to see so much as the Picture-Gallery; and artists are languishing because they are no longer permitted to make drawings of the Venetian Chamber, the Crimson Drawing-Room, and Lady Betty Germaine's Bed-Room. Throw open Knole, my Lord, and you shall be immortalised in verse as enthusiastically as was your ancestor Dorset, the grace of courts, the Muse's pride.

Mem: Tom D'Urfey, the song and farce writer (the late Mr. Bayle Bernard, with whom was associated, if I mistake not, Mr. Charles Dance, founded his pleasant comedy of the “Boarding School” on an impudent play bearing the same name by D'Urfey), had an apartment allotted to him at Knole by Charles, the munificent sixth Earl of Dorset. Tom's “board wages” were “his meat and two bottles of wine a day,” but these rations, I fancy, the bibulous bard found insufficient, inasmuch as he wrote a ballad in praise of “the incomparable strong beer of Knole.”

To all appearance the spirit of Shenstone's ancient dame who boasted “unruly brats with birch to tame” yet lingers in rural England. The schoolmistresses of Moretonhampstead have memorialised the local School Board, intimating their intention to resign en masse if a resolution forbidding the infliction of corporal punishment in the girls' and infants' schools under the control of the Board be not forthwith rescinded. Are they such very naughty girls down at Moretonhampstead? I should counsel the schoolmistresses to send for that ferocious disciplinarian Mr. Ashby Sterry, who, in one of the “Boudoir Ballads” (“Pet's Punishment”), advocates the chastisement of refractory girls, but suggests that the instrument of castigation should be a feather. Mr. Sterry's suggestion was practically anticipated by Sir Thomas More, who was wont to correct the Misses More with a peacock-feather fan. A malevolent cynic has suggested that the good Chancellor sometimes used the handle.

Three Lancashire colliers who had been sentenced to ten years' penal servitude for a crime of which it has now been clearly proved that they were entirely innocent, and who have been working as convicts at Pentonville since last July, have received a “free pardon” from the Crown. We sometimes pardon offenders who have done wrong; but the three colliers have done nothing at all to be pardoned for. It is justice and not mercy which has been vouchsafed to them. Surely something should be done both morally and materially to compensate these poor men for the unmerited shame and agony which they have endured. In France, when the injustice of a sentence has been shown, it is publicly and solemnly reversed by a decree of the tribunals.

Of the Royal Dramatic College it must be written Finis. The governors have only a thousand pounds in the Three per Cents left; they are unable to pay the stipends of the collegians or the working expenses of the institution, so the whole concern is to be dissolved, and the Charity Commissioners are to be asked to propound a scheme for selling the freehold property at Maybury, and funding the proceeds for the purpose of continuing the allowances to the present pensioners. When they depart this life there will be an end, I suppose, of an originally noble and munificent undertaking. It is too late to talk about bad management. The Royal Dramatic College is virtually dead and gone; and recrimination would be as useless as cruel.

I hear something of a complimentary dinner to be given early in December to Mr. Archibald Forbes, the Special War Correspondent of the Daily News, by his brother Journalists. Is it not “Little Em'ly,” in David Copperfield, who, speaking enthusiastically of her uncle's goodness, says that if she were grown-up and rich she would give him, among other things, “a cocked-hat and a pocket full of money”? Mr. Forbes, to my thinking, deserves those and many other things. A hard rider and a brilliant writer—a Correspondent whom no danger can daunt and no fatigue discourage—he has done more than yeoman service to the newspaper with which he is so honourably connected. Mr. Forbes, I believe, has been decorated with several Foreign Orders; but he must not look for reward of an honorific nature in his own country. Stay. There is one kind of recognition which we are at all times ready to bestow on people who have distinguished themselves. Society “lionises” them; and Mr. Forbes has doubtless been a tremendous “lion” since his return from the wars. Unfortunately, the “lionisation” does not last for more than half a season; and then Society begins to cast about for a new Leo. It does not in the least matter what he has done, so long as he has made himself talked about. Samuel Foote (who was a connection of Captain Goodere, the assassin of his brother, Sir John Dinely Goodere) was first introduced into the fashionable world, and became for a time highly popular, as “the nephew of the gentleman who was lately hanged in chains for murdering his brother.”

Much mirth has been excited among the irreverent by a paragraph in Truth, giving the title of a German work in the catalogue of the Leipzig fair, “Göring über die Porabrommetasulphenylpropionsäure und die Metasulphenylsäure.” Such is the name of this unpretending work; and “what must its contents be?” scoffingly asks the Times in quoting the paragraph from Truth. For my part, I fail to see anything phenomenal in “Porabrommetasulphenylpropionsäure.” There are only thirty-three letters in it, whereas in “Constantinopolitanischersachopfeiger” there are thirty-eight. And what do you think of “Fünfundzwanzigtägigerwaffenstillstand”? I saw that compound substantive, in 1870, in a telegram addressed by Prince Bismarck to the Burgomaster of Cologne, announcing the conclusion of a five-and-twenty days armistice between the French and German armies.

Mem: “Hochquellenwasserleitungsrath” is not a bad word in the way of long-tailedness.

Whoever invented that proverbial type of the “Coming Man,” the New Zealander, who, some of these days, is to sit on a crumbling arch of London Bridge to sketch the ruins of St. Paul's, one thing may be accounted tolerably certain. The potential traveller will never be enabled, unless he makes haste to visit the British metropolis, to enrich his sketch-book with a drawing of the ruins of Temple Bar. That antique but not venerable structure seems to be less in danger of being pulled down by the Corporation of London, who are pledged by a vote of their own Court of Common Council to remove the ugly old obstruction, than of tumbling down bodily; and in that case the police would insist on the mass of rubbish being carted away. Clearly, the New Zealander should make haste. “A Civil Engineer” has written to the Standard to point out that the face of the Bar exhibits a great increase in the way of cracks, and that the pilasters are becoming “dislocated.” The “Civil Engineer” is of opinion that, if Temple Bar be not at once demolished, it must certainly fall, to the possible peril of human life; and he pertinently asks whether, in the event of the Bar suddenly collapsing and killing Somebody, the verdict of the Coroner's jury would be murder or manslaughter against Anybody, and who the responsible Body would be? G. A. S.

FINE ARTS.

FRENCH GALLERY EXHIBITION, PALL-MALL.

Of the hundred and ninety-two pictures, mostly of small cabinet size, composing the present exhibition, several are of an importance considerably above the ordinary level of the French Gallery, which, it must be remembered, has always been a high one. If the directors meant by this to give emphasis to the fact that the French Gallery has now existed for a quarter of a century, they have fairly succeeded in their object. We need scarcely premise that, unlike the summer exhibition, the present gathering is made up of contributions both from British and foreign painters—artistic interest, with two or three notable exceptions, to be mentioned presently, lying mainly with the latter.

Turning immediately to the left on entering, it will be found that the place of honour is deservedly occupied by “The Connoisseurs” (20) of T. F. Dicksee. A handsome young noble, in a pale yellow tunic and an ermine-trimmed robe of a tawny gold colour, and otherwise attired as befits the period of Francis I., stands in an easy attitude, and, holding out at arm's length a silver statuette, looks at it admiringly. We have in this picture the free and graceful drawing so characteristic of the artist; and if his colouring has in it more delicacy than force, and is sometimes thin when it ought to be rich and mantling, it is always true in key and perfect within its own register. In this respect the artist will have the satisfaction of seeing his son attain to that strength and fulness of which the father has never been able altogether to possess himself. Mr. T. F. Dicksee has always been welcomed to an honourable place on the walls of the French Gallery, and so far may be regarded as a representative man. What he does in the figure subject is complemented by what Mr. B. W. Leader executes in landscape. The latter's “Wettern, above Meyengen” (170), with a chalet, a rushing stream, and a row of felled timber for a foreground, with the snowy Alps dominating all, is a fair sample of Mr. Leader's method of looking at and representing nature. He has become much stronger in his handling of late seasons, and doubtless now holds a high place among the landscape-painters of England.

As illustrating the antithesis of Mr. Dicksee's method, the visitor would do well to look at the “Wild Roses” (19) of Carl Bauerle—two children playing gleefully on a moorland. The brushwork here is rough and ready, and, on the whole, effective.

As examples of the works in small cabinet size which adorn this end of the gallery may specially be mentioned the French “Infantry Scouts” (16), and “Reconnoitring the Enemy” (21), both by E. Medard. The command the artist has over the figure in every variety of attitude attracts agreeably the notice of the spectator. Similar vigour manifests itself in the miniature works of C. M. Graz, a pupil of Professor Diez, of Munich. In one of his contributions are seen two travellers sitting at an empty bard in “A Hostelry” (33), and in another interior we behold a self-reliant individual administering to his own pleasure by performing “A Sonata” (34) on the flute. This same school of Professor Diez receives further illustration in H. Peling's “Examination of a Prisoner” (17) by an officer in an extemporised tent.

Then there is the Spanish school of Fortuny, as represented by V. Palmarioli in his lady in pale blue “Fading the Pigeons” (38) on a terrace, and his fashionable dame, with Japanese parasol, in loose white dress and yellow hair, lounging “On the Seashore” (4). See also the seven young Drummers of the Republic” (72), by L. Jimenez. De Ntis, as our readers are aware, is at the head of a kindred army, and its special claims to notice come well out in J. Beraud's “Outskirts of Paris” (35), in which we see a young woman speaking to a man in a blue blouse on the Quai d'Orléans, with the bridge in the distance. Two vigorous examples of horse-painting by W. Lommens, a German artist, will be found in “Repairing the Roads, Elberfeld” (13), and in “Carting Timber from the Rhine” (24). At this end of the gallery also will be seen two examples of the well-known Norwegian artist L. Munthe, and, strange to relate, one of them is not a “winter scene,” but, on the contrary, a very cheerful landscape representing “Golden Autumn” (26). The silvery-grey, semi-classic brotherhood have a good representative in H. Leroux, who shows us “The Vestal Tuccia” (28), holding aloft the sieve-full of water which, for her purity, the invoked goddess allows her to carry to the temple without the escape of a single drop. The same scheme of colour, with a suggestion of Gérôme, pervades the picture by H. Lazerges, which represents an Algerian couple having “A Gossip at the Well” (9).

Different from all these in tone, treatment of light and shade, in handling, and in choice of subject is Gabriel Max, the Bavarian, who painted, a season or two back, “The Handkerchief of Veronica,” which, as legend tells, took the impression of Our Saviour's countenance. By a subtle use of the pencil the eyes of our Lord were made to look closed or sadly open, just as the humour took the spectator. Church legend seems to have wonderfully influenced the mind of this artist, for in the place of honour at the far end of the gallery he treats us to a representation of “Ahasuerus, the Wandering Jew, contemplating the Body of a Dead Child” (101). The restless wanderer leans for a moment on his hand and contemplates longingly the peaceful rest of the little one, whose white dress and sweet face death and the moonbeams exalt and sanctify. The melancholy suggestiveness of this picture will strike everyone. A similarly forcible treatment of light and shade is observable in “Christ Raising Jairus's Daughter” (156), by the same artist. As in the case of the child, the light is entirely concentrated on the figure of Jairus's daughter. Our Saviour, all in shadow, sits on her bedside and takes her right hand in His left; and it is the moment in which its Divine pressure carries its life-giving message to the heart that the artist has seized for representation. The slowly-opening eyelids and the almost imperceptible quiver of the mouth are very tenderly given, and harmonise sweetly and subtly with the delicate pink of her nightdress, which scarcely dare assert itself, as it were, in the surrounding sea of deathlike white. Sentiment, in short, is the strong point in the artistic nature of Gabriel Max. He places roses at the feet of the reviving maiden and a red rose at the side of the dead child. A more joyous habit of mind might have presented Jairus's daughter with a countenance sublimed by gratitude and radiant with heavenly ecstasy; but he prefers giving us the first faint and doubtful dawn of these.

On the opposite side of the gallery hang three works by artists of a healthier and more cheerful mood, showing, like Hilda Montalba, in her “Venetian Girl” (155), a lively sympathy with human life and its activities. Nor, while mentioning the work of one lady, must we omit to pay due homage to the performances of others. Madame E. Muraton's “Fruit” (150), Mrs. B. W. Leader's “Pansies” (12), Matilda Goodman's “In the Garden” (36), Miss Charlton's “Mountain Path” (1), Mrs. Henry Merritt's “Quadron Woman and Child” (100), Miss Leader's “Wild Flowers” (125), and Kate Bisschop's old woman winding up the dock in presence of her two admiring grandchildren (113), are all pictures which may well stand on their own merits.

The three works to which we have alluded, and which, more than any others, perhaps, give character to the exhibition, are Sir David Wilkie's famous work of “The Chelsea Pensioners Reading the ‘Gazette’ Announcing the News of the Battle of Waterloo,” painted for the Great Duke in 1821; J. Burnet's companion picture of “The Greenwich Pensioners Hearing the Tidings of the Battle of Trafalgar,” and, hanging between the two, A. Maignan's picture of “The Arrest of Boniface the Eighth.” The Chelsea Pensioners has never been out of Apsley House before; and it is most gratifying to see that this great national work, with its wonderful diversity of character and incident, and its historical accuracy of costume, is as bright and clear in colour, as smooth as to surface, and altogether as sound in condition, as when it was first painted. Had Wilkie been content with his slowdry but trustworthy and approved mediums, instead of flying, as he afterwards did, to asphaltum and other fatal expedients, we should not now be deploring the bodily vanishing from our eyes of so many of his later works. Mr. Burnet's “Greenwich Pensioners” has neither the purity of colour nor the unity of effect which are so delightful in Wilkie's work; but in spite of a foxy tendency in pigment and a scattering of his interest, Burnet's is a fine picture, and, as a character-painter, he stands second only to Wilkie. The Arrest, by Colonna and his myrmidons, of the proud and arrogant Boniface VIII., on the steps of his own throne, attracted universal attention in the Salon last season; and by the production of such a work—now that the British public can examine it leisurely for themselves—it will be readily enough seen that M. Maignan has placed himself in the foremost rank of historic painters. The brushwork is broad and vigorous; the story told with becoming emphasis; and, if there is a tendency to blackness here and there in the colour, there is never any approach to weakness; and the work altogether is one of impressiveness, if not of grandeur. Robed in the white mantle of St. Peter, holding the keys and cross, and wearing on his head the tiara of Constantine, Boniface stands calmly erect and defiant. Colonna's armed emissaries surge tumultuously round the bottom of the steps; while half way up, spurred and mail-clad, the fierce chief calls on Boniface to descend and abdicate. Like our own a Becket, Boniface was supreme in his fall; and, when the rage of his enemies was at its height and their violence most imminent, he called out, with lofty scorn and defiance, as we are told, “Here is my neck—here my head—strike! But I will die Pope!”

A meeting of the Royal Scottish Academy was held in Edinburgh on Wednesday—Sir Daniel Macnee, President, in the chair—when Mr. W. D. Mackety, Edinburgh, Mr. D. W. Stevenson, Edinburgh, and Mr. J. Docherty, Glasgow, were elected Associates.

At the distribution of prizes to the Reading School of Science and Art students on Tuesday night, Mr. Walter, M.P., said the object of the Kensington authorities in establishing such schools was to train up the rising generation to take commanding positions in their various trades and to infuse an artistic spirit into the mechanical classes. The decline of art was due to the invention of machinery. In the best days of art in Germany and Italy, the artist was a mechanic and executed his own designs. The character of a nation depended, in a certain measure, on the way in which the artistic taste of people was cultivated.

At a meeting of the proprietors of the London and North-Western Railway on Tuesday, a resolution was passed sanctioning the creation of new capital to the amount of £1,200,000. The money is to be used to defray the cost of doubling the line between Bletchley and Rugby.

The last of the Dundee whaling fleet has now returned. Thirteen vessels together caught 76,000 seals, and brought home 1092 tons of seal oil; while of whales they secured 1016, of whale oil 995 tons, and of whalebone 42½ tons. The total value of the seal-fishing this year is estimated at £53,944, an increase of £16,612. The whale-fishing has produced £92,925.

NATIONAL SPORTS.

There is no denying the fact that, since the conclusion of the Newmarket Meeting, racing has been very "flat, stale, and unprofitable." There was as large an attendance as ever at Liverpool last week, but the sport which took place was by no means up to the average. There were only sixteen acceptances out of seventy-four entries for the Cup, and at last only eight came to the post—a far smaller number than has ever previously contested this important event. The victory of Arbitrator (8 st.) was highly creditable, as the weight was a very heavy one for a three-year-old; still, it was not relatively so good a performance as that of Vanderdecken, who carried 7 st. 8 lb. successfully in 1872, for this year the weights had been raised 13 lb. all round. On the following day, with 8 st. 3 lb. on his back, Arbitrator secured the Great Lancashire Handicap very easily indeed; thus affording one more proof of what we have always maintained—that at this time of year a three-year-old is as good as he ever is in his life. In the first of these races, that gay deceiver White-bait was intrusted with an immense sum of money; and though, when unbacked, in the latter event, he managed to run second, we should imagine that his career as a flat-racer is over, and that his attention will be confined to the illegitimate business in future. Congress, the champion "jumper," made his debut for the season in the Grand Sefton Steeplechase, and started first favourite, in spite of his welter weight of 12 st. 12 lb. For the first time in his life, he made a mistake, and lost nearly a quarter of a mile by a fall at the second fence, and Citizen (10 st. 5 lb.) won very easily indeed from Lancet (10 st. 9 lb.) and Earl Marshal (10 st. 7 lb.). The last-named pair took part in the Craven Steeplechase on the following day, but could not improve on their respective positions, Jackal (11 st. 12 lb.) scoring a very easy victory.

Passing over the Alexandra Park Meeting which, though it attracted as many holiday-makers as usual, needs no comment, we come to Mr. Frail's annual gathering at Shrewsbury. The Duke of Hamilton, who has a splendid team of steeplechasers in training, was successful in the opening event, as the compact little Birdcatcher (11 st. 12 lb.) just beat Craven (11 st. 3 lb.) by a head. Lady Ronald ran a very good mare over five furlongs, and Sheldrake so thoroughly showed up Great Tom in the Queen's Plate that it is evident that Lord Falmouth's giant does not care to go more than a mile. The Great Shropshire Handicap on Wednesday attracted a field of thirteen, in spite of which as little as 2 to 1 was accepted about Helena (6 st. 8 lb.), who has run well on several occasions this year. She by no means disgraced herself, though Hopbloom (6 st. 12 lb.) proved too good for her. The latter, who is now the property of the Duke of Montrose, has been a most disappointing animal, and this is his first win of any importance since he ran Rosebery to a head in the Cambridgeshire of 1876.

The Newmarket Champion Meeting, or "Waterloo of the South," as it is sometimes called by coursing men, was brought off last week, and proved very successful, though there was much grumbling about prolonging the meeting to Saturday, on which day there were only six courses run; and certainly it would have been far better in every way to have finished on Friday. Hares were plentiful throughout the week, and most of the trials were very good. Mr. Wentworth's judging, with one or two exceptions, gave great satisfaction; but as Luff was ill, it would not be fair to criticise his slipping. The Champion Stakes, for sixty-four puppies, was divided between Mr. Postle's pair, Palm Flower and Polly Ann, who are own sisters, both being by Countryman—dam by Willie Wylie. We have little doubt that Palm Flower is the better of the pair, and the nomination for the Waterloo Cup that she represents is sure to be heavily backed, as in size, make, and shape she is exactly adapted for the Altcar country. Don't be headstrong, by Light Cavalry—Humming Bee, followed up his Lurgan success by dividing the All-Aged Stakes with Pancake, by Improver—Princess Royal, though, but for an accident, it was generally thought that Mariner would have been successful in this event.

The meeting of the Hon. Ion Keith-Falconer, Wyndham, and Osborne, in the Four-Miles race at the Cambridge University Bicycle Club meeting last Saturday created great interest, and it was a matter of general regret that Osborne fell in the second round, just as he was racing home with Wyndham. In the final heat, the latter had no chance against Keith-Falconer, who won by fully 150 yards in 13 min. 32½ sec., a wonderfully good performance considering that there was a very high wind, and that the path was heavy.

The Winter Meeting of the London Athletic Club, which took place at Stamford-bridge last Saturday, was not so interesting as usual. None of the "cracks" competed, and, owing to the unfavourable weather, the attendance of spectators was much smaller than usual.

Gale is still continuing his walk at the Agricultural Hall, and will complete the 4000 quarter-miles this (Saturday) evening.

Evidence of an extraordinary character as to the condition of the Blantyre mine before the explosion was given at the inquiry on Wednesday. A fireman ("fire-trier"), named Little, confessed that although fire-damp was constantly present, the men "worked with naked lights in front of their bonnets." "If they touched the roof it would kindle." The rules as to the use of powder were systematically violated.

METROPOLITAN NEWS.

Dr. Frankland reports that the river water supplied to the metropolis during October was of unusually good quality.

The hall of the Scottish Corporation in Crane-court was destroyed by fire on Wednesday night.

Mr. Alderman Stone, an ex-Lord Mayor of London, was on Wednesday elected Treasurer of St. Thomas's Hospital.

At a public meeting in aid of the Palestine Exploration Fund on Monday evening at the Kensington Vestry-Hall, a resolution advocating the extension of the work was adopted.

At a meeting of the Court of Aldermen on Tuesday—the Lord Mayor presiding—the best thanks of the Court were presented to Sir Thomas White for the public services which he had rendered during his mayoralty.

The Corporation of London have given notice that in the next Session of Parliament they intend to apply for leave to bring in a bill to enable them to widen London Bridge to the extent of eleven feet on each side.

The Temple Arms, a coffee-tavern in the Seven-dials, has been opened for business, being the third opened by the benevolent Coffee-Tavern Company. The two other coffee-taverns, one in the Edgware-road and the other opposite Billingsgate, are flourishing.

Mendelssohn's "St. Paul" will be performed by the Sacred Harmonic Society on Friday next at Exeter Hall, under the direction of Sir Michael Costa. Meadames Edith Wynne and Patey, Messrs. Vernon Rigby and Santley, are the principal vocalists. This performance begins the society's forty-sixth season.

The first of a series of lectures which has been arranged by the Trades Guild of Learning, on subjects connected with war and commerce, was given on Monday evening, in the Vestry-Hall, Chelsea, by Sir George Young, Bart., on "Demerara, the Land and the Labourers." The chair was taken by Mr. Mundella, M.P.

A national poultry and pigeon show has been held this week at the Crystal Palace, attracting a considerable number of visitors. There were 121 classes for poultry and 91 for pigeons, and the total number of entries was 4019. The prizes amounted to more than £1300, including seventy silver cups valued at from three to five guineas each.

A new street, called the new Harrow-road, from Edgware-road to Paddington-green, was opened last Saturday by Colonel Sir James M'Garel Hogg, M.P., Chairman of the Metropolitan Board of Works. He said that in a short time the inhabitants of the metropolis will be able to travel from Oxford-street to the East-End upon roads fifty feet wide.

A storm, accompanied by thunder and lightning, visited London early on Saturday morning, and was felt in other parts of the country. On Sunday a severe gale set in, followed by heavy rain. Many small vessels were driven upon our coast, leading to great efforts on the part of the life-boat crews, who were successful in many instances in saving life.

A meeting of master builders was held on Tuesday at the Westminster Hotel, at which the trade was well represented and the proceedings were unanimous. It was resolved to persevere in the course the association had adopted in regard to the masons' strike, and to import more foreign workmen if necessary. At the various works in town more hands have been engaged.

The working committee of the Tufnell Park Fire Brigade have bought a first-class fire-escape, of the same kind as those used by the Metropolitan Brigade, also a new portable escape, and other appliances for saving life at fires, in addition to their engine, bought in May last. Gentlemen wishing to join the brigade should apply by letter to the superintendent, Fire Station, Tufnell Park, N.

The congratulatory banquet to be given to the Right Hon. W. H. Smith, M.P., on his appointment as First Lord of the Admiralty and his unopposed re-election for Westminster, is fixed for Thursday, the 29th inst., and will take place at St. James's Hall. The Right Hon. R. A. Cross, the Home Secretary, has accepted the invitation of the committee, and other members of the Cabinet are expected to be present.

The weekly return of metropolitan pauperism shows that the total number of paupers at the end of the first week of November was 79,550, of whom 38,656 were in workhouses, and 40,894 received outdoor relief. Compared with the corresponding weeks in 1876, 1875, and 1874, these figures show a decrease of 87, 3729, and 12,479 respectively. The number of vagrants relieved on the last day of the week was 746, of whom 486 were men, 214 women, and 46 children.

The thirtieth anniversary festival of the Builders' Benevolent Institution was held on the 8th inst., at Willis's Rooms—Mr. William Higgs, president, in the chair, supported by upwards of 300 of the friends of the institution. The institution has funded property to the amount of £20,000, the interest of which, together with donations and subscriptions, is appropriated in the payment of annuities to decayed master builders and their widows—the men receiving £30 per annum and the women £24. Forty-five pensioners are at present on the books. The subscriptions announced during the evening amounted to upwards of £600, inclusive of a donation of £105 by the president. Altogether, the anniversary was one of the most successful ever held in connection with the institution.

The largest exhibition of roots hitherto seen in the metropolis has been held this week at the Agricultural Hall, Islington. The handsome prizes offered by Messrs. Carter brought together from their customers more than 800 entries of eight to a dozen roots each. Among the exhibitors are the Queen and the Prince of Wales, several noblemen and gentlemen, and a large number of leading agriculturists.

The London School Board at their weekly meeting on Wednesday instructed the Works Committee to prepare, as far as possible, for the future, all plans for schools so that there shall be one class-room for each sixty children, together with provision for the occasional assembly of the school.—Sir Charles Reed presided on Tuesday night at the opening of a new board school on a site purchased from the Artisans', Labourers', and General Dwellings Company, on the Queen's Park Estate, Harrow-road. This school, which is built after the Queen Anne style of architecture, is to accommodate 354 children, girls, boys, and infants. The site has cost £2967, and the building £8938.

There were 2432 births and 1448 deaths registered in London last week. Allowing for increase of population, the births were 70, and the deaths 139, below the average numbers. The deaths included 25 from smallpox, 62 from measles, 67 from scarlet fever, 6 from diphtheria, 15 from whooping-cough, 42 from different forms of fever. The deaths from smallpox were more numerous than in any week since the end of July. The deaths referred to diseases of the respiratory organs, which had been 371 and 335 in the two previous weeks, were 338 last week, and were 51 below the corrected weekly average; 203 resulted from bronchitis and 98 from pneumonia. In Greater London 2995 births and 1704 deaths were registered. The mean temperature was 51.0 deg., and 6.4 deg. above the average. The duration of registered sunshine in the week was 12.7 hours, the sun being above the horizon during 64.7 hours.

A special meeting of the Metropolitan Board of Works was held on Wednesday to receive a report from the works and general purposes committee on the question of the board taking under their control the water supply of the metropolis: purchasing the interest of the existing companies, and extending the works. The committee considered it indispensable that the board should submit a perfect scheme to Parliament so as to include the purchase of the water companies and the providing of a pure supply of water for drinking purposes. They advised that separate bills should be prepared for those purposes, and had given instructions to the Parliamentary draughtsman to that effect. As regarded the new works, the committee drew attention to the fact, as furnished by the engineer's estimates, that by the execution of these operations, instead of the enlargement of the existing undertakings, which would otherwise become necessary, an annual saving of £112,250 would be effected. The report was adopted by a considerable majority.

Mr. S. S. Safford, the general superintendent of the Cabmen's Shelter Fund, has addressed to us an appeal on behalf of the extension of the movement for providing cabmen's shelters. He says the majority of the shelters are in the west of London; but for the east funds for only one have been obtained, and a site is now being looked for. Some are provided with newspapers by the kindness of editors, and the superintendent says that if any persons should wish to send their spare illustrated or other papers for the use of the cabmen he will most thankfully receive them at the office, 15, Soho-square, W. An additional inducement to support the shelters is that the attendants are all old cabmen, the most deserving being selected, and not a single report has been made against any of them by the police. The cost of a shelter is £100, after which it is self-supporting. The appeal is the more urgent in view of the approaching winter. Donations may be paid to the Union Bank, Chancery-lane, or at the office of the fund.

The exhibition at the Royal Aquarium, in Westminster, of a collection of two hundred original Sketches of the War in Bulgaria and Armenia, taken on the spot by the Special Artists of the Illustrated London News with the Russian and Turkish armies, has daily proved attractive and interesting to large numbers of visitors during the past week. Our readers do not require to be assured of the merits of these Sketches, having already become familiar with the Engravings that were made from them, and having doubtless, since the outbreak of the war last spring, followed attentively the movements of our Special Artists, whether on the Danube, at Rustchuk and at Sistova, or in the Dobrudscha, or in the Shipka Pass, or on the Lom, or in the lines around Plevna, or in the Asiatic campaign, between Erzeroum and Kars, as well as on the Black Sea coasts, and in the neighbourhood of Constantinople. Five or six gentlemen of competent skill, and personally experienced as travellers and campaigners, have been constantly employed in the service of this Journal, and have performed their difficult, laborious, and sometimes perilous task in a manner to deserve public appreciation. We can vouch for the authenticity of their sketches now on view at the Royal Aquarium, which are exhibited precisely in their original state, as when first received at our office. They are but a small portion of the work of this kind actually done by our Special Artists, but they are sufficient to give a fair notion of the style of sketching usually practised, and of the materials from which our Engravings are drawn.

NEW BOOKS AND PUBLICATIONS.

In Monthly Parts, 7d. and 8d.
THE WAR, CASSELL'S HISTORY OF.

In Monthly Parts, 7d. and 8d.
THE WAR, CASSELL'S ILLUSTRATED HISTORY OF.

In Monthly Parts, 7d. and 8d.
THE RUSSO-TURKISH WAR, CASSELL'S HISTORY OF.

In Monthly Parts, 7d. and 8d.
THE RUSSO-TURKISH WAR, CASSELL'S HISTORY OF. Profusely Illustrated.

In Monthly Parts, 7d. and 8d.
THE RUSSO-TURKISH WAR, CASSELL'S HISTORY OF. Part I. ready Nov. 26.

In Monthly Parts, 7d. and 8d.
THE RUSSO-TURKISH WAR, CASSELL'S HISTORY OF. Number 1, ready Nov. 21.

Monthly Parts, 7d. and 8d.; Weekly Numbers, 1d.
THE RUSSO-TURKISH WAR, CASSELL'S HISTORY OF. "The accounts which have come from the fields of battle in Europe and Asia have been perused with the intensest interest by all classes, but it is now time that these fragmentary narratives should give place to a clear and detailed history; and it is not too much to say that it is of the greatest importance for every Englishman to acquaint himself with the true history and progress of this most terrible conflict." Extract from Prospectus.

SCIENCE FOR ALL.

In Monthly Parts, 7d.,
SCIENCE FOR ALL. New Popular Serial Work.

In Monthly Parts, 7d.,
SCIENCE FOR ALL. Edited by Dr. ROBERT BROWN.

In Monthly Parts, 7d.,
SCIENCE FOR ALL. By Eminent Writers.

In Monthly Parts, 7d.,
SCIENCE FOR ALL. With Engravings and Diagrams specially prepared for the work.

In Monthly Parts, 7d.,
SCIENCE FOR ALL. Part I., ready Nov. 26.

In Monthly Parts, price 7d.,
SCIENCE FOR ALL.—Extract from

Prospectus—"It is proposed in 'Science for All' to take the everyday incidents of life and the commonest objects which surround us, and show, in simple and clear language, the scientific principles which underlie them, and whose operation they illustrate. The flame of a candle will serve as a text on which to treat of combustion—from a dead leaf picked up in the woods can be taught the principles of vegetable construction, and life, and growth—by the markings in the marble which ornaments our chimney-piece can be elucidated the geological formation from which it has been dug, and the varied processes by which it and kindred formations have been produced. And so on through every department, some familiar object or some well-known fact will be picked out, and from it the particular branch of science to which it belongs will be illustrated and explained." CASSELL, PETTER, and GALPIN, London; and all Booksellers.

THE SEA.

THE SEA: its Stirring Story.

In Monthly Parts, price 7d.,
THE SEA: its Stirring Story of Adventure, Peril, and Heroism.

In Monthly Parts, 7d.,
THE SEA: its Stirring Story of Adventure, Peril, and Heroism. Third Edition of Part I., now ready, price 7d.

In Monthly Parts, 7d.,
THE SEA: its Stirring Story of Adventure, Peril, and Heroism. Third Edition of Part I., now ready, price 7d., including large presentation Plate.

"Among the boys this book is likely to create a perfect furore, and it can hardly fail to be regarded as a most eligible investment for spare pocket-money; especially since the attractions of 'awfully jolly' reading are added those of very effective illustrations."—John Bull.

In Monthly Parts, 7d.,
THE SEA: its Stirring Story of Adventure, Peril, and Heroism. Notice.—Every purchaser of Part I. is entitled to receive with it, without extra charge, a large Engraving, printed on plate paper, measuring 24½ in. by 21 in. entitled 'Saved,' from the much-admired painting by J. D. Watson.

CASSELL, PETTER, and GALPIN, London; and all Booksellers.

CASSELL'S FAMILY MAGAZINE.

CASSELL'S FAMILY MAGAZINE. Monthly, 7d.

CASSELL'S FAMILY MAGAZINE. Commencement of a New Volume.

CASSELL'S FAMILY MAGAZINE. New volume commenced with the December Part.

CASSELL'S FAMILY MAGAZINE. New volume commenced with Dec. Part, ready Nov. 26. 7d.

Ready Nov. 26, price 7d.,
CASSELL'S FAMILY MAGAZINE for December, forming the First Part of a New Volume.

Ready Nov. 26, price 7d.,
CASSELL'S FAMILY MAGAZINE for DECEMBER, containing:—

1. WINTER CLIMATES FOR INVALIDS.
2. POPULAR PAPERS ON ENGLISH LAW.
3. A BUIED HUNTER.
4. A DASH THROUGH DERBYSHIRE ON AN EXPRESS ENGINE.
5. KING COPHETUA AND THE BEGGAR-MAID: a Drawing-room Melodrama, in Three Acts.
6. ENGLISH LADIES AT WASHINGTON.
7. MY BAMBOOS, AND WHAT THEY COST ME.
8. CHRISTMAS GAMES FOR EVERYBODY.
9. HOW TO ACT A CHARADE.
10. FAIRIE.
11. CHIT-CHAT ON DRESS.
12. GAILY I TRUDGE ALONG. A Song, with Music.
13. THE WILLOW-PATTERN PLATE.
14. HANOVER AND ITS KINGS.
15. A CHRISTMAS CAROL.
16. SOME OLD-FASHIONED ROUNDS FOR CHRISTMAS.
17. TIME SHALL TRY. New Serial Story.
18. SUSPENSE! New Serial Story.

CASSELL, PETTER, and GALPIN, London; and all Booksellers.

CASSELL'S FAMILY MAGAZINE.—"Its character is so marked and decided that we have no hesitation in giving 'Caselli's Family Magazine' THE FIRST POSITION AMONG THE MONTHLIES for the people. The variety of its material is astonishing, yet it has less padding than many of the magazines of high pretensions."—Edinburgh Courant.

CASSELL, PETTER, and GALPIN, London; and all Booksellers.

COMPLETE CATALOGUES of Messrs. CASSELL, PETTER, and GALPIN'S PUBLICATIONS, containing a list of several hundred Volumes, including Bibles and Religious Works, Fine-Art Volumes, Children's Books, Dictionaries, Educational Works, History, Natural History, Household and Domestic Treatises, Handbooks and Guides, Science, Travels, &c., together with a Synopsis of their numerous Illustrated Serial Publications, sent post-free on application to CASSELL, PETTER, and GALPIN, La Belle Sauvage-yard, Ludgate-hill, London.

Digitized by Google

THE WAR: DISTRIBUTION OF CLOTHING TO TURKISH REFUGEES AT SHUMLA.
FROM A SKETCH BY ONE OF OUR SPECIAL ARTISTS.

"THE END OF THE BOOK." BY P. RUMPOFF.
FROM A PHOTOGRAPH BY THE BERLIN PHOTOGRAPHIC COMPANY.

"THE END OF THE BOOK."

A young lady standing beside a window, her book in hand, using the last rays of daylight to peruse the last page of an interesting story, is not unfrequently seen in these days of literary entertainment, and of elegant feminine leisure. Who can guess the number of volumes consumed in a twelvemonth by some persons of that sex who are brought up in the creed that they have nothing else to do, unless it be a little visiting, a little crochet-work, a little pianoforte-playing, and a little writing of notes or letters; dressing and dancing, upon due occasion, being understood as the more urgent business of life? Go to Mudie's Library, between five and six in the afternoon, and see the bustle at the counter there to supply their enormous demands. Three-volume novels—"Did She Do It?" by Ellice Wollop, or "The Heiress of Barnsbury," by Leila Minxton, are just now in particular request—form the staple food of the mind to a vast majority of British maidenhood in the middle class of society, and to a large proportion of matrons not too much occupied with the care of children and the rule of household servants. A lady addicted to this pursuit will be apt to reach "the end of the book" towards evening of the second day, and will send to Mudie's next morning for another work of fiction, which will probably be disposed of before the end of the week. The best of it is, that she will have forgotten the incidents, the characters, and the very names of the persons in the story within the course of the next month.

The Marquis of Hartington, accompanied by the Earl of Rosebery, visited Edinburgh on the 8th inst. Among other places to which his Lordship went was the Parliament House, visiting the First and Second Division court-rooms.

MUSICAL PUBLICATIONS.

"New Method for the Piano, after the 'Klavier-Unterrichts-Briefe'" ("Letters on Piano Instruction"), by Aloys Hennes (Novello, Ewer, and Co.). This is the third portion of a work that consists of five courses of instruction, proceeding from the earliest elements to a high degree of proficiency. The translation has been efficiently made by Professor Mannheimer. We have already spoken favourably of earlier divisions of the work, and have now merely to record its continuance.

"Home Light," song, by Henry Smart (Messrs. R. Cocks and Co.), is full of grace, of melody, and expressive feeling; and, while available for most voices, will especially suit a mezzo-soprano or a contralto.

"After Long Years," song, by F. Schira (C. Jeffreys), has some good contrasts of rhythm and key, and gives scope for effective declamation. From the same publisher we have No. 11 of "Grand Operatic Duets," by J. Rummel, a series of pieces for two performers on the pianoforte. The number now referred to is based on subjects from Wagner's "Der Fliegende Holländer" ("The Flying Dutchman"), and is well adapted for drawing-room display.

Messrs. Enoch and Sons are continuing their valuable series of classical works in quarto editions ("Format Litolf") at cheap prices. Among recent issues are the charming pianoforte pieces of Schumann, entitled, respectively, "Arabesque" (op. 18), "Blumenstücke" (op. 19), and "Humoreske" (op. 20)—all which are issued at the price of two shillings. The same publishers are also bringing out a selection from the numerous pianoforte works of Anton Rubinstein, chiefly from his earlier productions, which generally stand in agreeable contrast to most of his recent compositions.

"Be my love," song, by George Fox, is an effective setting of words said to be attributed to Shakspeare. This also is published by Messrs. Enoch and Sons.

Mr. Under-Sheriff Crawford has been elected solicitor of the Company of Vintners.

The negotiations for the purchase of the Manchester, Sheffield, and Lincolnshire Railway by the Midland and Great Northern Companies have fallen through. The terms proposed by the Great Northern and Midland were an ultimate rent-charge of 4 per cent, which was declined by the Sheffield board, who proposed in return 4½ per cent, with contingent reserves.

Last week there arrived in London four Laplanders and seven reindeer, brought from Kautokeino through the enterprise of Mr. Farini. The Laplanders, with their dogs, an Arctic fox, two sledges, a tent, a variety of dresses, and two of the reindeer, are located at the Westminster Aquarium, while the Zoological Society has offered a free accommodation for the remaining five reindeer at its gardens in Regent's Park. These four Laps are the first, it is believed, that have ever visited England. They made their first appearance in public last Saturday afternoon. They are two men and two women, are stated to be cousins, and their ages from nineteen to twenty-one. They all, particularly the women, took as much interest in looking at the visitors as the visitors did in seeing them. They go through certain performances, such as catching the reindeer and harnessing it to a sledge, tent-building, thread-making, and singing, to illustrate the simple kind of life they lead. Mr. Carl Boek, who brought the party to England, offers explanations to visitors as to their habits, the methods of making their clothes, and other details.

M A L V E R N C O L L E G E

FOR ARMS and CREST, send Name and County to T. MORING, Inns of Court Heraldic Offices, High Holborn, W.C. Plain Sketch, 3s. 6d.; Coloured, 7s. 6d. Labels, Lilies, and Diplomas. Illustrated Price-List post-free.

THE LOVE CHASE.—The Merriest Game
— out for any number of Players. 24 Engravings. Post-for 14 stamps. CUPID'S MAGIC CARDS, 14 stamps.
H. G. CLARKE and CO., 2, Garrick-street, Covent-garden.

THE LARGEST STOCK OF
ORIENTAL CARPETS IN EUROPE.

"FOR THE BLOOD IS THE LIFE."
CLARKE'S WORLD-CELEBRATED BLOOD-
MIXTURE is warranted to cleanse the Blood from all impurities from whatever cause arising. For Scrofula, Scurvy, and all Blood Diseases its effects are marvellous. In bottles,
 6d. each, and in cases containing six tins at the quantity, 11s.
 6d. of all Chemists. Sent to any address for 3d. or 12s. stamps.
 The Proprietor, F. J. CLARKE, Chemist, London.

FASHIONS FOR THE WINTER OF 1877.
PETER ROBINSON, Oxford-street, W., is now offering an extensive and well-selected stock of SEAL, SABLE, and other CHOICE FURS, including
 Russian Seal Jackets,
 24 to 28 inches deep, 6s. to 10s.
 Demi-Fitting Seal Paletots,
 30 to 35 inches deep, 9s. to 20s.
 South Sea Seal Jackets, loose shapes, from 2s.

THE LATEST PRODUCTIONS IN MANTLES AND PALETOTS.
 Cashmere Circulars, lined Fur, 2 to 5s.
 Cashmere Paletots, lined Fur, 3s. to 8s.
 Silk Circulars, lined Fur, 3s. to 10s.
 Silk Paletots, lined Fur, 5 to 15s.

THE NEW DIAGONAL
 CLOTH PALETOTS, 2s. to 5s.
 The New Beaver Cloth Paletots, 2s. 9d. to 5s.
 New Ulster Mantles, 17s. 6d. to 22s. 6d.
 Waterproof Mantles and Ulsters, 17s. 6d. to 42s.
 Patterns and Engravings free from
PETER ROBINSON, OXFORD-STREET, LONDON, W.

A LARGE COLLECTION OF NOVELTIES FOR WINTER DRESSES,
 in every variety of Fabric and Shade of Colour, from 12s. 6d. to 42s. The Full Dress. Patterns free.

IN 62 NEW SHADES OF COLOUR.
 CACHMIRE DE PARIS.

This elegant material is all wool, beautifully soft, and richer in its colouring than any article previously introduced, 48 inches wide, 2s. 11d. and 3s. 9d. per yard.
PETER ROBINSON, OXFORD-STREET, LONDON, W.

VERY FASHIONABLE THIS SEASON.
 CASHMERE MERINOES, all Wool.

This most useful material can be had in every new Shade of Bronze, Vert, Bouillie, Prune, &c., from 2s. 2d. to 2s. 11d. per yard, 45 in. wide. Patterns free.

A NEW FABRIC FOR PALETOTS, &c.
 POIL DE CHAMEAU (Registered).
 This elegant Fabric, though very warm, is remarkably light and soft, and can be had in choice Shades of Fawn, Drab, Grey, Light Brown, &c., 54 in. wide, from 4s. 9d. per yard.

A NEW FABRIC IN BLACK.
 CRÊPE CASHMERE (Registered).
 A most useful material, in six different designs, full width, 1s. 9d. per yard. Specially adapted for this Season's Costumes. Patterns free from
PETER ROBINSON, OXFORD-STREET, W.

IN WHITE, BLACK, AND ALL NEW COLOURS.
 VELVET - FINISHED VELVETEENS,
 beautifully soft, rich, and very wide.
 This charming fabric can be had in Black, from 2s. 6d. to 5s. 6d. per yard, and in 35 choice Shades of Colour at 3s. 9d. per yard. Patterns free.

PETER ROBINSON, OXFORD-STREET, is now offering a new and delivery of New
COLOURED LYONS SILKS.
 In this collection will be found White, Cream, Ivory, Tulle, Moonlight, Coral, Eau de Nil, &c., specially prepared for
BRIDAL and EVENING WEAR;
 also, every new shade of Bronze, Navy, Claret, Prune, &c., at 3s. 6d., 3s. 11d., 4s. 4d., and 5s. 3d. per yard.
 250 Shades to select from. Patterns free on application to
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, OXFORD-STREET, W.

ONE THOUSAND PIECES OF BLACK GROS GRAINS.
 This extensive purchase comprises Silks of the best and most reliable makes, and are specially recommended.
 Prices 2s. 6d., 3s. 3d., and 3s. 9d. per yard.
 Also richer goods, from 4s. 6d. to 10s. 6d. Patterns free from
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, OXFORD-STREET, W.

COLOURED GENOA VELVETS,
 to match every silk, short pile, well covered, suitable for gowns, 6s. 11d. per yard. Any length cut.

BLACK GENOA VELVETS, suited for trimming purposes, 2s. 11d. to 7s. 6d. per yard.
 A special purchase of Black Lyons Velvet, all silk, at 6s. 11d. per yard, with bodice complete, 4s. 9d.
PETER ROBINSON, OXFORD-STREET.

COLOURED SILK COSTUMES,
 of the latest designs and most fashionable description,
 in all the new Coloured Silks, commencing at 6s.
 Patterns of the Silks and Engravings post-free.

BLACK SILK COSTUMES, made from the new Paris Models in eight different styles of the most approved designs, as shown in engravings. Price, with bodice complete, 4s. 9d.
 Patterns of the Silks and Fashion-Plates post-free from
PETER ROBINSON, OXFORD-STREET, LONDON, W.

NEW AND ELEGANT DESIGNS IN WINTER COSTUMES.
 Cashmere and Silk Costumes, 4s.
 Specialties in Costumes, suitable for travelling, promenade, and indoor wear, 2s. 6d. to 7s.
 Rich Velvet Velveteens (Costumes, 3s.)
 Illustrations and Patterns of Materials post-free.

IMPORTANT TO LADIES REQUIRING
 MADE BALL and WEDDING DRESSES.
 Now ready, several thousand charming Dresses, in White, Black, and all Colours, from 18s. 9d. to 10s.
 Engravings of the above, with many others, can be seen in the New Book of Fashions, which is sent post-free.

A FAVOURITE DRESS IN TARLATAN.
 THE "DORA," any Colour or Black, profusely trimmed with flosses and ample train, 1 guinea.
 A substantial job included.
 A pretty Brussels Net Dress in White, Black, and all Colours, for 2s. 6d., with material for bodice.
 Patterns of Materials and Illustrations free from PETER ROBINSON, OXFORD-STREET, LONDON.

DISSOLUTION of PARTNERSHIP of
 GASK and GASK.
 SALE of the whole of their immense STOCK of SILK
 MERCERY, GENERAL DRAPERY, &c., all New for this Season.
 GREAT REDUCTIONS IN PRICES have been made throughout, and all articles marked in plain figures, at the lowest prices,
 for ready money only.
 SILKS and VELVETS of all kinds, cheaper than they have ever been sold.
 BONNETS and PONSON'S celebrated BLACK SILKS,
 greatly reduced in price.
 COSTUMES, perhaps the largest and best stock of new Costumes in London. Paris models in Silks, Silk and Velvet, silk and Cashmere, new Silks and Woolen Fabrics, &c., all new marked exceedingly cheap.
 EVENING COSTUMES in Tulle, Net, Tarlatan, &c., beautiful new designs, all equally cheap, commencing at 1s. 9d. each.
 MANTLES, PALETOTS, JACKETS. All the vast collection, new for this season, of Paris Mantles in Cloth, Vignoles, Camel's Hair, Matelasse, Velvet, fur-lined Cashmires, and Silks, Sealskins, Ulsters, &c., has been re-marked at exceptionally low prices.
 DRESS FABRICS—A great collection of all the Newest Materies in Foreign and English, all marked at the reduced prices.
 GLOVES, HOSIERY, LINEN GOODS, BLANKETS, FLAN-
 NELS, CALICOES, LACE GOODS, TIES, SCARVES, FICHUS, RIBBONS, TRIMMINGS, UMBRELLAS, LADIES' UNDER-CLOTHING, MILLINERY, MOURNING GOODS, of all kind, &c.
 All purchasers must effect a considerable saving during this Sale.
 PATTERNS FREE TO THE COUNTRY.
 The Doors are Opened each Morning at Ten o'clock.
 28 to 63, Oxford-street; 1 to 5, Wells-street, London.

LADIES' IRISH ULSTER COATS.
 Made in the best manner by experienced Tailors. Immense variety of Irish Friezes and other fashionable materials. Patterns and Forms for Self-Measurement post-free.
RICHARD ALLEN, Sackville-street, Dublin.

BLACK SILKS.
 £20,000 WORTH.
 Faithfully recommended to their customers by Messrs. JAY.
 These Silks are unweighed, pure in quality, and may be JAY returned on to wear well.
 Present price 3s. 9d., last year's price 5s. 9d.
 " 3s. 9d., " 5s. 9d.
 " 3s. 9d., " 5s. 9d.
 " 3s. 9d., " 5s. 9d.
 " 3s. 9d., " 5s. 9d.

ALL WOOL POPLIN COSTUMES, of the latest designs and fashion, 2s. 6d. each, material for bodice included. "A remarkably cheap dress for this season of the year."

TO CHARITIES, COMMUNITIES, &c.
BLANKET SERGE.—Messrs. JAY have had manufactured a really stout, warm, and durable BLANKET SERGE in Black, Grey, and Dark Blue, suitable for Dresses or Petticoats, which they are now SELLING, in quantities of not less than one whole piece (sixty yards), at the low price of 1s. per yard.
JAY'S
THE LONDON GENERAL DRESSING WAREHOUSE,
REGENT-STREET, W.

COLOURED SILKS, Remarkably Cheap.
 We have just purchased three large parcels of Lyons Silks, in all new shades, suitable for Promenade, Dinner, and Evening Wear, unprecedently Cheap.
 Lot 1. 22 in. wide, all colours, 2s. 11d., formerly 3s. 11d.
 Lot 2. 22 in. " 3s. 11d., formerly 5s. 3d.
 Lot 3. 24 in. " 4s. 11d., formerly 6s. 3d.
 These goods are absolutely better value than we ever before sold.
 Patterns sent free to any part of the United Kingdom.
D. NICHOLSON & CO., 50 to 53, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

BLACK SILKS at LOWER PRICES than they have been sold for forty years. Owing to the depressed state of the Raw Silk trade we have made large purchases in Black Silks, which we have divided into Four Lots.
 Lot A. Prices per yard, 2s. 2d., 2s. 6d., 2s. 9d., 2s. 11d.
 Lot B. Prices per yard, 3s. 6d., 3s. 9d., 3s. 11d., 4s. 3d.
 Lot C. Prices per yard, 4s. 6d., 4s. 9d., 4s. 11d., 5s. 3d.
 Lot D. Prices per yard, 6s. 6d., 6s. 11d., 7s. 6d., 8s. 6d.
 The above are 30 per cent lower in price than this time last year.
 Patterns of all the qualities post-free.
D. NICHOLSON & CO., 50 to 53, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

NEW DRESS MATERIALS.—A Large Assortment of New Dress Materials for the present season in every shade, including the latest in Bourrette Cloth, from 10s. per yard.
 Snow Flakes, from 10s. per yard.
 Velour Cloth, from 1s. 6d. per yard.
 Cashmere Serge, from 1s. 6d. per yard.
 Matelasse, from 10s. per yard.
 Costume Cashmires, New Shades, 2s. 6d. per yard.
 Velveteens, Flannels, Household Linens, &c.
 Patterns of all the above post-free.
D. NICHOLSON & CO., 50 to 53, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

NEW WINTER COSTUMES and MANTLES.—SEVEN PRIZE MEDALS.
 700 Illustrations of the latest styles, with the prices of the Patterns cut in paper.
D. NICHOLSON & CO., 50 to 53, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

THE MOST LADYLIKE COSTUMES, PALETOTS, and ULSTERS.
 COSTUMES IN SNOOW-LAKE, 31s. 6d. to 105s.
 COSTUMES IN CASHMERE and SILK, 32s. 6d. to 105s.
 COSTUMES IN SERGE, 38s. 6d. to 78s. 6d.
 COSTUMES IN VELVETEEN, 38s. 6d. to 128s.
 COSTUMES IN TULLE, 42s. 6d. to 147s.
 ULSTERS IN CHEVIOT TWEED, 12s. 6d. to 30s. 6d.
 ULSTERS IN CAMEL HAIR, 31s. 6d. to 22s. 6d.
 ULSTERS, THE JERU, latest Novelty, 21s. to 42s.
 PALETOTS, Newest shapes, 15s. 6d. to 84s.
PATTERNS AND ENGRAVINGS FREE.
SPECIAL MEMORANDUM.
 Estimates given for Costumes illustrated in any of the leading Journals of Fashion.
BAKER and CRISP'S, Regent-street.

SILKS EXTRAORDINARY.—Patterns free.
 The very Richest Black, Coloured, Fancy, and Japanese
 Silks of every description, from 1s. 9d. to 5s. 6d. yard.
BAKER and CRISP'S, 198, Regent-street.

INDIAN CASHMERE and FRENCH
 MERINOS.—500 Pieces of these beautiful goods, in all the prevailing Colours, from 1s. 9d. to 2s. 11d. yard;
 45 in. wide. Patterns free.
BAKER and CRISP'S, 198, Regent-street.

NOTICE.—SPECIAL and IMPORTANT for LADIES, Families, Charities, Clubs, &c.—A BANK-RUPT STOCK and LIABILITIES of YORK and LONDON
 MATERIALS. In Bundles of 5, 6, and 10 Dresses to each Bundle. Money returned if not approved. 5 Dresses, 12 yards each, 48s. 6d.; 6 Ditto for 52s.; 10 Dresses, 12 yards each, 48s. 6d. Sent for P.O.O. to BAKER and CRISP'S, Regent-street.

ROYAL SILK MOLESKIN
 VELVETEENS.—1000 Boxes in Black, from 1s. 9d.;
 all the new Colours, from 2s. 11d. Patterns free.—BAKER and CRISP'S, Regent-street.

NOTICE.—DRESS FABRICS.—BAKER and CRISP'S.—Serge, Vignoles, Camel's-Hair, Snowflakes, and 100 other materials, for Walking, Evening, Wedding, and Dinner Wear, from 6d. yard. Patterns free.—198, Regent-street.

HENRY GLAVE'S
 GRAND EXHIBITION of COSTUMES, &c.—Photographs, Patterns of Material, and Instructions for Self-Measurement, and all particulars are sent free of any of the following choice Costumes, as lately exhibited at the Alexandra Palace:—

"Lichart," 25 18s. 6d.
 "Ledy Tazie," 23 18s. 6d.
 "Harrigate," 24 4s.
 "Silverton," 23 18s. 6d.
 "Bronley," 24 4s.
 "Crimine," 25 5s.
 "Zazel," 24 4s.
 "Clyde," 25 10s. 6d.
 "Bonnie Fishwife," 22 18s. 6d.
 "Chievick," 24 10s. 6d.
 "Daybreak," 23 18s. 6d.
 "Fleur de Thé," 29 18s. 6d.
 "Ventnor," 23 18s. 6d.
 "Glenhorne," 22 10s. 6d.
 "Clairmont," 22 10s. 6d.
 "Crimine," 25 5s.
 "Normandy," 22 18s. 6d.
 "Moscow," 26 6s.
 "St. Malo," 25 18s. 6d.
 "Chishhurst," 24 10s.
 "Rainbow," 24 10s. 6d.
 Photographs, Patterns of Material, and Instructions for Self-Measurement post-free.
 534, 535, 536, and 537, New Oxford-street, London, W.C.

HENRY GLAVE'S
 NEW SILK PATTERNS ARE NOW READY.
 2s. Princess Black Silk, 3s. 9d.
 2s. Princess Black Silk, 3s. 9d.
 2s. Princess Black Silk, 3s. 9d.
 2s. Princess Black Silk, 3s. 9d.
 2s. Princess Black Silk, 3s. 9d.
 2s. Princess Black Silk, 3s. 9d.
 2s. Princess Black Silk, 3s. 9d.
 2s. Princess Black Silk, 3s. 9d.
 2s. Princess Black Silk, 3s. 9d.
 2s. Princess Black Silk, 3s. 9d.

MADAME ELLIOT'S Stylish PALETOTS,
 Mantle Jackets, from 30s., trimmed fur, and also the new claid de lune trimming. Also very stylish Dress and Polonaises, beautiful quality black Cashmere, from 42s.; elegant Bonnets and Hats, from 10s. 6d.; specialty in French Coats, from 10s. 6d. Madame E. especially recommends the Cashmere Coats, with Jean d'Arc Belt, wonderfully adapted for ladies inclined to embonpoint. Price from 21s. to 42s. To prevent delay and inconvenience send size of waist and post-office order to 8, Great Portland-street (four doors from Oxford-street).

WOOLLEN CLOTHS.—Waterproof
 Tweeds, Matelasse Cloths, Sealskins, Fur Beavers, and other materials for Ladies' Jackets; also every kind of Woollen Goods for Gentlemen and Boys' wear.
C. MEERING and CO., Woollen Warehouse,
 111 and 112, Hatton-garden, Holborn-circus, London.*

LADIES' ELASTIC SUPPORTING
 BANDS for use before and after Accompaniment.
 Instructions for measurement and prices on application to POPE and PLANTÉ, 4, Waterloo-place, Pall-mall, London.

ROUND SHOULDERS and STOOPING
 HABITS Cured by Dr. CHANDLER'S CHEST-EXPAN-DING BRACE for both sexes. It assists growth, and produces a handsome figure. 10s. 6d. each.—Dr. Chandler's, Illustrations sent

WAYRE'S SEAL PALETOTS are greatly Reduced in Price.

WAYRE'S SEAL PALETOTS,
 30 inches long,
 from 8 to 12 guineas.

WAYRE'S SEAL PALETOTS,
 33 inches long,
 from 10 to 15 guineas.

WAYRE'S SEAL PALETOTS,
 36 inches long,
 from 12 to 16 guineas.

WAYRE'S SEAL PALETOTS,
 40 inches long,
 from 16 to 20 guineas.

WAYRE'S SEAL PALETOTS,
 46 inches long,
 from
 20 to 28 guineas.

WAYRE'S SEAL PALETOTS,
 40 inches long, richly trimmed with Real Marten Tails,
 12 inches deep, 20 guineas; Real Sable, 10 inches deep, 40 guineas;
 Skunk, 20 guineas.

WAYRE'S SEAL PALETOTS
 can be sent on approval to any part of the United Kingdom by forwarding a reference in Town to

MESSRS. WAYRE, Manufacturing
 Furriers, 96, Oxford-street, and 332, Oxford-street (corner of Regent-circus).
 Established Half a Century.

TO LADIES.—THE SHREWSBURY
 WATERPROOF TWEED CLOAKS, SKIRTS, and JACKETS, in every variety of shape and colour, are supplied by the original makers, E. W. and W. PHILLIPS, 37, High-street, Shrewsbury. Patterns and Prices on application.

SHIRTS.—FORD'S EUREKA.—"The most perfect fitting made."—Observer. Gentlemen desirous of wearing shirts of the best quality should try Ford's Eureka. 30s., 40s., 45s., half dozen.

ÆGIDIUS.—A New ELASTIC OVER-SHIRT, as warm as wool, as soft as silk. It will entirely dispense with the ever-shrinking coloured flannel. 13s. 6d. to 14s. 6d. each. Patterns of material and self-measure free by post.—FORD and CO., 41 and 44, Foulney, London.

"WEAR-RESISTING" (Regis.)
 BOYS' SUITS.

SAMUEL BROTHERS.
 Suit for a Boy 3 ft. 8 in. in height,
 C Class, 27s.; D Class, 31s.
 Prices varying according to height.
 Patterns, &c., post-free.
SAMUEL BROTHERS, Rydenham House, 55 and 57, Ludgate-hill.

69, LUDGATE-HILL.
TRELOAR'S REAL TURKEY CARPETS.
TRELOAR'S SEASONED FLOORCLOTH.
TRELOAR'S COCOA-NUT FIBRE MATS.
TRELOAR'S UNBLEACHED MATTING.
TRELOAR'S JAPANESE MATS.
TRELOAR'S CHINESE MATTING.
69, LUDGATE-HILL.

PRETTY FLOWERS.—Bridal, Bridesmaids,
 and other Bouquets of the choicest flowers tastefully
 arranged, at very moderate prices. Wreaths and Crosses, &c., cut flowers forwarded to any part of London or to meet any train.—WILLIAM HOOPEE, 88, Oxford-street, London, W.

TRAVELLING BAGS.
 Write for their "Bag Catalogue (Illustrated)"
MAPPIN and WEBB,
76, 77, & 78, OXFORD-STREET, } London.
 W.; 2, QUEEN VICTORIA-STREET, CITY.

GOLDEN HAIR.—ROBARE'S
 ACROLEINE produces the beautiful Golden Colour so much admired. Warranted perfectly harmless. Price 5s. 6d. and 10s. 6d. of all Perfumers. Wholesale, HOVENDEN and SONS,
 5, Great Marlborough-street, W.; and 55 and 56, City-road, E.C.
 London; 1, Grand and Meyer, 37, Boulevard de Strasbourg, Paris;
 31, Graben, Vienna; 44, Rue des Longs Chariots, Brussels.

DOES YOUR HAIR TURN GREY?
 THEN USE HERRING'S PATENT MAGNETIC BRUSHES
 and COMBS. Brushes, 10s. and 15s. each. Combs, 5s. 6d., 7s. 6d.,
 10s., 15s., and 20s. each. Pamphlets upon application.—5, Great Marlborough-st., W.; 55 and 56, City-road; and of all Perfumers.

NUDA VERITAS.—GREY HAIR restored by this valuable specific to its original shade, after which it grows the natural colour, not grey. Used as a dressing, it causes growth and arrests falling. The most harmless and effectual restorer extant. One trial will convince it has no equal.
 Price 10s. 6d., of all Chemists and Hairdressers. Testimonials post-free.—R. HOVENDEN and SONS, London.

JOHN GOSNELL and CO.'S CHERRY
 TOOTH-PASTE gives a beautiful Set of Teeth, makes the Teeth of pearl-like whiteness, and protects the enamel from decay.—Of all Chemists and Perfumers, at 1s. 6d. per Pot.

BREIDENBACH'S WOOD VIOLET
 PERFUME, fresh as morning-glaced flowers, 2s. 6d., 5s., 10s. per Bottle. Breidenbach's SACCHARINE, invaluable for preserving the Growth of the Hair, 2s. 6d., 5s. per Bottle.
 Of all Chemists and the Makers 177, New Bond-street, W.

FLORILINE. For the Teeth and Breath.
 Is the best Liquid Dentifrice in the World; it thoroughly cleanses partially-decayed teeth from all parasites or living
 "animalcules," leaving them purely white, imparting a delicious fragrance to the breath. Price 2s. 6d. per Bottle. The Fragrant Floriline removes instantly all odours arising from a foul stomach or tobacco smoke, being partly composed of honey, soda, and extracts of sweet Lilies and plants. It is perfectly harmless, and delicious as cherry. Prepared by HENRY C.
 GALLUP, 493, Oxford-street, London. Retailed everywhere.

VALUABLE DISCOVERY for the HAIR.
 If your hair is turning grey, or white, or falling off, use
 "The Mexican Hair-Restorer," for it will positively restore in every case Grey or White Hair to its original colour, without leaving the disagreeable smell of most "Restorers." It makes the hair charmingly beautiful, as well as promoting the growth of the hair on bald spots where the glands are not decayed. Ask any Chemist for the "Mexican Hair-Restorer," price 5s. 6d.
 Prepared by HENRY C. GALLUP, 493, Oxford-street, London.

PIESSE and LUBIN. SWEET SCENTS
 FOUR CADEAUX.—Opoponax, Jockey Club, Patchouly, Frangipanni, Lign-Aloe, White Rose, Peidum, and 1000 others from every flower that breathes a fragrance, 2s. 6d. each; three in a case, 7s. Sold by fashionable Perfumers in all parts of the World.—Laboratory of Flowers, 2, New Bond-street, London.

COLD CREAM of ROSES.—PIESSE and LUBIN prepare this exquisite cosmetic with the greatest care, fresh daily. In jars, 1s.—Laboratory of Flowers, 2, New Bond-street, London.

CLEOPATRA'S NEEDLE.—A neat Perfume
 Case, registered by E. RIMMEL, of St. Strand, London.
 On Sale (price 1s.) at the principal Perfumery Stores. Enthusiasts will be prosecuted.

SUNNY RAYS FOR GOLDEN HAIR.
 A few applications of which produce the most charming golden tint, varying in brightness by its frequency of use. It is perfectly harmless both to health and hair. An occasional use has a lovely effect upon any shade of brown without producing a perceptible change. In Bottles, at 5s. 6d.; per box, four extra stamps.—By CHARLES BOND, Coiffeur to her Royal Highness the Princess Louise of Hesse, 230, Oxford-street (opposite the Marble Arch).

ROWLANDS' ODONTO
 is the best Dentifrice for procuring White and Sound Teeth, Healthy Gums, and Fragrant Breath, being free from all deleterious and acid compounds, which give a temporary whiteness to the teeth, but ultimately ruin the enamel. Sold by Chemists, at 2s. 6d.
 Take no Odonto but Rowlands'.

CHAPPED SKIN.—THE ALBION MILK
 AND SULPHUR SOAP is a combination of the two articles acting specifically upon the skin—the milk giving softness, smoothness, and elegance; the sulphur, purification. By all
 Chemists and Perfumers, in Tablets, 6d. and 1s.—THE ALBION
 SANITARY SOAP COMPANY, 532, Oxford-street, London.
 Refuse substitutes.

HAIR DESTROYER.—248, High Holborn,
 L.—ALEX. ROSS'S DEPILATORY removes Superfluous Hair from Face and Arms without injury, 3s. 6d. Sent post, carefully packed amps. Curling Fluid, 3s. 6d.; or stamps.

HEALTHY SKIN AND GOOD COMPLEXION.

PEARS'S TRANSPARENT SOAP
 is the Best for the
TOILET, NURSERY, and SHAVING.
 Recommended in the "Journal of Cutaneous Medicine," edited by Mr.
ERASMUS WILSON, F.R.S.,
 used by
THE ROYAL FAMILY,
 and Sold by Chemists and Perfumers
 Everywhere.

WRIGHT'S COAL-TAR SOAP
 (SAFEO CARBONIS DETERGENS).
 Antiseptic, Detergent, Disinfectant. The most healthful, agreeable, and refreshing TOILET SOAP in the world. By its daily use, freedom from infectious diseases is secured; the complexion improved; pimples, blotches, and roughness removed; and the skin made clean, smooth, and lustrous.
 "In our hands it has proved most effective in skin diseases."—
 The Lancet.
 "It is the only true antiseptic soap."—British Medical Journal.
 In Tablets, 6d. and 1s. each, of all Chemists.
W. V. WRIGHT and CO., Southwark-street, London.

THROAT AFFECTIONS and HOARSENESS.—All suffering from Irritation of the Throat and Hoarse Voice will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of WRIGHT'S HOARSE-TROCHES. These famous Lozenges are now sold by most respectable Chemists in this country, at 1s. 1d. per Box. People troubled with a hacking cough, a slight cold, or bronchial affections cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious pulmonary and asthmatic affections.—Depot, 438, Oxford-street, London.

BRONCHITIS AND ASTHMA: their Spray and Pneumatic Treatment. By GEORGE MOORE,
 M.D. 1s., or 12 stamps.
 JAMES EYRE and Co., 170, Piccadilly; and 48

NEW MUSIC.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S

SPECIALITIES IN PIANO-FORTES.CHAPPELL and CO.'S STUDENT'S PIANOFORTE. Compass, five Octaves, 15g., or £1 10s.
per quarter on the Three-
Years' System.CHAPPELL and CO.'S SCHOOL
PIANINOS, Canadian Walnut, 30g., or 2g. per quarter on the Three-Years' System of Purchase.CHAPPELL and CO.'S YACHT PIANINOS, 30g., or 2g. per quarter on Three-Years' System of Purchase.CHAPPELL and CO.'S BOUDOIR
PIANINO, 30g., or 2g. 10s.
per quarter on the Three-
Years' System of Purchase.CHAPPELL and CO.'S MODEL
PIANETTE, 30g., or 2g. 10s.
per quarter on the Three-
Years' System of Purchase.CHAPPELL and CO.'S ENGLISH
MODEL, 40g., or 2g. 10s.
per quarter on the Three-Years'
System of Purchase.CHAPPELL and CO.'S COLONIAL
MODEL, 45g., or 2g. 10s.
per quarter on the Three-Years'
System of Purchase.CHAPPELL and CO.'S FOREIGN MODEL, 50g., or 2g. 10s.
per quarter on the Three-Years'
System of Purchase.CHAPPELL and CO.'S ENGLISH
OBLIQUE, 55g., or 2g. 10s.
per quarter on the Three-Years'
System of Purchase.CHAPPELL and CO.'S OBLIQUE
GRAND, 70g., or 2g. 10s.
per quarter on the Three-Years'
System of Purchase.CHAPPELL and CO.'S IRON-FRAMED
OBLIQUE, 80g., or 2g. 10s.
per quarter on the Three-Years'
System of Purchase.CHAPPELL and CO.'S MIGNON IRON
GRAND, 80g., or 2g. 10s.
per quarter on the Three-Years'
System of Purchase.CHAPPELL and CO.'S BOUDOIR IRON 110g., or 2g. 10s. per quarter
on the Three-Years' System of Purchase.UPWARDS of ONE HUNDRED
VARIETIES ON VIEW.MAY BE HAD OF ALL PIANOFORTE
DEALERS THROUGHOUT
THE UNITED KINGDOM.SHOW-ROOMS—50, NEW BOND-STREET.STEAM FACTORY—CHALK FARM-ROAD, N.W.

CHRISTMAS NUMBER OF

CHAPPELL'S MUSICAL MAGAZINE, containing the following Popular Dance Music:
Trial by Jury Lancers Charles D'Albert.
Constantinople Quadrille Charles D'Albert.
Die Fledermaus Walts Johann Strauss.
Les Lointains Walts Emile Waldteufel.
Walden's Dream Walts Edward Hansen.
The Schomberg Galop Charles D'Albert.
Florentia Polka Charles D'Albert.
Pizzicato Polka J. & J. Strauss.
Forget-me-not Galop A. Hecker.
And a New Quadrille,
MOLLIE DARLING, by CHAS. D'ALBERT.
Price One Shilling; post-free, 1s. 2d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE BALKANS. Descriptive Piece for the Pianoforte, by JULES DE SIVRAI, introducing Turkish and Russian Airs. Illustrated. 2s. net.

SCHIPKA PASS. Grand March for the Pianoforte, by WM.
SMALLWOOD. Illustrated. 1s. 6d. net.
MARCH OF THE PASHAS. For the Pianoforte, by J.
FRIDHAM. Illustrated. 2s. net.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.YES, OR NO? New Song. By FREDERIC CLAY. Sung by Mr. Barton McGuckin at all Concerts during his provincial tour. Price 2s. net.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.ARTHUR SULLIVAN'S NEW SONG.
THE DISTANT SHORE. New Song.
By ARTHUR SULLIVAN. Sung by Mr. Edward Lloyd.
Price (in 2 flat, F, or A) 2s. net.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.THOU'RT PASSING HENCE. By ARTHUR SULLIVAN. Sung at the Saturday Popular Concerts by Mr. Santley. Price 2s. net.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.THE FANFARE POLKA. By CHARLES D'ALBERT. Illustrated. 1s. 6d. net; Orchestra, 3s.;
Septet, 2s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHARLES D'ALBERT'S NEW DANCE

MUSIC.
SWEETHEARTS. Walts on Arthur Sullivan's popular Song. "One of the best waltzes ever written by the Net.
above favorite Composers." 2 0 TRIAL BY JURY LANCERS. On Airs from Sullivan's popular Work 2 0
TRIAL BY JURY QUADRILLE 2 0
TRIAL BY JURY POLKA 2 0
TRIAL BY JURY GALOP 2 0
BINK GALOP 2 0
The above, arranged for Full Orchestra, 3s.; Septet, 2s. each.
K.B. A Complete List of M. D'Albert's Popular Dance Music will be sent on application to
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

HAMMOND'S MUSIC PORTFOLIO.

Price 1s. each Number; post-free, 1s. stamps.
No. 1 contains:—
Bris des Nuits Waltzes Lamothe.
Hydropont Waltzes Gungl.
Mannella Waltzes Waldteufel.
Autograph Waltzes Strauss.
St. David's Quadrille Dan Godfrey.
Bruder Ludwig Galop Budik.
Contents of No. 2.
Le Premier Balser Waltzes Lamothe.
Venue Reigen Waltzes Gungl.
Don Lieben Langen Tag Waltzes Strauss.
Deutsche Herren Waltzes Strauss.
The Varsity Lancers D'Evilleville.
The Pet Schottische Bertrand.
Contents of No. 3.
Soldaten Lieder Waltzes.
Grubenberger Waltzes.
Dabbelm! Waltzes.
Jungheeren Tänz Waltzes.
Fantasbilder Waltzes.
Mein schönster Tag in Berlin Waltzes.
Contents of No. 4.
Frühlingstaler Waltzes Gungl.
Lille Waltzes Strauss.
Le Tour du Monde Waltzes Metra.
La Plaine Waltzes Lamothe.
Hochzeit (Wedding) Quadrille Strauss.
Pergola Polka Strauss.
Violin and Cornet Accompaniments to each Number, 6d. each.
A. HAMMOND and Co., 5, Vigo-street, London, W.GRAND MARCH OF PLEVNA. By S. MAYFIELD. "A very inspiring and spirited march for piano." Post-free, 2s.
Horwood and Gray, 42, New Bond-street.

NEW MUSIC.

BOOSEY and CO.'S LIST.

THE ILLUSTRATED SONGS OF

SCOTLAND. BOOSEY and CO. beg to announce a New and very superior Edition of the Songs of Scotland, containing twelve full-page Illustrations by Frank Dicksee. A. Hunt.
W. Small. F. Skelton.
E. B. Leighton.
The book contains 180 songs, the music edited by J. Pittman and Collin Brown, the words revised (with notes) by Charles MacKay. The illustrated songs of Scotland are printed in one volume, Imperial 8vo, very beautifully bound in cloth, gilt edges, price 10s. 6d. Ready on the 19th inst.BOOSEY and CO.'S CHRISTMAS PRESENTS IN MUSIC, all handsomely bound in cloth, gilt edges.
THE ILLUSTRATED SONGS OF SCOTLAND (180 songs with 12 full-page Illustrations), 10s. 6d.
BEETHOVEN'S SONATAS. Edited by W. Dorrell. 10s. 6d.
BEETHOVEN'S SEVENTY-FIVE SONGS. 4s.
SCHUMANN'S PIANOFORTE ALBUM. 4s.
CHOPIN'S WALTZES, NOCTURNES, and MAZURKAS. 4s.
STRAUSS'S WALTZ ALBUM (18 sets). 4s.THE ROYAL SONG-BOOKS.
RUBINSTEIN'S FIFTY SONGS. 4s.
RUBINSTEIN'S EIGHTEEN VOCAL DUETS. 4s.
BEETHOVEN'S SEVENTY-FIVE SONGS. 4s.
MENDELSSOHN'S SIXTY SONGS. 4s.
SCHUMANN'S SEVENTY-FIVE SONGS. 4s.
THE SONGS OF GERMANY. 4s.
The above have all German and English words.THE SONGS OF ENGLAND. 4s.
THE SONGS OF SCOTLAND. 4s.
THE SONGS OF IRELAND. 4s.
THE SONGS OF WALES. 4s.
The above form a complete collection of National Songs.SACRED SONGS, ANCIENT AND MODERN. 4s.
HUMOROUS SONGS. 4s.
CHOICE DUETS FOR LADIES' VOICES. 4s.
All the 4s. volumes can be had in paper covers, 2s. 6d. each.BOOSEY and CO.'S NEW SONGS.
F. H. COWEN. THE BETTER LAND.
A new setting of Mrs. Hemans's celebrated words, to be sung for the first time by Madame Antoinette Sterling at the first Ballad Concert. Price 2s. net.F. H. COWEN. AT LAST.—Miss ANNA
WILLIAMS will sing AT LAST in the following Towns:—Sheffield, Nov. 19; Leamington, 20; Cheltenham, 21;
Brighton, 22; Bournemouth, 23; Hastings, 24; Rochester, 25; War-tington, 26; Wolverhampton, 27; Bolton, Dec. 1;
Southport, 3; Liverpool, 4; Worcester, 6; Preston, 7; Glasgow,
8; Dundee, 10; Newcastle, 11; Birkenhead, 12; and Hull, 14.
Price 2s. net.F. H. COWEN. TRUANT LOVE.—Mrs.
H. GOOD will sing TRUANT LOVE for the first time at the Ballad Concert, Nov. 21. Price 2s. net.STEPHEN ADAMS.—THE TAR'S FAREWELL.—Mr. Santley will sing a new Song, by the Composer of "Nancy Lee," "The Tar's Farewell" (the Words by F. C. Burnand), at the second Ballad Concert, Nov. 28.
Price 2s. net.STEPHEN ADAMS. YOUTH AND AGE.
Mr. Maybrick will sing this new Ballad, by the Composer of "Nancy Lee," at the first Ballad Concert, Nov. 21. Price 2s. net.THE OLD SAILOR WIFE. BY MOLLOY.
The Words by Jean Ingelow. Madame Antoinette Sterling will sing "The Old Sailor Wife" at every concert during her provincial tour. Price 2s. net.NANCY LEE WALTZ. On the Celebrated Song. The Waltz of the Season. Price 2s. net, Solo and Duet; Septet, 1s.; Orchestra, 2s.NANCY LEE GALOP. By FREWIN.
On Adams's Popular Ballad. 2s. net. (This day.
Boosey and Co., 235, Regent-street.THE BEST INSTRUCTION-BOOK FOR CHILDREN.
LILLIE'S FIRST MUSIC-BOOK. With
12 Illustrations. Price 2s. 6d.
LILLIE'S SONG-BOOK. 100 Songs. Illustrated. 1s.
LILLIE'S ALBUM OF DANCE MUSIC. Illustrated. 2s. 6d.MUSIC FOR CHRISTMAS.
LAMOTHE'S WALTZ ALBUM (6 new sets), 1s.
WALDTEUFEL'S WALTZ ALBUM (8 sets), 1s.
STRAUSS'S WALTZ ALBUM (18 sets), 2s. 6d.HUMOROUS SONGS.—A Third Edition (making the twelfth thousand) of this popular book is just published, containing seventy-two of the choicest songs for the drawing-room, edited by J. L. Hatton. Among the contributors are:—
Offenbach.
Lecocq.
Arthur Sullivan.
Hattton.
F. C. Burnand.
H. Farnie.
Oxenford.
A. S. Gatty.BRAHMS' PIANOFORTE ALBUM contains his best pieces, including 16 Waltzes. 1s.
RAFF'S PIANOFORTE ALBUM. 1s.
RUBINSTEIN'S PIANOFORTE ALBUM. 1s.SECONDHAND PIANOS.—BOOSEY and CO. have a large Stock of Instruments by all the great Makers, which they offer, according to their custom on the close of the season, at greatly reduced prices. The majority of these Pianos have been hired for one season only, and are as good as new.—Sole address, 235, Regent-street.BOOSEY and CO.'S BRASS INSTRUMENTS FOR AMATEURS.
THE DISTIN CORNET, from £3 10s.
THE DISTIN CELEBRATED LIGHT VALVE CORNETS,
7 and 9 keys, are the best (Ordnance) made in England.
THE DISTIN MINIATURE CORNET-A-PISTONS, 9 g.
THE DISTIN BALLAD HORN in C, 9 g.
THE DISTIN DRAG and POST HORNS and BAND IN-STRUMENTS at all prices.
THE DISTIN MONTHLY BRASS BAND JOURNAL, 10s. 6d. per annum.The above instruments were exhibited by Boosey and Co., at the Philadelphia Exhibition, and were awarded a Prize Medal "For power and good quality of tone, and fine workmanship." Editories for Bands of all sizes, also illustrations and prices, to be had of the sole manufacturers, BOOSEY and CO., 235, Regent-street, London.ASHDOWN and PARRY'S CATALOGUES
OF MUSIC.
PART 1. PIANO, ORGAN, HARMONIUM.
PART 2. VOCAL.
PART 3. HARP, CONCERTINA.
PART 4. VIOLIN, VIOLONCELLO, ORCHESTRA, &c.
PART 5. FLUTE, CORNET, CLARINET, &c.
Sent gratis and post-free to any part of the world.
ASHDOWN and PARRY, Hanover-square, London.ASHDOWN and PARRY'S MUSICAL PUBLICATIONS are to be had of every Musician and Bookseller in Great Britain, Ireland, the Colonies, and India, or will be sent direct post-free at half the marked price (bound works and cheap vocal parts excepted) to any part of the world on receipt of remittance or satisfactory reference.
London: Ashdown and PARRY, Hanover-square.CHARLES HALLÉ'S PRACTICAL PIANOFORTE SCHOOL.
Section I.—No. 1. Pianoforte Tutor.
FOURTH BROTHERS, London and Manchester.MUSICAL LIBRARY SERIES.
Edited and carefully Fingered by CHARLES HALLÉ.
Fifty-eight Numbers now ready.
FOURTH BROTHERS, London and Manchester.CHARLES HALLÉ'S NEW EDITION OF POPULAR WORKS.
For List of Pieces already published Catalogues will be forwarded, on application, post-free, on application, post-free, 12 stamps.
FOURTH BROTHERS, 272, Regent-street, Oxford-street, London; and Cross-street, South King-street, Manchester.JULIA WOOLF'S NEW SONGS.
A GREAT SECRET. Words by F. E.
Weatherly, Esq. THE BEE and THE ROSE. Words by Agnes Trevor. "There is an irresistible charm of melody in both these songs."—Daily News.
Post-free, 2s. stamps.—B. WILLIAMS, 60, Paternoster-row.

NEW MUSIC.

METZLER and CO.'S NEW LIST.

Ready shortly,
THE SORCERER. An Entirely New and Original Modern Comic Opera, in Two Acts. By W. S.
GILBERT and ARTHUR SULLIVAN. Produced at the Opera
Comique. Price 5s. net.
METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London.NEW CHRISTMAS PRESENT.
NURSERY RHYMES and COUNTRY
SONGS. By M. H. MASON. Containing upwards of Sixty Rhymes and Country Songs, arranged for voice and pianoforte. With Six Illustrations (full-page). Price 2s., in paper cover; 3s., handsomely bound. Post-free.
METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London.FOR CHRISTMAS.
GATTY'S LITTLE SONGS for LITTLE SINGERS.—Thirty-six original Songs and Carols, arranged for voice and piano-forte. By A. SCOTT GATTY. Price 2s. 6d., in paper cover; 3s., handsomely bound. Post-free.
METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London.UP THE RIVER. Operetta. By HERVÉ.
Price 1s.
Libretto, Music, and Stage Directions complete.
METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London.METRA'S POPULAR NEW WALTZES.
METRA.—LA SÉRÉNADE WALTZ.
Price 4s.
Illustrated.
METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London.METRA.—LA VAGUE WALTZ.
Price 4s.
Illustrated.
METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London.METRA.—MÉLANCOLIE WALTZ.
Price 4s.
Illustrated.
METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London.Ready this day,
THE CLANG VALSE (The Clang of the Wooden Shoe) on Molloy's popular Songs. Arranged by CHARLES GODFREY. Price 4s.; post-free, 2s. stamps.
London: METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, W.Just published,
KING HENRY'S SONG. By ARTHUR
SULLIVAN. Introduced in the revival of "Henry VIII."
Price 4s. Half price.
METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London.Just published, BEDOUIN LOVE SONG. Composed by
CHRO PINUTI. Sung by Signor Foli with great success.
Price 6s.; post-free, 3s. stamps.
London: METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, W.Just published,
ACROSS THE FAR BLUE HILLS.
MARIE. New Song. By JACQUES HUBENTHAL.
Words by E. Weatherly. Price 4s.; post-free, 2s. stamps.
London: METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, W.SEA NYMPHS. The New Operetta. By LEBOCQ (now being represented at the Folly Theatre). The Libretto (written by H. B. Farnie) and the Music complete, with all stage directions, published at 2s. 6d., post-free, in Metzler and Co.'s Edition of Complete Operettas.
METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.WHISPERING KISSES. The New Song.
Is sung by Miss Violet Cameron in "The Crook" at the Folly Theatre with the greatest possible success, and is nightly encored. Post-free, 1s. stamps.
METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.SUNG BY MR. BARTON MCGUCKIN.
MINE OWN. A New Song, in C, E,
and F. By H. GADSBY; Words by F. E. Weatherly.
Price 4s.; post-free, half-price.
METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.W. SMALLWOOD'S NEW PIECES for PIANOFORTE. Illustrated Titles.
CRYSTAL BEWITCHERS.
AVALLETTE. Gondola Song.
FAIRY DREAMS.
Post-free, 18 stamps each.
METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.MASON and HAMLIN'S ORGANS.
Now ready.
Illustrated Book.
Post-free.
METZLER and Co., Sole Agents, Great Marlborough-street, W.MASON and HAMLIN'S ORGANS.
New Style 235. Nine Stops.
Viola Dolce, Seraphone, &c.
Price 28 g.
METZLER and Co., Sole Agents, Great Marlborough-street, W.MASON and HAMLIN'S ORGANS.
New Style 312. Ten Stops.
With Octave Coupler and Sub-Bass.
Price 40 g.
METZLER and Co., Sole Agents, Great Marlborough-street, W.NEW and POPULAR SONGS.
ALL FOR HER. No. 1 sop., No. 2 contralto. A. S. GATTY.
MAIDEN MAY. Two keys. A. S. GATTY. Sung by Madame Cave-Ashford.
BEFORE THE STORM. Baritone. A. S. GATTY.
MEHA. No. 1 tenor, No. 2 baritone. V. CAPOUL. Sung by
M. Capoul.
BE MY LOVE. Baritone. G. FOX. Sung by Wadmore.
MY TAB. No. 1 contralto, No. 2 mezzo-sop. JULIA WOLFF.
LITTLE NANNIE. Soprano. JULIA WOLFF. Sung by Mrs. Osgood.
THE TROOPER'S DREAM. Baritone. JULIA WOLFF.
Post-free, 24 stamps each.
Enoch and Sons, 19, Holles-street, W.THE MOST SUCCESSFUL OF MODERN SONGS.
GIVE ME THE MAN OF HONEST HEART (100th Edition). "The music of this song is melodious and pleasing from beginning to end, and the sentiment most excellent."—Daily News.
J. BATH, 40, Great Marlborough-street, W.HE WAS A CAREFUL MAN. The New humorous Song, written, composed, and sung by GEORGE GROSSMITH, jun. Encored five times nightly. Illustrated by Concanen. 18 stamps.
J. BATH, 40, Great Marlborough-street, W.OUR UNION JACK OF LIBERTY.
Song and Chorus. Composed by C. H. R. MARRIOTT.
"A vigorous and manly song; the best effort of this famous Composer."—Daily News.
J. BATH, 40, Great Marlborough-street, W.OUR TOAST! A hearty, jovial, new Song, written by R. Boosey; Composed by W. C. LEVEY.
A capital Song for penny readings, dinners, family parties, &c.
Post-free, 18 stamps.
J. BATH, 40, Great Marlborough-street, W.OUR TOAST!—"A merry song for Christmas, and on any feast-day, is 'Our Toast,' written and composed for a bass voice by R. Boosey and W. C. Levey."
—Vide Graphic, Oct. 27. J. BATH, 40, Great Marlborough-street, W.BATH'S SHILLING DANCE ALBUM is a wonderfully cheap collection of Quadrilles, Waltzes, Galops, Schottisches, &c., by Strauss, Oote, Marriot, and other well-known dance writers. The volume is well engraved on full-sized paper, with handsome illustrated title-page, and under ordinary circumstances would cost 12s. instead of 12d.—Vide Illustrated & D. News.
J. BATH, 40, Great Marlborough-street, W.Full music size.—"A marvel of cheapness."
MORLEY'S MARCH ALBUM. Price 1s.
A valuable Collection of celebrated Marches by Handel,
Mozart, Wagner, Rossini, Weber, Schumann, and others
(guaranteed strictly correct). The Volume, post-free, 12 stamps.
Sole Publisher, W. MORLEY, Jun., 70, Upper-street, N.

NEW MUSIC.

NOVELLO, EWER, and CO.'S MUSIC
PRIMERS. Edited by Dr. STAINER. The following are now ready:—THE PIANOFORTE PRIMER. By
ERNST PAUER. Price 2s.THE ORGAN PRIMER. By Dr.
STAINER. Price 2s.THE RUDIMENTS OF MUSIC PRIMER.
By W. H. CUMMINGS. Price 1s.THE ELEMENTS OF THE BEAUTIFUL
IN MUSIC. By ERNST PAUER. Price 1s.
NOVELLO, EWER, and Co.'s Music Primers.Second Edition, price 2s.; cloth, 3s.
CATHEDRAL PSALTER CHANTS.
Edited by the Rev. G. FLOOD JONES, M.A., JAMES TURLE, Rev. J. TROUTBECK, M.A., Dr. J. STAINER, and JOSEPH BARNBY.LIEDER OHNE WORTE. Eight Books.
The only Complete Edition. Cloth, 6s.; paper covers, 4s.NOVELLO, EWER, and CO.'S CHRISTMAS PRESENTS.
CHRISTMAS CAROLS, NEW AND OLD. Edited by the Rev.
H. R. Bramley and Dr. Stainer. With 45 Illustrations, engraved by the Brothers Dalziel. Elegantly bound, 7s. 6d.THE SUNLIGHT OF SONG. Sacred and Moral Songs, with Original Music by the most eminent English Composers. With 45 Illustrations, engraved by the Brothers Dalziel. Handsomely bound, 10s. 6d.NATIONAL NURSERY RHYMES. Set to Music by J. W.
Elliott. With 65 Illustrations, engraved by the Brothers Dalziel.
Cloth gilt, 7s. 6d.BEETHOVEN'S SONATAS. Edited by Agnes Zimmermann.
Folio, elegantly bound, gilt edges, 11s.; octavo, elegantly bound, gilt edges, 7s. 6d.; octavo, paper covers, 6s.MOZART'S SONATAS. Edited by Agnes Zimmermann. Folio, elegantly bound, gilt edges, 12s.MENDELSSOHN'S LIEDER OHNE WORTE. The best and only Complete Edition, containing the Seventh and Eighth Books. Folio, handsomely bound, gilt edges, 12s.; octavo, handsomely bound, 6s.; paper covers, 4s.ORDER NOVELLO'S EDITION.
RUBINSTEIN'S EIGHTEEN TWO-PART SONGS. German and English Words. Octavo, handsomely bound, 4s. 6d.; paper covers, 3s. 6d.SCHUMANN'S VOCAL ALBUM. English and German Words. Handsomely bound, 4s. 6d.; paper covers, 2s. 6d.SCHUMANN'S PIANOFORTE ALBUM FOR YOUNG PIANISTS (Op. 10, 43 and Op. 15). Handsomely bound, 4s. 6d.;
paper covers, 2s. 6d.GERMAN VOLKSLIEDER ALBUM. Original German Words; and an English Version by John Oxenford. Handsomely bound, 4s. 6d.; paper covers, 2s. 6d.A HISTORY OF MUSICAL TERMS. Edited by Dr.
Stainer and W. A. Barrett. 8vo, cloth, gilt edges, 16s.MUSICAL MYTHS AND FACTS. By CARL ENGEL. Two vols., 8vo, cloth, price 12s.London: Novello, Ewer, and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.; and 80 and 81, Queen-street, E.C.THE HOLY FAMILY. Sacred Melodies.
Arranged by W. H. CALLCOTT for the Pianoforte. Solo, complete in twelve books, 6s. each; duets, 6s. each; ad lib.
accompaniments for flute, violin, and violoncello, 1s. each. Each book free at half-price in stamps.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.MUSIC.—Just issued, gratis and postage-free, a CATALOGUE of more than 500 popular publications for the pianoforte, by Brinley Richards and George Frederick West.—Sole Publishers, COCKS and Co.GRATIS and POSTAGE-FREE.—LATEST LIST OF MUSICAL NOVELTIES (Vocal and Pianoforte), just issued by Messrs. ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street, London. Publishers to the Queen and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales.CONCERTS, PENNY READINGS, &c.
POPULAR SONGS, VOCAL DUETS, TRIOS, and QUARTETS (Part-Songs), selected from Messrs. ROBERT COCKS and Co.'s CATALOGUE. This List may be had gratis and post-free on application at New Burlington-street.THE LOOK-OUT QUADRILLE. For the Pianoforte. Composed by COTSFORD DICK. 4s.
(quite equal to the popular Osborne Quadrilles). Also, by the same Composer, A BINGING QUADRILLE, 4s.; and L'ÉCLAIR GALOP, 3s. (all with Illustrated Titles). Post-free at half price.
London: Sole Publishers, ROBERT COCKS and Co.SUTTON'S ELEMENTS OF THE THEORY OF MUSIC. A full, elementary, and cheap work. This treatise is found invaluable to the students and pupils in training colleges, convents, and schools; it exhausts the subject of musical notation, and contains the elements of harmony, and will be found most useful in preparing themselves thoroughly for the Cambridge Local Examinations. Post-free for 2s. stamps.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.BEETHOVEN'S SIX FAVOURITE WALTZES for the PIANOFORTE. Edited and fingered by GEORGE FREDERICK WEST. 1s. each. Mozart's favourite Waltzes, Nos. 1, 2, and 3, carefully and effectively arranged by Geo. F. West, 3s. each, post-free at half price. "In these days, when many people like to lay hands on little works by great men, these well-arranged trifles will doubtless be highly acceptable."—Vide Midland Counties Herald.
London: Sole Publishers, ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.HAMILTON'S MODERN INSTRUCTIONS
FOR THE PIANOFORTE. 114th Edition, 6s. pages, 4s.; post-free, 2s. stamps. The number of editions this work has passed through sufficiently guarantees its well-deserved and world-wide popularity. Appendix to the same work, by George Frederick West, 6s.; post-free, 3s. stamps.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.
Order Everywhere.NEW SONGS by ROBERT STANLEY.
Dear little Flowers. Easting.
When love's glow hath gone by.
Price 2s. each net.—CHAMBER and Co., 201, Regent-street.THE FOUR MARIES.
Old Ballad, as sung in Mr. Kennedy's Entertainment in St. James's Hall. Post-free for 18 stamps, from MEXTER, Singer and Co., 1, Unders-treet, or C. JEFFERY, Berners-street, London.STOLEN KISSES WALTZ.
By HANS WALDENFELD. Free, 2s.
Woon and Co., 3, Great Marlborough-street.AIR DU DAUPHIN. Ancienne Danse de la Cour. By ROECKEL. For Piano Solo, Duet, Violin, Harmonium, Orchestra, Organ-Paraphrase, by W. T. Best. Each
18 stamps.—AUGER and Co., 88, Newgate-street, E.C.GAVOTTE DE LOUIS QUINZE. By MAURICE LEE. Piano Solo, Duet, Violin, Orchestra, Organ Transcription, by F. E. Gladstone. 18 stamps each.
AUGER and Co., 88, Newgate-street; and Foubert's-place, W.

AUGENER and CO.'

RAOUF PASHA.

The command of the Turkish army in the Balkans, lately made vacant by the removal of Suleiman Pasha to command the army at Shumla and on the Lom, has been intrusted to Raouf Pasha. Our portrait of this Turkish General is from a photograph taken some years since at Canea, in Crete. It will be remembered that he was in command, last July and August, of one division of the forces opposed to General Gourko at Eski Zagra and Yeni Zagra, south of the Balkans, where Raouf

RAOUF PASHA, COMMANDER OF THE TURKISH ARMY OF THE BALKANS.

Pasha suffered a defeat, but was covered by the advance of Suleiman Pasha with a superior force, which soon compelled the Russians to retreat across the mountains. Raouf Pasha is a Circassian by birth, and thirty-five years of age. The Times Correspondent in the Shipka Pass thus writes of the position now occupied by Raouf Pasha:—

“As for the camp itself, the leisure time has been well utilised, as much in providing for its comfort as for the purposes of defence. The straw huts are now complete, their walls are thickened to the utmost, and their roofs covered with several layers of straw. Raouf Pasha and his adlatas, Schekir Pasha, live in wooden barracks, the subordinate officers in tents; while upon the heights of the Balkans, behind the batteries, live the soldiers, in earth huts dug out of the solid mountain, so that the whole slope appears to be honey-combed with dwellings. For the purpose of increasing the defensive power of the camp itself, a wall has been built round it, upon the outside of which a trench, five or six metres deep, has been dug, with steep, sloping sides. The inside of this wall has been strengthened with wood and shrubs. The wall and trench places the several tumuli which already existed here in communication one with the other. Upon these tumuli guns have everywhere been placed, and thus they have been converted into points of support for the line of fortifications. The avenue which stretches from the camp to the ruined village of Shipka has been partly cut down, so as not to hinder the transport of the guns. Through this village, the houses of which now furnish the material for making the earth huts impervious to the weather, runs the road to the batteries upon the summit of the Balkans. Directly behind the village rises a mountain, perfectly steep, over the rugged and bare surface of which runs a good road to the position of Salih Pasha, which lies between 350 and 400 metres above the village of Shipka. From this mountain, separated by a deep, impassable ravine, there rises a still higher mountain to the east, which is covered to the summit with thick bushes. Upon this mountain Redeschid Pasha has taken his position. To the west of the first-mentioned mountain, and separated from it also by a deep ravine, there is a thickly-wooded mountain, upon which the troops of Weissel Pasha are encamped. All these mountains fall off more or less steeply to the north. On the other side of the ravine, lying to the north of the first-mentioned mountain, rises, steep and apparently inaccessible, a rocky peak, which towers 150 or 200 metres above the mountain, and whose summit can be plainly seen from the camp of Shipka, high above the surrounding hills. From this it may well be seen that a storming of the Russian positions cannot be easily effected, and that an attack upon them is only possible when the enemy has been weakened by a heavy artillery fire. When this has been accomplished from each of the Turkish positions the attacking columns must first reach the bottom of the ravine, and from there attempt the storming of the enemy's camp, so that they must traverse the greatest part of a difficult road under the fire of the enemy.”

THE HON. A. THESIGER, THE NEW LORD JUSTICE OF APPEAL.

THE LATE COLONEL ROBERT BAIGRIE, C.B.

LORD JUSTICE THESIGER.

The recent appointment of the Hon. Alfred Henry Thesiger, Q.C., to succeed Sir Richard Amphlett as one of the Lords Justices of Appeals, has excited some discussion among gentlemen of the Bar; not that his ability or his attainments in

1. Plevna. 2, 2. Turkish Forts. 3. Turkish Trenches.

THE WAR: “TIMES” AND “ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS” CORRESPONDENTS IN THE RUSSIAN ADVANCED TRENCHES

professional knowledge were questioned, but that he was considered by some to be rather a younger man than has usually been chosen for so high a judicial position. He is third son of Lord Chelmsford, formerly Sir Frederick Thesiger, who was Solicitor-General and Attorney-General to Sir Robert Peel's Government till 1846, Attorney-General again in 1852, and Lord Chancellor in 1858 and 1866, in the Governments of the late Earl of Derby and Mr. Disraeli. The late Lady Chelmsford, mother of the Hon. Alfred Thesiger, and of other sons and daughters, was a daughter of Mr. William Tinning, of Southampton; the father of Lord Chelmsford was Mr. Charles Thesiger, Collector of Customs at St. Vincent's. The Hon. Alfred Thesiger was born in 1838, and was educated at Christ Church College, Oxford, where he took his degree of B.A. in 1860, and that of M.A. in 1861. He was called to the Bar at the Inner Temple in 1862, and was some time "post-man" of the Court of Exchequer. He rapidly gained a large practice and high reputation, and was created one of the Queen's Counsel in 1873. He married, in 1863, the second daughter of the Hon. George Handcock, a son of the late Lord Castlemaine.

The Portrait engraved is from one taken by the Surrey Photographic Company at Guildford.

THE LATE COLONEL BAIGRIE, C.B.

We have learned, with sincere regret, the death of this accomplished military officer, to whose assistance with a skilful pencil we were indebted, nine years ago, for many fine drawings to illustrate the British expedition in Abyssinia, under Lord Napier of Magdala, which afterwards furnished materials for a separate publication. Colonel Robert Baigrie, C.B., was Quartermaster-General to the Bombay Army, and Aide-de-Camp to the Commander-in-Chief. He was the last surviving son of the late Mr. John Baigrie, of Fearn, Ross-shire. The merits of Colonel Baigrie, both professional and personal, were highly appreciated by all classes of military men in India, as well as by a large number of private friends, to whom he was much endeared by the kindness and frankness of his disposition. He had risen to his high position in the Indian army through the force of his talents and energy. He was a cadet in the Honourable East India Company's service, and obtained his first commission as ensign in the Bombay Infantry in 1848. He commenced his active and useful career the same year, as he served with the Bombay column in the Punjab campaign of 1848-9, and was present at the siege and surrender of Mooltan, battle of Goojerat, pursuit and surrender of the Sikh army, and occupation of Peshawur, for which he received the medal and two clasps. He was present at the siege of Sebastopol in 1855. In 1857 he served with the Persian field force, including the battle of Kooshab, bombardment and capture of Mohumra, and pursuit of the Persian army up the Karoon river to Ahwaz, when his name was mentioned in despatches, and he received the medal and clasp. He took an active part in the Suppression of the Mutiny in India, under Sir Hugh Rose (Lord Straithairn). He was admitted into the Bombay Staff Corps in February, 1861; and in September, 1865, was appointed Assistant Quartermaster-General of the Mhow Division. He served as Assistant Quartermaster-General with the field force sent to Abyssinia in September, 1867, and throughout the campaign, being present at the action of Arogee, and the assault and capture of Magdala, when he was several times mentioned in despatches. For his services in Abyssinia he obtained the brevet of Lieutenant-Colonel and the medal. He subsequently served as Quartermaster-General of the Bombay army, with the rank of Brigadier-General, which appointment he relinquished in 1871. In 1873, in recognition of his distinguished services, he was nominated a Companion of the Bath. Colonel Baigrie died at Poonah, of apoplexy, on Sept. 25. Upon the announcement of this sad event at Calcutta a Gazette extraordinary was issued by the Governor in Council, in which the death of Colonel Baigrie is officially recorded "with the utmost grief." The minute recounts the eminent services of deceased in the Punjab campaign of 1848-9, at Sebastopol, in Persia, throughout the Mutiny, and the Abyssinian war. "Wherever duty called him," says the official minute of the Governor in Council, "he gained distinction, as the medals he wore and the official despatches testify. His soldierly accomplishments, his acts of daring, his capacity for organisation, are recorded in the military annals. As a leader in the field, as an example of discipline and duty, and as an adviser on the staff, his loss will be greatly felt. To the Government he served so long and so well belongs the melancholy right of paying this last tribute to his merits." This is high official praise, but not more than was due.

M. Prosper Henry, of the Paris Observatory, has discovered a new telescopic planet.

The Home Secretary, at the request of the county justices in Kent, has issued an order under the Wild Fowl Preservation Act, varying the close time for wild fowl in that county, "so as to be from March 15 to and inclusive of Aug. 1 each year."

Sunday being Hospital Sunday in Dublin, earnest appeals were made in all the Protestant and Dissenting churches of the city and county on behalf of the hospitals. In the Jewish synagogue £27 was subscribed. As in the three previous years, the Catholics did not join the scheme, and the hospitals which are under Catholic management do not share in its benefits.

The opening on Monday morning of the nineteenth and the largest board school in Birmingham was celebrated by a breakfast given by Mr. J. S. Wright, vice-chairman of the board. Mr. G. Dixon, the chairman, stated that with the present schools and those which would be completed by the time the term of office of the present board expired, there would be sufficient accommodation for all the children in the borough not attending voluntary schools.

Mr. Gladstone paid a visit to Kilkenny yesterday week, and was received at the station by the Mayor, wearing his chain of office, and the High Sheriff. Mr. Gladstone, who was accompanied by his wife, daughter, and nephew, and Lord and Lady De Vespi, inspected the Protestant and Roman Catholic Cathedrals, and called upon the Protestant and Roman Catholic Bishops, Drs. Gregg and Moran. He subsequently went over Black Abbey, which is now a Dominican church, the Roman Catholic College of St. Kieran, and Kilkenny Castle. He left in the afternoon for Abbeyleix. On Saturday Mr. Gladstone reached Woodlands, the seat of Lord Annaly, and dined with Lord and Lady Annaly, Sir Archibald and Lady Alison, Sir Bernard Burke, Captain Byng, the Hon. Charles Burke, and Captain the Hon. Charles Denison. Last Sunday afternoon the right hon. gentleman attended Divine service at St. Patrick's Cathedral. Mr. Gladstone left Dublin on Monday morning for Holyhead, on reaching which place in the afternoon he was presented with an address, in replying to which he spoke at some length on the question of the franchise, and on the Eastern Question, in regard to which he expressed his opinion that England, with the moral support of Europe, might have averted the war between Russia and Turkey.

MUSIC.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.

The two opening performances of Mr. Mapleson's winter season were commented on last week. On Wednesday Signor Runcio made a successful first appearance here as Riccardo in "Un Ballo in Maschera." The singer has a tenor voice of good capacity, and his cantabile phrasing is smooth and flowing. He made a very favourable impression in his opening aria, and was still more applauded for his delivery of the principal solo passages in the concerted piece, "E scherzo od e follia," which had to be repeated. In the duet in the second act, and in that at the close of the opera—with Amelia—Signor Runcio sang with much effect, and his reception altogether was such as to promise well for his future career. As Amelia, Mdle. Caroline Salla appeared for the second time this season, the character having been that in which she made her debut here in May last. Her performance on Wednesday was throughout of a high order of vocal and dramatic merit. The recitative, "Ecco l'orrido campo," and aria, "Ma d'all arido," at the beginning of the third act, were finely declaimed, as were the shares of Amelia in the following duet with Riccardo, and in that of the final scene. Madame Lablache gave with much effect the declamatory music of Ulrica, the Sorceress; Mdle. Bauermeister (at very short notice) efficiently replaced Mdle. Mila Rodani as Oscar, the Page, in consequence of the sudden indisposition of the last-named lady; and Signor Galassi, as Renato, sang artistically, and was encored in the aria "E sei tu." Subordinate characters were also filled as before.

On Thursday "Rigoletto" was given, with a very effective cast, including the excellent performances of Mdle. Alwina Valleria as Gilda, Signor Fancelli as the Duke, and Signor Del Puente as Rigoletto.

On Friday, Mdle. Anna de Belocca made her first appearance in this theatre as Cherubino in "Le Nozze di Figaro," the event having been postponed from Tuesday, owing to her indisposition—as mentioned by us last week. Mdle. de Belocca met with the same favourable reception as in her previous appearances, during Mr. Mapleson's occupation of Drury-Lane Theatre, having been much applauded in her delivery of the air "Non so piu," and encored in the canzone "Voi che sapete." The same occasion brought forward—for the first time here—Mdle. Parodi, who appeared as the Countess. The singer is, we believe, the daughter of the Madame Parodi who was a pupil of Madame Pasta, and a member of the company of Her Majesty's Theatre in 1849. Her voice is a mezzo-soprano, pure in quality and capable of much sympathetic expression—her cantabile being particularly good. She was very well received, especially in her delivery of the cavatina "Porgi amor" and the aria "Dove sono." Madame Marie Roze was an excellent representative of Susanna, both vocally and dramatically. Among several instances of her artistic vocalisation, her rendering of the air "Deh vieni" was a prominent one. The duet for Susanna and the Countess, "Sull' aria," was encored. Signor Galassi as Figaro, and Signor Del Puente as the Count, both sang with great effect, and the cast included the efficient co-operation of Madame Lablache as Marcellina, Signor Rinaldini as Basilio, and Signor Zobioli as Doctor Bartolo.

On Saturday "Robert le Diable" was performed, with a very effective cast, mostly identical with that of the past season. Madame Marie Roze sang the music of Alice with fine vocalisation and much dramatic feeling; Mdle. Alwina Valleria having given that of the Princess Isabella with brilliant effect (encored in the romanza "Roberto, tu che adoro"). Signor Fancelli, as Roberto, also displayed the same special merits as during the past season; Signor Foli's Bertramo having likewise been a repetition performance, as was the Rambaldo of Signor Rinaldini and other subordinate features. The clever dancing of Madame Katti Lanner, as the principal nun, in the cloister scene, was again a specialty therein; and the opera altogether was given with as much efficiency as during the regular season. There was a very large attendance.

This week's performances began with "Faust" on Monday, when Mdle. Caroline Salla reappeared as Margherita with much success, especially in the love-music of the garden scene, in that of the death of Valentine, the cathedral, and the prison. The cast was otherwise as on previous occasions, including the excellent performances of Signor Fancelli as Faust, Signor del Puente as Mephistopheles, and Signor Galassi as Valentine. Mdle. Anna de Belocca sang the two arias of Siebel with much refinement.

On Tuesday "Il Barbiere di Siviglia" was the opera, with Mdle. Anna de Belocca as Rosina—the character in which she made her London debut in 1875, and one in which the singer appears to special advantage. Again her beautiful voice and facile execution were successfully displayed, particularly in the cavatina "Una voce," and in the lesson scene, in which the introduced aria was Gounod's "Berceuse," and for the encore Wallace's "Good night and pleasant dreams." The cast was altogether a very good one, having included Signor Bettini as Almaviva, Signor del Puente as Figaro, Signor Broccolini as Basilio, and efficient representatives of the subordinate characters.

On Wednesday "Il Trovatore," and on Thursday "Le Nozze di Figaro" were to be repeated; for Friday "Il Flauto Magico" was announced, and for to-night (Saturday) "Les Huguenots."

The sixth of the new series of Saturday afternoon concerts at the Crystal Palace last week, opened with the overture to Professor G. A. Macfarren's new oratorio "Joseph," and included also fine performances of Beethoven's fourth symphony (in B flat) and the graceful ballet-music of Gounod's new opera ("Cinq Mars," which, like the overture just specified, was given for the first time here. Mdle. Anna Mehlig played, with marked success, Hummel's pianoforte concerto in B minor. Madame Lemmens-Sherrington and Miss Laing Meason were the vocalists, the latter having made her first appearance on this occasion and met with a favourable reception. Miss Meason has a contralto voice of agreeable quality, and, with further study and experience, will doubtless improve her position.

The twentieth season of the Monday Popular Concerts opened this week, when the quartet party consisted of those well-known artists, Madame Norman-Néruda, Mr. L. Ries, Mr. Zerbini, and Signor Piatti. The quartets performed were Schumann's in A minor (No. 1 of op. 41), and Haydn's in B flat (No. 3 of op. 55). Mdle. Anna Mehlig played, with much effect, Beethoven's variations in E flat (op. 35); and the principal part in Mendelssohn's pianoforte trio in C minor, her associates in which were Madame Norman-Néruda and Signor Piatti. Two part-songs, by Mendelssohn and Rubinstein, were well rendered by Mdles. Friedlander and Redeker, accompanied by Sir Julius Benedict. The first of the series of afternoon performances takes place to-day (Saturday).

The Borough of Hackney Choral Association began a new season, at the Shoreditch Townhall, on Monday evening, when an excellent concert was given, conducted by Mr. Ebenezer Prout, who now enters on the second year of his holding that office. There was an excellent band of picked performers; and the orchestral playing and the chorus-singing were both of a very high order. Mendelssohn's setting of the 13th Psalm, Mr. Prout's "Magnificat," and a selection from Weber's "Oberon" (besides one or two other pieces) were excellently rendered. The general efficiency of the arrangements, and the zeal and skill of Mr. Prout as musical director and conductor, are raising these concerts to a very high standard.

The Glasgow Public Halls were opened on Tuesday evening, the proceedings having comprised a performance of "The Messiah." Of the series of orchestral and choral concerts, which followed—including the production of Professor G. A. Macfarren's cantata, "The Lady of the Lake"—we must speak next week.

As already stated, the Covent-Garden Promenade Concerts will close on Monday, Nov. 19, with an extra performance, for the benefit of the directors, Messrs. Gatti. This week's specialties were an Italian night on Monday, a French night on Tuesday, and a German night on Wednesday.

The opening of the Opéra Comique Theatre, with the new opera ("The Sorcerer") by Mr. W. S. Gilbert and Mr. Arthur Sullivan, is now fixed for this (Saturday) evening.

The twelfth season of Mr. John Boosey's London Ballad Concerts will begin at St. James's Hall next Wednesday.

Next Thursday evening the Royal Albert Hall Choral Society will open its seventh season with a performance of Verdi's "Requiem," conducted by Mr. Barnby.

The fifth annual festival of the London Church Choir Association was held at St. Paul's Cathedral on Thursday, the 8th inst., when there was a large congregation. Forty-two choirs from various parts of London, numbering about 900 voices, took part in the service. There were two processional hymns, the music of one being composed by Dr. Bridge, and that of the other by Mr. S. Porter; the other hymn tunes were by Mr. B. Calkin and Mr. Gadsby. The prayers were read by the Rev. Mr. Russell, Minor Canon of St. Paul's, and the harmonies to the pieces and responses were from Mr. B. St. J. B. Joule's "Dic-torium Chori Anglicanum." The chants were by Mr. T. A. Blake. The Rev. R. Maguire and the Rev. Mr. D'Almaine respectively read the Lessons. The "Magnificat" and the "Nunc Dimittis" were by Dr. Stainer, and were composed for this festival, as was the anthem, "Happy is the man that findeth wisdom," by Mr. E. Prout. An anthem, "Bow Thine ear, O Lord," arranged from Verdi's "Requiem," by Mr. J. R. Murray, choir-master to the association, was also given. At this festival a departure was made from custom by the omission of the sermon. The offertory was for the purpose of meeting the expenses of the festival, but it was understood that the balance would be contributed to the Indian Famine Relief Fund. The "Hallelujah Chorus" brought the musical part of the service to a conclusion, and the Dean of St. Paul's then pronounced the benediction. Mr. J. R. Murray conducted, and the organ was played by Mr. W. S. Hoyte, organist of All Saints', Margaret-street; the organ music including voluntaries by Mendelssohn, J. S. Bach, Smart, Berens, and Mr. Hoyte. The festival was in all musical respects very successful, and the arrangements necessary for the conduct of a service on so large a scale in St. Paul's Cathedral were well carried out.

The reply of the Dean and Chapter of Worcester to the memorial forwarded to them by the Mayor and Corporation of Worcester representing the anxiety of the public for the continuation of the Festival of the Three Choirs at Worcester next year, and to the request of the festival committee for the use of the cathedral for that purpose, has been made known. The Dean and Chapter express their readiness to grant the use of the cathedral, "providing a satisfactory arrangement can be arrived at on the subject of the nature and arrangements of the festival." They do not object to the use of orchestral accompaniments, the employment of high musical skill, or to the performance of oratorios, but they ask—1, That all music performed in the cathedral should be connected with some religious service; 2, that admission should be given to all classes without condition of previous payment; and, 3, that the great object for which the meetings of the Three Choirs were originally instituted should be maintained. That object, they say, was the improvement of music in the Church itself, and they suggest that new Church music should form a portion of the festival. They still object to the payment for tickets of admission to the cathedral, and propose as a substitute that £1500 or £2000, should be raised by subscription for the necessary expenses, to which they propose to add £500, and that if thought desirable a portion of the area of the cathedral should be placed at the disposal of the festival committee and the Dean and Chapter; also that there should be on three of the mornings a grand service (besides an afternoon oratorio), and on the fourth an evening service to finish the festival.

THEATRES.

Mr. and Mrs. German Reed manage their stage with judgment, and, notwithstanding the great variety of pieces they produce, their ventures are rarely unsuccessful. On Monday a new production was presented to the select audience in Langham-place, entitled "Once in a Century," written by Mr. Gilbert & Beckett, with music by Mr. Vivian Bligh. The author has thrown his story into the feudal time, and his scene is an ancient dilapidated castle, suitable, in his fancy, for ghostly visitation. Once in a century it is visited by a whole family of ghosts, and, in expectation of their advent, Sir Digby Dimple, Bart. (Mr. Alfred Reed), the modern lord of the castle, an exceedingly amiable man, invests himself with an old coat of mail and a heavy sword, and at the stated hour has an interview, in which, we may at once confess, there is little of the supernatural. The legend connected with these spiritual appearances dates as far back as 1277, when the original Sir Geoffrey de Dymple was in Palestine, where he died, suffering from great pecuniary difficulties. There and then he uttered a "cumulative malediction" on his establishment at home, compelling the appearance of the ghosts, amid the castle ruins, at a stated time, of the Lady Leolinda, Sir Bouillon de Bouff, the Heiress of Whippingham, and Humphrey, the Headsman. These mythical personages have their living representatives in the characters of the drama—Mrs. Butterfligh (Mrs. German Reed), Michael Angelo Brown, an architect (Mr. Arthur Law), Lilian (Miss Fanny Holland), and Mr. Baily Young, Sir Digby's nephew (Mr. Corney Grain). Into these common-place people the ghosts subsequently transform themselves, and who ultimately then regard the whole dismal phantasmagoria as a dream. All this is a matter of course, and need not much tax the invention of either author, actor, or audience; nor do we think it did, and should have been sorry if it had. The party are early overtaken with a shower, and put up their umbrellas, singing, as is their bounden duty, a quintet. They then retreat to the protection of an old tower, leaving the boards clear for the spectral company, the members of which duly appear, conversing of their experiences in the past and the present. On some matters they have become wiser, on others they retain mediæval prejudices. They also, with Sir Digby, sing a quintet; and anon incur much confusion of thought and act, needing elaborate explanation, and meanwhile creating amusement for the bewildered audience. This object accomplished, the piece concludes; and Mr. Corney Grain reappears in a new musical sketch, entitled "At the Seaside," which is provocative of boundless laughter. The hall was exceedingly well attended, and the new productions were received with unanimous applause.

Few items of theatrical gossip are available for the present week. There has been a capital performance of "The School for Scandal" at the Gaiety, for the benefit of Mr. S. Hayes, of the West-End box-office. Mr. W. Farren was the Sir Peter Teazle, Mr. Hermann Vezin Joseph Surface, Mr. Charles Wyndham Charles Surface, and the other characters were all respectably filled. Mr. Farren, we understand, intends to appear on the 19th inst. at the Aquarium as Charles Surface, in support of Mr. Phelps, who will enact Sir Peter. Attention is specially invited to the Aquarium by the character of its performances. Every afternoon at three o'clock, in "The Man of the World" and "John Bull," Mr. Phelps has been advertised to appear at that theatre.

On Thursday a complimentary benefit to Mr. Horace Wigan took place at Drury Lane, including a great variety of entertainments, supported by a great number of eminent artists. The first acts of Mr. Burnand's "Family Ties," and of Mr. Albery's "Pink Dominoes;" the third act of "Henry VIII.;" the first act of Mr. Gilbert's "Engaged;" and the whole of "The Beggar's Opera," were the selected performances—supported by Mr. Horace Wigan himself, Mr. Charles Wyndham, Mr. Phelps, Mr. George Honey, and other eminent artists. Mr. Hermann Vezin also recited "The Raven," by Edgar Allan Poe. Many subscriptions have been already received.

Mr. J. Forbes-Robertson has been performing, with marked success, at the Olympic Theatre during the current week the leading part in Mr. Wilkie Collins's play of the "Moonstone," during the temporary absence of Mr. Neville in Paris.

At a meeting of the governors of the Royal Dramatic College, at the Adelphi Theatre, on Monday afternoon—Lord William Lennox in the chair—the following resolution was unanimously adopted:—"That, as it is impossible to keep up the Royal Dramatic College and provide for its inmates through want of sufficient support, there being at this moment no funds for the current expenses except by selling out the remaining sum of £1000 in the New Three per Cents, the council do forthwith take such steps as the Charity Commissioners may advise to dispose of the property and to provide for the inmates."

THE METROPOLITAN INNER-CIRCLE RAILWAY.

The Metropolitan District Railway Company, two months since, gave formal possession of land adjoining the Mansion House station to the Inner Circle Completion Company, in order to enable them to commence the necessary works for the new or link line from that point to the Metropolitan Railway near the present Aldgate station, and so to surround Inner London with a continuous circle. The Act for the link line was first obtained in 1874, but in consequence of various obstacles which interfered with the commencement of the undertaking, a second Act was passed in 1876 to extend the time originally granted. It is under this second Act that the works are now put in hand, and they must be completed within two years from Aug. 7 last.

Beginning at the Mansion House station, the new line will follow Queen Victoria-street as far as Cannon-street, and thence will pass under Cannon-street to the point where King William-street, Gracechurch-street, and Eastcheap meet. Here it turns to the north, passing under buildings which will be taken down, and falls into Fenchurch-street between Rood-lane and Cullum-street. It then follows the line of Fenchurch-street to a point a few yards eastward of the site of Old Aldgate Pump, and from there turns northwards, passing under Houndsditch to unite with the Metropolitan Railway by the Clothes Exchange. After leaving the Mansion House station, the first new station will be at Cannon-street, between Walbrook and St. Swithin's-lane, to allow of interchange of traffic with the South-Eastern Railway. The next will be at the corner of Gracechurch-street and Eastcheap, on the site of the National Provident Institution, and the third in Aldgate, at a point between the site of the Old Pump and Jewry-street. From the Eastcheap station to Fenchurch-street a new street will be made above the railway; and this street, for which the Metropolitan Board of Works and the Commissioners of Sewers have undertaken to pay half a million sterling, will be three sixteenths of a mile long, measuring from the statue in have business relations with him do not give him a very good character. He is often so ill educated as not to be able to read or write, keeping his accounts by a sort of shorthand of his own and by means of the stichety, or calculating machine. He is, moreover, not only ignorant, but by no means straightforward in his dealings; and those accustomed to the integrity of English, French, and German merchants will have to keep their eyes open when making bargains with the Russian kuptsi. If we turn from the commercial to the agricultural classes of Russia we find the same backwardness in all that constitutes modern industrial improvement. High, or scientific, farming, in the northern part of the country, at any rate, seems utterly unknown. The farmers themselves are only a superior sort of peasants, and their implements and methods of agriculture are still of the most primitive order. To this day the superstition prevails among them—not but what perhaps experience has proved that there is something in it—that if the ashes of wood burnt on a field be mixed with the soil it will secure a good harvest; and to bring about this result large parties are organised in the spring to cut down vast quantities of timber, which, left on the ground for a twelvemonth, is then burnt to ashes, and turned into the earth. As a matter of fact, however, Russian crops depend quite as much upon the character of the season as upon anything done by human ingenuity, though, to do the Russian agricultural classes justice, they are hardworking enough, as indeed they need be considering how little they are aided by mechanical contrivances. In fact, in the Communes, where the land is divided among the people in small allotments, it is almost impossible to hire labour, and so the farmer has chiefly to depend upon the exertions of himself and his wife and children. All this industry is relieved by frequent holidays and festivals, for the Russians are a remarkably pious people, and have the greatest reverence for saints and saints' days. Doubtless, there are few who go to the extreme length of that peculiar class known variously as "Old Religionists," "Old Ritualists," and "Old Believers," who exceed in the outward forms of sanctity even those who are generally regarded as orthodox. The Old Religionists are intensely devoted to forms and ceremonies, and their habits are so exclusive as to constitute them a distinct caste by themselves. They are as particular as the most old-fashioned Jews in the matter of food, and have as great a horror of such edibles as sugar and potatoes, and such drinks as wine and spirits, as the Hebrew has of bread in Passover or of pork at any time. These bigots will not even eat from the same dish or drink from the same cup that has been used by others not of their sect, but carry their own feeding utensils about with them. They live in a perpetual dread of doing or touching some unclean thing, and, to avoid contamination, frequent traktirs, or restaurants, kept by members of their own community, when they are unable to take their meals at home. Strange to say, these peculiar habits of theirs make them much sought after as workmen, for their practice of totally abstaining from drinking and smoking no doubt renders them more trustworthy than the common vodka-and-tobacco-loving Russian artisan. Among the more fanatical of the religious community, again, are the pilgrims, who are perpetually making long journeys to the shrines and tombs of famous Russian saints. They go in bands of fifty or sixty, including women and children as well as men, with staff in hand and water-bottle at the belt, singing hymns as they trudge through the country, and kneeling in devout prayer at every wayside chapel. An extremely interesting account of a Russian pilgrimage to the island of Solovetsk, in the White Sea, is given by Mr. Hepworth Dixon in his "Free Russia." But, perhaps, the most favourite resort of Russian pilgrims is Kieff, in the south, where is the famous cave monastery, in the catacombs of which are to be seen the bodies of a hundred and fifty martyrs, lying "in their habits as they lived," and in a ghastly but wonderful state of preservation from decay. These cave dwellings, by-the-way, are among the strangest sights to be seen in Russia. In the Crimea there are large numbers of them, cut out from the face of the rock, and so extensive, in some instances, as to form entire towns, with streets, houses, churches, palaces, towers, and fortifications. They must have been constructed with vast labour; but who made them and why they were made are problems that have never been satisfactorily solved. Among the pilgrims to whom we have referred there are many wanderers who travel about the country as such, but by no means with any pious purpose. These vagabonds, notwithstanding their false pretence, are generally received with favour among the ignorant and superstitious peasantry, and drive a flourishing trade in the sale of relics and consecrated trinkets. All the marvellous stories they tell of the miracles they have seen with their own eyes at the shrines of the saints gain a ready credence, and they themselves can always get money, or at any rate food and lodging, on the strength of their assumed mission of piety. It is but a narrow distinction which separates such mendicant pilgrims from the beggars proper of Russia, whose organised mendicancy is among the curiosities of the social life of the country. There are actually begging villages, whose inhabitants devote their energies solely to the practice of alms-seeking. In the spring the whole begging community set out on their travels. Exchanging their ordinary clothes for squalid rags, they shut up their cottages and disperse themselves all over the country. They do not, however, wander at random, but each party has its allotted route, and they have fixed places of meeting, where they can assemble, compare notes, make arrangements, and start afresh. As the end of autumn approaches the beggars bend their steps back in the direction of their villages, where they live comfortably through the winter on the proceeds of their summer tour. Naturally, the best friends of the professional beggars and pilgrims are women. But the women of the lower classes in Russia, though pious and charitable, are not as a rule highly favoured by nature. In figure they are usually short and squat, their faces are round, with high cheek-bones, their features are coarse, and their complexions wear a pasty pallor. Here and there, however, a village beauty is to be met with, and the picturesqueness of the holiday costumes of the peasants show the attractions of such belles to advantage. Russian marriages in humble life are nevertheless guided chiefly by considerations of a more material character. So at the "bride fairs," which are held from time to time, and where all marriageable young women of the locality are drawn up in rows for selection by the marrying men, it is not so much the physical qualities of the lady as her pecuniary means which usually guide the choice of the suitor. If a damsel is pleasing in the eyes of the would-be bridegroom, his choice is made subject to the course of inquiry which he institutes through the medium of the professional match-maker, who negotiates between him and the lady's parents or guardians.

Such are a few among the more salient characteristics of Russian life, the individual representatives of which will be found depicted in our pages. If a few of these characteristics are not very attractive, they are at least curious and interesting. They are significant of the sort of civilisation which the great Northern Power is likely to introduce into the Slavonic provinces of Turkey whenever they may be brought under the august protection of the Czar.

PLAN OF THE METROPOLITAN INNER-CIRCLE RAILWAY.

King William-street. It will serve a very important purpose in relieving the corner of Fenchurch-street and Gracechurch-street from the press of traffic during the busiest hours of the day.

By the conditions of the Act of Parliament and of the several agreements which have been entered into, the work is to be begun at both ends and carried on until the two portions meet. As soon as the whole is completed, the present Metropolitan and District trains will run the entire Circle in opposite directions, so that passengers will be able to proceed from any point of the circle to any other point by train running either east or west. An important advantage incidental to this arrangement will be the saving of the time now occupied at Aldgate and at the Mansion House station in getting trains into the station and out again. The average detention of a train at an intermediate station is less than half a minute; but the average detention at each terminus is over three minutes, during which time the fuel consumed in keeping up steam would be nearly sufficient to take the train over the length of the new line.

In order to arrive at an approximate estimate of the probable traffic, that of the existing Metropolitan and District Railways was analysed, for the year 1875, in a very ingenious manner. The two railways were divided into four blocks, called respectively A B C and D. Block A extended from Bishopsgate to Portland-road, both inclusive; block B extended from Baker-street to Notting-hill-gate; block C from High-street, Kensington, to Victoria; and block D from St. James's Park to the Mansion House. No less than 189,762 persons were carried almost all round the line—that is to say, from block A to block D, or vice versa; but from block B to block C, or vice versa—there were carried 3,189,919. It is calculated that the traffic around the eastern end of the loop, when this is completed, will be at least as large as that between blocks B and C; and if this expectation is fulfilled, a fair dividend will be secured upon the outlay, heavy as that must necessarily be. Besides this local traffic, there will also be numerous trains belonging to one or other of the great companies who will gladly embrace the opportunity of picking up and depositing their suburban passengers upon the Inner Circle to which many of them must of necessity be bound. The total length of the link line will be one mile and four chains, and the total estimated cost is £2,100,000. Deducting from this sum the half million to be paid for the new street, there will remain £1,600,000 to be provided by the shareholders.

The completion of the new portion will leave the present Aldgate station of the Metropolitan Railway outside the Circle, as well as the short piece of line extending from this station to the proposed junction. It seems probable that this short piece will be rendered useful by being continued under Aldgate to unite with the goods terminus of the Blackwall and Blackwall Extension Railway and with the goods lines from the London Docks, which now terminate immediately on the south of Aldgate; and it is further expected that communications will be made with the passenger lines at the Fenchurch-street station.

While active preparations are being made for the completion of the Inner Circle, the directors of the District Railway are carrying out works at the other end of their system which promise to be of great public utility. They have lately opened direct lines to Hammersmith and to Richmond, and they are now about to pass from Hammersmith over the South-Western rails as far as Turnham-green, and thence by a new line of their own to Ealing. By this arrangement, passengers from Ealing will be admitted directly, and without change of carriages, to all the metropolitan stations of the District system, and will thus be brought within easy reach of Charing-cross, the Temple, and the Mansion House. With a view to the probable requirements of this traffic, the lines in the vicinity of Earl's Court are being altered and simplified, and other improvements are in progress in various parts of the line.

RUSSIAN CHARACTERS.

It has often been remarked that if we wish to see that which is most naturally characteristic of any people we must look for it not among the upper classes, but in the lower ranks of society. In the case of Russia, although its aristocracy, superficially regarded, are pretty much like other high-born and well-bred persons, we have not so far to go down in the social strata to find something peculiar and novel in manners and habits. The mercantile class, even in its higher grades, strikes the traveller at once by the resistance which it offers to the levelling tendencies of civilisation. A Russian merchant is indeed sui generis, and utterly unlike any similar individual in any other European country. Visit him at his private house, and you find yourself in the midst of all the luxuries of modern life. Marble, gilding, velvets, rich carpets, magnificent furniture, plate, crystal chandeliers, grand reception-rooms—in fact, all the appointments of a petty palace—overdone, no doubt, and in very bad taste—meet the eye. But the owner of all this showy splendour makes no attempt to match it in his own person. He will probably present himself to you in costume little more fashionable than that of a tradesman or farmer, and superior only in the quality of its materials. He will most likely be attired in a long double-breasted coat resembling a dressing-gown, beneath which appear great boots, reaching to the knee or thigh; while his hair, parted down the middle and worn long and evenly cut, and his great bushy beard, are almost the counterparts of those of your isostchik who has driven you to his door. His hospitality you will find ostentatious rather than cordial. He will give you a magnificent banquet, and if he can successfully invite to meet you one of those greater or smaller official personages whose society he covets more than any other sort of companionship, he is happy indeed to see you at his table. But those who

SKETCHES OF RUSSIAN CHARACTERS.

THE WAR: TURKISH TROOPS CHANGING QUARTERS FROM A SKETCH BY ONE OF

ARTERS FROM SINANKEUI TO KACELJEVO.
F OUR SPECIAL ARTISTS.

BATTLE OF GORNY DUBNIK: COLONEL CHEBINS KILLED WHILE LYING WOUNDED.

THE KAFFIR WAR: FIGHT OF OCTOBER 4 BETWEEN GALEKAS AND FINGOES AT BUTTERWORTH RIVER.

THE BATTLE OF GORNY DUBNIK.

Our Special Artist, Mr. Irving Montagu, now with the division of the Russian army commanded by General Gourko, to the westward of Plevna, sends two sketches of the battle fought on the 24th ult. at Gorny Dubnik, on the road from Plevna to Sophia. Here the Russians gained a signal victory, which was followed, on the 29th, by their capture of another important position at Telis, or Teliche, with 3000 Turkish prisoners, and on the 1st inst. by the capture of Dolny Dubnik, completely shutting up the approaches to Plevna on that side. The Times' Correspondent thus relates the action shown in our present illustrations:—

"I send you some details of the battle of Gorny Dubnik on the 24th. The place was the centre of the defences on the Sophia road, Dolny Dubnik on the east and Telis on the west being its outlying posts. It was strongly entrenched, with a principal redoubt of 400 yards outside and a small, high redoubt inside. This was flanked again at about 1600 yards on each side by a smaller redoubt, while lines of shelter-trenches and detached rifle-pits, extending over two miles, made up a very formidable position. The whole faced south, covering the little village of Gorny Dubnik, which lies in a hollow behind. It was held by about twelve battalions of Turks, under Chekhet Pasha himself, but he left the place early in the day. His troops fought under Achmet Fevzi Pasha, a very respectable soldier of fifty-four, who did his duty well. Chekhet's absence did not make much difference to his men, who fought well for seven hours, as Orientals always do behind walls. They had only four guns in all in the central redoubt. General Gourko crossed the Vid at the shallows near the village of Chirakov at six in the morning on the 24th. The troops engaged were the Second Division of the Guard—viz., the Moscow Grenadiers, Pauloff and Finland Regiments, and the Preobajenski Regiment of the First Division, each of four battalions—and the Guard Tirailleur Brigade, twenty-four battalions in all, with sixty-four guns and one regiment of cavalry, the Lancers of the Grand Duke Nicholas. The attack was ordered for one o'clock, so as to give the artillery full time to operate; but the same mistake occurred here as at Plevna on Sept. 11. The impetuosity of young troops feebly handled was not to be restrained. At eleven o'clock the Grenadier Regiment, which was on the Russian left, took the right redoubt with a rush. They immediately came under an awful fusillade from the central redoubt commanding it; and, what was worse, the whole artillery fire of their left wing was at once neutralised. Consequently, the fight languished. The Moscow Regiment, which followed the Grenadiers, took more to the right, and endeavoured, under cover of the banks and ditches of the chaussée, to storm the central redoubt; but they only added to the slaughter. The Turkish rifle-fire from the left redoubt took them in flank and rear, and strewn the road thick with corpses. The artillery fire of the Russian right wing was continued all this time; and the right column, consisting of the Pauloff and Finland Regiments, getting round by the ravines of the little stream on which Gorny Dubnik lies, swarmed up to the glacis of the great redoubt to within two hundred yards; but the commanding fire of the inside redoubt kept them also in check; and, losing hundreds of men and scores of officers, they could not gain an inch of ground. The Turks, with their four guns, and their twelve battalions, in a dirty little earthwork, held their ground from ten a.m. till five p.m. against sixty-four guns and twenty-four of the finest battalions of the far-famed Imperial Guard of Russia. Night was drawing on, and Gourko, despairing of success, assembled the brigade commanders, and gave the order to draw the men off under cover of the evening, when all of a sudden the men took the thing into their own hands. The Tirailleur Brigade—those four splendid battalions described in a telegram from Gorny Studen three weeks ago—crept round by the ravines and village completely in rear of the redoubt, and the men, breaking out of the hands of the battalion commanders, rushed up to the glacis, and, lying down, swept the whole rear parapet with the fire of their Berdams. At the same moment the Finland Regiment entered a break where the ditch and parapet had not been completed. When the Turks saw themselves outwitted and outnumbered they lost heart, and Achmet Fevzi Pasha at six in the evening hoisted the white flag. Those who were in the rear works made their escape under the cover of the darkness, though the Grand Duke's Lancers pursued them and killed a few. Seven battalions laid down their arms, and, to judge by the appearance of the men, were not sorry to exchange starvation and cold for better fare and a life free from shells; but Achmet Fevzi Pasha behaved with great dignity when questioned in Gourko's tent. Thus the persistence of the men turned what would have been another bloody repulse into a great success; but this paltry earthwork cost the Second Division of the Imperial Guard 154 officers and a little over 3000 men. It was not General Gourko's fault. His attack was admirably planned, and would have been well executed if the irrepressible impetuosity of the young Grenadier Regiment had not spoilt all and silenced half his guns for the whole day.

"While this action was going on, the First Division of the Guard, under Rauch, was blocking the Plevna road, and the 4th of the First Division, known in our books as the Gachina Regiment, but which has recently received back its old title of Jagerski, which it bore under Paul I., was detached as a flanking party to the west to observe Telis, where five battalions of Turks were entrenched with only three guns. Precisely the same thing happened there. What was intended for a reconnaissance only was converted into an assault by the dash of the young soldiers, who got under rifle fire and then broke out of their officers' hands. Their rashness, however, cost them dear. After getting within three hundred yards of the works they were withdrawn with difficulty at dusk; and the Turks, thinking they were retreating, sallied out after them with the bayonet. Nearly four hundred wounded remained on the ground close to the works; and these were all cruelly butchered." We forbear to repeat the writer's more particular account of horrible torture and mutilation inflicted by the Turks on the Russian wounded. The death, however, of Colonel Chebins, who commanded the Russian Jager regiment, was an incident that cannot be passed over without mention, as it forms the subject of one of our Artist's Sketches. This brave officer was lying wounded on the battle-field, when a Turkish Pasha was seen to ride up to him, and cut at him with his sabre, again and again, until life was extinct. The Russians, however, obtained a complete success at Telis five days later; and, on the next day but one, they took the third position, that of Dolny Dubnik, without serious resistance.

THE WAR IN KAFFRARIA.

The eastern provinces of the British South African Dominion (to give our colonies their future joint style and title, in anticipation of their speedy federal union), have been disturbed by a little war in the adjacent territory occupied by Kaffir tribes under a British protectorate. Kreli, the chief of the Galekas, disobeying the commands of Governor Sir Bartle Frere, who lately visited the frontier, but who was not met or visited by Kreli, has perpetrated some outrages, or permitted his subjects to do so, for which the Governor has deposed him, by a proclamation in her Majesty's name. A mixed force of armed police and colonial militia, with two guns, aided by Fingoes and other loyal natives who were aggrieved by Kreli's behaviour, has marched into the country beyond the Kei river, under Commandant Griffith. The first conflict was at the Ibeka, on Sept. 29 and the following day, when the Galekas were defeated with the loss of nearly five hundred men; but Sub-Inspector Von Hohenan and six other men of the European police force were killed. We have received from King William's Town, by the late Cape mail, a letter dated Oct. 9, from Lieutenant Teign Melville, Adjutant to the 24th Regiment, who forwards us a few sketches made by a brother officer, Lieutenant Coghill, Aide-de-Camp to Lieutenant-General Sir A. Cunynghame, K.C.B. Our correspondent was himself present at the action represented in our illustration, where about 500 Fingoes, led by two or three Englishmen, on the 4th ult., attacked the Galekas at a drift over the Butterworth river. After some smart fighting they drove the enemy back and burnt their kraals, or fortified villages, over a space of three or four miles; but their cattle were driven away over the hills. We further learn that, on the 9th ult., Commandant Griffith, with artillery, two troops of police, Bowker's Rovers, and about 2000 Fingoes, under Sub-Inspector Allan Maclean, and Mr. Pattle, assistant magistrate, Fingoland, went out for a reconnaissance at Kreli's kraal. A large body of Galekas tried to stop the advance. Six shrapnel shells put the main body to flight, when the Fingoes and Bowker's Rovers followed them. Some sharp firing occurred on the banks of the Quora River, where the "Rovers" had their full share of work. The enemy were completely routed and driven across the river. Kreli's "great place," his son's, and his chief councillor's kraals were all burnt. There were no casualties worth mentioning on our side. It is also reported that on the same day Captain Gray, with the Gombie and King William's Town men, while advancing from the Springs (a point about half-way between Toleni and Butterworth), crossed the Butterworth river and met a considerable number of the enemy. A sharp struggle ensued, resulting in a loss to the enemy of fifty killed; while on our side Private Wainwright was wounded in the head and Private Cogan in the thigh, but neither of them seriously. In another direction Major Elliot, with his Tembu levies, reports that he advanced into the enemy's territory beyond the Tahlene, meeting with but slight opposition. He burnt Sitchaka's "great place" and many other kraals. It is expected that Kreli will sue for peace. Commandant Griffith, when at the "great place," secured Kreli's "Ulsila" (the chief's official baton or staff of office). This will be regarded by the natives as an important event in our favour. Other sketches of the war shall be engraved.

THE MAGAZINES.

The most entertaining, and one of the most important, contributions to the magazines of the month is Mrs. Crawford's biographical sketch of M. Thiers in Macmillan. It is true that it is exceedingly discursive, and that the amount of positively novel information is by no means in keeping with its claim to be grounded on particulars supplied by the deceased statesman expressly for biographical purposes. It does, nevertheless, convey a most animated impression of its subject. Thiers's family history is fully gone into; it is especially interesting to notice the close resemblance between him and his father, a man hardly less gifted with originality, but who, for want of his son's admirable common sense, could never attain an assured position in the world. The most important political revelation is the degree in which Louis Philippe's policy was at one time actuated by his chimerical scheme of marrying his second son to Queen Victoria. Hardly inferior in interest is the striking account of the recent discoveries at Olympia, by Dr. Hirschfeld, late director of the excavations. The position of the ancient temple of Zeus and its appendages, the history of their decay, and the manner of their entombment, are explained with admirable lucidity. We trust that Dr. Hirschfeld's high estimate of the artistic value of his discoveries will be ratified by the general voice. Sir Rutherford Alcock repeats the suggestions of Captain Cameron for opening up the interior of Africa by a chain of trading-posts, and criticises the views of Mr. Stanley. The writer of a paper on "Pan-Slavists and the Slav Committees" entertains a high opinion of the Machiavellian subtlety of the latter bodies, whose intrigues, he says, are not really so much directed against Turkey as against Russian absolutism, which they hope to overthrow by urging it into a foreign war.

The Cornhill has a contribution of the highest merit in Mr. J. A. Symonds's splendid translations from the sonnets of Campanella. These poems, mostly composed during the philosopher's imprisonment, were printed during his lifetime in Germany, in a volume so scarce as to have long been almost utterly unknown. In Mr. Symonds's version they present a strong affinity to Milton's sonnets, and equally to Michael Angelo's, embodying lofty philosophical thoughts in language of corresponding majesty. The long neglect they have undergone is wholly unjustifiable, for, as remarked by Mr. Symonds, Campanella appears to much greater advantage as an inspired singer than as an exact thinker. "The Æsthetic Analysis of an Obelisk" enters into the reasons why the anticipated importation from Egypt should give us pleasure: firstly, as it appears, on sensuous; secondly, on emotional; thirdly, on intellectual grounds. "A Mighty Sea Wave" treats of the tremendous rushes across the entire width of the Pacific of water set in motion by earthquakes in Peru. Mr. Alfred Austin's "Last Redoubt" is a spirited ballad on an incident of the Bulgarian campaign.

Frazer opens with another of Dr. Carpenter's vigorous onslaughts on Spiritualism, which, according to the Doctor, has assumed the character and proportions of a mental epidemic corresponding to the ancient belief in witchcraft. It may be so; but, for the present, little seems to have been established beyond the notorious facts of an enormous amount of roguery among professional mediums, and that with such investigators as Mr. Crookes and Mr. Wallace a very little evidence goes a very great way. The most striking article in the number is a description of hop-picking in Kent by a writer who spent three weeks among the "hoppers." It is most graphic in its details, but most uncomfortable in its picture of the demoralisation of these people, and their animosity against all social institutions. They fortunately belong to a class not likely to count for much in English history, unless recruited by continuous distress in the classes immediately above it. Another dismal social picture is displayed in an essay on the West Indies, by Mr. H. E. Watts, whose tone, however, is so ill-judged and intemperate as considerably to impair the value of his testimony. His view of the islands is not so discouraging after all, if he is right in regarding coolie labour as a panacea for all their afflictions. Much more agreeable is an essay on the indigenous system of education in Burmah. The Burmese, it appears, have for ages enjoyed an organised system of education under the direction of the Buddhist monasteries—rude and inartificial, but still imparting reading, writing, and arithmetic. The priests, greatly to their credit, have allowed this to be supplemented by the improved methods introduced by the British Government; and the Government, equally to its credit, has proceeded on the old lines, and left the ancient ecclesiastical organisation undisturbed. The results have been most satisfactory. "In Devon and Cornwall" is one of "Patricius Walker's" pleasant trips, as pleasant to read of as to perform.

"Rides through Asia," "The Storm in the East," and "The Political Results of the War" are really too much of one theme for one number of Blackwood, or any other magazine. We turn with relief to the lively chapters of "Mine is Thine," with their graphic portrait of Lord Gernistoun—so smart a presentment of specially aristocratic foibles that one wonders how it was ever admitted into so Conservative a periodical. "A Recent Visit to Montenegro" also contributes, in one respect, to the prevailing monotony of the number, which it redeems in another by the brightness and vividness of its descriptive passages. There is an interesting review of Meadows Taylor's autobiography; and Mr. Martin's renderings of Heine are as successful as can be expected from a translator who does not profess himself to be a poet.

Mr. Archibald Forbes's contribution to the Nineteenth Century, "Russians, Turks, and Bulgarians at the Theatre of War," would unquestionably have been the magazine article of the month if its substance had not already appeared in the writer's valuable correspondence from the scene of action. It presents his well-known views in a more elaborate form, and his picture of the strong and weak points of the Russian army more especially will long be remembered as a piece of powerful and masculine composition. Mr. Gladstone's reply to Mr. Lowe on the county franchise is principally remarkable for the admission of a decline in the intellectual calibre of the Commons, attributed in some measure to the cost of elections. Mr. E. Wilson furnishes a neat and lucid sketch of the origin, history, and present crisis of Marshal MacMahon's Republican regency. Mr. Lockyer as an astronomer and Professor Hunter as a statistician combine to demonstrate the close connection of the solar spots with magnetic and meteorological phenomena on the earth. A regular period of eleven years between the maximum developments of solar spots seems established, and if its correlation with terrestrial phenomena can be made out, its bearing on droughts and famines is sufficiently apparent. Connected with this branch of the subject is Colonel Chesney's article on Indian famines. It must be feared that the writer's anticipations from irrigation are too sanguine, when it is considered that every system of irrigation presupposes an adequate supply of rain. Sir Erskine Perry's description of his morning with Auguste Comte is highly though unconsciously amusing. The philosopher expressed himself to his visitor as enchanted with their conversation, having taken good care that it should be to his liking by keeping it entirely to himself.

The leading contribution to the Fortnightly Review—Professor Tyndall's Midland Institute discourse on "Science and Man"—has already received such full discussion in the press that we need merely point to it as an example of the speaker's art in insensibly gaining the assent of his audience. Mr. Lowe is quite a different kind of dialectician, whose obtrusive combativeness repels those who might otherwise have been inclined to yield their assent. In the present instance he is advocating a most unpopular thesis—the inutility of our Indian Empire; and it certainly loses nothing of its obnoxiousness under his treatment. There is much to be said for his view in the pounds-shillings-and-pence aspect, and all higher considerations are excluded by the terms of the proposition as he puts it. The second part of Mr. Senior's conversations with M. Thiers embodies a highly spirited narrative of the Revolution of 1848, and, relating to facts and not principles, exhibits the statesman to much greater advantage than the former. Dr. Pattison's "Books and Critics" expresses the half-disdaintful, half-apprehensive feeling of a man of fastidious culture at the accumulation of inferior literary material. Mr. Balfour ingeniously twits evolutionists with the suggestion that, their own theory being but a stage in universal development, its truth, on their own showing, can be but provisional. Mr. Morley contributes a brilliant criticism of the Abbé Raynal's History of the Indies, and Mr. Leslie Stephen an acute one on Dr. Newman's retraction of his defence of the Anglican Church.

Almost everything in the Contemporary Review is moderately interesting; but the only paper calling for special notice is Professor Bain's essay on the Civil Service Examinations, a fine specimen of the unpractical character of merely abstract thinkers. Professor Bain proves to his own full satisfaction that languages should be excluded from subjects for examination, but he never troubles himself to inquire what sort of men the exclusion would give him.

After the spirited continuation of "Miss Misanthrope," the Gentleman's Magazine is chiefly remarkable for two rehabilitations—one of Lord Dundonald, who requires none, except as it affects the arrears of his pay claimed by his successor; and one of Marat, who needs rehabilitation too much to have much prospect of obtaining it. "The Genesis of Life" is a clear and able summary of the spontaneous generation controversy, leaning to the orthodox view.

The Atlantic Monthly has a very agreeable account of a visit to Portugal, valuable articles on Chaucer and De Quincey, and a spirited ballad on King Olaf. London Society relies as usual on "Proud Maisie," and Tinsley and Belgravia on the generally entertaining character of contents characterised by no specially remarkable feature.

Scribner's Monthly has two of its specialties in the shape of descriptive papers, profusely illustrated with most admirable woodcuts. One treats of the two chief American dainties, canvas-back and terrapin, with the methods of capturing and utilising the same. The most important contribution to the St. James's Magazine is a thoughtful criticism on Godwin, by Mr. G. Barnett Smith.

The Dublin University Magazine has a portrait and highly interesting biographical sketch of another veteran, Mr. Linnell, fifty years ago the friend of Blake, and, like Blake, psychologically as well as artistically significant.

We have further to chronicle the appearance of a new candidate for public favour in Mirth, a lively little periodical edited by Mr. H. J. Byron, and furnished with attractive contributions by Mr. Sala, Mr. Gilbert, and other writers of mark. The most interesting of any, however, is the introductory metrical address by Mr. Planché, worthy, in point and grace, of the veteran's best days.

Messrs. Cassell, Petter, and Galpin have issued the first part of a new work called "The Sea: Its Stirring Story of Adventure, Peril, and Heroism." This part is accompanied with a presentation engraving, very finely executed, of Mr. J. D. Watson's picture, "Saved," which alone is worth the price of the Number. It may be inferred, from what is said in the introductory chapter, that the new work is to treat of the natural history of the ocean, its science and poetry, as well as of navigation and shipwrecks, of maritime commerce, and of naval warfare. But these matters are to be dealt with, as it appears, in no methodical or chronological arrangement. The sight of the "Victory," in Portsmouth harbour, at once suggests a narrative of the battles of Cape St. Vincent and Trafalgar, from which the writer shifts his attention to the siege of Gibraltar, and thence to the conflicts of modern iron-clads and turret-ships, within the same chapter. The voyage of the Challenger, with the exploration of the ocean bottom and deep currents, is next related; and we doubt not that every chapter will afford something of interest.

We have also received Science Gossip, Charing-Cross Magazine, Ladies' Treasury, Industrial Art, Men of Mark, Cassell's Family Magazine, Englishwoman's Domestic Magazine, Young Englishwoman, Good Words, Good Things, Churchman's Shilling Magazine, Masonic Magazine, Golden Hours, Street Life in London, Picture Gallery, Argosy, Argonaut, Sunday Review, Month, and New Monthly; and the monthly parts of All the Year Round, the Sunday at Home, Sunday Magazine, Leisure Hour, Day of Rest, and Weekly Welcome.

OBITUARY OF EMINENT PERSONS.

SIR CHARLES FORBES, BART.

Sir Charles Forbes, Bart., of Newe and Edinglassie, in the county of Aberdeen, died on the 2nd inst., at Broomwood, Surrey. He was born Sept. 21, 1803, the second son of Sir Charles Forbes, the first Baronet, by Elizabeth, his wife, daughter of John Cotgrave, Esq., Major E.I.C.S., and succeeded his nephew as third Baronet, May 23, 1852. He was educated at Harrow, and was for some time Captain in the 17th Lancers. Sir Charles married, Aug. 21, 1830, Caroline, second daughter of George Battye, Esq., of Campden Hill, and leaves two sons, of whom the elder, his successor, now Sir Charles John Forbes, fourth Baronet, D.L., born 1843, married April 5, 1864, Helen, second daughter of Sir Thomas Moncreiffe, Bart., of Moncreiffe, and has a son and three daughters.

SIR HENRY PARKER, BART.

Sir Henry Parker, sixth Baronet, of Harburn, in the county of Warwick, died at Toronto, Upper Canada, on the 11th ult. He was born, June 16, 1822, the third son of Vice-Admiral Sir William George Parker, by Elizabeth, his wife, daughter of James Charles Still, Esq., of East Knoyle, Wilts, and succeeded to the baronetcy at the death of his nephew, March 15, 1866. He married, in 1848, Maria Jane, daughter of the late Thomas Hector, Esq., of Toronto.

SIR ROBERT BOAG.

Sir Robert Boag, Knt., J.P. and Alderman of Belfast, and Mayor of that city in 1875 and 1876, died on the 7th inst., at Glenorchy House, Newington, Edinburgh, the residence of his son-in-law. He was the son of the Rev. John Boag, of Blackburn, near Edinburgh (author of the "Imperial Lexicon"), by Agnes Hamilton, his wife, and was born in 1809. He received the honour of knighthood early in the present year, in recognition of his services in promotion of the public institutions and the progress of Belfast during the last thirty years. Sir Robert married, in 1834, Violet, only daughter of John Stevens, Esq., a member of the Merchants' House, Glasgow, and leaves issue.

The deaths have also been announced of—

William Nutt, Esq., J.P., of Droitwich, aged sixty.

Henry Carter, Esq., J.P., on the 8th inst., at Wickham, Hants, aged fifty-three.

The Rev. John R. Fletcher, D.D., Vicar of Quethiock and Rector of Lydford, at Plymouth, on the 10th inst., aged ninety.

Lieutenant-Colonel Edward Lee Ussher, Madras Army, on the 6th inst., at Tenby, aged seventy-four.

The Rev. Francis Parker Sockett, Rector of Wingerworth, near Chesterfield, on the 4th inst., aged seventy-six.

The Hon. Henry Brodrick, brother of Viscount Midleton, at St. Leonard's-on-Sea, on the 7th inst., aged thirty-nine.

Lieutenant-Colonel Charles H. White (late Coldstream Guards), 1st Royal Cheshire Militia, on the 7th inst., at Gladwyn, Wrexham, aged fifty-four.

Lady Seaford, on the 9th inst., at Hampton Court, aged ninety. She was the widow of Captain Sir Thomas Hardy, Flag Captain of Lord Nelson when he met his death.

Dr. Rowley, the Rector of Willey and Barrow, who, while preaching at Willey church on Sunday morning, fell dead in the pulpit. He had just entered his eighty-second year.

James Briscoe, Esq., formerly 38th Regiment, second son of the late Edward Briscoe, Esq., of Riverdale, Westmeath, J.P. and D.L., on the 5th inst., at Edenderry, King's County.

John Calthrop, Esq., of Stanhoe Hall, Norfolk, J.P. and D.L. for that county and for Lincolnshire, and lord of the manor of Marches in Stanhoe, on the 2nd, aged eighty-eight.

Dame Margaret Lee Harvey, wife of the Hon. Sir Charles Farquhar Shaud, Chief Justice of Mauritius, and daughter of the late Colonel and Mrs. Harvey, of Castlesemples, Kenfrewshire, on Sept. 23, at Mount Stuart, Mauritius.

Lady Anne Baird, on the 2nd inst., at her residence in Eaton-square, aged eighty. Her Ladyship was the eldest daughter of Archibald, first Marquis of Ailsa, K.T., and was married in 1821 to Sir David Baird, Bart., of Newbyth, who died in 1852.

The Dowager Mrs. Dymoke, late of Scrivelsby Court, Lincolnshire, on the 7th inst., in Paris. She was the only daughter and heiress of the Rev. Clement Madeley, D.D., and was married, Nov. 22, 1830, to the Rev. John Dymoke, of Scrivelsby Court, the Honourable the Queen's Champion.

Mrs. de Morlot (Constance), widow, youngest daughter of Sir John Ingilby, Bart., of Ripley Castle, Yorkshire, by Elizabeth, his wife, only child of Wharton Amcotts, Esq., of Kettlethorp Park, Lincolnshire, on the 22nd ult., at Berne, Switzerland, aged eighty-two.

Captain Peter Bowly, a Peninsular and Waterloo officer, at Cheltenham, on the 8th inst., in his eighty-sixth year. He obtained his commission as Lieutenant in the 4th Infantry in 1809, and was present with that regiment at the battle of Corunna, the siege of Badajoz, the battles of Salamanca and Vittoria, the siege and capture of San Sebastian, and the battle of the Nive. He was present also at the battle of Waterloo.

CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

All communications relating to this department of the Paper should be addressed to the Editor, and have the word "Chess" written on the envelope.

W. H. TAYLOR.—We have much pleasure in hearing again from our old contributor. The problem sent shall have every attention.

ED. AUBANCE.—Send a diagram of the position. We have no opportunity at the moment of referring to the number of the Paper in which it appeared.

REV. J. WILLS.—Your solution of Problem 1754 is correct, but reached us too late for notice in the ordinary way.

J. CLARKE.—Will you favour us with another copy of the problem referred to, as the one previously forwarded appears to have miscarried.

J. T.—The annual subscription to the British Chess Problem Association is merely 5s. Apply to Mr. H. J. C. Andrews, The Ferns, Addison-grove, Sydenham.

W. McARTHUR (Chichester).—Thanks for the information. We wish your new club all success, and hope the good example set will be imitated in other parts of the southern counties.

CORRECT SOLUTIONS OF PROBLEM No. 1757 received from F. M. and M. B. W., R. F. Prettejohn, Pongo Jun., A. A. D. H., E. L. G., and H. Beermann.

CORRECT SOLUTIONS OF PROBLEM No. 1758 received from D. H., H. P. Jones, S. A. Sillem, E. Burkhard, Minnie, Carl Tamand, J. Seillon, F. M. G., Pongo Jun., Jane N. J. (Utrecht), F. M. and M. B. W., H. A. N. M. Macrae, and C. B. Carlon.

CORRECT SOLUTIONS OF PROBLEM No. 1759 received from G. Campbell, A. A. Blue, R. U. Pongo Jun., Paul's Root, W. T. Aman, Watkins, Marian, Baz, Sarah, H. H. Brooks, W. Leeson, T. R. Y., Ghose, W. B. Grove, B. D. Skuse, Cant, H. A. N. M. Macrae, F. M. and M. B. W., F. H. Hawick, M. C. Heywood, S. Phelps, W. W. Madden, Only Jones, Dr. F. St. W. P. Welch, T. Clarke, Minnie, E. P. Williams, W. B. B., R. J. N. Canopino, W. H. Ward, A. Young, J. Thursty, Lulu, H. M. Pridmore, E. H. V. Emile Frau, A. Wood, T. E. Hughes, W. J. Seignfield, Walter, F. Atwood, Tychina, J. Sarjent, The Amateurs of Vieuxville's Cabinet, E. Burkhard, J. Sweden, E. Blake, C. A. Pryce, A. Bach, H. Roe, D. H., Hector, H. M. S., R. F. Prettejohn, Woolwich Chess Club, G. H. V., G. A. Bollinghall, S. Seljas, Robin Gray, Triton, E. Aubance, and E. L. G.

No. 1760 admits of a second solution, by 1. Kt takes P (ch). By the addition of a Black Pawn at Black's K 3rd, the author's conception will be preserved, and solutions of the problem as thus amended will be acknowledged.

SOLUTION OF PROBLEM No. 1758.

WHITE. BLACK.
1. Q to R 3rd. Any move.
2. Mates accordingly.

PROBLEM No. 1761. By H. SCHLESNER.

BLACK.

WHITE.

White to play, and mate in two moves.

CHESS IN VIENNA.

The following are two Games played between Mr. S. Hamel, of Nottingham, and Herr ADOLF SCHWARZ, of Vienna, during a visit of the former gentleman to the Austrian capital in the autumn of last year. Mr. Hamel, as is well known, has for years taken pleasure in looking up and playing with eminent players abroad, and he has from time to time favoured this column with some of the fine games he has contested on those occasions. He has lately been in bad health, but is now restored; a fact which we are sure will give as much pleasure to our readers as to ourselves.—(Giucio Piano.)

WHITE (Herr Schwarz).	BLACK (Mr. Hamel).
1. P to K 4th	P to K 4th
2. Kt to K B 3rd	Kt to Q B 3rd
3. B to B 4th	B to B 4th
4. Castles	Kt to B 3rd
5. P to B 3rd

Not so good as P to Q 3rd. At this point also White may adopt Max Lange's attack of 3. P to Q 4th, which, though it may not be strictly sound, leads to positions where the second player is likely to be exposed to much embarrassment.

WHITE (Herr Schwarz).	BLACK (Mr. Hamel).
6. P to Q 4th	P to Q 3rd
7. B to K 5th
8. P to Q 4th	P to Q 3rd
9. B to K 4th	P to K 4th
10. P takes P	Kt takes B
11. R P takes Kt	P to Kt 5th
12. Kt to R 4th	Kt takes P

Mr. Hamel, besides being a Pawn ahead, has obviously much the better game.

and, after a few more moves, White resigned.

(Allgaier-Kieseritzki Gambit.)

WHITE (Mr. Hamel).	BLACK (Herr Schwarz).
1. P to K 4th	P to K 4th
2. P to K B 4th	P takes P
3. Kt to K B 3rd	P to Kt 4th
4. P to K R 4th	P to Kt 5th
5. Kt to K 5th	B to Kt 2nd
6. P to Q 4th	P to Q 3rd

Kt to K B 3rd is considered Black's best continuation; but the move in the text, for anything we can see to the contrary, may very fairly be ventured upon.

WHITE (Mr. Hamel).	BLACK (Herr Schwarz).
7. Kt takes Kt P	B takes Kt
8. Q takes B	B takes P
9. Q takes P	Kt to K B 3rd

Both sides appear to have made the best moves; and certainly Black has no inferiority. Consequently, Herr Schwarz's divergence from the beaten track must be held perfectly justifiable, except so far as he may be considered to have given up the theoretical advantage accorded to the second player by the books.

WHITE (Mr. Hamel).	BLACK (Herr Schwarz).
10. Q to B 3rd	Q Kt to Q 2nd
11. P to B 3rd	Kt to K 4th
12. Q to B 5th	B to Kt 3rd

25. Q to Q B 2nd Q to B 5th (ch)
26. B to Q 3rd Q to B 8th (ch)
27. Q to Q sq Q takes Q (ch)
28. K takes Q R takes B, Resigns.

CHESS INTELLIGENCE.

At a meeting of the chessplayers of Chichester, lately held, an association to be devoted to the game was there and then formed, under the title of the Chichester Chess Club. Mr. G. R. Downe, of Runceton, near that city, was appointed secretary.

A problem tourney open to the world has been started by the American Chess and Problem Association. Six prizes are offered, and the amounts will be apportioned from the receipts as follows:—For the best original problem, 25 per cent; for the five best sets respectively, 25 per cent, 20 per cent, 15 per cent, 10 per cent, and 5 per cent. Each set to consist of three problems, in two, three, or four moves, and no composer to enter for more than one set. They are to be entered under a motto, and may be sent to any chess editor of the United States; or to the secretary, J. B. McKim, Cleveland, Ohio. The competition will remain open until March 31, 1878, and entries may be mailed up to that time.

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

The will (dated Sept. 8, 1870) of Don Antonio Escudon, formerly of No. 12, of the Callejon de Betlemiz, in the city of Mexico, and late of No. 15, Calle de Mendez, Sevilla, Spain, who died on May 18 last, was proved in London on the 30th ult. by Señora Doña Catalina Barron de Ecaudon, the widow, the executrix, the personal estate (presumably in this country) being sworn under £160,000. The testator charges and entreats his executrix, at his funeral, "to dispense with all expense for ostentation or worldly pomp, preferring to them that of works of charity and true beneficence, which will certainly be more meritorious;" and he "bequeaths to all the bequests which were formerly considered compulsory and pious, one silver dollar to each of them, and the sum which in conformity to law belongs to the bequest for the creation of public libraries." There is a bequest, at the discretion of his executrix, to his clerks and servants; and the remaining provisions of the will are in favour of his widow and six children.

The will (dated Aug. 31, 1875) of Mr. William Coles Dutton, formerly of Duncan-terrace, Islington, and late of No. 3, Upper Woburn-place, Tavistock-square, who died on Sept. 25 last, was proved on the 5th inst. by Miss Julia Marian Dutton, the niece, James Sharpe, and John Jacob Holtzapffel, the nephew, the acting executors, the personal estate being sworn under £50,000. The testator bequeaths to the British Orphan Asylum, Mackenzie Park, Slough; the London Orphan Asylum, Watford; and the British Home for Incurables, Clapham-rise, £100 each; to his niece, Miss J. M. Dutton, £2000, and all his real and leasehold estates; and there are some other legacies. The residue of his property he leaves upon trust for his said niece for life, and at her death one half of the capital is to go as she shall by will appoint, and the other half to the children of his brother and sisters.

The will (dated April 14, 1877) of Dame Charlotte Pole, widow of Sir William Templer Pole, Bart., late of Bayford Grange, Herts, who died on the 2nd ult., was proved on the 29th ult. by Mrs. Fanny Inglis Dick, the granddaughter, and Charles Cramond Dick, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £40,000. The testatrix leaves legacies to her son and grandchildren; £10,000 upon trust for her daughter Charlotte for life; one third of the trust funds of her own marriage settlement upon the trusts of the settlement of her granddaughter, Mrs. Dick; and the residue of her property she bequeaths and appoints to her said granddaughter and her husband.

The will (dated May 14, 1873) of Miss Emily Cooper, late of Cannon-place, Hampstead, who died on Sept. 10 last, was proved on the 20th ult. by Leyson Lewis, the nephew, the sole executor, the personal estate being sworn under £20,000. The testatrix gives to her sister, Mrs. Caroline Lewis, £6000; to University College Hospital, Gower-street, £100; and legacies to relatives and others. The remainder of her property she gives to her said nephew.

The will (dated Dec. 23, 1876) of Captain Bernhard Henry Entwisle, 5th Dragoon Guards, late of Carlow, Ireland, who died on Sept. 22 last, was proved on the 22nd ult. by Edward Loyd Entwisle, the brother, and Charles Alfred Swinburne, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £20,000. The testator gives his furniture to his wife, and, as she is amply provided for, he gives the rest of his property to his children.

The Rev. Edward Bushby's Will.—In our report of this will, which appeared last week, it was stated that the testator bequeathed to his nephew Daniel Harrison £8000. The Christian name of the Mr. Harrison to whom such legacy was bequeathed, is John, and not "Daniel."

EXPLORATION OF CENTRAL AFRICA.

The winter session of the Royal Geographical Society was opened on Monday evening in the theatre of the London University. Sir Rutherford Alcock, who presided, delivered an address with especial reference to the exploration of Africa, in the course of which he spoke highly of Mr. Stanley's enterprise and exertions. Pointing out that nearly all the European Governments, under the presidency of the King of the Belgians, had sent out exploring parties, Sir Rutherford remarked that all that was now wanted to complete the exploration of the whole of Africa was money. If the Portuguese Government were able to give £20,000 for this object, how much more ought the British Government, which had a much larger stake in the future of Africa, to be able to contribute? With money Africa could not only be explored, but civilised. Mr. C. Markham then read a portion of a paper by M. Brazon—"Description of Uniamuesi, the Territory of King Mirambo, and the best route thither from the East Coast." M. Brazon was born in Switzerland, joined a caravan which was going to the interior, and with it reached Urambo. Arrived there, he formed a close friendship with Mirambo, the King of the country, who gave him his daughter in marriage. M. Brazon believes the Saadani route to be the best, the most direct, and the safest, the caravans being under the protection of the allies of King Mirambo. Saadani is also just as near to Zanzibar as Bagamoyo, and is in daily communication with it. Two English missions are established at Saadani. Mr. Hutchinson, in the course of a few remarks on the president's paper, urged the importance of piercing Africa with good roads, and of securing an efficient agency to carry on the work of her civilisation.

The first of a fresh series of letters received from Mr. H. M. Stanley appeared, with a map of his route, in the Daily Telegraph of Monday, giving a description of the noble river "Livingstone," and of some of the dangers and perils so successfully overcome by the intrepid explorer. Mr. Stanley's despatch which narrates the circumstances of the death of Francis Pocock was published in the same paper on Wednesday. A third despatch, which contains a full and vivid description of the journey by land and water made down the channel of the "Livingstone" from Nov. 5, 1876, to Aug. 11, 1877, is announced to appear shortly in that journal.

Mr. Stanley, as appears from a telegraphic despatch received from Madeira, arrived at Simon's Bay, South Africa, on Oct. 22, with his followers, from St. Paul de Loando, on board her Majesty's ship Industry, kindly placed at his disposal by Captain Purvis, of the Danae, with the approbation of the Lords of the Admiralty. The Cape papers which have arrived at Madeira state that a hearty welcome was given to the Stanley expedition. The Portuguese Government officials at Loando, besides supplying clothes and food to Mr. Stanley's followers on their arrival there, distributed one hundred sovereigns among them.

The contributions to the Blantyre Relief Fund now exceed £12,000.

The joint police committees of the counties of Midlothian and West Lothian have appointed Mr. H. Stuart Johnson, Senior Deputy Governor of her Majesty's Prisons at Chatham, to the office of Chief Constable of these counties.

NOTICE.—CLEOPATRA TOILET SERVICES.—Messrs. OETZMANN and CO. have COMPLETED ARRANGEMENTS at the Works, affording GREATLY INCREASED FACILITIES for PRODUCING this SPECIALITY, and hope to keep pace with the demand, which they have hitherto been unable to do. Customers can now be supplied with any of the colours direct from Stock.—OETZMANN and CO., Complete House Furnishers, 67 to 79, Hampstead-road. Descriptive Price-List post-free.

FURNISH THROUGHOUT.

OETZMANN & CO.,

67, 69, 71, 73, 77 & 79,

HAMPSTEAD-ROAD,

NEAR TOTTENHAM-COURT-ROAD.

FURNISH THROUGHOUT.—OETZMANN and CO., 67, 69, 71, 73, 77 and 79, Hampstead-road, near Tottenham-court-road. Cabinet Factory, Albion Works, Drummond-street; Boddington Factory, Eagle-place, London, N.W. Carpets, Furniture, Bedding, Drapery, Furnishings, Ironmongery, China, Glass, Paper-Hangings, Pictures, Bronzes, Clocks, &c., and every other requisite for completely furnishing a house throughout.

THE IMMENSE RANGE of PREMISES formerly the EAGLE BREWERY having been REBUILT and ADDED to their SHOW-ROOMS, it is now one of the largest and most commodious in the world. Comparison of price and quality respectfully solicited before deciding elsewhere. OETZMANN and CO. are enabled to offer special advantages to Country Customers in delivery of Goods by their own large PATENT-TRUCKS, and in packing in position by competent persons. Descriptive Catalogue, the Best Furnishing Guide extant, post-free.—OETZMANN and CO.

DINING-ROOM SUITES.—OETZMANN and CO., Handsome Mahogany Dining-Room Suite, consisting of a Couch, Six Chairs, and Two Easy-Chairs, well upholstered in best leather, price 20 guineas; superior ditto, in Oak or Spanish Mahogany, with handsome Lounges, Six Stuffed Back Chairs, and Two Easy-Chairs, upholstered in best leather and finished in a superior manner, price 28 guineas; handsome Early English and Medieval Dining-Room Suites in Oak, consisting of a large Dining-Lounge, Six Chairs, and two noble Easy-Chairs, upholstered in best leather and finished in the best possible manner, price 35 guineas.—OETZMANN and CO.

THE SANDRINGHAM EASY-CHAIR, full size, upholstered very soft and comfortable, suitable for a room, price 25s.; Lady's ditto, smaller size, 21s.; also the Sandringham Couch, upholstered very soft and comfortable, price 2 guineas. Everyone about to furnish should see these marvels of excellence and economy. Price list post-free, same day on receipt of order per post.—OETZMANN and CO.

THE "NONPAREIL" BED-ROOM SUITE, complete, of galeine, superior to any hitherto produced at the price; is enamelled imitation of ebony, satin-wood, or any other handsome woods; also enamelled in drab or white ground, decorated with fine lines, any colour. Ditto, but having a large wardrobe, with silvered plate-glass in door, and a marble top to washstand, complete, 9 guineas.—OETZMANN and CO.

ARTISTIC CANE WINDOW BLINDS and SCREENS.—These fashionable Blinds can now be had from STOCK or MADE to ORDER in any size or design. Also Cane and Wicker Chairs, Ladies' Needlework Mounts, Flower Stands, &c., in colours or black and gold. Prices considerably below those usually charged for these goods. Illustrated Price-List post-free.—OETZMANN and CO.

CARPETS. FLOORCLOTH.

CARPETS. FLOORCLOTH.

CARPETS. FLOORCLOTH.

CARPETS. FLOORCLOTH.

CARPETS. FLOORCLOTH.

CARPETS. FLOORCLOTH.

CARPETS. FLOORCLOTH.

CARPETS. FLOORCLOTH.

CARPETS. FLOORCLOTH.

CARPETS. FLOORCLOTH.

CARPETS. FLOORCLOTH.

CARPETS. FLOORCLOTH.

CARPETS. FLOORCLOTH.

CARPETS. FLOORCLOTH.

CARPETS. FLOORCLOTH.

CARPETS. FLOORCLOTH.

CARPETS. FLOORCLOTH.

CARPETS. FLOORCLOTH.

CARPETS. FLOORCLOTH.

CARPETS. FLOORCLOTH.

CARPETS. FLOORCLOTH.

CARPETS. FLOORCLOTH.

CARPETS. FLOORCLOTH.

CARPETS. FLOORCLOTH.

CARPETS. FLOORCLOTH.

CARPETS. FLOORCLOTH.

CARPETS. FLOORCLOTH.

CARPETS. FLOORCLOTH.

CARPETS. FLOORCLOTH.

CARPETS. FLOORCLOTH.

CARPETS. FLOORCLOTH.

CARPETS. FLOORCLOTH.

CARPETS. FLOORCLOTH.

CARPETS. FLOORCLOTH.

CARPETS. FLOORCLOTH.

CARPETS. FLOORCLOTH.

CARPETS. FLOORCLOTH.

CARPETS. FLOORCLOTH.

CARPETS. FLOORCLOTH.

CARPETS. FLOORCLOTH.

CARPETS. FLOORCLOTH.

CARPETS. FLOORCLOTH.

CARPETS. FLOORCLOTH.

CARPETS. FLOORCLOTH.

CARPETS. FLOORCLOTH.

CARPETS. FLOORCLOTH.

CARPETS. FLOORCLOTH.

PETER ROBINSON'S
COURT and GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
REGENT-STREET,
is the largest and most important
warehouse of its kind in England.

AT PETER ROBINSON'S

WAREHOUSE FOR BLACK GOODS,
REGENT-STREET.

For TWO GUINEAS and up to FIVE.

CHOICE BLACK MATERIAL COSTUMES COMPLETE,
in the New Style,
(Princess Polonaise and Skirt).
Patterns and Photos free.

URGENT MOURNING.

"ON RECEIPT OF LETTER OR TELEGRAM"

MOURNING GOODS will be forwarded to all parts of England, on approval—no matter the distance—
with an excellent fitting Dressmaker (if required),
without extra charge.

PETER ROBINSON, 205, 206, 207, 208, Regent-street, London.

DEEP MOURNING ORDERS.

DRESSES, Costumes, Mantles, Millinery,
and all made-up articles,
in the most appropriate and best styles,
at the lowest possible cost.
Dressmaking and Millinery,
by clever and expert artists.

INEXPENSIVE MOURNING, as well

as the Richest Qualities, can be supplied by PETER ROBINSON,
upon the most advantageous terms, to Families,
The Court and Family Mourning Warehouse,
205, 206, 207, 208, Regent-street, London.

BLACK SILKS.

An Important Purchase
of Several Thousand Pieces by

PETER ROBINSON, of REGENT-STREET,
of the best wearing makes only,
and highly recommended.

Bonnet et Cie. at 5s. 6d.
Jaubert at 5s. 6d.
Ponson's at 5s. 6d.
Dugues at 5s. 6d.
The above are from 2s. to 5s. per yard
under last year's prices.

The Empress Cachemire at 6s.
Also excellent value at
2s. 6d., 3s. 6d., 4s. 6d., and 5s. 6d.

For Patterns, address
PETER ROBINSON,
205 to 208, Regent-street.

BLACK SILK DRESS VELVETS.

Exceedingly good qualities, at 7s. 6d., 8s. 6d., 9s. 6d., 10s. 6d., 11s. 6d., 12s. 6d.

A Special Bargain
in Lyons Velvet, at 10s. 6d.

Black Silk-Trimming Velvets,
at 6s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 8s. 6d., 9s. 6d., 10s. 6d., 11s. 6d., 12s. 6d.

As PETER ROBINSON'S, of REGENT-STREET,
Nos. 205 to 208.

FOR SIX GUINEAS.

Made of Rich Lyons Silk,
with Velvet Garniture.

Exquisitely cut and fashioned.
Copies of Paris Models.
Photos free.

PETER ROBINSON, of REGENT-STREET.

REMARKABLY CHEAP.

For One Guinea, A Black Quilted SATIN PETTICOAT.

For 2½ Guineas, A Black Silk TRAINED SKIRT.

At PETER ROBINSON'S, of REGENT-STREET.

FOR TWO GUINEAS, and up to Seven,

Costumes in New Black Materials,
in various fashionable Styles,
at PETER ROBINSON'S, of REGENT-STREET.

EVENING DRESSES, at One Guinea.

Black Brussels Net, at 20s. 6d.
Tulle (condition keeping), 60s.
Grenadine, 22s. 6d.

New Styles, well cut, and elegantly trimmed.
Illustrations free.

THE NEW CRAPE.

The Pure Silk Gordian Crape,
for Widows and Families.
Its advantages are—that it is made of Silk so pure that it will not crease when set upon,
nor spot with rain.

It is a richer black, free from dress and the gummed appearance so objectionable in other Crape.
The wear of every yard is guaranteed.

The Gordian Crape is a Speciality,
only to be obtained at
PETER ROBINSON'S, of REGENT-STREET.
The MOURNING WAREHOUSE, Nos. 205 to 208.
Excellent qualities at 4s. 6d., 5s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 9s. 6d.
Patterns free.

FUR-LINED CLOAKS

at Summer Prices.
Good useful Cloaks
at 3½ and 4½ guineas.

SEMI-FITTING SEAL PALETOTS,

33 inches long, for 3½ guineas.
38 inches long, for 4½ guineas.
43 inches long, for 5½ guineas.

At PETER ROBINSON'S, of REGENT-STREET.

NOTICE.—In reference to the above advertisements,

it is important that letters should be clearly addressed to 205 to 208, REGENT-STREET.

EGERTON BURNETT'S

ROYAL WELLINGTON SERGES.

"The Court Circular," "The Queen," "Myra's Journal," &c., unanimously testify to the superiority of Egerton Burnett's
Serges as per excellence the material for ladies' wear.

EGERTON BURNETT, Wellington, Somerset, respectfully calls attention to these admirable SERGES. He has repeatedly had the honour of supplying them direct to the ROYAL FAMILY, and orders are daily arriving from all parts of the Kingdom. Being woven from the finest wools, and of a permanent patent dye, which neither rain nor salt water can affect, they surpass all others in appearance and durability.

Prices from 1s. 6d., to the finest, at 4s. 6d. per yard.

R. B.'s New HAND-MADE VIGOROUS CACHEMIENNE and FUR-TRIMMED SERGES are most fashionable.

A SPECIAL STRONG MAKE IS MADE FOR BOYS' AND GENTLEMEN'S SUITS, 44 in., from 2s. 6d. per yard.

Pattern-Books of the various makes and shades sent free by post, and carriage is paid to Bristol or London on parcels over 2s.
Goods packed for exportation.

EGERTON BURNETT, WELLINGTON, SOMERSET.

SWAN and EDGAR are showing the choicest Paris styles in Costumes and Mantles for Autumn wear; also Sealskin Pelts, the most showy made from selected skins, commencing at 9 guineas. Designs and price-list free.

SWAN and EDGAR are offering a Stock of Black Silks made expressly for wear at 1s. 11d., 1s. 11d.,

1s. 11d., and 7s. 6d. a yard. New Dress Materials for Autumn.
Patterns free. Piccadilly, and Regent-street, London.

ROYAL ESTAMINE SERGES.—A Stock

of this beautiful warm material, in the new dark shades, now selling at 8d. per yard. Patterns free.
JOHN HUNTER, 62, Oxford-street, W.

DR. DUNBAR'S ALKARAM, or
ANTI-CATARRH SMELLING BOTTLE.
THE ONLY CURE for COLDS and
SORE THROATS,
BY INHALATION.

ALKARAM, if inhaled on the first

symptoms of cold, will at once arrest them;
and even when a cold has been neglected
and become severe, it will give immediate relief, and generally cure in one day.

ALKARAM contains no narcotic, and never produces any unpleasant effects. All those who dread the usual remedies for Colds, which almost always contain morphia or chloral, may safely avail themselves of this innocent and pleasant remedy. It acts as a slight cauter, but gives no pain; on the contrary, the smell is agreeable and reviving.

ALKARAM.

"Sandgate-road, Folkestone,
Jan. 4, 1874.

"Sir,—I have just obtained a bottle of your excellent and unrivalled Cure for Colds. I have tried at over 200 chemists for an effective cure, but never found one till I obtained your Alkaram, for which I thank you heartily.

"I am, Sir, yours, &c.,
"CYRIL DAVENOR."

ALKARAM may be safely used by

Children, as will be seen from the following Testimonial:—

"49, Grosvenor-road, Highbury.

"Sir,—Allow me to testify to the efficacy of your Cure for Colds. Six of my children were troubled with colds, and, having been induced to try your Alkaram, I have much pleasure in saying that it cured them in one day thoroughly.

"I am, Sir, yours respectfully,
"LOUIS GOLDSTEIN."

ALKARAM.

"25, Baker-street, May 10, 1876.

"Dear Sir,—Your Alkaram is certainly a great boon, and seems to have a wonderful effect in cases of Hay-Fever and Cold in the Head. It should prove more and more valuable during the winter months, when colds are so general.

"Yours truly,
"A. W. FOSTER, F.R.S."

ALKARAM.—Of all Chemists, at 2s. 9d.

AGENTS FOR INDIA—Messrs. Smith Stanistead, and Co.,
Calcutta.

AGENTS FOR AUSTRALIA—Messrs. Elliott Brothers, Sydney;
and Messrs. Hemmons, Laws, and Co., Melbourne.

Address DR. DUNBAR, care of Messrs. F. Newbery and Sons
37, Newgate-street, London, E.C.

DIGESTIVE LOZENGES

OF
VICHY,

Manufactured from the Salts extracted from the Mineral Waters.

The Vichy Lozenges should be taken by those persons whose digestion is difficult, painful, or laborious.

In cases of slow or difficult digestion, a few of the Lozenges should be taken before each repast.

The Lozenges are flavoured with peppermint, lemon, vanilla, rose, orange-flowers, or aniseette.

In Boxes, at 1s. and 2s. each.

VICHY SALTS FOR BATHS.

In Packets, for One Bath, 1s. 6d. each.

VICHY BARLEY-SUGAR.

An excellent Digestive Bonbon.

In Boxes, 1s. 6d., 2s. 6d., and 3s. 6d.

All these Preparations are guaranteed by the French Government.

Sold by all respectable Chemists.

LAXORA LOZENGES.—This Preparation will be found the most valuable remedy for Constipation, Singleness of the Stomach, Bile, Headache, and especially useful for Children and Ladies.

The "Lancet," June 9, 1877, reports:—"We have no hesitation in recommending this preparation. It is a great improvement on the preparations in common use for the same purpose, and will be really valuable in families."

"Medical Press and Circular," April 11, 1877:—"The Laxora Lozenges can be safely recommended."
C. B. C. Titchborne, Ph.D.:—"The Laxora Lozenges are efficacious, and nicely made."

Each Box contains Eight Lozenges, and sold, 1s. 1½d.
by all Chemists and Druggists; Wholesale, 2s. South-work-street.

DR. LELIEVRE'S ICELAND MOSS

POULTICE, superior to all (Patented), is exempt from all the inconveniences inseparable from Poultices made with Linseed or Bread. These poultices, when applied, dry up on the edges, rapidly ferment, giving a most unpleasant odour; and no dependence can be placed on the quality and freshness of the linseed meal. This New Poultice is instantaneous, for it is ready in a few seconds.
Sold retail by all Chemists; Wholesale, 2s. South-work-street, London.

A NEVER-FAILING REMEDY for Bilious and Liver Complaints, Indigestion, Wind, Spasms, Gid-diness, Dizziness of the Eyes, Habitual Constipation, &c.—Dr.

SCOTT'S BILIOUS and LIVER PILLS, without Mercury, are unequalled. Mild in their operation, they create appetite and strengthen the whole nervous system.—Sold by W. LAMBERT, 1A, Vere-street, London, W., and all Druggists; in Boxes, 1s. 1½d.
and 2s. 6d. The genuine are in a square green packet.

CONSUMPTION! CONSUMPTION!

SILPHIUM CYRENAICUM
(this celebrated plant of the ancients) has now been acknowledged by the principal celebrities of the French Faculty to be the only cure for Consumption and all affections of the Pulmonary Organs, Asthma, Bronchitis, &c. Its effect is magical, and the cure certain. To be obtained from all Chemists, with pamphlets, full instructions, &c. Wholesale from London Patent Medicine House.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS and OINTMENT.

The Pills purify the blood, correct all disorders of the Liver, stomach, kidneys, and bowels. The Ointment is unrivalled in the cure of bad legs, old wounds, gout, and rheumatism.

NEURALINE gives instant relief in TIC

DOLOREUX, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Toothache, Rheumatism, Gout, and all Nerve and Local Pains.—Mr. Edgar, Butts Lighthouse, Island of Lewis, thus writes to Sir James Mathieson:—"Mrs. Edgar cannot express her thanks to Lady Matheson for sending her the Neuraline. It proved the most successful remedy she had ever applied. The relief experienced was almost instantaneous."—Dated Nov. 24, 1866.

HAY FEVER, COLDS, and all Disorders

of the Mucous Membrane promptly cured by GLYKA-LINE.

LEATH and ROSS, Homoeopathic Chemists,

1A, St. Paul's-churchyard, and 9, Vere-st., W.; and sold by all
Chemists, in Bottles, 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 6d.; by post, 1s. 3d. and 2s.

TAMAR INDIEN.—Owing to the marked success of this fruit-lozenge—so agreeable to take and universally prescribed by the Faculty for constipation, headache, bile, hemorrhoids, &c.—Base Imitations containing drastic irritants are being foisted on the public. The genuine preparations bear the title "Tamar Indien." Price 2s. 6d. per Box.

HUNYADI JÁNOS.
BARON LIEBIG
AFFIRMS that its richness in aperient salts surpasses that of all other known waters.—Lancet.

HUNYADI JÁNOS. "The most certain and the most comfortable of all aperient waters, specially indicated in constipation, in portal congestion, with tendency to hemorrhoids, and in sluggish conditions of the liver."—John Macpherson, M.D., Inspector-General of Hospitals, Author of "Baths and Wells of Europe."

HUNYADI JÁNOS. APERIENT NATURAL MINERAL WATER.

MOST VALUABLE and PALATABLE.
Prof. MacNamara, Royal College of Surgeons, Ireland.

MOST AGREEABLE, SAFE, and EFFICACIOUS.—British Medical Journal.

HUNYADI JÁNOS. Highly efficacious, not only as an ordinary aperient, but also in cases of habitual constipation.—Dr. Roberts, University College Hospital.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS

REGISTERED AT THE GENERAL POST-OFFICE FOR TRANSMISSION ABROAD.

No. 2002.—VOL. LXXI.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 24, 1877.

WITH } SIXPENCE.
TWO SUPPLEMENTS } By Post, 6^d.

THE WAR: BEFORE PLEVNA; NIGHT BIVOUAC NEAR THE BIG GUNS OF THE FOURTH DIVISION.
FROM A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST WITH THE RUSSIAN ARMY.

BIRTHS.

On the 16th inst., at 51, Notting-hill-square, St. Mary Abbots, Kensington, the wife of James Mowatt, Esq., F.R.G.S., of Gonville and Caius College, Cambridge, M.A., and the Inner Temple, barrister-at-law, of a son (Ryder).

On the 16th inst., at Park-lane, Piccadilly, the Viscountess Folkestone, of a son.

On the 14th ult., at Moulmein, Burmah, the wife of Captain George Thomas, Madras Staff Corps, of a daughter.

On the 19th inst., the wife of the Rev. J. Albert Cheese, Gosforth Rectory, Cumberland, of a son.

MARRIAGES.

On the 10th inst., at Brigsteed church, Mitchelstown, in the county of Cork, by the Rev. J. W. Johnstone, Rector of the parish, assisted by the Rev. John Leech, Chaplain Kingston College, Captain Arthur Grey Duberly, 16th Regiment, to Ida Mary Villiers, second daughter of R. H. Farrer, Esq., Mitchelstown.

On the 13th inst., at The Slad Church, Painswick, Gloucestershire, by the Rev. H. Dring, assisted by the Rev. Dr. Badcock, Peter Hughes, only son of Augustus Mathews, Esq., Pitchcombe, to Emma, younger daughter of George Holloway, Esq., Stroud, Gloucestershire.

DEATHS.

On the 18th inst., at this residence, 12, Wimbeldon Park-road, Wandsworth, Edward Dixon, Esq., J.P., M.I.C.E., late of Southampton, in the 69th year of his age.

On the 8th inst., at the Château de Manerbe, Calvados, France, Eliza, the wife of William Ramsay, Esq., 24, Charles-street, Berkeley-square.

On the 8th inst., at her residence, 26, Pembroke-square, Mrs. Catharine Clark, widow of Matthew Clark, Esq., late of Morgan House, Ham-common, Surrey, aged 84 years.

* * * The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, or Deaths is Five Shillings for each insertion.

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING DEC. 1.

SUNDAY, Nov. 25.

Sunday next before Advent.

St. Paul's Cathedral, 10.30 a.m., Rev. E. H. Blyth, Vicar of St. Paul's, Hammersmith; 3.15 p.m., Rev. Canon Gregory; 7 p.m., Rev. C. F. Willis, Rector of Church Brampston, Northants.

Westminster Abbey, 10 a.m., Rev. E. Price; 3 p.m., Rev. Canon Farrar.

Whitehall, 11 a.m. Rev. W. F. Erskine Knollys; 3 p.m., Rev. Francis Garden, Sub-Dean of the Chapels Royal. Savoy, closed.

Temple Church, 11 a.m., probably Rev. Dr. Vaughan, the Master; 3 p.m., Rev. Alfred Ainger, the Reader.

MONDAY, Nov. 26.

Princess Maud of Wales born, 1869. City of London General Pension Society, special meeting, Memorial Hall, elections, noon. Society of Arts, Cantor Lecture, 8 p.m. (Mr. W. Ham Arnot on the Manufacture of Paper).

Monday Poplar Concert, St. James's Hall, 8 p.m.

Medical Society, 8.30 p.m. Geographical Society, 8.30 p.m. Comm. G. C. Musters on Bolivia; Mr. Clements R. Markham on the still Unexplored Parts of South America.

Institution of Surveyors, 8 p.m. (Mr. Christopher Stephenson on the Pruning of Coniferous Trees).

TUESDAY, Nov. 27.

Moon's last quarter, 10 p.m. Princess Mary of Cambridge, Duchess of Teck, born, 1833. Royal Asylum of St. Ann's Society, special general court, 2.30 p.m. Institution of Civil Engineers, 8 p.m. (Renewed Discussion on the Progress of Steam Shipping).

West London Scientific Association, 8 p.m. (Mr. J. Logan Lobley on the Age of the Hills; the hon. Librarian on the Geology of Hunstanton).

Medical and Chirurgical Society, 8.30 p.m. Anthropological Institute, 8 p.m. (Mr. F. M. Hunter on Socotra; Mr. A. Simson on the Zápores; Rev. S. J. Whitmee on the Malays and Polynesians).

Newport, Monmouthshire, Cattle, Horse, and Poultry Show (two days).

Tredegar Agricultural and Poultry Show (two days).

Croydon Races.

WEDNESDAY, Nov. 28.

Alfonso XII., King of Spain, born, 1857. Mr. Archibald Forbes's lecture on Personal Experience of War Correspondence, Crystal Palace, 3 p.m. Home for Little Boys, Farnham, annual festival, Willis's Rooms, 6.30 p.m. Royal Society of Literature, 8 p.m.

Royal Academy, 8 p.m. (Professor Marshall on Anatomy). Society of Telegraph Engineers, 8. London Ballad Concert, St. James's Hall, 8 p.m. Society of Arts, 8 p.m. (Professor Graham Bell on the Telephone). Oakham Cattle and Poultry Annual Show (two days).

THURSDAY, Nov. 29.

National Benevolent Institution, Bloomsbury, annual meeting, Freemasons' Tavern, 10.30 a.m. (elections, &c.). Infant Orphan Asylum, Wanstead, elections, Cannon-street Hotel, 10. South Kensington Museum, 8 p.m. (Mr. Edward Bellamy on Anatomy).

Middlesex Hospital, quarterly court, noon. Society of Antiquaries, 8.30 p.m. International Gun and Polo Club, Brighton, annual ball. Congratulatory banquet to Mr. W. H. Smith, First Lord of the Admiralty, St. James's Hall. Dorking Poultry Show.

FRIDAY, Nov. 30.

St. Andrew, Apostle and Martyr. Scottish Corporation, 21st anniversary dinner, Freemasons' Tavern, Sir Stafford Northcote in the chair. Royal Academy, 8 p.m. (Professor Marshall on Anatomy).

Royal Hospital for Incurables, Putney, anniversary, elections, &c., Cannon-street Hotel, 11 a.m. Royal Society, anniversary presentation of medals, &c., 4 p.m.; annual dinner, Willis's Rooms, 7 p.m.

SATURDAY, Dec. 1.

The Princess of Wales born, 1844. Grosvenor Gallery to be reopened. Society of Schoolmasters, 2 p.m. Physical Society, 3 p.m. Saturday Popular Concert, St. James's Hall, 3 p.m.

Working Men's Club and Institute Union, at Society of Arts, 4 p.m. (Professor Huxley on Technical Education). Birmingham Annual Cattle and Poultry Show (five days).

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE NEW OBSERVATORY OF THE ROYAL SOCIETY.

Lat. 51° 28' N.; Long. 0° 18' 47' W.; Height above Sea, 54 feet.

DAY.	DAILY MEANS OF					THERMOM.		WIND.		General Direction.	Movement in 24 hours, read at 10 a.m. next morning.
	Barometer Corrected.	Temperature of the Air.	Dew Point.	Relative Humidity.	Amount of Cloud.	Maximum, read at 10 p.m.	Minimum, read at 10 a.m.	Direction.	Force.
14 November	30.128	40.2	38.3	93	0-10	30.5	30.5	SW. SSW. S.	122	0.045
15	30.249	51.3	50.7	98	10	54.4	43.6	S. SSW.	400	0.010
16	30.315	48.5	41.6	79	5	57.8	38.6	SSW. W. WNW.	242	0.000
17	30.325	38.9	36.8	93	5	48.1	29.7	WNW.	28	0.010
18	30.049	42.7	41.3	95	—	50.0	31.3	WNW. SSW.	112	0.005
19	29.724	42.3	41.8	97	8	48.0	29.7	WNW. SSW. W.	192	0.165
20	29.624	41.1	34.5	79	5	45.0	36.6	W. SW.	298	0.000

The following are the readings of the meteorological instruments for the above days, in order, at ten o'clock a.m. :-

Barometer (in inches) corrected	30.080	30.267	30.242	30.403	30.089	29.892	29.534
Temperature of Air	31.0°	51.3°	57.2°	37.7°	42.8°	42.1°	41.6°
Temperature of Evaporation	33.0°	50.8°	53.3°	37.0°	42.0°	41.7°	39.0°
Direction of Wind	SW.	SSW.	W.	WNW.	WNW.	SSW.	WNW.

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE FOR THE WEEK ENDING DECEMBER 1.

Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m
4 25	4 48	5 12	5 38	6 6	6 35	7 6
7 40	8 15	8 49	9 23	9 58	10 32	11 4

MASKELYNE and COOKE. Daily at Three and Eight o'clock. EGYPTIAN HALL, Piccadilly. Fifth year in London. The present programme embraces Psycho and Zee, the twin automatic mysteries; the sensational dance, in exposure of so-called spiritualism, in which Mr. Cooke floats about the room taking the cabinet with him—the most astounding feat ever accomplished; and many other illusory items of novel and original character. Such is the success of the entertainment that it is advisable to book seats in advance, for which there is no charge. Admission 5s., 3s., 2s., 1s. W. MORTON Manager.

EVANS'S, COVENT - GARDEN. — NOTICE. — These celebrated Supper-Rooms are now open for the reception of Ladies. Evans's Choir Boys, specially trained by and under the direction of Mr. F. Jonghman, and the best available Comic talent. Supper after the Theatre.—Proprietor, J. B. AMOS.

The Christmas Number

OF THE

ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS

WILL BE ISSUED ON WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 12.

IT WILL CONTAIN A

TALE BY WILKIE COLLINS;

LARGE COLOURED PICTURE.

"A BIT FOR BOB,"

FROM A PAINTING BY ALFRED HUNT.

AND THE FOLLOWING

ILLUSTRATIONS:

Four Scenes from Wilkie Collins's Tale. Drawn by F. Barnard.

Three Home-Rulers. By Kate Greenaway.

The Haunted Tower. By S. Read.

The Attack on the Redoubt. By W. J. Morgan.

Christmas at Sea: the Captain's Pudding. By C. Gregory.

Where He Fell. By Mason Jackson.

A Bit of Old Chelsea. By H. Petherick.

A Bloodless Battle. By R. Barnes.

Old Evergreen and the Yule Log (A Series of Comic Sketches).

By Harry Furniss.

A Little Baggage. By W. Goodman.

Little Loves. By Kate Greenaway.

A Country Theatre at Christmas Time: Making the Poker

Hot (with Red Paint). By J. A. Fitzgerald.

The whole—making Two Sheets and a Half, besides the Large Picture—will be inclosed in a Coloured Wrapper, and published apart from the ordinary Issue.

PRICE ONE SHILLING.

Through the Post in the United Kingdom, THREEPENCE extra.

No more Advertisements can be received for this Christmas Number.

OFFICE, 198, STRAND, W.C.

Now Ready,

PRICE ONE SHILLING (FREE BY POST, 1s. 2½d.).

THE

ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK

FOR

1878,

CONTAINING

SIX COLOURED PICTURES.

PRINTED BY LEIGHTON BROTHERS' CHROMATIC PROCESS.

TWELVE ILLUSTRATIONS OF THE WAR,

FINE ART, &c.

TWELVE ENGRAVINGS AS HEADINGS TO THE CALENDAR.

ASTRONOMICAL DIAGRAMS OF REMARKABLE PHENOMENA,

WITH EXPLANATORY NOTES.

The Royal Family of Great Britain; the Queen's Household; her Majesty's Ministers; Lists of Government Offices and Officers; Bank of England and London and Westminster Bankers; Law and University Terms; Fixed and Movable Festivals; Anniversaries; Acts of Parliament passed during the Session of 1877; Obituary of Eminent Persons; Christian, Jewish, and Mohammedan Calendars; Tables of Stamps, Taxes, and Government Duties; Times of High Water at London and Liverpool; Postal Regulations; Remarkable Occurrences, &c., 1877-78; Eclipses in the Year 1878; together with an amount of useful and valuable information, which has during the past thirty-two years made the ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK an acceptable and elegant companion to the library or drawing-room table.

The unprecedented demand for the ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK year after year stimulates the Proprietor to still greater exertions to secure for this Almanack a reception as favourable as that which has hitherto placed its circulation second only to that of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

The ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK is inclosed in an elegant cover, printed in Colours by the same process as the SIX COLOURED PLATES, and forms a charming and pleasing ornament to the drawing-room table.

The SHILLING ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK is published at the Office of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS, 198, Strand, and sold by all Booksellers and Newsagents.

Now Ready,

THE ILLUSTRATED PENNY ALMANACK for 1878.

Containing Twenty-Four Engravings from the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS—viz. Gates of Constantinople, Forts on the Bosphorus and the Black Sea, Old Modes of Locomotion, &c.; Tables of Stamps, Taxes, and Licenses; Eclipses, Remarkable Events, Post-Office Regulations, and a great variety of Useful and Interesting Information. The Trade supplied by G. VICKERS, Angel-court (172), Strand; and H. Williams, Warwick-lane, Paternoster-row London.

THEATRE ROYAL, DRURY LANE.—EVERY EVENING, at Eight, AMY ROBART. Messrs. J. Fernandez, W. Terriss, E. F. Edgar, A. Glover, Lingham, Douglas, F. Moreland, Brooke, G. Weston, Lifford, Morris, H. Vaughan; Mesdames Willes, Harriet Coveney, E. Stuart, Adair, D'Arcy, Vincent, &c. Preceded by SARAH'S YOUNG MAN. To conclude with THE CONSORTION. Prices from 6d. to 45s. Doors open at 6.30; commence at 7. Box-Office open from Ten till Five daily.

HENRY DUNBAR, by TOM TAYLOR, and A ROUGH DIAMOND, by J. B. Buckstone. Box-Office hours, Eleven to Five. No Fees for Booking. Prices from 1s. to 43s. Doors open at 7, commence at 7.30.—OLYMPIC THEATRE.

ST. JAMES'S HALL, PICCADILLY.

THE MOORE and BURGESS MINSTRELS will introduce an ENTIRELY NEW PROGRAMME. The whole of the Songs contained in the first or musical portion of the Entertainment will be changed. New Dances, New Vocalities, and New Burlesque Sketches. The New Programme will be given.

EVERY NIGHT AT EIGHT, and on MONDAYS, WEDNESDAYS, and SATURDAYS, at THREE and EIGHT.

THE BIRMINGHAM CATTLE and POULTRY SHOW. The TWENTY-NINTH GREAT ANNUAL EXHIBITION OF FAT CATTLE, SHEEP, PIGS, DOMESTIC POULTRY, COINS, ROOTS, and IMPLEMENTS will be held at BINGLEY HALL, MONDAY, DEC. 3 (Admission, 5s.), TUESDAY, DEC. 4, WEDNESDAY and THURSDAY, DEC. 5 and 6 (One Shilling). For Excursion Trains and other special railway arrangements, see the Advertisements and Bills of the various Companies.

PANCY BALL.—THE GRAND POLE AND HUNT BALL will take place in the BRIGHTON PAVILION on THURSDAY NEXT, NOV. 29. Tickets and Vouchers at the Bedford Hotel, Brighton.

CRYSTAL PALACE PICTURE-GALLERY.—Open all the year round for the RECEPTION and SALE of PICTURES by the British and Foreign Schools. For Particulars apply to Mr. C. W. Wess.

"GONE." By FRANK HOLL.—This fine Picture is NOW ON VIEW at the ANNUAL WINTER EXHIBITION, 5, Haymarket (opposite Her Majesty's Theatre).

THE SOCIETY OF PAINTERS IN WATER COLOURS. The SIXTEENTH WINTER EXHIBITION OF SKETCHES and STUDIES WILL OPEN on MONDAY, DEC. 3. ALFRED D. FRIPP, Secretary.

DORÉ'S GREAT WORKS, "THE BRAZEN SERPENT," "CHRIST LEAVING THE PRÆTORIUM," and "CHRIST ENTERING THE TEMPLE," each 33 ft. by 22 ft.; with "Dream of Pilate's Wife," "Christian Martyr," &c., at the DOBE GALLERY, 35, New Bond-street, W. Daily, 10 to 6. 1s.

WEDNESDAY NEXT.—LONDON BALLAD CONCERTS, ST. JAMES'S HALL, at Eight o'clock. The programme will include the following popular songs:—"My Dearest Heart," Arthur Sullivan, and "Home, Sweet Home" (Mrs. Osgood);—"The Lost Chord," and "Guller Herrin'" (Madame Antoinette Sterling);—"Sleep, my Love," and "The Banks of Allan Water" (Miss Orridge);—"The Requital" and "My pretty Jane" (Mr. Sims Reeves);—"I'll be in my only Joy" and "Sally in our Alley" (Mr. Edward Lloyd);—"When forced from dear Hebe to go" (Mr. Beckwith);—"The Yeman's Wedding Song," and "The Vicar of Bray" (Mr. Santley);—"Far Away in Bonny Scotland," and "The Friend of the Brave" (Mr. Maybrick);—"Rocked in the cradle of the deep" (Mr. Rempton); Pianoforte, Miss Margaret Bucknall. The London Vocal Union, under the direction of Mr. Fred. Walker, Conductor, Mr. Sidney Naylor, Stalls, 1s. 6d.; Balcony, 3s.; Arce, 4s. and 2s.; Admission, 1s. Tickets of Austin, St. James's Hall; the usual Agents; and of Boosey and Co., 255, Regent-street.

WEDNESDAY NEXT.—THE TAR'S FAREWELL, by the Composer of "Nancy Lee," will be sung by Mr. Santley for the first time at the next Ballad Concert.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

LONDON: SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 24, 1877.

Between eight o'clock p.m. on Saturday last and eight a.m. on Sunday Kars, the key city of Armenia, was stormed and captured by the Russian forces under the nominal command of the Grand Duke Michael. The announcement of this feat took Europe by surprise. It contradicted many of the military maxims towards which the experience of the present campaign, both in Europe and in Asia, has consistently and very decidedly pointed. Kars was a very strongly fortified place, with a Citadel of great natural strength. It was armed with more than 300 pieces of powerful siege artillery. It was held by a force as numerous as that which was led against it. It was well supplied both with provisions and ammunition. The assailants were not more in number than the enemy whom they attacked. They were obliged to advance over ground the formation of which compelled them to break their ranks, to clamber up steep rocks, scarps, and parapets; in short, to face their foes under conditions which previous instances during the present war had forewarned the Russians never again to attempt. Nevertheless, their triumph was complete. The City, all the Forts, the Citadel, 300 pieces of Krupp Artillery, stores, ammunition, hard cash, and 10,000 prisoners fell into the hands of the Russians. 5000 Turks were put hors de combat, while the Russian loss is stated to have been under 3000 men. No military adventure during the present century has been crowned with more complete success—so complete, indeed, has it been that treachery has been suspected, although more than sufficient, and sufficiently varied, evidence exists to prove that the victory was achieved alone by skilful and hard fighting.

It may be difficult to account for the fact before us, but there it stands. It may occasion surprise, but it is too clear to provoke incredulity. Kars has fallen. A twelve hours' night attack has sufficed to transfer it from Turkish to Russian hands. Something may be attributed to a deficiency of military experience and presence of mind in the Commandant of the City and Fortress; something, perhaps, though the Turkish troops appear to have fought valiantly, to the demoralisation of that large proportion of them which Mukhtar Pasha after his defeat had left behind him. Not a little, however, must be ascribed to the strategical sagacity of General Loris Melikoff, who assumed the active direction of the assault throughout, and in whose military capacity the Russian forces had entire confidence. The points of attack selected were the weakest, however formidable, in the defence. The darkness of night, although in some respects unfavourable to the assailants, covered their advance. The Turks seem to have been taken by surprise, and to have lost the power at this critical moment of effecting such a combination of their resources as might have repelled the invading foe. They offered, it is true, sturdy opposition to their antagonists; but, being piecemeal, it failed in every instance. Some few forts held out, in apparent ignorance of what had occurred, long after the tenacity of their occupants could have availed anything for the saving of the place. Many battalions broke out of the city as fugitives on the road to Erzeroum, but soon found themselves surrounded by Russian cavalry, and compelled to surrender. Altogether, it was one of those cases which in war—more, perhaps, than in any of the civil walks of life—are decided by fortune taken advantage of by superior skill. Things went better than might have been expected with the Russians—worse with the Turks. But the Russians would scarcely have gained their triumph, or the Turks have met their defeat, had not the mind of the Russian Commander known how to turn every accident to account.

The obvious consequences of this brilliant achievement may be easily seen. Those which are ulterior can be only dimly conjectured. At any rate, it is a heavy blow to the Turkish cause in Asia. It opens a free and unimpeded line of communication between Alexandropol and the position held by the Corps of General Heimann. It sets free the investing Corps of General Loris Melikoff to march to his support. It gives to the Russian Army a secure dépôt, and furnishes winter quarters for a large portion of the Army in Armenia. It is the solid fruit, and, as yet, the only solid fruit, to the Grand Duke Michael in his Armenian campaign. Whatever ill-fortune may now befall him, there is little fear that his grasp upon Kars will need to be loosened. It gives him a solid base for all his operations in that part of Asia, and it is scarcely to be imagined that the fortune of war will wrest it from his hold. As to what may be the ulterior consequences of the capture, opinions are more likely to vary. It will hardly conduce, we fear, to an earlier termination of the War. Indeed, the news was withheld from the people of Constantinople for some days, lest it should excite insurrectionary violence among the Softas and the lower strata of the inhabitants of that capital. There will now, probably, be greater difficulty than heretofore in arranging any compromise between the Russian and the Ottoman Empire. The confidence of the former will be increased, while the fanatical hate of the latter will be influenced, by the capture of Kars. Nevertheless, in the long run it may be expected to tell upon the end. The flame of the taper while it flares up to a surprising height from the socket betokens a proximity to exhaustion; nor is there any reason to suppose that Turkish obduracy will long survive the extinction of hope. On the other hand, Russia will find in the fall of Kars some material for the appeasement of her military ambition. Should anything approaching to a similar victory crown the arms of the multitudinous hosts serving the Czar in Bulgaria: should Plevna be taken before Mahomed Ali can grasp hands with Osman Pasha; or should the way to Adrianople be cleared of the dangers which would now beset it, it may be fairly supposed that the time for active mediation will have arrived. Winter is close at hand. There seems to be no doubt that, whatever preparation may be made on both sides to hold on until the advent of Spring, it will cost the armies of the invaders, as well as of the invaded, a greatly increased amount of suffering, and the people of both Empires a vast addition to their public expenditure. We have no great faith in a second campaign, nor in the disposition of either side to prolong the War through another summer. To the Turks it would be simple ruin. To the Russians it could bring no great gain; for, after all, the European Powers will settle the terms of victory.

We are not quite sure, therefore, how far the capture of Kars may be looked upon as boding good or ill to other populations than those immediately concerned. The annexation of Armenia to Russia, although doubtless it would excite needless apprehensions in the minds of some of our people, would in reality touch but very slightly, if at all, what are called "British interests." It might substitute a bad system of government for a worse; and that is about all that can be predicated of it. Certainly, it would do little towards facilitating a Muscovite approach to India—much less, perhaps, than the annexation of Khiva; and even the very small extent to which it could be made available for that purpose would hardly be available within two or three generations; at the end of which who knows what may have become of the present autocratic system of government in Russia. Few things, perhaps, are more mischievous in this world than premature efforts to nip imaginary future evils in the bud.

THE COURT.

The Queen attended Divine service on Sunday, performed at Balmoral Castle, by the Rev. Archibald Campbell, of Crathie. Her Majesty afterwards drove to Abergeldie, and walked with the Princess of Wales and her children. On Tuesday the Queen and Princess Beatrice left the castle for the Glassalt Shiel. Her Majesty has driven to Glen Gelder Shiel, Birkhall, and other localities on Deeside; and, when resident at Balmoral, has paid daily visits to the Princess of Wales. Sir Stafford Northcote is the Minister in attendance upon the Queen, and dines generally with her Majesty. Prince Leopold has been suffering from indisposition. The Princess of Wales has visited him at Balmoral.

The Queen has appointed the Hon. Francis Hay to be Page of Honour to her Majesty, vice George Godfrey Macdonald, Esq., resigned.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

The departure of the Princess of Wales with her daughters from Abergeldie early this week was again postponed, it being considered unsafe to remove Miss Knollys.

The Prince of Wales has passed several days on a visit to Lord and Lady Lonsborough, at their seat near Selby, Yorkshire. A distinguished party were invited to meet his Royal Highness, and good shooting has been had over the Lonsborough grounds. The Prince assented to receive a public welcome from the inhabitants of Selby on Wednesday. His Royal Highness's carriage was preceded from Brayton Barff to the Selby railway station by the band of the Scots Greys and a number of carriages, and followed by the band of the Hull Sailors' Orphanage. A loyal demonstration took place at the railway station, and an hour after the Prince's departure a display of fireworks took place in the park. The town was en fête, being gaily decorated and illuminated with coloured lamps; the ancient market-cross was transformed into a Corinthian temple, and the south front of the venerable abbey was illuminated with great effect.

The Prince has appointed the Rev. H. A. Pickard Grand Chaplain to the Grand Lodge of England, in the room of the late Bro. the Rev. Lake Onslow.

The Duke of Cambridge returned to Gloucester House on Saturday from visiting Lord and Lady Forester.

The Duchess of Teck, accompanied by the Duke of Teck, opened the new infirmary at Hemel Hempstead last Saturday.

The Crown Prince of Hanover left London yesterday week, on a visit to Prince and Princess Christian at Cumberland Lodge, Windsor Park. The Crown Prince and Princess Christian hunted with Mr. Garth's foxhounds near Windsor on Saturday.

His Royal Highness returned to town on Tuesday, and, accompanied by the Duke and Duchess of Teck, left by the 2.30 p.m. train from St. Pancras, for Marham House, Downham, on a visit to Henry Villibois.

His Excellency the Russian Ambassador and Countess Schouvalloff have returned to the Russian Embassy, Chesham-place, from Brighton.

His Excellency the Danish Minister and Madame De Bülow, after visiting Lord and Lady Delamere at Vale Royal, have joined the company of Lord and Lady Egerton of Tatton, at Tatton Park, Knutsford, Cheshire.

The Marquis and Marchioness of Lansdowne have left Lansdowne House on a visit to Sir Edward Kerrison, Bart., at Brome Hall, Scole, Norfolk.

Earl and Countess Granville have left town for Walmer Castle, Deal.

THE MARRIAGE OF THE DUKE OF NORFOLK.

The marriage of the Duke of Norfolk and Lady Flora Hastings, eldest daughter of Mr. C. F. Abney Hastings, and the late Countess of Loudoun, was celebrated on Wednesday at the Church of the Immaculate Heart of Mary, The Oratory, Brompton. The marriage was performed by the Right Rev. the Bishop of Southwark, assisted by the Very Rev. Father Keogh, superior of the Oratory, and Father Gordon. Mr. Abney Hastings gave his daughter away. The Duke of Norfolk arrived, attended by his cousin, the Hon. Francis E. Howard, who acted as best man; and Lady Flora Hastings accompanied by her father. The bride wore a dress of white satin duchesse, trimmed with point de gaze, with flounces and scarf of the same fabric. In addition to chatelaine, the dress was ornamented with bouquets of orange-blossoms; corsage carré, trimmed with point de gaze and orange-blossoms. She wore sprays of orange-blossoms in her hair, covered by a point de gaze veil. The jewels worn by the bride comprised a tiara of diamond stars, the gift of her father; a diamond necklace, presented by the bridegroom, to which was attached a diamond pendant, the Duchess of Norfolk's gift; and diamond earrings, given to her by her brother, the Earl of Loudoun; also the necklace presented by his Grace's tenantry at Sheffield and its vicinity, and the bracelets sent by the Duke's Sussex tenants, and the several diamond bracelets presented by Mr. Abney-Hastings's Leicestershire tenantry. The bridesmaids were Lady Anne and Lady Margaret Howard, sisters of the bridegroom; Lady Egidia Hastings, sister of the bride; Lady Ermytrude Russell, Lady Adelaide Forbes, Lady Maud Grimston, the Hon. Alice Howard; Miss Clifton, daughter of Captain and Lady Bertha Clifton; Miss Kirwan, daughter of Lady Victoria Kirwan; and Miss Minna Margaret Hope, Miss Josephine Mary Hope, and Miss Theresa Anne Hope, daughters of the late Mr. and Lady Victoria Hope-Scott, nieces of the bridegroom. The bridesmaids were attired alike, in dresses of ivory poul de soie draped with ivory broché silk, and trimmed and robed with cardinal velvet. They wore cream felt Rubens hats, trimmed with cardinal velvet and cream and cardinal feathers. The Duke of Norfolk presented each with flexible gold band bracelet of arabesque design. The band was of lattice-work, and each of the numerous compartments contained a pearl graduated in size to the middle of the band. The centre was filled with a large oval crystal, surrounded by pearls, having on the crystal surface the monogram "Flora" worked in diamonds, the whole being surmounted by a coronet, diamonds being the centre of the strawberry-leaves. The crystallized jewelled centre can be detached and worn as a pendant. Princess Louise of Lorne and the Marquis of Lorne were present at the church and at the breakfast, which was provided at Mr. Abney-Hastings's residence in Upper Grosvenor-street for upwards of 150 guests. The Premier proposed the only toast—"The bride and bridegroom."

The Duke, with his bride, left for Victoria station, whence they travelled by special train to Arundel, to pass the honeymoon at Arundel Castle. The bride's travelling-dress was of sapphire Lyons velvet, trimmed with white ostrich feather and point d'Alençon; jacket of the same, lined with white satin and trimmed with feather trimming; and white felt hat trimmed with velvet and white and sapphire feathers; muff to match. The arrival of the Duke and Duchess at Arundel railway station was signalled by the ascent of a monster montgolfier balloon, with fireworks and lights attached; a display of fireworks was given lasting an hour; the town was profusely decorated and illuminated. The battlements and bastions were outlined by thousands of variegated coloured lamps, which defined the beautiful proportions of the castle in all its grandeur, and a powerful electric light was displayed from the top of the principal tower, which illumined the town and surrounding country.

The wedding gifts were of enormous value. Among the bride's presents from the bridegroom was a pearl necklace which had belonged to Mary Queen of Scots.

The newly-married Duchess of Norfolk (whose portrait, with that of the Duke, we give in this week's Supplement) is twenty-three years of age, having been born Feb. 13, 1854. She is the eldest of six children. Her father, Charles Frederick Abney-Hastings, Esq., of Donington Park, Leicestershire, is a Protestant, and so was her mother, the late Lady Edith Rawdon Abney-Hastings, Countess of Loudoun; but Lady Flora Hastings, the bride of last Wednesday, joined the Roman Catholic Church two years ago, and was received by Monsignore Capel into that religious communion. The family to which her father belonged, the Clitons, of Lytham, in Lancashire, was one of the oldest Roman Catholic families in England, though he himself does not profess that ecclesiastical faith. He took the name of Abney-Hastings, instead of Clifton, in 1858, upon the succession of his wife, then Lady Edith Rawdon Hastings, to the large estates of her cousin, Sir Charles Abney-Hastings, of Willesley Hall, Ashby-de-la-Zouch. Her Ladyship also, in 1868, upon the death of the last Marquis of Hastings, succeeded to his Scotch earldom of Loudoun. The marquise became extinct; and, while some of the estate passed to Mr. Abney-Hastings, their present owner, another part has, by the demise of his wife, passed with the earldom to her eldest son, Lord Loudoun. These particulars are stated in correction of the account which will be read in page 506.

The marriage of Major Brodigan, 25th Regiment, and Miss Alice Caroline Burges, youngest daughter of Mr. Burges and the late Lady Caroline Burges, took place on the 17th inst., at St. George's, Hanover-square.

The distinguished service reward of £100 a year, vacant by the appointment of Lieutenant-General Sir Richard Waddy, K.C.B., to the colonelcy of the 63rd Regiment, has been conferred on Lieutenant-General Sir Edward Selby Smyth, K.C.M.G., Commanding the Auxiliary Forces in the Dominion of Canada; and a similar reward of £100 a year, vacant by the death of Major-General John Gwilt, C.B., has been awarded to Major-General C. L. Nugent, late 58th Regiment.

THE LATE MARSHAL WRANGLER.

Field Marshal Count von Wrangel, the veteran General of the Prussian Army, who died on the 1st inst., was probably the oldest of military officers or soldiers in the world. The deceased, Friedrich Heinrich Ernst von Wrangel, was born in 1784, at Stettin, and was consequently, at his death, in his ninety-fourth year. He entered the Prussian army in 1796, distinguished himself in 1807 at the action of Heilsberg, as well as at the battles of Grossgorschen, Hainau, Liebertwolkwitz, and Leipsic, in 1813, and was raised to the rank of Major-General in 1823. In the Danish War of 1848 he commanded the forces of Prussia and the German Confederation, defeated the Danes in Schleswig, and entered Jutland; but on Sept. 8 of the same year he resigned his command in order to take the command in chief of the forces in the Province of Brandenburg. At their head he entered Berlin on Nov. 9, 1848, and declared it in a state of siege. From that time he was known as the uncompromising foe of the democratic and revolutionary party. He again commanded the Prussian forces against the Danes at the invasion of Schleswig in 1864, and, after a long and well-matured preparation, distinguished himself by the capture of the Düppel forts. This feat occurring in the seventy-eighth year of his age, his strength failed him before the end of the campaign, which had to be terminated under the command of Prince Frederick Charles, then first rising to distinction. "Two years later," says the Times' Berlin Correspondent, "when the Austrian war broke out, the octogenarian Field Marshal finding his services no longer required at the head of the troops, in anger and dismay proclaimed his intention to enter the ranks as a private. He, however, eventually contented himself with an honourable place in his Sovereign's suite, and shared the dangers and deprivations of the camp from the Prusso-Bohemian frontier to the very suburbs of Vienna. He has since led a retired life at Berlin, acting as the spokesman of the army on festive occasions, and hugely enjoying the glorious achievements of the last period of Prussian military history. His one sorrow during the last few years had been the dread of being pensioned off—a contingency which, in the ordinary course of things, should have occurred long ago, but which, to his military mind, would have been tantamount to annihilation. It is said that the Emperor, graciously recognising the rare services rendered by the veteran soldier, profited by a fitting opportunity some time ago to set his mind at rest on this important point. Until very recently the General, who had lived to a green old age, was a familiar figure in the streets and parks of the capital. He used to ride and drive about a great deal; and, as he advanced in age, developed a peculiar partiality for little children and children's maids, manifested in the open-air distribution of buns and sweetmeats wherever and whenever a bevy of juvenile customers could be got together. Altogether, he was a favourite with the Berliners, who had reason to remember his leniency in 1848, when putting down the riots which disgraced the capital in that stormy year. Like Blücher, he was essentially a man of the old school, and used to talk low German in ordinary conversation; but there was no want of sense and sensibility under the rugged outside of the hoary heavy dragoon."

The Portrait is from a photograph by Reichard and Lindner, of Berlin.

LAW.

The following gentlemen have been elected Benchers to the Hon. Society of the Inner Temple:—Mr. C. G. Merewether, Q.C., M.P., of the Midland Circuit; Mr. W. H. Holl, Q.C., of the South-eastern Circuit; Mr. W. G. Harrison, Q.C., of the South-eastern Circuit; and Mr. C. R. Freeling, of the Chancery Division.

A decision in the Chancery Court on Monday has deprived the poor of Brighton of considerable bequests, and the Sunday-school teachers and scholars of a Christmas treat, owing to the fact that Mr. Bates, the testator, left the money in railway debentures, which Vice-Chancellor Hall decided are of such a nature as to be governed by the statute of mortmain.

Judgment was given by the Common Pleas Division on Tuesday in an appeal by Mr. Albert Grant against a decision of the Revising Barrister for West Sussex, who had declined to allow Mr. Grant's claim in consequence of the decision arrived at by the Judge who tried the Kidderminster election petition. The Court allowed the appeal, but without costs.

In the Court of Bankruptcy registration has been ordered of a resolution passed by the creditors of Mr. Frederick Dimsdale, solicitor, with liabilities amounting to between £200,000 and £300,000, by which the estate will be liquidated by arrangement.

The Queen's Bench on Monday made absolute a rule which the Rev. A. Tooth, of Hatcham, had obtained against Lord Penzance for a prohibition to him from proceeding further in relation to the prosecution of Mr. Tooth for excess in ritual. The ground of application was that the requisition of the Archbishop of Canterbury to the Dean of Arches to hear the case called upon him to sit in London or Westminster, or within the diocese of Rochester. The learned Judge sat at Lambeth, which is not included in either of the places named. The Lord Chief Justice observed that the Court made the rule absolute with great regret, as the objection was of the most technical description.

An extraordinary case came before Vice-Chancellor Malins on Wednesday. Mrs. Davis, a Jewish widow of large fortune, having an only son, married in 1862 a French sculptor, named Megret, who, for her sake, became a Jew. In 1871, while she was suffering from puerperal mania, M. Megret put her in a lunatic asylum, and although her insanity lasted a comparatively short time, he kept her there until the end of 1875, when she was released on the interposition of her English solicitor. The husband afterwards persuaded her to live with him again; but in September, 1876, he once more placed her in a lunatic asylum at Charenton, where she remained until an application was made to the French tribunals, and she was liberated. She then came to England, and the question before the Court was whether a sum of £1200 a year originally belonging to her should be paid to her husband. The Vice-Chancellor decided that it must be paid, together with the arrears, to the wife.

The trial of the detective inspectors Meiklejohn, Druscovich, Palmer, and Clarke, and of Mr. Froggatt, solicitor, at the Old Bailey, was brought to a conclusion on Tuesday, having occupied twenty days. The jury, after a deliberation of less than an hour, found a verdict of guilty against all the prisoners with the exception of Clarke, and recommended Palmer and Druscovich to mercy on account of the good characters which they had borne. Each of the convicted prisoners addressed Mr. Baron Pollock in mitigation of sentence, but his Lordship declined to make any distinction between them, and ordered them to be imprisoned and kept to hard labour for two years. Inspector Clarke was bound over to answer any further charges which may be preferred against him.

THE LATE PRUSSIAN FIELD MARSHAL COUNT VON WRANGEL.

THE WAR: SORTIE FROM PLEVNA. REPULSE OF THE TURKS NEAR THE VILLAGE OF RADISHEVO.
FROM A SKETCH BY ONE OF OUR SPECIAL ARTISTS.

1. Josef.
2. Siri.
3. Eln.

4. Nils.
5. A Struggle with Napoleon.
6. The Arctic Fox.

7. Lapland Shoe, with Stocking.
8. Women pulling down the Tent.
9. Sledges.

10. Reindeer Dogs.
11. Lassoing Reindeer.

THE LAPLANDERS AT THE ROYAL AQUARIUM, WESTMINSTER.

THE WAR: MAIL DAY IN CAMP AT THE SHIPKA PASS.
FROM A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST WITH THE TURKS.

THE LAPLANDERS AT THE ROYAL AQUARIUM.

The arrival of these interesting strangers for exhibition at the popular place of entertainment in Westminster was mentioned in our last. They come from the neighbourhood of Kautokeino, which is a small town, or rather village, on the river Muonio, at the frontier between Sweden and Russia, to the north of the Gulf of Bothnia, beyond the seventy-first degree of latitude. The merit of bringing them to England is due to Mr. Farini, the enterprising manager of recent successful exhibitions at the Royal Aquarium. He had, at his own expense, commissioned a Norwegian naturalist, Mr. Bock, to go round the North Cape for the purpose of obtaining live walrus, to add to the collection of aquatic animals. Mr. Bock, having made his way into the Arctic region, found it was too late in the season for procuring a specimen of the walrus. He telegraphed to Mr. Farini to that effect, and was then instructed, by telegraph, to engage a party of Lapps, with reindeer, and conduct them to London. A sufficient sum of money was remitted to a bank at Drontheim for the estimated travelling expenses. Mr. Bock had not an easy task in overcoming the reluctance of those innocent people to leave their native country, though assured of kind treatment and of ample remuneration. No married couple with a family could be persuaded to venture. Their tastes and habits being extremely simple, their wants are few; and the herds of reindeer, which constitute their wealth, are valued more than cash or bills of exchange; nor is there any destitute or needy class disposed to emigration. Four young persons were at length induced, whether by curiosity and the spirit of adventure, or by the desire of gain, to accompany Mr. Bock to our country. The stipulated payment for six months was handed over to the "landsman," or district magistrate appointed by the Norwegian Government, who received it in trust for these persons. They made the journey and voyage in safety; and we believe that they have yet not found cause to regret their willingness to visit England. The lady of the party, named "Elin" or Ellen, is but nineteen years of age. She is heiress to large property, owning more than a thousand reindeer, which have to be cared for, in her absence, at the cost of the Royal Aquarium managers. Her female servant, "Siri," which for aught we know means Sarah, is a young woman of twenty-two. "Josef," whose age is twenty-one, is second cousin to Elin, and they may possibly have matrimonial intentions; at least, in the opinion of their friends, they would make a good match. "Nils," the comrade of Josef, is a young man about one year his senior. They are respectable and well-behaved persons, members of the Lutheran Church, and two of them can read the New Testament very well. Every traveller in Lapland has borne witness to the general high character of this small nation for morality, sobriety, and good temper; these visitors to London are not an exception. They will not drink any spirituous liquor, and their behaviour is perfectly decorous. Their way of living, in the climate of their native land, though to us it would seem disagreeable, has not proved injurious to health. Their clothes, made of tanned skins, are never taken off at night, when they lie down in their tents or huts to sleep. In Lapland they have no bread, for there no corn will grow, but they swallow large quantities of animal oil, with the flesh of reindeer, and sometimes a little reindeer milk, one gallon of which is yielded by milking thirty-six female reindeer. The pasture of these useful beasts is not grass, but Iceland moss, which seems to be necessary for their healthy subsistence; and twenty tons of this has been imported with the thirteen reindeer now in London. At home, it is said, the Lapland people are never ill, and live to a great age; Mr. Bock could never find a Lapp burial-ground, and was inclined to think they never died, but were only dried up and blown away by the wind, after many summers and winters. It must, however, be confessed that bodily cleanliness is not one of their virtues; and the manner in which a whole family, men, women, and children, those of all ages and both sexes, commonly huddle together, sleeping in a narrow tent, shows a certain indelicacy, though no worse can be said of it. The two months of summer, with almost continual daylight, are usually spent in fishing and hunting the white whale, the walrus, and the bladder-nosed seal, as a change from their pastoral employment. No trees, except here and there a few stunted birches, are to be seen in their bleak country. The Lapps at the Royal Aquarium have brought with them, besides the reindeer, a couple of Arctic dogs, bushy-haired and sharp-nosed, and an Arctic white fox. Their tents and sledges, with the mode of erecting and removing the tents, and harnessing the reindeer to the sledges, form part of the exhibition. The reindeer are partially tame, so that they will follow in a herd together any of their masters who calls them by singing a peculiar musical strain, but no single reindeer will allow itself to be touched, and it is necessary to catch them by the horns with a lasso. This feat is performed at the Royal Aquarium for the diversion of spectators. The deer are kept at the Zoological Society's Gardens in Regent's Park, under the charge of Mr. Bartlett, the Superintendent there, and two of them are daily brought to the Royal Aquarium for exhibition. It is to be hoped that means will be found to preserve some living specimens in England; those belonging to the Zoological Society a few years since did not long survive the change of climate and of food. The Lapland men and women, so far, appear to be well and happy in London. They begin to relish our wheaten bread and other victuals; but we have not yet heard of any one of them sleeping in linen between a pair of sheets. They have been taken about town, to see a few of the ordinary sights and shows of this metropolis, at which they show not the least astonishment, but wonder that the English should take so much trouble, and incur such great cost, to build and furnish houses, when they might dwell in tents. The gift, nevertheless, of a coloured scarf, a bunch of ribbons, or any gay-looking article of dress, which ladies will sometimes offer them, is eagerly accepted, and they have been much delighted with a present of coloured pictures from Messrs. Dean and Son. The only thing of which they are afraid is a chimpanzee belonging to Mr. Farini, which they take for the Devil. A small book or pamphlet, containing a description of the Laplanders, with photographs, is now in preparation. It will be ready next week, and will be sold by the Laplanders themselves to their visitors at the Aquarium. The profits will be given to support the Lutheran missionary schools in their country. We believe that Mr. Farini has some notion of permitting an open-air exhibition of the driving of reindeer sledges, which may take place either in the park, or in an inclosed ground where a charge for admission can be made. Another expedition to procure live walrus for the Aquarium will be sent to the Arctic shore next summer. It is further rumored that the enterprising manager contemplates an expedition to the South and West Pacific archipelagoes for the purpose of bringing to London typical representatives of different Polynesian races, with their native costumes, weapons, and implements. The geographical and ethnological interest of such an exhibition would be great indeed. We are informed by a Cambridge correspondent that a party of Laplanders were in England about the year 1822, under the care of a Mr. Bullock and his son. But those now at the Royal Aquarium deserve a visit; and Dean Stanley, who was one of the first to call and see them, expressed the interest he felt in making acquaintance with some of that remarkable Northern people.

THE WAR.

The Russians have taken Kars by assault, with thousands of Turkish prisoners and hundreds of Turkish guns. They are now pressing the siege of Erzeroum with great energy, and with additional forces. In Europe, they still hold fast and draw close their circle of investment around Osman Pasha's fortified position at Plevna, but they expect a fierce attack by Mahomet Ali Pasha on the south-western road, and they have received a hard blow from Suleiman Pasha, near the confluence of the Lom with the Danube, at Pyrgos, a few miles above Rustchuk. Higher up the great river, they have taken possession of Rahova, which is nearly half-way between Nicopolis and Widdin.

The capture of Kars was performed by General Loris Melikoff on Saturday night and Sunday morning. A small map or plan of the country four or five miles on each side round that important fortified town of Armenia will be found in our Supplement. This plan will show that the fortifications round Kars may be divided into three distinct sets of defences. The first on the plain to the south include the Hafiz Pasha, the Khanli, and the Suwarri Tabia, with the connecting line of intrenchments, and the camp in their rear. The second, to the west of the river Kars Tchai, are on steep heights. The principal forts are the Tahmasp, the Tekmash, and the Mukhlis Tabia. The third system comprises the works on the Karadagh Hill. Between the eastern and the western forts runs the Kars Tchai, with steep, precipitous banks, from 400 ft. to 700 ft. in height. Each system was to be self-supporting, and here Kars failed. To be properly defended there should be sufficient reserves in each of the three lines of defence to man the entire length of the intrenchments; for, owing to the nature of the ground, the rugged slopes and absence of roads, a rapid movement of reinforcements from one quarter to another is quite precluded. For this purpose a garrison of at least 40,000 men would be required; and it now seems tolerably certain that Kars only contained 20,000, of whom one quarter were in hospital. With the exception of the forts on the plain to the south, none of the works had flanking defence for their ditches, their profiles were extremely weak, bomb-proof cover for the garrisons insufficient, and, what is most essential in the construction of detached works, they did not afford each other mutual support; last, but not least, the armament was very inadequate for the amount of ground taken up. To illustrate the absence of mutual support, we may observe that the northern approach to the Mukhlis and Karadagh Tabia is only swept by their own guns, while the ground under the Karadagh is protected by a small two-gun battery. Close to the Alexandropol road, so far as we can ascertain, none of the works were so constructed as to sweep the front of their neighbours. The position of the Karadagh Fort was such that, with the Hafiz Tabia silenced, assaulting columns could scale the cliff on the south side, unchecked by any artillery fire. The guns of the citadel, three in number, it is true, enfiladed the Kars Tchai, and so prevented assaults on the Mukhlis and Kara-palteh from that quarter.

The works were fairly strong and sufficiently armed. The citadel and the Karadagh, carefully and skilfully fortified, commanded the southern faces against which the assaults were directed; yet in a single night a fortress of great strength, armed with more than 300 pieces of formidable siege artillery, fell before the attack of 18,000 Russian soldiers, whom the nature of the ground compelled to advance to the attack in broken formation, clambering up steep rocks to assail the scarps and parapets of permanent fortifications, for though the outer lines were not regularly constructed the citadel itself was properly traced.

The faces selected for the attack can be clearly traced on the map we publish this week. The southern side of the fortress was chosen for several evident reasons. This portion of the defensive lines covers the main road which runs through the works from Alexandropol to Erzeroum, and its possession is of great importance to the Russian Staff, as its occupation will permit them to send forward without interruption supplies and stores to the army of General Heimann in front of Erzeroum. From this direction, also, the citadel, which rises high above the works, commands the town, and is, with the Karadagh, the key of the whole position. It is conveniently reached without the necessity of crossing the Kars Tchai river, which runs through the centre of the place. The Russian column of the right flank was formed by the Fortieth Division, and was directed, under the command of General Lazareff, against the Hafiz Pasha Tabia. This fort forms the most eastern angle of the southern line of defence. Count Grabbe, with a regiment of the Grenadiers of Moscow and a regiment of the Thirty-ninth Division, assailed the towers between the Hafiz Pasha Tabia and the Khanli Tabia as well as the latter fort itself. He stretched a hand towards a column under General Roop and General Komaroff, which attacked the Suwarri Tabia and the lines between it and the river, and was to push forward along the Erzeroum road against the Citadel itself. Soon after nightfall, the columns of attack were formed up in deep silence. A little after eight the attack began in the centre. About eleven, although their leader was slain in heading the assault, the soldiers of Count Grabbe poured into the Khanli Tabia, and about the same time the fort of Suwarri was gained. The citadel was carried almost directly afterwards, and then the whole town and the main portion of the Ottoman positions lay at the mercy of the fire of the assailants. But some of the forts lying between the citadel and the outer line held out till eight o'clock in the morning. The Turkish soldiery that remained unrounded or had not been taken prisoners attempted to break out and retire towards Erzeroum and Olti; but the Russian cavalry was drawn up to bar egress in these directions, and the retreating masses appear to have been for the most part hurled back, and forced to lay down their arms. The whole of the works the town itself, with many standards and 7000 prisoners, fell into the hands of the conquerors, and General Melikoff entered the place in triumph on the forenoon of Sunday. In the engagement the Turks are reported to have lost 5000 in killed and wounded, and the Russians under 3000. It is remarked that the capture of a fortress of the strength of Kars by a night escalade is an instance almost unparalleled in modern warfare. The assailing army appears to have made few, if any, trenches, and the storming columns seems to have advanced across the open to the attack. Nor does it appear that the bombardment had done much damage to the works. We hear of no practicable breaches, of no crumbling parapets. The ramparts and escarps of these carefully-planned permanent works seem to have been carried by stormers as easily as an intrenched village might be won on an ordinary battle-field. Yet they were defended by a garrison equipped with both breech-loading rifles and guns, and supplied with the provisions necessary for several months' consumption. The Grand Duke Michael entered Kars on Monday, while General Loris Melikoff, with 15,000 men, pushes on to Erzeroum.

The encampments of different Russian army corps, including the Imperial Guard, at several parts of their extended lines in the neighbourhood of Plevna, with a recent conflict at Radishevo, and the repulse of a Turkish sortie there, form the subjects of Illustrations, from sketches by our Special Artist. On Monday last there was a heavy bombardment, which lasted until the evening, the Turks having replied to the salvoes fired from every Russian battery in honour of the fall of Kars. The artillery duel was well sustained on both sides. The Roumanian Prince Charles and his staff were at the outposts, where a shell fell and burst close to the group, but without injuring anyone. On Tuesday the Emperor, the Prince, and the Grand Duke, at the head of a considerable number of troops, were present at an open-air celebration of Divine service in honour of St. Michael, the patron saint of the Grand Duke commanding in Asia, and of the triumph just achieved. Salvoes of shells, fired at the Turkish works, formed part of the celebration. The Czar on Sunday visited the northern and eastern positions of Plevna. He praised the behaviour of the troops, and personally announced the taking of Kars. He said to some Turkish prisoners who were presented to him that the Russian soldiers considered it a point of honour not to fall into the enemy's hands. The commanders of Sistova, Simnitsa, Bucharest, and Jassy have been instructed by telegraph from the Russian head-quarters to prepare all possible means of transport for wounded men, an order which is construed to mean that some severe fighting is at hand at Plevna.

On Monday last Salem Pasha, with seven battalions of infantry, eight guns, and three squadrons of regular cavalry, together with all the Circassian cavalry commanded by Dilaver Pasha, left Leilek, and marched in the direction of Pyrgos, with the object of reconnoitring the Russian positions on the Jantra and the head-quarters of the Czarewitch. Salem Pasha carried and destroyed the first and second Russian lines of intrenchment, driving out the enemy at the point of the bayonet. A considerable number of Russians were killed. At the same time the second infantry regiment, under Ibrahim Pasha, carried the Russian fortifications on the Matchka heights after a desperate struggle, and destroyed seventy casemates containing ammunition, war material, and provisions. During the action Pyrgos was set on fire. The Russians lost 1400 men. The left wing, numbering four battalions, with four guns, some cavalry belonging to the command of Ibrahim Pasha, in addition to five battalions, two batteries, and a cavalry regiment, which had arrived from Karaciena, succeeded in dislodging the Russians who were intrenched in a position there. The right wing, with cavalry under Dilaver Pasha, successfully repulsed several attacks made by the Russian cavalry, and a Russian attack upon Kadikoi was also repulsed. During this action heavy cannonading and rifle firing was exchanged between the Turkish and Roumanian banks of the Danube, near Rustchuk.

On Wednesday morning the Roumanians captured the town of Rahova, on the Danube, after an engagement lasting three days. The Turks made their escape in the direction of Lom Palanka and Widdin; while, simultaneously with the capture of Rahova, the Loupo Division crossed the Danube opposite that town. Great enthusiasm prevails amongst the Roumanian troops in consequence of this success.

During a skirmish on the night of the 16th inst. General Skobelev received severe contusions from some fragments of a Turkish shell. The General had already received similar contusions on the night of the 15th inst. The General's wounds, however, are not of a dangerous character, and he continues to direct the fire maintained against the Turkish positions.

Raouf Pasha, telegraphing from the Shipka Pass, announces that some Turkish mortars, 44-pounders, recently erected, have silenced two Russian guns in Fort St. Nicholas, and inflicted considerable loss upon the enemy. Our Special Artist in the Shipka Pass contributes a view of the Turkish camp at Shipka, and of the Russian position on Mount St. Nicholas, with the batteries attacking and defending, viewed from the plain on the south side.

The Turks who marched out of Scutari in great force to the relief of Antivari encountered near Mirkovich six battalions of Montenegrins, who defeated the Turks with great slaughter. All the Turks who were overtaken in the retreat were slain. At the bridge over the Bojana thirty prisoners were taken. The news of this disaster created a panic at Scutari.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL NEWS.

FRANCE.

Tuesday's Journal Officiel announces that the French Ministers have given in their resignations to Marshal MacMahon, and that he has accepted them. The Ministers will only retain office until their successors have been appointed.

The Senate on the 15th inst. filled up the four vacant Life seats. The Conservative nominees were elected, but the Bonapartist, it will be seen, was closely run by a Republican. The voting resulted as follows:—General de Chabaud La Tour (Right Centre), 152; Comte H. de Greffulhe (Right Centre), 149; Lucien Brun (Legitimist), 148; Grandperret (Bonapartist), 141; Victor Lefranc, 137; Alfred André, 135; Vice-Admiral Jauréguiberry, 131; Allou, 130. A question was raised next day with regard to the election of M. Grandperret, a voting ticket having been counted twice. M. Grandperret's election was annulled, and a second ballot was fixed for the 24th inst.

In the Senate on Saturday a Conservative member, M. de Kerdrel, gave notice of his intention to ask the Government what measures it meant to take with regard to the inquiry by the Chamber of Deputies into the abuses committed during the electoral period. M. Jules Simon asked whether such a question could be put, and two other members characterised it as a revolutionary step. The President said that he had anxiously considered the legality of the question. M. de Kerdrel had declared that he merely intended to ask what instructions the Government meant to give to its agents, and within these limits the question would be in order. The House was not, however, the Senate of the Empire, and had no right to sit in judgment upon the Chamber. If the latter had exceeded its powers, which he did not admit, the Government could have recourse to a dissolution. At the instance of the Duc de Broglie, the debate on the question was fixed for Monday. On that day M. de Kerdrel put his question to the Government, and was replied to by the Duc de Broglie, who described the inquiry voted by the Chamber of Deputies as an encroachment by the Legislature on the rights of the judicial and executive powers. Citizens were not bound to answer questions, while public functionaries would receive their orders from their hierarchical superiors. After a long debate, an order of the day, drawn up by the groups of the Right, declaring that the Senate would not suffer any infringement of the prerogatives of either of the public powers, was carried by 151 to 129 votes.

The Extra Supplement.

"RAINY WEATHER."

The finely-engraved drawing which is presented for this week's Extra Supplement does not stand in need of an explanation. It is evident that the young woman is thrice armed and prepared to contend with an impending storm as she comes out of the cottage: her shoes are stout and thickly soled, as in the country shoes ought always to be; the skirts of her dress are securely fastened up, at a convenient height from the ground; and she is about to open a sufficient umbrella for her protection in the exposed walk along an open turnpike road. The large-brimmed hat, too, will shield her face and neck from the pelting shower, while it bestows a classic grace, as in Sir Joshua's pictures, on the charming youthful countenance, full of robust health, yet truly feminine in its lovable expression. We have been young, and now are old; yet we should like to share her walk in the rain, and to hold the umbrella over that pretty head, let our own back and right-hand side be made ever so wet for lack of similar protection. The original, drawn by Miss Edwards, was in an Exhibition of Works in Black and White.

NATIONAL SPORTS.

Capital fields ran for nearly every race at Shrewsbury last week, but none of the events decided possessed more than passing interest; indeed, there has been no race of real importance since the termination of the Houghton Meeting. On the Thursday Mr. Chaplin's filly by Knowsley—Bab-at-the-Bowster, who has long been expected to do a good thing, won the Anglesey Nursery Handicap; and Skotzka placed the Colum Handicap to the credit of Mr. Bowes. On the Friday Suleiman, emerging from a retirement of more than two years, won a race for Mr. Gretton; and Strike, who took nearly all the allowances, secured the Newport Cup. Only eight, the smallest field that has contested it since 1863, ran for the Shrewsbury Cup. On the morning of the race Norwich was a strong favourite, but he was scratched about a couple of hours before it was decided, the Manton stable preferring to trust to Peterborough (6 st.). The public, however, would not have the latter at any price, and Pageant (8 st. 12 lb.) started at only 6 to 4 against him, and won as he liked from Hopbloom (7 st. 12 lb.) and Zucchero (6 st. 11 lb.). Hopbloom had incurred a 10 lb. penalty by his success in the Great Shropshire Handicap, or he might have given Mr. Gretton's old horse a great deal of trouble. Bird-catcher made very light of his penalty in the Longner Steeple-chase, and carried 12 st. 7 lb. home in such style that he ought to do yeoman service for the Duke of Hamilton during the present season.

During the present week meetings are being held at Warwick and Manchester. The former has suffered seriously from the antagonism of its younger rival; but though there have been good fields at Manchester, nothing worthy of comment has occurred at either place at the time of writing.

We regret to learn that a serious epidemic has been raging at the Hampton Court Stud, from the effects of which three brood mares—Viridis, Appeal, and Australasia—have died. The first of these was the dam of Springfield, and, being only thirteen years old, her loss is a most serious one. We believe it is decided that Springfield will not run again, but take up his quarters at Hampton Court next season. It is evident that every effort is being made by Colonel Maude to restore the old prestige of Her Majesty's stud, and the presence of such wonders as Prince Charlie and Springfield should do much to further this object. It is a little singular that the two fastest horses the world ever saw should finally settle down almost in adjoining boxes. Given the pair in their very best form, what a match might be made, at 9 st. each, over the last seven furlongs of the Rowley Mile! a match that should almost make us forget the historical meeting of the Dutchman and Voltigeur, and in the result of which he would be a bold man indeed that would dare to lay the smallest shade of odds.

The Altcar Club Meeting always creates great interest among coursing men, as it takes place on the same ground over which the Waterloo Cup is run, and a capital trial can thus be secured for any likely candidates for the "blue ribbon." Mr. Pilkington was in great form last week, as his Pickpocket, by Countryman—Chivalry, divided the Sefton Stakes with Sutler, by Bacchante—Sweet Home, and his Prince Rupert, by Cavalier—Comely Bess, divided the Altcar Club Cup with Highlander, by Contango—Annie McPherson, who is the property of Mr. Hornby. The same two gentlemen were also left in the Croxteth Stakes, in the final course of which Herzegovina, an own sister to Highlander, beat Pinafore, by Palmer—Princess Rufus II. Highlander beat Braw Lass in the first ties of the Cup; but as she was susceptible of much improvement in point of condition, Mr. Briggs's nomination is sure to be heavily backed for the Waterloo Cup. Barabba also ran well, but went down before Prince Rupert in the third ties. Mr. Hedley's decisions were all that could be wished.

A boat-race which took place on the Tyne on Monday last, between Thomas Blackman of London and William Nicholson of Stockton, attracted an enormous attendance of spectators. The length of the course was a little over three miles, and the North countryman received a start of ten seconds. In that time he obtained a lead of about six lengths; and, in spite of all his exertions, Blackman, who was favourite, could never lessen the distance between them.

The Ten-Miles Challenge Cup, which has been presented to the London Athletic Club by Mr. S. F. Weall, was run for the first time on Saturday last at Stamford-bridge. There were four competitors, of whom J. Gibb, the five-mile champion, won very easily indeed, doing the distance in 54 min. 47 sec., which is the fastest time on record for amateurs by 1 min. 20 sec. This (Saturday) evening the annual assault of arms of the club will take place at St. James's Hall, and a very attractive programme has been issued.

At eleven o'clock last Saturday night W. Gale, of Cardiff, completed his stupendous task of walking a quarter of a mile every ten minutes for twenty-eight consecutive days. The last quarter mile was covered in 2 min. 9 sec.; and, though Gale had never been off the path for more than seven minutes at a time for a month, he seemed none the worse for his exertions.

The Sheffield Telegraph says that a letter-carrier of that town, named Charles Sharpe, has bequeathed to religious and charitable purposes upwards of £1050, the result of his savings.

A fancy-dress ball will take place at the Royal Pavilion, Brighton, next Thursday, under the auspices of the International Gun and Polo Club. There will be an international promenade concert, in connection with the ball, and in commemoration of the Princess of Wales's birthday, on the following day.

AUSTRO-HUNGARY.

In Monday's sitting of the Lower House of the Austrian Reichsrath Baron von Pretis, Minister of Finance, and Herr Unger, Minister without portfolio, defended the bill for the establishment of an Austro-Hungarian National Bank. Their speeches were received with loud applause. The general debate was then closed. Deputies Dr. Herber and Herr Skene were to end the discussion by a general review of the question on behalf of their respective parties. In Wednesday's sitting, after Dr. Giskra had addressed the House in the name of the majority of the committee on the Bank Bill, it was resolved by a majority of 169 against 103 votes to reject the motion of Herr Schaup for postponing the discussion, and to pass to the special debate on the Bank Bill.

The Government has proposed to England the conclusion of a commercial treaty on the "most-favoured nation" basis. England has agreed to entertain this proposal.

AMERICA.

The Army Bill has finally passed both Houses of Congress, the House of Representatives having concurred in the Senate's amendment to the Army Appropriation Bill fixing the strength of the Army at 25,000 men.

The House of Representatives has passed a bill accepting the invitation of France to take part in the approaching Paris Exhibition, and appropriating 150,000 dols. for the expenses to be incurred. The Secretary of the Treasury, replying to an inquiry from the House, states that he has satisfactorily placed 75 millions of the Four per Cent United States Bonds, but that the fears of the remonetisation of silver have checked sales and caused a temporary postponement of the further disposal of the loan.

The official report issued by the United States Treasury shows the net revenue of the last fiscal year to have been 269 million, and the net expenditure 238 million dols.

The Committee of Ways and Means have appointed a sub-committee to frame a bill for reducing the tariff duties. The sub-committee consists of Messrs. Wood, Gibson, Tucker, Burchard, and Banks, all of whom favour lower duties.

Intelligence of several raiding parties of Indians from Mexico having entered Texas is published in the New York papers. An Indian camp is reported to have been destroyed at Saragossa.

CANADA.

A despatch from Ottawa, dated the 16th inst., states that Mr. Cauchon had started for Winnipeg to assume his post as Lieutenant-Governor of Manitoba.

The Government steamer Newfield has been at Montreal loading goods for the Paris Exhibition.

INDIA.

The cloud which has long rested on the north-western frontier of India appears to have at last broken, and England once more has on her hands another of those petty wars which are the accompaniment of her Imperial position. The Indian correspondent of the Times telegraphs that on the 9th inst. a field force, consisting of 2100 infantry, with six guns, and a small number of cavalry, under the command of General Keyes, entered the Jawaki territory in three columns from Shadipore, Gambat, and Kohat. On the 11th Paiya was occupied, after a faint opposition, the Jawakaies having been taken by surprise. Three of our men were wounded. Further fighting occurred on the 14th, when the enemy attacked in superior numbers a company of the 5th Punjab Native Infantry, while it was protecting the camp followers collecting fodder, but was completely routed. Our loss was three wounded. Heavy rains at Paiya have impeded the movements of our troops, who will shortly take up a new position. The field force is said to consist of the 1st and 2nd Sikhs, the 4th and 5th Punjab Infantry, the 5th Goorkhas, the 29th Punjab Infantry, the Guides, and the 2nd Punjab Cavalry. The expedition moves in the lightest marching order. The 22nd Punjab Infantry have received orders to hold themselves in readiness for active service, and the 9th Foot are marching from Rawul Pindie to Peshawur. The plan of operations is stated to be to hold the line of country in the Jawaki territory, from which an advance may be made according to circumstances, and which will be retained until the Jawakaies surrender unconditionally. The terms to be imposed comprise a heavy fine, compensation for all plundering of property, the surrender of all firearms of English manufacture, the construction of a military road through the enemy's country, and the surrender of the head men most active against the Government and of the leaders of the late night attack on the post at Shavkot, and also the destruction of the fortified towers in the Jawaki villages. The other Afreedee tribes have, it is stated, so far shown no signs of confederating; and it is stated that the Hussan Kher tribes have even offered a passage to British troops through their lands into the Jawaki territory.

With respect to the famine, the same correspondent says that reports from the affected districts continue favourable. The number on the relief works is diminishing, and in Bombay orders have been issued to close all relief works at the end of the month. The weekly telegram from the Viceroy states that the prospects in the Madras Presidency are generally good, but that damage has been done by excessive rain and insects. A further decrease is reported in the number of persons on the relief works and receiving relief.

A report that General Kennedy had given an emphatic opinion against the advisability of constructing a harbour at Madras is contradicted.

Professor von Litzow, the celebrated astronomer and director of the Vienna Observatory, died on the 16th inst.

The Hon. Sir Arthur H. Hamilton, Governor of Fiji, has been appointed Consul-General in the Western Pacific islands.

Prince Charles has published a decree convoking the Roumanian Chamber for the 27th inst.

Henri de Tourville's appeal against the sentence of death passed upon him by the Botzen tribunal has been rejected by the Vienna Supreme Court.

The long-disputed question of making a division in the Lisbon cemeteries in order to bury Dissenters apart from Catholics has been settled. The Municipality, at a tumultuous meeting, have voted the proposal.

Count Carlo Valieri, the last descendant of the family of Marino Faleri, the famous Doge of Venice, died recently in Vienna, at the age of seventy-seven. In consequence of the seizure of Venice by Napoleon I., the parents of the deceased Count were obliged, after confiscation of their property, to leave their home. They then settled in Vienna, where Count Carlo Valieri spent the greater part of his life.

An extraordinary loss of treasure occurred in the course of transmission from Australia to Galle. A box containing 5000 sovereigns, one of six forwarded by the Oriental Bank at Sydney, was put on board the Avoca at that port on Aug. 3, and transhipped into the China at Melbourne. On the arrival of the China at Galle on Aug. 29 it was discovered that the box had been broken open and the gold taken.

The Chamber of Deputies concluded on the 15th inst. the debate on the vote of censure. After a speech from the Duc de Broglie against and M. Gambetta for the resolution of M. Albert Grevy, for appointing a Committee of Inquiry into Electoral Abuses, the Chamber divided, when the resolution was carried by 312 votes to 205. The Chamber met in its bureaux on the 16th, and appointed the Committee of Inquiry into Electoral Abuses. The thirty-three members who have been nominated all belong to the different shades of the Left. The sitting of the Chamber was devoted to the verification of the elections. Some returns were confirmed, though the successful candidates had been favoured with white placards. The Chamber was chiefly occupied on Monday with the verification of the returns. In Tuesday's sitting M. Bethmont, in the name of the majority, read a declaration to the effect that, in view of the doctrines laid down the previous day by the Duc de Broglie in the Senate, the Chamber, being anxious to protect its dignity and resolved upon maintaining the integrity of its decisions and prerogatives, should adjourn the discussion of the election of M. Reille until the Committee of Inquiry into Electoral Abuses had investigated the conduct of that deputy, who is Under-Secretary at the Home Office, in the matter of official candidatures, and had examined the authorities of Castres who were placed under the orders of M. Reille. This was carried by 297 against 210 votes. M. Marion, of the Left, then moved the adjournment of the sitting. He said that the Ministry of May 16 had now ceased to live; and, in the absence of a regular Government, the House ought to adjourn. After a short discussion, the House decided, by 233 votes to 231, to adjourn the sitting until Wednesday. Subsequently, however, it was resolved, in order to conform to a rule of the former Chamber, not to sit until Thursday.

M. Gambetta was on Wednesday re-elected by a unanimous vote of the Budget Committee to be its President.

The manager of the Réveil has been sentenced in default to three months' imprisonment and 3000f. fine for libels on Marshal MacMahon, alleging that he was a soldier without prestige, grossly ignorant of the conditions of good government and the requirements of a representative régime, a prey to senile ambitions and delusions, and that his understanding seemed utterly impervious to the imperative necessity imposed upon him by considerations of conscience, honour, and patriotism.

Galvani states that the French National Library has just been enriched with a most interesting manuscript, executed about the year 1520 at the Abbey of Saint Denis. It consists of sixty-seven sheets of parchment, containing the history of the life of that saint, and of the monastery of that name; it is illustrated with thirty very curious illuminated pictures.

M. Paris, Minister of Public Works, has submitted to the Chamber of Deputies a projet de loi for the construction of a deep-sea harbour at Boulogne. The work will be carried out to a depth of twenty-six feet at low water, spring tides.

A duel with swords was fought on the 16th inst. in the environs of the village of Plessis Piquet between the deputies M. Robert Mitchell and M. Allain Targé, who on Tuesday gave each other the lie in the Chamber. The first blood was drawn by M. Mitchell, who touched M. Targé on the shoulder. M. Targé afterwards ran his sword right through M. Mitchell's arm a few inches above the wrist. The doctor in attendance then declared the duel at an end.

The Paris Municipal Council has adopted a proposal for reducing the salaries of school teachers belonging to religious orders but unprovided with certificates from the State. It has also voted a credit of 50,000f. for establishing a workman's exhibition near the International Exhibition of 1878.

A new system for lighting up the numbers of houses at night at Paris has been begun, only at present on some few belonging to the Municipality. But the use of it is made obligatory in the leases of the houses now being built on the new Avenue de l'Opéra, and it will also be imposed in all future building leases granted by the Corporation.

The death of M. Boudet, Minister of the Interior from 1863 to 1865, as successor to M. de Persigny, and afterwards a Senator, seventy-seven years of age, is announced; and of M. Lanfrey, the historian. M. Lanfrey was born at Chambéry in 1828, sat in the Assembly of 1871, and was Ambassador at Berne during M. Thiers's Presidency. His death deprives the Republicans of another life senatorship.

ITALY.

King Victor Emanuel arrived at Rome on Sunday.

The Italie contradicts all rumours (of which several have been in circulation) of further Ministerial changes. It says:—"The Ministry was never more united than at present, and will meet the Chambers as at present constituted."

The Vatican has selected Monsignor Bianchi Dottula, Archbishop of Trani, for the Archbishopric of Naples.

SPAIN.

The Madrid papers now name Jan. 23 as the date of the King's marriage.

The Protestant chapel at Vigo has been closed for want of attendance.

HOLLAND.

On Monday, the new Ministry, for the first time since their appointment attended the sitting of the Chamber of Deputies. M. Kappeyne, President of the Council of Ministers, addressing the House in the name of the Cabinet on the occasion of their first meeting, invoked the goodwill of all and the cordial support of the majority. The Ministry, he declared, would firmly uphold constitutional principles, and had accepted office as a duty towards the country. In conclusion, the Minister announced that several bills would be withdrawn, notably those relating to primary education, to the modification of existing imports, and to reclaiming the Zuyder Zee.

BELGIUM.

The Chamber of Representatives adopted on Wednesday, by 55 to 34, the address in reply to the King's speech. It rejected an amendment by M. Frère Orban calling on the Government to combat the enterprises of Ultramontane maligners of the constitution.

GERMANY.

A Pole was arrested in Berlin on Saturday last, who had made a voluntary statement to the effect that he had come to the Prussian capital for the purpose of assassinating the Emperor and Prince Bismarck. He has been recognised as the forger of some documents whom the police had tracked from West Prussia. Upon being examined he admitted that he was a private secretary from a small town in the district of Loebau, and that his statement in regard to his intentions against the Emperor and Prince Bismarck was untrue.

A stormy scene occurred in the Lower House of the Prussian Diet on Wednesday, on the discussion of a motion calling on the Government to restore to the ex-Royal Family of Hanover the property which was seized by Prussia in 1866. No member of the Government attended, but the House was informed by an official that it would be useless to adopt the motion.

A commercial convention has been signed between Germany and Roumania.

1. Mount St. Nicholas, held by the Russians.

2. Turkish Mortar Batteries.

3. Road over Shipka Pass.

4. Church and Village of Shipka.

THE WAR: THE SHIPKA PASS, FROM THE
FROM A SKETCH BY OUR

3. Mountains. 4. Woods. 5. Natural Mounds, occupied by the Turks. 6. Turkish Advanced Mortar Batteries. 7. Nedjib Pasha's Battery.

PLAIN; TURKISH CAMP IN THE FOREGROUND.
SOCIAL ARTIST WITH THE TURKS.

ECHOES OF THE WEEK.

Escent Meiklejohn, Palmer, and Druscovich, ex-Inspectors of the Metropolitan Detective force, long employed in the most difficult service imaginable, and implicitly trusted by their superiors; but who, having been found false to their trust, are now convicts doomed to the dreadful punishment of two years' imprisonment and hard labour. Of the wretched solicitor (who was but a shuffling pettifogger and not a Traitor) I say nothing. I do not rejoice over the fate of the corrupt detectives. One cannot help being sorry for Druscovich, brought to irremediable grief and shame, "all through a little bill;" and I do most sincerely pity the wives and children of the three culprits. They at least are innocent; and (the men's pensions being hopelessly forfeited) the Treasury might show the destitute some mercy. In olden times, when a political Traitor was attainted, the Government confiscated his estates; but something substantial was always done, in a quiet manner, for the wives and families of the attainted one. The ex-Detectives' hopes of being pensioned were their estate.

Touching Indexes and indexing, an obliging correspondent informs me that one of the most masterly specimens of a modern index extant is to be found appended to a book, published about four-and-twenty years since, called "Sabbath Laws and Sabbath Duties," by the late Robert Cox. This curious work consists of a pamphlet of sixteen pages, with an appendix of 582 pages. The index fills 34 pages (double columns, breviter), and renders what would otherwise have seemed a random hotch-potch a very cyclopædia of theological literature. The work is, in short, a well indexed commonplace book. Mr. Cox, who died not long since, was a Writer to the Signet in Edinburgh, and compiled the index for the "Encyclopædia Britannica," of which there is now a new edition in progress. A colossal task. R. C. was a nephew of Combe, the phrenologist. He must have had the bump of locality (if there be such a bump) very strongly developed indeed. The remembrance of plans, as well as of things, is essential to a good index-maker—as, indeed, it is to a good librarian. Do you remember the story of the Italian curator who, being asked if he knew where a certain rare book was to be found, replied that it was in the gallery of the Grand Seigneur at Constantinople, in the third room, on the fifth shelf of the eighth bookcase to the right, opposite an alcove.

With regard to espionage I was strangely reminded recently, while dipping into that entertaining work the "Turkish Spy" (1641 to 1682), that there is nothing new under the sun. You remember a story told the other day, in some newspaper correspondence from the seat of War in Armenia, of the Russians finding among the slain after a battle the bodies of a number of Turkish women in male attire, and of their concealing the embarrassing circumstance by burning the bodies. Now, in the year 1642 the pretended "Mahmut, the Arabian faithful slave to Sultan Ibrahim," writing from Paris to a spurious Aga of the Janizaries at Stamboul, and recounting a battle between the Russians and the Swedes, thus discourses:—"Mars (very like a Turk) seems to espouse the quarrel of the Swedes, and all the Planets contribute to their prosperity. Even Venus herself has for a while laid aside all her usual Softness, appearing now in the Field armed cap-à-pi, with a Train of Swedish Amazons at her Heels. The Swedes after some late Battles, when they went to bury the Dead, found many of the Fair Sex, under the Disguise of Men, among which there were some of Quality." There have been viragoes in all ages, I suppose. I shall go to-morrow and look at the tomb of Phœbe Hessel, the female grenadier, in the Old Churchyard at Brighton.

Concerning which beloved borough I may discreetly mention that we have got a new Mayor (Mr. Alderman Mayall), who on the traditional Ninth of November was duly installed in office; but without any dromedaries, Cleopatra's Needles, or highly-trained steeds from Astley's. There was a grand banquet in the evening at the Pavilion, at which there was much fervid oratory, comprising speeches from Dr. Farre, Mr. P. Morris, A.R.A., and a really eloquent harangue from Mr. Hepworth Dixon. The outgoing Mayor, Mr. Alderman Lamb, carries with him the good wishes of all his brother burgesses, and the Brightonians have formed a committee (of which Mr. James Ashbury, the senior member for the borough, is chairman) for the purpose of presenting Mr. Lamb with a suitable testimonial, in recognition of his public services during his brilliant year of office, and his private worth.

Mr. Newton, C.B., of the British Museum, lecturing on Greek art at the College for Men and Women in Queen-square, drew attention to the deplorable fact that we possess no national collection of casts from the antique arranged in chronological order. Such collections, he remarked, were to be found at Berlin, Munich, Bonn, and other Continental cities. I will tell Mr. Newton of another city where a plaster Glyptotheka is to be found. It is, of all places in the world, Athens. The Goths and Vandals (from Alaric to the "marble" Earl of Elgin) have despoiled the "Eye of Greece" of nearly all her antique statues, and the youthful scholars of the Polytechnic School at Athens are fain to draw from plaster copies of the masterpieces of ancient Greek art. The Polytechnic collection of casts is a very fine one.

I have a curious little story of detective acuteness to tell, concerning, however, not this country, but Russia. A friend at St. Petersburg has just sent me a copy of that energetic Journal the Golos, in which (Nov. 9) I find myself denounced as "a Fanariote of Italian origin, a Count (absit omen), and a Turkish spy." The writer of the article proves his case (to his own satisfaction) by pointing out that, instead of proceeding to Odessa by the regular route, via Kieff, I returned to St. Petersburg, and, driving straight from the Nicolai Station to that of the Warsaw line, glided furtively into Poland, and so stealthily crept, by highways and byways, down to the shores of the Black Sea, taking notes of the state of the mobilisation of the Russian army as I slunk along, and reporting the whole on my arrival at Stamboul to my employer, the Grand Vizier. Now, in this cock-and-bull story there are just two grains of truth. I did return from Moscow to St. Petersburg, for the simple reason that the Southern lines were impassable, partly through snow-drifts and partly because they were blocked by immense convoys of troops and material of war. I did drive straight from the Nicolai to the station of the Warsaw line, whence I managed, after nine days' hard labour, to get down to Schmerinka, and so to Odessa; but I want to know how the writer in the Golos found out that I drove straight (it was eight o'clock on a snowy morning) from one station to the other. I happened, however, to halt midway in my drive at an hotel, for the purpose of engaging a courier. Now, the St. Petersburg police must have "got at" either my ex-courier, or at the Iskotchik who drove me, and so fished out the information they wanted. I compliment the St. Petersburg police on their cleverness. O! si sic omnes!

They have been at the unhappy badger again. An enthusiastic gentleman has written to a newspaper to say that the best way to have "sport" with a badger is to put him in a tub and set a terrier at him. I saw a badger "drawn" in my youth; but I never witnessed the tub torture of the poor animal. I know, however, what kind of sport it is, as I happen to have at home a number of soft-ground etchings by old Harry Alken (father of the still living painter of racehorses and coaching scenes), one of which etchings represents a badger and a terrier in a tub. The terrier, I am glad to see, is having a bad time of it; for the badger has curled himself up like a hedgehog, and with his sharp claws is making terrible incursions on his enemy's nose.

As for that other precious price of "sport," the fifty hours' match between the Mexican "mustang" and the English thoroughbred, I did not care to see it. The whole affair, to me, was redolent of the tan and the sawdust of the circus, and had an ancient and fish-like smell of Mr. Merryman, the clown, and the late Mr. Widdicombe, the riding master. It is only on the Mexico-Texas border that the term "mustang" is used by half-breed "greasers" and half-Yankee horse couplers of the Ralph Stackpoole (do you remember that wonderful novel of "Nick of the Woods") type. In Mexico proper the Dons speak Castilian, and not border slang, and they call a horse un caballo. The Mexican horse is a wonderful little fellow. To outward appearance he is a weedy "screw;" but he is full of pluck, "go," endurance, and, withal, docility. The Mexican bit (a screw-gag) is a terribly cruel one; but it is with the extreme rarity that it is used. As a rule, the animal is ridden with a mere pair of check-strings provided with a small blood-knot on either side which presses on a vein in the horse's face. The Mexican horse (like the Duke of Wellington's army in the Peninsula) will go anywhere and do anything. I have seen my dear deceased friend Don Eustaquio Barron, at one of his haciendas or farms in the far interior of Mexico, ride his horse through a porter's lodge, littered with furniture, and with children sprawling on the floor, up a wide staircase, and so into a room on the first floor. It is true that the rooms in Mexican farmhouses run very large.

G. A. S.

NEW BOOKS.

BIOGRAPHICAL.

Scrappiness is an inevitable characteristic of such a work as Memorials of Charlotte Williams-Wynn, Edited by her Sister (Longmans), for the simple reason that it consists almost entirely of letters and extracts from letters, written in the ordinary way of private correspondence, and, short as they would naturally be of themselves, subjected, of necessity, to curtailments and excisions before they could be presented legitimately to the public gaze. Hence a fragmentary appearance and a lack of continuity. Considerable interest, however, attaches even to the fragments, from which it is possible for experts in human nature to construct a more or less correct idea of the writer's totality, even as an Owen might from a few bones produce a more or less correct representation of the animal to which they had belonged. The lady, moreover, had evidently received a portion of that higher education which is just now advocated with greater vehemence, and, though with nothing like general consent, with more acceptance, than heretofore, as being desirable for women. Her station of life, too, was such as threw her into the society of persons whose very names are sufficient to command attention; it was her privilege to sojourn, away from her own country, in places which have been the scenes of memorable events; and it was her destiny to be in some of those places at the very time when some of those events occurred. She was born in 1807; but this volume of memorials commences with the date of 1839, so that, to the great disappointment, no doubt, of the romantic and the sentimental, there is no correspondence relating to that period during which a young lady of good family might fairly be expected to have had some experience in affairs of the heart and the looking-glass, and whatsoever else is of most consequence in the eyes of the unshelved among her sex. The correspondence, on the contrary, is, for the most part, either political or intellectual or theological. Her father's public position, and his "intimate friendship with Heber, with Southey, Hallam, Mackintosh, and others," could not but plunge her, at a very early age, in an atmosphere of mingled politics, theology, and literature; and, in later years, she formed a great friendship with Baron Varnhagen von Ense, and scarcely lesser friendships, perhaps, with Mr. Carlyle, Baron Bunsen, and the Rev. Mr. Maurice. It cannot be necessary, therefore, to expressly state that, though she could not be absolutely claimed as an "esprit fort," she was disposed to hold broad and advanced views, at any rate in religious matters. She was in Paris at the crisis of December, 1851, and it is very amusing to read the record of her impressions and of the hear-say she picked up, and to compare her budget of stories with the account so far given in the "Histoire d'un Crime." It is very amusing, also, to observe the patronising tone in which she speaks of the "usurper," Napoleon III., and prophesies that, notwithstanding the "contempt" expressed for him by "the Coburgs," our "Queen will be obliged to have him at Windsor one of these days." It is amusing, again, at this juncture, when the Russians are in all mouths, to read that she "was obliged to go to Madame La Croix's, where there was a heap of beautifully-dressed, hideous women—those Russians are so ugly." However, it is not because of the amusing gossip they contain that these memorials have been published, but in the benevolent belief that "passages will be found in them affording strength and comfort in some of the doubts and trials which so frequently beset us in the course of our lives." It is to be hoped that so charitable a belief may be fulfilled; but it is quite clear that the writer of the letters, however well fitted to be the strengthener and comforter of doubting Christians, had not altogether eradicated from her own bosom the spitefulness which is said by misogynists to be especially characteristic of women. She had been "exceedingly annoyed by the publication of the Duke of Buckingham's 'Court of George IV.,' in which, it may be presumed, her father does not make so good a figure as she could have desired, and she vents her 'annoyance' in the charitable remark that the 'present Duke, who would do anything for the £500 which he gets for the volumes, &c.' Reviewers will probably be startled to find what a lofty view she takes of their functions, for which, she thinks, they ought to prepare themselves by a prayer for guidance. 'The office of a reviewer,' she says, 'has always seemed to me almost a holy one;' and she appears to differ entirely from Horace, who, though he was perhaps as good a judge as she, thought there was no reason why you should not 'speak truth laughingly,' which is what she means, probably, by 'ridicule instead of argument, and a sneer instead of a proof.' It is even a question whether the legitimacy of meeting a proposition with ridicule instead of set argument might not be supported upon what the lady would have acknowledged to be the highest authority in the New Testament.

To say that a certain biographical work is more attractive than a novel would not perhaps, as a general rule, imply any large measure of attractiveness, but, if the novel intended should be so well known and so powerful a tale as the celebrated "Confessions of a Thug," it would be a different matter; and as much may be said for the two volumes entitled The Story of my Life, by the late Colonel Meadows Taylor (William Blackwood and Sons), edited by his daughter, and furnished "with a preface by Henry Reeve," for the late gallant author of the "Confessions of a Thug," of "Tara," and of other romances is very likely to exercise over his readers a post-humous fascination, by means of his autobiography, greater even than that which he is believed to have exercised over them during his life-time by means of his literary fictions. In his autobiography, moreover, there is a lesson which may be coned to their profit by all young men, and especially by young men who look forward to or who have already commenced a career in India. The late Colonel Taylor, who spent forty years in India, and who, if he did not rise to any very high rank, displayed qualities and won a character which would have fitted him for the very highest, suffered, from first to last, under one grievous disqualification: he was an "uncovenanted" servant. At starting, he received a very severe blow. He, with all the ideas of a young gentleman, born and bred, found upon landing, in his sixteenth year, at Bombay, that he, who had been fed with fallacious promises of "mercantile employment," would have to put up with the uncongenial position of "shop-boy," or something little better, in the warehouse of "an embarrassed tradesman." But, in a short time, one of those friends in need who are friends indeed procured him a commission "in the Nizam's contingent." From that moment he made rapid progress in personal fitness for any duties that might be imposed upon him, though he did not manage to "feather his nest," so comfortably as he might have feathered it, had he not belonged to the "uncovenanted" service. The important posts he filled—and filled, too, with something more than credit—in his teens were such as might have taxed the energies and the tact of his seniors and his superiors in experience as well as in age. "At seventeen," we learn, "he was employed as interpreter on courts-martial, and recommended for much higher duty by the Resident; and at eighteen he found himself Assistant Police Superintendent of a district comprising a population of a million souls." There is something almost ludicrous and incredible in the spectacle of a boy, who in ordinary cases would be still at school, performing functions which one would expect to be entrusted to a greybeard. And at school he was, in a certain sense; but he was his own school-master. "By mere perseverance and industry," we are informed in the preface, "he carried on the work of self-education through life, with very remarkable results;" and it is truly marvellous to read what he did in the way of mastering the native languages; in teaching himself the art, and even inventing "a new method of land-surveying;" in largely increasing the revenues, "without augmenting the burdens of the people;" in devoting himself to the study of "engineering, because the construction of roads, tanks, and buildings was an essential part of the improvement of the country;" in acquiring "a considerable knowledge of law, both Hindoo, Mohammedan, and English, because he had to administer justice to the people;" in framing "for himself a simple code and rules of procedure applicable to a country where there were no courts of law and no written laws at all." Moreover, "he studied geology and botany, because he observed the direct bearing of these sciences on the productiveness of the soil." That a man so occupied, in a climate so enervating, should still have leisure for other pursuits, one can hardly understand, but it appears that he had; for "he beguiled his leisure hours with painting and music," and, by some means unknown, "acquired considerable proficiency." That "he cultivated literature with no mean success," we all know; that he was a correspondent of the Times, at a yearly stipend (vol. i., page 181), may not be so generally known. But, above all, he "gave to the people of India not only his head but his heart. He had the liveliest sympathy and affection for the natives of India. Thoroughly understanding their traditions and their manners, he treated men and women of all ranks with the consideration and respect due to an ancient society." It is from this point of view chiefly that there is in his autobiography a store of useful instruction for young aspirants for service in India. The most entertaining portions of his life are those in which the profligate and unmanageable Rane of Shorapoor plays a prominent part. In connection therewith there is a curious case of astrological prophecy duly fulfilled; and similar cases, or, at any rate, another similar case, will be found elsewhere among the records, the style of recording them being such as to encourage the idea that Colonel Taylor thought there was "something in it." In the Mutiny, Colonel Taylor "was able most materially to assist the operations of Sir Hugh Rose's army by moving up cattle and supplies;" and on May 13, 1876, he died at Mentone, leaving the story of his life as a bequest which will, no doubt, be highly appreciated by the public. Let this notice of it be concluded with a piece of advice which he, being dead, yet offers to all whom it may concern, especially those who go to India in any capacity whatever:—"Use true courtesy to natives of all degrees. My experience has taught me that large masses of men are more easily led than driven, and that courtesy and kindness and firmness will gain many a point which, under a hard and haughty bearing, would prove unattainable. By courtesy I do not mean undue familiarity—far from it; self-respect must always be preserved. But there is a middle course which, if rightly pursued in a gentlemanly fashion, not only exacts respect from natives of all classes, but gratitude and affection likewise."

A monumental statue of King Robert the Bruce, erected at Stirling, is to be unveiled to-day (Saturday).

Mr. Frederick Stokes has been appointed Admiralty Proctor in succession to his late father, Mr. H. Graham Stokes.

A telegram to the Standard from Alexandria says that Colonel Gordon has received a letter from the King of Abyssinia, in which the latter accepts the terms proposed to him on behalf of the Khedive for the conclusion of peace and the settlement of the frontier.

Mr. John Laird, son of the late member for the borough, was on Tuesday unanimously elected first Mayor of Birkenhead.—Mr. Henry Shrubsole was unanimously elected Mayor of Kingston-on-Thames; and Mr. Thomas William Minton Mayor for Stoke-on-Trent.

Mr. Edmund Boyle Church, one of the chief clerks to the Master of the Rolls, has been appointed a Taxing Master of the High Court of Justice (Chancery Division), in succession to Mr. R. B. Follett, resigned; and Mr. Burney, solicitor, fills the vacancy by the promotion of Mr. Church.

A new Reform Club was opened at Burnley last Saturday afternoon by Alderman Massey, the president. The building has cost £6000. In the evening a crowded meeting was held in the Mechanics' Institute, which was addressed by Sir U. K. Shuttleworth, M.P., Mr. Hibbert, M.P., and Mr. Peter Rylands, M.P.

METROPOLITAN NEWS.

Lieutenant-Colonel Sir J. M'Garel Hogg, M.P., has been for the eighth time elected Chairman of the Metropolitan Board of Works.

The thirty-first annual exhibition of the Hackney Chrysanthemum Society has been held this week at the Aquarium, Westminster. The chief prizes fell to Messrs. Henderson (hon. sec. of the society); Charles Turner, of Slough; Hall, of Tulse-hill; Herrington, Bennett, and Dickson.

Temple Bar is at length to be removed; the roadway towards the end of Fleet-street is to be widened so as to give room for four carriages, after allowing sufficient space in the middle of the road for a "refuge" for pedestrians, and some kind of monument to mark the extent of the City jurisdiction.

The ninth part of Professor W. C. Williamson's communications on the Organisation of the Fossil Plants of the Coal Measures, selected by the council of the Royal Society as the Bakerian lecture for this session, was given on the 15th inst. This was the first meeting for this session, and the president, Sir Joseph Hooker, occupied the chair.

A meeting of the Indian Famine Relief Committee was held at the Mansion House on Monday, at which it was resolved to transmit a further sum of £10,000 to Madras, making £455,000 in all. A letter from the Duke of Buckingham was read bearing testimony to the value of the aid from this country, and stating that prospects were improving with the rains, which seemed to gather strength generally.

The weekly return of metropolitan pauperism shows that the total number of paupers at the end of the second week of November was 79,873, of whom 38,784 were in workhouses and 41,089 received outdoor relief. Compared with the corresponding weeks in 1876, 1875, and 1874, these figures show a decrease of 689, 3867, and 12,281 respectively. The number of vagrants relieved on the last day of the week was 302, of whom 539 were men, 211 women, and 52 children.

Mr. Shaw-Lefevre, M.P., president of the Statistical Society, gave the opening address on Tuesday evening. He said that one of their most important duties was to submit such subjects as were likely to be dealt with by the Legislature to a previous rigid examination. A new and promising field of inquiry was that opened up by the greater spread of statistical investigation in other countries; and he, in conclusion, alluded to the support which statistics had given to the theories of free trade.

At a meeting of the general committee of the Caxton Celebration, held at Stationers' Hall last Saturday, Sir Charles Reed, who presided, stated that there was a balance of receipts at the late exhibition over expenditure of £972, and some later subscriptions would bring up the balance to over £1000. On the motion of Mr. W. Spottiswoode, it was resolved to hand over the balance of £1000 to the treasurer of the Printers' Pension Society, to be devoted to a Caxton Celebration Fund for the benefit of decayed printers and their widows.

Dean Stanley gave a lecture at the Society of Arts last Saturday afternoon, in connection with the Working Men's Club and Institute Union, on the subject of "The Art of Rightly Questioning." He recommended his hearers to hunt up any subject which they heard of in conversation and of which they were ignorant, and to ascertain the purport of the name of any place in which they happened to be, the historical associations of the day, the cause of the popularity of particular books, and the origin and meaning of words; and to have and to be ready to communicate clear ideas upon various matters. This advice was illustrated by a number of anecdotes. Mr. Hodgson Pratt, chairman of the Union, presided.

At the weekly meeting of the School Board for London on Wednesday—Sir Charles Reed presiding—the question of free libraries and reading-rooms was raised by Mr. Heller, who submitted a motion, which was carried, instructing the School Management Committee to consider and report as to the advisability of allowing any parish adopting the Free Libraries Act the use of the board schools as free reading-rooms and libraries.—The annual distribution of prizes and certificates to children in public elementary schools in Croydon took place on Monday in the Public Hall, when Sir Charles Reed presided, addressing the meeting and distributing the books and cards.

The opening meeting of the present session of the Society of Arts was held on Wednesday—Mr. William Hawes (deputy chairman) presiding. An elaborate and exhaustive essay was read by him on the progress made in the various branches of social, commercial, and manufacturing subjects in which the society has of late years interested itself. He also sketched as probable subjects of the coming discussions the revival of the demand for the imposition of protective duties and the application of electricity to the transmission of sounds and for lighting purposes. Seventy-five new members were proposed, and a distribution of the society's medals made for valuable papers read during the session of the past year. The educational prizes were next distributed—the Prince Consort's prize of 25 being awarded to Mr. Carter, and the Council's prize of £10 to Miss Mongeham.

At a meeting of the Royal Humane Society, held on Tuesday at the offices, Trafalgar-square, the silver medallion was unanimously voted to Miss Grace Vernon Russell, a young lady sixteen years of age, and the bronze medallion to Samuel Isaacs, her black servant, for saving life. On Dec. 1 last the screw-steamer Georgette sprung a leak at sea in a gale off Cape Lewin during a voyage from Freemantle to Port Adelaide, and was stranded at a place called Kaldagup, about eight miles south of Wallcliffe House, the residence of Mr. A. P. Russell, and fifty miles from the township of Busselton, Perth. Hearing of the accident, Miss Russell, attended by her black servant, rode on horseback down a very steep cliff at full speed to the scene of the disaster, and found the boat capsized in 2½ fathoms water, and the passengers clinging to her. Miss Russell lost no time in riding her horse into the sea, and, after the greatest difficulty, at length succeeded in reaching the boat, accompanied by Isaacs, and, with as many women and children clinging to her and her horse as possible, she made for the shore and placed them in safety, the man Isaacs returning to the boat and saving a man who had been left there.

There were 2666 births and 1435 deaths registered in London last week. The births exceeded by 208, and the deaths were 297 below, the average. The deaths included 66 from measles, 61 from scarlet fever, 8 from diphtheria, 23 from whooping-cough, 28 from different forms of fever, and 23 from diarrhoea. The deaths from smallpox, which in the two previous weeks had been 9 and 25, were last week 14. Eight of the fatal cases were certified as unvaccinated, 4 as vaccinated, and in two cases the medical certificates gave no information as to vaccination. The deaths referred to diseases of the respiratory organs, which had been 335 and 338 in the two previous weeks, were 313 last week, and were 130 below the corrected weekly average: 185 resulted from bronchitis, and 89 from pneumonia. The widow of a miner died in Nazareth House, Hammermith, on the 12th inst., whose age was stated to be 102 years; she had been confined to her bed for some months in consequence of a fall. The mean temperature was 45.6 deg., and 3.1 deg. above the average. The duration of registered sunshine in the week was 10.9 hours, the sun being above the horizon during 62.1 hours.

We have received from the council of the Metropolitan Hospital Sunday Fund their report for the present year, in which they state that the fifth year of collecting this fund has proved one of gradual but highly satisfactory growth in the number of contributing congregations as compared with former years. From the Church of England alone there are no less than thirty new contributing congregations, and from the Congregationalists, who head the list of contributors from other religious bodies, an average increase of sixteen is found, as compared with the three previous years. Nearly all other denominations have maintained steady averages. As a total, there was an average increase of fifty new contributions. The actual amount collected this year has not exceeded £26,082, and this decrease, as compared with last year (£27,042), is evidently accounted for by the serious financial depression which has so materially reduced the means of the charitable. The total amount of collections made in various places of worship realised £25,078, and in schools £57. Donations, including contributions from workmen and firms, amounted to £909. The interest on £20,000 invested during the short interval prior to paying the several awards on Aug. 7 was £37, making in all, with a balance of £824 in hand from 1876, £26,911. The total amount recommended to be paid is £24,960, to be divided as follows:—£22,747 to seventy-six hospitals, including four institutions which may be classed as hospitals, and £2223 to forty-three dispensaries. The largest award recommended to be made—namely, £2491—is to the London Hospital; next to which comes the St. George's, £1841; the Middlesex, £1300; and King's College, £1083.

THE CHURCH.

PREFERENCES AND APPOINTMENTS.

Andrews, J. F., to be Vicar of Roxeth.
Baker, Hugh Lefroy; Vicar of Grimston-cum-Wartnaby.
Bayley, Charles James; Rector of Christ Church, Heaton.
Blink, Henry Simpson; Curate of Panteg, Pontypool, Monmouthshire.
Blyth, F. C.; Vicar of Quatford, Salop.
Brown, James Wilson Davy; Vicar of Assington.
Bullock, John; Chaplain of King's College Hospital, London.
Bury, Edward Alexander; Incumbent of All Saints', Branksome, Dorset.
Cobb, John William; Rector of St. Swithin's, Norwich.
Cooke, Charles John E.; Perpetual Curate of St. John's, Angell Town.
Darnell, Charles Thorp; Vicar of Belford.
Edwards, John; Vicar of Avenbury.
Elder, William Alexander; Rector of St. Augustine's, Norwich.
Elkington, J. J.; Chaplain to the Earl of St. Germans.
Evans, David Davies; Vicar of Peneareg, Carmarthenshire.
Fawcett, E.; Chaplain of Greenwich Union.
Gibbon, Hugh Harries; Curate of Whitechurch with St. Elvis.
Gough, Edmund; Rector of Felsham.
Hacon, J.; Rector of Ashby.
Hamilton, C. Ham; Rector of Horne, Surrey.
Harrison, Charles Frederick; Vicar of Llangunilo.
Hartley, Frederick; Vicar of Forthampton.
Harvey, William Hugh Peyton; Vicar of Chipping Sodbury.
Hinchcliffe, Edmund Henry; Rector of Muckleston, Staffordshire.
Hutchens, James; Curate of Quebec Chapel.
Irving, Robert; Incumbent of Christ Church, Sefton Park, Liverpool.
Jolly, Hunting; Rector of Knoddishall with Buxlow, Suffolk.
Judson, Robert Kershaw; Perpetual Curate of Bradshaw.
Lee, Thomas; Vicar of St. John the Baptist, Islington.
Marsden, William; Perpetual Curate of St. Chrysostom, Manchester.
Maynard, Edward Wallis Hoare; Vicar of Christ Church, Mountsorrell.
Nares, Owen; Vicar of St. Peter's, Carmarthen.
Nolan, T.; Rector of Kingston-Bagpuze, Berks.
Oakley, C.; Rector of St. Helen's, Ipswich.
O'Melia, F.; Rector of North Stoke, Bath.
Platten, Thomas E.; Vicar of Hindringham, Norfolk.
Potter, James; Perpetual Curate of Ringley.
Robins, Arthur; Chaplain to the Earl of Caledon.
Robson, Thomas; Vicar of Marske; Vicar of Marton.
Roe, Robert Bradley; Chaplain to the Earl of Ilchester.
Simpson, John Curwen; Perpetual Curate of Long-lane, Derbyshire.
Sturges, Herbert Court; Vicar of Erlestoke, Wilts.
Spence, Canon; Vicar of St. Pancras; Rural Dean.
Trimmer, R.; Honorary Canon of Winchester.
Turner, Thomas D.; Vicar of Flixton, Suffolk.
Whigham, Lawrence R.; Vicar of Hordle, near Lymington, Hants.
Whitaker, G. H.; Chancellor of Truro Cathedral.
Wyatt, Henry Drayton; Vicar of Wyke, Worplesdon, Surrey.—Guardian.

Lord John Manners laid the foundation-stone of a new church at Loughborough on Tuesday.

The Church Congress will meet next year at Sheffield, under the presidency of the Archbishop of York.

There has been a most successful mission in the parish of Brightlingsea, Essex, conducted by the Earl of Mulgrave.

The Earl of Dudley has offered to contribute £500 towards the cost of erecting the proposed vicarage for the newly-formed district of St. Mary, at Hurst Hill, Coseley.

The three towns of Plymouth, Devonport, and Stonehouse have been the scene of the operations of a Church mission on a large scale, the operations of which began on the 18th inst.

Christ Church, Perry Barr, near Birmingham, was reopened on the 15th inst., the sermon being preached by the Rev. Canon Wilkinson. A south wing has been added to the edifice.

On Monday the Archbishop of York consecrated All Saints' Church, Hawsker, which has been built by voluntary efforts. The Archbishop has appointed the Rev. T. J. Rawson, late of Sheffield, to the incumbency of Hawsker-with-Stainacre.

The Bishop of Ripon has consecrated a new church at Langthorne Mill, on a site given by the Duke of Leeds, the cost of which has been mainly borne by the Rev. T. M. Raven, the Vicar of the mother parish of Crakehall.

The Church of St. Leonard, Thorpe-Malsen, Northamptonshire, has been reopened, after restoration, and a side chapel, formerly used as a mortuary for the Maunsell family, has been utilised for Divine service.

The parish church of St. Edward, Knighton, has been reopened by the Bishop of Hereford. The work of restoration began in April, 1876, and was intrusted to Mr. Williams, builder, Mr. Pountney Smith being the architect. The total cost of the work, when completed, will be little short of £4000.

A new church, which has been erected at Longwood, near Huddersfield, at a cost of about £5000, and which can be completed according to plans for about £1500 more, was consecrated on the 15th inst. by the Bishop of Ripon. The church which the present building has superseded was 130 years old.

The Rev. Arthur Tooth has written to the Archbishop of Canterbury stating that he has resigned the living of St. James's, Hatcham, and expressing the hope that this may secure it from future litigation. He points out that it has now been declared on authority that no one can question that a new jurisdiction has been created in the Church of England.

The parish church of St. Luke's, Old-street, was reopened on Wednesday with special services. It has been closed for some months, in consequence of decays in the edifice. The cost of the restoration will be between £5000 and £6000. The Ironmongers' Company have helped in the work of restoration, and Mr. Warren De La Rue has subscribed £250.

The annual general court of the governors of the Corporation of the Sons of the Clergy was held at the Corporation House, Bloomsbury-place, on the 8th inst., and was followed by a meeting of the court of assistants on the 17th.

The Rev. Arthur Robins has placed richly carved sedilia, from the design of Mr. Stephen Wyborn, in the chancel of Holy Trinity Church, Windsor, "to the glory of God, and in grateful memory of Samuel Wilberforce, Bishop of Winchester."—A tablet has been placed in Graffham parish church, as a memento of the late Bishop Wilberforce, to whose memory the church was rebuilt.

Lamerton church, situated about three miles from Tavistock, was burned down on Monday evening. Only eighteen months ago the church was restored, at a cost of about £1100, and at the same time a new organ was erected at an expense of about £200 more. It was in the organ that the fire broke out, and it is believed to have originated in a lamp or lamp-stove, provided with petroleum, which was kept burning during wet weather in order to keep the damp out of the instrument. The registers were saved.

The Bishop of Manchester opened the Church Institute at Blackburn on Monday night. He said the Church of England must be made a national Church, relying more or less on popular support. Abuses if proved must be rectified, and every Churchman should gird on his armour for the great fight that was coming. For himself, he often read of promotion other than by merit which made him wince. Appointments ought to be probationary, and clergymen who did not give satisfaction in their parishes should be removable. The pew system, so far as non-residents were concerned, ought to be abolished, and the church made the church of the people.

The parish church of Selborne, the little quiet village in Hampshire made famous by having been the scene of the life-long observations of the Rev. Gilbert White, the naturalist and antiquary, was reopened, after a partial restoration, on the 15th inst. The work of restoration was begun by the late Vicar, the Rev. F. J. Parsons, with a local committee, partly by way of memorial to Gilbert White. The work has been continued by the new Vicar, the Rev. E. R. Bernard, under the direction of Mr. William White, F.S.A., grand-nephew of the great naturalist. About £1300 have been expended. The principal contributors to this have been Magdalen College, Oxford; Lord Selborne, the Diocesan Church-Building Society, the family of the late Vicar (the Rev. F. J. Parsons), Mr. T. Bell, the Incorporated Church-Building Society, the Right Hon. Sir W. Erle, and Mr. W. Nicholson.

The parish church of Weaverham, Cheshire, was reopened on the 15th inst., after general and very satisfactory restoration. The Bishop of Chester preached the sermon; and the Chancellor and Archdeacon of Chester, and the Rural Dean and about thirty-five other clergy, took part in the services. In the west window, a beautiful stained-glass window, by Clayton and Bell, has been inserted. This window, with the tower, screen, and west door, and the restoration of stonework in tower, is the offering of A. Johnson and his wife, of Wearsham Grange. The beautiful font of nearly white marble and oak canopy is the gift of Mr. Robert Heath and his wife, of Heffersham Grange; the oak eagle lectern and Holy Bible by T. Remer, Esq.; the massive south door by Mr. J. Higson, of Oakmere Hall; a suitable silver service for the holy communion, the gift of the Rev. C. W. Spencer-Stanhope and his family, in remembrance of his father, the late Vicar, and there are other gifts from other friends. The chancel is restored by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, and all the seats are henceforward free and open.

THE UNIVERSITIES AND PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

The examiners for the Taylorian Scholarship and Exhibition at Oxford have awarded the scholarship to Mr. Isidore Henry B. Spiers, of University College, and the exhibition to Mr. John K. Cohn, scholar of Jesus College. The following have been elected to scholarships at Hertford:—Open Classical Scholarships: H. R. Doyle, Manchester Grammar School; F. Holligan, Bedford Grammar School; J. L. Booker, Rugby. Proxime accessit: E. A. Arnold, Hertford. Open Mathematical Scholarship: J. H. Haywood, Hertford. "Harrow" Scholarship: O. Bradley, Harrow. "Essex" Scholarship: H. M. Gepp, Felstead School. "Lasby" Scholarship: T. A. Chater, St. John's, Oxford. "Meeke" Scholarships: W. Watson, Manchester Grammar School; F. Harrison, Leeds Grammar School. There were fifty-two candidates.

The honorary degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred upon Mr. Charles Darwin last Saturday at Cambridge.

The election of a Rector for St. Andrews University in the place of Dean Stanley, whose term of office has expired, took place on Thursday. All the gentlemen previously mentioned in connection with the chair having declined to stand, Lord Selborne and Mr. Gathorne Hardy were selected at a meeting held late on Wednesday night as the two candidates that should be carried to the poll. Principal Shairp presided during the voting. At eleven o'clock he announced the result as follows:—Lord Selborne, 79; Mr. Hardy, 64.

Mr. William Walker, who was recently appointed to the Head Mastership of Reading School, wrote on the 3rd inst. to resign the post. He said that, having visited Reading, he had become aware of the circumstances under which his election was finally completed. He was compelled, he said, to resign, as he could not possibly allow his integrity and scholastic reputation to be doubted at the outset of an honest effort to do his best for the Reading School. After some negotiations between the trustees, the Town Council of Reading, and Mr. Walker, the latter was induced to withdraw his resignation.

The Dean and Chapter have elected the following King's Scholars at Durham School, after open competitive examination:—Latimer, from Carlisle, and Good, Moore, Robson, and White, boys already in the school. The Dean and Chapter have this year founded six exhibitions, tenable at Oxford, Cambridge, and Durham Universities.

Earl Nelson distributed the prizes to the students of St. Mark's College, Chelsea, on the 15th inst. The attendance was large, and the proceedings were enlivened by the customary vocal concert by the students. The Rev. Canon Cromwell (Principal of the college) read his report, from which it appeared that the number of students on the college roll is 116, and of these fifty-six are in the second year and sixty in the first year. The prizes were of two classes—those given by the college and those by the Science and Art Department.

The biennial adjudication of the gold medals founded by Sir Gilbert Blane, Bart., has recently been made, and they have been awarded to Fleet-Surgeon Adam Bruntton Messer, M.D., for his journal as Staff-Surgeon of H.M.S. Pearl for the year 1875, when on the Australian station; and to Fleet-Surgeon Francis William Davis, for his journal of H.M.S. Audacious, the flagship on the China station, for the year 1875.

THE WAR: ENCAMPMENT OF THE RUSSIAN IMPERIAL GUARD NEAR PLEVNA.
FROM A SKETCH BY ONE OF OUR SPECIAL ARTISTS.

SKETCHES OF THE WAR, BY OUR SPECIAL ARTISTS.

TAKING RUSSIAN DESERTERS TO BE SHOT DURING AN ENGAGEMENT.

RECEPTION OF A RUSSIAN DESERTER AT THE TURKISH OUTPOSTS.

NEW BOOKS AND PUBLICATIONS.

THE NEW AND POPULAR NOVELS.

DORIS BARUGH. By Mrs. MACQUOID. Author of Patty, &c. 3 vols. THE VILLAGE COMEDY. By MORTIMER and FRANCES COLLING. 3 vols. THE SQUIRE'S COURTSHIP. By Mrs. MACKENZIE DANIEL. 3 vols. A JEWEL OF A GIRL. By the Author of "Queenie," &c. 3 vols. MAUD LESLIE. By Lady CHARLES THYNNE. TWO TALES OF MARRIED LIFE: HARD TO BEAR. By GEORGINA M. CRAIK; and A TRUE MAN, by M. G. STIBLING. 3 vols. CHEAP EDITION OF PHOEBE, JUNIOR. By Mrs. OLIPHANT. 1 vol. 6s., bound and illustrated. HURST and BLACKETT, Publishers, 13, Great Marlborough-street.

Folio, price 7s. 6d. each. THROUGH THE EYE TO THE MIND. THE INSTRUCTIVE PICTURE-BOOKS.—A series of volumes illustrative of Natural History and of the Vegetable World, with descriptive letter-press. "These volumes are among the most instructive Picture-Books we have seen, and we know of none better calculated to excite and gratify the appetite of the young for the knowledge of nature."—Times. London: EDWARD STAMFORD, 55, Charing-cross, S.W.

Tenth Edition, with Fifty-four Folio Coloured Plates. THE INSTRUCTIVE PICTURE-BOOK. No. 1, or Lessons from the Natural History of Animals. By ADAM WHITE, late Assistant, Zoological Department, British Museum. London: EDWARD STAMFORD, 55, Charing-cross, S.W.

Fifth Edition, with many New Plates, price 7s. 6d. THE INSTRUCTIVE PICTURE-BOOK. No. 2, or Lessons from the Vegetable World. By the Author of "The Heir of Redclyffe." The Herb of the Field, &c.—London: EDWARD STAMFORD, 55, Charing-cross, S.W.

Third Edition, with Sixty Folio Coloured Plates, price 7s. 6d. THE INSTRUCTIVE PICTURE-BOOK. No. 3, or Lessons from the Geographical Distribution of Animals. The Natural History of the Quadrupeds which Characterise the Four Divisions of the Globe. London: EDWARD STAMFORD, 55, Charing-cross, S.W.

Second Edition, with Forty-eight Folio Coloured Plates, price 7s. 6d. THE INSTRUCTIVE PICTURE-BOOK. No. 4, SKETCHES FROM NATURE; or Pictures of Animal or Vegetable Life in all Lands. London: EDWARD STAMFORD, 55, Charing-cross, S.W.

Seventh Edition, with Thirty-six Coloured Illustrations. RECREATIVE INSTRUCTION.—THE NEW PICTURE-BOOK. or, Pictorial Lessons on Form, Composition, and Number. For children under seven years of age. With Explanations by NICHOLAS BOHNY. London: EDWARD STAMFORD, 55, Charing-cross, S.W.

Crown 8vo, cloth, with Maps and Illustrations, 6s. THE HEROES OF YOUNG AMERICA. By ABSCOTT B. HOPE, Author of "A Peck of Troubles." "A Book about Boys," "A Book about Dummies," &c. London: EDWARD STAMFORD, 55, Charing-cross, S.W.

Crown 8vo, cloth, with numerous Illustrations, 6s. ADVENTURES IN THE AIR: being Memorable Experiences of Great Aviators. From the French of M. DE FONVILLE. Translated and Edited by JOHN S. KELTIE. London: EDWARD STAMFORD, 55, Charing-cross, S.W.

WELDON and CO.'S CHRISTMAS ANNUAL (Fourth Season), price 1s.; postage 2d. Capitally illustrated. Now ready. PAN THE PILGRIM: A Vision of Judgment. London: WELDON and Co., Wine Office-court, Fleet-street.

PAINTING ON CHINA, EARTHENWARE, &c. Practical Lessons by MME. LA BARONNE DELAMARDELLE. Translated from the French by G. A. BOUVIER. Price 1s.; postage, 1d. LANCETTER, BARNES, and Co., 60, Regent-st., London.

CHRISTMAS DECORATIONS.—The enlarged edition of the Illustrated Catalogue contains 400 designs for Scrolls, Banners, Texts, with prices of Frosted Plush; plain and flock Papers; straw Tissue; Everlasting Flowers and Cape Silver Leaves and Flowers; Holly and Ivy Leaves; Berries and Wreaths. Price 3d., postage free.

THE ART OF GARNISHING CHURCHES. By EDWARD YOUNG COX. Forwarded post-free for 5d. COX and Sons, 26, 28, and 31, Southampton-street, Strand, London.

Large 8vo, pp. 726, bound in cloth, 8s., postage free. HOMŒOPATHIC DOMESTIC PHYSICIAN. By Drs. PULTE and EPPS. Concise—General Diseases—Cutaneous Diseases—Fever—Affections of the Head—the Eyes—the Ears—the Nose—the Face, Lips, and Jaws—the Teeth, Gums, and Mouth—the Windpipe and Chest—the Stomach and Bowels—the Urinary—Genital Organs—Diseases of Women—Treatment of Children—Anatomy and Physiology—Hygiene and Hydropathy—Materia Medica—Domestic Surgery—Medical and Surgical Appliances—Diseases and Luxations—Fractures. A Chest of Medicines, Book included, 23 10s. or 25 6s. London: JAMES ERVE and Co., 48, Threadneedle-street.

By Dr. BABE MEADOWS, Physician to the National Institution for Diseases of the Skin. Seventh Edition, postage free, 3d. ERUPTIONS; their Rational Treatment, Remarks on the abuse of arsenic, mercury and other reputed specifics.—London: G. HILL, 154, Westminster Bridge-rd.

CONSUMPTION: its Proximate Cause and Specific Treatment by the HYPOPHOSPHITES, upon the Principles of Stenographic Medicine, by JOHN FRANCIS CHURCHILL, M.D. With an Appendix on the Direct Treatment of Respiratory Diseases (Asthma, Bronchitis, &c.) by Stenographic Medicine, and Reports of nearly Two Hundred Cases by Drs. Churchill, Campbell, Heslop, Sterling, Bird, Santa Maria, Gomes, Maestre, Parrot, Reinville, Galvez, Liverdand, Denobele, Feldman, Pfeiffer, Vintura, Gard, Tirafazy, Lant, Fabbri, Fannegrossi, Cornet, Gualdi, Todini, Ascenzi, Regni, Faldenti, Cassi, Biasi, Borronaro, Fiorilli, and Fedelli. Price 21s. London: Loxmans and Co.

DE LA RUE & CO.'S INDELIBLE RED LETTER DIARIES, CONDENSED DIARIES, and TABLE CALENDARS for 1878, in great variety, may now be had of all Booksellers and Stationers. Wholesale only of the Publishers, Tnos. De La Rue and Co., London.

DE LA RUE & CO.'S PLAYING CARDS. The New Patterns for the Season may now be had of all Booksellers and Stationers. Wholesale only of the Manufacturers, Tnos. De La Rue and Co., London.

By ROYAL LETTERS PATENT. "DEXTER" PLAYING CARDS, with rounded Corners and Patent Index-pipe, extra thin, and highly burnished on both sides. Of all Booksellers and Stationers. Wholesale only of the Manufacturers, Tnos. De La Rue and Co., London.

DE LA RUE'S CHRISTMAS CARDS, in great variety, prepared from Original Designs and Illustrated by Original Artists. Of all Booksellers and Stationers. Wholesale only of the Publishers, Tnos. De La Rue and Co., London.

GO-BANG, A Japanese Game, with Board arranged on an improved principle, Counters, and "Guide" by "CAVENDISH." Retains at 6s. and upwards. Of all Booksellers and Stationers. Wholesale only of the Manufacturers, Tnos. De La Rue and Co., London.

Now ready, Eleventh Edition, 8vo, cloth, extra gilt, price 6s. WHIST, THE LAWS AND PRINCIPLES OF. By "CAVENDISH." Of all Booksellers and Stationers.—Tnos. De La Rue and Co., London.

By the same Author. ECARTE, THE LAWS OF, Adopted by the Turf Club; with a Treatise on the Game, price 2s. 6d. ROUND GAMES AT CARDS, price 1s. 6d. PIQUET, price 2s. 6d. LAWN-TENNIS and BADMINTON, price 1s. 6d. POCKET GUILDS, price 6d. each. WHIST (5-Card), LAWS, LEADS, BEZIQUE, POLISH BEZIQUE, ECARTE, EUCRE, KNOLE-FIVE, CRIBBAGE, CALABRESSE, SIXTY-SIX, GO-BANG, BACKGAMMON, CHESS, DRAUGHTS, OF all Games. Tnos. De La Rue and Co., London.

NEW BOOKS AND PUBLICATIONS.

Nov. 29 (One Shilling), No. 216. THE CORNHILL MAGAZINE for DECEMBER. With Illustrations by George Du Maurier and Frank Dicksee. CONTENTS. Da Capo (with an Illustration). Chap. I.—Colonel Baxter's Retrospections. II.—Feliccia's Retrospections. III.—On the Terrace at Bernes. IV.—Bears in their Den. V.—The Falcon Hotel. The Celt of Wales and the Celt of Ireland. Thomas Oway. Up Glen Roy. The Wreckages of Great Men. Hours in a Library. No. XVII.—Charlotte Brontë. "For Percival" (with an Illustration). Chap. XIII.—Shadows. XIV.—Godfrey Hammond Prescribes. XV.—As Others see us. XVI.—Principles and Persons. London: SMITH, ELDER, and Co., 10, Waterloo-place.

VITREMANIE.—An Easy Method of Decorating Windows in Churches, Public Buildings, and Private Houses equal to Real Stained Glass. Illustrated Handbook of Instructions, post-free, 1s. 1d. Particulars free. London: J. BARNARD and SONS, 539, Oxford-street, W.

RIMMEL'S PERFUMED ALMANACKS. "Arts and Sciences," richly illuminated, 6d. Pan Almanack, 6d. Comic Pocket-Book Almanack (Olympus), 1s. Sent on receipt of stamp, 10s. 6d. Strand; 1s. Regent-street; 2s. Cornhill.

THE "Argus" says: "On Mighty Pens." "We unto you when all men speak well of you!" is a saying that does not apply to the inanimate creation, otherwise it would go hard with Macniven and Cameron's pens. "They come as a boon and a blessing to men." The Pickwick, the Owl, and the Waverley Pen. "They are a treasure." "The Wonder of the Age," the HINDOO PEN. Sample Box assorted, of all the kinds, 1s. 1d. by post, sold everywhere. Patentees, MACNIVEN and CAMERON (Est. 1770), 23 to 25, Blair-street, Edinburgh. Penmakers to Her Majesty's Government Offices.

THE SOCIETY OF ARTS' ONE SHILLING MOIST-COLOUR BOX. Unadulterated pigments. Box in japanned tin.—Leicester, Barbe, and Co., 60, Regent-st., London; and local Artists' Colourmen and Stationers.

FOR ARMS and CREST, send Name and County to T. MORING, Inns of Court Heraldic Office, 44, High Holborn, W.C. Plain Sketch, 3s. 6d.; Coloured, 7s. 6d. Seals, Dies, and Diplomas. Illustrated Price-List post-free.

FOR FAMILY ARMS (Lincoln's Inn Heraldic Office) send Name and County. Sketch, 3s. 6d.; or stamps. Arms Painted and Engraved on Seals, Book-Plates, Dies, &c.—FUGH BROS., Great Turnstile, Lincoln's Inn.

CHEAP FRAMES for the Coloured Picture given with this Paper, from 2s. 6d. each. Every description of Frames and Pictures in stock.—REES, 41, 42, 43, Russell-street, Covent-garden (opposite Drury Lane Theatre).

SCRAPS FOR SCREENS and SCRAP BOOKS, IN IMMENSE VARIETY. Flowers, Figures, Fruits, Birds, and Landscapes, coloured, from 1s. per sheet; 12 sheets, assorted, 10s. 6d. WM. BARNARD 119, Edgware-road, London.

WHITE WOOD ARTICLES, for PAINTING, FERN PRINTING and Decalcomanie. Hand Screens book Covers; Glove, Knitting, and Handkerchief Boxes; Paper Knives, Fans, &c. Price List on application. WM. BARNARD, 119, Edgware-road, London.

MR. STREETER'S DIAMOND ORNAMENTS. LONDON-MADE JEWELLERY, of exquisite design and workmanship. The only Jeweller in England whose stock consists solely of 18-Carat Gold. ENGLISH KEYLESS LEVER WATCHES, with all the latest improvements. Of Mr. STREETER, 18, New Bond-street. "GOLD." By EDWIN W. STREETER. Second Edition will shortly be ready.

THE BEST ENGLISH WATCHES. GOLDSMITH'S ALLIANCE, Limited, request the attention of Purchasers to their PATENT LEVER WATCHES, which, being manufactured on the Premises, are confidently recommended for accuracy and durability.

Prices of Silver Watches. Patent Lever Watch, jewelled, enamel dial, and seconds 24 14 6 Ditto, jewelled in four holes, and capped 8 8 0 Ditto, with fine quality jewelled in six holes 8 8 0 Silver Watches in Hunting Cases, 10s. 6d. extra. Gold Watches.—Size for Ladies. Patent Lever Watches, with gold dial, jewelled 11 11 0 Ditto, with richly engraved case 12 12 0 Ditto, with very strong case, and jewelled in four holes 14 14 0 Gold Watches.—Size for Gentlemen. Patent Lever Watches, jewelled, seconds, and capped 13 13 0 Ditto, jewelled in six holes, and gold balance 18 18 0 Gold Watches in Hunting Cases, 23 3s. extra. Lists of prices, with remarks on watches, gratis and post-free. The Goldsmiths' Alliance (Limited), 11 and 12, Cornhill, London.

WALKER'S CRYSTAL CASE WATCHES are exceeding all others. Prize Medals—London, 1862; Paris, 1867. Silver Watches, from 14 4s. Gold, from 24 4s. Lists sent free.—68, Cornhill; 220, Regent-street; and 78, Strand.

£10. BENNETT'S WATCHES. In return for a £10 Note, free and safe per post, one of BENNETT'S LADY'S GOLD WATCHES, perfect for time, beauty, and workmanship, with keyless action, air-tight, damp-light, and dust-tight. London. Good Chains at manufacturers' prices. P.O.O. to John Bennett. BENNETT, 65 and 66, Cheapside.

BENSON'S WATCHES.—WATCH and CLOCK MAKER to the QUEEN and Royal Family, and by special appointment to the Prince of Wales and Emperor of Russia. Old Bond-street, and (Steam Factory) Ludgate-hill, London.

BENSON'S WATCHES of every description, suitable for all climates, from £2 to 200 ga. Chronographs, Chronometers, Keyless, Levers, Presentation, Repeaters, Railway Guards', Soldiers', and Workmen's Watches, of extra strength.

BENSON'S ARTISTIC ENGLISH CLOCKS, decorated with Wedgwood and other ware, designed to suit any style of architecture or furniture; also, as novelties for presents. Made solely by Benson. From 25 6s.

BENSON'S PAMPHLETS on TURRET CLOCKS, Watches, Clocks, Plate, and Jewellery. Illustrated. Sent, post-free, each for two stamps. Watches sent safe by post. Benson's New Work, "Time and Time-Tellers," 2s. 6d.

E. DENT and CO., 61, Strand, and 34, Royal Exchange, London, Manufacturers of CHRONOMETERS, WATCHES, CLOCKS, &c. (Catalogue free), to Her Majesty the Queen and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and Foreign Sovereigns. Makers of the Great Westminster Clock and of the New Standard Clock of the Royal Observatory, Greenwich.

OROIDE GOLD JEWELLERY. (Registered). The only perfect substitute for 18-carat gold. Descriptive Price-List (Illustrated) and Press Opinions free per post.

WATCHES, Horizontal Movement, four jewels, elegant cases, open face, 21s., 22s., Hunters, 30s., various sizes. Safe by post, registered, with key, 6d. extra. "The chief merit of a watch, of whatever material it is made, is to be a good timekeeper, and in this respect Mr. Rowe's watches are equal to the best, at any price. For a guinea Mr. Rowe sells an excellent watch, and for 39s. a hunter that, in appearance, is equal to a gold chronometer at 30 guineas."—Weekly Times, Oct. 28, 1876. P.O.O. Exhibition-road, South Kensington. C. C. ROWE, 88, Brompton-road, London, S.W.

TRAVELLING BAGS. Write for their "Bar" Catalogue (Illustrated). MAPPIN and WEBB, 76, 77, & 78, OXFORD-STREET, } London. W. 2, QUEEN VICTORIA-STREET, CITY.

NOSE MACHINE.—A contrivance applied to the nose for an hour daily, so directs the soft cartilage of the nose that an ill-formed one is quickly shaped, 10s. 6d. Sent free for stamps.—ALEX. ROSS 248 High Holborn, London.

NEW MUSIC.

NOVELLO, EWER, and CO.'S MUSIC PRIMER. Edited by Dr. STAINER. The following are now ready:—

THE PIANOFORTE PRIMER. By ERNST FAUER. Price 2s.

THE ORGAN PRIMER. By Dr. STAINER. Price 2s.

THE RUDIMENTS OF MUSIC PRIMER. By W. H. CUMMINGS. Price 1s.

THE ELEMENTS OF THE BEAUTIFUL IN MUSIC. By ERNST FAUER. Price 1s. NOVELLO, EWER, and Co.'s Music Primers.

Second Edition, price 2s.; cloth, 3s. CATHEDRAL PSALTER CHANTS. Edited by the Rev. H. FLOOD JONES, M.A., JAMES TURLE, Rev. J. TROUTBECK, M.A., Dr. J. STAINER, and JOSEPH BARNEY.

LIEDER OHNE WORTE. Eight Books. The only Complete Edition. Cloth, 6s.; paper covers, 4s.

NOVELLO, EWER, and CO.'S CHRISTMAS PRESENTS. CHRISTMAS CAROLS, NEW AND OLD. Edited by the Rev. H. R. Bramley and Dr. Stainer. With 45 Illustrations, engraved by the Brothers Dalziel. Elegantly bound, 7s. 6d.

THE SUNLIGHT OF SONG. Sacred and Moral Songs, with Original Music by the most eminent English Composers. With 46 Illustrations, engraved by the Brothers Dalziel. Handsomely bound, 10s. 6d.

NATIONAL NURSERY RHYMES. Set to Music by J. W. Elliott. With 65 Illustrations, engraved by the Brothers Dalziel. Cloth gilt, 7s. 6d.

BEETHOVEN'S SONATAS. Edited by Agnes Zimmermann. Folio, elegantly bound, gilt edges, 21s.; octavo, elegantly bound, gilt edges, 7s. 6d.; octavo, paper covers, 6s.

MOZART'S SONATAS. Edited by Agnes Zimmermann. Folio, elegantly bound, gilt edges, 18s.

MEYER'S VOCAL ALBUM. English and German Words. Handsomely bound, 4s. 6d.; paper covers, 2s. 6d.

SCHUMANN'S PIANOFORTE ALBUM FOR YOUNG PIANISTS (Op. 68 and Op. 10). Handsomely bound, 4s. 6d.; paper covers, 2s. 6d.

GERMAN VOLKSLIEDER ALBUM. Original German Words; and an English Version by John Oxenford. Handsomely bound, 4s. 6d.; paper covers, 2s. 6d.

DR. STAINER'S MUSIC PRIMER. Edited by Dr. Stainer and A. Hartert. Two, cloth, gilt edges, 16s.

MUSICAL MYTHS and FACTS. By CARL ENGEL. Two vols., demy 8vo, cloth, price 12s.

London: NOVELLO, EWER, and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.; and 80 and 81, Queen-street, E.C.

DUFF and STEWART'S DANCE ALBUM, containing Under the Mistletoe, Quadrille, C. Godfrey; Fontainebleau, Valse, G. Lamotte; Christmas Tree Polka, H. Farmer; Old English Lancers, C. Marriott; Welcome Home, Galop, C. Godfrey; Croquet Schottische, C. Marriott; Esmeralda Valse, C. Godfrey; Castles in the Air, C. Godfrey; Polka Mazurka, J. T. Treckell; English, Scotch, and Irish National Dances. One Shilling.—DUFF and STEWART, 147, Oxford-street, and all Musicians.

ESMERALDA. W. C. LEVEY'S popular Song. "One of the brightest modern compositions of its kind."—Standard. The Song in D, E, or F. 4s. for Piano, by Kuhn, 4s.; Richards, 4s.; Richard, 2s.; Waltons, by Godfrey, 4s. Half price.—DUFF and STEWART, 147, Oxford-street.

NEW EDITION IN F. FOR BASS. THE KING and THE BEGGAR-MAID. By W. C. LEVEY. This popular Song may be had in A for Baritone, and in F for Bass. Sent for 2s. DUFF and STEWART, 147, Oxford-street.

THE RAVEN. Sung by Mr. Santley. The Words from the poem by Edgar Allan Poe. The music composed by W. C. LEVEY. This successful new Song sent for 2s.—DUFF and STEWART, 147, Oxford-street.

STOLEN KISSES WALTZ. By HANS WALDENFELDT. Free, 2s. "Played nightly at the Globe with unusual success."—Standard. OSMAN PASHA MARCH. By ADOLPH MEYER. Free, 2s. "A bold, inspiring melody, the time well marked."—Standard. London: Wood and Co., 3, Great Marlborough-street.

CHARLES HALLÉ'S PRACTICAL PIANOFORTE SCHOOL. Section I.—No. 1. Pianoforte Tutor. FORTY-THREE NUMBERS, London and Manchester.

MUSICAL LIBRARY SERIES. Edited and carefully fingered by CHARLES HALLÉ. Fifty-eight Numbers now ready. FORTY-THREE NUMBERS, London and Manchester.

CHARLES HALLÉ'S NEW EDITION of POPULAR WORKS. For List of Pieces already published, Catalogues will be forwarded, post-free, on application to FORTY-THREE NUMBERS, 272A, Regent-circus, Oxford-street, London; and Cross-street, South King-street, Manchester.

TO LADIES.—SALE OF NEW MUSIC at a large reduction in price.—The most popular Songs, Pieces, or Dances of the day sent post-free from 6d., 6d., 6d., 10d., 1s., &c. Best Editions, New Copies of all Publishers. Catalogues sent post-free.—A. M. MORFITT, 3, Barnsbury-street, London, N.

P. J. SMITH and SONS' IRON-STRUTTED PIANOS. "The best and most substantial instrument produced." 9, CONDUIT-STREET, REGENT-STREET, W.

BUTLER'S MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS. Violins, Concertinas, Harmoniums, Flutes, Clarinets, Flageolets, Guitars, Banjos, Accordions, Flutinas, Cornets, Saxhorns, Drums, and Musical Instruments of every description. Largest assortment in the kingdom. BUTLER'S Manufactory, 29, Haymarket, London. Illustrated Catalogue, post-free.

MUSICAL-BOX DÉPÔT for NICOLE, FERRER'S, celebrated Instruments. Boxes of exquisite tone, in rosewood cases, playing four airs, 24 4s. A choice assortment of Boxes, playing the most popular airs. Lists of tunes and prices gratis and post-free.—11 and 12, Cornhill, London.

MUSICAL-BOX DEPÔTS, 56, Cheapside, and 22, Ludgate-hill, London.—Nicole's celebrated Musical Boxes, playing the most popular airs, and of every description. Snuffboxes from 1s. to 6s. Largest Stock in London. Catalogue gratis and post-free. Apply to WALES & McCULLOCH, as above.

CHIME CLOCK.—Fine Piece of English Mechanism, with eight bells and deep-toned gong. Perfect timepiece, very cheerful in tone, and handsome for hall or dining-room. Unusual bargain. Mr. W. W. WALES and McCULLOCH, 56, Cheapside.

WEDDING and BIRTHDAY PRESENTS. ASSER and SHERWIN have the Largest and Best-selected Assortment of NOVELTIES for PRESENTS. Asser and Sherwin, 80 and 81, Strand.

WINTER AMUSEMENTS. The GUINEA CABINET OF GAMES contains Go-Bang, Race, Solitaire, Tactics, Snail, Chess, Draughts, Backgammon, Dominoes, Fox and Geese, Whist, Cribbage, Bezique, and Spoil; the whole, with Rules, in a handsome mahogany case, packed for the country, in deal box, on receipt of P.O. order 22s.

ASSER and SHERWIN, 80 and 81, Strand, W.C. London.

WINTER AMUSEMENTS. New Games. ANNEXATION. 10s. 6d. FISHY BONES. 7s. 6d., 10s. 6d. FLAGSHIPS. 7s. 6d., 10s. 6d. WANDERER. 7s. 6d., 10s. 6d. These Games are the best ever invented.

ASSER and SHERWIN'S NEW ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE for SUMMER and WINTER GAMES, also for Prizes and Presents, containing 300 Engravings, free on application. Asser and Sherwin, 80 and 81, Strand.

REVOLVERS, PISTOLS.—COLTS' Government Army Revolver, Colts' Deringer Revolver for travellers and house protection, Colts' Deringer for the vest pocket. Price-List free. Colts' Fire-Arms Company, 14, Pall-mall, London.

JOHN MORTLOCK

begs to call attention to the "EVERY-DAY" DINNER SERVICES, complete for 12 Persons, 64 15s. Colours are indestructible. The Pottery Galleries, 20 and 20a, Oxford-street; 20 and 21, Orchard-street, Portman-square, W.

MAPPIN and WEBB, MANUFACTURERS, Mansion House-buildings, City, London. The Highest Quality at Lowest Prices.

MAPPIN and WEBB'S SPOONS and FORKS. Highest quality at lowest prices. MAPPIN and WEBB'S ELEPHANT PLATE DISH-COVERS, ENTREE DISHES, TEA and COFFEE SERVICES, SOUP TUREENS, SOUP BASINS, HASH DISHES, SPOON-WARMERS. New Designs of best quality.

MAPPIN and WEBB, MANUFACTURERS, 76, 77, and 78, Oxford-street, West-End, London. The Highest Quality at Lowest Prices.

GARDNERS' TOUGHENED GLASS and INDESTRUCTIBLE DINNER WARE, the Glass direct from De la Basse's Manufactory. Wholesale Price-List free on application.—Gardners', Glass and China Manufacturers, 423 and 424, West Strand, Charing-cross.

GARDNERS' NEW DINNER SERVICES are perfect in shape, elegant in appearance, and unequalled in price, complete for 12 persons:—The Japanese Balmbees 25 5 0 The Glencairn, in pink or green 13 5 0 The Glencairn, in all colours 13 5 0 The Bramble, in all colours 13 5 0 The One Thousand and Two 13 5 0 The One Thousand and Two A 13 5 0 The Japanese Balmbees 25 5 0 Coloured Drawings post-free.—GARDNERS', Glass and China Manufacturers, 423 and 424, West Strand, Charing-cross.

FURNITURE.—MAPLE & CO.—Families who study economy with durability and elegance should visit this establishment before giving their orders. A House of any size furnished complete from stock in three days. An Illustrated Catalogue post-free. 145, 146, 147, 148, and 149, Tottenham-court-road, London.

DUPLEX LAMPS, with PATENT INSTANTANEOUS EXTINGUISHER.—The Lamp of the Season, the PATENT DUPLEX LAMP, for American rock oil, gives an intense, pure, and beautiful light, equal to that of twenty-four sperm candles, at a cost of about one farthing per hour. DEANE & CO. have a Sale in Crystal, China, Ormolu, and Bronze, at prices from 17s. 6d. to 24s. 6d. each. Price-List for 1877, with Engravings, post-free. Deane and Co., 46, King William-st., London-bridge (A.D. 1700).

GASELIERS, in Crystal, Glass, Ormolu, or Bronze, Medieval Fittings, &c. A large assortment always on view. Every article marked with plain figures. D. HULETT and CO., Manufacturers, 55 and 56, High Holborn.

MAPLE and CO. 145, TOTTENHAM-COURT-ROAD,

IMPORTER OF FOREIGN CARPETS.

THE LARGEST STOCK of ORIENTAL CARPETS IN EUROPE.

RUSSIAN-TURKISH WAR.

PERSIAN and TURKISH CARPETS.

OVER 2000 DAGHESTAN and SOVRANACK CARPETS just received from Constantinople. These goods have been bought by agents especially dispatched by Messrs. MAPLE and CO., for cash, are of great rarity, some being very handsome old prayer rugs, which have been made over 100 years. The prices are wonderfully low; in fact, one third of that usually asked for these curiosities. 145, 146, 147, Tottenham-court-road, London.

LEWIN CRAWCOUR and CO.'S complete ILLUSTRATED FURNITURE CATALOGUE new and enlarged Edition, gratis and post-free contains nearly 300 designs of useful, artistic, and well-seasoned Furniture, and also Estimates for completely furnishing any class of House. Orders for completely furnishing in any part of England, upon cash terms, are delivered, fitted, and fixed, including. 71, 73, and 75, Brompton-road, London.

CHUBBS' SAFES and LOCKS.—128, QUEEN VICTORIA-STREET, ST. PAUL'S, communication by special private wire with West-End Branch at 98, St. James's-street, Pall-mall, and Safe Factory, Old Kent-road, S.E. Lock Factory, Wolverhampton. Illustrated Price-List sent free.

69, LUDGATE-HILL.

TRELOAR'S REAL TURKEY CARPETS.

TRELOAR'S SEASONED FLOORCLOTH.

TRELOAR'S COCOA-NUT FIBRE MATS.

TRELOAR'S UNBLEACHED MATTING.

TRELOAR'S JAPANESE MATS.

TRELOAR'S CHINESE MATTING.

BLACK SILKS! BLACK SILKS!

The Best Value, from Patterns free.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

EVENING, WEDDING, and USEFUL

SILKS. The Best Value, from Patterns free.—BAKER and CRISP, Regent-street.

NOTICE.—1000 ODD SILK DRESSES and REMNANTS at Patterns free.—BAKER and CRISP.

1000 BOXES ROYAL SILK

MOLESKIN VELVETENS in Black, from 1s. 9d.

INDIAN CASHMERE and FRENCH

MERINOS.
Patterns free.—BAKER and CRISP, Regent-street.

DRESSES! DRESSES! DRESSES!

Borges, Vienna, Saxony Flannel, and 100 other new Winter Materials, from 6d. to 2s. 6d. yard.—BAKER and CRISP.—Patterns free.

EVENING DRESSES. EVENING

DRESSES.
The New Grenadines and other Light Fabrics, from 6s. 9d. Full Dress. Patterns free.

COSTUMES. COSTUMES. COSTUMES.

New Engravings free.
Cashmere, Serges, Velvets, Snowflake, and every other Fabric, from 2s. 6d. Patterns free.—BAKER and CRISP.

BAKER and CRISP'S PALETOTS,

ULSTERS, &c.—Patterns and Engravings free.
The John (last Novelty), and 1000 others, from 1s. 6d. to 10s.—BAKER and CRISP, Regent-street.

NOTICE.—ODDS and ENDS.—WINTER

BUNDLES of 50 yards of Best DRESS FABRICS, for 3s.
6d. and 4s. 6d. each. Sent for P.O.O. to BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street, London.

HENRY GLAVE'S

GRAND EXHIBITION OF COSTUMES.
At the Grand Autumn Exhibition and Costume Contest just concluded at the Alexandra Palace we exhibited upwards of Fifty very superior Ladies' and Children's French Model Costumes, and many new things in Mantles, Jackets, Bonnets, and other accessories, and many Household Requisites for style and economy.

Patterns of Material, Photographs, Instructions for Self-measurement, and other particulars sent post-free.

CHILDREN'S EXHIBITION COSTUMES.

"Leonora," £2 6s. 6d. "Laurine," £2 2s.
"Valentine," £1 15s. 6d. "Folly," £1 17s. 6d.
"Surprise," £1 19s. 6d. "Isis," £2 2s. 6d.
"Chickadee," £2 2s. "Ida," £2 12s. 6d.
"Patti," £2 2s. "Roseline," £2 2s.
"Charmant," £3 19s. 6d. "Cassack," £2 12s. 6d.
"Polo," £2 19s. 6d. "Silvio," £1 11s. 6d.
"Caterpillar," £1 19s. 6d. "Pearl," £2 9s. 6d.
"Rival," £1 19s. 6d. "Cameron," £2 12s. 6d.
"Munroe," £1 9s. 6d. "Jessica," £2 15s. 6d.
"Moonbeam," £2 5s. 6d. "Fairlight," £1 17s. 6d.
"Winifred," £2 6s. 6d.
351, 353, 355, and 357, New Oxford-street, London.

DISSOLUTION of PARTNERSHIP of GASE and GASK.

SALE of the whole of their immense STOCK of SILK
MERCERY, GENERAL DRAPERY, &c., all New for this Season.

GREAT REDUCTIONS IN PRICES have been made throughout, and all articles marked in plain figures, at the lowest prices,
for ready money only.

SILKS and VELVETS of all kinds, cheaper than they have ever been sold.

BONNETS and PONSON'S celebrated BLACK SILKS,
greatly reduced in price.

COSTUMES, perhaps the largest and best stock of new Costumes in London. Paris models in Silks, Silk and Velvet, Silk and Cashmere, new Silks and Woollen Fabrics, &c., all now marked exceedingly cheap.

EVENING COSTUMES in Tulle, Net, Tulle, &c., beautiful new designs, all equally cheap, commencing at 15s. 9d. each.

MAINTLES, PALETOTS, JACKETS. All the vast collection,
new for this season, of Paris Mantles in Cloth, Vignoles, Camel's Hair, Matelassé, Velvet, fur-lined Cashmires, and Silks, Sealskins, Ulsters, &c., has been re-marked at exceptionally low prices.

DRESS FABRICS.—A great collection of all the Newest Materials, Foreign and English, all marked at the reduced prices.

GLOVES, HOSIERY, LINEN GOODS, BLANKETS, FLAN-
NELS, CALICOES, LACE GOODS, TIES, SCARVES, FICHES, RIBBONS, TRIMMINGS, UMBRELLAS, LADIES' UNDER-CLOTHING, MILLINERY, MOURNING GOODS, of all kinds, &c.

All purchases must effect a considerable saving during this Sale.
PATTERNS FREE to the COUNTRY.

The Doors are Opened each Morning at Ten o'clock,
88 to 93, Oxford-street; 1 to 5, Wells-street, London.

EGERTON BURNETT'SROYAL WELLINGTON SERGES.

"The Court Circular," "The Queen," "Myra's Journal," &c., unanimously testify to the superiority of Egerton Burnett's
Serges as per excellence the material for EGERTON BURNETT, Wellington, Somerset, respectfully calls attention to these admirable SERGES. He has repeatedly had the honour of supplying them direct to the ROYAL FAMILY, and orders are daily arriving from all parts of the kingdom. Being woven from the finest wools, and of a permanent pattern dye, which neither rain nor salt water can affect, they surpass all others in appearance and durability.

Prices from 1s. 3d. to the finest of 4s. 6d. per yard.

E. B.'s New HAND-MADE VIGNOLE CACHEMIENNE and FOULE SERGES are most fashionable.

A SPECIAL STRONG MAKE IS MADE FOR BOYS' AND GENTLEMEN'S WEAR, in, from 9d. per yard.

Pattern-Books of the various makes and shades sent free by post, and carriage is paid to Bristol or London on parcels over £2.
Goods packed for exportation.

EGERTON BURNETT, WELLINGTON, SOMERSET.

"WEAR-RESISTING" (Regis.)BOYS' SUITS.*SAMUEL BROTHERS.

Suit for a Boy 3 ft. 8 in. in height
O Class, 27s.; D Class, 31s.
Prices varying according to height.

Patterns, &c., sent free.
SAMUEL BROTHERS, Sydenham House, 65 and 67, Ludgate-hill.

BALL DRESSES—EVENING DRESSES

Just received, from Paris, LISSETTE GRENADINES, plain evening colour. Look brilliant by gaslight. 45d. per yard. Patterns free.—JOHN HOOPER, 32, Oxford-street, W.

ROYAL ESTAMINE SERGES.—A Stock

of this beautiful warm material, in the new dark shade,
now selling at 4 1/2d. per yard. Patterns free.
JOHN HOOPER, 32, Oxford-street, W.

SWANBILL CEINTURE CORSET

(Registered).—An admirable combination of Ceinture and Corset of novel and ingenious manufacture, combining both Stay and Jeanne d'Arc Belt. To ladies inclined to embonpoint it is most effective in reducing the figure and keeping the form flat.
While imparting a graceful symmetry and elegance to the figure, it affords a degree of comfort to the wearer not to be derived from an ordinary Corset. 16in. deep, 30s. Hand-Made, 42s.

Send the size of waist with Post-Office Order.
Sous la direction d'une Corsetière Parisienne.

Mrs. ADDLEY HURNE, Ladies' Outfitter, &c., 37, Piccadilly (opposite St. James's Church), London; and at 76, Rue St. Lazare, Paris.

ÆGIDIUS.—A New ELASTIC

OVERSHIRT, as warm as wool, as soft as silk. 13s. 6d.
each. Patterns of material and self-measure free by post.—FORD and CO., 41 and 44, Poultry, London.

PRETTY FLOWERS.—Bridal, Bridesmaids,

and other Bouquets of the choicest flowers tastefully
arranged, at very moderate prices. Wreaths and Crosses.
Loose cut flowers forwarded to any part of London or to meet any train.—WILLIAM HOOPER, 38, Oxford-street, London, W.

ROUND SHOULDERS and STOOPING

HABITS Cured by Dr. CHANDLER'S CHEST-EXPAND-ING BRACE for both sexes. It assists growth, and produces a handsome figure. 10s. 6d. each.—66, Berners-st. Illustrations sent

MALVERN COLLEGE.

The NEXT TERM will begin
on MONDAY JAN. 28.

WRITING, BOOK-KEEPING, &c.

Persons of any age, however bad their writing, may, in Eight Easy Lessons, acquire permanently an elegant and flowing style of penmanship, adapted either to professional pursuits or private correspondence. Book-keeping by double entry, as practised in the Government, Banking, and Mercantile Offices, Arithmetic, Shorthand, &c.—Apply to Mr. W. SMART, at his Sole Institution, 97a, Quadrant, Regent-street.

BANK OF NEW ZEALAND

(Incorporated by Act of General Assembly, July 29, 1861).
Bankers to the New Zealand Government.
Authorised Capital, £1,000,000. Paid-up Capital, £725,000.
Reserve and Profits, £275,000.

DIRECTORS.
J. LOGAN CAMPBELL, Esq., President.
George B. Owen, Esq., W. I. Taylor, Esq.
Alfred Cox, Esq., M.G.A. James Watt, Esq.
Samuel Browning, Esq. Hon. Jas. Williamson, M.L.O.

LONDON BRANCH.
The Right Hon. Sir James Fergusson, Bart., K.C.M.G.
Archibald Macdonald, Esq., M.P.
A. J. Mundella, Esq., M.P.

Head Office—Auckland.
Falconer Larkworthy, Esq.
Robert Porter, Esq.
Thomas Russell, Esq., C.M.G.

BRANCHES AND AGENCIES.
In Australia—Melbourne, Sydney, and Newcastle.
In Fiji—Lewika.

In New Zealand—Auckland, Blenheim, Christchurch, Dunedin, Invercargill, Napier, Nelson, New Plymouth, Pictou, Wellington, and at seventy-nine other towns and places throughout the Colony.

The Bank grants Drafts on all their Branches and Agencies, and transacts every description of banking business connected with New Zealand, Australia, and Fiji on the most favourable terms.

The London Office RECEIVES DEPOSITS of £50 and upwards for fixed periods of two to five years, bearing interest at 5 per cent per annum. The rate for shorter periods can be ascertained on application. F. LANGWORTHY, Managing Director.
No. 1, Queen Victoria-street, Mansion House, E.C.

THE GRAND HOTEL, LONDON.

The extensive building, now in course of erection on the site of the historical mansion of the Duke of Northumberland, at the corner of Northumberland-avenue, Trafalgar-square, will, when completed, be OFFERED AS FIRST-CLASS HOTEL.
Messrs. Gordon and Co., Proprietors.

Valuable Collections of Permanent Autotypes from the Works of the Great Masters, in Portfolio and Albums, by order of the Autotype Company.

MESSRS. HODGSON will SELL by

AUCTION, at their Rooms, 115, Chancery-lane, London, W.C., on MONDAY, DEC. 3, at One o'clock, a large and interesting COLLECTION OF PERMANENT AUTOTYPES mounted on cardboard, in Portfolios and in Albums, comprising Facsimile Copies of the Drawings and Reproductions in Monochrome of the Paintings of the Great Masters, illustrating all the remarkable Schools of Painting from the most noted galleries of Europe, well suited for Public Libraries or Art Collections; Three Original Drawings by W. Cave Thomas; about one hundred Framed Autotypes, &c.; to which is added the entire remaining Stock of PERMANENT AUTOTYPES in the original Chromo-lithographic Facsimile of the Vinci's greatest work, "The Last Supper" (published 6s. 6d.).
May be Viewed Two Days prior and Morning of Sale; and Catalogues forwarded on application.

LARGE CAPITALISTS WANTED by a

Manufacturer, to establish a Large Factory for the behoof of manufacturing an Article of Daily Consumption, which, until now, has been manufactured almost exclusively in Germany and Austria. The Advertiser has a thorough and long practical knowledge of the article, and is in possession of Patents on a Machine System by means of which about 80 per cent of the wages can be saved. The machinery is the German. The factories exist mainly because of the cheaper wages. Amount of capital required, £10,000 or £20,000. The Manufacturer will pay for itself in about two years. Duty of entry on this article in America more than 30 per cent. For particulars apply to J. A. H. 22, rue de Messrs. Haasensteir and Vogler's Advertising Agency, Magdeburg (Germany).

SOUTH KENSINGTON and BELGRAVIA

HOUSE AGENCY OFFICES, 116, Cromwell-road, and 1, Motcomb-street, S.W.—MR. HOWELL'S PRINTED INDEX
List, post-free, of Choice RESIDENCES to be LET or SOLD.

KINAHAN'S LL WHISKY.

UNIVERSALLY RECOMMENDED BY THE MEDICAL PROFESSION. A pure old spirit, mild, mellow, delicious, and most wholesome. Dr. Hasall says: "The samples were soft and mellow to the taste, aromatic, and cheerful to the Grocer."
The whisky is pure, well matured, and of very excellent quality.

LIQUEUR

An Elegant and Digestive Cordial, much appreciated by Sportsmen, Tourists, and Travellers, being favourable to the system, and Nature and Indigestion. In Square Bottles and Yellow Bin Cases, bearing trade mark, "A Negro's Head."

HENRY BRETT and CO., 1 Holborn, London.

LOPNE "THE PERFECTION OF

HIGHLAND WHISKY. UNRIVALLED
FOR "TODDY."

Wholesale of the Sole Proprietors: GREENLEES BROTHERS
1, Gresham-buildings, E.C. Distilleries, Argyle-street.

CHRISTMAS CASES, One Guinea, containing 3 bottles of Port, 3 Sherry, 1 Gin, 1 Rum, 1 Whisky, 1 Brandy, 1 Tea. All reputed quart bottles. Warranted pure and genuine. Sent bottles, case, and carriage-free to any railway station in England by the VICTORIA WINE COMPANY, 12, Mark-lane. P.O.O. to W. W. Hughes.

SCHWEITZER'S COCOATINA.

Anti-Dyspeptic Cocoa or Chocolate Powder.
Guaranteed Pure Soluble Cocoa, with excess of Fat extracted.
Four times the strength of Cocoa Thickened yet Weakened with
The Faculty pronounce it the most nutritious, perfectly digestible Beverage for "BREAKFAST, LUNCHEON, or SUPPER."

Keeps in all climates. Requires no Cooking. A teaspoonful to breakfast Cup, costing less than a halfpenny. Samples gratis.
In Air-Tight Tins, at 1s. 6d. each, by Grocers and Druggists.
H. SCHWEITZER and CO., 10, Adam-street, London, W.C.

AMERICAN CENTENNIAL

PRIZE MEDAL.

FRY'S CARACAS COCOA.

Its pure flavour, delicate aroma, and invigorating qualities have established its position as a first-class dietetic article.

FRY'S CARACAS COCOA.

"The Caracas Cocoa of such choice quality."—Food,
Water, and Air (Dr. Hasall).
"A most delicious and valuable article."—Standard.

FRY'S EXTRACT OF COCOA,

than which, if properly prepared, there is no nicer or more wholesome preparation of Cocoa.—Food, Water, and Air.
Edited by Dr. Hasall.

TENTH INTERNATIONAL MEDAL
awarded to J. S. FRY and SON.

TAYLOR BROTHERS'

MARAVILLA COCOA,
DELICIOUS and INVIGORATING

MARAVILLA COCOA.

"It may justly be called the perfection
of prepared Cocoa."
British Medical Journal.

MARAVILLA COCOA.—The "Globe" says,

"TAYLOR BROTHERS'
MARAVILLA COCOA has achieved a thorough success,
and surpasses every other cocoa in the market. Entire solubility, delicate aroma, and a rare concentration of the purest elements of nutrition, distinguish the Mar-avilla Cocoa above all others. For invalids, dyspeptics, and consumers of Cocoa in general, we could not recommend a more agreeable or valuable article."
Sole Proprietors, TAYLOR BROTHERS, London.

EPPS'S CACAOINE (Quintessence of Cacao).—Cacaoine is not rich like chocolate, or substantial like prepared cocoa, but when made is extremely fluid, full of flavour, clean to the palate as tea, and, owing to the volatile action of the set-free active principle of cacao, theobromine, refreshing to a degree. Cacaoine is the one stimulative warm drink that affords sterling support to the system. Unswerving.

Climate proof. Sold only in packets and tins, labelled JAMES EPPS and CO., Homoeopathic Chemists, 48, Threadneedle-street; and 170, Piccadilly.

HORNMAN'S TEA for Forty Years has commanded a large sale, because it can always be relied on for strength, flavour, and cheapness. It is the best tea imported. Sold only in Packets.

FOR THE NURSERY, THE SICK-ROOM, AND THE FAMILY TABLE.

BROWN and POLSON'S

CORN FLOUR
HAS BECOME A WORLD-WIDE NECESSARY.

THE ESSEX FLOUR and GRAIN

COMPANY, Liverpool-road, London, N., supply the best goods only.—Whites, for Pastry, 10s. per bushel; Households, for Bread, 9s. 6d.; Wheat Meal, for Brown Bread, 8s. 6d.;
Coarse Scotch Oatmeal, 3s. 6d. per 14 lb.; fine, 3s. 4d.; American Hominy, 4s.; Barley, Indian Corn, and Barley Meal, 6s. 8d. per bushel, or 21s. 6d. per sack; Buckwheat, 5s. per bushel, or 18s.
per sack; Oats, 4s. per bushel; Crushed Oats, 3s. 6d. per bushel;
13s. 6d. per sack; Middlings, 2s. 6d. per bushel; Ground Pollard,
1s. 8d.; Peas, 7s. 6d.; Tick Beans, 8s.; Split Peas, 2s. 6d. and 3s.
per peck; Meat Biscuits, 2s. per cwt. Lentil Flour, for invalids, in tins, 11s. 6d. per cwt. All other kinds of Grain and Seed. Special prices for large quantities. Orders and cheques to be made in favour of G. Young.

COOKS'S READING SAUCE

is the best and most economical Sauce ever manufactured
FOR FISH, ENRICHING SOUPS, GRAVIES, &c.
It only requires a trial to convince the purchaser of its excellence.

CAUTION.—The genuine is protected by Trade Mark—viz.,
CHARLES COOK'S Signature on a white ground across the Reading Arms.

NATURAL MINERAL WATERS

OF VICHY.

Property of the French Government.

CELESTINS.—The water of this spring is very agreeable, sparkling, and slightly acidulated. Remedy for Complaints of the Kidney, Gout, Rheumatism, &c. 10s. 6d. per bottle, 5s. 6d. per bottle; Pinaud and Meyer, 37, Boulevard de Strasbourg, Paris; HAUTEVILLE.—This spring contains a greater quantity of carbonic acid, and is especially recommended as a table water.

GRANDE-GRILLE.—For Complaints of the Liver and Biliary Organs, Indigestion, &c.

HOPITAL.—For Stomach Complaints, &c.

VICHY WATERS are pleasant to the taste, and may be drunk pure or mixed with wine or spirits.

CAUTION.—See that the name of the particular water required is on the capsule.

Sold by all Chemists, Wine and Mineral Water Merchants, Price One Shilling per Bottle.

GOLDEN HAIR.—ROBARE'S

AUREOLINE produces the beautiful Golden Colour so much admired. Warranted perfectly harmless. Price 6s. 6d. and 10s. 6d. of all Perfumers. Wholesale, HUYEN and SONS,
5, Great Marlborough-street, W.; and 38 and 39, City-road, E.C.;
London; Pinaud and Meyer, 37, Boulevard de Strasbourg, Paris;
51, Graben, Vienna; 44, Rue des Longs Chariots, Brussels.

DOES YOUR HAIR TURN GREY?

Then use HERRING'S PATENT MAGNETIC BRUSHES
and COMBS. Brushes, 10s. and 15s. each. Combs, 2s. 6d., 7s. 6d.,
10s., 15s., and 20s. each. Pamphlets upon application.—5, Great Marlborough-st., W.; 38 and 39, City-road; and of all Perfumers.

PIESSE and LUBIN. SWEET SCENTS

POUR CADEAUX.—Opoponax, Jockey Club, Patchouly, Knapgummi, Lign-Aloe, White Rose, Padiam, and 1000 others from every clime that breathe a fragrant atmosphere. 2s. 6d. each; three in a case, 7s. Sold by fashionable Druggists in all parts of the World.—Laboratory of Flowers, 2, New Bond-street, London.

COLD CREAM OF ROSES.—PIESSE and

LUBIN prepare this exquisite cosmetic with the greatest care, fresh daily. In jars, 1s.—Laboratory of Flowers, 2, New Bond-street, London.

THOMPSON and CAPPER'S

DENTIFRICE WATER arrests decay in the Teeth, and sweetens the Breath.—5d. Bold-street, Liverpool
Sold in 1s. 6d., 2s. 6d., 4s. 6d., and 8s. 6d. Bottles, by all Chemists

JOHN GOSNELL and CO.'S CHERRY

TOOTH-PASTE gives a beautiful set of Teeth, makes the Teeth of pearl-like whiteness, and protects the enamel from decay.—Of all Chemists and Perfumers. At 1s. 6d. per Pot.

BREIDENBACH'S WOOD VIOLET

PERFUME, fresh as morning-gathered flowers, 2s. 6d., 6s., 10s. per Bottle. Breidenbach's MACASSARINE, invaluable for preserving the Growth of the Hair, 1s., 2s., 6d., 10s. per Bottle.
Of all Chemists and the Makers 157, New Bond-street, W.

ROWLANDS' ODONTO

is the best Dentifrice for procuring White and Sound Teeth, Healthy Gums, and Fragrant Breath, being free from all deleterious and acid compounds, which give a temporary whiteness to the Teeth, but undoubtedly ruin the enamel, and, by Chemists, at 2s. 6d.
Take no Odonto but Rowlands'.

FLORILINE. For the Teeth and Breath.

Is the best Liquid Dentifrice in the World; it thoroughly
cleanses partially-decayed teeth from all parasites or living
"animalcules," leaving them pearly white, imparting a delicious fragrance to the breath, and the best preservative of the teeth. The most charmingly beautiful, as well as promoting the growth of the hair on bald spots where the glands are not decayed. Ask any Chemist for the "Mexican Hair Renewer," price 3s. 6d.
Prepared by HENRY C. GALLUP, 493, Oxford-street, London.

VALUABLE DISCOVERY for the HAIR.

If your hair is turning grey, or white, or falling off, use
"The Mexican Hair Renewer" for it will positively restore in every case grey or white hair to its original colour, without leaving the disagreeable smell of most hair-restorers. It makes the hair charmingly beautiful, as well as promoting the growth of the hair on bald spots where the glands are not decayed. Ask any Chemist for the "Mexican Hair Renewer," price 3s. 6d.
Prepared by HENRY C. GALLUP, 493, Oxford-street, London.

CHAPPED SKIN.—The ALBION MILK

AND SULPHUR SOAP is a combination of the two articles acting upon the skin—the softening and purifying softness smoothness, and elegance; the sulphur, purification. By all
Chemists and Perfumers, in Tablets, 6d. and 1s.—The ALBION
SANITARY SOAP COMPANY, 322, Oxford-street, London.
Refuse substitutes.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS and OINTMENT.

NEW MUSIC.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S SPECIALITIES IN PIANO-FORTE.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S STUDENT'S PIANOFORTE. Compass, five Octaves, 15 ga., or £1 10s. per quarter on the Three-Years' System.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S SCHOOL PIANOS, Canadian Walnut, 20 ga., or 2 ga. per quarter on the Three-Years' System of Purchase.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S YACHT PIANOS, 30 ga., or 43 per quarter on the Three-Years' System of Purchase.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S BOUDOIR PIANO, 35 ga., or 23 10s. per quarter on the Three-Years' System of Purchase.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S MODEL PIANETTE, 35 ga., or 23 10s. per quarter on the Three-Years' System of Purchase.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S ENGLISH MODEL, 40 ga., or 24 per quarter on the Three-Years' System of Purchase.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S COLONIAL MODEL, 45 ga., or 24 10s. per quarter on the Three-Years' System of Purchase.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S FOREIGN MODEL, 50 ga., or 25 per quarter on the Three-Years' System of Purchase.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S ENGLISH GRAND, 70 ga., or 27 per quarter on the Three-Years' System of Purchase.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S IRON-FRAMED OBLIQUE, 90 ga., or 29 per quarter on the Three-Years' System of Purchase.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S MIGNON IRON GRAND, 95 ga., or 29 per quarter on the Three-Years' System of Purchase.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S BOUDOIR IRON, 110 ga., or 29 per quarter on the Three-Years' System of Purchase.

UPWARDS of ONE HUNDRED VARIETIES ON VIEW.

MAY BE HAD OF ALL PIANOFORTE DEALERS THROUGHOUT THE UNITED KINGDOM.

SHOW-ROOMS—50, NEW BOND-STREET.

STEAM FACTORY—CHALK FARM-ROAD, N.W.

CHRISTMAS NUMBER OF CHAPPELL'S MUSICAL MAGAZINE, containing the following Popular Dance Music:— Trial by Jury Lancers, Charles D'Albert. Contadina Quadrille, Charles D'Albert. Die Fledermaus Waltz, Johann Straus. Les Lointains Waltz, Emile Waldteufel. Mollie's Dream Waltz, Edward Hoffman. The Schomberg Galop, Charles D'Albert. Florista Polka, Charles D'Albert. Pizzicato Polka, J. and J. Strauss. Forget-me-not Galop, A. Hecker. MOLLIE DARLING, by CHAS. D'ALBERT. Price One Shilling; post-free, 1s. 2d. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

YES, OR NO? New Song. By FREDERIC CLAY. Sung by Mr. Barton McGuckin at a Concert during his provincial tour. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

ARTHUR SULLIVAN'S NEW SONGS. THE DISTANT SHORE. New Song. By ARTHUR SULLIVAN. Sung by Mr. Edward Lloyd. Price 1s. (in flat, F. or G.) 2s. net. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THOU'RT PASSING HENCE. By ARTHUR SULLIVAN. Sung at the Saturday Popular Concerts by Mr. Santley. Price 2s. net. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE FANFARE POLKA. By CHARLES D'ALBERT. Illustrated. 1s. 6d. net; Orchestra, 2s.; Septet, 2s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHARLES D'ALBERT'S NEW DANCE MUSIC. THE DISTANT SHORE WALTZ, on Arthur Sullivan's New Net Sweethearts. Waltz on Arthur Sullivan's popular "One of the best waltzes ever written by the above favourite composer." 2 0 TRIAL BY JURY LANCERS, on Airs from Sullivan's "Trial by Jury." 2 0 TRIAL BY JURY QUADRILLE, on "Trial by Jury." 2 0 TRIAL BY JURY WALTZ, on "Trial by Jury." 2 0 TRIAL BY JURY POLKA, on "Trial by Jury." 1 6 RINK GALOP, on "Trial by Jury." 2 0 The above arranged for Full Orchestra, 2s.; Septet, 2s. each. N.B. A Complete List of M. D'Albert's Popular Dance Music will be sent on application to CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

DANCE MUSIC FOR CHRISTMAS. HAMMOND'S MUSIC PORTFOLIO. Price 1s. each Number; post-free, 13 stamps. No. 1 contains:— Brise des Nuits Waltzes, Lamothe. Hydrogène Waltzes, Gungl. Marmelade Waltzes, Waldteufel. Autograph Waltzes, Strauss. St. David's Quadrille, Dan Godfrey. Bruder Lustig Galop, Budik. Contents of No. 2. Le Premier Baiser Waltzes, Lamothe. Venus Waltzes, Gungl. Den Liden Lungen Tag Waltzes, Rudol. Die Heren Waltzes, Strauss. Die Varsity Lancers, D'Evillev. The Pet Schottische, Bertrand. Contents of No. 3. Soldaten Lieder, Waltzes. Grunderger, Waltzes. Juncheren Tasse, Waltzes. Festschuhler, Waltzes. Mein schoner Tag in Berlin, Waltzes. Contents of No. 4. Le Baiser Waltzes, Gungl. La Fureur du Monde Waltzes, Strauss. La Fureur du Monde Waltzes, Strauss. Le Baiser Waltzes, Lamothe. Le Baiser Waltzes, Strauss. Perce-la Polka, Strauss. Violin and Cornet Accompaniments to each Number, 6d. each. A. HAMMOND and Co., 6, Vigo-street, London, W.

DANCING MADE EASY.—COLON'S HANDBOOK OF DANCING is the most complete treatise on the subject, containing full descriptions of all dances, new and old, illustrated by upwards of forty woodcuts. Price 1s.; post-free, 13 stamps.—A. HAMMOND and Co., 6, Vigo-street, W.

ALLEGRETTO in F Minor, and SCHERZO in B flat Major, by Mrs. MARWOOD TUCKER. Dedicated to her Mother, Lady Mildred Beresford-Hope. Price 4s. 6d. LECHE, WAGNER, and Co., 25, New Bond-street, London.

NEW MUSIC.

BOOSEY and CO.'S LIST.

THE ILLUSTRATED SONGS OF SCOTLAND.—Published this day, a New and very superb Edition of the Songs of Scotland, containing twelve full-page Illustrations by Frank Dicksee, J. MacRae, W. Small, A. Hunt, E. B. Skelton, E. B. Leighton. The book contains 190 songs, the music edited by J. Pittman and Colin Brown, the words revised (with notes) by Charles Mackay. The illustrated songs of Scotland are printed in one volume, Imperial 8vo, very beautifully bound in cloth, gilt edges, price 10s. 6d.

CHRISTMAS PRESENTS IN MUSIC, all handsomely bound in cloth, gilt edges. THE ILLUSTRATED SONGS OF SCOTLAND (190 songs with 12 full-page illustrations), 10s. 6d. BEETHOVEN'S SONATAS. Edited by W. Dorrell. 10s. 6d. MENDELSSOHN'S SONGS WITHOUT WORDS. 4s. SCHUMANN'S PIANO-FORTE ALBUM. 4s. CHOPIN'S WALTZES, NOCTURNES, and MAZURKAS. 4s. STRAUSS'S WALTZ ALBUM (18 sets). 4s. THE ROYAL SONG-BOOKS. RUBINSTEIN'S FIFTY SONGS. 4s. RUBINSTEIN'S EIGHTEEN VOCAL DUETS. 4s. BEETHOVEN'S SEVENTY-SIX SONGS. 4s. MENDELSSOHN'S SIXTY SONGS. 4s. SCHUMANN'S SEVENTY-FIVE SONGS. 4s. THE SONGS OF GERMANY. 4s. The above have all German and English words. THE SONGS OF ENGLAND. 4s. THE SONGS OF SCOTLAND. 4s. THE SONGS OF IRELAND. 4s. THE SONGS OF WALES. 4s. The above form a complete collection of National Songs. SACRED SONGS, ANCIENT AND MODERN. 4s. HUMOROUS SONGS. 4s. CHOICE DUETS FOR LADIES' VOICES. 4s. All the 4s. volumes can be had in paper covers, 2s. 6d. each.

BOOSEY and CO.'S NEW SONGS.

F. H. COWEN. THE BETTER LAND. A new setting of Mrs. Hemans's celebrated words, sung by Madame Antoinette Sterling. Price 2s. net.

F. H. COWEN. TRUANT LOVE.—Mrs. OSGOOD will sing TRUANT LOVE at the Ballad Concert, Nov. 28. Price 2s. net.

AT LAST.—F. H. Cowen's New Song, "At Last," will be sung by Miss ANNA WILLIAMS, in the following Towns:—Hastings, 24; Rochester, 25; Warrington, 27; Leicester, 28; Wolverhampton, 30; Bolton, Dec. 1; Southport, 31; Liverpool, 4; Worcester, 5; Glasgow, 8; Dundee, 10; Newcastle, 11; Birkenhead, 12; and Hull, 13.

AT LAST.—Opinions of the Provincial Press on Cowen's New Song, sung by Miss Anna Williams. "This song ought to be as popular as any of Arthur Sullivan's. More cannot be said."—Dublin Daily Express. "An exquisite new ballad."—Cork Constitution. "A charming song."—Belfast Northern Whig. Price 2s. net. Boosey and Co., 295, Regent-street.

STEPHEN ADAMS.—THE TAR'S FAREWELL.—Mr. Santley will sing a new Song, "The Tar's Farewell," by the Composer of "Nancy Lee," "The Tar's Farewell" (the Words by F. C. Burnand), at the second Ballad Concert, Nov. 28.

STEPHEN ADAMS. YOUTH AND AGE. Mr. Maybrick will sing this new ballad, by the Composer of "Nancy Lee," for the second time at the third Ballad Concert. Price 2s. net.

THE OLD SAILOR WIFE. By MOLLOY. The Words by Jean Ingelow. Madame Antoinette Sterling will sing "The Old Sailor Wife" at every concert during her provincial tour. Price 2s. net.

NANCY LEE WALTZ. On the Celebrated Song. The Waltz of the Season. Price 2s. net, Solo and Duet; Septet, 1s.; Orchestra, 2s.

NANCY LEE GALOP. On Adams's Popular Ballad. 2s. net. Boosey and Co., 295, Regent-street. [This day.]

MUSICAL PRESENTS for the NEW-YEAR.—High-class Music for Amateurs, Students, and others. To be had, gratis and postage-free, a LIST of 400 CLASSICAL WORKS, bound, at greatly reduced prices.—Published only by ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.

CONCERTS, PENNY READINGS, &c. POPULAR SONGS, VOCAL DUETS, TRIOS, and QUARTETS (part songs) selected from Messrs. ROBERT COCKS and Co.'s CATALOGUE. This List may be had gratis and post-free on application.

THE SENSATIONAL DRAWING-ROOM PIANOFORTE PIECE, THE MUSICAL BOX, No. 1. By I. LIEBICH. 4s.; free by post for 24 stamps. Always encased. "An agreeable and clever piece, which is very popular among amateurs."—Vindicator. London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

THE CUCKOO'S CONCERT. New Song. Written expressly for the Publishers by the Author of "Silver Threads among the Gold." A capital song for young people. Post-free for 18 stamps. London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

MUSIC.—Just issued, gratis and postage-free, a CATALOGUE of more than 500 popular publications for the pianoforte, by Brinley Richards and George Frederick West.—Sole Publishers, Cocks and Co.

THE SOLDIER'S DREAM. A Descriptive Fantasia for the Pianoforte. By J. PRIDHAM. Illustrated Title. 4s.; post-free, 24 stamps. THE SAILOR'S DREAM: A Descriptive Fantasia for the Pianoforte. By J. PRIDHAM. Illustrated Title. 4s.; post-free, 24 stamps.

THE LOOK-OUT (QUADRILLE) for the Pianoforte. Composed by COTSFORD DICK. 4s. (Quite equal to the popular Osborne Quadrille, and by the same Composer. A SINGING QUADRILLE, 4s.; and L'ÉCLAIR GALOP, 3s. All with illustrated Titles. All post-free at half price. And his CONTRÉ DANSE. 3s. Sole Publishers, ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street. Order everywhere.

CIRO PINSUTI'S ELEGANT SONGS: In Shadow Land. 3s. What shall I sing to Thee? 3s. Waiting for the Swallows. 3s. Bear gently, Time. 3s. And so will I. 3s. Don't Forget Me. 3s. The Land of Love. 3s. Heaven's Cherisher. 3s. Poor Ellen. 3s. A Smile. 3s. Sunset on the River. 4s. The Knight's Shield. 4s. All at half-price, post-free.

CIRO PINSUTI'S NEW VOCAL DUETS, for Soprano and Contralto, 4s. each, post-free at half-price.—i.e., Sunrise, Sunset, When Life is Brightest, and the "Time of Year."—Sole Publishers, ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street. Order everywhere.

FRAGMENT FROM MENDELSSOHN. Arranged for the Pianoforte by C. A. CASPAR. The same as a Piano Duet. 4s. each; post-free at half price. London: Sole Publishers, ROBERT COCKS and Co.

SO FAR AWAY. Song. By J. ROECKEL. And one of his happiest efforts. Also his new Song, "Unforgotten Days." Each post-free for 18 stamps. London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street. Order everywhere.

ASHDOWN and PARRY'S CATALOGUES OF MUSIC. PART 1. PIANO, ORGAN, HARMONIUM. PART 2. VOCAL. PART 3. HARP, CONCERTINA. PART 4. VIOLIN, VIOLONCELLO, ORCHESTRA, &c. PART 5. ELITE, CORNET, CLARINET, &c. London: Ashdown and Parry, Hanover-square, London.

ASHDOWN and PARRY'S MUSICAL PUBLICATIONS are to be had of every Musician and Bookseller in Great Britain, Ireland, the Colonies, and India, or will be sent direct post-free at half the marked price (bound works and cheap vocal parts excepted) to any part of the world on receipt of remittance or satisfactory reference. London: ASHDOWN and PARRY, Hanover-square.

Full music size.—"A marvel of cheapness." MORLEY'S MARCH ALBUM. Price 1s. valuable Collection of celebrated Marches by Handel, Mos Wagner, Rossini, Weber, Schumann, and others (guaranteed strictly correct). The Volume, post-free, 13 stamps. Sole Publisher, W. MORLEY, Junr., 70, Upper-street, N.

NEW MUSIC.

METZLER and CO.'S NEW LIST.

THE SORCERER. By ARTHUR SULLIVAN and W. S. GILBERT. Now ready. When he is here. Aria for Meso-Soprano. The Vice's Song. Ballad for Baritone. Oh! happy young heart! Aria for Soprano. In days gone by. Ballad for Contralto. I love that love. Ballad for Tenor. My name is John Wellington Wells. Song for Baritone. Oh! love! true love! Duet for Tenor and Soprano. I love him dearly. Aria for Meso-Soprano. It is not love. Ballad for Tenor. Engaged to So-and-So. Song for Baritone. Alas! that lovers thus should meet. Duet for Soprano and Baritone. Post-free, 24 stamps each. METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

THE SORCERER. An Entirely New and Original Modern Comic Opera, in Two Acts. By W. S. GILBERT and ARTHUR SULLIVAN. Produced at the Opera Comique. Price 5s. net. METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London.

NEW CHRISTMAS PRESENT. NURSERY RHYMES AND COUNTRY SONGS. By M. H. MASON. Containing upwards of Sixty Rhymes and Country Songs, arranged for voice and piano-forte. With Six Illustrations (full-page). Price 2s., in paper cover; 1s. 6d., in handsomely bound. Post-free. METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London.

GATTY'S LITTLE SONGS for LITTLE SINGERS.—Thirty-six original Songs and Carols, arranged for voice and piano-forte. By A. SCOTT GATTY. Price 2s. 6d., in paper cover; 5s., handsomely bound. Post-free. METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London.

UP THE RIVER. Operetta. By HERVÉ. Price 1s. Libretto, Music, and Stage Directions complete. METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London.

METRA'S POPULAR NEW WALTZES. METRA.—LA SÉRÉNADE WALTZ. Price 4s. Illustrated. METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London.

METRA.—LA VAGUE WALTZ. Price 4s. Illustrated. METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London.

METRA.—MÉLANCOLIE WALTZ. Price 4s. Illustrated. METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London.

Ready this day. THE CLANG VALSE (The Clang of the Wooden Spoon) on Molloy's popular Song. Arranged by CHARLES GODFREY. Price 4s.; post-free, 24 stamps. London: METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, W.

Just published, KING HENRY'S SONG. By ARTHUR SULLIVAN. Introduced in the revival of "Henry VIII." Price 4s. Half price. METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London.

Just published, BEDOUIN LOVE SONG. Composed by CIRO PINSUTI. Sung by Signor Foli with great success. Price 4s.; post-free, 24 stamps. London: METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, W.

Just published, ACROSS THE FAR BLUE HILLS, MARIE. New Song. By JACQUES BLUMENTHAL. Words by E. W. Lyster. Price 2s. 6d. METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, W.

SEA NYMPHS. The New Operetta. By LECOCQ (now being represented at the Folly Theatre). The Libretto (written by H. B. Farnie) and the Music complete, with all stage directions, published at 2s. 6d., post-free, in Metzler and Co.'s Edition of Comic Operas. METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

WHISPERING KISSES. The New Song. Is sung by Miss Violet Cameron in "The Creole" at the Folly Theatre, with the greatest possible success, and is nightly encored. Post-free, 18 stamps. METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

SUNG BY MR. BARTON MCGUCKIN. MINE OWN. A New Song, in C, E, and F. By H. GADSBY; Words by F. E. Weatherly. Price 4s.; post-free, half-price. METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

W. SMALLWOOD'S NEW PIECES for PIANOFORTE. Illustrated Titles. CRYSTAL DEWDROPS. AVELLETTE. Gondola Song. FAIRY DREAMS. Post-free, 18 stamps each. METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

MASON and HAMLIN'S ORGANS. Now ready. New Illustrated Book. Post-free. METZLER and Co., Sole Agents, Great Marlborough-street, W.

MASON and HAMLIN'S ORGANS. New Style 235. Nine Stops. Viola Monte. Seraphone, &c. Price 28 gs. METZLER and Co., Sole Agents, Great Marlborough-street, W.

MASON and HAMLIN'S ORGANS. New Style 312. Ten Stops. With Octave Coupler and Sub-Bass. Price 40 gs. METZLER and Co., Sole Agents, Great Marlborough-street, W.

THE MOST SUCCESSFUL OF MODERN SONGS. GIVE ME THE MAN OF HONEST HEART (100th Edition). "The music of this song is melodious and pleasing from beginning to end, and the sentiment most excellent." 18 stamps.—J. BATH, 40, Great Marlborough-st., W.

HE WAS A CAREFUL MAN. The New humorous Song, written, composed, and sung by GEORGE GROSSMITH, Junr. Encored five times nightly. Illustrated by Concanen. 24 stamps.—J. BATH, 40, Great Marlborough-st., W.

SUNG BY MR. MAYBRICK. JOHN TRUMAN. Words by Charles Mackay; Music by ALFRED PLUMPTON. Tenth Edition. 18 stamps.—J. BATH, 40, Great Marlborough-street, W.

OUR UNION JACK OF LIBERTY. Song and Chorus. Composed by C. H. R. MARRIOTT. "A vigorous and manly song; the best effort of this famous Composer." 18 stamps.—J. BATH, 40, Great Marlborough-st., W.

OUR TOAST! A hearty, jovial, new Song, written by R. Reece; composed by W. C. LEVEY. A capital Song for penny readings, dinners, family parties, &c. Post-free, 18 stamps.—J. BATH, 40, Great Marlborough-st., W.

OUR TOAST!—"A merry song for Christmas, or any festive-tide, in 'Our Toast,' written and composed for a bass voice by R. Reece and W. C. Levey." Vide Graphic, Oct. 27.—J. BATH, 40, Great Marlborough-street, W.

Twenty-eight Pages of Copyright Music, post-free, 14 stamps. BATH'S SHILLING DANCE ALBUM is a wonderfully cheap collection of Quadrilles, Waltzes, Galops, Schottisches, &c., by Strauss, Cofre, Mariott, and other well-known dance writers. The volume is well engraved on full-sized paper, with handsome illustrated title-page, and under ordinary circumstances would cost 12s. instead of 12d.—J. BATH, 40, Great Marlborough-street, W.

NEW SONGS by ROBERT STANLEY. Dear Little Flowers. 1s. 6d. Easting. When love's glow hath gone by. Price 2s. each net.—CLARK and Co., 20, Regent-street.

NEW MUSIC.

JOSEPH WILLIAMS'S LIST. ALL MUSIC POST-FREE AT HALF PRICE.

"The greatest success in Paris." LES OUCHES DE CORNEVILLE. OPERA COMIQUE. De ROBERT PLANQUETTE. Now ready. QUADRILLES by ARBAN. Solo and Duet. 2s. each. SUITE DE VALEES, by O. METRA. Solo and Duet. 2s. each. POLKA by ARBAN. 1s. 6d. POLKA MAZURKA. 1s. 6d. QUADRILLES by O. METRA. Solo or Duet. 2s. each. BRILLIANT FANTASIA by E. MONIOT. Price 1s. 6d. RONDO VALEIS by B. RICHARDS. 2s. net. CHANSON DU MOUSE. B. RICHARDS. 2s. net. VALSE BRILLANTE. B. RICHARDS. 2s. net. Also in the Press, PIECES by W. KUHE. VOCAL SCORES in English and French Words. COMPLETE OPERA PIANO SOLO. Price 2s. 6d. net. SELECTIONS OF AIRS IN TWO BOOKS by GRAMER. 2s. each. N.B.—The sole right of representation, &c., for Great Britain and Colonies belongs to Mr. Joseph Williams.

SIR MICHAEL COSTA'S NAAMAN. Vocal Score, complete, Octavo Edition. 4s. net. Do. bound in cloth. 6s. net. All the numbers of "Naaman" can also be had separately, including the celebrated Aria, "I Dreamt I was in Heaven." 3s.; and the Triumphal March, "Naaman" as Piano Solo, 3s.; Piano Duet, 3s.; and also as Organ Solo, with Pedal, 3s.

SIR W. STERNDALÉ BENNETT'S WORKS for the PIANOFORTE, in two vols. Cheap Edition now ready, including the celebrated Toccata, Scherzo, op. 15; Capriccio, op. 27; Three Sketches, &c. Price 5s. net each vol.; or, bound, cloth, 6s. net.

PIANOFORTE COMPOSITIONS. By SIR W. STERNDALÉ BENNETT. NEW EDITION, CAREFULLY FINGERED, &c. Capriccio. Op. 2. Allegro Grazioso. Op. 18. The Lake. Op. 10. No. 1. Caprice. Op. 22. The Millstream. Op. 10. No. 2. Presto Leggero. Op. 24. No. 1. The Fountain. Op. 10. No. 3. Capriccio. Op. 24. No. 2. Three Musical Sketches. Complete. Op. 24. No. 3. Allegro con Precisione. Op. 11. No. 1. Presto Agitato. Op. 24. No. 5. Moderato Grazioso. Op. 11. No. 2. Lento-Allegro con Bravura. Op. 24. No. 6. Suite de Pièces. Op. 24. Complete. No. 3. Rondo Piacevole. Op. 25. Vivace Giocoso. Op. 11. No. 4. Scherzo. Op. 27. Andante Capriccioso. Op. 11. No. 5. Introduzione e Pastorale. Op. 28. No. 1. Allegro Agitato. Op. 11. No. 6. Rondino. Op. 28. No. 2. Six Studies. Complete. Capriccio. Op. 28. No. 3. Andante Espressivo. Op. 12. L'Amabile. Op. 29. No. 1. Appassionata. Op. 20. No. 2. Two Characteristic Studies. Op. 29. Tema e Variationi. Op. 31. Pastriete. From Op. 13. Sonata. From Op. 13. Rondeau à la Polonoise. Op. 37. Toccata. Op. 38.

FLORIAN PASCAL'S NEW PIECES. PRES DU LAC (Meditation). Artistically Illustrated. Price 2s. net. UN BLOU PERDU. Artistically Illustrated. Price 2s. net. BERCEUSE. Price 1s. 6d. net. LES VIEUX TEMPS. Gavotte. Price 1s. 6d. net. LA PRINCESSE. Gavotte Moderne. 1s. 6d. net. TRANSCRIPTION BRILLANTE (Brahm). As played by Madame Arabella Goddard. 2s. 6d. net.

A BOON TO YOUNG PIANISTS. A. GRENVILLE'S LA PRINCESSE. Price 1s. 3d. net. A. GRENVILLE'S AIR DE BALLET. Price 1s. 3d. net. J. RUMMEL'S BELLONA POLKA MAZURKA. Price 1s. 3d. net. J. RUMMEL'S CHASSE GALOP. Price 1s. 3d. net. J. RUMMEL'S LUCY VALE. Price 1s. 3d. net. PETITE COQUETTE POLKA. Price 1s. 3d. net.

CATALOGUES GRATIS AND POST-FREE. Shipping Orders on most favourable terms.

LONDON: JOSEPH WILLIAMS, 24, BERNERS-STREET, W.; and 125, CHEAPSIDE, E.C.

AIR DU DAUPHIN. Ancienne Danse de la Cour. By ROECKEL. For Piano Solo, Duet, Violin, Harmonium, Orchestra, Organ-Paraphrase, by W. T. Best. Each 18 stamps.—AUGENER and Co., 85, Newgate-street, E.C.

GAVOTTE DE LOUIS QUINZE. By MAURICE LEE. Piano Solo, Duet, Violin, Orchestra, Organ Transcription, by F. E. Gladstone. 18 stamps each. AUGENER and Co., 85, Newgate-street; and Foubert's-place, W.

AUGENER and CO.'S UNIVERSAL CIRCULATING MUSICAL LIBRARY is the largest in Europe. It contains 100,000 distinct works. Annual Subscription, 2 guineas.—London: 81, Regent-street. Prospectuses gratis.

Just published, SONG, AT THE MID HOUR OF NIGHT. By ROSELINE OGLE. Price 3s.; post-free for 18 stamps. London: AUGENER and Co., 85, Newgate-street.

BAISER DE PRINTEMPS. LAMOTHE'S loveliest and most popular Waltz, played with greatest success at all Court and Tinney's engagements, and by all the Regimental Bands of the Service and Volunteers. 2s. net. CUNINGHAM BOOSEY and Co., and all Musicians.

A. S. GATTY'S BEST SONGS. A DAISY SONG. 2s. each. TRUE TILL DEATH. Sung by Madame Cave-Ashton. Sung by Mr. Maybrick. CUNINGHAM BOOSEY and Co., and all Musicians.

JULIA WOOLF'S NEW SONGS. A GREAT SECRET. Words by F. E. Weatherly, Esq. THE BEE AND THE ROSE. Words by Agnes Trevor. "There is an irresistible charm of melody in both these songs."—Daily News. Post-free, 24 stamps.—B. WILLIAMS, 80, Paternoster-row.

BOOSEY & CO.'S PIANOFORTE-ROOMS. GRAND AND UPRIGHT PIANOFORTES, by all the great makers, both English and Foreign, for SALE or HIRE, subject to the largest discount obtainable in London. Pianos from £20. Short Gramms from £10. Sole Address, 295, REGENT-STREET.

PRATTEN'S PERFECTED FLUTES, Cylinder and Cone, commencing at 4 gs. The Siccama Flute and the Boehm Old and New System of Fingering. Particulars of all these instruments upon application to the Manufacturers, BOOSEY and CO., 295, Regent-street, W.

BOOSEY and CO.'S BRASS INSTRUMENTS FOR AMATEURS. THE DISTIN CORNET, from £10s. THE DISTIN CELEBRATED LIGHT VALVE CORNETS, 7 and 9 gs., are the best Cornets manufactured. THE DISTIN MINIATURE CORNET-A-PISTONS, 9 gs. THE DISTIN BALLAD HORN in C, 9 gs. THE DISTIN DRAG AND POST HORNS AND BAND INSTRUMENTS at all prices. THE DISTIN MONTHLY BRASS BAND JOURNAL, 10s. 6d. per annum.

The above instruments were exhibited by Boosey and Co., at the Philadelphia Exhibition, and were awarded a Prize Medal "For power and good quality of tone, fine workmanship." Estimates for Bands of all sizes, also illustrations and prices, to be had of the sole manufacturers, BOOSEY and CO., 295, Regent-street, London.

PIANOFORTES for HIRE or for SALE, from 25 gs. upwards.—JOHN BROADWOOD and SONS, No. 33, Great Tully-street, Golden-square, W. Manufactory, No. 45, Horseferry-road, Westminster.

PIANOS for HIRE, 10s. per Month. Seven shillings. No hire charged if purchased at any time within six months. THOMAS OETZMANN and CO., 37, Baker-street, London, W.

PIANOS, 17s. 6d. per Month, on the Three-Years' System. Becomes the property of the hirer if the payments are kept up. Illustrated Catalogues, post-free, on application.—THOMAS OETZMANN and CO., 37, Baker-street.

PIANO, £14. Seven-Octave PICCOLO PIANOFORTE, Second-hand, in good condition, for ready money.—May be seen at 27, Baker-street, Portman-square.

Long-w. Printed and Published at the Office, 198, Strand, in the Parish of St. Clement Danes, in the County of Middlesex, by GEORGE C. LEITCH, 198, Strand, aforesaid.—SARVADAY, NOVEMBER 24, 1877.

MARRIAGE OF THE DUKE OF NORFOLK.

LADY FLORA HASTINGS (DUCHESS OF NORFOLK).

THE DUKE OF NORFOLK.

ARUNDEL CASTLE, SUSSEX, THE SEAT OF THE DUKE OF NORFOLK.

MARRIAGE OF THE DUKE OF NORFOLK.

The nuptials of his Grace the Duke of Norfolk with Lady Flora Hastings, daughter of the late Countess of Loudoun and of Mr. C. F. Abney-Hastings, were celebrated on Wednesday at the Roman Catholic Oratory, Brompton. This nobleman, who is Earl Marshal and Hereditary Marshal of England, Premier Duke and Premier Earl, takes precedence next to Princes of the Blood Royal. He is Henry Fitzalan Howard, fifteenth Duke of Norfolk, Earl of Arundel, Surrey, and Norfolk, Baron Fitzalan, Clun, Oswaldestrie, and Maltravers. He was born Dec. 27, 1847, eldest son of Henry Granville Fitzalan Howard, the late Duke of Norfolk, his mother being Augusta, youngest daughter of the late Admiral Lord Lyons, G.C.B., commander of the British fleet in the Black Sea during the Crimean War. The illustrious and noble family of Howard, one of the most renowned in English history, descended from a learned Chief Justice of Common Pleas in the reign of Edward I. Its highest titles of peerages were mostly conferred on Sir John Howard by King Richard III., but were repeatedly forfeited and restored again in the political intrigues of the Tudor reigns. Among its leading representatives were the first Duke, who was killed on Bosworth field; his son, Thomas, Earl of Surrey, who won the battle of Flodden; also Henry, Earl of Surrey, the accomplished gentleman and poet, who was beheaded towards the end of Henry VIII.'s reign; another Thomas, fourth Duke of Norfolk, likewise beheaded, in 1572, for a conspiracy against Queen Elizabeth; and several other unfortunate peers, more than one of whom died prisoners in the Tower. The present Duke of Norfolk, who succeeded his father in 1860, is well known to be a devoted member of the Roman Catholic Church. His mansion in Sussex, Arundel Castle, of which we give an illustration, consists of a pile of modern Gothic building added to the ruins of the ancient Keep and other Norman towers, standing on the banks of the small River Arun. The old Castle, which was held from the Conquest by Roger de Montgomery, and belonged afterwards to Hugh de Albini, and to the Fitzalans, had the title of Earl of Arundel, without a creation of peerage, annexed to its hereditary ownership. It was besieged in the wars between Maud and Stephen, and was destroyed, after an obstinate defence, by the army of Sir William Waller in the wars between Charles I. and the Parliament. A superb Roman Catholic Chapel has lately been erected near the Castle by the present Duke of Norfolk.

The family of Lady Flora Paulina Hetty Barbara Hastings, now Duchess of Norfolk, originally bore the name of Rawdon, and obtained a baronetcy, with estates in the county of Down, Ireland, for services to the Crown in the seventeenth century. The Earldom of Moira, with a barony of Rawdon, was conferred upon one of this family in 1761. His son, the second Earl of Moira, inherited from his mother, a daughter of the Earl of Huntingdon, the baronies of Hastings, Hungerford, and other titles; and was created Marquis of Hastings for his eminent public services. He will be remembered in history as an excellent Governor-General of India. His wife, Flora Muir Campbell, was Countess of Loudoun, in the Scottish Peerage, by her own right. The second Marquis of Hastings, who died in 1844, married the Baroness Grey de Ruthin, and that peerage, likewise held by the lady of her own right, came into the Rawdon-Hastings family. The late Countess of Loudoun, married to an untitled Leicestershire gentleman, Mr. C. F. Clifton, of Willesey Hall, was heiress of four English baronies—namely, those of Botreaux, Hungerford, De Moleyns, and Hastings, besides three others in abeyance. Her Ladyship died in January, 1874, when the Earldom of Loudoun descended to her eldest son, Charles Edward. Her husband, in 1859, had by Act of Parliament taken the name of Abney Hastings, instead of Clifton. She left five children besides the present Earl of Loudoun, and Lady Flora is one of her two daughters. The country seat of his Lordship, Donington Park, is situated on the borders of Leicestershire and Derbyshire, near the little town of Castle Donington. This mansion, a view of which is presented, was built for the Marquis of Hastings by Sir Jeffrey Wyatville. It is surrounded by a fine deer-park.

Our Portrait of the Duke of Norfolk is from a photograph by Messrs. Russell and Sons, of Chichester; that of the newly married Duchess from one by Mr. W. Nicholson, of Ventnor and Shanklin.

MUSICAL PUBLICATIONS.

"Beloved, it is morn," by H. A. Rudall (Stanley Lucas, Weber, and Co.), is a well-written song, effective both in its vocal portion and in the accompaniment.

"Musical Miniatures," twelve songs by Lady Lindsay (of Balcarres). Stanley Lucas, Weber, and Co. Much feeling for vocal melody is displayed throughout this series of pieces, all of which are simple yet expressive in character, and within the compass of the most limited range of voice. The words are from various sources, some being by the Lady composer.

We've already spoken favourably of several compositions by Herr Hofmann—a composer who has recently attracted much attention in Germany—and we have now further to notice some pianoforte pieces from the same source, and likewise published by the London firm of Witt and Co., Conduit-street. The several series of pianoforte duets, "Silhouettes from Hungary," "New Hungarian Dances," and "Italian Love Tale," three characteristic pieces, are full of interest and variety; and the same may be said of the several sets of "Ländler," and the "Valse de Salon," for pianoforte solo. That Herr Hofmann can also write effectively for the voice is proved in several songs—"The Dawn of Spring," "A Gondola Song," "Serenade," "The Hungarian Maiden," "United," "The Troubadour," "Beloved," "The Lover's Garland," "The Floweret," "Love Test," and a set of four two-part songs. In all these the vocal portions are flowing and melodious, and the accompaniments of a very musicianly kind—in some instances of elaborate interest. Herr Hofmann's "Minnespiel Waltzes," for soprano, alto, tenor, and bass (chorus or solo), with accompaniment for two performers on the pianoforte, will be found very effective in performance. These are also published by Messrs. Witt and Co. Herr Hofmann has also produced important works for the orchestra, one of which is named for performance at this week's Crystal Palace concert.

Jewellery of the estimated value of £5000, the property of the Countess of Aberdeen, was stolen from Halstead Place, near Sevenoaks, last Monday evening. The property carried off by the thief or thieves consisted mainly of bridal presents, the Earl and Countess of Aberdeen having gone to Halstead Place to spend their honeymoon.

Mr. Edward Pugh, who was formerly extensively connected with the iron trade of the Wolverhampton district, has given a donation of £1000 towards the erection of a medical and surgical reference library in connection with the Wolverhampton Hospital. Mrs. Bull, widow of the late Dr. Bull, of Wolverhampton, after whom the proposed library is to be named, had previously given 1000 gs. for the same object.

FINE ARTS.

SOCIETY OF BRITISH ARTISTS, SUFFOLK-STREET.

When fortune has dealt kindly with a man, and he first becomes impressed with the idea that his home would look all the more cheery were its walls brightened with a few pictures, it is to the Suffolk-street Gallery he wends his way, and then, after much bewilderment, hesitation, and downright confusion of mind, he at last decides to have the picture of the puppy dogs, and leave the little landscape, with the rosy-faced milk-maid in the foreground, till another time. Going resolutely up to the secretary, he makes his tentative purchase, amounting to five or ten pounds, and from that moment the man feels himself personified with art and all thereto belonging. The better to back up his aesthetic pretensions, moreover, he sets himself seriously to acquire a knowledge of the literature of art and the principles of its leading schools, and ends by becoming an intelligent and appreciative connoisseur.

It is because of this cheap and easy initiation to the tyro in picture-buying, and also of the introduction to the young tyro in picture-painting, and not because of the innate excellence of the works exhibited, that the Suffolk-street Gallery claims a right to exist. Those pretending to a wide experience and a matured judgment are never weary of denouncing the utter dreariness of this exhibition and deprecating the idea of its being good for anything; but young painters must begin to exhibit somewhere, and there is nothing like personal possession, in however humble a way, for interesting the people at large in art-progress.

Including eight pieces of sculpture (for which we are indebted to J. Lawlor, E. R. Mullins, and E. Onslow Ford), the exhibition includes 766 works—a number far too great for the functions of the newspaper critic or the intelligent enjoyment of the visitor. These winter exhibitions, indeed, are being overdone. Had the society contented themselves with hanging only the large room, the general public, we cannot help thinking, would be better pleased, and the level of excellence attained would naturally be much higher, and therefore more within the scope of honest criticism.

Taking the exhibition, then, as it is, and beginning in the large room with the catalogue, one of the first pictures which attracts notice—and that mainly for the very pretty way in which the colours of the stained glass are reflected on the pillars of the edifice—is the "Interior of the Church of Notre Dame, Châlons" (8), by Wyke Bayliss. This artist has a nice sense of the mystery of light and dark pertaining to a Gothic fane; but, in expressing it, he is apt to become too shadowy, and to forget that "the architect built his great heart into the sculptured stones." This same feeling of insubstantiality is suggested also in his "Interior of Strasbourg Cathedral" (706). This same lack of solidity manifests itself also in a life-sized "Venetian Girl" (9), by C. Baxter, which holds the place of honour in this part of the room. Like all his women, this lady is comely enough; but surely no dweller by the sunny lagoons of the Adriatic had ever so fair a face as this? Above it hangs a very clever bit of genre, by G. H. Barrable, in which landscape and figures fit each other well, showing the momentary chagrin and consternation caused by the little girl who has let fall her pitcher and spilt the milk (8). On one side of this hangs a well-expressed "Grey day on the Dorset Coast" (7), by W. H. Hall, with some boats drawn up on the benighted mounds which line the coast; and on the other side a good representation of moonlight, "Under the Cliffs of Hastings" (13), by F. W. Meyer. The peaceful calm of "A Summer's Evening in Holland" (12) has been well caught by G. S. Walters. Cattle graze by the edgy banks of the canal, and boats float on its sleepy, sunny waters. In another of his contributions Mr. Walters gives, with equal truth to nature, "A Breezy day on the Dutch Coast" (251), a bright, silvery toned picture quite refreshing to the eye.

P. Pavy is a name new to us, but he is not likely to remain long a stranger, if his small picture of "The China-Mender" (19)—whom we see squatting in front of an Eastern bazaar plying his vocation—is a fair sample of his artistic powers. H. T. Dawson, the son of him who is so famous for his shipping pictures, seems to have caught no small share of his father's gifts. His two little pictures—the one a "View in Rotterdam" (24), the other, "Lower Haven, Rotterdam" (263), with stately shipping and glorious sky, are surely as fine in effect as anything his father has done, considering that the elder artist generally took several feet of canvas on which to develop his work, whereas the younger, in the present instance at least, confines himself to a few inches. W. L. Wyllie, another member, conveys in his "Whitstable, Kent" (27), the appearance of wet sands in a way rarely attempted. He peoples the far-reaching shiny level with numberless figures, gathering bait apparently, and suffuses the whole scene with a blue-grey tone, which strikes us as a little too positive and monotonous. A. W. Bayes, in his "Doubtful Characters" (30)—two moss troopers watching intently the approach of a party of horsemen, whom we see cresting the distant hill—has, like Mr. Wyllie, attempted to give a characteristic tone and colour to the scene, and by no means without success.

W. Bromley has sent one of those rustic scenes so characteristic of his pencil. It is called "Meal Time" (33), and represents a labourer seated outside his cottage partaking of some food, "assisted," as the French say, by the presence of his child, his dog, a hen and her chickens. The incident is depicted with much naïveté; and the same simplicity of treatment is followed by his son, John Bromley, in a bright little interior with a peasant girl holding under her arm a large earthenware basin while she looks out of her cottage window to see "Who's Coming" (423). Another interior of more than ordinary merit as regards the modelling of the figures and the treatment of light and shade is from the pencil of T. Roberts, and shows a little Dutch girl contemplating curiously "Le Petit Frère" (42), who lies snugly in his mother's arms. Also noticeable for nice detail and good tone is Haynes King's "Interior of a Farm-House" (54). Nor is H. T. Schafer's little picture of four children playing "By the Sea" (46) to be passed lightly by the visitor.

Frank W. W. Topham's "Day-Dream" (39)—a young Italian girl offering grapes to an old priest seated by an architectural fountain—is one of the artist's slighter works; but the master's hand is none the less visible. This remark is equally applicable to the wonderfully vigorous sketch of the head of "John Burr, Esq." (62), by John Pettie, R.A. The head is thrown to one side, bringing the neck and cheek-bone into prominence, and thereby giving a rather strained look to the sitter. In pose, drawing, and colour this is what the French would call a tour de force; and it is certainly the most powerful bit of modelling in the whole exhibition, and deservedly holds the place of honour. In a lesser degree, perhaps, but still strongly and harmoniously, R. J. Gordon, one of the younger members of the society, shows his sense of colour. He seems to confine himself to the delineation of a single figure surrounded with appropriate landscape. That figure, however, is always charming. The lady, in yellow dress, light transparent shawl, and pale blue Gainsborough hat, for example, whom we see seated on a woody bank nursing her knee—for she is "Waiting" (50)—and looking at the spectator very quietly and winningly as she does so, is a picture one could always contemplate with pleasure. So also is the young lady in spotted white dress and black shawl whom we see walking leisurely "Across the Heath" (70), and dangling her bonnet as she walks. Near this hang several clever little pictures by such artists as J. Aumonier, Miss C. M. Noble, and C. Fox. Above them hangs a large boldly-drawn landscape, by M. A. Langdale, representing "A North Devon Headland" (67).

Turning for a moment to the delineation of animal life, we find the well-deserved reputation of the gallery for this class of subject most ably maintained by J. S. Noble. In his "Return from Sport" (32), one accustomed to the moors will have no difficulty in differentiating the breeds in the group of dogs assembled in the gamekeeper's-room, and indicating at once the pointer, the setter, and the Gordon setter; while the man with artistic eye will delight in Mr. Noble's rendering of texture and the natural way in which he allows the dogs to fall into their places. Nor is Mr. Noble the only contributor in full sympathy with canine life. In "Treasure Trove" (76) G. A. Holmes shows a brown dog holding in its mouth a pink glove; T. Earl a little white terrier crouching with all that keenness of expression for which terriers are remarkable, and which justifies Mr. Earl in naming his picture "My Eyes! If there isn't a Mouse!" (90). Among other noticeable pictures in this part of the gallery, we would name "Matins" (78), by J. H. S. Mann, representing two little girls on their knees, with a votive offering of flowers before an altar; "Sunny Moments" (95)—a sweet girl reclining on a rustic seat under a weeping willow—by E. Gustave Girardot; and a large picture of a "Croquet Party" (86) grouped cleverly round a rustic seat, by H. Caffieri. If W. Henry is right in his perspective, his "View of Northumberland House from the Nelson Column" (37) will prove as historically valuable as Canaletti's view of the same quaint façade taken last century. In the management of light and shade we think the Englishman has the better of the Italian, and this prevents his picture having that bald architectural look which was the besetting sin of so many of Canaletto's works.

A. J. Woolmer's "Sirens" (105)—five nude figures on a rocky, moonlit coast watching a distant sail—is a large picture, full of witchery and suggestiveness, as all his works are; and if it does not enhance it certainly does not lower his reputation. Also among the important pictures of the exhibition must be classed "Showery Weather" (119), by T. F. Wainwright; "The Albanian Coast from Corfu" (137), by A. B. Donaldson; "A Sussex Pastoral" (142)—a broad cattle-dotted meadow, with a winding river and some appropriate figures in the foreground—by A. F. Grace; and "Rough Weather, Runswick Bay" (162), which is closed in on the farther side by some picturesque houses, and which has on the hither side some fisher folk watching eagerly the vessels in the distance. The white and broken water of the sea tumbles into the little semicircular bay in the most natural way possible, and the whole picture is full of life and sparkle. It is the sparkle, however, of a rough diamond, whose quality would be all the more appreciated if it had from the artist, J. W. B. Knight, a little more polish and finish. "Among the Bohemian Hills" (170), by A. Ludovici, is also an interesting picture, although a little spotty, and in parts rather too suggestive of Corot, just as "Venice During the Floods" (185), by K. Hallselle, is suggestive of James Holland. "The Dolomite Mountains" (192), with a patch of corn in the foreground and a peasant leading a goat by the side of a rough wooden rail, which protects him from the abyss beyond, is by W. H. Bartlett, a young artist of great ability and of greater promise. His pictorial sense, as shown in this work and in his "Wayfarers on the Road to Sterzing" (216) sitting on a log underneath a roadside crucifix, is remarkable; and when his hand can fairly follow his will and give full expression to all he himself sees and feels, we shall have in him an artist of more than ordinary power, because of more than ordinary imagination. Patient and methodical study will alone help to a consummation of this kind.

In the way of landscape, however, pure and simple, J. H. Sampson's "No Man's Land" (418), a long picture representing a great marshy moor land, with some crows and a piece of rushy water in the foreground, and a nice low horizon of tenderly outlined hills, struck us as being an exceedingly fine work, and, on the whole, the finest landscape in the exhibition. We would name also T. Huson's "Bright Afternoon in Early Autumn" (289), a little rough in handling, but clear and crisp in effect; "More Free than Welcome" (151), the joint production of E. Ellis and W. Henderson; and "Summer Holidays" (155), by J. R. Ashton; "A Yorkshire Goose-Market, early morning" (385), by A. G. Bell. C. Cattermole shows us two troopers being directed through a forest glade by two children. "Over Yonder" (129) he calls it; and in the south-east room we behold an old cavalier who has dismounted on the roadside to enjoy "A Contemplative Pipe" (294). Both works are worthy of Mr. Cattermole. The tone and spirit of the times he catches lovingly, and can always be depended on for the correctness of his archaeological knowledge. In the second picture, for example, the long, narrow bowl of the trooper's pipe belongs precisely to that period.

Miss M. Backhouse, W. H. Gadsby, E. Sainsbury, F. Wyburd, T. J. Ellis, H. W. Brewer, W. J. Muckley, and J. Hayllar are all well represented. The last named got a very sweet model in the lady who stood for his "Flowers for the Altar" (189); but we are afraid he is making too free a use of her in his pictures. We have met her several times lately. One of the few really strong artists who have sent to this exhibition we had almost forgotten—we mean Miss B. Myer. In spite of her great tendency to blackness, she is a character-painter of power and originality, as "Her Royal Highness's Birthday" (179) and her "Unprofitable Customers" (247) attest most readily. Among the water-colour artists will be found J. W. Smith, F. Davis, W. Hull, B. Evans, F. Slocombe, Miss J. Moore, J. Carlisle, B. W. Spiers, Miss E. M. Beresford, and many others, whom we hope to meet elsewhere.

THE M'LEAN GALLERY, HAYMARKET.

Besides a hundred and sixty-one carefully-selected water-colour drawings, this gallery contains five very charming examples of the sculptor's art by Count d'Épinay, representing Summer, Winter, Spring, Autumn, and Innocence. Among the British artists whose drawings will attract attention may be mentioned such well-known men as F. J. Skell, J. D. Linton, J. Aumonier, John Steeple, Birket Foster, Fred. Tayler, E. M. Wimperis, Basil Bradley, E. K. Johnson, and W. S. Coleman; while foreign art comes under the protecting wings of such honoured artists as Josef Israels, E. Frère, R. Giannetti, and Henriette Browne.

Among the more impressive pictures, either from choice of subject or style, may be mentioned Clara Montalba's "Unloading Salt, Venice" (20); Sir John Gilbert's three men behind an oak, "In Ambush" (34), while two mounted troopers halt to reconnoitre; a small replica of the famous "Blind Beggar" (79) of F. Dyckmans; "Whitby Scour" (90), by G. Dodgson; "Going to the Fancy Ball" (99), by Miss M. Walker; the "Flowers" of Mrs. Coleman Angell, and the "Apples and Plums" (123) of W. Hough.

THE EVERARD GALLERY, NEW COVENTRY-STREET.

This gallery occupies the whole block of building on the right as one enters Leicester-square from Piccadilly, and one wishing to inform himself of the state of Continental art could enter no place in London where his thirst after æsthetic knowledge would be so fully satisfied. We can scarcely go over a collection numbering nearly four hundred and fifty works in oil; but we can name a few of the more distinguished living contributors, as well as those lately deceased, by which means our readers will be able to judge of its merits for themselves. F. Roybet is represented by one of his most famous pictures—viz., "The Four Amateurs of Engravings" (53); Ernest Steigmeyer by his "Episode of St. Bartholomew" (84) and his grand work of International-Exhibition fame, in which we see the young "Christian Martyr in the Reign of Diocletian" (85). The Prussian painter Weber has one of his best marine pictures; and Philippoteaux, the French artist, one of his most spirited battle-pieces. Professor Van Lerius never painted two finer or purer pictures than "Ondine" (262), and "The Triumph of Virtue" (233), a work, in some of its passages, worthy of the old masters. This artist's "Godiva," which was engraved and published in this country, M. Everard has sold to the Belgian Government for the Museum of Antwerp. J. E. Vibert's splendid picture of "Gulliver in the Island of Lilliput" (420), which belonged to the collection of the noted Dr. Strousberg, of Berlin, is also here, and the magnificent Norman Valley by Troyon, with cattle and two boys fishing in the foreground, in which a stream reflects all manner of wild flowers and stately trees, and from which the eye wanders to an illimitable distance. This grand work Mr. Everard has just sold for three thousand guineas.

Besides these, there are rare masterpieces by N. Diaz, De Haas, Munkacsy, Rousseau, Decamps, Ary Scheffer, Escozza, and Fortuny, not to mention such works as "The Death of Annibal Caracci" of Paul Delaroche, and the no less famous "Le Liseur" (417), by J. L. E. Meissonier, two works as much identified with the fame of their respective authors as any two that could be named. Besides the great men we have mentioned, there are many of lesser note, and whatever is most remarkable in contemporaneous Belgian, French, Spanish, German, or Italian art, will be found within the well-filled galleries of M. Everard.

The private view of the Dudley Gallery Winter Exhibition of oil pictures takes place to-day. The gallery will be open to the public on Monday.

The Grosvenor Gallery will open on Dec. 3 with an exhibition of drawings by the old masters, and water-colour drawings by deceased artists of the British school.

The statue which is to be erected by subscription in the Pavilion grounds, Brighton, in memory of the late Sir Cordy Burrows, is completed and ready to be conveyed to Brighton from the London studio of Mr. E. B. Stephens, A.R.A., the artist intrusted with the work.

The officers of the Royal Engineers, to which distinguished corps the late Field Marshal Sir John Burgoyne belonged, have set up a fine bronze statue in memory of him, which stands at the Carlton-gardens corner of the open space before the Duke of York's Column, nearly opposite the statue of Field Marshal Lord Clyde. The sculptor, Mr. Boehm, has been most successful.

The prizes to the students of the Reading School of Science and Art were given last week by Mr. Walter, M.P., who said that one great aim in the establishment of such schools was to infuse a more artistic taste among the mechanic class, and that while they would not become worse mechanics they should be better artists. Mr. Lefevre, M.P., also addressed the meeting.

Mr. Newton, C.B., of the British Museum, gave at the College for Men and Women, in Queen-square, his third lecture on Greek Art last Saturday, treating of the century between B.C. 540 and B.C. 460, which may be called the Transition period, and in the course of which art gradually divested itself of archaic stiffness and ungainliness till it finally developed into that freer style which Phidias brought to perfection about B.C. 440.

At Gosport on Monday evening Mr. Selater-Booth, M.P., presented the prizes gained by the Gosport branch of the Portsmouth, Isle of Wight, and Gosport School of Science and Art; and on the same day Mr. Denzil Onslow, M.P., and Miss Onslow distributed the prizes and certificates to the male and female students of the science and art classes at Guildford. A plot of ground has been secured and plans prepared for the Guildford School of Science and Art.

The ceremony of laying the corner-stone of the west wing and out-patients' department of the West London Hospital, Hammersmith, was performed on Monday by the Rev. R. G. Baker, M.A., Prebendary of St. Paul's.

Canon Scott Robertson's annual summary, just completed, of British contributions to the sixty-nine societies in Great Britain and Ireland which collect funds for promoting missionary work in foreign lands shows that in the financial year 1866-7 these British contributions amounted to £1,048,472. The general summary is as follows:—Church of England societies received £425,926; "omnibus" or joint societies, £156,948; Nonconformist societies in England and Wales, £300,771; Scotch and Irish Presbyterian societies, £158,348; and Roman Catholic societies, £6479.

The Duchess of Teck opened the new infirmary at Hemel Hempstead on Saturday last. This valuable institution was founded in 1826 by the late Sir John S. Sebright, Bart., who expended £13,000 in its building and endowment. Although enlarged from time to time, it has become inadequate to the requirements of the sick poor in West Herts; and four years since, having been condemned by the sanitary authority, it was decided to erect a new building. Among the principal subscribers to the fund were:—Mr. A. H. Longman, £1000; Mr. W. Jones Loyd, £500; Earl Brownlow, £300; the Hon. G. D. Ryder, £300; the Earl of Essex, £120; Earl Verulam, £100; Lord Ebury, £100; Lord Rokeby, £100; Mr. D. Carnegie, £100; Mr. R. Pryor, £100. The new building will accommodate fifty in-patients, and, including £900 for the three acres of land, is estimated to cost £13,000, towards which subscriptions have been received amounting to £8018. The opening ceremony was witnessed by a large number of visitors. The Duchess of Teck arrived from Ashridge, the seat of Earl Brownlow, at noon. Her Royal Highness was met at the principal entrance by Earl Verulam (Lord Lieutenant of the county), the Bishop of St. Albans, Mr. T. F. Halsey, M.P., Mr. G. Evillertiff (High Bailiff), the Rev. W. O. Thompson (Vicar), the principal nobility and gentry of West Herts, and the governors and medical officers of the infirmary. At the conclusion of a short religious service, at which the Bishop of St. Albans officiated, her Royal Highness was conducted through the building, when an address was presented, and the Duchess declared the new infirmary open for the reception of the sick poor of West Hertfordshire. At a déjeuner which followed the Earl of Verulam presided.

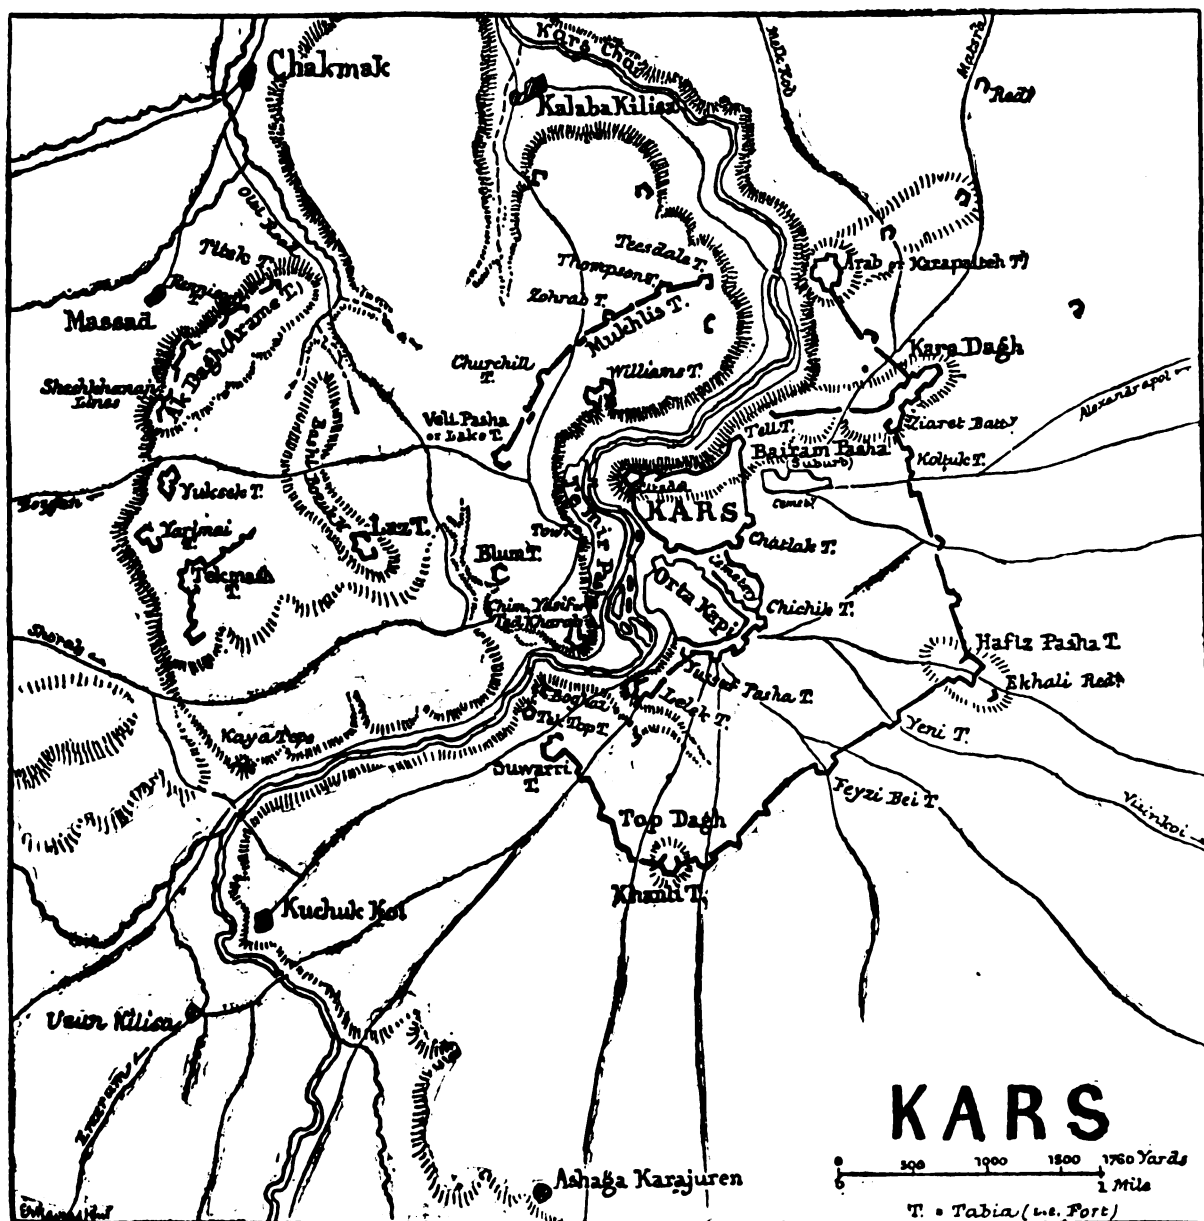

PLAN OF THE TURKISH FORTIFICATIONS AROUND KARS.

The capture of the great Turkish fortress in Armenia, on Saturday last, by a night attack on the surrounding forts, in which 5000 Turks and 2700 Russians were killed or wounded, is one of the most important events of the war. Some particulars of the affair were reported by telegraph, and were published in a special edition of the Daily News on Monday; but a complete narrative is still awaited. While the most recent information, to the hour of preparing our usual weekly record of the progress of the war, is given in another page, we may here observe that the accompanying Map of the fortifications around Kars is designed to assist the comprehension of accounts either received already, or to be expected very shortly, concerning this grand military operation. The reader will at once perceive the situation of the different forts mentioned in the telegraphic intelligence of last Monday; the Hafiz Pasha Tabia, on the east side of Kars, which was stormed by General Lazareff; the Khanli Tabia and Suvarri Tabia, on the south side, with the citadel and towers, assailed by General Count Grabbe, who was killed in fighting; the Arab Tabia, or Karapalteh, and the Kara Dagh, to the north-east, which surrendered on the Sunday morning. These points of attack and defence, it will be seen, were entirely different from those which were assailed by the Russians in July and August, which lay to the westward of Kars; and the descriptions that appeared in those days of Chakmak, Tekmah, Veli Pasha Tabia, and Mukhlis Tabia, will therefore be found inapplicable to the present occasion. We shall no doubt be soon furnished with the details of the southern and eastern fortifications, with their garrisons, actually involved in the tremendous struggle of last Saturday, which has cost the Sultan his most valuable Asiatic stronghold of empire, with at least 7000 Turkish soldiers made prisoners, and three hundred mounted guns.

THE SCOTTISH CORPORATION HALL.

The destruction by fire, on the night of Wednesday week, of the hall of the Scottish Corporation, in Crane-court, Fleet-street, is to be regretted the more, as it was a building of some antiquarian interest. The Scottish Corporation owes its origin to a society formed a short time before the accession of James I. for relieving poor Scottish people resident in London. The society continued to carry out this benevolent object under the designation of the "Scottish Box" until the reign of Charles II., when, in 1665, a charter of incorporation was granted, empowering the society to hold lands and to erect an hospital. It appears that during the plague of 1665-6 upwards of 300 natives of Scotland were buried at the sole charge of the Corporation of the Scottish Hospital, and that numbers were nourished during their sickness without subjecting the parishes in which they resided to the smallest expense. Within a few years after the date of the first charter an hospital was built, which stood on the spot in Bridge-street, Blackfriars, now occupied by the London, Chatham, and Dover Railway. Experience, however, proved that confinement to a charity workhouse was not congenial to the instincts and habits of the Scottish poor, and a plan of assisting and relieving the poor at their own houses was substituted. To enable the corporation to extend its relief to such objects it became necessary to obtain a new charter, which was granted by George III. in 1775. The premises of the Corporation destroyed by fire last week were purchased from the Royal Society in 1782. In the principal hall were several fine portraits, the presents of the different governors, including full-length portraits of Mary Queen of Scots, said to have been painted by Zuccherro, and of William IV., who was for twenty years president of the institution, painted by the late Sir David Wilkie, R.A., and presented by that gentleman in 1831. In the hall were held throughout the year most of the meetings in connection with Scottish interests that took place in London. In connection with the main building fronting Crane-court is a chapel belonging to the Corporation, the entrance to which is in Fleur-de-Lis-court, off Fetter-lane. In the open courtyard leading to the small chapel—itsself almost unharmed—a stone tablet bears the following inscription: "This edifice hall was built by the Scottish Corporation to the grace of God and for the relief of the poor, in the year of Our Lord 1673.—Andrew Caldwell, Master; Andrew Hodges, Treasurer." This tablet and the royal arms on the same wall are not even soiled by smoke. The chapel is but very slightly injured, within or without. In an ante-room, where everything else was scorched, a portrait of Princess Louise remained uninjured.

PLAN OF THE TURKISH FORTIFICATIONS AROUND KARS.

The twenty-third anniversary of the death of Lord Dudley Coutts Stuart was commemorated on Saturday last by a meeting of the Polish Historical Society, held at Sussex Chambers, Duke-street, St. James's, under the presidency of Major Szulcswild, who delivered a long address on the present position of affairs in the East.

ROYAL INSTITUTION LECTURES.

The winter session will begin on Thursday, Dec. 27, when Professor Tyndall will give the first of a course of six lectures (adapted to an educated juvenile auditory) on Heat, Visible and Invisible. After the recess, Professor A. Garrod will give a course of twelve lectures on the Protoplasmic Theory of Life and its Bearing on Physiology, beginning on Tuesday, Jan. 22. Professor J. Dewar will give a course of twelve lectures on the Chemistry of the Organic World, beginning on Thursday, Jan. 24. On the Saturdays before Easter: Mr. R. Bosworth Smith will give seven lectures on Carthage and the Carthaginians, beginning on Jan. 26. The Rev. W. Houghton will give three lectures on the Natural History of the Ancients, beginning on March 16; and Mr. Ernst Pauer will give two lectures (with musical illustrations) on the Clavecinists and their Works (England and Italy, France and Germany) on April 6 and 13. The Friday evening meetings will begin with a discourse by Professor Tyndall on Jan. 25. The discourses following will probably be given by W. H. Preece and Matthew Arnold, Esq., Drs. P. L. Selater, Warren De la Rue, and R. Liebreich, Professor Goldwin Smith, Lord Rayleigh, Professors Huxley and Dewar, and Sir Joseph D. Hooker.

Lord Sheffield has subscribed £1000 to the Stafford House Fund for the relief of the sick and wounded Turkish soldiers.

Mr. Layard, our Ambassador at Constantinople, has received a collection of antiquities from the province of Van for the British Museum.

Professor Sheldon Amos gave the second of a course of lectures on "War and Commerce" to the working classes, under the auspices of the Trades Guild of Learning, at the Chelsea Vestry-Hall, on Monday night, the subject of this lecture being "British Commercial Wars with China."

MARRIAGE OF THE DUKE OF NORFOLK: DONINGTON PARK, DERBYSHIRE.

RUINS OF THE SCOTTISH CORPORATION HALL, CRANE-COURT, FLEET-STREET, AFTER THE FIRE.

RAINY WEATHER.

BY MISS EDWARDS,

THE KAFFIR WAR IN SOUTH AFRICA.

MUSTER OF COLONIAL VOLUNTEERS IN HIGH-STREET, GRAHAM'S TOWN.

BURNING OF KRELI'S KRAAL.

THE KAFFIR WAR.

Some further illustrations are given this week of the fighting with Kreli, chief of the Galekas, on the Butterworth river, in Kaffrland, east of the British Colonial settlements in South Africa. The Fingoes, a loyal and peaceable nation of our Queen's subjects, whom the Galekas had molested, were first employed against them, under the leadership of three or four Englishmen; but the campaign has since been undertaken by a force of armed Mounted Police and Colonial Volunteers, under Commandant Griffiths, who may be supported by regular troops in case of need. One of the Volunteers at the front has sent the two sketches engraved for this Number. The muster of volunteers in the High-street of Grahamstown, on Wednesday, the 3rd ult., is an interesting scene. There were forty-five cavalry, chiefly of the Albany Mounted Volunteer Corps, under Captain Minto, and thirteen Artillery Volunteers, with one gun, under Lieutenant Wells. They drew up in front of the Court-house, where Mr. C. Huntley, the Civil Commissioner, met them on horseback, and briefly addressed them with thanks and commendation. They were escorted out of town by a large number of the citizens, with a military band. In the street view presented by our Correspondent's sketch, the Courthouse is shown to the right hand, with the Oriental Bank next to it; the unfinished clock-tower and spire of the new Cathedral, designed by Sir Gilbert Scott, appears in the distance. A second detachment of fifty mounted Volunteers, from Salem and Sidbury, started in the afternoon of the same day, under the command of Captain Joseph Gush, a member of the Legislative Assembly. These troops were amply provided with necessary stores and equipments by the fund raised by public subscription at Grahamstown. Similar efforts have been made at King William's Town, East London, Cradock, Port Elizabeth, and other towns, from which parties of armed and trained volunteers have been sent into the Trans-Kei territory. It is scarcely expected that the regular soldiery of the 24th and 88th Regiments, stationed along the frontier, will be required to take an active part in this campaign. We take the present state of affairs from the last advices to be this, that the Galekas have been repeatedly and distinctly beaten. Commandant Griffiths, at the head of a considerable force, is advancing southwards, so as to drive them down to the seacoast. His advance has been up to this time perfectly successful, and there has been no check or reverse. The excitement amongst the tribes on the border is diminishing, and there has been no defection whatever amongst any of those chiefs of the war tribes whose fealty at such a moment might have been doubtful. Sandilli, whom there was possibly some cause to distrust, has remained absolutely quiet on the west of the Kei, assurances having been received from him and the Galekas of their intention to support the Government.

MUSIC.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.

The first two performances of last week have already been noticed. On Wednesday "Il Trovatore" was repeated, and on Thursday "Le Nozze di Figaro." On the Friday "Il Flauto Magico" was given, for the first time this season, and with a cast similar in many respects to that of past occasions. Madame Marie Roze, as Pamina, sang with much dramatic feeling. Mdlle. Mila Rodani was to have appeared as Astri-fiammante (the Queen of Night), but was suddenly replaced by Mdlle. Bauermeister, who acquitted herself well in the two bravura songs. Mdlle. Alwina Valleria gave full effect to the little music belonging to Papagena, the duet with Papagena having been encored. The last-named character was very efficiently filled by Signor del Puente. Signor Bettini sang well as Tamino; Signor Ghilberti's bass voice was heard to advantage in the music of Sarastro; subordinate characters having been filled by Mdlles. Robiati, Clinton, Parodi, Risiani, and Madame Lablache, and Signori Rinaldini, Franceschi, Brocolini, and Grazi.

